In the afternoon, I accompanied a party of officers on shore, and we strolled into the fort, and walked about to see what was to be seen. We had not gone far, when a man came from Liang's quarters, objecting to our going further. I asked "Why?" He said, "Because there were a great many of the brethren about." I replied, "We certainly ought to have nothing to fear from brethren." This answer seemed to non-plus him; but soon after another man came with a similar message, and finding that there was really nothing worth seeing, we retraced our steps. Passing Liang's quarters, we were invited to go in and take a cup of tea, and accepted the invitation. "His Excellency's" palace was quite destitute of anything like splendour or even of neatness or comfort. He received us, dressed in a yellow crape robe, and wearing on his head a sort of crown made of gilt paper, and resembling those that we see upon the heads of the Chinese god of wealth. His principal attendants were a crowd of dirty boys from eleven to eighteen years of age, and the tout ensemble was anything but "heavenly," malgre the style and title assumed by these insurgents. Crossing the creek by a sort of floating drawbridge, we walked through a suburb consisting of one-story houses, occupied by persons connected with the army, or by small shopkeepers, among whose wares silver and jade ornaments, embroidered satin and silk dresses, and other articles of "loôt" or plunder, were prominently displayed. From inquiries I learned that there were in Nanking and its suburbs some four hundred and thirty thousand persons of all descriptions, ages, and sexes, all upon an allowance of one quart of rice, eight ounces of oil, and two ounces of salt per diem for each adult, and a proportionate quantity for children. No pay is given to the soldiers, and they are expected to make it up in the plunder of the towns and villages which they captured. It had been their custom, whenever the least resistance was opposed to them, to put to death all the adults, and spare only the children, whom they carried off. This would account for the large number of little boys we met in every direction. I believe that orders have been issued latterly by the "Heavenly King" to his generals, to pursue a less sanguinary policy, and I have heard that at Kin-hwa, in our province, which has lately been captured by Chung-Wang, or King Chung, one of their generals, there was much less slaughter.

Entrance to the City—Its Wall—Sad Scenes.

On the next morning, May 6th, at 8 A. M., I started for Nanking with a party of officers, consisting of Post-Captain Lowndes, Captain Garland, (of the marine corps,) Purser Gibson, and Lieutenant Law, all belonging to the United States ship Hartford. We went in Captain Lowndes' gig, stopping at the fort for a guide and our passport. All the city gates being walled up except two, we were obliged to pull some four miles or more to reach the Western Han gate, which is one of the two open ones. The moat is wide, like a Western canal, deep enough to drown a man, as a poor Chinaman proved that day, and in many places wheat and barley, Japan beans, and the brassica or oil cabbage plant, were growing luxuriantly. Great numbers of little boys, each carrying a small "rebel flag," were loading their donkeys with grass for provender; and now and then, as we neared the city gate, a woman was seen riding on a wheelbarrow, or on horseback, sitting astride like a man. The boats were sometimes sculled as in our province, but more frequently rowed, the rower standing up and "pushing" the oar instead of "pulling" it. Farther up the Yang-tze I saw occasionally a woman propelling a boat with a single oar, which she used with a combination of the sculling and rowing motions, at once ingenious, skillful, and effective.

The wall of Nanking, which, including that which surrounds the old "Tartar city," is about thirty miles or more in length, is carried along the sides and over the tops of high hills, so as to include every eminence that might otherwise overlook and command the city, and appeared to be in some places more than eighty feet high. The western Han gate, at which we entered, resembled in length a railroad tunnel, and in height and length surpassed any city gate I had ever seen before. Here our passports were examined and we were allowed to proceed, Captain Lowndes taking the sedan, and the rest of us going on horseback. If squalor and misery abounded at Chinkiang, dreariness and desolation reigned here. In every direction heaps of ruins and rubbish reaching as far as we could see. The streets, which had been cleared out, were broader than I had ever seen in a Chinese city. Two rows of stone slabs extended their whole length for a carriage way, with gutters and sidewalks on either side, showed somewhat of an approach to occidental customs. A few men were at work digging out bricks from the heaps of rubbish, and the few buildings still standing seemed mostly occupied by military officers, and all bore the inscription—"The Heavenly Father's best favour," or one of a similar import, over the doorway.

The palace; official interview—Few signs of Christianity.

The palace of Tsan Wang is about a mile and a quarter from the western Han gate. It is new, and highly varnished and ornamented. A few straggling soldiers, not in uniform, carrying vermilion coloured muskets, were around the gate. We were ushered into the council chamber, where the councillors were in session and arose to receive us. Our mission was a delicate one, namely, to obtain a formal document under seal, guarantying to our citizens and their property security from molestation or loss, without formally recognising the insurgents or giving them an official document in return. Yet, by the favour of God, we succeeded so well that if the insurgents perform what they have promised, the expedition will not prove to have been a fruitless one, either to our merchants or our missionaries.

We were courteously treated, accepted an invitation to dine with these kings, or princes as Wang might be more properly translated, one of whom afterwards came down and visited us on board the "Hartford" on Monday following. Saving and excepting that a blessing was asked by the young prince who sat at the head of our table, and the inscriptions on the houses, I saw no signs of anything resembling Christianity in or near Nanking, although the young prince told me it was their Sabbath. I saw and heard no religious worship, save the firing of some fire-crackers, which I was told was done in worshipping the Heavenly Father. The shopkeepers, boatmen, and labourers seemed to know no Sabbath, nor had the council of state ceased from business on the day they call by that name. The Cantonese in the junks lying off the city went through apparently the same kind of gong-beating and burning of papers and fire-crackers as in the other parts of China.

Wine not offered, but used—Opium used—The language spoken—The Councillors.

No wine was offered us at Tsan Wang's palace, and we were told they did not think it right to drink it. Yet a gentleman who passed some time in the palace of Kan Wang told me that that dignitary drank it habitually; and Moh Wang, during his visit on board the "Hartford," drank a sufficient quantity of sherry and champaigne, and with sufficient imperturbility, to show that he was either no stranger to the habit, or that he possessed remarkable natural powers in that line at least. Boats came alongside the "Saginaw" at night, wishing to buy opium, and many countenances among the insurgents indicated that they were no strangers to that drug. Three of the council spoke the Mandarin dialect passably well, as also did Mr. Liang. The rest spoke together in the patois of their native province, (Kwang-si,) which was to me almost wholly unintelligible. All along the banks of the Yang-tsze, and in the Tongting lake I found no difficulty in understanding and being understood by the people and officers. As to the literary acquirements of the councillors, I saw sufficient to convince me that they were of very moderate pretensions, and they themselves, when in session, had the air of a group of village tavern politicians. When Moh Wang and Liang visited the Hartford, the theatrical airs assumed by them, particularly by the latter, were exceedingly ridiculous and absurd.

Religious views and practices—Kan Wang—Missionaries not wanted.

I could not find that they were publishing the sacred Scriptures at present. I got a copy from the young prince Tsau-tsz-kiun, but it proved an old edition and imperfect. I distributed among the insurgents, as well as among the imperialists, Christian almanacs, tracts, and copies of the Gospels, and to the higher officers I gave a few copies of my Diatessaron, or Harmony of the Gospels in the Mandarin colloquial. A large number of tracts, &c., were distributed also at Wiswei-chau, Kiu-kiang, Hankow, Wu-chang, and Yoh-chau, in which good work Chaplain Bartow and other officers helped.

I was sorry that we did not meet Kan Wang, who is properly the minister for Foreign Affairs, and who was absent from Nanking on a fighting expedition. Kan Wang was instructed at Hongkong, and is better informed on general subjects than most of his colleagues. Yet he practices polygamy, and falls in with most of their errors. From a gentleman who resided some time in Nanking, I learned that the "Heavenly King" Hung Siu-tsiuen asserts that "No man hath seen God at any time, save Hung Siu-tsiuen." "Jesus is said to be the express image of the Father's person, and a spirit cannot have an image or likeness, consequently it is not true that God is a Spirit, Hung has seen Him. He is just like one of us; the passage referred to, was probably written to keep the Western brethren from making an image of God." Kan Wang distinctly said that they "did not wish missionaries to come to Nanking"—that it was well enough for them to preach through the country now, as a preparatory work, but when the empire is subjugated by the Tai-pings, the missionaries will be in the way, and will not be wanted." The insurgents in their theology give a wife to God the Father!—make the Elder Brother (Jesus) inferior to the Father, and give him a wife also!

Unfavourable impressions of the insurgents.

Where the imperialists have recovered possession for a few years, people and things begin to look natural and flourishing, but where the insurgents hold sway, desolation reigns, at least wherever I have seen. For more than 400 miles not a comfortable house was left standing—empty blackened walls, mud hovels, or burning villages, with hundreds upon hundreds of wretched people in the open fields, trying in vain to shelter themselves from the heavy rains—all these left but an unfavourable impression of the insurgents and of their work upon my mind; and I believe the same impression now almost universally prevails, even among those who a short time ago were enthusiastic in their hopes relative to these so-called "Christian patriots of Nanking." I had intended to write somewhat relative to the other ports on the Yang-tsze visited by the United States squadron, but my letter is already so long that I must defer stating my views particularly relative to their adaptation and desirability as locations for missionary labour until some future opportunity.

Respectfully and affectionately yours,

D. B. McCartee.

NINGPO MISSION, CHINA.

ORGANIZATION OF ANOTHER CHURCH AND OTHER MATTERS.

The Rev. W. T. Morrison writes as follows, under date of June 26, 1861, at Ningpo.

At a called meeting of Presbytery, during the month of May, a request was made through the elder, Mr. Loh-ding, that "the Ningpo church should be divided," so that the members residing in the Sanpoh district, viz., Yü-yiao, Yih-kô, and Siao-gyiao-des, should constitute a second church. After considering the desirableness of the proposed measure, and hearing whatever the native brethren present had to say, it was unanimously carried that the division be made. Accordingly, Mr. Rankin and myself were appointed a committee to organize the church, should the way be clear. Detained by the heavy rains that fell here the first part of the the month, flooding that district with water, and rendering the bridges impassable, we did not set out until the 13th inst. It was understood that the organization should take place at the central station, Yih-kô. Previous to going there, we stopped at the two other stations, making particular inquiry as to the disposition of the people. This we deemed the more important, inasmuch as all the brethren had not previously assembled formally to request the action of Presbytery.

On Sunday morning we assembled, over 30 in number. Most of the members from the San-poh district were present, although the day was very warm, and many of them had to walk a long way. Some came from Yü-yiao, a distance of ten or twelve miles. Mr. Rankin began by giving an explanation of what we were about to do, a short account of the Ningpo church, and also the reasons that had led to the proposed division. On asking those who were in favour of separation to raise their hands, every hand was raised. The opinion of those who were absent was then asked for, and the reply was that they were favourable to the change. After a sermon by Mr. Rankin, he proceeded to install the elders, Mr. Loh-ding and Mr. Yih, who had formerly acted in that capacity in the Ningpo church. After putting the usual questions both to them and the people, he declared the church duly organized, to be known as the church of the Yü-yiao and Sanpoh district. In the afternoon we commemorated the Lord's Supper with nearly thirty members present. It was both a solemn and interesting occasion, and as such I think all present regarded it. In the afternoon all those who lived at remote distances returned home. In the evening those who live nearer again assembled for holding their usual prayer-meeting. The hearty interest evinced by the members in each other, the cordiality which marks their greetings and partings, is very interesting. We started early the following morning for Ningpo. Leaving me at Yü-yiao, where I had determined to spend a little time, Mr. Rankin continued on his way home.

The new church has on its roll at present thirty-two members. At present it embraces three stations. It is under contemplation to extend the sphere of its operations by having one or two sub-stations, which can be carried on by the native assistants in addition to their other work. It is worthy of note that the assistants themselves have urged this matter for our consideration. At our last mission meeting it was left in the hands of the committee on out-stations to assign them the new posts, as they had expressed their preference that the mission should decide for them. Matters at Siao-gyiao-des are not in a flourishing state. The school is very much reduced in numbers, and, from the account of the native assistant, (Dong-hioò,) the people seem very little interested in religion. At Yih-kô the prospect is brighter; I think there are at present one or two inquirers there. Every one seems to be struck with the progress which the native elder and assistant (Mr. Yih) have made, both in knowledge and Christian attainments. At Yü-Yiao there are three applicants for baptism. In the prison, the church-member there still continues to give satisfactory evidence of a change. In addition to him, one or two others who feel some interest are spoken of favourably by the elders who have visited them. I suppose there is little doubt of the three applicants being received ere long. I regret to say that we have no new cases of very late date. All of whom I have spoken have been hearing the word three months or more. We do not have the number of strangers coming to the chapel that I should like to see.

While at Yü-yiao, a scholar who had met a foreigner, who, from his description, must have been Mr. Greene, and received a book, being on a visit to that place, came to the chapel to see me. For two nights he attended prayers, was conversed with, and received several tracts and also a copy of one of the Gospels. Of course, such seed we can only follow with our prayers, not knowing or being able to see whether it ever produces fruit or not. The number reached by means of the chapel is, I fear, comparatively small. If the comers do not increase, the question may arise whether or not we ought to seek another location. Nothing further has been heard concerning a house. One for which we made an offer is held by the landlord at double the rent we proposed to give; although we have waited some time, he has not showed any disposition to abate his price

I think I informed you in my last that I had been in the habit of leaving home and spending some time there, living in the house of the native assistant. I think the change has interested me much more in my work, and I trust that my being there has not been entirely without profit to the brethren. Bao-kô-tah gives signs of more life than any other of the stations. There are two aged inquirers now there, one over seventy, the other over eighty. Last Sunday there were others who appeared to be interested. Still I suppose we must guard against the danger of making the wish father to the thought. Any movement, however slight, is cheering. In speaking of Yü-yiao, I forgot to say that Mr. Loh-ding is in the habit of going out every afternoon, and preaching and distributing books, either in the city or in the country. Though the attention is usually good, we do not seem to succeed in drawing the people to the chapel for the purpose of making further inquiries. The members of the mission are generally well. Mr. and Mrs. Green think of starting for Fu-chau next week for the benefit of the sea trip. I hope they will both be the better for it. Two of our candidates are, as heretofore, receiving regular biblical instruction. Mr. Rankin is thinking of forming another class for the benefit of two of the younger candidates. The first mentioned have been over a good part of the Old Testament, with Mr. Rankin, and are prosecuting the study of the Gospels with Dr. McCartee. I hope that in a year and a half at the utmost they may be able to be licensed. Our health is good. We trust that Mrs. Morrison, with care, may escape the disease with which she was attacked last summer.

Yours truly,

W. T. Morrison.

MISSION IN SIAM.

A REMARKABLE CASE—A CONVERT WHO HAD NOT SEEN A MISSIONARY.

The Rev. S G. McFarland, writing from the new station at Petchaburi, gives us the following remarkable narrative.

How little did we think, when we first came to this new station, that in so short a time we would find a sincere inquirer after the true religion! How slow we are to believe the promises of God; and especially how little do we think that he will save those who have none to teach them but the Great Teacher! Our hearts have been made to rejoice in meeting a Siamese who, we think, has experienced a work of grace, and, as yet, has had no missionary to teach him, and to break unto him the bread of life. This case is so remarkable that I think you should know the particulars.

Last Sabbath week a man came in from a country village, five miles distant, who said he had heard that missionaries had come to this place to live, and he wished to commit his son to us before he died. He said he had long sought for some one to teach him; and had several times come to Petchaburi to see Dr. Bradley, when he heard he was here, but never until after he had gone.

He told us that when he was quite young his father received some books from the missionaries, but never read them. When his father died, he took the books; but they remained unread for several years, when the cholera broke out, and his neighbours were dying all around him. He became alarmed; saw no ground of hope from Buddhism; read his books, and found there that Christ could save, and began to pray to him; but his mind was in darkness. He read his books and studied them, still adding to his stock by begging them as he could, first from one neighbour and then from another, as they did not value them, or were about to tear them up. Thus he struggled on for a long time, till four years ago, when he came to a clear knowledge of Christ and his salvation. We found, by questioning him, that he had read the history of Moses, Gospel by John, Acts, Romans, a tract called The Golden Balance, and a small catechism containing the Lord's Prayer and the Ten Commandments. We found that he was not only well acquainted with the sentiment in them, but could repeat verbally large portions of Romans, John, and Acts. He began at the first chapter of Romans, and repeated half of it, together with large portions of John. He said he observed the Sabbath, prayed and taught his son to pray. We asked him how he taught him to pray; when, to our astonishment, the little boy (about twelve years old) repeated the Lord's Prayer in Siamese, without a single mistake. We also found that he could repeat the Ten Commandments.

He told us that he prayed for the missionaries and for his neighbours; that he preached to the people in his village, and tried to get them to join him; but they laughed at him on one side, and ridiculed him on the other, and called him names.

He went away on Sabbath evening, and came again on Monday morning, to make arrangements about leaving his son with us, as we told him it was not proper to attend to such business on the Sabbath. Since that, he has visited us frequently, and we have found out more and more of his wonderful history. How many there are here who have had religious instruction for years, and yet, if questioned, could scarcely give an intelligent account of the plan of salvation; while this man, without any one to teach him but the Spirit of God, has gathered a reasonably correct knowledge of many of the fundamental doctrines of Christianity. There could not be mentioned a subject in the books he had, but what he seemed to be perfectly familiar with. He gave the history of Cornelius, of Stephen, of Peter's vision, and of Paul's conversion, with remarkable clearness and readiness. In speaking of the new birth, he understood the mistake made by Nicodemus, and explained what Christ meant by being "born again." We were curious to know if he had any idea of the Trinity. He said, Jehovah the Father is the Creator and Ruler of all; that Jesus Christ his Son is the one who came into the world, and died upon the cross to save sinners; and that the Holy Spirit is the one whom Jesus promised to send to his people.

He has renounced their religion; forsaken all his heathen ceremonies, and embraced the religion of Jesus, and the worship of the true God. This is a wonderful change to be wrought upon a heathen, in the midst of an idolatrous people; with no other means than the word of God, accompanied by his Spirit! Truly, "the entrance of thy word giveth light: it giveth understanding to the simple." Let not the people of God cease to pray for the spread of that precious word which can dispel the darkness from the minds of this people, and make this beautiful valley as the garden of the Lord. Shall not this strengthen our faith in the willingness of God to save the heathen, and in his power to make the feeblest means effectual? Shall it not, also, encourage Christians to pray more for the conversion of the heathen, and to contribute more for the spread of that precious word, which can give light to them that sit in darkness, and in the region and shadow of death? May not this be the foretaste of a great work which the Lord will accomplish in this vicinity?

Let us with more faith cast our bread upon the waters, for after many days it shall be gathered.

Yours truly,

S. G. McFarland.

CORISCO MISSION, AFRICA.

COMMUNION SERVICE—AN INTERESING MISSIONARY MEETING.

The Rev. W. Clemens sends us the following interesting letter, dated Alongo, Corisco, July 18, 1861.

Our communion season, which was held on the 7th of July, was of much interest. It will no doubt fill an important place in the history of the church in Corisco, and consequently deserves to be recorded. The preparatory services were held on Saturday, as has been the practice from the beginning; and on Sabbath two precious souls were united to the Lord's people by the profession of their faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Both were strangers in part—one being a member of our school, the other a female slave. A parent also presented his child, and gave her away to the Lord by his baptismal vows. The congregation was large, and continued throughout the services without apparent weariness. It was estimated that at least forty natives sat at the table with us. The afternoon service has heretofore been conducted by the native members. The addresses are short, occupying about ten minutes, and are designed for the edification of the children of the several schools. On the present occasion, the meeting was devoted to the consideration of the cause of missions. This change in our exercises seemed to be demanded by our increased missionary operations. Four young men had been sent out at different times, to occupy stations on the main land, and on the island of Large Ilobi. Others have expressed a willingness to go forth as missionaries, as soon as they are prepared. Such being the prospect of enlarged usefulness, a necessity was also felt of providing for the regular visitation of these labourers, when in the field. A native brother was recommended to take the oversight of the different stations, conjointly with an ordained missionary. Knowing that all success comes from God, and that he will "be inquired of" for the blessings he bestows on the "house of Israel," the assembly came together to pray to the Lord of the harvest.

The assembling of Christ's flock to pray for the extension of his kingdom, is a significant fact in itself. A short time ago these same persons, who now supplicate the throne of grace in behalf of their dying countrymen, were bowing down to "fetishes," and worshipping devils.

The meeting was briefly addressed by the ordained missionaries—showing the necessity of enlisting in the work of missions as a church; that this church properly belonged to the natives of Corisco; and that it was not a foreign body. As God had already smiled on the efforts of his servants, by organizing his church, and calling some into the ministry, we were encouraged to trust in him for the future. The example of the Sandwich Islanders was cited as showing what devoted followers of Christ could do, when sustained by the grace of God; that although our church had not felt the responsibility of engaging in the missionary work, it was not so now. Christ commanded all his servants to go into all the world, and preach the gospel. The command was as old as the time when Christ lived on the earth, and the practice of the church explained it as obligatory in every age.

The remarks of our two licentiates were so appropriate, and produced such a deep impression, that they must be known, before the spirit of the meeting can be understood. One of the licentiates had been selected by the mission to act as a superintendent of the out-stations. He said he hoped the brethren would not cease to pray for him, for he needed much grace to be faithful. The work was God's work; and, as had been said by another, it was a difficult work. But God had promised to hear our prayers. He could give grace, and the difficulties might be removed. True, when we look around at the scattered tribes, and see their wretched condition and constant wars, we feel cast down. But God has told us, that if we agree in asking him for anything in prayer, he will grant it. Let us pray that God would cause these wars to cease, and then the way will be opened to carry the gospel abroad. We must not consider the condition of our people peculiarly discouraging. It is not impossible to carry the gospel even to them. We have fewer trials now than Paul had to preach salvation among the heathen in his time. You remember with what holy devotion he met his trials of scourgings, imprisonments, perils, and shipwrecks. He could say he "counted all things but loss" for Christ. God is a faithful God. Let us but pray, and we will be able also to make Christ known to the tribes around us.

The other licentiate said he had been building a house, and had removed from Evangasimba; but he did not wish the brethren to suppose that he was unwilling to live wherever the mission desired him. He wanted to serve God, and it was his intention soon to go and preach on the mainland. We only wanted the Spirit of Christ to qualify us for every duty. God had blessed us, and he would be with us, if we went forth relying on him.

Such is a brief abstract of the moving words spoken. The meeting continued over two hours. Like the disciples on the mount of transfiguration, we felt it was good to be there; and when we parted, it was reluctantly. The blessing already bestowed on our church is more than we had faith to expect. God has so graciously exceeded our desires, that we are now praying for a great outpouring of the Spirit on the tribes where our labourers shall be sent. The grace that leads the sons of the church to devote themselves to the work of the Lord, is a sacred pledge that there is a blessing in store for the church. The command, "Go ye into all the world," has its accompaniment—"And lo, I am with you always."

Yours, &c.

W. Clemens.

MISCELLANY.

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE SAMOAN MISSION.

[Concluded from page 76.]

As the missionaries became more fully acquainted with the language and the people, and were able to employ members of their churches to aid them in their work, God increasingly blessed their labours. Heathenism was soon almost universally abandoned, and numbers were constantly added to the churches, till, in 1842, the church at Sapapalii numbered nearly five hundred members, and results equally gratifying attended the labours of the missionaries at most of the other stations. Polygamy, and other heathen customs, were voluntarily abandoned; and although wars and their attendant evils subsequently greatly hindered the progress of civilization, education, and religion, yet all the main operations of the mission have from that period been steadily prosecuted, and great success has attended the labours of the missionaries and the native evangelists. As the work throughout the different islands is in character the same, it is not necessary to give separate accounts of the several stations.

In commencing their labours, the missionaries felt that a first place must be given to the acquisition of the language, and the reducing it to writing. And having settled the alphabet, they devoted, in connection with the preaching of the gospel and oral instruction, vigorous attention to the translation and printing of elementary books and portions of the Scriptures. In the early stages of the mission, they were indebted to their brethren of the Society and Hervey Islands missions for the printing of a small edition of the Gospel of Matthew, and sundry elementary books. In 1839 the first printing press arrived, and in July of that year, printing was commenced in Samoa. The natives took a marvellous interest in the wonderful "lomitusi" (printing-press.) They called it the fountain whence the word of God flowed to all Samoa. For years it was most interesting and amusing to see, from day to day, the native youths working the press, surrounded by numbers of their countrymen, standing as if riveted to the spot, and gazing with intense interest, now speechless with wonder, and now shouting with delight; the young printers doing their utmost to show with what dexterity they could throw off the sheets, and their visitors loud and lavish in their praises of the workmen. The press was a mighty acquisition to the mission, and enabled the missionaries to put rapidly into the hands of the people successive portions of the sacred Scriptures and other valuable books.

In 1846 the translation of the entire New Testament was completed and printed, including a second edition of the Gospels of Matthew and John. A revised version was sent to England in 1848, of which an edition of 15,000 was printed by the British and Foreign Bible Society. The last portion of the Old Testament was printed at the mission press in 1855, and a revised edition of the whole Bible is now on its way to England to be printed. No care or labour has been spared by the missionaries to give the Samoans a faithful and idiomatic translation of the Scriptures from the originals. To this most important work they have devoted much time, and patient and earnest labour. Besides the sacred Scriptures, there have also been translated and printed at the mission press, volumes of notes and comments on several books of the New Testament and Psalms, volumes of Sermons for native teachers, Hymn Books and Doctrinal Catechisms, Scripture and Church Histories, books on Geography, Astronomy, and Arithmetic, Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, a native Magazine and Calendar, and a half-yearly newspaper in English, &c., besides some elementary books for other islands. These books are highly prized and eagerly purchased by the natives, especially the Scriptures; and for these, and other books, they have paid at least £2000.

Being convinced that all tribes and nations to whom the gospel is carried must ultimately depend for the prosecution of evangelistic and pastoral labours upon a native ministry, the Samoan missionaries, from the commencement, kept the raising of such a ministry in view. They found it impossible alone to supply the widely scattered population with constant instruction and the preaching of the gospel; and at their several stations they selected the most suitable of the church-members, and trained them to aid them in their work. With these assistants the numerous villages were supplied with teachers, and the population generally was early brought under the regular and continuous preaching of the gospel

The first special attempt to give the native teachers a superior training was made in 1838, when several promising individuals were sent from the different stations to be instructed by Mr. Hardie at Sapapalii. In 1844, at the unanimous request of the brethren of the mission, Mr. Hardie left that important station, and, in union with Mr. Turner, commenced "the Samoan Mission Seminary;" an institution which God has greatly blessed, which every year from its commencement has increased in efficiency, and which has sent out a large number of educated youths and Christian labourers to Samoa and other islands. By the returns in September, 1858, it appears that one hundred and forty evangelists and teachers had enjoyed the advantages of this institution, of whom ninety-one were labouring in Samoa, and sixteen at stations on the Loyalty Islands, the New Hebrides, and Savage Island; many, together with their devoted wives, had died of their sufferings among the heathen, and some had fallen by the murderous hands of the savages to whom they carried the gospel. The wives of the teachers (and nearly all are married) are educated in the institution as well as their husbands. Special attention is paid to their instruction by the wives of the tutors; and so highly are the labours of these female teachers prized in Samoa, that instances have occurred of inferior men being preferred on account of the high qualifications of their wives, and the value put upon their labours.

In the High School connected with the institution a number of native youths, nearly equal to that of the teachers, have also been educated. Many natives from the Loyalty Islands, the New Hebrides, and Savage Island have shared in the advantages of this seminary, as well as the children of the teachers, who are all instructed in a school connected with it.

In September, 1858, there were in the institution sixty-eight teachers, forty-eight wives of teachers, forty-three youths, five natives of Savage Island, one native of Fate, New Hebrides, eighty-eight children of teachers. Total, two hundred and fifty-three.

Sixty acres of ground, and all the premises connected with this seminary, are secured to the London Missionary Society. The cost of the whole, with the running expenses from its commencement in 1844 until September, 1858, was under £600. It is made, as far as possible, self-supporting. Its annual expense is now about £50, and that is supplied by friends in England who take an interest in it.

The general statistics of the mission, as nearly as can be gathered from the last returns, are as follows:—Population, 34,000. Churches, 30. Church-members, 2600. Boarding-schools, 50. Scholars in ditto, 800. Children's day-schools, 210. Scholars in ditto, nearly 6000. Adult Sabbath and day-schools, 210. Scholars in ditto, about 7000. Missionaries, 10. Native teachers, 210.

For several years the Samoans have entirely supported their own native teachers, now more than two hundred in number; and, dating from an early period of the mission, they have contributed annually large sums to the funds of the London Missionary Society; the sum sent home last year exceeded £600. In addition to this, they make large contributions for their own countrymen who are sent out as evangelists to heathen islands. From the liberality and devotedness of the Samoans, and the general success which has attended the Samoan mission, considering the short period of its existence, it will be seen that it is one of the most prosperous connected with the London Missionary Society.

As we have already intimated, the Samoan Mission, in addition to supplying evangelists and teachers for the whole of its home population, has sent out a large number to other islands. The first of these was taken by the lamented Williams to the New Hebrides, in 1839. He succeeded in leaving three on the island of Tana; but in attempting to place others on Eromanga, he was killed by the natives. Thus suddenly and affectingly terminated the labours of that most enterprising and devoted servant of God! The work, in commencing which he fell, was taken up by the missionaries in Samoa, and has been carried on by them, assisted by their brethren in the Hervey Islands. The gospel has been introduced by means of native teachers, into different islands of the New Hebrides and Loyalty groups. On several of these missionaries have been placed and churches have been formed, from which a native agency is being raised to carry the gospel to heathen islands around and beyond them. More than forty devoted native teachers, accompanied by their equally devoted wives, have been sent out from Samoa on this service to the heathen, by whose means multitudes have been led to renounce heathenism, and place themselves under Christian instruction. On Savage Island, where the difficulties to the introduction of the gospel were long-continued and formidable, Christianity has, by means of these native teachers, won one of its most signal triumphs. On that island five Samoan Evangelists, assisted by a number of the natives, are now labouring. They have brought the whole island under Christian instruction; and, as the result of their labours, a Christian church was formed in August, 1858, consisting of fifty-two members.

Such are the leading facts connected with the Samoan mission—a mission not unchequered with trials and difficulties, but which, under the blessing of God, has enjoyed, throughout its course, a large measure of success, demanding the warmest gratitude to Him, and affording much encouragement to devoted labourers in all other fields.—Lond. Miss. Chron.

[We have read the foregoing narrative with deep interest. It is a remarkable history. Seldom have such results followed the preaching of the gospel, in any land. How is God glorified in such a work as this!—Ed. F. R.]

FUTURE LIBERALITY OF CHRISTIANS.

I anticipate the period when no man who bows his knee before the Father of mercies, will rise from his bed or retire from his secret closet without commending all missionaries who have gone to the heathen to the protection of the living God. Having done so, the labouring man will probably take out his penny, and lay it, as he rises from his knees, in a missionary box; and at the end of the year, his thirty shillings will form his contribution to the cause. Another, in better circumstances, will take out his shilling, and thus, at the end of the year, £20 will be presented by those who now think they do well if they give a guinea; while rich men will every morning take out their guinea, and lay it in the same treasury.—Rev. James Bennet, 1825.

EXPENSE OF HEATHEN WORSHIP.

Large sums of money are necessary to carry missionary plans into effect; but the heathen far outdo us in religious liberality. In China, dramatic exhibitions are one of the modes by which they honour their gods; and even for this superstition, in eighteen provinces, not less than two hundred millions of dollars are expended annually on these religious plays. In addition to this, we must take into account the immense number of their idols; for every temple has many idols; and every street, every shop, and every house, has its idol; and to these, incense must be offered every morning and evening, for which the people willingly pay.—Rev. Dr. Morrison, 1825.

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

In September, 1861.

Synod of Albany.—Pby of Londonderry—Newburyport 2d ch 40. Pby of Troy—Second st ch 199 07. Pby of Albany—Kingsborough ch, Miss Susan Steele 5 244 07

Synod of Buffalo.—Pby of Buffalo City—Central ch 28; Portageville ch 7 17; East Aurora ch 4 39 17

Synod of New York.—Pby of Hudson—Hamptonburgh ch 12. Pby of Bedford—Yorktown ch 10 80; White Plains ch 66; Croton Falls ch 8. Pby of Long Island—Huntingdon South ch 15 70; South Haven ch 5 49; Fresh Pond ch 14; Smithtown ch 6 75. Pby of New York—First ch mo con 34 35; Brick ch mo con 31 15; Chelsea ch mo con 13 13; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch Mission chapel 3 11; Forty-second st ch 10 09. Pby of New York 2d—Canal street ch mo con 11; Peekskill ch mo con 4 months, 67; Scotch ch mo con, 3 months, 213. Pby of Connecticut—South East Centre ch 13. Pby of Nassau—Williamsburgh ch mo con 21 67, col'd Sab sch for scholarship at Corisco Mission 13; Newtown ch 83 76; Ainslie street ch 9 50 710 50

Synod of New Jersey.—Pby of Elizabethtown—Westfield ch 17 12; 1st ch Metuchin 13. Pby of Passaic—3d ch Newark mo con 34 23, Sab sch 7 05. Pby of Susquehanna—Orwell ch 5; Elkland ch 2; Rome ch 4. Pby of Luzerne—Kingston ch, Sab sch 7 41 89 81

Synod of Philadelphia.—Pby of Philadelphia—Westminster ch 19 50. Pby of Philadelphia Central—Penn ch Sab sch, addl 6 50; Central ch from a lady, per J V C 5. Pby of Huntingdon—Altoona ch Sab sch 10. Pby of Northumberland—Bethel ch 7 19 48 19

Synod of Baltimore.—Pby of Baltimore—First ch Sab sch for "Backus" school in Canton 100, to ed a child in do. 25; Madison street ch, Sab sch for children at Corisco 34. Pby of Carlisle—Middle Spring ch 276; Gettysburg ch Sab sch 4 01. Pby of Potomac—New York Avenue ch, Washington, D. C. 37 07 476 08

Synod of Pittsburgh.—Pby of Redstone—West Newton ch 22 70. Pby of Ohio—Bethel ch 62; Centre ch, Sab sch 5 67. Pby of Blairsville—Unity ch 14; Armagh ch 11. Pby of Clarion—Bethesda ch Fem Miss Soc 9 25. Pby of Saltsburgh—West Lebanon ch 6 87; Eldersridge ch 7 34; Saltsburg ch 35 25; Ebenezer ch 21 60; Elderside Soc of Inquiry 6 29 201 97

Synod of Alleghany.—Pby of Alleghany—Clintonville ch 6 10; Pleasant Valley ch, a Friend 10; Muddy Creek ch 14; Rich Hill ch 10; Centreville ch Sab school 3; Scrub Grass ch, a friend of Missions 3. Pby of Beaver—Little Beaver ch 20. Pby of Erie—West Greenville ch 11. Pby of Alleghany City—Sharpsburgh ch 22 74; Rochester German ch 61 cents 100 45

Synod of Wheeling.—Pby of Washington—Mount Prospect ch 4 50; Washington ch mo con 13 51, Ladies' Miss'y Society to con W J Matthews L. M. 23; Cross Roads ch 13 60. Pby of Steubenville—Steubenville 1st ch 32 49; Kilgore ch 6. Pby of New Lisbon—Deerfield ch 16 65; Middle Sandy ch 10 50 120 25

Synod of Ohio.—Pby of Columbus—Lancaster ch 7; Circleville ch 61 05, Sab school to ed Heathen child 25. Pby of Marion—Mount Gilead ch mo con 2 52; Wyandott ch 2 58, Sab school 3 67. Pby of Zanesville—Beulah ch 10; Duncan's Falls ch 5. Pby of Wooster—Wooster ch 33 149 82

Synod of Sandusky.—Pby of Maumee—Hicksville ch Sab school 1. Pby of Findlay—Little Grove ch 3 4 00

Synod of Cincinnati.—Pby of Miami—Monroe ch Sab school 2. Pby of Sidney—Stony Creek ch 12 14 00

Synod of Indiana.—Pby of New Albany—Owen Creek ch 3 95

Synod of Northern Indiana.—Pby of Logansport—Lexington ch 10, Sab school 4 14 00

Synod of Illinois.—Pby of Peoria—Lewiston ch, Myron Phelps 115 75. Pby of Bloomington—El Paso ch 3 118 75

Synod of Wisconsin.—Pby of Milwaukie—North ch 34. Pby of Winnebago—Weyowega ch 2; Fond du Lac ch 14 16, of which 2 55 from Sab school 50 16

Synod of Iowa.—Pby of Sioux City—Linn Grove ch 9; Springville ch 2 11 00

Synod of Missouri.—Pby of Palmyra—Hannibal ch Sab school 7. Pby of Potosi—Potosi ch 16; Brazeau ch 5 40 28 40

Synod of Kentucky.—Pby of Louisville—First ch, Louisville, 75, mo con 2 months 32 20; Newcastle ch 23; Hebron ch 13 10. Pby of Transylvania—Richmond ch in part 20; Harrodsburg ch, Mrs E P Vanarsdale 5. Pby of West Lexington—Mount Horeb ch 3 75. Pby of Ebenezer—Elizaville ch Sab school 2; Greenup Union ch 8 80; 2d ch, Covington, Sab school, towards sup of Rev Charles W Forman 7 71. Pby of Paducah—Princeton ch 22; Fredonia ch 4 221 56

Synod of Nashville—Pby of Nashville—Shiloh ch 8 50

Synod of Pacific.—Pby of California—Calvary ch, San Francisco, 200; First ch, San Francisco, 100; Pby of Oregon—Olympia ch 8 308 05

Total received from churches, $2,962 63

Legacies.—Legacy of Miss Ellen McCullough dec'd, Mercer, Pa., 25; Estate of Alex. Russell dec'd, Milton, Ohio, 100; Patterson Estate 33 33; Estate of E Holmes dec'd, Princeton Ky., 5 163 33

Miscellaneous.—A Friend to send out new missionaries 3,500; J B, New York, 100; Contributor 5; Col. G Loomis 5; J M 600; John L Porter 1; Joseph Pratt, Camp Creek, Ill., 10; Rev S B Smith, Alton, Ill., 5; E M 1; Mrs Catharine Kinsey, Delaware county, Pa., 5; Miss J H Conklin, Dutchess Co., N. Y., 3; Mrs Martha E Drake, Clarkson, N. Y., 10; Mrs C J H, of Baltimore, Md., 5; Sarah Wise 10 4,260 00

Total Receipts in September, 1861, $7,385 96

WM. RANKIN, Jr., Treasurer.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Letters relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to Walter Lowrie, Esq., or Rev. John C. Lowrie, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

Letters relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to William Rankin, Jr., Esq., Treasurer—same address.

The Foreign Missionary—Two editions of this publication are printed. The Pamphlet Edition contains 32 pages, and is published monthly, at 50 cents a year for each copy. It is sent free, when desired, to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to the ministers of our churches.

The Newspaper Edition contains a selected portion of the contents of the pamphlet edition. A copy is sent free of charge, except for postage, to the children of each family in every Sunday School making regular contributions to the Treasury of the Board.

Address for either edition, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

Payments of Moneys for the Board may also be made at—

Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D. D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 910 Arch street;
Pittsburg, Pa., Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky., Andrew Davidson;
Memphis, Tenn., J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Mo., David Keith;
Natchez, Miss., Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Va., Henry C. Watkins;
Columbia, S. C, H. C. Bronson;
Augusta, Geo, James W. Davies.

Boxes of Clothing, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board, and should be preceded, or accompanied by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

Overland Mail.—Letters for the Overland Mail are forwarded from the Mission House by the steamers nearest the first and fifteenth of each month. Postage: from New York, to Siam, China, Japan, and Brazil, forty-five cents for each half ounce weight; but if sent by the French mail, thirty cents for each quarter ounce weight; to Liberia and Corisco, thirty-three cents for each half ounce weight; to India, via Southampton, thirty-six cents for each half ounce weight; via Marseilles, forty-two cents for a quarter ounce weight; forty-nine cents for a half ounce weight, sixty-seven for three-quarter ounce weight, seventy-four for an ounce weight, a dollar and five cents for an ounce and a half weight. Letters to be forwarded by the "French mail," or to India "via Marseilles," must be so marked. Postage on newspapers, six cents each. The postage on letters and newspapers must be prepaid. The letters forwarded from the Mission House to each Mission are put in an outside envelope, and therefore stamps should not be affixed to them. The postage is assessed according to the weight of each letter, and may be paid by sending post-office stamps to the Mission House.

Form of Bequest.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is: The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the Payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,

No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of Colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record and Sabbath-school Visitor, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., Corresponding Secretary, No. 821 Chestnut street.

All communications, reports, remittances of money, and orders for books, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage, and Business Correspondent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. Engles, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to James Dunlap, Esq., Treasurer.

TRACTS IN THE CAMP.

An anonymous donor, on Long Island, sent to the Board of Publication five dollars to be expended in tracts to be sent to the chaplain of a regiment now stationed at Alexandria, Virginia, for gratuitous distribution among the soldiers. The package was sent, and the following is part of a letter received from him in reply.

"It is very gratifying to us to know that we are remembered by Christian friends at home, who show, in a substantial manner, the interest they feel in the religious improvement of the army. The work of a chaplain is of such a nature that he must rely for his usefulness, to a very great extent, upon religious tracts and papers, and I earnestly pray, that the contribution of 'an anonymous giver' may be the means of effecting a great amount of good."

We trust that other friends of the soldier will send us sums of money to be used in this way. We shall take great pleasure in forwarding packages of books and tracts for any such donors to the particular regiments they may name.

The "Soldier's Series" of tracts, published by the Board, is finding a wide circulation in the army, and we have every reason to believe will be made instrumental in doing great good. The price is 10 cents. Any person sending 14 cents to include prepaid postage, can have it mailed from this depository to any friend in any camp.

COLPORTAGE AMONG SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

In the Record for August and September last was given some account of labours among the soldiers in the vicinity of Philadelphia. We now give an account of more recent labours by the same colporteur. We have great reason to hope and pray for a copious blessing to follow his labours.

During the month which has ended on the 14th of September 1861, your colporteur has distributed about two hundred thousand pages of tracts, nine Manuals of Devotion for Soldiers and Sailors, and one Social Psalmodist. The following named vessels of war have been visited at the Navy Yard, and supplied with tracts, &c., viz. Susquehanna, Flag, Albatross, Harriet Lane, and Monticello. My visits to these vessels were very cordially received, and the presents which I gave were accepted with peculiar thankfulness. On most of the vessels were found one or more piously disposed officers, to whose care I entrusted the distribution of the books, &c., which I gave. Some of the latter gentlemen treated me with such kindness, and manifested so much genuine good feeling, that I could wish, were it proper, to record their names and words here. The Harriet Lane and Monticello had been engaged in the late bombardment of Forts Hatteras and Clarke, and the latter received several serious scars, but "no one hurt." This circumstance was urged on the sailors as a matter of thankfulness to God, who had graciously preserved them.

The united crews of the above vessels aggregated about seven hundred and fifty men. Nine entire regiments, numbering one thousand men each, and eleven detached companies of one hundred men each, have been visited and supplied, making the total of soldiers and sailors supplied during the month, ten thousand eight hundred and fifty.

The most interesting feature in connection with my work during the month, has been the frequent applications, at the depository of the Board, of chaplains and other officers of regiments for tracts, &c., for the use of their respective regiments. A considerable number of such applications were made during the month, showing that the publications thus disposed of are appreciated, and giving fair promise that they shall be used to advantage.

I have met with a good many of the returned (three months) volunteers, to whom I gave some of the society's publications before they left, who assured me that they and others had derived great pleasure and comfort from reading them, while encamped near Washington, and out of reach of any other literature.

I have endeavoured, as far as possible, to dispose of the books, &c., entrusted to me, to the best advantage, and to put them in the hands of conscientious officers, of whom, I am happy to say, there are more or less in each regiment, to distribute them at the proper time and place. When an opportunity offered itself in any of the camps and armories, to say a word for Jesus, and urge upon the soldier the matter of personal religion, I endeavoured, to the best of my ability, to take advantage of it. May the Lord Jesus be pleased to accept of this feeble service, and follow it with the influences of his Holy Spirit, "without which nothing is strong, nothing is holy."

J. R.

THE GREEN BAY REGION.

The following interesting statement is made in a recent letter from a colporteur in the Green Bay region of northern Wisconsin. It is supposed that there are at least 25,000 Belgian and French Canadian settlers in that region. Among these it is that our colporteur is scattering the seeds of saving truth.

Dear Sir—I left Chicago on the 22d for Wisconsin, where I arrived on the 24th of July, and straightway I went with brother Morell to the Belgian settlement below Green Bay. I got acquainted with a good many friends of the gospel there, whom I found very interesting, and truly devoted to the cause. I visited a number of French Roman Catholic families around D—, speaking with them, and reading to them the Holy Scriptures, speaking freely with them about the salvation through faith in Christ alone, and the necessity of regeneration by the Holy Spirit. So soon as I had received my books, I went again to the Belgian settlement, and I began to visit the people around. I met with some difficulties, not being acquainted with the country, which is thickly timbered and thinly settled. Between is timber land, mostly cedar swamps, where the roads, especially in this rainy season, are, if not completely impassable, very difficult to travel over, without anything to guide the stranger. Often I had to walk a good deal on that account, mistaking the roads through the woods. Besides this kind of hindrance, I met with another: the people are generally poorly furnished with the comforts of life and the necessary things for housekeeping. Many families are compelled to eat all from the same dish, and they live very poorly in these forests, so much so that often it is difficult to find a place where one can get any refreshment.

Some weeks ago, I went in company with brother Morell on a missionary errand. We had to travel one whole day among cedar swamps, having lost our way, without being able to get the least refreshment except a little milk. After much fatigue, we found a little settlement where we distributed some tracts, which were cheerfully received and read forthwith, for the men left their work and sat down to read. For many years they had not seen any reading besides the Roman Catholic prayer-books they had brought from Belgium. After having crossed some miles more of swampy lands, we reached, towards evening, a beautiful ridge of nice hard timber, and found many beautiful settlements. We succeeded in finding a house to stop in, and after we had taken some refreshment the neighbours gathered in, and in a short time we had quite a congregation. Some of them were Protestants, the rest Roman Catholics. Brother Morell addressed them, and they listened with deep attention. After the service, we handed to each of them a tract, and had familiar conversations with many on serious subjects. Several asked for the Holy Scriptures, but we had none with us, for we were unable to carry any burden through such roads, and had started only on an inquiry errand, to explore the country, and ascertain what were the feelings of the people about religion. We promised to supply them with Bibles and New Testaments as soon as possible. One of them invited me to come and stay among them a week or more, and said he would come with his team as soon as he could, to take me, with a supply of books. We stopped at several houses afterward and spoke freely the saving truth. We were so rejoiced with what we saw and heard from that people that we felt we were fairly rewarded for all the hardship we met in going there. You see the work here requires much self-denial and hard labour, and to know exactly what it is, one needs to try it himself. But there are so many subjects of encouragement for a Christian heart that I find it is a good compensation. I hold meetings for prayer and to explain the Scriptures here and there as often as possible, and generally they are blessed. A good number of Roman Catholics attend these meetings and feel much interest in them. In the evening, although they are very tired after their day's work, they keep me up often as late as ten o'clock, asking questions concerning the teachings of Rome and those of Christ.

A poor old mother who has been hopefully converted to Christ, and who is living by faith, had two sons still under the power of darkness. One of them having been exasperated against his parents by wicked persons, one day when the father took the Bible for family worship, took his hat and went out of doors so as not to hear the reading and the prayer. The father said to him, "My son, why will you not hear the word of God, which teaches us the way of life eternal?" But the son started in a passion of wrath and went away to a neighbour, and, cursing the Bible, he said to him that his parents were expelling him from home with their book of the devil, and that it was the last time he meant to see his father's house. Making the sign of the cross against the house, he went away. The poor old mother ceased not to pray with all her heart in behalf of this ungrateful and rebellious son. The other son, too, soon after went away almost in the same manner; but the prayers of the afflicted parents were continually ascending to the throne of grace on their behalf. After several months, the poor parents received a letter from the first one that went away. He had not enjoyed, since he went, a moment of peace. He begged forgiveness for what he had done, and prayed for pardon from God. Soon after this letter was received, the other one came home, also acknowledging he had done wrong. The poor mother received him with kindness, and addressed to him these words: "My son, do you come as the prodigal son, and are you resolved to cast yourself in the arms of your Heavenly Father; to forsake the counsels of the wicked, and to take the word of God for your guide? O, my son! can it be true that a spark of the Spirit of Light has shined in your heart? Let God be blessed if it be so." The next day, in the evening, this son attended meeting where I was expounding the word of life. He was very attentive, and seemed enjoying, to a great extent, the sweet privilege of hearing the word of reconciliation. I hope the Lord has truly heard the prayer of these afflicted parents.

A man with whom I was conversing on the subject of religion said to me, "How good the Lord is, to have sent us his messengers to call us out of the state of death in which we were; for I feel that we need a religion of the heart; the one we had is not what we need; we need the religion that renews the heart, and which gives peace with God, and imparts holiness." Generally I can speak freely with the Roman Catholics. There are some exceptions, but they are few. Here and there I meet with some who positively refuse to let me read or speak to them. Since I came here many of those I have visited are well disposed towards the gospel, and are now searching for the truth; and, although the priests have spared nothing to hinder this good work, it is gaining ground every day, and the people are aroused from their former indifference. Now they talk about religion everywhere. This is a good omen, for it is a proof that the leaven is at work.

I have spent a week at Green Bay City. I visited there a good number of French Canadians and Belgians, some of whom seem favourably disposed. I had much pleasure in conversing with two French Canadians, one of whom was a blind man. I hope both will be converted, for they seem to be in earnest inquiring after the truth. I hope also, that, in time, with the blessing of God, a little flock of true Christians will be gathered there, in spite of all the efforts of the enemy of God and man to keep these poor folks in the deep darkness of idolatry, and the bondage of sin.

I have distributed about three thousand pages of tracts. I have not given any, where I could suspect that they would be ill-used. I have made 132 visits, and have been well received. I have read and expounded to the people the word of God, besides holding a number of small meetings in the evenings, in order to prepare them to attend the preaching of the word in a more public manner. I have been much hindered by the abundance of rain which has fallen in this region, and by bad roads, and also on account of this being a very busy time, for very often I have not found the people at home. I feel very thankful to the Lord that through his mercy and grace the little seed I have had the power of spreading over this field is growing, and promises to be fruitful to the glory of God.

E. L.

SCRIPTURE PORTIONS AS TRACTS.

Mr. Kincaid narrates the following as having occurred during a journey from Rangoon to Ava in 1844:—"One evening, a little before night, we came to the city of Tayret. I sat down on the outside of the boat, and began reading a tract, and commenting on it, to a few people on the shore. In a little time a large assembly had come together. We pushed a little off, so as to prevent the crowd from coming on board and upsetting or sinking our boat. A few tracts were distributed, and the reading and exposition continued. A tall and sedate-looking young man pushed his way eagerly through the assembly, came into the water near the boat, and in an undertone said, 'Teacher, have you the Acts of the Apostles?' I gave him a copy (printed in a separate form for distribution.) He then inquired 'Teacher, have you the Gospel of John?' I looked at the young man with astonishment. Here we are in an idolatrous city, more than three hundred miles from Rangoon, and this young man is eagerly inquiring for the Acts of the Apostles and John's Gospel. I said, 'How do you know anything about these books?' He replied, 'A long time since, there was a foreign teacher, Judson, in the city of Prome, and he gave my grandfather these books; he could not see, but he had them read to him a great deal, and was always talking about them; but some time since there was a great fire in our city, and my grandfather's house was burned, and the books were also burned.' Having received the books, the young man rolled them up in his shawl, and soon disappeared in the crowd.

"I regretted not having made more inquiries about the aged blind man. The sun was now down, a severe storm of wind was rising, and, being in an exposed situation, we moved about two miles to a secure place at the upper end of the town. It was now after dark; and I sat on the outside of the boat pondering over the events of the day, and wondering if it were possible to find the old man who had sent for the Acts of the Apostles and the Gospel of John. I said to Ko Shoon and Ko Sanlone, 'We must try in the morning to find the old man.' While thus conversing, the young man came on board the boat. He said his grandfather was greatly pleased to get the books, and blamed him for not inviting the teacher to come to his house; that he returned and found the boat was gone, and that he had followed on, inquiring for the foreign teacher. We accompanied the young man, threading our way through various streets, till, near the centre of the town, we came to the house. In the verandah, lighted by only one dim lamp, sat a venerable old man, surrounded by a few members of his family, and a few neighbours. The books lay by his side. He turned his sightless eyeballs towards me, and spoke feelingly of the benefit he had received from the books, and thanked the former and the present teacher who had brought them. He pointed to his white locks, and, in eastern style, called them 'the flag of death.' He said, though the eyes of his body were dark, yet the eyes of his understanding were opened, and he praised God for it. We preached to him, and to all that were in his house, the things of the kingdom of God."

DEAD YET LIVING.

The cedar is most useful when dead. It is the most productive when its place knows it no more. There is no timber like it. Firm in grain, and capable of the finest polish, the tooth of no insect will touch it, and Time himself can hardly destroy it. Diffusing a perpetual fragrance through the chambers which it ceils, the worm will not corrode the book which it protects, nor the moth corrupt the garment which it guards—all but immortal in itself, it transfuses its amaranthine qualities to the objects around it.

Every Christian is useful in his life; but the goodly cedars are the most useful afterwards.

Luther is dead, but the Reformation lives. Calvin is dead, but his vindication of God's free and sovereign grace will never die. Knox, Melville, and Henderson are dead, but Scotland still retains a Sabbath and Christian peasantry, a Bible in every house, and school in every parish.

Bunyan is dead, but his bright spirit still walks the earth in his "Pilgrim's Progress." Baxter is dead, but souls are still quickened by the "Saints' Rest." Cowper is dead, but the "golden apples" are still as fresh as when newly gathered, in the "silver basket" of the "Olney Hymns."

Elliot is dead, but the missionary enterprise is young. Henry Martyn is dead, but who can count the apostolic spirits who, phœnix-like, have started from his funeral pile.

Howard is dead, but modern philanthropy is only commencing its career. Raikes is dead, but the Sabbath-schools go on. Wilberforce is dead, but the negro will find for ages a protector in his memory.—Rev. Dr. Hamilton.

DENOMINATIONAL LITERATURE.

The Scottish Congregational Magazine contains the following admirable suggestions: "We should have a denominational literature; and what is more, we should read it, encourage it, patronize it. We should do our best to improve it; we should see that it is weeded of everything narrow and offensively sectarian, and purified from everything low and undignified. We should seek to render it a vehicle of healthy Christian sentiment and sound Christian doctrine; of correct and candid estimates of our fellow-Christians of other communions. A denominational literature thus characterized, might perform a noble part in liberalizing our own minds and enabling others to judge of us fairly and kindly. We shall be wanting in due regard to our own reputation, and shall be guilty of throwing away an important means of usefulness, if we allow our literature to degenerate into sectarian bigotry, or make it a vehicle of scurrilous abuse of all who differ from us."

DONATIONS RECEIVED FOR THE COLPORTAGE FUND OF THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION, DURING THE MONTH OF SEPTEMBER 1861.

Pby of Mohawk—Park ch, Syracuse, 11 50, Sab sch 2 86	14 36
Pby of Michigan—Westminster ch, Cleaveland, Ohio	11 33
Pby of Bedford—South Salem ch	19 00
Pby of Long Island—East Hampton ch	30 00
Pby of Elizabethtown—Metuchin ch	8 74
Pby of New Brunswick—Princeton 1st ch 29 53; Hamilton Square ch 6	35 53
Pby of Susquehanna—Towanda ch 7 40; Rome ch 1	8 40
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Doylestown ch	10 00
Pby of Donegal—Hopewell Centre ch 5; Chanceford ch 5	10 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Altoona ch	5 00
Pby of Northumberland—McEwensville ch	3 25
Pby of Baltimore—Govane Chapel	2 50
Pby of Carlisle—Gettysburg ch Sab sch 2 29; Harrisburg ch, "I C" 10; Carlisle ch 44	56 29
Pby of Zanesville—Salt Creek ch 4; Beulah ch 2	6 00
Pby of Sangamon—Springfield ch	40 00
Pby of Peoria—Peoria First ch 42 50; Lewistown ch per M Phelps, Esq. 100	142 50
Pby of Rock River—Freeport ch	10 00
Pby of St. Paul—Vermillion ch	1 30
Pby of Fairfield—Liberty ch 1 75; Sigourney ch 1	2 75
Pby of Palmyra—Hannibal ch	2 00
MISCELLANEOUS.
Mrs "C J H," Baltimore	2 50
	421 45

Donations received for the DISTRIBUTION FUND OF THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION during the month of September 1861.

Pby of Albany—Ballston Spa ch Sab sch, (for Rev Sheldon Jackson's ch Sab sch) per Rev D Tully	10 00
Pby of Long Island—Bridgehampton ch, from "A G R"	3 00	13 00
		434 45
AMOUNT OF SALES during the month of SEPTEM'R		1099 46
Total,		$1,533 91

JAMES DUNLAP, Treasurer.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. H. I. Coe.

Treasurer—Archibald Gamble, Esq.

No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Missouri.

Communications on the subject of Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Donations should be sent to Archibald Gamble, Esq., St Louis, Mo.; or, if more convenient, to J. D Thorpe, Esq., Cincinnati, Ohio; A. Davidson, Esq., Louisville, Ky.; S D. Powel, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Domestic Missions, No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia; T. H. Nevin, Esq., Pittsburgh, Pa; Mr. J. B. Kirtland, Memphis, Tennessee; or to William Rankin, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Foreign Missions, 23 Centre St., New York.

APPROPRIATIONS FROM THE GENERAL FUND.

No appropriation is made without the recommendation of the Presbytery, or the Church Extension Committee of the Presbytery within whose bounds the church applying for aid is located.

No appropriation is paid until the Board receives a certificate from the Trustees of the church aided, stating that their church lot is properly secured, and that the amount appropriated will complete their house of worship and leave the whole property free from debt.

Appropriations not called for within two years of the date thereof, are regarded as withdrawn.

SACRIFICES.

The following extracts from letters received at the office, will give some idea of the sacrifices by which our brethren in new and destitute regions obtain a house of worship, viz.

THE DEBT.

A brother in Illinois writes thus concerning a meeting of his people to provide the means to pay the debt on their recently erected church, and enable them to claim an appropriation of the Board of Church Extension. "Had you seen the comparatively little band that was gathered at that church meeting, and been acquainted with their circumstances, and what they had already done, you would have wondered how the sum was to be raised. I was myself oppressed with solicitude. For weeks I had no rest in my spirit, only as I laid the great burden before the mercy-seat. We commenced the meeting with prayer, and never did it seem to me more evident that the Holy Spirit was present to help our infirmities, and to breathe the influence of concord and self-sacrifice into the hearts of the people. Before we left the house, every dollar was pledged and secured, or paid. The burden seemed to be rolled away, and with tears of thankfulness we congratulated each other, and gave thanks to God, who had heard our prayers, and imparted the willing mind."

"ALL THAT I HAVE."

A pioneer on the California coast thus describes his struggles, and those of the attendants on his ministry. He says: "Taking all things into consideration, the people have done far beyond my anticipations—some more than they are able. The ladies have done admirably. They commenced the enterprise, and have kept it moving. Their sewing-circle first subscribed three hundred dollars. Two of them went to the mountains among the miners, and obtained three hundred and forty-eight dollars more. Then they got up a festival, from which they realized three hundred dollars more, making the whole amount raised and subscribed by them nine hundred and forty-eight dollars. If it had not been for them, the church would never have been built. When I see people who are not professing Christians take such an interest in church affairs, I feel like helping them, and have done it. I have given all that I have, and my board is not paid; but if I can get the church paid for, I have no fears about my board. Ladies who will work for the church till they are so tired they can hardly sit up, will not allow their ministers' board to go unpaid. I have already paid over three hundred dollars, and have done from one to two hundred dollars' worth of work; and if I could do as much more, I would, but I cannot. My salary is very limited, and the times are exceedingly hard."

GOD'S HOUSE FIRST.

An elder of a church in Pennsylvania writes: "One man had provided the material two years ago to build himself a house, he being very much in need of one, but gave up his own house, and put his money and time to the building of God's house, his own remaining unbuilt yet, and will not be built for at least a year to come. Another man put the material which he intended for a house for himself into the church, and will not be able to build for himself for several years. You may judge of our poverty when I state the fact that some of our people gave to the church building more than the net income of their farms for two years. Even poor women managed to give from five to twelve dollars. Surely the Lord is preparing for a great work here, for through many afflictions he brought them to call upon his name, and after leading them in a way which they knew not, he put it into their hearts to build a house to the praise of his name. And now everything looks encouraging. I will mention one fact in connection with these things, and that is, that for two and a half years this little band of disciples has met for prayer one evening of every week, and every Sabbath when they have not the gospel preached, they assemble and have a sermon read, with prayer and reading of the Scriptures."

"MOST OF THE SUMMER."

An elder of a church in Illinois says of their church debt: "Nearly the whole burden is now resting on me, who gave my note, and am bound for the bills. Now, after having worked hard in cutting and hauling the timber, and spent most of the summer in superintending the work, when I had plenty to do at home, it is rather discouraging. Our church is poor, and struggling to live. We are bored with duns for money to pay for the lumber."

HOME OF THE FRIENDLESS.

The following letter from Mr. Alfred Edwards, Superintendent of the Home of the Friendless, New York city, reveals a very touching instance of liberality and self-denial. The Saviour must have looked upon the gift of these little ones with feelings akin to those with which he beheld the poor widow cast all her living into the treasury of the temple. When it is borne in mind that these nurslings of charity had before contributed to the Children's Church at St. Anne, their cheerful liberality shames the penuriousness of many claiming to be full-grown men and women in Christ. The letter was written to Mr. C. A. Spring, who was for months engaged in most arduous and faithful labours for the benefit of the French Canadians in Illinois. Mr. Edwards writes:

"Enclosed please find my cheque for two dollars, the contribution of about one hundred children, and a few adults of the Home of the Friendless, towards the purchase of a bell for the Children's Church at St. Anne. These dear children received a present of five dollars from the Vice-President of the Atlantic Insurance Company, on hearing of their former gift to the Children's church, which present was given to them in pennies, and, after one week's consideration, they took up a collection themselves, and voted that two parts of it should be for the bell, and three parts of it for their starving brothers and sisters in Kansas; again, most of them giving all they had. Some proposed that it should be invested, 1st The bell. 2d. The children in want in Kansas. 3d. A box of oranges. 4th. The Child's Paper; but on a vote being taken, it was almost unanimously voted that the bell and Kansas should have it, and they would again 'cast their bread upon the waters.' Dear children, they are learning and practising that 'it is more blessed to give than to receive.' I wish I could send you the two hundred pennies, so new and so bright, and so cheerfully given. They have learned your mottoes, and repeat them in concert every Sabbath. A useful impression will be made by them upon their minds. Your account of the boy and the apples interested them very much. When the subject of the bell comes up, let me know of it, and I will try to raise something for it.

P. S. These dear children have already realized the text referred to, as on New Year's day a handsome red-bound New Testament and Psalms, with a clasp, was given to seventy-five of them, by a gentleman who was interested in the story of the Ferry and the man with the broom. Another sent them a box of oranges a few days since, and a third will pay for twelve copies of the Child's Paper for a year for them."

Donations received by the Board of Church Extension, during the month of September, 1861.

RECEIPTS AT ST. LOUIS.

Pby of Milwaukie—North ch	20 00
Pby of Bloomington—Towanda ch	4 00
Pby of Schuyler—John Knox ch 5; Macomb ch (special) 10; Galesburg ch (special) 15	30 00
From churches,	$54 00
MISCELLANEOUS.
From John, 50; From Friends (special) 231 42	281 42
Sabbath-schools.—Altoona Pres Sab sch, Blair co, Pa.	5 00
At St. Louis,	$340 42

RECEIPTS AT CINCINNATI.

Pby of Columbus—Mount Pleasant ch	10 00
Pby of Oxford—Oxford 3d ch	5 00
Pby of Marion—Mt. Gilead ch	4 00
Pby of Peoria—Salem ch	5 00
Pby of Logansport—Frankfort ch	6 60
Pby of Sidney—Bellefontaine ch	9 30
At Cincinnati,	$39 90

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Troy—Park ch, Troy	18 07
Pby of Albany—Tribes Hill ch	1 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Trenton 1st ch	52 00
Pby of Susquehanna—Rome ch	3 00
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Newtown ch	9 00
Pby of New Castle—Fagg's Manor ch 15; Lower West Nottingham ch 9	24 00
Pby of Donegal—Hopewell ch	5 00
Pby of Carlisle—Carlisle ch	45 82
Pby of Winnebago—Depere ch	3 41
Pby of Hudson—Hamptonburg ch addl (per Rankin)	1 00
Pby of Elizabethtown—Metuchin 1st ch (per Rankin)	7 00
Pby of Passaic—Chester ch (per Rankin)	15 00
Pby of Mohawk—Oswego 1st ch (per Rankin)	60 00
From churches,	$244 30
MISCELLANEOUS.
Legacy of Mrs Jane Long, Mifflin, Pa. $100—less exchange 1 62	98 38
Sabbath-schools.—Sab sch of Gettysburg ch, Carlisle Pby	2 57
At Philadelphia,	$345 25

FOR CHILDREN'S CHURCH OF ST. ANNE.

Sab sch of Towanda ch, Bloomington Pby	2 00
Sab sch of Oswegatchie 2d ch, Ogdensburg Pby	12 88
Sab sch of 1st Cong ch, Litchfield, Conn.	17 00
Carrie, Willie, and Romy	3 00
Sab sch of Bellecentre ch, Sidney Pby (per J D Thorpe)	3 00
Sab sch of Keithsburg ch, Schuyler Pby, (per J D Thorpe)	2 00
Sab sch of Lithopolis ch, Columbus Pby, (per J D Thorpe)	4 00
Sab sch of Iberia ch, Marion Pby, (per J D Thorpe)	2 00
Sab sch of Central Presb ch, Geneseo, N. Y.	20 00
Yorktown ch, Bedford Pby, (per Powel)	5 00
Sab sch of Woodstown ch, West Jersey Pby, (per Powel)	1 00
Sab sch of Swedesboro' ch, West Jersey Pby, (per Powel)	1 00
Sab sch of Spruce Creek ch, Huntingdon Pby, (per Powel)	10 56
Sab sch of Shippensburg ch, Carlisle Pby, (per Powel)	3 85
Children's fund of South Salem ch, Bedford Pby, (per Rankin)	5 00
Sab sch of Oswego 1st ch, Mohawk Pby, (per Rankin)	6 00
A little child, dec'd, Mohawk Pby, (per Rankin)	1 23
Sab sch of Galena South ch, Rock River Pby	4 50
Sab sch of Tipton ch, Cedar Pby	1 00
Sab sch of Fairfield ch, Fairfield Pby	2 00
Mary Carrie and Ledyard Craig, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa	30
For Children's Church,	$107 32
Total Receipts in September,	$832 89

ARCHIBALD GAMBLE, Treasurer.

Ecclesiastical Record.

PASTORAL RELATION DISSOLVED.

The pastoral relation between the Rev. R. A. Brown and the church of Hagerstown was dissolved by the Presbytery of Carlisle at its late meeting.

The pastoral relation between the Rev. John M. Jones and the Wolcott church was dissolved by the Presbytery of Cedar on the 24th of September.

The Rev. W. J. Gibson, D. D., has resigned his charge and accepted a chaplaincy in the army.

The Rev. W. E. Hunt has resigned the pastoral charge of the church in Coshocton, Ohio.

The pastoral relation between the Rev. A. P. Cobb and the South Presbyterian church has been dissolved by the Presbytery of Philadelphia.

The Rev. D. T. Carnahan has resigned the charge of the Aisquith street church, Baltimore, Md.

The pastoral relation between the Rev. T. F. Cortelyou and the church of Williamsburg, Ohio, has been dissolved.

The pastoral relation between the Rev. F. R. Harbaugh and the church at Hackettstown was dissolved by the Presbytery of Newton, on the 1st of October.

The Rev. James G. Shinn has been released from his charge at Port Richmond, Philadelphia. He has accepted the chaplaincy of the Twenty-third Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers.

CALLS.

The Rev. C. Huntington has received a call from the Springfield and Mount Paran churches, Maryland.

The Rev. Dr. Brownson has declined the call to the First Presbyterian Church, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. D. Owen Davies, a licentiate of the Presbytery of St. Louis, has accepted a call to the Fifth Presbyterian Church, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Rev. F. R. Harbaugh has accepted a call to the Sixth Church, Philadelphia.

The Rev. T. M. Cunningham has accepted a call to the Alexander church, Philadelphia.

The Rev. James H. Baird has accepted a call to the Fifteenth church, Philadelphia.

The Rev. Bellville Roberts has accepted the charge of the Calvary church, Rochester, N. Y.

The Rev. Joseph S. Vandyke has received a call to the church of Bloomsbury, New Jersey.

The Rev. F. A Shearer has received a call to the church at Princeton, Iowa.

The Rev. S. W. Cheney has accepted a call from the churches of Winchester and Union, Kentucky.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

Mr. G. N. Johnston was ordained and installed pastor of the church at New Salem, by the Presbytery of Beaver, on September 11.

The Rev. Archibald Alexander Hodge was installed pastor of the church at Wilkesbarre, on the 3d of September, by the Presbytery of Luzerne.

The Rev. John Darroch, late of Luzerne Presbytery, was installed pastor of the parish of Lochiel, Canada West, on the 29th of August.

Mr. L. Y. Graham was ordained and installed pastor of the church of Somerset, Pa., by the Presbytery of Blairsville, on the 2d of October.

Mr. George H. Webster was ordained and installed pastor of the church at Eaton, Ohio, by the Presbytery of Oxford, on the 24th of September.

Mr. John Woods was ordained as an Evangelist by the Presbytery of Oxford, on the 24th of September. He has accepted the chaplaincy of the Thirty-ninth Regiment of Ohio Volunteers.

The Rev. A. E. Thompson has been installed pastor of the churches of Marysville and Milford Centre, Ohio.

Mr. Henry C. McCook was ordained as chaplain of the Fourth Illinois Regiment, by the Presbytery of Steubenville, on the 2d of October.

Mr. John H. Sherrard has been ordained and installed pastor of the churches of Bethesda, Middle Creek, and Bethlehem, by the Presbytery of Clarion.

Mr. Philip H. Mowry was ordained and installed pastor of the Fourth Church, by the Presbytery of Philadelphia, on the 8th of October.

Mr. Samuel C. George was ordained a missionary to Siam, on Thursday, the 3d of October, by the Presbytery of Allegheny City.

Mr. R. F. Patterson has been ordained as an Evangelist, by the Presbytery of White Water.

Mr. D. Owen Davies was ordained and installed pastor of the Fifth Presbyterian Church, Cincinnati, on the 19th of September.

The Rev. Everard Kempshall was installed pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Elizabethtown, on the 18th of September.

The Rev. H. A. Tracy was installed pastor of the church in Glendale, Ohio, on the 18th of September.

Mr. W. A. Hooker and Mr. John Clarke were ordained by the Presbytery of Huntingdon on the 1st of October.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESSES CHANGED.

Rev. D. W. Fisher from Pomeroy, Ohio, to Wheeling, Virginia.

Rev. A. C. Miller from White Rock to West Jersey, Illinois.

Rev. M. M. Fisher from Fulton, Mo., to Louisville, Kentucky.

Rev. George C. Heckman from Janesville, Wis., to Indianapolis, Ind.

Rev. B. O. Junkin from Ridgeway to Springdale, Pa.

Rev. E. Kempshall from Batavia, N. Y. to Elizabeth, New Jersey.

Rev. H. Neill, D. D., from Chicago, Ill., to Geneseo, N. Y.

Rev. George K. Scott from Apple Creek to Cedar Valley, Ohio.

Rev. T. P. Hunt from Wyoming to Wilkesbarre, Pa.

Rev. T. R. Brace from Weymouth to Elwood, N. J.

Rev. Henry Martyn Corbett from Jerseyville to Trenton, Illinois.

Rev. A. C. McClelland from Mount Pleasant, Iowa, to Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

Rev. Philip H. Mowry, No. 1039 Walnut street, Philadelphia.

Rev. J. D. Mitchell, D. D., Binghamton, N. Y., not Pa., as in the Minutes.

Rev. A. P. Cobb from Philadelphia to New York.

DEATHS.

The Rev. Allan D. Campbell, D. D., at his residence near Manchester, Pa., on Saturday, the 21st of September, in the seventieth year of his age.

The Rev. John N. Lewis died suddenly, on October 5th, at his residence, Brooklyn, N. Y.

LICENSURES.

Mr. John Baird, by the Presbytery of Cincinnati, Ohio.
Mr. Garnett A. Pollock, by the Presbytery of Sidney.
Mr. Thomas Wallace, by the Presbytery of Miami.
Mr. John Wherry, by the Presbytery of Carlisle.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Rev. Dr. Krebs has declined the Professorship of the Chicago Theological Seminary, to which he was elected by the last General Assembly.

The Rev. W. A. Scott, D. D., has left California for Europe.

FUND FOR DISABLED MINISTERS, AND THE NEEDY WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

The following amounts have been received since the last report, viz.

From Coatesville church, New Castle Pby,	5	00
" West Nottingham church, New Castle Pby,	26	57
" Green Hill and Rockland churches, New Castle Pby,	14	00
" Bellefontaine church, Sidney Presbytery,	7	10
" Mount Pleasant church, Iowa Pby,	8	45
" Keithsburg church, Schuyler Presbytery,	2	00
" Martinsville church, St. Clairsville Pby,	5	00
" Plainfield church, Elizabethtown Pby,	6	00
" Lewisburg church, Northumberland Pby,	21	38
" McEwensville or Bethel ch, Northumberland Presbytery,	3	62
" Vernon church, Madison Presbytery,	5	00
" Graham church, Madison Presbytery,	3	00
" Newport church, Winnebago Presbytery,	16	00
" Hopewell church, Donegal Presbytery,	15	00
" White Plains church, Bedford Presbytery,	25	00
" Trenton 1st church, New Brunswick Pby,	51	00
" German church, New York Presbytery,	4	60
" Bryan church, Maumee Presbytery,	8	31
" Delta church, Maumee Presbytery,	4	09
" Cape Island church, West Jersey Pby,	4	70
" Frenchtown church, Raritan Presbytery,	8	61
" Penn Presbyterian church, Philadelphia Central Presbytery,	6	58
" A Lady in 7th church, Philadelphia Pby,	5	00
" A Lady in Camden, New Jersey,	10	00
" Mrs. Levi Taylor, of Philadelphia,	10	00
" W. C. H., of New York,	2	00
" Myron Phelps, Esq., of Lewistown, Ill.,	100	00
" Miss "C. I. H.," of Baltimore,	2	50
" Govane Chapel, Baltimore Presbytery,	2	50
" Middle Octorara church, Donegal Pby,	13	25
" Chanceford church, Donegal Pby,	17	00
" Lower Brandywine ch, New Castle Pby,	7	00
" West Arch Street church, Philadelphia Central Presbytery,	29	62
" Park church, Troy Presbytery,	25	47
	$465	35

GEO. H. VAN GELDER,
Treasurer Trustees of General Assembly,
Office, No. 320 Walnut Street.

Philadelphia, October 14th, 1861.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN REGARD TO COLLECTIONS.

Whereas, Many of our churches do not contribute to our benevolent enterprises, and whereas, it is desirable to test the power of simultaneous effort; and whereas, an emergency has arisen, requiring the coöperation of all our churches to save our Boards from serious embarrassment, therefore,

Resolved, 1. That this Assembly earnestly request all our churches that have no fixed times for the purpose, to take up annual collections as follows, viz.

For the Board of Domestic Missions on the first Sabbath of November.

For the Board of Foreign Missions on the first Sabbath of January.

For the Board of Education on the first Sabbath of March.

For the Colportage Fund of the Board of Publication on the first Sabbath of May.

For the Board of Church Extension on the first Sabbath of July.

For the Disabled Ministers' Fund on the first Sabbath of September.

Resolved, 2. That when the annual collections cannot be taken up on the days above designated, it be recommended to take them up as soon thereafter as possible.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Domestic Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, Publication, and the Board of Church Extension, and is issued monthly in newspaper form at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at Twenty-five Cents a year: and all churches of less than fifty families at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, Mr. Peter Walker, 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

POSTAGE, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance at office of delivery.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling and Pittsburgh.

AN OFFER.—Any missionary, colporteur, or other person, procuring new subscribers to the Record at 50 cents each, shall be entitled to 20 per cent. for each such subscription procured and prepaid.

CONTENTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.—Systematic Benevolence, p. 193. The True Spirit, p. 193. From the Distant Lake Region, p. 194. What the Times bring forth, p. 194. A Hard Case, p. 194. "The Regions beyond," p. 195. Receipts, p. 195.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—I. Ministerial Education. The Good Pastor, p. 196. Be not many Masters, p. 197. II. Christian Education in Schools, Academies, and Colleges. The School and the Nation, p. 197. The School the Great Arm of Denominational Power, p. 197. The Bible in Schools, p. 198. "That is a Boy I can trust," p. 198. Early Lessons, p. 198. Receipts, p. 198.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Recent Intelligence, p. 199. A Letter of the Executive Committee, p. 199. Mission in China: A Visit to Nanking, p. 200. Ningpo Mission: Organization of another Church, p. 201. Mission in Siam: A Remarkable Case—a Convert who had never seen a Missionary, p. 202. Corisco Mission: Communion Service—An Interesting Missionary Meeting, p. 202. Miscellany: Historical Sketch of the Samoan Mission, p. 203. Expense of Heathen Worship, p. 204. Future Liberality of Christians, p. 204. Receipts, p. 204.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.—Tracts in the Camp, p. 205. Colportage among Soldiers and Sailors, p. 205. The Green Bay Region, p. 205. Scripture Portions as Tracts, p. 206. Dead yet Living, p. 206. The Family, p. 206. Denominational Literature, p. 206. Receipts, p. 206.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.—Sacrifices—The Debt—"All that I have"—God's House First—"Most of the Summer," p. 207. Home of the Friendless, p. 207. Receipts, p. 207.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Ecclesiastical Record, p. 208.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME XII. No. 12. | PHILADELPHIA, DECEMBER, 1861. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

MISSION ROOMS,

No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. Tho's L. Janeway, D. D.
Treasurer—SAMUEL D. POWEL.

LETTERS relating to Missionary Appointments and other operations of the Board, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 910 Arch street, Philadelphia.

CONTRIBUTIONS should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:

J. D. WILLIAMS, Pittsburgh, Pa.

ANDREW DAVIDSON, Louisville, Ky.

WILLIAM RANKIN, JR., Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

AN APPEAL FOR AID.

MISSION ROOMS,
Philadelphia, November, 1861.

The Christian ladies of our church have made many a heart glad by their kind contributions of clothing for our missionaries. The amount of relief is beyond computation. Allow me to say, that at no period in our history will such contributions be more important and acceptable than at the present. The embarrassments of the Board have compelled reduction in the amount granted for the missionaries' support; and the stringency of the times diminishes the payments from their churches. To comfort them now, by the kind labours of our ladies, will be of a service which none but those of us who read their modest tale of want and privation can estimate. May the Board hope that, in addition to the service performed for our soldiers by our patriotic female friends, our missionaries may now be cared for? These gifts of clothing are in addition to their salaries—over and beyond the appropriated salaries—a pure benefaction. It is suggested that when a box is preparing, notice be given to this office, No. 910 Arch street, Philadelphia, and we will give the name of some deserving man, to whom it may be sent direct. This will save expense. If, also, in the preparation of the box, a list of contents be furnished, it will enable our clerk more intelligently to appropriate. As these dear men have scanty funds, the pre-payment of the freight, while a light tax on the donors, will often be of great relief to the missionary. A case is reported of a brother who could not receive his box because his funds were exhausted, and he was compelled to wait till his quarterly remittance reached him. I am persuaded a mere card like this, bald in its statements, will call forth the renewed efforts of those who, in the persons of the Marys, were "last at the cross and earliest at the tomb" of Him for whose servants we plead.

THOMAS L. JANEWAY, Cor. Sec.

A LETTER TO THE CHURCHES.

The following circular of the Board was sent a few weeks since. We publish it for the benefit of other readers, besides the pastors to whom it was directed. It shows our condition, and the absolute need of united and vigorous effort on the part of God's people. We need the contributions of the churches, and we need their earnest prayers. Our anxiety now is towards the months which intervene between the present and the end of February, when the financial year closes. If the collections do not fall off—if they continue to the measure of the last year, we shall, through mercy, pass the shoals of danger; and at least be delivered from indebtedness to the missionaries. To God, in whose hands are the hearts of all men, we commit this precious cause.

MISSION ROOMS, 910 Arch street,
Philadelphia, September 26, 1861.

Dear Brother—The late General Assembly, anxious to test the power of simultaneous and systematic efforts, directed that the attention of all our churches be called to vigorous exertion in behalf of our several Boards, and that a day be designated on which the entire Church, as far as practicable, and so far as not interfering with arrangements already in successful use, should contribute to some one of these great causes. The first Sabbath in November was appropriated for the Board of Domestic Missions; and we were directed to remind you of the fact. We desire to call your attention, and through you, that of your your church, to this important matter, made more so by the urgency of our situation. As we understand it, the idea the Assembly sought to convey by this suggested arrangement is justified by several important considerations. First, For want of fixed purpose and pre-arranged time, many allow the collection to pass; and consequently find it difficult to recall an opportunity. To designate a day, therefore, by the supreme court of our church, brings the cause in full and broad relief before the churches, and takes away all excuse for inaction. Second, It is a grand sight to see a whole church over its wide expanse moving as one man, in simultaneous action, and casting in their contributions. Third, Our Board could forecast its action, and know, in a measure, how much expansion the church would sanction. At present we work in the dark; and in perilous times like these, are perplexed and unable to answer calls to new and promising fields.—Fourth, The example of Scotland is assuring. All the churches, on one day, as moved by one impulse, and feeling the throb of one mighty pulse, bring their offerings, and the success of each scheme is made sure for the year. The Assembly has made allowance for such latitude in established arrangements as to prevent confusion. The plan may not be perfected in one year, but arrangements may be inaugurated which shall prepare for the full development of the idea of the church.

After years of healthful and vigorous action, the Board finds itself crippled and embarrassed, its large and handsome balance absorbed, and the treasury largely in debt. The attempted expansion was not sustained; the receipts did not march with equal steps with the increased appropriation. Now, in times of financial peril, and in a monetary crisis more crushing, from the causes which have given it birth, we are compelled, with painful reluctance, to retrench—to reduce the allowance of the missionary, and turn with tearful eye from fields of utmost promise, which we should rejoice to enter. But to save one of the noblest institutions of our beloved church from utter wreck, we are forced thus to curtail. It is painful to sit week after week in committee, and be compelled to decline new appointments and reduce the existing salaries—how painful, none can know but those who have tried it. That distress, and more painful economy than that of other days, even, must result, we know too well; and the causes which compel this reduction by the Board are operating to reduce salaries paid by their churches. Consider, we beseech you, the double blow which thus falls on that toiling missionary and his dependent family—making the heart sick in the dreariness of his prospects, and almost compelling him to say, "Hath God forgotten to be gracious?"

We were formerly prompt in our payment of their quarterly dues—the remittance followed the reception of their reports. The missionary could calculate on this: his necessary debts could be met. This punctuality gave him favour with the merchant. Now he hears of an exhausted treasury, and promises to pay when we can. A large unpaid balance for labour performed remains, and has increased from month to month, to our dismay. And yet, is not all the gold and the silver the Lord's? Is not the amount of money in our land unprecedentedly large, while our debts to the Old World were never so small? In our communion, there is money sufficient, even in these days of perplexity, when men's hearts fail for fear, to relieve the Board of its embarrassments, and send a thrill of joy through our missionary fields. Will you not, dear brother in Christ, see to this, and make large and generous arrangements for our relief? The apprehended smallness of your collection need not dismay you. It will be larger than you imagine, if you use proper exertions. Let the pulpit speak out. Give your people facts, and their sympathy will awake. Despise not the day of small things. The rills of the wilderness make our rivers, and the aggregate collections will relieve our need. It was painful to learn from the report made by the committee to the Assembly, that a little more than one-half of the churches give to Home Missions; and therefore almost one-half heed not the cry of the destitute. These things ought not so to be. None are too feeble. The little flock on the distant frontier can do something. We have princely donations, large contributions from metropolitan churches. We bless God for them; but we prize the smaller gifts of our feebler and struggling churches. In Israel, none could come before the Lord empty. The poverty of the parents of the Saviour of mankind did not hinder the offering of two young pigeons, while statelier wealth brought more costly sacrifices. Each can give according to his several ability, and as the Lord has prospered him.

Our urgency is great. It was never so great before. We rejoice to believe that our Board has a deep hold on the Christian heart, if its claims be only presented. There can be no reason for timid approach—your people will respond. The rock gave forth water—our people are not rock. We are persuaded that nothing is wanted but a fair exhibition of the wants of our land to evoke their sympathy and call forth their benefactions. Give this an earnest heed. Present the cause fairly, fully. If every member can be called on, according to gospel rule, for his or her donation, after a stirring appeal, the result will surprise you, and will cheer us; and, what is better, cheer the toiling labourer in the missionary field. Talk not of sacrifice, nor of the severity of the times. The Son of God gave all, suffered all, for you and for us. 2 Cor. viii. 9. Take your people to the cross, and ask them, "How much owest thou to thy Lord?" and then, with tearful eye and swelling heart, they will freely give, who have so mercifully received.

JOHN MCDOWELL,
GEO. W. MUSGRAVE,
THOMAS L. JANEWAY,
JAMES FIELD,
M. NEWKIRK,
G. W. FAHNESTOCK,
Committee.

WORKING IN HOPE.

Wisconsin.

Dear Brother—I sometimes imagine that if the Eastern churches, upon whose liberality we frontier missionaries mainly depend for food and raiment, could be stimulated by the report of great things wrought through the name of Jesus, they would more heartily help in the Lord's good work. Living too little by faith, and giving too seldom in faith, they perhaps imbibe the worldly spirit of lending to the Lord on condition that he pay them back in sight drafts.

Do not some of our brethren forget that neither here nor among them the kingdom of God cometh with observation? To our apprehension, its approach is gradual, and often almost imperceptible, like the germinating of the seed, and the bursting of the buds, when God releases inanimate nature from its icy shackles. So in the kingdom of grace, "He that believeth shall not make haste," neither shall he hasten Providence, whose vast wheel is turned by a wise and unerring hand.

Now I come to the application of these few remarks. I think that we in the church, who labour amid manifold discouragements, are like workmen almost out of sight, laying the foundations of what we trust will eventually be a worthy and beautiful structure. We are delving in the rubbish, tempering the mortar, shaping the rough blocks; but our labours fail to show much on the surface, and some, looking from a distance, doubt whether the work counts much, or doubt its success, or wonder that the Master Builder does not more rapidly lay fair stones to the hands of his humble servants.

"Except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it;" and so, most dependently, yet hopefully, we look to him for grace and strength; and we look to the church which he bought, for all manner of encouragement, spiritual and temporal. Deferred hope often causes us to cry, "O Lord, how long!" but we know that the night of toil and weeping must give place to the morning of harvest and joy. Our desert places shall yet blossom, and the name of Jesus shed forth its fragrance among us. We then are encouraged in the Lord our God, if not in the coming of his church to his help. Thanks to him that the blessed Spirit is often present with the word, almost persuading some, and moving effectually on others. Since my last report, two have joined our little number, who were called of God from among the wicked here, and have confessed his name before men; one of them in the face of opposition from dear friends and the world's frown.

Friends here say that a great, though gradual change has been coming over the communities reached by our gospel during the past year. May the Lord accomplish his own precious work in his own good time, for whose coming we labour and pray. Yours in the Lord.

HOLDING ON.

Kansas.

Rev. T. L. Janeway, D. D.

Dear Sir—It is with reluctance that I send a second report while the preceding one has not yet been responded to. I know, by sad experience, what it is to receive appeals for aid from the truly needy, when there is nothing at hand wherewith to furnish it. Yet my hope is, that a better day may be near at hand. Will not the war-cloud soon break, and again give us light.

Since the first of April I have received no remittance. Possibly you have not received my regular report, and possibly again, you may have sent a draft that has not come to hand; though I am inclined to suppose an empty treasury to be in fault.

Could you send me even a part of what is now due, it would very greatly relieve me. I will not trouble with recitals (which, doubtless, you read daily) of hard times, of pressing debts, of suffering children, etc. The most troublesome fact just now is, that nothing but money in hand will procure the necessaries of life.

In the midst of unprecedented difficulties, our little church is struggling on, cheered now and then by some token of the Master's favour. But the proximity of the war, the imminent peril of our city at times, the frequent alarms, the occasional panics, the constant anxiety on all hands—these, you may well suppose, have very materially hindered the progress of our work. Yet our Sabbath-school has been kept up, and has risen, in the number enrolled, higher than before. The prayer-meeting is still a precious place, "a shelter from the storm"—"a shadow from the heat," for many of our people. The attendance on the Sabbath continues encouraging, and indeed is of late increasing, though a number of our young men are away on "the tented field." In short, we have great reason for gratitude that our little church is still permitted to bear testimony in the midst of many discouragements, and to hold forth the gospel's light where else the darkness would be profound.

Our Presbytery have adopted the Assembly's Plan of Systematic Benevolence, and made me the Superintendent. My aim is to have every congregation contribute to every "cause." By God's blessing this will be accomplished.

Yours truly,

"IN LABOURS MORE ABUNDANT."

Iowa.

Dear Brother—This report closes not only another quarter, but another year of missionary labours on this far Western frontier, and in this wide and destitute field. What a year it has been to try one's faith, and patience, and hope! What stirring scenes in the civil world, and what attention to earthly matters in consequence, often to the neglect, we fear very much, by the mass, of heavenly things! What an anxiety, too, has been necessarily felt and shown by multitudes amidst pressing human wants and troublous times, just to secure the necessaries of life—just to live!

In our own family, we have passed through some heavy afflictions and severe straits. But out of them all the Lord has either delivered us, or, we believe, he will in his own good time deliver us. Some of our number have, at times, been very ill—nigh unto death, but the Lord hath healed our diseases. Our lives and health, at the present time, are precious in his sight; and if trials and duties have been multiplied, the back has seemed fitted to the burden. God's grace has been sufficient for us. I used to think I was busy when I resided in Pennsylvania; but out here it seems as if I was called to perform twice the amount of labour in the same time, and that, too, at about half the pay. Take last week as an example. On Sabbath morning, I left home for Plattsmouth, Nebraska Territory, six miles distant; crossed the Missouri river, and preached in Plattsmouth at eleven o'clock; then rode twelve miles to my other appointment at the Three Groves, and preached at half-past four o'clock, P. M. Monday, visited several families, attended to numerous errands, and travelled homewards, reaching my family late in the evening. Tuesday, did a variety of business, and hauled a load of lumber from the saw-mill, three miles distant. At night, sat up and wrote letters until one o'clock, P. M. Wednesday, assisted in building a needed shed, and made preparation for leaving home the next day, to carry forward a protracted meeting at Sydney, Fremont county. And as I had a new sermon to prepare for the morrow, the day appointed by the President of the United States for humiliation, fasting, and prayer, I sat up all that night and wrote at it, finishing it just a quarter to four o'clock, A. M. Then called my family up, got a hasty breakfast, and with my little daughter left at break of day, Thursday morning, for Sidney, a distance of nearly thirty miles; reached there at 11½ o'clock, A. M., and preached to an attentive audience on "Our Nation's Crisis," from James iv. 10: "Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up." Preached again in the evening, from 1 Peter v. 5: "Be clothed with humility." Friday morning was spent in writing letters. In the afternoon I rode out five miles into the country to see an afflicted family; returned and preached in the evening. Saturday morning, visited another sick family the same distance out of town, in another direction. Returned, and while waiting for dinner, wrote another letter. In the afternoon, rode out five miles in another direction, made a call, returned, and preached that evening, with the expectation of preaching twice on the Sabbath, besides administering the Lord's Supper, and then returning home on Monday to go through another and another busy week following. But I must here close for the night, as I see it is nearly one o'clock.

October 9th—Wednesday morning, half-past five o'clock.—Had hoped to finish this report ere this, but have been hindered. I was speaking about "in labours abundant." Then as to compensation for all such toil, how far from flattering is it! Leaving off the aid of our Board of Missions, which is the main staff of the missionary, but which, too, has failed the past year, in consequence of embarrassment, from meeting promptly its desired pledges, look at some home results. I have received the past year only $1 in cash from the Territory, $8 in Mills county, Iowa, and about $30 or $40 in Fremont county, and only $250 from my whole field, embracing cash and all kinds of trade and traffic. As a consequence, we are compelled to limit ourselves in sugar, tea and coffee, and other luxuries, except, it may be, on Sundays, or on some cold morning, or when company is present; and we eat but few eggs and but little meat, because we find a difficulty in paying for them. For the first time, too, in my life, I lately had a note of $25.50 put into the hands of a civil officer for collection; and although I told this fact to several of my people, and asked help by the payment of their subscriptions, yet, such is the scarcity of money among us, I could not get a single dime from any one to afford relief. The only way I could meet the demand was to borrow money at a high rate of interest, and this I have had to do several times the past summer, to meet my current expenses, all of which is still running upon interest.

Much is often said, and truly said, about dis-

couragements by Western missionaries, not only as regards their ministerial success, but also their pecuniary interests. But we do not wish to be always on the side of darkness and gloom; for in accomplishing anything useful, we must expect difficulties. The gospel cannot be preached in these new regions without them, and every missionary that comes West must expect, more or less, to meet them. We are called constantly to practice "the work of faith, the labour of love, and the patience of hope." There are, I may say, however, sufficient encouragements always to urge us onward. The people are generally anxious to have religious services held among them, and they attend in fair numbers upon them; and many are willing to assist in the support of them, although in limited circumstances themselves. The promise, too, is that "the Lord will provide." He has done it in time past, and he will do it in time to come; so that if found in the way of duty we need not fear. A valuable box of clothing received the last summer from the ladies of the Newcastle Presbyterian church, Delaware, cheered us greatly. It was so adapted and so useful, and seemed prepared in such a Christ-like spirit, that every time I think of it, I feel like girding on afresh my gospel armour, and enduring "hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ."

I have also seen enough of the growth of Zion here, from the very beginning, to cheer and sustain me. Much of it seemed to be up-hill work—it has been "a day of small things"—still, like leaven and the grain of mustard-seed, it has, during the last four years of my labours, been silently and steadily progressing. Our organization at Glenwood has been finally completed in the election and ordination of two ruling elders. I have felt much strengthened by the assistance of these brethren; and our last communion season at Glenwood, three weeks ago, was the most interesting and encouraging of any that preceded it. We had three additions, and a larger number of communicants present than ever before. At the same time, the Presbytery of Council Bluffs was in session there, and it was a pleasant and refreshing meeting. Our Sabbath-schools, too, are still kept up, and we are enabled to see enough of the kind providences of God concerning them, to cheer us onward. We thank the Lord for all these things, and take courage. And we desire to pray that our national calamities may be sanctified to us, and then be speedily removed—that union and integrity, peace and prosperity, may long reign in our beloved land. Yours affectionately.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia during the month of October, 1861.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Londonderry—Windham ch 33; Antrim ch add'l 5	38 00
Pby of Troy—Second ch, Troy, from the Sab sch Missionary Society 200; Second street ch, Troy, 159 01	359 01
Pby of Albany—Amsterdam Village ch	32 24
Pby of Mohawk—Oswego 1st ch, from Miss Maria Hugunin	10 00

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Ogdensburgh—Morristown ch (of which 3 50 from the pastor)	7 00
Pby of Genesee River—Warsaw ch	32 00
Pby of Buffalo City—Central ch, Baffalo	20 00
Pby of Rochester City—Rochester Third ch	90 76

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Hudson—Scotchtown ch	93 33
Pby of North River—Bethlehem ch	31 00
Pby of Bedford—Patterson ch 6 26; South Salem ch, from the Female Charitable Society 23 50	29 76
Pby of Long Island—Huntingdon South ch 15; Southampton ch 82 25 (of which 33 mo con and 3 from "a friend of the cause")	97 25
Pby of New York—Green Avenue ch, Brooklyn, N. Y., 29; First ch, Brooklyn, 45 50; Nyack ch 16; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch Mission chapel 3 96; First ch, Jersey City, from a Lady 50	143 96
Pby of Nassau—Astoria ch add'l	20 00

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Elizabethtown—First ch, Elizabeth, annual coll'n 320; New Vernon ch 23	343 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Trenton 1st ch 192; New Brunswick Second ch and Sab sch 18 93; Trenton Third ch, from Miss C M Tate 5	215 93
Pby of Newton—Blairstown ch and Sab sch 27 70; Newton ch 33; Danville ch 5	65 70
Pby of Susquehanna—Wyalusing and Herrick chs	5 00
Pby of Luzerne—Northmoreland ch 1 25; Mehoopany ch 1 25; Nanticoke ch 3	5 50
Pby of Burlington—Bass River ch 7; Tuckerton ch 6	13 09
Pby of Monmouth—Shrewsbury ch 27; Jamesburg ch 12	39 00

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia—"A widow's mite," Tenth ch, Philadelphia	5 00
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Central ch, cash collection 55 94, James Field 50, J S 25, S Colwell 20, Jas Wray 15, J V Cowell 10, Alex Nesbit 5, W Moland 5, D Graham 5, Mrs Lewis Brown 5, J Lessey M D 3, Mrs Howe 1, =199 94; North ch, anonymous 30, A L 1=31; Second ch, from Mrs Freeman 10	240 94
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Chestnut Hill ch, in part 34, of which 4 from the Sab sch; Holmesburg ch Sab sch 17 06	51 06
Pby of New Castle—Upper Octorara ch 51; Forks of Brandywine ch, Female Missionary Society 17 50; Smyrna ch 14	82 50
Pby of Donegal—Chanceford ch 31; Mount Joy ch 10; Strasburg ch 16 50; Union ch 22 75, less for Record 6 25=16 50	74 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Shirleysburg ch	10 00
Pby of Northumberland—Warrior Run ch 50; Washington ch 12; Sab sch of Lewisburg ch 10; Nippenose ch 5; Chilisquaque ch 15 63	92 63

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore—Baltimore 1st ch in part 75; Frederick ch 34 50; Govane Chapel 20	129 50
Pby of Carlisle—Harrisburg ch, Female prayer-meeting 12 50; Upper Path Valley church 26; Landisburg ch in part 32 75; Centre ch 17, (of which 10 from George Hench); Upper ch 2 50	90 75
Pby of Potomac—Seventh street ch, Washington, D. C., 32; Youth's Missionary Society of New York Avenue ch, Washington, D. C., 8 82	40 82

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Redstone—Dunlap's Creek ch add'l 1 75; McKeesport First ch add'l 2; George's Creek ch 6 63	10 38
Pby of Ohio—Centre ch 16 45; Chartiers ch 12 45; Miller's Run ch 25; East Liberty ch 75	128 90
Pby of Blairsville—Donegal ch 11 82; Poke Run ch 61; Salem ch 17 50; Harrison City ch 4 20	94 52
Pby of Clarion—Licking ch, Male and Female Missionary Society 21; New Rehoboth ch, Female Missionary Soc 2 85; Beech Woods ch 6; Reynoldsville ch 3; Clarion ch 30; Rehoboth ch 13 13; Concord ch 3 30; Callensburg ch 10 25; Academia ch 12; Leatherwood ch 8	109 53
Pby of Saltsburg—Ebenezer ch 15; Bethel ch 15; Jacksonville ch 6; Boiling Spring ch 11	47 00

SYNOD OF ALLEGHENY.

Pby of Allegheny—Rich Hill ch	5 00
Pby of Beaver—Little Beaver ch, Female Miss Soc 10; Slippery Rock ch 6	16 00
Pby of Allegheny City—Central ch Allegheny City 50; First ch Allegheny City 62 50; Sharpsburg ch 19; Rev J F McLaren, D D 50	181 50

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington—West Alexander ch 67; Mount Prospect ch 19 50; Three Springs ch 3 50	90 00
Pby of Steubenville—Harlem ch 13; Bloomfield ch 4; Big Spring ch 6; Waynesburg ch, bequest of Mrs Sarah Carr 50	73 00
Pby of St. Clairsville—Crab Apple ch 37 35; Beech Springs ch 32 70; Cadiz ch 31 20; Brownsville ch 9	110 25

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Marion—Richland ch 7 45; Marion ch 30 (of which 2 42 from Sab sch)	37 45
Pby of Zanesville—Beulah ch 5; First ch, Zanesville 20; Second ch, Zanesville add'l 3	28 00
Pby of Coshocton—Millersburg ch	7 50

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.

Pby of Maumee—Hicksville ch 4; Union ch 2; West Bethesda ch 5	11 00

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Cincinnati—First and Third chs, Oxford	38 15

SYNODS OF INDIANA AND NORTHERN INDIANA.

Joint meeting of Synods, collection	58 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Synod of Northern Indiana add'l	10 50
Pby of Logansport—Lafayette ch	15 29
Pby of Fort Wayne—Columbia and Eel River chs	10 75

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

One-half Synodical collection	5 59
Pby of Peoria—Middletown ch	5 00
Pby of Sangamon—Providence ch	75 00
Pby of Bloomington—Mackinaw ch	5 00

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.

Pby of Schuyler—Galesburg ch 30; Millersburg ch 10 35	40 34
Pby of Rock River—Lower Rock Island ch	10 83
Pby of Chicago—Lynn and Hebron chs 13 75; North ch, Chicago 100	113 75

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Toledo—Newton ch	8 00
Pby of Cedar—Muscatine 1st ch	15 00
Pby of Sioux City—Algona ch	7 00

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.

Pby of Iowa—Trenton ch 2 13; Mount Pleasant ch 15 47	17 60
From churches,	$3,894 48

MISCELLANEOUS.

W, Vermont, 2; Interest 30; The last gift of a daughter, from a very aged mother, deceased 5; Rev R McCachren, Newville, Pa, 5; Miss Sophia Swisler, Urbana, Ohio, 5; Children of Rev T Stevenson, Tyrone City, Pa., 1; M A Stowell, Indianapolis, Ind., 1; "From a friend" one-half the proceeds of a gold ring sold 1 50; Savings of an afflicted child, now passed into heaven 4 09; A mission friend 3; Mrs M Pratt Moore, St. Louis, Mo., 10; Mr Arthur Gilman, N. Y., 25; Mrs Ann Piper, Paris, Ill., 5; A friend, Harrisburg, Pa., 20; "Domestic Missions" 10; "Miscellaneous, a tenth" 50 cents	128 09

LEGACY.

Patterson Estate, Pittsburg, Pa.,	47 71
Total at Philadelphia,	$4,070 28

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

CLOTHING.

1 Barrel from the ch of Matteawan, New York, valued at	106 02
1 Cask from the Ladies of Waterford ch, N. Y., valued at	86 00
1 Box from the Missionary Society of Great Valley ch, Pa., valued at	95 00
1 Box from the Female Missionary Society, Westfield ch, Pa., valued at	40 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Flemington ch N. J., value not given
1 Box from the Ladies of Rochester Third ch, N. Y., valued at	75 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Pittsburg 1st ch, Pa., valued at	159 41
1 Box from the Ladies of 1st ch, Lafayette, Ind., valued at	67 87
1 Cask from the Ladies of the First United Presbyterian ch at North White Creek, N. Y., valued at	97 00
1 Box from the Ladies of South Third street ch, Williamsburg, N. Y, valued at	245 72
2 Boxes from the Ladies' Sewing Circle of Antrim ch, N. H., valued at	90 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Milton ch, Pa., valued at	80 00
	1142 02

TREASURY AT LOUISVILLE.

Receipts into the Treasury at Louisville, Ky., during the months of September and October, 1861.

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of St. Louis—German Bethlehem ch	4 00
Pby of Potosi—Rev A Munson, Jackson	2 50
Pby of Wyaconda—Memphis ch	5 55

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Muhlenburg—Certain members of Hopkinsville ch	20 75
Pby of Transylvania—Bethel ch 9; Mrs E P Vanarsdale, Harrodsburg ch 3; Second ch, Danville, 30	42 00
Pby of West Lexington—Mount Horeb ch 3 75; Frankfort ch 5 60	9 35
Pby of Ebenezer—Washington ch 45; Sharpsburg ch 6; Richwood ch 66; First ch Covington, 59 46; Moorfield ch 9 25	185 71
Pby of Paducah—Marion ch 5; Princeton ch 11	16 00
Total at Louisville,	$285 86

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Officers of the Board.

James N. Dickson, President.
John McDowell, D. D., James Dunlap, Vice-Presidents.
William Chester, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
R. Watts, Assistant.
F. D. Ladd, Recording Secretary.
William Main, Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies and Colleges, may be addressed to either of the Secretaries, No. 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of Money may be made to WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer, 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest."

THE GOOD PASTOR.

The good pastor is, as we have already seen, appointed by Christ, and recognised by the sheep. He entereth in by the door, and the sheep hear his voice. In the present article we would call the attention of candidates for the ministry to one other element essential to the scriptural idea of a good shepherd. "The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep."

This descriptive sentence, in its highest sense, was intended to apply to Christ himself. In the sense of a substitutionary giving of life, it applies only to the Chief Shepherd. Of him alone can it be said, that he gave his life "a ransom for many," that "he was wounded for our transgressions, was bruised for our iniquities;" that "the chastisement of our peace was upon him," and that "with his stripes we are healed." Of the incarnate Saviour, who expired on Calvary, and of him only, can it be said, that "his soul was made an offering for sin."

We speak not now, however, of the Chief Shepherd and his vicarious death, but of the under-shepherd, and his spirit of self-sacrifice for the sake of those for whom the Chief Shepherd endured the cross and despised the shame. And our position is, that a true-hearted pastor will be imbued with such a love for the flock, over which the Holy Ghost has made him overseer, that he will be ready to lay down his life for them.

This is a duty binding on all Christians, and a duty which is enforced by the example of Christ. "Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren." 1 John iii. 16. This doctrine was no mere theory with the apostles. The chief of them could say, that he and his co-labourers "were alway delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortal flesh." After enumerating, in his second Epistle to the Corinthians, the troubles, perplexities, distress, and deaths, through which he and his brethren were called to pass, he declares that all these things were for their sakes, that the abundant grace might, through the thanksgiving of many, redound to the glory of God." There was a connection between the severity of apostolic suffering, and the success of apostolic preaching. What insight we have into the inner life of Paul, in those feelings of intense desire for the spiritual growth of the Colossians, to which he gives utterance in the first chapter of his Epistle to that church! "Who now rejoice in my sufferings for you, and fill up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ in my flesh, for his body's sake, which is the church." Here was indeed the spirit of the Master. He was crucified with Christ, and had laid himself, soul, and body, and spirit, upon the altar of the service of Christ.

Nor was this spirit of self-sacrifice for the sake of Christ and his church, peculiar to Paul. He stands out as a notable example, but he is by no means singular in his devotion to the service of his Lord. He is but a specimen—a noble one, it is true, but nevertheless only a specimen, of the martyr spirit of the Christian ministry in the first days of Christianity. Scarcely has the church entered upon her career under the new dispensation, until the earth is stained with the blood of her martyrs. And what has been her history from the hour in which Stephen committed his spirit into the hands of his enthroned Lord till this present hour, but a history of suffering unto death? Throughout her pathway in this world, the church may be traced by the blood-marks of her slaughtered sons. And whilst it is true that the body, for whose sake these martyrdoms were endured, were partakers of their griefs, and co-heirs with them of their sufferings, it is nevertheless a significant historical fact, that the ministers of Christ bore the brunt of the battle, and had to meet the fiercest blast of the storm of persecution. Whether the sword was unsheathed against the church in Jerusalem or in Rome, in London or in Paris, in Scotland or in Ireland, in the first century, or in the sixteenth, or seventeenth, the ambassadors of Christ, the shepherds of his flock, were sure to be made the most notable objects of its devouring rage. Wherever the stake was erected, wherever the funeral pile was kindled, the ministry of reconciliation were almost sure to be the first victims.

And that they suffered these things "for the elect's sake"—that they "gave their lives for the sheep," is as manifest as that they suffered. Had they abandoned their flocks, or transformed themselves into ministers of error, they might not only have escaped from the fury of the oppressor, but might have enjoyed his favour. Nothing held them from flight or apostacy but their love for the blood-bought flock. This was the chain which, mightier than the iron bands of persecution, bound them to the stake until their bodies were reduced to ashes by the fires of martyrdom. And oh! what examples of moral heroism, what instances of patriotic devotion, does the history of the rise and progress, the decline and fall of the kingdoms of this world present, that can bear to be set in comparison with the scenes enacted on the scaffolds and at the stakes, where the shepherds of Christ's flock have laid down their lives for the sheep? There is a halo of moral grandeur about those martyr-shepherds, which is only outshone by the glory which encompasses the Chief Shepherd, when, in Gethsemane, he moves to the front of the little flock, and, offering himself as their substitute, says to the band of the chief priests, "If ye seek me, let these go their way;" or when, on Calvary, he yields up his life as the ransom-price of his people.

Dear young brethren, here are at once the principle and the illustration of it—the spirit of self-sacrifice which leads the shepherd to lay down his life for the sheep, illustrated by the Chief Shepherd himself, and by apostles, and prophets, and pastors and teachers. Seeing, then, that we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses—a cloud of witnesses whose faces still reflect the death-fires amid which they perished and triumphed, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith; who, for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God! Let us remember that the witnesses who are intently watching us are martyrs and confessors—men who were stoned, who were sawn asunder, who wandered about in sheep-skins and goat-skins, in dens and caves of the earth—men whose commissions were issued to them in the terms in which the Son of God commissioned the Apostle of the Gentiles, when he told him that he would show him what great things he should suffer for his name. What sacrifice do the fields of India or China, Asia or Africa, foreshadow to the spirit of the young missionary, which has not been rendered by those martyr-witnesses who gaze upon us from beneath the altar? In going forth at the command of the Chief Shepherd on the embassy of reconciliation, to any portion of the field, to any quarter of the world, to any tribe, or people, or tongue, to the endurance of any species of suffering, for the elect's sake, you may be sure that you have the approval of the entire cloud of witnesses, and the sanction of Him who laid down his life for the sheep.

DEMAND FOR LABOURERS.

The question is sometimes asked, "Is there not danger, that through the efforts of the Board of Education the supply of ministers will soon exceed the demand?" In a former article we have looked upon this question from the standpoint of principle. It is our purpose, at present, to look at it from the stand-point of fact. The position then taken was, that where the church has sufficient evidence that God has called a young man to serve him in the gospel of his Son, it is at her peril she refuse to recognise and employ him. The position now taken is, that, as a fact, the church does recognise and employ the ambassadors of Christ. In support of this position we would simply state two facts. Of the last class graduated at Princeton Seminary, which was the largest ever graduated in that or any other seminary in this country—a class of sixty members, there are not more than ten who are not already settled in the ministry, or engaged, of their own choice, in further study, or who have not refused calls which they have received. The second fact is, that of fifty candidates who were graduated in May last in the Western Theological Seminary, there is not one who is not now employed in the ministry. We have referred to these two institutions, only as we are not in possession of information with reference to those who were graduated during the year in other institutions.

Here then is another answer to the question, "Have we not ministers enough already?"—an answer furnished by the providence of the church's Head. In view of these facts, we are warranted in the affirmation, that almost all the young men graduated in our seminaries during the past year, have been employed as ambassadors for Christ. How can this objection, which is so often urged against the increase of the ministry and the operations of the Board of Education, withstand the force of this great providential fact? Men may say, "there are ministers enough," but the church's Head, who continues to call, commission, and employ, band after band of reapers, still says, both by his providence and grace, "I want more—The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few." Let the church take heed, lest by cherishing this objection, she come in conflict with the cherished purpose and manifest providence of the Redeemer.

Besides the cheering fact that our young men are employed as fast as they can be furnished, it is very gratifying to know, that the ministerial standard is in the ascendant. Our Presbyteries have awaked to an unwonted measure of watchfulness. From all parts of our church we are receiving proofs of presbyterial diligence in the supervision of candidates. The testimony from the Seminaries is, that these exceedingly large classes "are, in many points of view, the very best" they have ever graduated.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

IN SCHOOLS, ACADEMIES, AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

THE GOSPEL AN ESSENTIAL ELEMENT IN A COURSE OF STUDY.

The proper aliment of finite minds is truth. Finite intelligences have been created with reference to the truth, and cannot be happy, or subserve the end for which they have been created, without it. To apprehend truth; to judge properly concerning it; to feel aright in reference to it, and to act in accordance with it, is the life-work of every creature endowed with a moral nature. That there are, in the universe, moral natures which do not apprehend the truth, or feel aright in relation to it, or conform their actions to it, is simply a proof that such natures have fallen from the estate wherein they were created. It is a sad fact, that there are minds, created for the truth, formed to spend an eternity in the contemplation of truth, which are nevertheless so blinded and depraved by sin, that the truth, in its fulness and beauty, has no attraction for them, and ministers to them no real strength or enjoyment.

In devising a system of education for such minds, this fact should never be lost sight of. To enter upon the education of fallen men, on the assumption that their understandings, and affections, and wills, are not under the disturbing influence of sin—yea under its controlling power, is to err at the very threshhold; and a system of education constructed on such a basis must ever disappoint the framers of it, if their object be the elevation of the human mind. It were as unwise to go upon such an assumption in providing aliment for diseased souls, as it would be to organize an hospital, and conduct it on the assumption that its inmates were all in the possession of health. The appliances of a remedial system are no less necessary in the former case than in the latter. In dealing with the diseased souls of men, this necessity must be recognised, or our labour will be in vain.

Now this remedial system embraces certain truths, which are indispensable in the curriculum of a sin-stricken soul. These truths are revealed on the assumption, and are of such a nature as to imply, that the entire family of man are in a state of sin and misery. And, as they assume and imply that the sons of men are sinful and miserable, so they disclose the only way of deliverance. These truths are embraced in the doctrine of the covenant of redemption. Its elements are, the eternal election, by God the Father, of a people from the fallen posterity of apostate Adam; the gift of this people to God the Son, the last Adam; the constitution of the Son as their head and surety; his engagement to satisfy, on their behalf, the law and justice of God, by his obedience and death; the accomplishment of this engagement, as shadowed forth and predicted under the Old Dispensation, and actually achieved at the expiration of the Old and the introduction of the New; the office-work of the Holy Spirit, as sent by the Father and the Son, to apply the purchased redemption, together with the fruits of his operation, regeneration, faith, repentance, sanctification. These truths are essential, fundamental truths. They imply man's absolute guilt, depravity, misery, and helplessness, and reveal, at the same time, the only method of escape.

To construct, for men in this estate, a system of education which excludes, in whole or in part, the truths of this remedial system, is a fearful mistake. It is to ignore at once the wisdom of God and the wants of man, and is therefore to insult God and mock the misery of man. If this system of truth is the only one which can enlighten our darkness, and effect our deliverance from the thraldom of sin, is it not mockery to inaugurate, for the education of those who are under the bondage of this death, a system which assumes that no such bondage exists? And is it not an approximation towards this fatal error, to employ, for the regeneration of our fallen world, a system of education in which these fundamental truths are marred or modified? If it be true, as the word of God affirms, that the entire powers of the soul, the understanding, the affections, the will, are prostrate under the dominion of sin, then it must not only be useful, but indispensable, to employ, in the education of this immortal principle, that system by which the dominion of sin is destroyed, and the shackles by which it holds its slaves in bondage broken. As the materia medica must have the foremost place in a course of treatment for men afflicted with physical ailments, so the materia theologica must have the pre-eminence in the curriculum by which the diseased souls of men are to be delivered from the malady of sin. This is not mere theory. The history of educational institutions is but one continuous illustration of the practical importance of the truths of the gospel as an instrument of mental culture. Infidelity has never succeeded in establishing a college. On this continent we have but one attempt to found an infidel collegiate institution, and the failure, in which the experiment ended, but serves to illustrate, all the more forcibly, the indispensable necessity of the gospel in a course of education.

And what is true of educational institutions, is equally true of educated men. The names which stand highest in the several departments of science and literature, are the names of men who have bowed at the feet of Him who spake as never man spake, and taught as one having authority. It would seem that the human mind cannot safely enter the labyrinth of natural phenomena, except the lamp of eternal truth illumine its pathway. The result of the experiments thus far made, in all the departments of philosophic investigation is, that he is most likely to reason correctly, and to philosophize scientifically, who refuses conclusions which are in conflict with the word of God.

BIBLE EDUCATION.

The only ascertained moral effect of intellectual education, was stated in March, (1833,) by the Lord Chancellor, in the House of Lords. In Russia, where education can scarcely be said to exist, out of five thousand eight hundred committed for crimes within a certain period, three thousand five hundred were accompanied by violence; while in Pennsylvania, where education is generally diffused, out of seven thousand four hundred crimes, only six hundred and forty were accompanied by violence, being in proportion of one-twelfth of the whole number, instead of three-fifths, as in the former case. Thus, the only ascertained effect of intellectual education on crime is, to substitute fraud for force—the cunning of civilized, for the violence of savage life. Nor would even this small change be permanent. A highly intellectual community, without moral principles, and the habits of self-denial, which religion imposes, would only prove a sleeping volcano, ready to awaken every moment, and overthrow those very institutions under which it had been fostered. To increase the intellectual power, and enlarge the knowledge of a man void of principle, is only to create in him new desires, to make him restless and dissatisfied, hating those that are above him, and desirous of reducing all to his own level; and you have but to realize universally such a state of society, to fill the cup of the world's guilt and misery to the brim.

What do we say then? Not, certainly, that education is to be withheld from any member of society, for that question is now decided, whether we will or not; but that from the infant-school upwards to the university, it must be a thorough Christian education, in which our youth shall be trained in the ways of virtuous self-control, and piety and righteousness wrought into the understanding, and into the whole habit of the man. A theoretical religious education will no longer serve; not mere bible-reading, but bible education. The understanding must be enlightened, and the heart must be gained over to the side of truth and righteousness. In short, the grand aim of education must become, not merely the formation of intellectual habits, or the acquisition of secular knowledge, (as is too exclusively the case in present times,) but the formation of the Christian character. Men have hitherto been prone to take for granted, that it was only necessary to teach the art of reading, and before this new power, all vice and error would flee away. These are dreams of men ignorant of themselves, and ignorant of our poor nature. Men must be trained to piety and virtue, as they are trained to any other habits, whether intellectual or physical; and the moral man must advance contemporaneously with the intellectual man, else we see no increase from our increased education, but an increased capacity for evil-doing.—J. M. Garnett.

[The doctrine of the foregoing extract is simply defective. It contains a truth of great practical value, but does not contain the whole truth. It errs in the seeming implication, that men can be trained to piety and virtue, as they are trained to any other habits, whether intellectual or physical. The truth which the writer has omitted, is a fundamental one, viz., the necessity of that change in the habitus of the mind, or the moral estate of the faculties of the soul, which the Holy Spirit effects in regeneration. The training is good, and, in its own place, necessary, but without this change it will never produce the habit of piety and virtue. Without this, no man can see, or enter, the kingdom of God.]—Ed.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

Extract from the Address of the Hon. R. C. Winthrop, before the Alumni of Harvard University, August 21, 1852.

Indeed, as we run our eyes over the long list of her children, and see what a goodly fellowship of prophets, what a glorious company of apostles, she has sent forth into every field of Christian service;—as we turn back to that first commencement, on the 5th day of October in the year 1642, when "nine bachelors commenced at Cambridge, young men of good hope—and performed their acts so as gave good proof of their proficiency in the tongues and arts,"—and thence follow her along her starry way for more than two centuries—we might be almost pardoned for forgetting that she has, or ever had, any faults. And could we but see something of a higher moral discipline, something of a deeper religious sentiment, something of a stronger spiritual influence, mingling with the sound scholarship which pervades her halls, and giving something of a fresher and fuller significance to her ancient motto, "Christo et ecclesiæ;"—could we but see a little more of that state of things here, which Thomas Arnold contemplated when he nobly declared at Rugby—"It is not necessary that this should be a school of three hundred, or of one hundred, or of fifty, but it is necessary that it should be a school of Christian Gentlemen,"—there would be little or nothing more to be desired in her condition.

I pretend not to know how this common want of almost all seminaries of instruction is to be supplied. But, oh! let us be careful that the indulgence of sectional jealousies do not result in a downright divorce between education and religion. Let us be watchful, lest our disposition to do away all colour for the idea of a State religion, shall terminate in banishing religion from our Republican schools. Better, a thousandfold better, that a seminary like this should be under the steady, effective, aye, or even exclusive influence of any one religious sect, than that it should be without the influence of some sort of vital Christianity. Let us, if we can, and as far as we can, so blend the rays which are reflected from every different view of the Bible, that they shall form one harmonious beam of holy light, streaming in at every door, and window, and loophole, of our halls and chapels, and casting golden glories upon every pinnacle, and buttress, and tower. But let us be cautious, that in attempting to shut out any one particular ray which may be imagined to predominate in our academic atmosphere, we take no risk of shutting out the glorious sunshine of the gospel, and of leaving the institution, in this day of its highest intellectual advantages, in a condition of spiritual darkness:—

"Dark, dark, dark, amid the blaze of noon—,
Irrecoverably dark, total eclipse,
Without all hope of day!"

FAITHFUL PARENTAL TRAINING.

Faithful parental training has everywhere, in every age, been blessed to the salvation of children. The exceptions are too few to impair the general statement. I will not assume that, in every instance of failure, there has been some radical defect on the part of parents. The fault may have been in others. Influences may assail a child unknown to the parent, and infuse into his mind a poison which no subsequent efforts of the parent can counteract. This, however, does not weaken our general position. It only shows us how exceedingly difficult it is to carry out a perfect system of education. Suffice it to say, that those who have made some approach to it, have been amply and gloriously rewarded. It were needless to adduce instances. We might as well attempt to recite the history of the whole church. By far the greater proportion of the piety that is, or ever has been in the world, may be ascribed, under God, to parental instruction and influence. Other means may have conduced to its development and growth, but the seed was deposited far back in the nursery, amidst the prayers and tears of pious parents.—Selected.

THE BIRTH OF AN INFANT.

"The birth of an infant," it has been truthfully said, "is a greater event than the production of the sun. The sun is only a lump of senseless matter; it sees not its own light; it feels not its own heat; and with all its grandeur, it will cease to be; but that infant, beginning only to breathe yesterday, is possessed of reason, claims a principle infinitely superior to all matter, and will live through the ages of eternity." Let the immortal mind shed its lustre upon the world.—Selected.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA IN OCTOBER 1861.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Pby of Genesee River—Central ch Geneseo	15 21
Pby of Bedford—South Greenburg ch 18 50; South Salem ch 17 20	35 70
Pby of Long Island—Middletown ch	8 00
Pby of New York—Clifton 1st ch (Staten Island) 23; Jersey City 1st ch 92 24; Chelsea ch 37 50	152 74
Pby of Connecticut—Bridgeport 1st ch	21 57
Pby of Nassau—Williamsburg ch	34 30
Pby of Elizabethtown—Elizabethtown 2d ch	103 48
Pby of Passaic—Chester ch 16; Springfield ch 13 17	29 17
Pby of New Brunswick—New Brunswick 2d ch 6 61; Cranberry 2d ch 40	46 61
Pby of West Jersey—Deerfield ch	1 38
Pby of Newton—Blairsville ch Sab sch	9 76
Pby of Luzerne—Wyoming ch	3 00
Pby of Monmouth—Jamesburg ch	7 00
Pby of Philadelphia—Tenth ch, collection 441 72, P. W. 2, H. 1, R. C. 5=449 72; Hestonville ch 5	454 72
Pby of Philadelphia Central—2d ch, Ladies' Education Soc of (special) 50, W R Thompson 20	70 00
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Holmesburg ch	9 05
Pby of Donegal—Lancaster ch 20; Belleview ch 20 15	40 15
Pby of Huntingdon—Huntingdon ch addl	6 00
Pby of Northumberland—Williamsport ch, Ladies' Association 21 18; Milton ch, Ladies of in part 46 60; Washington ch, Ladies of in part 28 77; Bald Eagle and Nittany ch, Ladies of in part 8 71; Mahoning ch 25	130 26
Pby of Baltimore—Baltimore 12th ch 16 32; Govane Chapel 2 50	18 82
Pby of Carlisle—Chambersburg ch 51 12, paid candidate 63=114 12; Landisburg ch (in part) 8 25; Centre ch 3 50; Upper ch 2 50	128 37
Pby of Lewes—Pitts Creek ch	3 25
Pby of Potomac—New York Avenue ch 12 50; Seventh ch Washington D C 11 25	23 75
Pby of Allegheny—Butler ch, Ladies' collection	24 55
Pby of Allegheny City—Central ch	2 61
Pby of Washington—Washington ch, Ladies' cent-a-week collection	13 03
Pby of St. Clairsville—Martinsville ch	9 61
Pby of Zanesville—Rush Creek ch 6; Beulah ch 2	8 00
Pby of Maumee—West Bethesda ch	5 00
Pby of Findlay—Findlay 1st ch 23 52, less exchange 19 cents	23 33
Pby of Schuyler—Macomb ch	14 00
Pby of Rock River—Princeton ch	10 82
Pby of Milwaukie—Germantown ch	4 44
Pby of Potosi—Whitewater ch, paid candidate 5; Brazeau ch, paid candidate 5	10 00
	$1477 68

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rev C C Beatty, D D, Steubenville, Ohio	20 00
	$1497 68

II.—FUND FOR SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &c.

Pby of St. Louis—Bethel ch	23 00
Total,	$1520 68

WM. MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURG, PA., IN OCTOBER 1861.

Pby of Ohio—Centre ch 20 50; Chartiers ch 12 50; North Branch ch, Ladies' special 10; Bethany ch, Ladies special in part 35	78 00
Pby of Redstone—Sewickley ch 17 50; Dunlap's Creek ch addl 1 20; Laurel Hill ch, Ladies' special addl 1 25; New Providence ch, Ladies' special in part 9; West Newton ch, Ladies' special 25 55	54 50
Pby of Saltsburg—Elder's Ridge ch, Ladies' special 36 78; Indiana ch 55 50	92 28
Pby of Clarion—Perry ch, Ladies' special 9 88; Pisgah ch, Ladies' special 9 85; Brookville ch, Ladies' special 16 62; Clarion ch, Ladies' special 12 14; Rehoboth ch, Ladies' special, 20	68 49
Pby of Allegheny City—Manchester ch	12 46
Pby of Washington—Frankfort ch 7 70; Three Springs ch 3 50	11 20
Pby of St. Clairsville—Beech Spring ch 31 30; Crab Apple ch, Ladies' special 21	52 30
	$369 23

MISCELLANEOUS.

Patterson Estate, per Dr Marshall 47 71; A Lady, Emberton, Pa. 50 cts	48 21
	$417 44

J. D. WILLIAMS, Receiving Agent.

Total amount acknowledged, $1,938 12

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,

No. 23 Centre Street, New York.

November 13th, 1861.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF 1861 ON FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Annual Collection on January 5, 1862.

"Whereas, Many of our churches do not contribute to our benevolent enterprises; and, whereas, it is desirable to test the power of simultaneous effort; and, whereas, an emergency has arisen requiring the co-operation of all our churches to save our Boards from serious embarrassment, therefore,

"Resolved, 1. That this Assembly earnestly request all our churches, that have no fixed times for the purpose, to take up annual collections as follows, viz. . . . . .

"For the Board of Foreign Missions on the first Sabbath of January."—Minutes of the General Assembly, page 349.

Every member of the congregation to be called upon.

"It is earnestly recommended to each church-session, and to the ruling elders of every vacant church, to appoint one or more persons, who may be willing to undertake this labour of love, to visit every member of the congregation, that each in turn may contribute or subscribe to this object—all subscriptions payable within the year—and that the amounts so raised or pledged be immediately forwarded to the treasurer of the Board in New York."—Ibid. page 314.

The week of Prayer, January 5—11, 1862.

"Overture No. 16, from the Presbytery of St. Paul, on a week of prayer in behalf of missions, to be designated by the Assembly.

"The committee recommend that the churches be requested to observe the week, from the 5th to the 11th of January, 1862, inclusive, as a season of special prayer for the prosperity of Christian missions throughout the world.

"Adopted"—Ibid. page 335.

We insert the above minutes of the General Assembly, in order to secure for them the timely consideration of our churches. The first two contemplate the pecuniary support of foreign missions by all our churches and all our Christian people; and, where no plans are already in use, they point out particular methods of proceeding. The last has respect to what is essential to this cause—the prayers of the people of God for its success. How much each one should give, how often and when each one should pray, for the advancement of the kingdom of Christ, are questions which must be left to the conscience of each follower of the Saviour; but surely every disciple of Jesus may well "hear the church," when her call is to liberality and prayer, by each and all her members, for a cause that is dear to the heart of her blessed Lord.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

INDIA.

Our latest letters are dated at Rawal Pindi, August 29th; Landour, September 16th; Futtehgurh, September 2d; Futtehpore, August 29th; and Allahabad, August 16th. Mr. Walsh had been permitted to receive two Hindus into the church at Allahabad; and he refers to another who is an inquirer, whose case he regarded with interest and hope. Mr. Johnson, at Futtehpore, felt constrained to report unfavourably of a number of the members of the church at Futtehpore. Our lamented native brother, who was long in the charge of that station, was not sufficiently careful in the admission of persons to the privileges of the church. Some of these have returned to heathenism, and others have gone away to places unknown. Of twenty-two communicants now at the station, three are spoken of in terms of much doubt, but "most of the others live in an exemplary manner." At Futtehgurh, the number of orphans admitted was about thirty. Mr. Scott says, "If we had sent out, and made efforts to pick them up, we could have had many more; but we were afraid, under the circumstances of our Board, to do that, and have only taken those that have been thrown upon us. They have as yet been fed and clothed from the relief fund, and will be so for some time." At Saharanpur the number of orphans received had increased to more than seventy. This involves a considerable expense, to meet which Dr. Campbell hoped to obtain special funds from this country. He also refers to a kind offer of Dr. Duff, to aid him to some extent with funds placed at his disposal by a friend in England; and in India, European friends will no doubt make liberal donations in support of these orphan schools. "We do not despair," says Dr. Campbell, "of being able, in some way or other, to sustain this burden laid upon us in providence. These little ones may yet become 'mighty men of valour' in fighting the battles of the Lord in the plains of India, and evangelizing their benighted countrymen." In another letter he adds, "The cholera has almost passed away from this region, but its victims are numbered by thousands. Thank the Lord that all the missionaries and native assistants have been spared."

The Rev. John H. Morrison, of the Lodiana Mission, arrived at New York on the 22d of October. We are glad to learn that his health is much improved.

SIAM.

We have received advices dated August 10th, which report the brethren as engaged in their usual labours, but do not furnish information of special interest.

CHINA.

The latest letters are dated at Canton, August 26th; Shanghai, August 17th; and Ningpo, August 13th. We regret to learn the death of Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson's youngest remaining child, at the age of three years. The brethren were building a chapel in the eastern suburb of Shanghai, nearly two thousand dollars having been subscribed by American and English friends there towards furnishing the requisite funds. The press, under Mr. Gamble's efficient management, is spoken of as doing a good work, and likely to require enlarged room, probably a new building. Mr. Culbertson says, "We have now orders for tracts far ahead of our ability to supply them. Our supply of the New Testament is small. . . . I have now finished the translation of the book of Ezekiel, and when I shall have finished the whole, I hope to be permitted to do something towards circulating it in the interior." At Ningpo, Mr. and Mrs. Green had returned from a short visit at Fuh Chow, their health having required a change. Dr. and Mrs. McCartee expected to leave Ningpo in a short time, to join the brethren in Shantung. Their health renders this change of climate very needful, and the medical services of Dr. McCartee are more needed at Tangchow, where there is no physician, than at Ningpo, where another physician is within reach. The doctor's long residence in China, and his thorough knowledge of the language, as well as his superior medical skill, make the brethren anxious to keep him in that country as long as possible; and as his heart is in the missionary work, we trust this change of station may lead to his remaining many years in China. Mr. Rankin speaks of some interesting cases of the hopeful conversion of quite aged people. See his letter in another column. At Canton the brethren were going on vigorously in their work, and were still anxious to occupy a second station at the large city of Fatshan.

JAPAN.

We have heard from Kanagawa to the 17th of September, when Dr. Hepburn was pursuing his usual engagements quietly and with encouragement. From 100 to 150 patients were prescribed for on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and much interest seemed to be taken in this work of benevolence by the Japanese. Mrs. Hepburn reached San Francisco in the latter part of October, returning on a visit to her friends. She expected to reach New York about the 20th inst.

SOUTH AMERICA.

Letters have been received from Rio de Janeiro, September 17th, and from Bogota to August 22d. Mr. McLaren had procured a place in Bogota where copies of the Scriptures and tracts could be kept for sale, under the charge of a man in whom he had confidence. At Rio a growing interest is manifested in Mr. Simonton's services, and one person, Mr. Blackford writes, gives "every evidence of being an humble and earnest believer in Jesus, and I think would like soon to unite with us by a profession of his faith. At least one other of similar character, I think, would take the same step."

AFRICA.

Our latest date from Corisco is the 20th of August. It is with sincere regret we have to mention the death, on that day, of Mrs. Loomis, wife of the Rev. Charles L. Loomis, M. D. Her illness was not at first attributable to the climate or any local cause, though it afterwards took the type of severe fever. Her mind was kept in peace, and she possessed a good hope through grace. An earnest, faithful labourer, she has received her reward. The other members of the mission were in their usual health. Mrs. Ogden was expecting to return to this country at an early day. We take the liberty of quoting a few lines from a letter of one of the ladies of this mission: "Each month that I stay adds new interest to my work, and each month leaves me contented and happy in my African home. I love the people. I love my children, [she has charge of the girls' school at one of the stations.] I love to feel myself at home. What I need besides, is more love for my Saviour, more devotion to the cause in which he spent a life-time, less thought for earthly things and more for heavenly. It is easy to write thus; not so easy to feel it."

SAILING OF MISSIONARIES.

The Rev. John S. Roberts and his wife, Rev. Samuel C. George and his wife, Rev. Levi Janvier, D. D., and his wife, and Miss Catharine L. Beatty, sailed from New York on the 26th of October, in the steamer Po Yang. Mr. Roberts is a member of the Presbytery of New York, and will proceed in the steamer to Shanghai, and thence to Ningpo, China. Mr. George is a member of the Presbytery of Alleghany City, and his field of labour is Siam. He will leave the steamer at Singapore, and go on from that place to Bangkok in a sailing vessel. The other three members of this company will also leave the steamer at Singapore, and sail thence to Calcutta, on their way to the Lodiana Mission, to which Miss Beatty has been appointed as a teacher, and Mr. and Mrs. Janvier are returning, with health much improved by their visit to this country. On the 30th of October, the Rev. Francis J. C. Schneider, of the Presbytery of Ohio, sailed from New York in the barque P. C. Warwick, for Rio de Janeiro. His station, it is expected, will be in the southern part of Brazil, where he can at once engage in missionary work among the German settlers, and complete his preparation for preaching in Portuguese among the natives of the country. We ask for these missionary friends an interest in the prayers of our readers.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF GIVING.

To most members of our congregations, the opportunity of giving is afforded chiefly through the channel of church collections. Where these are not made, it results practically that most persons give nothing to send the gospel to the heathen. Now, we fear that in this respect many of our Christian people do not enjoy the opportunity of giving. Two things point to this conclusion: one is, the very serious fact that much the larger part of our churches last year made no pecuniary offering at all in aid of the missionary cause; the other is, the encouraging fact—shown by a somewhat extended observation, continued over a score of years—that our church members, or at any rate some of them, always contribute to the cause of missions when the church officers ask them for their support. We have never known an exception to this remark. All may not give, but some do; many give but little compared with what they might, but others give more than could be expected; in no case, so far as we have ever known, do all refuse to give anything.

This being so, we respectfully and earnestly beg the attention of our church sessions to their duty in the case. Is it not that of opening the door for the exercise of this grace of giving by the people of God, who are placed under their watch and care? It would be lamentable, indeed, if any of the office-bearers in the church should be found standing between the followers of Christ and the great work to which he is calling them—standing thus in the way through inattention, indifference, or unbelief—hindering instead of encouraging their liberality and their usefulness. We cannot believe that any of the leaders of God's people would purposely take a stand of this kind, and yet we see what is the practical result of simple inaction.

The opportunity of giving—for the glory of our Saviour; for the salvation of the lost and perishing; from hearts full of love and gratitude to Jesus, and moved with deep pity for our dying fellow-men; for a short time, and it may be, with self-denial and some difficulty; but for eternity, also, and for a reward of grace;—who that rightly considers the matter would be willing to be excused from this service?

LODIANA MISSION, INDIA.

JOURNAL OF THE REV. A. RUDOLPH.

A Hindu baptized—A singular ceremony for a dead man.

November 27th, 1861.—Last Sabbath I baptized a Hindu who had been an inquirer for more than two years. He is a young simple-minded man, of low caste, but, as far as I had occasion to observe, honest and upright in his profession. His baptism was not postponed so long because I had any doubt about his motives, but because he was long in acquiring a correct knowledge of the plan of salvation. His wife, whom I had hoped to be able to baptize with her husband, lives with him in the Christian village.

Yesterday Qádir Bakhsh and myself prepared to go out on a missionary tour, and this morning we left Lodiana. In the first village we found some eight or ten people squatting on the ground in a circle. In the centre stood a basket with Indian corn. Every one held a handful of it in his left hand, while he allowed one grain of corn after the other to drop from the right hand to the ground. The left supplied the right hand, and when it was empty the basket offered a new supply. The motion of the lips showed that they muttered something every time that a grain fell to the ground. A blind man, bent with old age, felt his way with his stick into the midst of the group, and was invited by the rest to sit down and engage with them in this ceremony. An earthen dish with water was handed him. Having rinsed his mouth and washed his hands, he sat down and did as the rest. On inquiry, I was told that the Lambardar, the chief man in the village, had died the day previous, and that the ceremony they were engaged in was a meritorious act, by which the dead would be benefitted. The words that they uttered were those of a verse taken from the Koran, and in the Arabic language, viz., "God is the only and eternal God: he begets not, nor is he begotten; and no being is like unto him." All the men thus occupied were quite ignorant of the meaning of the words they spake. The chief object in the use of the corn on this occasion, was to ensure the frequent repetition of the sentence, similar to the beads in the rosary. But the grain thus used is also supposed to be an offering to the dead. It is afterwards baked into bread, or prepared in some other way, and eaten in commemoration of the event; a large portion of it goes to the Mulla. When spoken to on the subject, he may condemn the practice as idolatrous; but the bread is too good a thing to be lost, and it is therefore in his interest to see that this custom be not discontinued. The people thus engaged did not allow themselves to be interrupted by our visit, for so mechanical had the repetition of the sentence become unto them, that while they lent their ears to our preaching, and while their eyes were fixed upon us, their lips continued to move and their hands to drop one corn after another to the ground. I preached to them on the parable of the lost sheep and the lost piece of silver. In the afternoon we went to two neighbouring villages; in both we found a few hearers, and some of these scarcely manifested any interest in our preaching.

Preaching to an unwilling people—An aged man dyeing his beard; the appropriate text—Better hearers.

Wednesday, 28th.—This morning I preached in a village where the people appeared very unwilling to receive our message. Having read to them the passage, that no sign should be given to this generation but that of the prophet Jonas, I began to tell them the history of this prophet, his flight, and his preservation in the belly of the fish, etc. Having mentioned that it was the disobedience of the prophet which had brought down God's displeasure upon his servant, one in the crowd exclaimed, that all I had said was a lie, for the prophet had never committed a single sin. On questioning him on the subject, I found that he had all the time understood me to speak of his prophet Mohammed, and that, as he believed him to be perfectly holy, he felt it to be his duty to defend his character against the attacks he thought I made. No one seemed to take pains to understand what I said. Every one took the liberty to speak to his neighbour about his cattle and his field while we preached. It was not surprising, therefore, that misunderstandings of this kind should occur. Sadly we went to the next village, where our reception was of a very different nature. Here the word of God was well listened to.

On reaching the place, I observed an aged man, the lower part of whose face was covered with bandages, beneath which stuck out the edges of green leaves besmeared with a black stuff. Fearing that the man had got a bad hurt by an accident, I inquired compassionately into the nature of his injuries. The reply was, that he had coloured his beard, and that the bandage was worn till the colour had well dried upon the hair. I joined in the laugh at my sympathizing question, and we soon were friends. Old men in India are generally not willing to be considered such, and the colouring of the beard is therefore a very usual custom. But the colour thus used is not black, but a dark blue, which, as it wears away, takes a reddish tinge; gradually this also wears away, and the beard assumes its natural whiteness; when, on the first grand occasion, such as a festival or a wedding, another supply of colour is spent to destroy this mark of old age. I took my text from this custom, and told them that a man could not make one single hair either black or white. After this, the people listened well to an exposition of the parable of the prodigal son.

A policeman visited me at the tent. Our conversation extended over near two hours, during which I had opportunity to observe that the man was in search of the truth. In the afternoon we preached in the village where our tent is pitched. My discourse was well listened to, the subject being the flood, and the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah.

Preaching in a room full of smoke—Thoughtlessness—Levity.

Thursday, 29th.—This morning we set out very early, for we wished to preach in two distant villages before breakfast. In the first, which we reached about seven o'clock, we found about a dozen people around a fire in the middle of a large room. The men seemed but little disposed to leave their comfortable place, and to come outside to listen to an open-air sermon. Much as I should have enjoyed the fire—for the morning was cold—I did not like the smoke with which the room was filled. Still, no option was left but to enter, and to put up with what was to me a great discomfort. The natives build their houses without chimneys; the fire is generally in the centre of the room or near a wall, and the smoke is left to find its way through the door as best it can. I suppose that one reason why the natives suffer so much from diseases of the eyes, and why we meet with so many blind, is, that they expose themselves much to the smoke of their fires.

We met here with no objection to the preached word. My text was the history of the creation and the fall of man, with its consequences. On speaking of the forbidden fruit, a Mohammedan corrected me, saying it was wheat that Eve ate. Mohammedans here have generally the idea that it was this kind of grain, and not a fruit, which had been forbidden in paradise. Again, referring to the message that the angel brought to Mary, when he foretold the birth of Christ, one exclaimed, that the angel must have told a lie, for God had no son. This man was too polite to charge me with falsehood, but could not see the inconsistency of supposing that a messenger from God could be guilty of such a sin. The thoughtlessness with which such remarks are made is only equalled by the utter ignorance and the dense darkness of the minds of this people. Every passage of the Bible, every event recorded in sacred history that the false prophet or his followers have thought proper to make use of in the Koran, or in their traditions, is corrupted, mutilated, or misapplied.

In the afternoon, we preached where our tent is pitched, but could obtain only a few hearers, and these, being young men full of levity, tried to make merry at our doctrines.

Preaching to small congregations—Effects of the drought.

Friday, 30th.—Our way led us this morning through two villages, in the first of which we had about twenty hearers, most of whom were intelligent people, who, by many expressions of approbation, showed that they were interested in what was said. The tempting by the devil in the garden of Eden I compared with what he used in tempting the Saviour, and then I spoke about those to which we all are exposed from day to day. The second village offered but little opportunity for doing anything, the few people we met being exceedingly indifferent. At the third village we found our tent, and here we preached after breakfast. I read the story of the young man who believed he had kept all the commandments of God, and took occasion to explain the spiritual meaning of the law. Our congregation here was but small.

On account of the long-continued drought, the people are much behind in the ploughing and sowing of their fields. They have been waiting for rain to the last moment, and now, having been entirely disappointed in their expectations, they are obliged to resort to artificial irrigation before they are able to break up the soil with their imperfect implements, and sow. In this way they are able, moreover, to till but very small patches of their fields. Were they industrious farmers, they might, notwithstanding the dearth, have done a good deal more in this part of the country. On account of the vicinity of the river the water is close to the surface, and temporary wells, ten or twelve feet deep, such as they make use of near their villages, might be multiplied indefinitely over every portion of their fields. Wells of this description could be easily dug by a few men in the course of a day. But the indolence of the Mohammedans is so great, and so much are they addicted to the dirty habit of smoking, that they are seldom found in their fields till the sun stands high in the heavens. Other districts, and particularly those to the south-west of Lodiana, that are removed far from the river, have much more severely suffered from the drought. The cattle have died by the hundred; hardly any are remaining. A gentleman who lately travelled through that district reports, that he saw a camel and a donkey harnessed to a plough side by side, there being no bullocks left to do the work. In another place he saw what was much worse—two women drawing the plough, while a man tried to scrape the surface of the earth by such inefficient means. In our preaching we take occasion frequently to refer to these visitations of Providence, and universally it is acknowledged by the people that God has reason to chastise them; but nowhere do we find a sense of guilt or a repenting heart. The greater their trials, the more do they cling to their idols and their superstitious observances.

[To be concluded.]

CHUJ MULL.

It is always more pleasant to show the bright side; but if our friends at home saw the dark side oftener, perhaps they would pray more for us. Here is one specimen of the dark-side kind. Last year, while sitting in the verandah of the mission house at Rawal Pindi, I saw a young man approaching with a small bundle. He was very poor and forlorn looking, his clothes ragged, and shoes tattered. He had a note from a native Christian drummer in one of the regiments in Cantonment, stating that the stranger wished to be "made a Christian." The stranger's name is Chuj Mull. He said he was a Hindoo, but wished to become a Christian. I asked him why. He replied that idolatry was very bad, and that he had heard about the Christian religion, and he believed it was true, and he wanted salvation, &c. He appeared to be a promising inquirer, so I sent him to live with a Scripture reader, and made provision for him. Although he was of rather high-caste, he made up his mind to eat with the Christians, and voluntarily broke his caste. As he expressed a desire to learn, he was sent to school. After passing through the barber's hands and being washed, he looked very smart in some clean clothes provided for him. It was very pleasant to see him in church and prayer-meeting, uniting with the Christians. After being with us for some time, he applied for baptism; but the church session thought it better to let him wait awhile, so that he might be better prepared to join the church. . . . In order that he might do something to earn his living and help himself, I gave him a lot of books to sell in the city, at the shop which we use for bazaar preaching and book distribution. He entered into the work with interest and spirit, and I was much pleased. After a month or so, however, he began to behave badly, and spoke improperly to one of the Christian women, and one day suddenly disappeared, taking some books with him. The next thing heard of him was a letter from the civil authorities in the neighbouring city of Jhelum, making inquiries about him, and saying that he had been caught and kept in custody on suspicion, as he could give no satisfactory account of the mission books which he had stolen and taken with him. In reply to the communication of the magistrate, I made a statement of the manner in which Chuj Mull had imposed on me, and had run away without my knowledge. After this, I learned that the magistrate had sentenced him to be beaten and put in jail for nine months, with hard labour. Perhaps there he may recall the instruction he had received, for he attended Bible-class and preaching regularly for several months, and had committed much of the gospel to memory. The Lord grant it may be so! This is but one out of many cases of a dark kind. Such was the sad history of the promising inquirer, Chuj Mull.

J. H. ORBISON.

NINGPO MISSION, CHINA.

EXTRACTS FROM A LETTER OF THE REV. H. V. RANKIN.

Persons seeking Christian instruction—A bright scholar's illness.

Mr. Rankin, under date at Ningpo of July 26, 1861, sends good news. The work of the Holy Spirit is evidently making progress.

Mr. Morrison last month gave an account of a visit to Yuyiao and Sanpoh, and the organization of the new church there, to be called the church of Yuyiao, which is the chief city in the district embracing that region of country. In the opposite direction, in Bao-kô-tah, one of the native assistants goes every week to assist the young school-teacher in Sabbath duties. An old man of eighty-one years, and his aged wife, come from a place a mile or two distant, another woman from another village, and four women from a third and more distant village, regularly every Sabbath, to attend worship and receive instruction. The first two parties are parents of church members; the last mentioned four women first heard the truth from another female church member. These, though poor, always bring their own food with them, which is a very hopeful sign in China. All have determined to give up idolatry, though they have expended no little property in its follies, and have hoarded up large supplies of merit not only, as they had supposed, but stock of various kinds in the future world, which are made merchandize of by lying Budhist priests. I hope that they will soon give me a lot of this trash, which I may send home, and show the children there what these poor devotees rely upon. I have not been able to go out there since this interest commenced. . . . There are two inquirers at Yuyiao who will probably soon be baptized.

. . . Generally we have had a pleasant summer, and there has been but little serious sickness thus far. I have not seen the thermometer in my house as high as ninety-four degrees, and the breezes have been constant. One of our school girls was sick a few days, but others have wholly escaped. I am sorry to say, however, that in the boys' school, our brightest boy, Wông-we, the most promising pupil we have ever had in the school, and of whom we had the greatest hopes as a Christian scholar, has lately had two or three attacks of bleeding, probably from the lungs, and I fear that his days will be few. We have done everything to encourage him to pursue a more active life, but his soul has been swallowed up in study, and now the natural result has come. His parents, I learn, died of consumption. . . . He may recover, and live many years, and for this we can but pray. Mr. Morrison has been at Ningpo the last six weeks, our mission house at Yuyiao being unfit for a foreigner to reside in. He will spend much of his time there, I believe, after the heat of the summer is over.

Ningpo further fortified—Aged converts—Proofs of their sincerity.

. . . This has been a remarkably quiet summer among the people. Just now we have three English gunboats in front of our houses, and cannon have been placed on the city walls by them, for the protection of the place in case of an attack from the rebels, once somewhat feared. As an instance of an increased desire for information, I would state that the Taoutai has sent to the consuls here for files of foreign newspapers, for the Lieutenant-Governor's benefit, and at his request.

July 27.—Kwông-hyi has just brought me a pile of the paper cash and dollars, purgatory papers, &c., given him by the old people above alluded to. They have burnt up large quantities besides—the whole being the collection of nearly half a century, purchased from monasteries and temples in all directions, and prayed over hundreds and thousands of times. The cost of these paper mementoes of a long life's idolatry has been a hundred dollars given to the priests, to say nothing of their food, and travelling, and loss of time, and the fastings and sufferings they have endured. But the Spirit of God, through the teachings of their Christian daughter, the first Bao-kô-tah convert, has brought them to see their sin and folly, and, we have good reason to believe, has led them to Jesus Christ. Oh there was joy in heaven at that sight! He is eighty-one, and she seventy-one years old. She is remarkably in earnest, rising two or three times at night for prayer, and speaking with a full heart of what Jesus has done for her. I have not yet seen them, but I think this testimony of our native brethren is reliable, as it is most cheering. I hope to see them next week. The old blind woman lately baptized there is very poorly, and seems eager as well as ready for death. Besides her affliction, she is badly treated by her daughter-in-law, who lives with her. The neighbours are very angry with the old couple for their complete rejection of idolatry, and regard them as bewitched, and curse them. These are bright streaks of light in the midst of general darkness How wonderfully God brings in his people!

I remain affectionately yours in Christ,

H. V. RANKIN.

OMAHA MISSION.

INTERESTING MEETING OF PRESBYTERY—VALUABLE TESTIMONY.

We have much pleasure in placing before our readers the following letter of the Rev. William McCandlish. It is very gratifying to see that the brethren of the Presbytery were so much pleased with the condition and prospects of the Mission, after personal knowledge of its state; though this is only what those best acquainted with the mission would expect. We are ready to wish, at times, that all our Christian friends could look into the stations of our missionary brethren in different parts of the world, and spend a season of communion with them and their churches. We are sure such visits would greatly increase their interest in the cause of missions, and their thankfulness to God for the tokens of his favour which this cause has received.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 23, 1861.

Dear Friend—It gives me pleasure to be made the channel through which the Presbytery of Omaha has thought proper to communicate their informal action, as to the mission at Blackbird Hills, and kindred subjects. The paper below was adopted after the adjournment of Presbytery, by deliberation and personal signature. I am happy to say, the meeting of Presbytery at the mission was highly gratifying to all the members, and, in variety of interest, exceeded anything I have seen for twenty years past. Mr. Irish took great pains to make our visit agreeable. On Sabbath we had preaching and the communion in the saw-mill. The chapel of the mission would have been quite too small. The saw-mill was seated from end to end with newly-sawn boards; a table and desk at the south end furnished a desk for the preacher. To the right of the desk and door were placed the communicants, at the proper time, that the separation might be manifest. In front of the desk sat the scholars of the mission, with their teachers, till the latter were called out to take their places among communicants. Behind the children sat the Indian men. They have a company in uniform called a guard. They were on hand. Joe Lafresche and one or two other chiefs, took their seats among the whites, and near the desk. Both Indians and whites came dropping in through the service—we began with a fair congregation, and closed with a large one. A team load came up from Decatur. On Monday the Presbytery closed sessions about noon, and went over to the agency to take dinner with the Omaha chiefs, and some chiefs of the Puncas who were visiting the Omahas. This passed off finely, together with speeches from members of Presbytery to the chiefs, and responses. I am not sure but the Indians made the best speeches. In the evening we all went down to the magic lantern exhibition at the Indian village. This also passed off to general satisfaction. I have been thus full in detail because I was much interested, and hope it may gratify you. . . .

"At a meeting of the members of Omaha Presbytery, held in the Omaha Reservation, on the 16th of September, 1861, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted.

"1. We have had great pleasure in seeing the comfort and order of the Omaha children, about fifty of whom are under the care of the mission established in that tribe.

"2. The evidences of improvement of the children at the Omaha mission, in literature and religious knowledge, are such as to entitle this mission to the full confidence of the government, and of the Christian public.

"3. The present awakening attention of the Omahas to religious instruction and industrial habits, is encouraging, and full of hope for the future.

"4. The policy of O. H. Irish, Esq., the present agent among the Omahas, in giving encouragement to the mission, is, in our judgment, the best course to secure the improvement among the Indians which the government desires to advance.

"5. We have heard with pleasure from some of the chiefs of the Punca tribe, now visiting the Omahas, and dining with them at the Omaha agency this day, that they desire the establishment of a mission-school like to that now among the Omahas; and we recommend the establishment of such a school to the favourable consideration of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian church, and also of the General Government.

"6. Resolved, That the Rev William McCandlish be appointed to transcribe this paper, and forward the same to the Board of Foreign Missions.

"William Hamilton, William McCandlish, Henry M. Giltner, C. H. Hekmann, H. H. Dobbins, C. F. E. Stauss, Simeon Peck, John Wallace, Ministers. J. Garside, Ruling Elder."

OBITUARY.

THE LIFE AND DEATH OF JOSEPH DUKES, A LICENTIATE PREACHER OF THE CHOCTAW NATION; BY THE REV. JOHN EDWARDS.

Somewhat more than fifty years ago, Joseph Dukes was born in the Choctaw Nation, now the state of Mississippi. His parents were both of mixed white and Choctaw blood. But his mother did not wish the half-breeds to increase in the Nation, and therefore laid her little babe out in a cold wintry storm to die. There may have been other reasons for this. She probably did not want the trouble of taking care of him through infancy and childhood. Thus unfeeling is the heathen heart. Another reason for thus exposing infants, was the prevalent notion, that if the child should live through such an exposure, it was a proof of hardiness, and an omen that he would grow up to be a great man, a mighty warrior or hunter.

Another Choctaw woman, the wife of a white man, heard that the babe had been thus put out to die, went to him, took him up, carried him to his mother, and induced her to love him and take care of him. While he was still at an early age his parents died, and he was left a poor and destitute orphan. At ten years old he was placed at Mayhew, one of the large mission schools which had just been established for the education of Choctaw boys and girls. He had no knowledge of the English language, and therefore, at the very outset of his studies, had a new and difficult language to learn, without grammar, or dictionary, or a teacher who could explain it to him in his own tongue. Notwithstanding these difficulties, he made good progress in knowledge. He was a good boy, and gained the favour of his teachers. After he had been there a few years his knowledge of English became such that he was much employed by the missionaries to interpret conversation, and afterwards to intepret for them while preaching.

While still a youth the Spirit of God renewed his heart, and enlightened his mind, so that he saw his need of salvation, and recognised and embraced Jesus as his Saviour; and he devoted himself to doing good and serving his new Master. A report of the Committee on Public Lands to the United States House of Representatives, communicated January 30, 1832, says of him: "He has, for the last three years, devoted his time and attention to the improvement of the condition of his red brethren, by acting in the capacity of an interpreter and translator of the Choctaw language for the mission, which has prevented him from accumulating any property for the support of his family."

After the treaty was made, by which the Choctaw country was sold to the United States, he remained several years in Mississippi with Mr. Byington, assisting him very largely in preparing a grammar and lexicon of the Choctaw language. On his removal to the new country, west of Arkansas, he continued his labours as interpreter as often as they were needed, without charge. He was soon chosen and ordained an elder of one of the churches. About fifteen years ago he was employed by Mr. Wright as assistant translator. In this capacity he made the first draft of most of the Epistles and Revelation, and of the Old Testament as far as the Psalms, and helped in the revision and correction of all that has been published.

He was also taken under care of Presbytery as candidate for the ministry, and in 1852 or 1853 was licensed to preach. He was never ordained, because he shrank from the great responsibilities of the sacred office. He was an excellent preacher in the Choctaw language, and most highly esteemed by the missionaries.

He performed much public service as captain or head-man, as translator of the Choctaw laws, as judge of the supreme court for several years, repeatedly as a member of the General Council, and for five years before his death as a trustee of public schools. He was uniformly faithful in every public trust, and possessed more than almost any other man the full confidence of the large mass of the people.

But God has called him from such service here below to a higher service above. He was taken sick July 1st, and died August 12th, 1861. When first taken sick, he said that he did not expect to get well. His daughter writes: "The last morning of his life, after breakfast, he called us all in, and told us to sit down, that he wished to pray with us once more, and commend us all to the Lord. Then he prayed for the family, then the church, the elders, the missionaries, and the Nation; also his neighbours, and last of all he asked God to forgive his sins, and whenever it pleased the Lord to call him he was ready to go; that he had finished his work in the morning. In the afternoon, about three o'clock, he called mother up to his bedside and kissed her twice, and told her it was hard for him to part with his dear family, but it seemed best for him to go. Then he told mother to call us all in again, that he was ready to bid us all farewell for the last time. We went in, and he called each one by our names, and kissed us all." "Then he said, 'Children, farewell to you all. You may go out of the room, and let me rest awhile before I go.'" When the end came, "without one struggle, he turned over on his back, folded his hands on his breast, and breathed his last."

Mr. Byington writes: "He had his reason to the last, and appeared well. His language and his prayers were very interesting to his pious friends. We hope he has gone to our Saviour."

The righteous is taken away from evil.

MISCELLANY.

LONDON MISSION AT AMOY, CHINA.

Our readers will be gratified to learn from the following half-yearly communication of our missionaries labouring in this city, that the work of God among the native population continues to advance in strength and prosperity. In the various chapels in which they statedly proclaim the word of life, they meet with numerous and attentive congregations, and every successive report tells us that accessions have been made to the native church, which now consists of nearly two hundred and fifty members. It will be seen, that while some of the female converts have been subjected to severe persecution for Christ's sake, they have borne the trial with equal firmness and meekness, and are willing to suffer the loss of all things, rather than deny the Lord that bought them. The course of instruction given to some of the more promising of the native converts, with a view to qualify them for the work of Evangelists to their countrymen, is diligently prosecuted. and we may hope, ere long, that they will become efficient fellow-labourers with our European brethren. It is most gratifying to find, that notwithstanding the difficulties encountered in itinerant labours in the surrounding country, from the influence of intestine strife, our brethren find many who are willing to listen to the good news which they proclaim; and it may be hoped, that when the provisions of the treaty with our government are better understood and more efficiently enforced, these and other obstacles may be removed, and a free course opened for making known the truth of the gospel to the perishing myriads of that province.

Increase of the church.

"Amoy, July 4th, 1861.

"Dear Brother—We are thankful in having again to tell of the Divine goodness, in vouchsafing us continued blessings on our labours. The church under our care here continues steadily to increase in numbers. Since we wrote you on the 7th of January last, eleven converts have been added, six of whom are women, and five men.

"We are happy to state that a church has been formed, also, at our out-station of Hai ch'ung; two men and two women having been already baptized there. Several other hopeful inquirers besides these have been for some time under examination and instruction there, as applicants for admission into the church. And here, at Amoy, we have other six women and eight men desirous to avow themselves Christians.

"We may mention that two of our newly received converts at Amoy are young men belonging to the large family of Tan Kang, who, with his wife and their other sons and daughters-in-law, were not long before received into the church. One old woman, just now admitted, has been led to the Saviour by her daughter-in-law, who was baptized some months ago. One young woman, baptized last Lord's day, belongs to the family of our deaconess, Tan bun sai so; and another came with her husband to 'join themselves unto the Lord.' The other woman just received, is the mother of one of our female church members.

"Two of our oldest female church members have lately been removed from us by death. One of them was eighty-two years of age. She resided beyond the north gate of the city; and an immense number of people heard the words of eternal life when assembled at her funeral service.

"The present number of adult church members at Amoy is 239, of whom 155 are men, and 84 are women. These, together with the four church members at our out-station at Hai ch'ung, make in all 243 adults in connection with your mission here.

Encouraging attendance at the mission chapels.

"Our principal Chinese chapel is very numerously attended by devoutly listening hearers twice every Lord's day; and during the week, almost every day or two more services are held there, our Evangelist, Tan tai, and other Chinese brethren, assisting us in making known the gospel to all who come to hear.

"Our chapel beyond the north gate of the city is always encouragingly attended—many of the women, as well as the men, of the neighbourhood being constant and earnest hearers there.

"Another chapel we have opened in the populous or much-frequented village of Tâh ch'u, being a great thoroughfare about three miles from Amoy, at which several of our church members reside.

"The female meetings for our church members and others are now very numerously attended, and are regarded as peculiarly encouraging.

"Daily we go out and preach in the streets—before the temples, or in various wide parts of the thronged thoroughfares. Wherever we go, far or near, we always see large companies soon gather around us to hear our preaching. Sometimes some of those who come attempt to gainsay and resist the truth. Still, crowds listen eagerly when we proclaim salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ. We trust our unceasing prayers will be heard; and that of the many thousands of those to whom we have often preached Christ, we shall at least meet not a few around his throne in heaven.

Itinerant labours in the country.

"During the last half year, insurrectionary movements in this province, or rather the proceedings of local banditti under the name of rebels, have done much to retard missionary work in the country. The district to the west and north-west of Chiang-chau has suffered considerably, and the excitement has extended to Amoy itself. Whatever the ultimate results of the conflict in China may be, here, at all events, the present disorganized state of the country goes far to nullify the advantages the treaty promised to secure to us. Under these circumstances—connected with the fact, that we have far more work than we can overtake within a distance of fifty or sixty miles from Amoy—no missionary here during the past year has attempted any lengthened missionary tour.

"I wrote somewhat confidently, at the end of last year, as to the probability of securing a preaching-station at Kak-bey. But, although the people, to all appearance, are friendly enough, and we have had good opportunities of preaching among them, all efforts to rent a house have hitherto failed. A literary graduate is exerting himself to the utmost against us, and by his influence has induced the people to combine together in a resolution not to let a house for the purpose of preaching a foreign religion. Thus the few who may be favourable to us dare not move against the many who are against us. In addition to this, the district is the scene of an unusually fierce and protracted clan-fight. It is said that even children of opposite clans are carried off and killed.

"A visit to a hien city still farther distant has been attended with much encouragement. We shall see if the way is opened there.

Persecution of female converts.

"The Hai ch'ung station has been already noticed. It is passing throught the usual period of persecution. The two women recently baptized have especially been called upon to suffer much for Christ. They live in a village about four miles distant from Hai ch'ung. Both have been deprived of their yearly portion of grain, which is distributed to all members of the village as the proceeds of the public fields. To some the grain thus distributed is their only means of subsistence. 'If you will not worship our ancestors,' it is said to them, 'how can you expect to share in the property they have left us?' Besides this, both the women are subject to constant annoyance: the one is beaten by her husband, the other cursed by her sons. On the Sabbath morning they leave their own village amid reproaches and revilings, only to meet with the same treatment as they enter the streets of Hai ch'ung. It requires no common amount of Christian fortitude to withstand all this, and to come to the resolution they have done—rather to give up their homes, and leave the village, if it be necessary, than forsake Christ. I may say that another woman is a fellow-sufferer with them. She is old, sick, and now bedridden, but not a single fellow-villager will show her the slightest sympathy. On account of her Christianity she is left to starve. No opportunity has offered, or is likely to offer, for her baptism. But if her name is not enrolled in the church books, surely it is written in the Lamb's book of life.

Progress of native students.

"In the Training Institution, we have seven students, as before. One man, who comes from the city of Ting Chiu, on the borders of the Kiang-si province, has been with us from the beginning. He speaks the Amoy dialect intelligibly, but by no means fluently. It was hoped that soon he might be employed at some advanced station beyond the limits of the Amoy dialect. Ting Chiu, however, is the very centre of the local insurrection above spoken of, and the way seems, in consequence, more closed than ever.

"All the students are employed in preaching, either at Hai ch'ung, at T'âh ch'u, (a station very much established by themselves,) or in itinerating in various parts of the country. The plan adopted is to endeavour to train them by preaching for the work of preaching. Their studies are carried on as before, except that Mr. J. Stronach joins me regularly on the Saturday, when, as usual, sketches of sermons are read by the students in succession, and one or other is called upon to give an extemporaneous exposition of some portion of Scripture. At present we are going through the Epistle to the Romans. The exercises are subject to general criticism.

Mission Hospital.

"Dr. Carnegie, on whose services in attending upon the mission families, and for the benefit of the Chinese, all set a very high value, has furnished us with the following statement: Hospital opened May 1st, 1861. Dispensing, three days a week. Intermediate days for surgical operations. Average attendance on dispensing days, say 55. Accommodation for 15 to 20 in-patients. Worship is conducted daily with the in-patients by a native Christian. On the dispensing days the three missions in Amoy take their turn in addressing the assembled patients, as follows: Monday, American mission; Wednesday, London mission; and Friday, English Presbyterian mission.

"Trusting we enjoy a constant interest in the fervent prayers of our beloved brethren at home, we remain ever faithfully yours."—London Miss. Mag. Oct. 1861.

WOMAN DEGRADED BY HEATHENISM, BUT ELEVATED BY THE GOSPEL.

Among the most distinguished benefits accruing to the heathen world from Christian missions —so distinguished, that we deem it worthy of a separate notice—is their elevating effect upon the moral character and social rank of woman.

Wherever our missionaries have gone, they have found that degradation is the condition of the sex, and insult and suffering its reward. Of the Chinese women, Gutzlaff writes, they are the slaves and concubines of their masters, live and die in ignorance, and every attempt to raise themselves above the rank assigned them, is regarded as impious arrogance. As might be expected, suicide is a refuge to which thousands of these ignorant idolaters fly. And a large proportion of their new-born female children is destroyed. Even in Pekin, the residence of the Emperor, about four thousand are annually murdered; and to ask a man of any distinction whether he has daughters, is a mark of great rudeness The condition of the Hindu women is, if possible, worse. "Anything," says Bishop Heber, "is thought good enough for them; and the roughest words, the poorest garments, the scantiest alms, the most degrading labour, and the hardest blows, are generally their portion." And yet China and India alone, are at this moment holding two hundred millions of immortal beings in this abject condition! If there are those who can account for the entailed slavery of the negro race, only by resolving it into a Divine malediction, where is the curse recorded which can account for the social slavery and wretchedness of one-half of the human race? For be it remembered, that divine Christianity is the only system which denounces the enormity. Mohammedanism adds its authority to that of Hinduism and Budhism, in excluding women, by system, from instruction; and in pronouncing her soulless, and irreclaimably wicked. But if such be the verdict of civilized heathenism, what may we expect to be her doom in uncivilized lands? To be prohibited from certain kinds of food, which are reserved for the men and the gods, and from dwelling under the same roof with their tyrannical masters, are among the lighter parts of their fate. Well might the female barbarian of North America look on the coming of Eliot as that of an angel. Well might the Caffres denominate a missionary "the shield of women." While every other system makes her the butt of their cruel shafts, the effect of the gospel is to provide her with a shield. By exalting marriage, and denouncing licentiousness in all its forms, it provides for her the honourable relation of a wife, and the comforts of a home. By discountenancing polygamy, it dries up unnumbered sources of domestic discord, and challenges for her the undivided affections of her husband. By extinguishing infanticide, and inculcating the parental duties, it multiplies the ties of conjugal endearment, and increases her importance to the welfare of her family. And by developing her mind, and exalting her character, it adds respect to domestic love, and renders her influence useful and lasting. All this Christianity has done. Ten thousand happy Polynesian, African, and negro homes attest it. And every advance of the missionary cause increases their number.—Harris's Great Commission.

PRAYER FOR LABOURERS.

How little, God of love, we feel
For millions wrapt in darkest night!
O fill our hearts with holy zeal,
To send them all thy gospel's light!

And bid us feel for those who bear
The heat and burden of the day,
In ceaseless labour, anxious care,
To rescue souls from Satan's sway.

Thy Holy Spirit shed abroad,
Wherever in thy name they go;
Fulfil the promise of thy word,
And richly bless the seed they sow.

Their call is sounding in our ear,
"Pray for us, brothers—sisters, pray!"
O Father, for their help appear,
And let their strength be as their day!

—English Episcopal Miss. Instructor.

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

In October, 1861.

Synod of Albany.—Pby of Londonderry—Newburyport 1st ch 300. Pby of Troy—Second ch Troy 150, Sab sch Missionary Tract Society 75. Pby of Albany—Schenectady ch 225 75, of which 25 to ed John Hasbrouck 750 75

Synod of Buffalo.—Pby of Genesee River—Warsaw ch 14; 2d ch, Sparta 10 24 00

Synod of New York.—Pby of Hudson—Second ch, Middletown 23 75, mo con 13 52; Centreville ch 12. Pby of Bedford—Bedford ch Sab school 13; Patterson ch 8 84. Pby of Long Island—Huntingdon ch 92 12, mo con 116. Pby of New York—Chelsea ch mo con 18; 42d street ch mo con 13 06; Brick ch mo con 57 58; Madison Avenue ch mo con 18; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch Mission chapel 3 96; First ch mo con 49 10, annual coll in part 1864 37; University Place ch Mission school, No. 118, 15; Pby of New York 2d—Washington Heights ch mo con 5; Canal street ch mo con 11; Sing Sing ch 175. Pby of Nassau—Williamsburgh ch mo con 32 91; Jamaica ch 107 79, of which 30 from Mrs A Denton to con Miss Hannah Denton l m; Astoria ch mo con, Sept. and Oct. 38 47; First ch, Brooklyn, mo con 55 2743 47

Synod of New Jersey.—Pby of Elizabethtown—New Providence ch Sab sch 5; a little girl 1 25. Pby of Passaic—First ch Morristown, add'l 255, Sab sch for a child in Siam 25; Third ch Newark Sab sch 5 70. Pby of New Brunswick—Bound Brook ch mo con 25; Dutch Neck ch, to cons Isaac T Snedeker l m 30; Second ch Cranberry, to con Henry Vandesenter l m 33; First ch Cranberry, 71. Pby of West Jersey—Deerfield ch 44 86; Cedarville ch, F M Society 17. Pby of Newton—Rev George S Mott 25; Marksboro' ch, a Lady 10. Pby of Susquehanna—Wysox ch 5; Towanda ch 22. Pby of Luzerne—Pittston ch 70, Sab sch 9 24. Pby of Burlington—Bass River ch 4 70, of which 2 from Sab school; Tuckerton ch 5 65, of which 3 65 from Sab school. Pby of Monmouth—Jamesbury ch 15 679 40

Synod of Philadelphia.—Pby of Philadelphia—Tenth ch, Phila, mo con 40 68; Brainerd ch, Easton, Sab sch 11 25. Pby of New Castle—Coatesville ch 30. Pby of Donegal—Middle Octorara ch 70. Pby of Huntingdon—Hollidaysburg ch 22 25; Birmingham ch 55 56, and Tyrone ch 18 70, to con Rev W A Hooper and Mrs Eunice C Hooper l m's; Upper Tuscarora ch 10. Pby of Northumberland—Lewisburg ch Sab Sch 10 268 44

Synod of Baltimore.—Pby of Baltimore—Twelfth ch Baltimore 17 20; Central ch Baltimore, Sab sch 16; Frederick ch 30 50; Govane chapel 20. Pby of Carlisle—Bedford ch 72, of which 7 from Sab sch; Landisburg ch, in part, 28 25; Upper ch 5 75; Centre ch 24, of which 10 from George Hench, in part, to con himself l m; Great Conewago ch, Ladies' Missionary Soc 51. Pby of Potomac—New York Avenue ch Washington, D. C. 64 03; Youth's Missionary Society 8 82; Seventh street ch, Washington, D. C. 36 373 55

Synod of Pittsburgh.—Pby of Ohio—Montour's ch 13 92. Pby of Blairsville—Murraysville ch 11 50; Ebensburg ch 16 85; Unity ch 75 cts. Pby of Saltsburgh—Warren ch 18 62; Indiana ch 50 111 64

Synod of Alleghany.—Pby of Alleghany—Union ch 10; Amity ch 11; Harrisville ch 11; Plaingrove ch Fem Miss'y Society 45 62. Pby of Beaver—Unity ch 27 60; West Middlesex ch 16 40. Pby of Erie—Evansburg, Greenfield, and North Manchester chs 7 80 129 42

Synod of Wheeling.—Pby of Steubenville—Two Ridges ch 38; Cross Creek ch 7. Pby of St. Clairsville—Cadiz ch 20; Nottingham ch 27; Grandview ch 19 15 111 15

Synod of Ohio.—Pby of Columbus—Lithopolis ch Sab sch 7 72. Pby of Richland—Orange ch 10 66; Perrysville ch 2. Pby of Coshocton—New Philadelphia ch Sab sch 1 25 21 63

Synod of Sandusky.—Pby of Michigan—First ch, Plymouth 11 83, Sab sch 3 17. Pby of Findlay—Van Wert ch 3 48; Shanesville ch 2 83; Sharon ch 65 cents 21 96

Synod of Cincinnati.—Pby of Chillicothe—Rocky Spring ch 8. Pby of Miami—First ch Dayton 61 91. Pby of Cincinnati—First ch Cincinnati, Sab sch 35; 7th ch Cincinnati, Sab sch 10 78; 5th ch Cincinnati 12 75; Springfield ch 11 76; Hopewell ch 12 40. Pby of Oxford—Venice ch 21. Pby of Sidney—Piqua ch 10 183 60

Synod of Indiana.—Pby of Whitewater—Greensburg ch 28 13

Synod of Northern Indiana.—Pby of Crawfordsville—Crawfordsville ch 16; Greencastle ch 7 05 23 05

Synod of Illinois.—One-half Synodical collection 5 58. Pby of Sangamon—North Sangamon ch 15; Petersburg ch Little Girls' Missionary Society 23 65: First ch Springfield 40. Pby of Peoria—Peoria First ch 122 40; Peoria Second ch 76 05; Princeville ch 14 38. Pby of Hillsboro'—St. John's ch, German 2; Zion ch, German, Ladies' Sewing Society 10 309 06

Synod of Chicago.—Pby of Rock River—Galena South ch Sab school 45. Pby of Chicago—Oswego ch 7 52 00

Synod of Wisconsin.—Pby of Dane—Richland Centre ch 3 00

Synod of St. Paul.— Pby of Owatonna—Lake City ch 10 00

Synod of Iowa.—Pby of Cedar—Muscatine ch 17; Davenport ch 30 52 47 52

Synod of Southern Iowa.—Pby of Fairfield—Washington ch 7 00

Synod of Kentucky.—Pby of West Lexington—Second ch Lexington 181 29

Total received from churches, $6,080 06

Legacies.—Bequest of Miss Mary H McKean, dec'd, to con Mrs Nancy Murdock l m 30; Bequest, in part, of Mrs Catharine Hait, dec'd, of Bedford, N. Y., per Rev P B Heroy 926; Bequest of Mrs Sarah Carr, dec'd, Waynesburg, Ohio, 50; Administrators of the estate of Isaac S Tozer, dec'd, Newburyport, Mass., 100 1106 00

Miscellaneous.—Mr Arthur Gilman, N. Y., 25; Rev David X Junkin, D D, 2 75; William V Reid, Squan Village, N. J., for Corisco 3 50; a Funeral fee 2 50; Walter Carter, N. Y., 25; A. Chapman, Alquina, Ind. 5; A Tythe offering 25; a Tenth 50 cents; a Country Boy 25 cents; a Friend 1000; J R A, 1; Mrs Ann Piper, Paris, Ill., 5; J K W 10; Rev Thomas Elcock and family 5, of which 2 from children; Little Belle 20 cts; a Friend, to send out new missionaries 2500; W., Vermont 2; from a Friend, half proceeds of a gold ring sold 1 50 3614 20

Total Receipts in October, 1861, $10,800 26

WM. RANKIN, Jr., Treasurer.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Letters relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to Walter Lowrie, Esq., or Rev. John C. Lowrie, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

Letters relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to William Rankin, Jr., Esq., Treasurer—same address.

The Foreign Missionary—Two editions of this publication are printed. The Pamphlet Edition contains 32 pages, and is published monthly, at 50 cents a year for each copy. It is sent free, when desired, to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to the ministers of our churches.

The Newspaper Edition contains a selected portion of the contents of the pamphlet edition. A copy is sent free of charge, except for postage, to the children of each family in every Sunday School making regular contributions to the Treasury of the Board.

Address for either edition, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

Payments of Moneys for the Board may also be made at—

Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D. D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 910 Arch street;
Pittsburg, Pa., Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky., Andrew Davidson;
Memphis, Tenn., J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Mo., David Keith;
Natchez, Miss., Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Va., Henry C. Watkins;
Columbia, S C., H. C. Bronson;
Augusta, Geo., James W. Davies.

Boxes of Clothing, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board, and should be preceded, or accompanied by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

Overland Mail.—Letters for the Overland Mail are forwarded from the Mission House by the steamers nearest the first and fifteenth of each month. Postage: from New York, to Siam, China, Japan, and Brazil, forty five cents for each half ounce weight; but if sent by the French mail, thirty cents for each quarter ounce weight; to Liberia and Corisco, thirty-three cents for each half ounce weight; to India, via Southampton, thirty-six cents for each half ounce weight; via Marseilles, forty-two cents for a quarter ounce weight; forty-nine cents for a half ounce weight, sixty-seven for three quarter ounce weight, seventy-four for an ounce weight, a dollar and five cents for an ounce and a half weight. Letters to be forwarded by the "French mail," or to India "via Marseilles," must be so marked. Postage on newspapers, six cents each. The postage on letters and newspapers must be prepaid. The letters forwarded from the Mission House to each Mission are put in an outside envelope, and therefore stamps should not be affixed to them. The postage is assessed according to the weight of each letter, and may be paid by sending post-office stamps to the Mission House.

Form of Bequest.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the Payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,

No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of Colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record and Sabbath-school Visitor, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., Corresponding Secretary, No. 821 Chestnut street.

All communications, reports, remittances of money, and orders for books, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage, and Business Correspondent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. Engles, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to James Dunlap, Esq., Treasurer.

OUR COLPORTAGE FUND.

The Colportage Fund is still heavily in debt. During the last few months collections have come in slowly from the churches, and meanwhile another quarter's salary has fallen due to our colporteurs, and has been paid. This has again brought up the balance against the Fund, which had been somewhat reduced, to over fourteen thousand dollars. Unusual and most interesting demands are now made upon us for colportage labours in the army and navy, to which calls the Board is endeavouring, as far as it safely can, to respond. In this position of affairs we are compelled, reluctantly and with pain, still to continue the process of diminishing the number of our colporteurs, by allowing them to retire from the work as their commissions expire.

Our trust is in God—that he will put it into the hearts of its ministers to present this cause to their people, as the General Assembly and the Synods have urged them to do, and that he will likewise put it into the hearts of his people liberally to respond to such presentations. We need help very greatly—we need it without delay.

WORDS OF ENCOURAGEMENT.

We feel greatly encouraged by the lively interest exhibited in the work which the Board is doing among our soldiers and sailors. Words of approbation come to us in many a private letter, while at their recent sessions several of our Synods passed resolutions on the subject. We give two of these resolutions as specimens.

The Synod of New York, at its October meeting in the city of Brooklyn, adopted the following:

Resolved, That the Synod has noticed with great pleasure the efforts which the Board of Publication of the General Assembly has instituted for the purpose of supplying the soldiers of our army, and the sailors of our navy, with an evangelical literature during the present war in which our country is engaged; and the Synod would hereby call the attention of the members of our churches to the earnest appeals of the Board for funds to carry out this excellent design, and to endeavour to meet those appeals with a becoming liberality.

The Synod of Ohio, at its late meeting in Columbus, passed the following unanimously:

Resolved, That we deem it expedient that an extra effort be made in all our churches in behalf of the Colportage Fund of the Board of Publication, on account of the extra demand on that department in their endeavours to supply, gratis, religious reading, through their colporteurs, to the many thousands of soldiers and sailors now in our army and navy.

There is a great work to be done in this direction, and there are innumerable reasons for quick and earnest endeavours to do it. The Board is doing much, and would gladly do far more, were it not prevented by the lack of means. Contributions come in slowly. Will not Christian friends, and especially pastors and churches, try without delay to help us to carry forward this truly patriotic as well as Christian work?

THE HATTERAS PRISONERS.

Among the expressions of approbation used towards his people by the King in glory, as he gathers them to his right hand in the great day of judgment, will be this: "I was in prison, and ye came unto me." While the great contest which convulses our beloved country is going forward, God's people should not forget to be kind to the prisoner.

Some time since, the Board of Publication voted a donation of books and tracts to the prisoners, taken at Hatteras, North Carolina, and then confined in the forts in New York harbour. The package was forwarded, and soon after the following acknowledgment was received. The prisoner who wrote it is a captain in the Confederate army, and is understood to be an elder in a Presbyterian church in North Carolina.

Rev. W. E. Schenck, D. D.,
Cor. Sec. Presby'n B'd of Publication.

Rev'd Sir—I had the pleasure yesterday to receive, through you, for the prisoners recently taken at Hatteras, a bundle of valuable and well-assorted books and tracts of the Presbyterian Board of Publication. I have not language to express to your Board, for the officers and men here, our heartfelt thanks for this well-conceived act of kindness and attention. We need much in our condition, but nothing more than food for the mind and the soul. This you have furnished.

I have appointed a member of my company in Castle Williams—Thomas J. Latham, Jr.,—to distribute the tracts among his fellow-prisoners, and to act as librarian for the larger works.

Please convey to the Board of Publication and accept for yourself our sincerest acknowledgments.

Very respectfully yours,
T. Sparrow.

The Hatteras prisoners have been recently transferred to a fort in Boston harbour. We are glad to know that their books have gone with them. Will not the prayers of our readers, that God will attend their reading with the power of the Holy Spirit, go with them likewise?

COLPORTAGE IN THE CAMP.

A colporteur of the Board is labouring in the camps in the central part of Pennsylvania. That our readers may see how important and interesting a field is there presented for such efforts to impart divine truth, we give the following extracts from his recent letters.

"Camp Curtin, near Harrisburg, Pa.

"I have just concluded a most interesting day's work. I filled my bag, and proceeded, in the first place, to the hospital, where there were some thirty patients, suffering from various diseases. The doctor in charge received me very kindly, and took me around the room, introducing me to the patients, to each of whom I gave a tract, and to many a copy of 'The Soldier's Pocket Book.' This latter gift was received with peculiar thankfulness, and a smile lit up every face as I told them my books were all gifts, and not to be paid for. I remained here about an hour and a half, and conversed with the patients. Three professed to be Christians, several expressed deep anxiety about their souls, and all were willing to be spoken to. Three are in a critical condition with typhoid fever, and are hardly expected to recover. These were unable to speak, but could understand me. The hospital is a wooden shed, tolerably comfortable, and well heated with stoves.

"In the course of the day I was able to go over the greater part of the Fifty-second regiment, and my anticipations were fully realized. The men were most eager to get the tracts, and especially 'The Soldier's Pocket Book.' They jostled and pushed one another at times, and so crowded upon me that I had to give over until order could be restored. This eagerness, however, was not so much because the reading matter was religious, as because their appetite for literature was sharpened by long abstinence. They will read anything they can get hold of.

"Late in the afternoon, I walked around the suburbs of the camp, my pockets filled with tracts, and spoke to about sixty-five men who were doing guard duty. To every one of these I put the question, 'Are you a Christian?' Thirty-one replied in substance, 'By the grace of God, I hope I am.' Three expressed great anxiety to be so. Three others had been professors, but had fallen off, and were anxious to return. The others were all civil. The commanding officer, and indeed every functionary, has treated me with perfect politeness, and endorsed my mission.

"Everything considered, I have great cause to thank God and take courage. We have but to deliver the message clearly and distinctly. It is God's work to make it effectual. Camp Curtin to-day contained over 5600 men, divided into nine regiments, four of which are nearly full, and will be removed south by the end of the week.

"The demand for the 'Soldier's Pocket Book' has become very great. I am well known at the camp now, and the moment I approach the entrance, I am surrounded by a crowd begging for "little books." Yesterday I was able to serve the whole of the Fifty-third regiment, and the remainder of the Fifty-second. I expect by to-morrow night to be over the entire camp. Next Monday I expect to visit some other camps. I have learned that there are now only about one hundred men at Camp Carlisle, and an officer from there, who is now here, has gladly consented to carry thither a supply of tracts and distribute them himself.

"I found yesterday afternoon, as I ought to have expected, some discouragement. In one tent I heard a number of men engaged in holding a mock prayer-meeting, in imitation of a Methodist company who hold regular meetings. One man was praying, as I supposed, very intently; but he stopped suddenly, and said to another, with a horrid oath, 'Why don't you say, Amen?' This was more than I could bear, and I turned away and wept, and wondered at Jehovah's forbearance.

"There is a great amount of talent and intelligence in this camp.

"I feel quite fatigued this morning, and hardly able to go out, but I must brace up. I have just been to visit the Executive Department, and have ascertained that there are about two thousand soldiers at Huntingdon, and the number is continually increasing. There are also nearly four thousand in three other camps in this region. Send me, therefore, a large supply of tracts, and as many as possible of the 'Soldier's Pocket

Book.' It is the most popular little thing to be found.

"I have distributed more to-day than on any previous day. I go systematically to work by regiments and companies. All went pleasantly to-day. But I am greatly jaded, and my feet very sore. I have now many friends in camp, and am beginning to feel quite at home. I feel greatly my need of Divine support."

TRACTS FOR THE ARMY AND NAVY.

The following is from our colporteur in the camps and ships of Philadelphia and vicinity.

"During the month which has ended on the 14th of October, your colporteur has distributed amongst the volunteer soldiers and sailors in the city and vicinity of Philadelphia, one hundred and seventeen thousand pages of tracts, and five volumes. Eight thousand one hundred soldiers have been supplied, and four hundred sailors. The navy-yard has been several times visited, but as the vessels (three in number) which came into port were out of commission, and their crews about to be paid off and dismissed, no donations were made to any of them. The only vessel in which a supply for future use was left, was the Princeton, or what is called "the receiving ship." Tracts were put in the hands of such fragments of the crews of the other vessels as were on hand at the time of my visits, but the officers refused to receive any for stock on the grounds already stated.

The tracts principally used were of the "Soldier's Series," with the addition of about one fourth of a miscellaneous character, selected from the catalogue. These little gifts were received with the utmost cordiality, and I have every reason to believe that they were generally appreciated, and hope that, with the blessing of God, they will be useful.

It affords me peculiar gratification to testify that there is a manifest improvement in the moral, social, and physical character of the more recently enlisted regiments, as compared with those of several months ago. It seems ungenerous to institute comparisons, but the circumstance is so gratifying, and so well attested, that I cannot help recording it. The majority of the rank and file of the regiments embraced in this report are men of moral worth, culture, and general respectability, with a large proportion of church-membership. The latter fact is the subject of boast and gratulation on the part of commanding and staff officers. They tell you immediately that they have quite a number of church-members in each of their companies, and have them distributed so as to act as the "little leaven" upon the entire regiment.

Some of the colonels have told me that they intend having a regimental library of moral and religious books for the use of their men, raised by subscription amongst the officers of the regiment, and a librarian whose sole business it shall be to take care of it, and lend it out on the same principle as parochial and Sunday-school libraries.

Many interesting incidents occurred in connection with my visits to the various camps and armories. I have met with a few cases of rudeness, but am happy to say, that in most of them, I was able to disarm the opposers of much of their hostility, and procure a hearing for the truth. One man, to whom I had just given a copy of the tract "Come to Jesus," on perceiving its character, flung it violently back to me.

I had many conversations with men who do not outwardly oppose the truth, but have not as yet received it, and found amongst all a general willingness to be spoken to on the subject of religion. I have been much cheered and encouraged by the experience of the past month. May the Lord be pleased to add his blessing to the efforts that have been thus put forth for the furtherance of his kingdom in this highly interesting field."

ONE TRACT SAVED FIFTEEN HUNDRED SOULS!

A young mountaineer chief in Burmah, when two hundred and fifty miles from his own home, was taught to read by a missionary's wife. The little tract she used in teaching him caused the scales of heathenism to fall from his eyes, and showed him the way to Jesus. He went back to his mountain-home a converted man. A little tract saved him!

When he reached home he told the story of Jesus, which he had learned from the tract, to his people. Crowds flocked to hear him talk. The Holy Ghost was with him, and in one year fifteen hundred souls were hopefully saved—saved as the result of the influence of one little tract.

Scatter tracts, therefore, O my brother! Scatter tracts! Who can tell but your hand may give a tract that shall be the means of saving a thousand souls!—The Good News.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE SOLDIER'S POCKET BOOK.

This is an admirable little book, containing 64 pages of 32mo. size, just published by the Board for the benefit of the soldier. Its contents are—1. Good Advice to soldiers on various topics. 2. Prayers suited to the various circumstances of a soldier's life. 3. Selected Scriptures and Psalms. 4. Twenty-five Hymns suitable for the soldier's use. 5. Hints to soldiers on sundry matters. Some thousands of these books have already been distributed in the camps and elsewhere, although it was issued only a few weeks ago. It is just the right book for every soldier to carry in his pocket, that he may draw it forth and read or sing whenever an opportunity occurs. Our colporteurs and the army chaplains say it is sought for with avidity by soldiers who have seen it in the hands of others. Are there not somewhere Christian friends who will send us the means to furnish gratuitously thousands of them to our various regiments? It is sold at $5 per hundred.

A CARD.

The Board have published a card on pasteboard, intended chiefly for the use of sick or wounded soldiers in hospitals. It contains on one side a choice selection of inviting and encouraging texts of Scripture. On the other side is "The Sinner's Resolve," in that sweet hymn, "Just as I am," &c. The utility of such a card will be seen in the following incident, which we find in an exchange paper, and is an extract from an account given by an army colporteur of a visit made by him to an hospital.

"I went into a ward, where I was told a volunteer from one of the Maine regiments was lying dangerously ill from a gunshot wound in the thigh. There he lay, poor fellow, pale, emaciated, fast sinking! It needed but one look to see that he could not long survive. I inquired his name. 'William J.,' he could hardly reply. I had several little books in my hand; I placed them by his pillow. He reached out his feeble hand, and looking them over, picked out one with the title, 'Welcome to Jesus,' printed in gold on a purple cover, whispering to me, 'Place that on the window-sill before me, upright, so that I can see those words without turning my head.' I did so. The surgeon came to dress his wounds; he held out his hand to thank me, and I left him. That night he died. The last comforting message he had was, as I have reason to believe, the glorious one, 'Welcome to Jesus.' But what a message that was!"

The price of these cards will be 50 cents per hundred.

THE PRESBYTERIAN FAMILY ALMANAC FOR 1862.

The Almanac is now published and ready for distribution. It contains a large amount of information in reference to the Presbyterian Church, its Boards, Theological Seminaries, &c. In addition to this, there is a large amount of excellent religious reading, illustrated by handsome engravings. We hope that pastors will feel interested in securing its circulation in their respective neighbourhoods. Viewed simply as a religious tract, it is worth its price, and adapted to do good wherever it goes. Price 6 cents, or $4 per hundred.

DONATIONS RECEIVED FOR THE COLPORTAGE FUND OF THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION, DURING THE MONTH OF OCTOBER 1861.

Pby of Londonderry—Newburyport 1st ch	10 00
Pby of Albany—Charlton ch	10 00
Pby of Bedford—Bedford ch, per William Rankin, Jr.	15 50
Pby of New York—New York 1st ch	100 00
Pby of Nassau—Brooklyn 1st ch, "A Friend"	500 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Lawrence ch	42 50
Pby of Luzerne—Nanticoke ch	3 00
Pby of Monmouth—Jamesburg ch in part, to con Mrs Wells hon mem	6 00
Pby of Carlisle—Landisburg ch 2 25: Centre ch 2; Upper ch 2	6 25
Pby of Potomac—Washington Seventh street ch	11 25
Pby of Redstone—Morgantown ch	10 00
Pby of Saltsburg—Concord ch 10 07; Glade Run ch 22 28	32 35
Pby of Ohio—Temperance ch 10; Miller's Run ch 16 25; Chartiers ch 8 25	34 50
Pby of Beaver—Neshanock ch	11 00
Pby of Allegheny City—Bridgewater ch 13 38; Sharpsburg ch 16 87; Rochester German ch 61 cents	30 86
Pby of Steubenville—Oak Ridge ch	6 70
Pby of New Lisbon—East Liverpool ch	6 00
Pby of St. Clairsville—Mount Pleasant ch	10 00
Pby of Columbus—Westminster ch 12 75; Worthington ch 3	15 75
Pby of Zanesville—Zanesville 1st ch 10; Norwich ch 5 19; McConnellsville ch 4 50; Buffalo ch 6; Cambridge ch 10	35 69
Pby of Richland—Ashland ch 17 32; Waterford ch 3; Ontario ch 4; Shelby ch 4; Savannah ch 5	33 32
Pby of Wooster—Jackson ch 9 86; Dalton ch 30	39 86
Pby of Coshocton—Berlin ch 7 04; Apple Creek ch 13; Unity ch 12 57; Coshocton ch 6	38 61
Pby of Cincinnati—Walnut Hill ch 9 33; Springfield ch 9 57 per J D Thorpe	18 90
Pby of Oxford—Oxford Third ch per J D Thorpe	10 00
Pby of Findley—Lima ch per J D Thorpe	4 00
Pby of White Water—Greensburg ch per J D Thorpe	12 52
Pby of Rock River—Galena German ch	2 00
Pby of Milwaukie—Gainesville German ch	4 25
Pby of Cedar—Muscatine ch 2; Davenport ch 7 32	9 32
Pby of St. Louis—Bethel ch, Ladies' Sewing Soc 10; Providence ch St. Louis 3	13 00
MISCELLANEOUS.
Legacy of D G Logan, Westmoreland Co., Pa. 25, less tax 1 25=23 75; Joseph Albree, Pittsburg 5; Sab sch Stanley Corners, per Miss Canning 2 12	30 87
	1114 00
Donations received for the DISTRIBUTION FUND OF THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION during the month of October 1861.
Pby of Allegheny City—Central ch, from "J N D"	5 00
	1119 00
AMOUNT OF SALES during the month of OCTOBER	4170 31
Total,	$5,289 31

JAMES DUNLAP, Treasurer.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. H. I. Cox.
Treasurer—Archibald Gamble, Esq.
No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Missouri.

Communications on the subject of Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Donations should be sent to Archibald Gamble, Esq., St. Louis, Mo.; or, if more convenient, to J. D. Thorpe, Esq., Cincinnati, Ohio; A. Davidson, Esq., Louisville, Ky.; S. D. Powel, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Domestic Missions, No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia; T. H. Nevin, Esq., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. J. B. Kirtland, Memphis, Tennessee; or to William Rankin, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Foreign Missions, 23 Centre St., New York.

APPROPRIATIONS FROM THE GENERAL FUND.

No appropriation is made without the recommendation of the Presbytery, or the Church Extension Committee of the Presbytery within whose bounds the church applying for aid is located.

No appropriation is paid until the Board receives a certificate from the Trustees of the church aided, stating that their church lot is properly secured, and that the amount appropriated will complete their house of worship and leave the whole property free from debt.

Appropriations not called for within two years of the date thereof, are regarded as withdrawn.

VISITS TO SYNODS.

In the last two months it has been the privilege of the Secretary to visit and address the Presbyteries of Peoria, Schuyler, and Cedar, and the Synods of Southern Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Northern Indiana, Ohio, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Missouri. These Synods contain more than one-third of all our ministers, churches, and communicants in the non-seceded States. Very few of them were fully attended, chiefly, we judge, from the want of means to defray the travelling expenses of many who would otherwise have been present.

In a temporal point of view, most of our churches in these Synods appear to be greatly crippled. They share the fortunes of the communities in which they are located, most of whom, in the States west of Indiana, are greatly embarrassed by the low price and scanty market for their produce. In many places, we found corn scarcely saleable, even at from six to eight cents, and wheat at from forty to fifty cents a bushel. The former article was, in some places, the cheapest fuel the people could use. We were often saddened by witnessing the pecuniary straits to which our ministers have been brought by the state of the country. Especially have our national troubles fallen with terrible weight upon the nearly three hundred missionaries of our Domestic Board living in the regions visited. If our people could but see, as we have seen, the sufferings caused by the empty treasury of that Board, and the consequent reduction of twenty-five per cent. in its appropriations, and delay in the payment of the pittance promised, they would speedily relieve it from the sad necessity under which it labours. Could they but see the heroic efforts of poor missionaries and struggling congregations to secure humble sanctuaries, or pay for those already built, they would quickly furnish the two or three hundred dollars in most cases needed to crown these self-denying labours with success.

In a spiritual point of view, the reports were not generally encouraging. Piety was represented as declining, or at a low ebb. Intemperance, Sabbath desecration, and vice, were spoken of as on the increase. The chief and gratifying exception reported was, that in most instances, congregations were undiminished and attentive.

Amid all the pressure and discouragements incident to the times, it was cheering to observe the general disposition to sustain the benevolent enterprises of the church. Ground to the earth, as many of our people are, by the pecuniary reverses of the last four years, they yet manifest a commendable willingness to cast their mites into the Lord's treasury. We think there is some reason to hope that their losses and deep poverty may abound unto the riches of their liberality. That terrible spirit of speculation, which infected even the best, has been so sorely and so repeatedly rebuked, that the voice of reason and the demands of Christian stewardship are beginning to be heard. Such lessons were greatly needed. Of the one thousand and thirty-three churches in the bounds of these Synods and Presbyteries, the Minutes of the General Assembly for 1861 show that three hundred and fifty-seven, or more than one-third, did not give a single cent last year to any one of the six schemes of the Assembly. The same authority shows that only one-hundred and seven, or about one-tenth, contributed to all the five Boards in the course of the year. Making all due allowances for imperfect reports, a peculiarly shifting ministry, and numerous vacancies, these facts reveal a shameful deficiency and neglect to be remedied.

WHY BUILD NOW?

Comparatively few of our feeble churches are undertaking the erection of houses of worship. Some, however, find themselves forced to undertake the work, even in these troublous times. A glimpse of the pressure that drives them to arise and build, may be obtained from the enclosed statement of a brother in Schuyler Presbytery, Illinois. Speaking of the Presbyterial recommendation given last October, he says:

"We then designed to commence our house early in the spring; but owing to the hard times, and the derangement of pecuniary matters in this State, we were not able to build at that time, and by common consent considered the matter laid aside for this year. We have been, until lately, renting a hall for our meeting; but as it belongs to a Universalist, and as that society wished to occupy the house on the day we were using it, he gave it to them in preference. We were thus thrown out of a place of preaching, as no other could be had. Thus we were driven to the necessity of building a house of worship for ourselves. Our house is a neat, substantial frame building, with a good foundation, twenty-two by thirty-six feet. We commenced the work two weeks since, last Monday, and now have it enclosed, floor laid, and part of the lathing done. Though our house is not large, yet it was quite an undertaking for a few individuals, almost all of whom are farmers, depending mainly upon their corn crops of last year for means, and which they are obliged now to sell at eight or nine cents a bushel, if they sell at all. . . . Thus the Lord has turned to our good what was meant for our hurt in turning us out of a house at this time. We feel constrained to ask aid of the Board, but think we can complete our house, and have it free of debt, if you can give us $150. It seems to me there was no alternative but to build, or abandon the idea of having preaching here at all, which would virtually have been to abandon the interest of Presbyterianism in this place."

FORM OF A BEQUEST TO THE BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

I bequeath to my executors the sum of ——— dollars, in trust, to pay over the same in ——— after my decease, to the person who, when the same shall be payable, shall act as Treasurer of the Board of Church Extension of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, located in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, to be applied to the uses and purposes of said Committee, and under its directions, and the receipt of the said Treasurer shall be a full and legal acquittance of my said executors for the same.

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY THE BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION, DURING THE MONTH OF OCTOBER, 1861.

RECEIPTS AT ST. LOUIS.

Pby of Erie—Sturgeonville ch	6 00
Pby of Steubenville—Steubenville 2d ch 16 08; Corinth ch 5 87	21 95
Pby of Chicago—Oswego ch	3 00
Pby of Lake Superior—Ontonagon ch	2 00
Pby of Cedar—Newton ch	2 00
Pby of St. Louis—Bethel German ch	15 00
From churches,	$49 95

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rev Sayres Gazlay, Williamsburg, Ohio, 3; Sab sch of Lewistown ch, Illinois 50 50	53 50
At St. Louis,	$103 45

RECEIPTS AT NEW YORK AND PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Albany—Ballston Spa ch	31 03
Pby of Genesee River—Warsaw ch 16, less 1 for Record	15 00
Pby of Bedford—South Salem ch (special) add'l	4 50
Pby of New Brunswick—New Brunswick 2d ch and Sab sch	5 62
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Penn ch 7 38; Cohocksink ch 15	22 38
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Doylestown ch	10 90
Pby of New Castle—Upper Octorara ch	30 20
Pby of Baltimore—Govane chapel	2 50
Pby of Carlisle—Landisburg ch in part 9 25; Centre ch 1; Upper ch 2	12 25
Pby of Zanesville—Beulah ch	1 00
Pby of Maumee—Union ch 4; Toledo 1st ch 4	8 00
At New York and Philadelphia,	$143 38

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURG.

Pby of Saltsburg—Indiana ch 20; Boiling Spring ch 7 50	27 50
Pby of Maumee—West Bethesda ch	5 00
Pby of Coshocton—Apple Creek ch	16 00
Pby of Alleghany—Centre ch 12; Clintonville ch 2 60	14 60
Pby of Alleghany City—Rochester German ch 61 cents; Manchester German ch 56 cents; Highlands ch 4 00	5 17
Pby of New Lisbon—Bethel ch	3 75
Pby of Blairsville—New Salem ch	6 00
Pby of St. Clairsville—Mt Pleasant ch	5 00
Pby of Redstone—Long Run ch 18 90; Laurel Hill ch 14 10; New Providence ch 11	44 00
Pby of Steubenville—Oak Ridge ch	5 00
Pby of Erie—Fairfield ch 11; Greenfield ch 6 46	17 46
Pby of Zanesville—McConnellsville ch	5 00
Pby of Richland—Ashland ch 10; Savannah ch 8	18 00
Pby of Fort Wayne—Pleasant Ridge ch	3 00
Pby of Beaver—Beaver Falls ch 11 62; West Middlesex ch 3 90; Unity ch 6 41; Clarksville ch 4 50; Pulaski ch 4	30 43
Pby of Wooster—Canal Fulton ch 12; Chippewa ch 9; Marshallville ch 5	26 00
Pby of New Lisbon—Rehoboth ch	5 00
From churches,	$236 91

MISCELLANEOUS.

From Ladies, per Rev A Scott, 1 10; From Shelva Sab sch, Bellville, Mifflin county, Pa. 2	3 10
At Pittsburg,	$240 01

FOR CHILDREN'S CHURCH OF ST. ANNE.

Pby of Alleghany City—Manchester German ch	3 50
Pby of Redstone—George's Creek ch	2 00
Pby of Passaic—Sab sch of Morristown 1st ch	9 00
Pby of Burlington—Sab sch of Allentown ch	5 50
Pby of Baltimore—Sab sch of Frederic ch	1 50
Pby of Michigan—Sab sch of Pontiac ch balance	3 00
Pby of Chicago—Sab sch of Aurora ch 2; Sab sch of Marengo ch 2	4 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Sab sch of Feesburg ch	2 00
Pby of New York—Sab sch of Westminster ch	10 00
Pby of New Albany—Sab sch of Jeffersonville ch	5 00
Pby of Washington—Sab sch of Wheeling 4th ch	5 00
Pby of Milwaukie—Sab sch of Westminster ch Beloit	10 00
Pby of Bloomington—Sab sch of Clinton ch	1 00
Pby of Findley—Sab schs of Pleasantville and Blanchard chs	2 00
Pby of Beaver—Sab sch of Neshanock ch	4 15
For Children's Church,	$67 65
Total Receipts in October,	$554 49

ARCHIBALD GAMBLE, Treasurer.

Ecclesiastical Record.

PASTORAL RELATION DISSOLVED.

The church of Cochecton has refused to accept the resignation of the Rev. William E. Hunt.

The pastoral relation between the Rev. Philip Rosser and the First German church, New Albany, Indiana, has been dissolved.

That of the Rev. David Magill and the First Presbyterian church, Boston, Massachusetts.

CALLS.

The Rev. I. N. Shepherd has accepted an invitation to the pastoral charge of the church at Muncie, Indiana.

Mr. John H. Pomeroy has received a call to the church at Dover, Delaware.

The Rev. W. L. Green, of Madison, Wisconsin, has received a call from the Westminster church, Keokuk, Iowa.

The Rev. D. R. Campbell, pastor of the church of the Two Ridges, has received a call to the church of St. Clairsville, Ohio.

The Rev. J. R. Agnew has declined the call of the church of Petersburg, Pennsylvania.

The Rev. J. C. Thom has declined the call to the church at Columbia, Pennsylvania.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

Mr. Gershom H. Nimmo was ordained and installed pastor of the church of Lewes, by the Presbytery of Lewes, on the 22d of September.

The Rev. Hugh S. Dickson, D. D., was installed pastor of the church at Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, on the 15th of October.

Mr. David M. Williamson was ordained as an evangelist, and Mr. David R. Love was ordained and installed pastor of the church at Rossville, by the Presbytery of Logansport, on the 3d of October.

The Rev. E. D. Bryan was installed pastor of the church at Washington, New Jersey, by the Newton Presbytery, on the 23d of October.

The Rev. D. Kingery was installed pastor of the church at Wabash, Indiana, on the evening of the 9th of October.

Mr. A. H. Forbes was ordained to the ministry, by the Presbytery of Toledo, at its late meeting.

Mr. Alexander Henry was ordained and installed pastor of the Woodford church, by the Presbytery of West Lexington, on the 17th of October.

The Rev. Thomas M. Cunningham was installed pastor of the Alexander church, by the Central Presbytery of Philadelphia, on the 31st of October.

Mr. T. R. Brace was ordained as an evangelist, by the Presbytery of West Jersey, on the 29th of October.

Mr. William McKinney was ordained and installed pastor of the Centre church, by the Presbytery of Allegheny, on the 29th of October.

The Rev. Hubbard Winslow, D. D., was installed pastor of the North-West Presbyterian church, in Fiftieth street, by the Presbytery of New York, on the 30th of October.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESSES CHANGED.

Rev. Joseph Kerr, to Fairfield, Iowa. Mr. Kerr states that his post-office for the last five years has been Fairfield, and not Lockridge nor Keosaqua, as in the Minutes.

Rev. S. L. Gamble from Dry Run, Pennsylvania to New Scotland, New York.

Rev. Isaac N. Shepherd from Marion, Ohio, to Muncie, Indiana.

Rev. D. T. Carnahan from Baltimore, Maryland, to Fayetteville, Pennsylvania.

Rev. P. A. McMartin from Hoffman's Ferry to Schenectady, New York.

Rev. W. A. Scott, D. D., from San Francisco, California, to care of Rothschilds, bankers, London.

Rev. J. P. Fisher from Johnstown to Batavia, N. Y.

Rev. Joel Stoneroad from Woodvale to Dunbar, Pa.

Rev. James C. Brown from St. Louis, Missouri, to South Bend, Indiana.

Rev. Ph. Camp from Myersburg to Canton, Pa.

Rev. H. K. Hennigh from Newcastle, Indiana, to Punxutawney, Pennsylvania.

Rev. Joseph Waugh from Wellsburg, Virginia, to Washington, Pennsylvania.

Rev. George K. Marriner from Warrenham, Pennsylvania, to Belvidere, New Jersey.

Rev. Joshua A. Clayton from Clarkston to Romeo, Michigan.

Rev. L. W. Chapman from Fletcher to Piqua, Ohio.

Rev. D. F. McFarland from Havana to Mattoon, Ill.

SUSPENSION.

J. B Finlay, Ph. D., LL.D., has been suspended by the Presbytery of Nassau.

CHANGE OF RELATION.

The Rev. J. S. Emery was received from the Congregational Convention of Milwaukie, by the Presbytery of Chicago, at its late meeting.

Subscribers in arrears will find bills in this number, which it is hoped they will pay before the close of the year.

☞ The Stated Clerks of Presbyteries who have not received blanks for their returns to the next General Assembly, can be supplied with them, by applying to Peter Walker, 821 Chestnut street, who will attend to the duties of Dr. Leyburn, in his absence.

FUND FOR DISABLED MINISTERS, AND THE NEEDY WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

The following amounts have been received since the last report, viz.

From Red Clay Creek church, New Castle Pby,	22	00
" Fagg's Manor church, New Castle Pby,	48	00
" West Nottingham church, add'l, New Castle Presbytery,	1	50
" Slate Ridge church, Donegal Presbytery,	9	00
" Sinking Creek church, Miami Presbytery,	8	50
" Muscatine church, Cedar Presbytery,	12	00
" Davenport church, Cedar Presbytery,	7	31
" Westfield church, Elizabethtown Pby,	25	31
" Mahoning North church, Northumberland Presbytery,	15	00
" Berwick and Briar Creek chs, Northumberland Presbytery,	6	00
" Moyamensing church, Philadelphia Pby,	5	00
" Penn ch, add'l, Philadelphia Central Pby,		50
" North church, Milwaukie Presbytery,	28	00
" Stroudsburg church, Newton Presbytery,	6	10
" Madison 1st church, Madison Presbytery,	15	00
" Madison 2d church, Madison Presbytery,	2	00
" Toledo 1st church, Maumee Presbytery,	6	00
" Green Avenue church, Nassau Presbytery,	10	00
" Zion (German) church, Hillsboro' Pby,	5	00
" Landisburg church, Carlisle Presbytery,	10	75
" Centre church, Carlisle Presbytery,	6	25
" Upper church, Carlisle Presbytery,	2	50
" Delphi church, Logansport Presbytery,	7	00
" Rock Creek church, Logansport Pby,	3	00
" Oakland and Milton chs, Palestine Pby,	10	00
" Rev. Henry S. Huntington, of Caldwell, N. Y.	10	00
" Rev. J. L. Vallandigham, add'l,	1	00
" A Friend in Harrisburg, quarterly subscription,	10	00
" Mr. Moore, of New Castle, Delaware,	1	00
" Mrs. Gemmill, "	5	00
" Mrs. Gray, "	2	00
" John Janvier, "	10	00
" Mrs. Spruance, "	1	00
" Mrs. Smith, "	7	50
" Mrs. Johns, "	10	00
" Miss Darragh, "	2	00
" Miss Willing, "	1	00
" Mrs. Canon, "	1	00
" Mrs. Spotswood, "	5	00
" Union church, Donegal Presbytery,	16	00
" Hopewell church, Madison Presbytery,	2	00
" Marseilles church, Madison Presbytery,	2	00
" Union church, Saline Presbytery,	3	47
" Bethel German church, St. Louis Pby,	8	00
	$369	69

GEO. H. VAN GELDER,
Treasurer, Trustees of General Assembly,
Office, No. 320 Walnut Street.

Philadelphia, November 15th, 1861.

SYNOD OF OHIO.

The Synod of Ohio, at its recent sessions in Columbus, unanimously adopted the following paper.

"That the Synod of Ohio has heard with pleasure the remarks of the Rev. Thomas L. Janeway, D. D., Secretary of the Board of Domestic Mission, of the Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., Secretary of the Board of Publication, of the Rev. H. I. Coe, Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, also of the Rev. William S. Plumer, D. D., on behalf of the Board of Education, and it is hereby Resolved 1, That the Synod renew its former recommendation of these, and of all the benevolent operations of our church, considering their efficient action as vital to the prosperity and extension of the church, and we earnestly enjoin upon all our churches, not at all to lessen their contributions to either of these objects on account of the civil condition of our country; but the rather to increase their benefactions and their prayers for them, each and all, at this time.

2. The Presbyteries of this Synod are enjoined to inquire strictly respecting the contributions to all the Boards, and also to the Fund for Disabled Ministers, at every spring meeting of Presbytery.

3. That with regard to the Board of Education, the Synod cordially approve and recommend the plan devised by the said Board, of engaging the ladies of each congregation to contribute one cent per week to this object.

4. That we deem it expedient that an extra effort be made in all our churches, in behalf of the Colportage Fund of the Board of Publication, on account of the extra demand on that department in their endeavours to supply, gratis, religious reading, through their colporteurs, to the thousands of our soldiers now in our army and navy.

5. It is expedient that a member in each Presbytery be appointed by the Synod at this meeting to take charge of this subject, and see that the foregoing resolutions are faithfully observed.

J. H. PRATT,
Chairman of Committee, &c."

RESOLUTIONS OF THE PRESBYTERY OF CEDAR,

At its session in Marion, Sept. 25th, 1861.

WHEREAS, The necessities of the various Boards of our church, in these times of national trouble and pecuniary disaster, are such as to demand the most earnest sympathy of all our ministers and churches, and to make it imperative upon our Presbyteries to exercise a more careful supervision over the various benevolent enterprises within their bounds; and, whereas, we have reason to believe that the sum of five cents a week from every member of our church in the North will furnish ample means to our Boards: therefore,

Resolved, 1. That, as office-bearers in the house of God, we do hereby solemnly pledge ourselves to use our influence with our people to secure, at least, that sum for our Boards from every member of our respective churches.

2. That every member of this Presbytery be enjoined to preach on the subject of systematic beneficence in every church he serves, before the 15th day of November next, and on the subject of ministerial support before the 15th day of December next, and on both these subjects yearly thereafter, until otherwise directed by the Presbytery.

3. In view of the special necessity of the Boards of Domestic Missions and Church Extension, this Presbytery will hereafter recommend no church to those Boards for aid until that church has been visited by some member of the Presbyterial Committee of Missions or Church Extension, and its wants thoroughly examined, and will, in no case, renew a recommendation for aid to any church which does not annually contribute to the six regular objects presented by the General Assembly in its plan for simultaneous collections, recorded on page 349 of the Minutes for 1861.*

4. That our churches be directed, as far as possible, to conform to the plan for simultaneous collections referred to above.

5. That the Stated Clerk be directed to furnish this action of Presbytery to all our churches immediately, and that a report of what has been done in conformity thereto be required of every minister and every church at each spring meeting of Presbytery.

REV. E. L. BELDEN,
Stated Clerk of Cedar Presbytery.

* The action of the Assembly referred to may be seen below.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN REGARD TO COLLECTIONS.

Whereas, Many of our churches do not contribute to our benevolent enterprises, and whereas, it is desirable to test the power of simultaneous effort; and whereas, an emergency has arisen, requiring the coöperation of all our churches to save our Boards from serious embarrassment, therefore,

Resolved, 1. That this Assembly earnestly request all our churches that have no fixed times for the purpose, to take up annual collections as follows, viz.

For the Board of Domestic Missions on the first Sabbath of November.

For the Board of Foreign Missions on the first Sabbath of January.

For the Board of Education on the first Sabbath of March.

For the Colportage Fund of the Board of Publication on the first Sabbath of May.

For the Board of Church Extension on the first Sabbath of July.

For the Disabled Ministers' Fund on the first Sabbath of September.

Resolved, 2. That when the annual collections cannot be taken up on the days above designated, it be recommended to take them up as soon thereafter as possible.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

In the United States of America.

BEING

THE ORGAN OF THE BOARDS OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS, EDUCATION, FOREIGN MISSIONS, PUBLICATION, AND CHURCH EXTENSION.

VOL. XIII.—1862.

Philadelphia:
PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION, 821 CHESTNUT STREET.

TERMS.

The Home and Foreign Record is issued monthly in newspaper form at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Packages to churches, for any number of copies, at Twenty-five Cents per copy. Payment in advance.

Address—"Peter Walker, 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

Postage.—In Pennsylvania, three cents per annum, and in all other States six cents, paid in advance at the office of delivery.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Troy, Baltimore, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburg.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

The following action was taken at the General Assembly held in Cincinnati in 1850, in regard to the "Home and Foreign Record."

Resolved, As the action of the last General Assembly has resulted in the establishment of the "Home and Foreign Record," that paper is hereby recommended, and the ministers and churches are urged to exert themselves to place it in every family, as the organ, indirectly, of the church, on many important subjects.

The Assembly held in Philadelphia, 1853,

Resolved, That it be recommended to all our pastors to endeavour to increase the circulation of the "Home and Foreign Record," the organ of the Boards of the church, in order that our churches may be better acquainted with their respective plans and operations, and be induced to contribute more liberally towards their support.

The Assembly held at Nashville, Tennessee, 1855,

Resolved, That our ministers and elders be earnestly exhorted to secure a wider circulation to the "Home and Foreign Record," now published at so reduced a price as to make it accessible to the poorest members of our church.

The Assembly held at New York, in 1856,

Resolved, That while the Assembly finds so much cause for gratitude and encouragement in the prosperity and usefulness of this Board, and so much to commend in the energy and economy with which its affairs have been conducted, it cannot forbear to give utterance to the painful feelings which are caused by the fact that there are still very many churches which have not, as yet, contributed anything to the Colporteur funds of the Board, and that there are still so many families in our church who do not take either the "Home and Foreign Record," or "The Sabbath-School Visitor." The Assembly reiterates its earnest exhortations to our Ministers and Ruling Elders to endeavour to secure a more general circulation of these papers among the members of our church.

The Assembly held at Lexington, Kentucky, in 1857,

Resolved, That while the Assembly is highly gratified at the increasing patronage extended from every part of the church to the "Home and Foreign Record," and the "Sabbath-School Visitor," yet it regrets to learn that there is still a large proportion of its families and members who do not receive these periodicals. The Assembly would therefore earnestly recommend its ministers and sessions to use all practicable means to extend the circulation of these important papers in their respective vicinities.—Minutes, p. 25.

Moreover, on the first Sunday evening of every month, or on other occasions, and from time to time, let the people hear from their minister a detailed account of our various Foreign Missions in succession, with a description of the religious condition of the people, and the beginning and progress of the church's work among them. That to this end our ministers take pains themselves carefully to read the "Home and Foreign Record," and the "Foreign Missionary," so far as to know what is being done by our missionaries; and that they also further the circulation, and encourage the reading of these publications in their congregations. P. 21.

And the Assembly held at Indianapolis, Indiana, in 1859,

Resolved, That the Assembly would especially commend the "Home and Foreign Record," to a more general patronage throughout the church; trusting that in its diligent perusal, members of the communion might catch more of the spirit of missions, and of Christian benevolence so richly pervading its columns. They also recommend the "Sabbath school Visitor" as a most excellent publication to be circulated through our Sabbath-schools, and among the children of our charge.—Minutes, p. 545.

INDEX

TO THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD, 1862.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Active Labours, 81.
Annual Meeting of the Board, 97.
——— Report, Abstract of, 97.
Appeal to the Churches, 169.

Belgians, Mission among, 169.
Bereavements and Sore Trials, 201.

Cheering Statements from the Far West, 82.
Christian Patriotism, 186.
——— Soldier, 66.
Church built, 202.
Clothing for Missionaries, 1.
Colorado, 33.

Dakota, our Mission in, 171.

Effects of the Crisis, 2.
——— War, 33, 201.

Fiscal Year, End of, 17.

Good Results, 86.

"He that watereth shall be watered," 34.
Home and Foreign Heathenism, 65.
Hoping against Hope, 153.

Illinois, from Missionary in, 33.

Labours abundant, 138.
Law of Beneficence, 154.
Light Receipts in Summer, 137.
Lights and Shadows, 2, 169.

Manifold Results, 49.
Maryland, Missionary in, 67.
Missionary Life in the West, 139.
——— Trials, 201.

Noble Example, 139.

One Jewel more gathered, 18.

Parsonage built, 138.
Pennsylvania, Missionary in, 18.
Perils from the Heathen, 187.
Pleasant News, 187.
——— Work of Grace, 170.
Privations for Christ, 82.
Prospects brightening, 154.
——— of the Board, 49.

Receipts, 3, 19, 34, 50, 67, 83, 99, 139, 155, 171, 187, 203.
Riches of Liberality, 170.
Rocky Mountains, 170.

Self-denial, 34.
Self-sustaining, 82, 138.
"She hath done what she could," 50.
Signs of Revival, 185.
——— Encouragement, 185.
Sorrowing, yet rejoicing, 99.
Sowing in Hope, 50.
Special Reports, 17.
State of the Funds, 1.
Still Trusting, 202.
Striking Utterances from a Layman, 1.

Table—Showing the amount of Money contributed to the Board of Domestic Missions from March 1, 1861, to March 1, 1862, by the Presbyteries and Synods in connection with the office in Philadelphia, and the amount due or paid in return to them, by the Board, during the same period, for the support of their Missionaries, 155.
Things on the Border, 186.
Trials and their Results, 202.
Troubles on the Border, 153.

Veteran Retiring, 50.
Voice from New England, 201.
——— the Far West, 186.

"Within are Fears," 66.
Work in an Important Field, 137.
Working on amid Discouragements, 153.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Annual Report, Abstract of, 100.
Are you called to the Ministry, 36.
Ashmun Institute, 141.

Beckwith, Major General, Death of, 190.
Board of Education to their former Candidates, 84.
Breckinridge, Dr. John, 5.
Buffalo, Synod of, 172.

Carroll College, Wis. 140.
Children of Believers recognised by an Apostle as Members of the Church, 205.
Christian Education in the East, 174.
Collections in Church, 204.
Colleges, List of, 141.

Danger of forgetting the Boards, 156.
Days of Prayer for Colleges, 21, 53.
Death of a Candidate, 38.
Deputing Influence, 190.
Discipline in Childhood, 70.

Education, 38.
Emmons, Dr., 6.

Family and Sabbath-school Instruction, 206.
First Lie, 173.
Fiscal Year, 68.

General Assembly, Action of, on the Report of the Board of Education, 140, 172.
Good Habits, Early formation of, 174.

Highland, Kansas, School at, 85.
——— University, 141.
Home Mother, 38.
How our Fathers viewed it, 5.

Individual Responsibility, 52.
Influence of Elders, 189.
Is it the Duty of the Church to educate at her own cost, every young man whom the Holy Spirit calls to preach the Gospel, 37, 52, 68.

Ladd, Francis D., Obituary Notice of, 142.
Lafayette College, 85.
Letter of the Assembly of 1804, to the Rev. David Rice, on Thorough Training, 84.

Mercies and Duties, 189.
Miller Academy, 142.
Ministerial Support, 157.
Missionaries the Gift of God in answer to the Prayers of his People, 4.
Mother, The, 158.

Necessity for an educated Ministry, 156.
New Year, 4.

Ought the Church to continue this Prayer, 20.

Parental Example, 172.
Prayer and Alms, 22.
Presbyterial Action in Support of the Boards, 84.
——— Control, 172.
——— Examinations, 173.
Presbyterianism and Education, 190.

Reading the Record, 84.
Receipts, 6, 22, 38, 54, 70, 86, 102, 142, 158, 174, 190, 206.
Reformation and Popular Literature, 189.
Replenish the Ministry, 204.
Report on Sabbath-schools and Youth, 54.
Responsibility, on whom does it rest? 188.
Rise and Progress of our Educational System, 69.

School System, Is it economical? 22.
Sturgus, Professor, Death of, 86.
Systematic Contribution, Duty of, 188.

Vermillion Institute, 141.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Action of the General Assembly, 135.
Afflicting News from China, 208.
AFRICA.—Liberia Mission:
Monrovia, 118, 143.
Kentucky, 118.
Harrisburg, 118.
Greenville, or Sinou, 26.
Mount Coffee, 119.
Niffau, 119.
Settra Kroo, 26, 119.
Near the Equator:
Corisco Mission, 9, 40, 74, 106, 119, 143, 162, 209.
American Baptist Missionary Union, 194.
Annual Report.

Belgium, Progress of the Gospel in, 179.
Brahman and the Christian, 75.
Brahmans, 59.

CHINA.—Canton, 42, 56, 126, 193, 209.
——— Ningpo, 57, 72, 127, 147.
——— Shanghai, 23, 71, 88, 128, 159.
——— Shantung, 58, 159, 177, 191.
——— Tungchow, 128.
CHINESE in California, 42, 107, 130.
Clemens, Rev. William, Death of, 175, 179.
Coming clear out, 163.
Creed of St. Patrick, 163.
Culbertson, Rev. Dr., Death of, 208.

Danforth, Mrs., Death of, 27.
Declaration of a Hindu Boy, 164.
Devil Worship, 76.

Easier to suffer for Christ than to deny him, 108.
Expenses of Heathenism, 92.

Fear of Death among the Heathen, 43, 164.
Finances, 113, 134.
France, Missions in, 162.

Gayley, Rev. S. R., Death of, 208.
General Assembly on Foreign Missions, 103.
Gifts of Children, 88.
Giving from the Heart, 163.

Healthful Condition of Christianity, 163.
Heathen at the Judgment, 91.
Heathen, their Condition deplorable, 25.
"He, being dead, yet speaketh," 59.

Indian Orphan Institute, 115.
INDIA.—Lodiana Mission:
Peshawur, 123, 145.
Rawal Pindi, 123, 175.
Lahor, 123, 161, 209.
Kapurthala, 124.
Lodiana, 8, 105, 121, 124.
Saharunpur, 124, 147.
Dehra, 78, 89, 124.
Roorkhee, 124.
Furrukhabad Mission, 122.
Mynpurie, 89, 124.
Futtehgurh, 124.
Futtehpore, 124.
Allahabad, 124, 192.
INDIAN TRIBES.
Choctaws Chickasaws, Seminoles, Creeks, 116.
Iowas and Sacs, Indian Orphan Institute, 115.
Omahas, Blackbird Hills, 89, 115.
Chippewas and Ottawas, Grand Traverse, or Grove Hill, 59.
Little Traverse, 114.
Isaac Abraham, a Hindu Clergyman, 195.

JAPAN, Mission in, 9, 129.
Jessore, Incidents of Missionary Life in, 194.
JEWS, 132.

Kaisara, a South Sea Convert, 195.

LETTERS from Broadhead, Rev. A., 89.
——— Burtt, Rev. R. J., 39.
——— Clemens, Rev. William, 9.
——— Condit, Rev. Ira M., 42.
——— Culbertson, Rev. M. S., 28, 159.
——— De Heer, Rev. C., 162, 179.
——— Dougherty, Rev. Peter, 59.
——— Farnham, Mr. J. M. W., 71.
——— Forman, Rev. C. W., 209.
——— Gayley, Rev. S. R., 159.
——— Green, Rev. D. D., 92.
——— Happer, Rev. A. P., 56, 193.
——— Hepburn, Dr., 9.
——— Herron, Rev. David, 73.
——— Loomis, Rev. A. W., 42, 107.
——— Loomis, Dr. C. L., 40.
——— Mackey, Rev. James L., 74.
——— McDonough, Washington, 26.
——— McFarland, Rev. S. G., 25, 160.
——— McLaren, Rev. W., 111.
——— Morrison, Rev. W. T., 57.
LETTERS from Nassau, Rev. R. Hamill, 209.
——— Nevius, Rev. J. L., 58, 177.
——— Orbison, Rev. J. H., 176, 191.
——— Preston, Rev. C. F., 209.
——— Priest, Rev. James M., 26.
——— Rudolph, Rev. A., 8.
——— Schneider, Rev. F. J. C., 90, 144.
Little Missionary in Heart, 196.
Loomis, Mrs. E. H., Death of, 26.

Madagascar, Hope for, 27.
——— Rev. W. Ellis in, 211.
Missionary leaving his Field, 11.
——— Periodicals, 114, 193.
Missionary's Child, Burial of, 59.
Mission Year, End of, 87.
——— Beginning of Another, 87.
Money sent abroad from the United States, 108.

Oddments, 75.

PAPAL EUROPE, 131.
Petchaburi Station, Report of the, 72.
Prayer, The Week of, 208.
Psalm cxvii. in Hindustani, 164.

Receipts, 12, 28, 44, 60, 76, 92, 108, 148, 164, 180, 196, 212.
Recent Intelligence, 7, 23, 39, 55, 71, 87, 103, 143, 159, 175, 191, 207.
Rebels in Ningpo, 72.

SIAM Mission, 25, 72, 104, 125, 160.
Sales of the Scriptures by a Colporteur, 211.
SOUTH AMERICA.—Bogota, 11, 117.
Rio de Janeiro, 26, 117.
San Paulo, 90, 118, 144.
Statement of the Executive Committee, 207.
Summary View of the Missions, 136.

Treasurer's Report, 135, 191.
Tricks of Priests in India, 163.
Typhoon at Canton, 209.

Ukuku Palaver, 106.

Value of Missions, 163.

Waldensian Missions in Italy, 55.
"Watchman, What of the Night?" 7.
Wesleyans in the Fiji Islands, 148.
What is your Hope for Eternity? 196.
What more could we do? 7.
What the Church could do, 103.
Woman, Degradation of, 43.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

Acknowledgments, 149.
Annual Meeting of the Board, 109.
Appeal for the Soldiers, 149.
Appeal to Sabbath schools to help our Soldiers, 77.

Bread cast upon the Waters, 149.

Camps and Ships, 29.
Contributions, 150.

Distribution Fund, 149.
——— Work, 29.

Family, The, 62.
Fiscal Year, Close of, 29.
Floating Hospital, 94.
Fort Donelson Prisoners, 78.

General Assembly, Action of, 109.
Good Example for Sabbath-schools, 214.

Hospitals, Colportage in, 61, 62, 93, 181.

Illinois, The Synod of, 197.
——— Colportage in, 197.
Indianapolis, Prisoners at, 93.

Jeremiah, 214.
Journey to the West, 213.

Kentucky, Our Work in, 61.

Little Brown Bible, 14.

Mississippi, Colportage on the, 109.
Missouri, a Word from, 45.

New Publications, 14, 46, 78, 166.
Notice to Commissioners to the General Assembly, 77.

One Cent's Worth, 214.
Our Present Work, 181.

Past Year, 77.
Praying Drummer Boy, 62.

Read One Book, 214.
Receipts, 14, 30, 46, 62, 78, 94, 110, 150, 166, 182, 198, 214.
Revised Book of Discipline, 213.

Sailors, Our Books among the, 150.
Seed not sown in vain, 45.
Soldiers and Sailors, Books needed for, 13, 165.
——— and the Board of Publication, 45.
——— Colportage among, 14.
Soldier's Library, 29.
——— Pocket Book, 62, 166.
Southern Prisoners, Distributions among, 182.
St. Louis, Military Hospitals at, 165, 197.
Ten Dollar Sabbath-school Library, 213.
Tennessee, the Work in, 93.
Terms of Sale, 213.
Thanks for a Sabbath-school Library, 150.
Work done among Soldiers and Sailors, 165.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Annual Report, 95.
——— Statement, 111.

Cheering Influence, 167.
Church-building, 15, 31.
Church Ventilation, 47.
Christian Beneficence, 215.

Debt paid, 199.

Fiscal Year, Close of, 47.
——— First Six Months of, 199.
Five or Six Changes, 63.

General Assembly, Action of, 111.
Gone to the War, 183.

Heavenly Investments, 199.
Help needed, 63.
High Taxes to Cæsar, 31.

"I am able to preach better," 63.
"I'm in debt," 151.

Lightning-rods, 183.

Memorial churches, 199.
Ministerial Sacrifices, 167.

Noble Deed of one Man, 215.

Receipts, 15, 31, 47, 63, 79, 95, 111, 151, 167, 183, 199, 215.
Revival and Church-building, 215.
Rocky Mountains, 199.
Romish Churches, 151.

Strength and Beauty, 167.

The Fruit, 215,
"The Right Spirit," 79.
The sounding Properties of Rooms, 151.

"We must build or die out," 79.
"Without Shoes for the Children," 79.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Canadian Home and Foreign Record, 168, 184.
Ecclesiastical Record, 16, 32, 48, 64, 80, 96, 112, 152, 168, 184, 200, 216.

Form of Bequests, 16, 32, 48, 64, 112, 152, 168, 184, 200.

Fund for Disabled Ministers, and the Needy Widows and Orphans of Deceased Ministers, 16, 32, 48, 64, 80, 96, 112, 152, 168, 184, 200, 216.

General Assembly, 80.
General View of the Presbyterian Church during the Year ending May, 1862, 152.

Presbyterian Historical Society, 80, 112.

Resolutions of the General Assembly, 16, 32, 48, 64, 80, 96, 152, 168, 184, 200.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME XIII. No. 1. | PHILADELPHIA, JANUARY, 1862. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

MISSION ROOMS,
No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. Tho's L. Janeway, D. D.
Treasurer—SAMUEL D. POWEL.

LETTERS relating to Missionary Appointments and other operations of the Board, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 910 Arch street, Philadelphia.

CONTRIBUTIONS should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:

ANDREW DAVIDSON, Louisville, Ky.

WILLIAM RANKIN, JR., Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

TO MISSIONARIES.

The abundant liberality of our Christian ladies has overwhelmed us, and the offers to furnish boxes of clothing are numerous. Any missionaries in want of such things, will please forward their applications, with suitable particulars, at once, to this office, that their names may be handed to the ladies requesting. And to the ladies we may say, in this connection, that we hope very soon to respond to their benevolent offers.

At the hazard of being too much before the public, but feeling the necessity of the case, we venture to state, that the whole reliance, under God, of the Board, to pay its indebtedness to its suffering missionaries, is on the collections of the three months which will close our financial year. In times past, these remittances have been the largest of any portions of the year, and our earnest hope is, that the measure of the past shall rule this year. In addition to the indebtedness of the Board at the commencement of the year, it may be stated, that, in July, the five Synods of Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Chicago, and Cincinnati, the whole region north of the Ohio river, and formerly under the care of the Western Executive Committee, at Louisville, were transferred to this office. We miss the collections of former years by which this field was sustained in part. The entire burden falls upon this office, of increased correspondence, and support of the missionaries in the field. This has increased our debt—that is, more to pay, and less to pay with. The fact is mentioned, that the churches in the East may see what God, in his providence, has rolled upon their Christian sympathies. And winter is coming, with its dreariness, and its augmented expenses! and what are our missionaries to do? The distress, we have reason to fear, is greater than even what is reported. One writes, that he has sold his only cow, and his family abandon milk for the winter. His wife dismisses her hired maid, and does the drudgery, while the missionary prepares his sermons in the common room—the only fire they dare kindle—with a heart aching, as he sees his partner working on. If his sermons are sombre, is there any wonder?

It is true, in the blessed providence of God, that harvests have been abundant. Food they will not want; but the nameless comforts—not luxuries—which only cash can command, are to be given up; and this must continue, unless the churches in the eastern parts of our land come up to our aid. Could the Board come abreast of its obligations to the missionaries by the end of the financial year, March, 1862, we should feel devoutly thankful. It would relieve our hearts of a heavy burden, and can it not be done? In the loyal States, unswept by warlike invasion, with plenteousness, with means in abundance, with nothing wanting but confidence, we have 200,000 members. Can one be so poor, in this sacramental host, as not to be able to contribute one half-dollar—hardly one cent per week? Here, then, is $100,000—enough to square our open accounts with our brethren in the missionary field, and discharge our debt at the bank, which so kindly and so patiently has indulged us. Ah! the drops make the fertilizing showers, which diffuse gladness over a widening field. Drops make the rivers which roll in grandeur. "Gather up the fragments, that nothing be lost," is the command of Him who is Master and Lord. Our Divine Head bids his church waste nothing of the food which is to feed the waiting and hungry crowd. Shall it be done? Will the church never awake to her destiny? Will her ministers slumber, while this duty is forgotten, and a world dies in hopeless misery? The teachers do not instruct the flocks. The precious privilege is not permitted to the people. A church, in an old State, under the care of a venerable pastor, with a communion roll reported of 270 members, sends $19, as its contribution to send the gospel to the destitute—hardly 8 cents a year for each member—to the magnificent wastes of our land! When will the millennium arrive at that rate! Sad to utter such things—sad to speak of this case, in a field where there have been frequent revivals. But necessity knows no law, while the missionaries are suffering, and while our church can so easily relieve them, may the Board, to whom the church has entrusted these solemn interests, be pardoned, if they press these claims upon the disciples of Christ? Could we reach the ear of every church member, we would inquire, What hast thou done for suffering disciples in Christ's name? Are there no stores from which you can subtract a portion—no luxuries which you can surrender—no comforts which you can dispense with, to increase our ability to cope with these necessities, and enable us to make many a distant hearth glad, by the payment in full of our obligations? It can be done, if only the people have a willing mind. Jerusalem was rebuilt in troublous times—times of threatened invasion and times of poverty. God's church has flourished in days of deeper darkness than any of which we have experience. May God incline your hearts to perform this blessed service, and enable the Board to report to the next Assembly, that she has paid her debts, and owes no man, but a weightier measure of love and compassion.

MISSION ROOMS,
December 1, 1861.

STRIKING UTTERANCES FROM A LAYMAN.

Illinois, November, 1861.

Rev. and dear Brother—I am confident that you will not consider it obtrusive in me, to say to you a few plain things, out of the abundance with which my heart is oppressed, in regard to the present and prospective condition of your missionaries in the Northwest. The half has not been told you. Our brethren are slow to tell you the depth of distress to which they and their families are reduced by the entire withdrawing—ex necessitate—of all their support from the Board. They weep in silence—labour on—trust—hope—suffer—and one after another will be driven from the pulpit to the army—the field—to some occupation other than preaching, to obtain bread for their families, unless some plan be devised for their speedy relief. Let me give you an illustration in the case of our own faithful and devoted minister. In doing this, you will, of course, see the propriety of not making public reference, by name, to his case. The facts, in all and every particular, I am accountable for.

He has a wife and six children. His wife, hopelessly insane, has been more than one year in the Asylum. His little daughter, eleven years of age, is all the help he has in the care of his family. He takes time to cook, and mend, and prepare for every meeting "beaten oil." You have promised him $300 annually. We have promised him as much more. You fail to pay promptly; and with corn at 10 and 11 cents per bushel, and often to be hauled three to seven miles at that price, our people cannot pay more than half their promised stipend. It was but a day or two since that I met a widow lady, who had come miles to town with a load of corn, for which she received but $1.50, and the great and first burthen of debt upon her mind, I know, was that due to her minister.

If these straits pass unimproved, woe be to us! They came not by chanee. Have you, my brother, exhausted, at that Board, where God has so often met with you, all the resources he has given you? Has he forgotten sparrows? Can you not stir yourselves up to lay hold of him once again? Think of his faith who said, "Sir, come down, ere my child die."

What hinders you from trusting God, sending every missionary three cheques, payable in one, two, and three months, telling the churches what you have done, appointing three special evenings for prayer and gatherings in all the churches to meet these engagements? Think, for one moment, of the thrill of joy the receipt of what is due from you would bring to the (I know not how many) missionaries.

But I can write no more. You must, as to me it seems, go out of the "beaten track," if you would have the "tithes brought in," and the promised blessing "poured out."

The above is from an elder in Illinois, of high repute and much mark in our church. He pictures from his stand-point. It is not a missionary complaining, but an intelligent and high-minded elder. But can we—dare we—adopt his suggestion? Can we add to the constant anxieties of this office a load like this? The expansion of former years was not sustained, and a debt presses us down. But for that debt, with which the financial year began, we could be square with our missionaries; and this letter, received since our first article was written, confirms our statements. All depends on the collections of December, January, and February. If they keep abreast of the corresponding months of last year, we can pay our missionaries in full; if not, then the dreariness of another anxious year is before us. Will not the churches come up to our help? Cannot we trust God, and bring more than our tithes into the storehouse? While patriotism pours out its millions to save all that is precious in our nation, will not religion give its hundreds to keep our church in the field against the foe of God and man.

We have no doubt of the entire ability of our church to relieve all the Boards. While the missionaries are willing to make needed sacrifices, and conform to the pressure, will not the churches, God's covenant people, add to their former donations. It is our joy, that many have this year increased the amount of contributions—in some cases the church collection is doubled. Ah! if all God's people would so act, what a thrill of gladness would pass over our land, and be felt on the outer verge of civilization! But words fail. Our refuge is with God. It is just to say, that the brother alluded to in the above letter has received, since it was written, a box of clothing, in value $245, from a congregation in the vicinity of this city, who, since May, to the honour of their liberality be it said, have previously furnished two boxes, valued at $175 each, and whose annual collection exceeded that of last year more than twenty-five per cent.

EFFECTS OF THE CRISIS.

Michigan.

Dear Sir—Although far removed from the seat of war, and the alarms of its presence, still we have experience of its remoter consequences, and of a lively interest in its progress. Numbers from our neighbourhood, some of whom belong to Presbyterian families, and some to our "little flock," have become members of the army. Among other results are the prostration of trade and business, and a general panic and discouragement. But the mind of our people—always remarkable for a buoyant elasticity—having measurably recovered from the shock, works out a conformity to the new state of things, and the wheels of trade begin to move with increased and hopeful celerity; and this, too, while, in respect to some things, there exists a good deal of stringency.

"The crisis," I think, has been less injurious to spiritual than to pecuniary concerns. Respecting things spiritual, indeed we have had trials, and conflicts, and have experience of them still: for, as false prophets increased in Israel at and approaching the times of public calamity, their successors, true to the instinct of their class, have not been wanting; and so we have been troubled with these spiritual assailants—Universalists, open sceptics, corrupt Sabbatarians, materializing Adventists, and other errorists besides, among whom, if there be crudeness and ignorance, you may always find cunning, and oftentimes shrewdness and talent. To meet this array, it is not enough that the man of God draw from his historical, theological, and scientific resources. He must take unto him the whole armour of God. These enemies of our Lord and of his Christ are actuated by a strong enemy; and if we overcome these adversaries, it is because Christ in us is greater than he that is in them.

Still, the crisis in our country, with its adverse concomitants and influence, is not unattended by a gracious and overruling power. For, besides the fact that this new rising of the flood of error among us did not prove, and is not likely to prove, so disastrous as was feared, and has scarcely made a noticable impression on our church, except to endear the truth to them the more, which cannot be said of some other churches—besides this, and notwithstanding fightings without and fears within, we realized some positive advantage: e. g. we have learned with renewed and deep impression that all earthly things are transient and uncertain, and that the firmest earthly security is really insecure. We have learned to look at the present national affliction as sent upon our land for long-continued national offences against God and his laws; and the willing and cordial response which our people made to the call of the President for prayer, fasting, and humiliation before God, on behalf of our country, plainly showed that God had come down to us in his providence, and waited to be gracious to our people and our land.

Our congregations, in the three places where we labour—in Bennington, Perry, and Woodhull—continue to be respectable as to order, members, and attention. Our Sabbath-school and two Bible-classes are sustained with undiminished interest and profit, (as we trust,) although there has been some unsteady in attendance, owing to temporary indisposition in a teacher, and sickness in the neighbourhood.

During the past ten months I have received very little on my salary, because of the great scarcity of money among us, so that it is difficult to meet the calls of necessity which become more and more urgent. Still, we labour on, and sow beside all waters, hoping to reap with joy.

We have been slow in making collections for the Board, for reasons intimated above. But the depression being somewhat relieved, and the wheat crop, the principal resource of our people, having come in well, will put some available means in our hands, the lowness of the price notwithstanding.

LIGHTS AND SHADOWS.

Wisconsin, October, 1861.

By the continued blessing of the great Head of the church, I have been enabled to perform my missionary and ministerial labours, since my last quarterly report, without interruption. These labours, however, have often been performed in circumstances of great discouragement. Having received nothing from the Board during the last two quarters, because they had nothing to pay their missionaries; and having received but little from the people, because they have but little means at their disposal, I have been under the trying and anxious necessity of living, to a great extent, on credit. Should my credit fail, as it must unavoidably, if I much longer fail to fulfil my pecuniary engagements, my reputation as a minister must fail with it, and my usefulness as a servant of Christ must be greatly curtailed. Though some worldly-minded men seem to sustain some sort of plausible reputation in the repudiation of their honest debts, a minister of the gospel cannot, if he would, have a good report of them that are without, in neglecting long, though it be from unavoidable necessity, to pay honest debts. I have hardly known, for some time past, whether to cease to cultivate a part of my extensive and destitute field, or to depend, under God, on my credit a little longer for the means necessary to its cultivation. I dislike very much to trouble the Board and its Secretary with such statements; but out of the abundance of the heart the mouth will speak, and the pen will move. In proportion as I regard the missionary work vastly important, I regard the means requisite to carry it forward important. It is, in reality, as much the work of the church as the work of the missionary. As the maintenance of the laws, constitution, and government of the United States, at the present critical period, must depend on the means furnished by the people, as well as by the energetic efforts of our army and navy, so the cause of missions must depend, under God, as much on the means furnished by the church, as on the self-denying and persevering labours of missionaries. Shall the work cease, or shall it be curtailed greatly, for want of means to sustain it. This is a question for every member of the church, possessing even the widow's mite, to unite with others in answering solemnly before God, and before conscience enlightened by the word of God.

I am expecting, at the next communion, to receive one into the church on confession, that is rather an interesting case. It is that of a woman, some sixty years old, all of whose children have grown to adult age, and several of them are heads of families. Her near and remote connections, almost without exception, are strong Universalists. On visiting her frequently, during a severe and protracted illness, a year since, I found her mind was very much exercised on the subject of her duty to Christ. She expressed a faint hope, connected with the expression of a desire that she might not be deceived. She was very free in communicating her views; and uniformly requested me to read the word of God to her, and pray with her. She often said, that her strongest desire to recover was, that she might own and honour the Saviour, by a public profession of religion. She had once thought that a person could enjoy religion as well by keeping it to himself, as in publicly professing it; but she had become thoroughly convinced, that she had laboured under a great mistake. She now deeply felt that it was her plain duty to let her light shine for the benefit of others.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia during the month of November, 1861.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Londonderry—Manchester ch 25, of which 5 from Mr and Mrs Jonas Varnum, Derry, N H; Newburyport 1st ch, "Greenleaf Circle" 20 — 45 00
Pby of Troy—Waterford ch 156; Cambridge ch 41 21; Green Island ch 7 — 204 21
Pby of Albany—Carlisle ch 4; Esperance ch 6; Mayfield Central ch 5; West Galway ch 25 85, of which 5 85 from the Sab sch — 40 85
Pby of Mohawk—Park Central ch Syracuse — 53 58

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Ogdensburgh—Rossie ch — 6 00
Pby of Genesee River—Oakland ch 5; Moscow ch 4; Caledonia 1st ch 38 63 — 47 63
Pby of Rochester City—Wheatland ch 29 06; Charlotte ch 6 — 35 06

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of North River—Cold Spring ch 22; Calvary ch Newburgh 56 11, of which 13 39 from the Sab sch — 78 11
Pby of Bedford—Bedford ch 75 25; Croton Falls ch add'l 8 85 — 84 10
Pby of Long Island—Sag Harbor ch 67 11; West Hampton ch in part 6 — 73 11
Pby of New York—Chelsea ch 65; Fifteenth st ch New York 88; Yorkville ch 10; German ch New York 11 50; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch Mission chapel 4 58 — 179 08
Pby of New York 2d—Peekskill ch — 82 00
Pby of Nassau—Brooklyn 1st ch 50; Jamaica ch 2; Ainslie street ch Williamsburgh 21 — 73 00

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Elizabethtown—Lamington ch 80; Basking-ridge ch 62; First ch Perth Amboy 20 — 162 00
Pby of Passaic—Second ch Morristown — 130 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Second ch Trenton 75; First ch Princeton 120; Titusville ch 25; Second ch Princeton 51 71; of which 5 from Rev Prof Duffield — 271 71
Pby of Newton—Bloomsbury ch 10 76; Mansfield 1st ch 76 79 — 87 55
Pby of Raritan—Lambertville ch 29; Amwell United 1st ch 19 — 48 00
Pby of Susquehanna—Towanda ch — 15 00
Pby of Luzerne—Wilkesbarre ch 150; Tunkhannock ch 6 — 156 00
Pby of Burlington—Mount Holly ch — 20 00

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia—Tenth ch Philadelphia in part, cash collection 402 55, W J M 25, Wm Agnew 5, R Creswell 5, Z Gemmell 5, add'l through the pastor 12 — 454 55
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Chestnut Hill ch add'l 56, of which 20 from a Lady; Allen Township ch 35; Catasaqua ch 35; Slatington ch 30, of which 3 55 from the Sab sch; Port Kennedy ch 16 52; Abington ch 50 — 222 52
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Spring Garden ch cash collection 37 17, Mrs E A Smith 100, Miss Anna Greanleaf 100, Rev James Clarke D D 50, Henry D Gregory 10, Rev John McDowell D D 5, Rev Morris C Sutphen 5, Gilbert Combs 5, Jonathan Graham 5, James Fulton 3, Mrs A C Miller 2, E Elwell 1, Mrs A C Hoffman 1, —324 17; Kensington ch 40; West Arch street ch 75 17; Trinity ch 5 10; Princeton ch West Philadelphia 66 88 — 511 32
Pby of New Castle—Oxford ch, from a Lady 5; White Clay Creek and Head of Christiana chs 27; Newark ch 10; Forks of Brandywine ch 55 25 — 97 25
Pby of Donegal—Waynesburg ch 138 03; Slate Hill ch 8 28; Little Britain ch 10; Stewartstown ch 5; Hopewell Centre ch 12 — 173 31
Pby of Huntingdon—Spruce Creek ch 137; Shirleysburg ch add'l 5; Hollidaysburg ch 34 69; Lewistown ch 23 61 — 200 30
Pby of Northumberland—Ashland ch 1 50; Gordon ch 1 50; Sunbury and Northumberland chs 32; Buffalo ch 45; Shamokintown ch 5 — 85 00

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore—Mount Paran and Springfield chs 8 39; Chestnut Grove ch 11 54; Annapolis ch 10; Ellicott's Mills ch add'l, from W S H 5; First ch Baltimore in part 75 — 109 93
Pby of Carlisle—Carlisle ch 142 25; Female Miss Society of Upper Path Valley ch 69; Middletown ch 10; Greencastle ch 55; Shippensburg ch, from Miss Teressa Duncan 50; Harrisburg ch, a female member 5; Waynesboro' ch 40; Gettysburg ch 14 83 — 386 08

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Ohio—Pittsburg 1st ch 564 42; Pittsburg 4th ch 38 80; Lawrenceville ch 16 60 — 619 82
Pby of Blairsville—Blairsville ch 34; Greensburg ch 10; New Alexandria ch 25; Unity ch 55 — 124 00
Pby of Saltsburg—Parnassus ch Sab sch 4; Bethesda ch 5; Concord ch 12; Harmony ch 3 30; Glade Run ch 15 (of which Cowanshanock Sab sch 2) — 39 30

SYNOD OF ALLEGHENY.

Pby of Allegheny—Butler ch 41 40; Plaingrove ch 28 12 — 69 52
Pby of Beaver—Newport ch — 2 00
Pby of Erie—Harmonsburg ch 5 68; West Greenville ch 8; Park ch Erie 25; Conneautville ch 8; Concord ch 4; Cool Spring ch 7, Mill Creek ch 10; Waterloo ch, bequest of James Gilliland deceased 100 — 167 68
Pby of Allegheny City—Bridgewater ch 50; Rev William Annan 5; Miss Sarah E Annan 5; German ch Manchester 56 cents — 60 56

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington—Wheeling 1st ch 292; Forks of Wheeling ch 39; Cross Creek ch 40 19; Waynesburg ch 6; Claysville ch 27 55; Third ch Wheeling 11 29 (of which Sab sch 5) — 416 03
Pby of New Lisbon—Liberty ch 6; Bethesda ch 5 59; Niles ch 5 50; Hubbard ch 2; Bethel ch 10 — 29 09
Pby of St. Clairsville—Martinsville ch — 10 13

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Marion—Delaware 1st ch 10; Marysville ch 9, of which 5 from the Ladies' Mite Society; Milford Centre ch 6; Sandusky ch 4; Mount Gilead ch 7; Liberty ch 8, of which 2 a bequest of Robert Sellers dec'd — 44 00
Pby of Zanesville—New Philadelphia ch 4; Zanesville ch 35; Salem German ch Newark 10 — 49 00
Pby of Wooster—Congress ch 6 53; Wooster ch 38 31; West Salem ch 8 — 52 84

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Chillicothe—Marshall ch 5; Hillsborough ch 81 65 — 86 65
Pby of Miami—Dick's Creek ch 17 08; New Jersey ch 11; Miami City First ch 45 81 — 73 89
Pby of Cincinnati—Walnut Hills 1st ch 13 62; Hopewell ch 10 16; Somerset ch 5 70 — 29 48
Pby of Oxford—Riley ch 11; Bethel ch 8; 3d ch Oxford 10; Eaton ch 6 50; Camden ch 3 50 — 39 00
Pby of Sidney—Stony Creek ch 10; Bellefontaine ch 7 75; Salem ch 8; West Liberty ch 10 — 35 75

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of Vincennes—Indiana ch 6; Vincennes ch 25 75 — 31 75
Pby of Madison—Vernon ch 5; Lexington ch 5; Madison 1st ch 139 55, of which 100 a bequest of Mrs Jane Smith — 149 55
Pby of Indianapolis—Indianapolis 3d ch 65; Franklin ch 10 — 75 00
Pby of White Water—Union ch 13 72; Greensburgh ch 30 10; Rushville ch 10 60 — 54 42

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Lake—Crown Point ch 4 50; Constantine ch 10 50 — 15 00
Pby of Fort Wayne—Warsaw ch — 9 00
Pby of Crawfordsville—Poplar Spring ch — 3 50

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Sangamon—Third ch Springfield 100; Portuguese 1st ch Springfield 3 57 — 103 57
Pby of Peoria—French Grove ch — 7 00
Pby of Bloomington—Crow Meadow ch 5 41; Atlanta ch 5 55 — 10 96
Pby of Saline—Sharon ch 5; Carmi ch 6 10; Graysville ch 2 75 — 13 85

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.

Pby of Schuyler—North Henderson ch 12; Pope's River ch 3 15 — 15 15
Pby of Rock River—Princeton ch 10 20; Yellow Creek ch 11 — 21 20
Pby of Chicago—Manteno ch 10 10; Rockford 1st ch addl from N D S 2 — 12 10

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Milwaukee—North ch Milwaukee — 48 00
Pby of Winnebago—Oxford ch 5; Winnebago Rapids ch 27 75 — 32 75

SYNOD OF ST. PAUL.

Pby of Chippewa—Galesville ch — 5 00
Pby of Owatonna—Owatonna ch — 3 00

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Cedar—Herman and Wilton chs 10; 1st ch Muscatine, mo con colls 14 — 24 00
Pby of Toledo—Toledo ch 5 72; Salem ch 5; Rock Creek ch 2 — 12 72
Pby of Dubuque—Waukon ch 6 76; Lycurgus ch 95 cents; German ch Dyersville 1; Sherrold's Mound ch 3 50; 1st ch Dubuque, mo con 10 — 22 23

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.

Pby of Iowa—Round Prairie ch 8; Ononwa ch 2; Spring Creek ch 2 — 12 00
Pby of Des Moines—Wintersett ch — 2 43
Pby of Fairfield—Lafayette ch 2; Liberty ch 2 50; Sigourney ch 2 50 — 7 00

SYNOD OF UPPER MISSOURI.

Pby of Highland—Westminster ch Leavenworth 8 40; Highland ch 10 — 18 40

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of Palmyra—Mount Horeb ch — 4 00

From churches, $6,794 57

MISCELLANEOUS.

Six months interest on the Permanent Missionary Fund, from the Trustees of the General Assembly, 425 78; Mrs H R J 5; Glenn's Falls, N. Y. 1; A thank-offering from Mr and Mrs M C, Pa. 20; S A P 12 50; George B Trimble, Santa Fe, Mo. 1 50; Miss Isabella Clapp, Milton, Mass. 3; X, a friend of Missions, 7 15; Thos Vannice, Pleasant, Ind. 6; Mrs Bowen Matlack, Cincinnati, Ohio 20; M B W, Springfield, Ohio 3; Mrs Lowes, Acton, Ind. 50 cts; Rev H S Huntington, Caldwell, N. Y. 10; Little Savings of Miss H W, an afflicted daughter, Washington, D. C. 5; Nehemiah Choate, Esq. Derry, N. H. 30; Miss Abbie Choate, Derry N. H. 10; C H P, Pottsgrove, Pa. 3; Philadelphian Society of Nassau Hall, Princeton 15; A thank-offering to the Lord, from a Mother, 5; M Brown, Paxton Valley, Pa. 10; James Hite, Terre Haute, Ind. 10; Mrs Amelia G Johnston, Hollidaysburg, Pa. 12; Matthew Kean, Esq., Bridgeton, N. J. 50; Robert Creighton, Philadelphia 5; Miss Mary C Latta, Corisco, Africa 10; Mrs E E Townsend, Painted Post, N. Y. 3; Interest 127 18; J K W 5; Tithe-offering 12; "C C B," for Lake Superior Mission 100 — 927 61

LEGACIES.

Legacy of Rebecca Austin, dec'd, late of Fulton co. Pa. 25; Estate of Miss Jane Armstrong, dec'd, Washington co. Pa. 90, less exchange 1 75=88 25 — 113 25

Total at Philadelphia, $7,835 43

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

CLOTHING.

1 Box from the Ladies of Chestnut Hill ch Pa., valued at — 100 00
1 Box from the Ladies of First ch Phelps, N. Y., valued at — 95 50
1 Box from the Ladies' Sewing Society of Hopewell, Pa., value not stated
1 Box from the Ladies of West Middlesex ch, Pa., valued at — 50 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Gettysburg ch, Pa., valued at — 98 00
1 Box from Mrs. A. C. Gray of New Castle, Del., value not stated.
1 Box from the Ladies' Missionary Society of 1st ch Dubuque, Iowa, valued at — 52 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Warrior Run ch, Pa., valued at — 54 28
1 Box from the Ladies of Lycoming Centre ch, Pa., Dorcas Society, valued at — 45 97
1 Box from the Ladies of Third ch, Rochester, N. Y., valued at — 50 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Germantown 1st ch, Pa., valued at — 245 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Waynesburg ch, Pa., valued at — 95 00
2 Barrels from the Ladies of Waterford ch, N. Y., valued at — 90 00
1 Box from the Young Ladies of Park ch, Erie, Pa, valued at — 130 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Pittsburg 1st ch, Pa., valued at — 158 51
1 Box from the Ladies of Goshen ch, New York, valued at — 115 00
1 Broché Shawl from Miss Sarah S Finlayson, deceased.

1379 26

TREASURY AT LOUISVILLE.

Receipts into the Treasury at Louisville, Ky., during the month of November, 1861.

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of Missouri—Glasgow ch — 12 00
Pby of St. Louis—Bethel ch 21; Bonhomme ch 5 80 — 26 80
Pby of Palmyra—Ashley ch — 5 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Louisville—Thos Stevens, 4th ch Louisville — 10 00
Pby of Ebenezer—J M Preston, Burlington ch — 50 00

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Sidney—1st ch Sidney — 18 00

Total at Louisville, $121 80

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Officers of the Board.

James N. Dickson, President.
John McDowell, D. D., Cyrus Dickson, D. D., James Dunlap, Esq., } Vice-Presidents.
William Chester, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
R. Watts, Assistant.
F. D. Ladd, Recording Secretary.
William Main, Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies and Colleges, may be addressed to either of the Secretaries, No. 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of Money may be made to WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer, 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest."

THE NEW YEAR.

What thoughts arise at the utterance of these three words! As if incited by a magic wand, the past and the future rush together in one mighty confluence of stirring memories, and anxious or fond anticipations. How hard it is to look either backward or forward—to recount the realities of the past, or forecast the possibilities, or probabilities, of the future, and remain unmoved! How gladly would the hand reach backward to erase, how eagerly would the eye scan the unrolled record of the future! Around what untold villanies, and unrecounted deeds of heroism, have the curtains of the past year been drawn! What scenes of domestic and national griefs, or joys, are curtained by the clouds which rest upon the future! Oh, what scenes shall be enacted ere this new year has become old! Visions of gory battle-fields in the past, shift backward to give place to scenes of carnage in the future, until the heart sickens, and the mind tries to turn from the horrors of its own creation.

Blessed be God for a refuge from the incipient phrenzy of such memories and forebodings! Blessed be God for that announcement made by Him whose voice is as the sound of many waters—"Fear not: I am the First and the Last." Oh, what a fear-dispelling power is in that one utterance! Fly, my soul, beneath the shadow of those wings! There thou art safe, for those wings encompass the whole eternity. Thy Saviour is the FIRST and the LAST. Thy past sins are atoned—are covered by His precious blood, and no condemnation can be pronounced against thee in the future, with such an Advocate pleading for thee before the throne. From His love none can separate thee. Thou needest not fear, for neither life, nor death, nor things present, nor things to come, nor angel, nor principality, nor power, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate thee from the love of God which is treasured up in thy Redeemer.

Well may we commit to Him who lives through all duration, and who has loved the church so as lay down his life for her, all the interests which oppress and burthen our spirits. In the hands which were nailed on Calvary—those hands which now sway the sceptre of the universe—the interests of the church, and the best interests of the nation, are secure.

MISSIONARIES THE GIFT OF GOD, IN ANSWER TO THE PRAYERS OF HIS PEOPLE.

How impressive and instructive is the record of our blessed Lord, given by his evangelist Matthew, in these words—"When he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd. Then saith he to his disciples, the harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he will send forth labourers into his harvest." The heart of Jesus was filled with tenderness towards sinful men, he expressed its overflowing sympathy with their sad and sorrowful condition, and he called upon his disciples to surround the throne of grace with earnest supplications on their behalf, that God might be pleased to bless them with faithful teachers, who would make known to them the way of life, and encourage them to walk in it, so that they might find happiness here, and everlasting blessedness hereafter. To rouse them to this duty, he reminds them of the gracious relation in which God condescends to stand towards poor, neglected sinners—"the Lord of the harvest," who only could, and assuredly would, have compassion upon them, in answer to the prayers of his believing people. Jesus assumes that there was an inseparable connection between earnest prayer and the gift of a godly ministry. And what he thus taught he exemplified in his own conduct. The evangelist Luke records of him—"It came to pass in those days that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples, and of them he chose twelve, whom he called apostles." The night of prayer was followed by the selection and appointment of the twelve apostles. This is the model for the church of Christ in all generations. If we are to have faithful ministers at home, and devoted missionaries abroad, it must be in answer to importunate prayer to "the Lord of the harvest." He only has the right to call, and the power to qualify them for their work. But he has promised to do both these things so soon as prayer is made to him for them. He requires prayer, because it is at once an acknowledgment of our dependence upon him, and of our confidence in him. It is an expression of both humility and faith. And what important reflections ought this view of the subject to beget in us! Our responsibility is very great. It may be said to be fearful. In a sense, the destiny of a dying world is suspended on our faithfulness. God is ready to bless it with the ministry of that word which is "the power of God unto salvation;" but he waits to be asked to do it. If it is not done, it is because we have not asked at all, or because we have asked amiss. It is an awful thought that the continued heathenism and sinfulness of the world should be thus laid at the door of the professing church. Again, what deep humiliation is required of us in view of our long-continued and unjustifiable neglect of that prayer, which would assuredly have filled the earth with faithful ambassadors for Christ, beseeching men, in Christ's stead, to be reconciled to God! For months and years inquiry has been made after additional labourers for our own mission-field, among the heathen, but as yet without success. What is the cause? There is a reason somewhere. Surely there is herein a call to deep searchings of heart. Let every one ask, Is the fault in me? Let the church humble itself before "the Lord of the harvest," and ask "What wouldst thou have me to do?" More particularly, is it not the solemn duty of the licentiates and younger ministers of the church to consider what their duty is in this matter? We can sympathize with their doubts and difficulties. It is a responsible undertaking to become a missionary to the heathen. It is an office that requires many qualifications. The most gifted and devoted may well cry, "Who is sufficient for these things?" Nor is it a light thing to leave kindred and home, and the comforts and blessings of civilized life and Christian society. Still, we cannot overlook the eagerness with which many of our youth are seeking civil appointments in the very lands which deter the Christian minister from aspiring to the higher position of the missionary. Nor have we known of the young minister declining to accept the chaplaincy of a distant colony. What, then, is there in the missionary life to check the enthusiasm of youth? Rather, is there not everything in it to awaken and quicken it? It is a great honour to do battle in the high places of the field. It might be expected that the best and ablest of our youthful ministers would be zealous to come to the help of the Lord against the mighty. Oh, that there were many to say, as the prophet did when the revelation of Jesus was given unto him, "Here am I, send me!" Wherever God gives this spirit, the needed qualification will not be withheld. He that is constrained to say, "Necessity is laid upon me; yea, woe is unto me if I preach not the gospel," may go forward in the strength of God the Lord, and boldly say, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." Finally, let us all feel a solemn call now, at length, to obey the Saviour's injunction, and "pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth labourers into his harvest." Let us do so in the earnest and fervent exercises of the closet, in the happy circles of our family worship, in our social meetings, and in our public assemblies. If we do so, the word of promise shall soon be realized—"Many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased." When the members of Christ's body shall unite with their living Head to urge the prayer of intercession, then shall come to pass that which is written,—"Ask of me, and I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession."—Irish Missionary Herald.

HOW OUR FATHERS VIEWED IT.

The wisest and safest counsellors are those who would have us walk in the light of history, and who would guide our footsteps by "the lamp of experience." In these days, when the very success of the Board of Education is used as an argument against her operations, it may be well to refer to those initial struggles in which her foundations were laid. Of the men who inaugurated the measures which resulted in the establishing of this Board, some remain unto this day, but many are fallen asleep.

The following Minutes of a meeting held at New Brunswick, more than forty years ago, will excite very tender associations in the mind of many a reader of the Record.

"New Brunswick, Thursday, Nov. 26, 1818.

"According to previous notice, and agreeably to a resolution passed in New York on the 23d of October last, a number of ministers and laymen convened for the purpose of forming a Society for the Charitable Education of Poor and Pious Youth for the Gospel Ministry, when the Rev. Dr. HILLYER was appointed Chairman, and JOSEPH C. HORNBLOWER, Esq., Secretary.

After prayer by the Chairman, the minutes of the meetings in New York were read, together with the Report of the Committee, who, according to their instructions, had drafted a Constitution for the proposed Society.

This Constitution was read and considered by sections; and having undergone some amendments, was adopted, with the exception of the 9th article, the further consideration of which was postponed till the first Annual Meeting of the Society in May next.

On motion,

Resolved, That the Rev. Drs. Neill, Miller, Perrine, Griffin, Richards, Alexander, and the Rev. Messrs. Grant, Spring, and Huntington, be a Committee to nominate sixteen persons for Directors of the Society, and report as soon as convenient.

Friday Morning, 27 Nov., 9 o'clock.—The Meeting convened according to adjournment, and was opened with prayer by the Rev. Dr. NEILL.

The Minutes of the preceding meeting were read.

On motion,

Resolved, That the first Annual Meeting be held in the City of New York, on the evening of the Anniversary Meeting of the American Bible Society.

The Committee appointed to nominate Directors of the Society, reported the names of sixteen gentlemen; some of whom declining an election, others were put in nomination, and the following were chosen:—

Rev. Drs. Ashbel Green, Edward D. Griffin, James Richards, Samuel Blatchford, John B. Romeyn, Jacob J. Janeway, John M'Dowell, Rev. Messrs. Gardiner Spring, Thomas H. Skinner, John F. Clark, Messrs. Robert Ralston, Thomas Bradford, Eleazer Lord, Rensselaer Havens, Theodore Frelinghuysen, and Samuel Holcomb."

Many of these names are historically associated with all the great movements of our church, and will be recognised as worthy representatives both of her piety and wisdom.

Equally significant of the interest of the wisest of our fathers in this fundamental cause, is the following extract from the SECOND ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PHILADELPHIA EDUCATION SOCIETY.

"Since the publication of the last Report, the following persons have been made members for life, by the liberality of pious females, viz.

The Rev. Jacob J. Janeway, D. D., by the Female Teachers in the Sabbath-school in his congregation.

The Rev. George C. Potts, by the Female Teachers, in the Sabbath-school in his congregation.

The Rev. David Dennie, of Chambersburg, Pa., by the ladies of his congregation.

The Rev. Stephen Boyer, by the Female Missionary Society in his congregation at Columbia, Pa.

The Rev. William R. Dewitt, by some of the ladies in his congregation at Harrisburgh, Pa.

The Rev. Amos A. M'Ginley, by the ladies of the Lower Congregation of Great Path Valley, Pa.

The Rev. George W. Janvier, by the ladies of his congregation in Pittsgrove, N. J.

And the Rev. John E. Latta, by a Female Society in New Castle, Delaware.

A letter has been received from the Presbyterian congregation at Indiantown, South Carolina, enclosing fifty dollars, thirty of which has been received as a donation, and twenty to constitute the Rev. R. W. James a member for life.

The following persons have, during the last year, become members for life by their own subscriptions, viz.

The Rev. Archibald Alexander, D. D., of Princeton,	$20 00
Mr. William Nassau, of Philadelphia,	20 00
John Pool, Esq., of Raritan Landing, New Jersey,	20 00
Samuel Bayard, Esq., Princeton, N. J.,	20 00
Rev. Colin M'Iver, Fayetteville, N. C.,	20 00
Mr. John M'Kissack, Columbia, by $10, in addition to $10 before paid,	20 00
Mr. Arthur Harper, Mrs. Elizabeth Harper, and Miss Eliza Ann Harper, of Philadelphia,	60 00
Mr. Abraham Kearns, of Bedford, Pa.,	24 00
Mr. Michael Allen, of Pittsburgh, Pa.,	20 00
Rev. William M. Engles, of Philadelphia,	20 00
Hon. Walter Lowrie, Senator in Congress from Pa.,	20 00
Rev. Francis Cummings, of Georgia,	20 00

After the annual sermon last year, in the Sixth Presbyterian church in this city, the sum of one hundred and eighty dollars was collected, and paid into our treasury."

We trust that the example set by these brethren, forty years ago, is not too old to incite those who now stand in their places to imitation. That vine which they planted in faith, and watered with their prayers and benefactions, has prospered beyond their fondest expectations; but it is now seriously affected by that blight which has fallen upon all the interests of our country. We would, by the foregoing reference to former days and names, stir up our brethren, and invoke them to rally around this venerable institution, whose foundations were laid by men whose memories are fragrant as the incense.

DR. JOHN BRECKINRIDGE.

Whilst we are dwelling upon the memories of the founders of this Board, we are persuaded that it will be to edification to present our readers with the following defence of our principles and operations, from the pen of Dr. John Breckinridge, during his incumbency as Corresponding Secretary.

"SYSTEM OF HELPS AND SUPERVISION ADOPTED BY THE BOARD IN PREPARING YOUNG MEN FOR THE MINISTRY.

It has been a question with some good and wise men, how far the general scheme of aiding indigent young men on their way to the ministry is safe or salutary. It has been urged that a public and known provision for such a purpose, operates as an injurious solicitation, tempting young men of an improper spirit to seek an education at the hands of the church, when they really have no love for the sacred service. It should be remembered, however, that upon the plan adopted by us, and for the very small annuity which we confer, no youth can secure an education without much additional effort, or else additional aid. Our arrangements are made with the direct purpose of destroying such a temptation, by leaving in the way difficulties sufficient to repel the selfish and corrupt, while they shall exercise a salutary discipline over devoted and noble-minded young men, and the extent of our help is to sustain them in the generous struggle to sustain themselves. In a country like ours, where the way to wealth and distinction is open to all, youth who are actuated by secular ambition are not likely to be attracted to an office which is reached through years of severe self-denial and laborious study; whose dowry in this world is a life of poverty and toil, and whose earliest honours but begin to bloom where all human glory is extinct for ever. There is one question, however, connected with this subject, which the objector to our system of helps is solemnly bound to answer. It is this: How shall we otherwise supply the present immense and increasing demand from every part of the known world with ministers of the gospel? In other ages of the church, where few preachers were called for, and few men devoted themselves to the sacred office, special efforts to assist them into the ministry may not have been necessary. But in our day the case is very different. Our Board did not create the desire in hundreds of our youth to enter the ministry, by offering them the means; but on the contrary, it was itself created to meet the pre-existing desire breathed into these youth by the Spirit of the Lord to enter the great harvest field. Here, then, are innumerable demands for missionaries and pastors on the one hand, and on the other innumerable youth dedicating themselves to this labour of love. Yet they are, almost without exception, indigent; and the course of study prescribed in the Presbyterian church is a most laborious and protracted one; just such an one, however, as every young man needs; while education in our country is disproportionably costly! We ask, then, what is to be done? and until this inquiry is satisfactorily answered, by some better method than that which leaves the world to perish, despite of all its cries for help, and leaves without provision the devoted youth who are struggling through their preparations, in order to fly to its assistance—we must insist that the present system shall not be abandoned.

It ought also constantly to be borne in mind, in settling this question, that the supervision of the church is a very important accompaniment of the assistance of the church. As they necessarily go together, every candidate for the sacred office, who derives aid from her funds, is made to pass repeatedly each year, and for many years in succession under the most rigid scrutiny; and if men of inadequate qualifications and bad spirit escape detection, it must be traced to the imperfection of our nature, and not of our plans. We believe the remark may be safely hazarded, that in the present state of the church, and of the world, more is to be feared from the influence of those who enter the ministry on their own resources than from those who are educated by the church of God; for while the indigent student shares with the other the general supervision of the church, he also is subjected, for a long term of years, to a discipline, review, and control, from which the former is entirely exempted. It is a discipline full of blended mercy and wisdom; parental, salutary, resting its restraints upon his conscience and his honour; and which, by its steady, but gentle pressure, represses the precipitate, corrects the novice, administers aid without impairing honour, and associates filial dependence with real nobility.

It would be doing injustice to this great cause, did your Board omit to state the important influence which the system has already exerted in sustaining the requirements of our excellent standards on the subject of a thorough education. There is extensively at work in our age and land a system of self-confident radicalism, which, if not restrained, would sweep away the foundation not only of knowledge, but of religious and social order. Its effect, in our department, is to puff up young men, and in the same degree, leads them to disparage knowledge, to resist every salutary restraint, and to hasten, unfurnished and uncalled, into the work of the ministry. We know no more effectual barrier to this evil than a thorough education, enforced with a firm hand by your Board, according to the prescribed standards of the church.

In the last resort, however, the appeal is to experience. How does this system operate? What have been its effects? They are largely before the public. Let history reply."

DR. EMMONS ON PREACHING.

In recently reading Professor Parke's "Life of Dr. Emmons," I met with some sententious sayings of that eminent divine, pertaining to this subject, that I considered worthy of noting down and most attentively pondering, and I earnestly desire that they might have the most extensive circulation. He was a minister of the gospel for seventy-one years, and an active pastor for fifty-four years of that period.

Being once asked what he considered the secret of popular preaching, he replied:

"To preach without meddling with your hearers' consciences; and with animation enough to produce a great excitement of the natural sympathies, which will make persons feel that they have some native goodness; and let your sermons be without beginning, middle, or end."

Again, he says: "If you desire to be popular, do not explain your terms. Preach about total depravity, regeneration, &c., and leave your hearers to understand your language in their own sense, which they will all approve. They will praise you for saying a great many good things."

Another of his truthful and suggestive apothems on this subject, I must here insert:

"Those ministers who preach the gospel plainly, fully, and faithfully, do not usually leave their people as they find them, from Sabbath to Sabbath. They either conciliate or alienate the affections of their hearers toward their offended Sovereign."

How much truth there is in this! If the gospel is the power of God, and the preacher's own soul is properly aroused by it, he cannot but be in earnest, and he will be instrumental in rousing others, so that they will feel they must either yield, or offer a very determined resistance—so that they cannot feel comfortable, while they are in a state of rebellion against their Sovereign. Fine-spun moral essays, rhetorical flourishes, and soft sentimentalism prettily dressed, will never do this work. We have a vast amount of "rose-water religion," and a corresponding amount of the same kind of preaching. There is a terrible lack of moral power in the pulpits, as well as in the pews. Both need to be baptized with the Holy Ghost. Both need "hot logic."—Boston Recorder.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

IN SCHOOLS, ACADEMIES, AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

The space assigned this department in this number of the Record, is a fair representation of the operations of the Board in behalf of parochial schools and academies. Through the liberality of a lady in Philadelphia, we have been enabled to forward a timely appropriation of $100 to the brethren at Highland, Kansas, thus keeping open one of the very few schools in that state which have not been closed in consequence of the financial pressure and personal danger incident to the rebellion.

We publish the following brief appeal for aid, from the pen of a teacher of a German parochial school in New York, whose labours have been greatly blessed, in the hope that the eye of some lover of Zion may fall upon it, and that its cry for help may not be unavailing.

Dear Sir and Brother—We finished to-day a new quarter in our parochial school; but we see scarcely how to hold it up farther, if your good Board cannot give us help. There are more than 120 children in daily attendance. We have always done our utmost to sustain this great arm of power for our church, but do not let us remain longer without help. I do not know how to begin with the teachers. Please think on us. What shall I say more? I myself did not receive my salary since the month of May. I suffer hard with my teachers. God help us! With the prayer to your Board, "Don't forget the parochial schools of the church,"

I am truly yours, &c.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST.

All that the Board deem it important to furnish is their CORPORATE NAME, viz.

"The Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

Any person disposed to leave a legacy to the Board of Education, is requested to insert the right CORPORATE NAME. The State laws differ so much that no one form will answer in all the States.

The following form may be used in Pennsylvania.

I give and devise to the Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America the sum of ——— dollars to and for the uses of the said Board of Education.

[When real estate or other property is given, let it be particularly described.]

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA IN NOVEMBER 1861.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Pby of Albany—Ballston Centre ch (ladies' cent a week coll) 31 87; West Milton ch 6 08; Hamilton Union ch 15	52 95
Pby of Rochester City—Rochester 1st ch (from ladies of)	39 65
Pby of Hudson—Deer Park ch	7 21
Pby of North River—Marlboro' ch	11 00
Pby of Long Island—Smithtown ch	10 76
Pby of New York—Rutgers st ch 169 97; Madison Avenue ch 33 50	203 47
Pby of Nassau—Newtown ch 45 59; Greene Avenue ch Brooklyn 9 43	55 02
Pby of Passaic—Third ch Newark	183 39
Pby of Raritan—Flemington ch	45 00
Pby of Burlington—Second ch Camden	5 00
Pby of Monmouth—Tennent ch (from ladies of)	88 85
Pby of Philadelphia—Tenth ch Phila., W S 10, do. addl 5=15, less paid Home and Foreign Record 5=10; Ninth ch 21	31 00
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Central ch 55 96, less paid Home and Foreign Record 9 50=46 46, Mr J Boyles 5	51 46
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Frankford ch, Miss M Wethrill (special) 25; Allen Township and Catasauqua ch 24	49 00
Pby of Donegal—Stewartstown ch 5; Centre ch 7	12 00
Pby of Northumberland—Derry ch, in part 3 67; Washingtonville ch, in part 4 66; Washington ch, in part 1 33; Milton ch, addl 4 54; Misses Clark 5 each=10	24 20
Pby of Carlisle—Petersburg ch 4 36; Chambersburg ch 83 50; Silver Spring ch 40	127 86
Pby of Allegheny—Ebenezer ch 2 61; New Salem ch 5	7 61
Pby of Allegheny City—Central ch, Ladies' cent a week collection	10 00
Pby of Erie—Hammonsburg ch 6 21; Sturgeonville ch, (of which from the ladies' cent a week coll 11 65) 17	23 21
Pby of Steubenville—Rev John Knox 30; Annapolis ch 16 47; Amsterdam ch 4; 2d ch Steubenville 28 91, less exchange 15 cts=28 76 (of which 21 50 from ladies' cent a week society)	79 23
Pby of New Lisbon—Deerfield ch	14 00
Pby of Columbus—Hamilton ch (of which from the ladies 8 25) 12 46; Worthington ch 5; London ch 3; Grove City ch 10; Westminster ch 24 62; Columbus ch, less paid Home and Foreign Record 3=33 08; Hamilton ch 3; Dublin ch 5 40	96 56
Pby of Zanesville—German Salem ch, Newark	9 00
Pby of Wooster—East Hopewell and Nashville ch	2 00
Pby of Coshocton—Millersburg ch	7 00
Pby of Hocking—Athens ch	10 00
Pby of Findley—Little Grove ch 3; Lima ch 10	13 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Bethel ch 4 54; Walnut Hills 1st ch 10 76; Lebanon ch 20 25; Cincinnati 1st ch 13	48 55
Pby of Sidney—West Liberty ch	6 00
Pby of Oxford—Third ch Oxford	10 00
Pby of Madison—Madison ch	4 30
Pby of White Water—Greensboro' ch	22 16
Pby of Indianapolis—Hopewell ch	7 00
Pby of Logansport—Frankfort ch	5 00
Pby of Lake—Constantine ch	8 50
Pby of Fort Wayne—La Grange ch 4 50; Fawn River ch 1	5 50
Pby of Rock River—Malden ch	3 16
Pby of Owatonna—Lake City ch	6 00
Pby of Dubuque—First ch Dubuque	12 00
Pby of Des Moines—Albia ch	5 27
Pby of Ebenezer—Ashland 1st ch	15 71
Pby of California—Calvary ch	73 50
	$1452 08

REFUNDED.

A S	20 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

H F L, Phila. 5; ——, Phila. 15; Coupons 70; L B, Springfield, O. 3; Mrs Brower Matlack, Cincinnati, O. 20; C H P, Pottsgrove, Pa. 2; M W, Trenton, N. J. 5; Alex S Peck, Florence, Nebraska Ter. 1; Rev John C Bush, Stewartsville, N. J. 25; Mrs E E Townsend, Painted Post, N. Y. 3; K, through Mission House, N. Y. 17 87	166 87
	$1638 95

II.—FUND FOR SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &C.

Pby of St. Louis—Bethel ch (special)	23 00
Total,	$1661 95

WM. MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURG, PA., IN NOVEMBER 1861.

Pby of Redstone—Tent ch	7 00
Pby of Ohio—Pittsburg 4th ch	13 07
Pby of Blairsville—Blairsville ch	25 00
Pby of Allegheny—Buffalo ch 3 70; Westminster ch 3; Glade Run ch 3 50	10 20
Pby of Erie—Washington ch 4; Brownsville ch 8	12 00
Pby of Washington—Cross Creek ch 42 49; Waynesburg ch 3; Mill Creek ch 6	51 49
Pby of Steubenville—Island Creek ch 16; Bacon Ridge ch 4; Rev C C Beatty, D D, 30	50 00
Pby of Richland—Mt Vernon ch 7 23; Martinsburg ch, Ladies of, 13; Perryville ch 3	23 23
Pby of Wooster—Dalton ch, addl to con ROBERT COOK an hon mem	26 20
	$218 19
Total amount acknowledged,	$1,880 14

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.
December 12th, 1861.

Recent Intelligence.

INDIA.

The letters received from this country since our last issue are dated as follows: at Lahor, September 17th; in camp between Ambala and Jwala Mukhi, October 1st; Dehra, September 11th; and Allahabad, September 17th. Mr. Walsh reports the opening of a new bazar chapel at Allahabad, which is well situated, and he speaks of the hearers of the gospel at the Sabbath and week-day services as increasing in number. Mr. Herron mentions the death of a native church member at Dehra, and Mr. Carleton mentions the death of another at Ambala; concerning both of these, there was hope of eternal life in their hour of departure from this world. We quote here an interesting remark of Mr. Carleton's concerning the preaching of one of the missionary brethren: "I do not remember ever hearing a sermon in America that so brought home to my heart the exceeding preciousness of Christ's love, as when I have often heard Brother N—— tell to a crowd of illiterate heathen the story of the cross."

SIAM.

We have received a letter from Bangkok, written on the 2d of September, which speaks of the missionary families as all enjoying good health. The brethren mention with regret "the want of special interest on the part of the people on the subject of religion;" but they can add, "We have respectable audiences on the Sabbath, and good attention. . . . The brethren at Petchaburi are labouring with much encouragement. The people generally manifest a spirit of inquiry."

CHINA.

Letters have reached us from Canton, September 9th; Shanghai, September 3d; Ningpo, August 30th; and Tangchow, August 24th. We regret to learn the death of Mr. and Mrs. Preston's infant child. The health of Mrs. Culbertson and their two younger daughters had become so much weakened, that it was necessary for them to leave Shanghai for a season, and Mr. Culbertson had gone with them on a visit to Shantung—an American friend generously defraying the expense of their journey. The accounts from the missionaries at Tangchow in Shantung, continue to be very favourable; the climate and the people are spoken of in warm terms.

JAPAN.

Mrs. Hepburn has reached New York, having left Kanagawa about the middle of September. Dr. Hepburn writes by her that his Dispensary and Hospital work was quite at an end for the present. This results from measures adopted by the native authorities, making it necessary for each patient to obtain a permit before being allowed to go to the Dispensary, while the obtaining of such permission was attended with difficulty. The purpose of the government in these restrictions, it is supposed, is to induce the few remaining foreign residents in Kanagawa to remove over to Yokohama. The Doctor supposes there would be no objection to his re-opening the Dispensary in the latter place; but in some respects it is less eligible as a missionary station.

SOUTH AMERICA.

Our latest letters are dated at Rio de Janeiro, October 1st, and at Bogota, November 8th. The brethren in Brazil speak of three persons now who seem to be under the teaching of the Holy Spirit; they refer to the good work of a colporteur in their employment; and mention other things, which all show that they have reason to be encouraged in their work. Mr. McLaren also is still able to report good progress. The controversy between the government and the Papal clergy had resulted in the exile of the archbishop. Of the door open for missionary labour, and the hopeful conversion of a man during his last illness, Mr. McLaren gives interesting accounts—see his letter in another column.

INDIAN TRIBES.

We have received letters from the Chippewa Mission, dated to the 19th of November, and from the Omaha Mission, to November 20th. The condition of the mission among the Omahas is more full of promise than at any former period; fifty-five scholars are now in the school, and more could be readily obtained. The school at Bear River station, Chippewa mission, is also full.

"WATCHMAN, WHAT OF THE NIGHT?"

As we look abroad on the missions of our church, we see great cause of thanksgiving unto God. Difficulties have been removed in some countries, as in New Granada; great enlargement of the field has occurred in others, as in the opening of the province of Shantung, China, to the residence and labour of our brethren; in others still, new ground has been occupied, as in Siam, and the Corisco Mission; the presence of the Holy Spirit for the conversion of souls has been manifested at quite a large number of our missionary stations. These are things of marked and great importance. And when we consider the home interests of this cause, we find that it has not been necessary to recall a single labourer, nor to abridge, at all to the extent of our fears a few months ago, the means placed at the disposal of our brethren for carrying on their work. Enlarged funds have been placed in the treasury of the Board for sending out missionaries, and several have been sent forth; other large special gifts have been received. The usual gifts of the churches, on which this cause now rests, have not very largely fallen off, and we have reason to hope that a strenuous effort will be made to reach, at least, the standard of last year—in some cases to exceed it, so as to supply unavoidable deficiencies. It will increase our thankfulness, if many churches will come forward with their offerings this year, that neglected this cause last year—if the opportunity of giving may be afforded to all our Christian people. Moreover, several young brethren have applied for appointment as missionaries, hoping to be sent out early next summer. We would like to believe also, that a spirit of prayer for missions exists in an unusual degree.

There are clouds, it is true; there are discouragements; to these we do not now refer, our object being to point out briefly, reasons of gratitude to God. There is light. The day dawns. The night shall flee away. Whatever changes or overturnings may shake the nations, there is a kingdom which cannot be moved, and which shall be set up amongst all nations—the kingdom of righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. The gospel shall be preached to every creature. The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea. There is much work for each follower of Christ; there is much encouragement to fidelity. And then, "there remaineth a rest to the people of God."

WHAT MORE WE COULD DO:—1861, 1862.

We wish that the cause of Missions may occupy a place in the serious thoughts, with which most of our readers will end this year and begin the next. This cause deserves such a place. Its simplest idea is that of obedience to the last commandment of our blessed Lord. This obedience is prompted by love and gratitude to Christ, by compassion for perishing souls, by the hope of doing the greatest good to myriads of our fellowmen, by the expectation of receiving the approval of the God of heaven; it is the fruit of divine grace. In passing from one year to another, we may very properly consider how far we have obeyed our Lord in this respect,—in motive, in prayer, in gifts, in personal labours, in faith, self-denial, and earnest devotedness. Few of us, we fear, will not find ample cause for self-reproach, as we think of what we have done, or rather of what we have not done, in the year now ending, to glorify God in the salvation of the people who are still sitting in darkness and in the shadow of death.

Should we not then humbly confess our sins and short-comings in duty, as we think of our personal relations to this work? Going to the cross, and thence looking upon all men yet to be drawn unto Jesus, let us there consider what more we could do, in the use of divinely appointed means, to bring the world to the knowledge of our Saviour. Could not most of us make larger gifts in aid of this object? Could we not all pray more for it? Could not many of our brethren in the ministry press its claims on the hearts of their people with a deeper and more tender earnestness? Could not more labourers be called forth for the perishing harvest? Could not our brethren in the missionary fields receive, in answer to our prayers and their own, a new baptism of the Holy Ghost, and be clothed with greatly increased power in their work? Could we not all reach a higher standard of Christian consecration in reference to this cause? Could we not more deeply pity the dying heathen? Could we not more fully sympathize with our missionary brethren in their labours, discouragements, and hopes? Could we not form higher conceptions of the movement of Divine Providence? And, especially, could we not gain clearer views of the glory of our blessed Lord, in his person, in his offices, in all his gracious work, as manifested already, and to be still more wonderfully manifested, in the progress of Christian missions? Could we not, in a marked degree, put more honour on the Holy Spirit, as the great agent in the salvation of the perishing nations? Such are some of the questions we may ask, and as we try to answer them, we shall be ready to exclaim, O for more of the mind that was in Christ Jesus!

The time is passing. What we can or could do, let us do with our might. To some of us, this will be our last year of labour for Christ on earth. But a few more opportunities remain to some of us for making known his blessed name to those who are perishing for lack of vision. Yes, some of us will be called this year into the personal, visible presence of our Lord, to be with him for ever! Shall we not be found watching, waiting, working, and faithful in our work, even unto the end?

LODIANA MISSION, INDIA.

JOURNAL OF THE REV. A. RUDOLPH.

(Concluded from page 217, vol. xii.)

In the House of Mourning.

November 30th.—In the afternoon we went to another village close by. There we were told that the son of the head-man of the village had died in the morning, of the small-pox. This disease has made fearful havoc among the children in all these villages. The child had already been buried when we reached the village, but we found a large assembly of people, who had come together to condole with the afflicted father on this sad occasion, and we thus found a congregation ready to our hands. . . . . My audience consisted of about fifty people, who had mostly come from some of the neighbouring villages. Nearly all listened with marked attention, and I therefore found it difficult to bring my address to a termination. But having spoken much already to-day, I found it necessary, at length, to yield my place to Qádir Bakhsh.

When he had finished, I was asked, how the children had sinned that were removed by death at such tender ages and in such large numbers. I said, in reply, that they had not sinned more than others, but that when the shepherd brought home his flock in the evening, and found the old sheep unwilling to enter the sheep-fold, he picked up a lamb or two and carried them in first, and generally the old ones followed. They understood my remark, and seemed satisfied with the explanation. One from among the crowd remarked, that if Jesus saved from bodily death, many would believe in him; as it was, the Christians died as well as the heathen. This led me to speak of eternal death; I explained how a child of God considered himself a pilgrim and stranger in this sinful world, that he did not wish to live for ever here, but that he sought a city, the builder of which was God, the new Jerusalem; that a child was never at rest unless it was in the mother's lap, nor was a child of God until in the presence of God.

"The Mohammedans could stand it no longer."

December 1st.—This morning we passed again through two villages, in the first of which we had an attentive audience; to them I spoke on the parable of the sower, the transitory nature of all that is earthly, and the importance of seeking those things that are heavenly. In the second village, our hearers showed a great longing for an opportunity to pick a quarrel with us. Qádir Bakhsh, who had spoken first, soon stopped, and I then commenced to preach to them on the parable of the unfruitful fig-tree. For a while their attention was rivetted, but when I spoke of Christ as the gardener that pleaded for the unfruitful tree, the Mohammedans could stand it no longer. Who else could be the intercessor and mediator but the friend of God, Mohammed? They asked, Where is Christ now? Ans. At the right hand of God. This is not true, said they, for he is only in the fourth heaven, while Mohammed is in the seventh, in the very presence of God. They asked impatiently, who I thought Jesus was? I asked, in reply, whether they believed what the angel Gabriel said? To this they replied in the affirmative; upon which I read to them the passage where the angel promises to Mary a son, who was to be called the Son of God. A faquir now charged me with having corrupted the gospel, and this of course settled the question, and explained to their darkened minds how it happened that our Scriptures did not agree with their Koran. This book, which they believe to be a revelation from God, speaks to them of these things in dark and unintelligible sentences, which to them become still darker, and still more unintelligible, as hardly any one has knowledge enough of the Arabic language to translate to himself a single sentence. But their Mullas [religious teachers] supply the defect by relating to them a variety of stories, such as have their foundation not even in the Koran, but are the inventions of writers who lived hundreds of years after Mohammed. Considering how readily and thoughtlessly the people receive these fanciful stories as truth, is it to be wondered at, that they should charge us with the very sin that their writers and Mullas have actually committed. We were not able to do much in this village to our satisfaction, and had to yield the place to their ignorance. . . . . .

"Explanations in Questions and Answers."

Sunday, the 2d.—This morning I explained the three parables of the 15th chapter of Luke to a crowd in a neighbouring village. The hearers were pleased with the explanations, and assented to the truth set forth. As much as possible, I try to put my explanations in questions and answers:

If the shepherd observes that one of his sheep is lost, does he console himself by the consideration that he has ninety-nine left?

No, he leaves the ninety-nine in the desert, and seeks the one that is lost.

Does he soon get tired, and does he give it up readily, if he cannot find it quickly?

No, he suffers hunger and thirst, cold and heat, wearies his feet among stones and thorns, and never gives up his search until he has found his sheep.

And, why?

Because it is his property.

And when he has found it, does he abuse it? does he beat it? does he drive it hastily before him?

No, he pities the poor thing, he sees that it is hungry and thirsty, that it is faint and weary. He takes it upon his own shoulders, carries it home, calls together his friends, and bids them to rejoice with him at having found his lost sheep.

What does the woman do about the lost piece of silver? Does she say, Never mind the one piece, I have still nine left?

No, she cannot rejoice at the nine, from sorrow of having lost the one.

Does she sit down, and put her hands into her lap, and say, What can I do?

No, she can give herself no rest until she has found her lost piece of silver. She lights a lamp, she sweeps the house, she turns everything upside down, till she has found it. And when she has found it, she calls her neighbours and bids them to rejoice with her.

What does the Lord do, when he sees men go astray, when a sinful world forsakes its God and Maker? Does he say, What do I care for the sinner? Is not my heaven filled with holy angels?

No, he says to his only Son, Go, my Son, redeem the world, seek and save those that are lost, bring back to me my lost sheep, seek me that one piece of silver.

And what does the Son do? Does he say, Nay, Father, I cannot go; the world is too wicked, too sinful? Why should I suffer for so degraded a people?

No; obedient to the Father's command, he goes, he takes upon him the form of men, he goes about doing good, he teaches, heals, comforts, forgives sin, ascends the cross, and dies for his lost sheep. He rises from the dead, he carries the lamb to the Father, and bids all the holy angels to rejoice at the sinner that was lost, but is found.

Rahon—Its looks, its changes, its large and noisy audiences.

Monday, the 10th.—During the last week, we have followed the plan originally laid down, of visiting every village within three or four miles south of the river Sutledj. We have preached in four or five villages daily. This morning, however, we have deviated from our course, and crossed the river to visit a town called Rahon, about five miles from the northern bank of the river. Seen from the river, the city presents a somewhat picturesque appearance; which, however, changes as you draw nearer and nearer to the town; and at last, when you enter the narrow streets, and crooked, filthy lanes, with its badly built, low houses, some of them in ruins, you see hardly anything attractive to the eye. As in most of the older towns and cities, you observe distinct marks of former revolutions. There may be an old mosque, built of fine stone, with three domes, but entirely deprived of its former splendour, and one wing of it fast tumbling down. It points to the time when the Mohammedans wielded the sceptre over this part of the land. But their glory was short-lived, and had to yield the palm to the Sikh rule. The Mohammedans, as they had been the oppressors, now felt, in their turn, the hand of the spoiler. Their places for prayer were deserted and neglected, for the Sikhs would not even allow them the privilege of the loud call to prayer, called "Báng," that is, "the crowing of the cock." In another place, on the south side of the river, and therefore in territory that has been for a number of years in the hands of the British, you may observe temples of the Hindoos, or shrines of the Sikhs fast decaying and half-deserted. For though the votaries of such places were not oppressed, or hindered in the performance of their devotions, they yet lacked the active support of the ruling power, and without this, false religions lose their attractions and the appearance of prosperity.

In Rahon we had large but noisy audiences, as fall generally to the lot of the missionary in towns where there are large numbers of boys and idlers in the bazar, that collect in a remarkably short space of time. The boys that can read, as well as those that cannot, look wistfully at the books that we have brought with us; and though they have been told that the books are not for children, and that we should give them only to such persons as were likely to make a proper use of them, each boy in his turn renews his application, and receives a denial. Our congregation consisted almost entirely of Hindoos, but here, also, the few Mohammedans could not suffer us to go on quietly in the delivery of our message. One man especially, and one that was very ignorant, too, gave us a good deal of trouble, and when passages were read to him from the Koran to prove some of our points, he had the effrontery to assert that we did not read correctly, though he himself was unable to read or to translate the Arabic. His sole object seemed to be, to give the Hindoos the idea that we were deceivers, as he knew that they had not the means of testing our veracity. In the evening we returned to our camp on the southern bank of the river, but not until we had preached in two villages by the road-side.

Villages in great numbers—Inquiries about particular missionaries—An aged Maulwi dead.

Machcewárá, December 18th.—Another week has passed, and a busy time we have had. The tract of land we have travelled through is so thickly studded with villages, that we were able to visit frequently six or seven in one day. Most of these were small, and the inhabitants simple-minded people. Though, with few exceptions, all were Mohammedans, we were generally well received, and, at least, quietly listened to. In a few we met with unreasonable opposition, and in one or two instances, we felt like shaking the dust off our feet as a witness against such places. And yet it is, in most cases, nothing but ignorance and long-fostered prejudice, that begets a dislike to the gospel message in the minds of these villagers, and pity, therefore, rather than wrath, should be our feeling towards them.

December 20th.—Yesterday we went to three villages; in one of these the people manifested much good feeling towards us. Some of them inquired after our late brother Porter, of whose decease they had never heard. Another questioned me about brother Newton. Both these brethren seem to be held in affectionate remembrance by these villagers.

To-day we have preached in six villages. In the last, called Coomb, we had a very interesting congregation. Among the crowd there was the son of an old Maulwie, that used to visit the missionaries at Lodiana, and that showed always friendly feelings towards them. In his religious discussions he was always reasonable. He undertook, at last, a pilgrimage to Mecca, and died on the way. The old man knew much of the Bible, but whether he was at last able to look with faith to the Saviour of the world, will only be known when all hidden things shall be revealed. His son, the young Maulwie, seems, thus far, to have nothing of his father's spirit of honest and intelligent inquiry. His acquirements, too, of learning, seem of a very inferior order.

A congregation of old men, well off, who pity the missionary for having no horse.

December 21st.—This has been the busiest morning yet. So many villages lay on our way, or close by, that we had to separate, Qádir Bakhsh visiting three, and I as many more. In the first I went to I found an assembly of some twenty-five people in a large room, around a fire. Most of the people were old men, and from their appearance, and the comfortable way they were wrapt up in their nice quilts, they seemed well to do, so far as earthly comforts went. They were very intelligent men, and listened remarkably well. I felt it a pleasant duty to speak to them. When I left, they asked me where my horse was, and they seemed quite moved with pity when I told them that I had no horse, but made this journey on foot.

The strait gate—Why unjust sentences are passed in the government courts—Brief review of the journey and its labours.

In the second village I found the people still around their fire, it being quite early yet. My hearers, however, were very stupid, and seemed to care nothing for what I said. In the third I found but a few people at the common place of resort. The few, however, swelled soon into quite a respectable number, when the news of my arrival had spread through the village. One of the chief men of the place took a more prominent seat than the rest, and seemed to be on the watch and ready for an attack. I spoke on "the strait gate, and the narrow way," as the path to heaven, and "the wide gate, and the broad road," that leadeth to destruction. The man very soon interrupted me, and said, Well, if you know so nice doctrines, it is very strange that you do not act up to them. I asked what I had sinned against him. He said, You decree unjustly against persons that are innocent, and put them in prison, too; for a couple of years. I asked him who he thought I was. Ans. The missionary from Lodiana. Ques. Well, what have I to do with the acts of government? Ans. You are all one, and all alike. I took here occasion to remark, that it was, alas, too true, that unjust sentences were passed in the courts. Having admitted that much, every eye was bent upon me to see what else I had to say. I then showed that the English officers of the courts were very anxious to do justice, but that the right was perverted by the native officials, and by the help of false witnesses, and that inasmuch as the English were no more the searchers of hearts than the natives, they had to decide according to the evidence that was laid before them. I then asked, why the native officials were such miserable, untrustworthy people? and receiving no reply, I answered the question myself, by stating, that it was because they were Hindoos and Mohammedans. The former paid their respects to the shrines of deities that were dumb idols, and where the priests had nothing else to offer in the shape of instruction, but the admonition, that they, the priests, should be well fed. Again, the latter, the Mohammedans, were taught to say their prayers, to perform their ablutions, to rinse their mouths, etc., but they never heard their Mullas tell them that they should repent of their sins, return what they had acquired unjustly, abstain from uttering lies, live a godly life, and crucify the lusts of the flesh. I then told them of the superstitious observances I had noticed through the whole strip of land that I had travelled in, and this, not among Hindoos, but Mohammedans, and said, that all the troubles and trials they had were only the fruit of their false faith. The man, finding himself attacked on his own ground, gave up at once, and allowed me to go on with my discourse. The people here, also, seemed to be intelligent, and not unacquainted with the gospel.

My itineration is suddenly brought to a close, as my presence is required at the press. There are two villages quite close by, and we hope to visit these in the afternoon, and two more, that lie on our way to Lodiana, which we expect to preach in to-morrow morning. We shall then have passed through one hundred and three villages, including three or four towns, within twenty-six days, and all in close proximity to our station. But what will become of the seed thus scattered? Much, we fear, has fallen by the way-side, or on stony ground; some will be choked by the cares of this world. God grant that some has found good soil, to rise and to bring forth fruit in due season!

MISSION IN JAPAN.

MEDICAL MISSIONARY WORK.

Dr. Hepburn writes from Kanagawa, September 8, 1861, as follows:

My dispensary and hospital has been closed. Its history is short. It was open about five months. At first the patients were few, but they soon increased, so that for the last three months I have averaged about one hundred patients each dispensary day. It was impossible for me, with so little assistance, to keep such a record as is desirable; I can only give you the amounts. I prescribed for some thirty-five hundred patients —not different persons—operated thirty-one times for eutropium, three times for pterygium, once extirpated an eye, five times for hydrocele, removed one tumour on the back, three times for cataract, [besides ten other operations,] all successful but one cataract. I have the pleasure of knowing that I have relieved and cured many, and been the means of doing these poor people much good. They came to me from all the country around, and many from a great distance, as far as one hundred and seventy-five miles.

It has been a deep affliction to them, as well as to myself, to have it interfered with. It is virtually closed, for the government has made it so difficult for patients to come, that they have almost entirely ceased to come. Under the pretence of protecting me from ronings—assassins—they will not allow any one who has not a permit from the Governor to come. The getting of this permit is a very tedious and laborious affair. The sick man has first to go to the Honjin, an official station in Kanagawa; a policeman goes with him to the Governor's office, which is nearly three miles from here, on the road to Yokohama, where he gets a permit. He brings this back to the Honjin, where another officer inspects it to see that all is right; he then comes to the guard-house before the gate of the dispensary, where he gives in his permit, and is allowed to come in. The insincerity of the government is easily seen, for many of my patients are women and children, and many to whom no suspicion could possibly attach. They could, by sending a policeman to inspect the patients, more effectually guard me from evil. I remonstrated all I could, but have not been able to get any change made as yet; so that, not willing to be at such a large expense for nothing, I have notified the landlord that I should give up the temple.

The real object of this interference I think we know very well. It is doubtless the desire to have us all remove to Yokohama. This has been the desire of the government for a long time. They wish to get all foreigners away from the Tokaido, the great public road through which the Daimios pass on their way to Yedo. The English Consulate is to be removed permanently in a few days. The American Consul and ourselves will be the only residents on this side, and they are using every argument to get us to go also. We have no house, nor even a lot to build on, as yet. There is no doubt we shall have to go, and I think before the year is out. We shall also have to build, for there are no houses to be had. . . . . If I remove to Yokohama, I will be allowed, no doubt, to open my dispensary again; so please send me all the medicines, &c., I have sent for. This year, at least, the dispensary will not cost the Board anything, for I have earned enough by my medical practice to sustain it. I cannot depend on this, however, after this year; for if I should live at Yokohama, there being other physicians to call on, I could not practice.

I employ all my spare time on the language, occasionally distributing a copy of the Scriptures in Chinese, and some tracts. . . . . .

Your attached friend,

J. C. HEPBURN.

CORISCO MISSION, AFRICA.

A MISSIONARY JOURNEY INLAND.

The Rev. W. Clemens sends us the following narrative, written after his return from an exploring journey into the interior, and dated at Alongo, September 16, 1861.

On the 10th of June, after making the necessary preparations, I set out from Corisco with the design of exploring the interior to the east. Having the advantage of the wind, we passed rapidly over the water, and brought up, at dusk, at a Boha town, forty-five miles from Corisco. The town was well known, being the same at which brother Mackey and I had passed the night, on a similar visit in 1857.

My first anxiety was, to lay in a supply of fish for the boatmen, for fear there should be a scarcity as we ascended the river. The supply of fish in the town was better than usual, as the people had taken several large fish that day. Supper over, which was served in real African style, and the news of the town and the river exhausted, we dropped some of the precious seed, praying that it might bring forth fruit to everlasting life.

At midnight we left our kind hosts at Iduma, for such was the name of the town where we had rested, and ascended the Utembâni branch of the Muni. Our arrival at Mbenis town, or Dibani, was announced by the boatmen firing their guns. The inhabitants came out and welcomed us by reciprocating our firing. On my last visit I left a teacher at this town, to learn the language, and to make known the truth as he was able. He reported that he had spoken to the people through an interpreter. He had read and explained the Scriptures at worship, and on the Sabbath. The inhabitants had attended regularly on his explanations in the reception house of the town. I was detained two days before the man whom I depended on for my guide returned from a neighbouring town. While waiting, I was able to tell them more fully of the plan of salvation. This is the farthest distance inland that we have located a teacher. The town is situated at the foot of the Sierra del Crystal chain, eighty-five miles from Corisco.

Crossing the mountains.

Having completed our arrangements, we left Dibani for the east, designing to visit a tribe beyond the mountains. Our company consisted of three natives, two women, exclusive of three carriers who came with me from the coast. One man remained at Dibani with the teacher, to take care of the boat in my absence. The women, according to custom in Africa, were the carriers. Each carried a large basket, piled up with plantains, with an addition of cooking utensils, while the men carried their arms simply.

Two hours' travel brought us to the ascent of the Somba, the first range of the Sierra del Crystal chain. The path, which was hardly perceptible in some places, lay along the east side of the Somba, when we had ascended to two hundred feet of the summit. At twelve o'clock our party rested on the banks of a small stream, which took its rise farther up the mountain. Here dinner was served, consisting of boiled plantains. The boiling point of the thermometer gave one thousand three hundred and thirty-one feet above the level of the sea.

At four o'clock we passed between the notch of the Somba and Sanga, following along the east side of the Sanga, which runs more to the eastward. One hour before sunset we reached our first encampment This was a large rock, sixty feet long by fifty wide, supported on each end by two other rocks, thus raising it in the form of a half roof, with one eave on the ground. "Buda ya Sanga," the name of the rock, is capable of sheltering one hundred persons. The range divided at the notch of the Somba and Sanga. The Somba diverged to the west, but our path continued toward the east, along the west side of the Sanga. The thermometer gave, at "Buda ya Sanga," one thousand four hundred and forty-one feet above the sea. The estimated distance travelled to-day was twenty-five miles.

At dawn of day the party set forward. The path descended until we struck a small stream of thirty feet wide, but very shallow; the marks on the banks, however, showed that in the rainy season the water rose to the height of three or four feet. At eleven o'clock our party stopped to take some refreshment before ascending the highest mountain, which lay immediately before us. The mountain is called "Mevea," which signifies fire. No doubt it derived its name from its rugged ascent. At the base of Mevea the thermometer gave one thousand feet above the sea.

Before reaching our present resting-place we crossed a stream seventy feet wide. My guide said that canoes could descend it in the rainy season. The marks on the banks showed that the freshets rose to six or eight feet.

The Summit gained—"The streams turned to the eastward"—An African "best house in town."

After much toil, we reached the summit of Mevea, where, by common consent, we made a halt to rest. The thermometer gave one thousand seven hundred feet on the summit of Mevea. Our guide urged the party forward, telling us that we had a long distance to travel. Onward we went, for, having passed over the ground twice before, I knew that the native towns were far ahead. Not far beyond Mevea the streams turned to the eastward. We followed one of these till a short distance off the native towns. This was the most fatiguing part of the journey, for, with all the care possible, I was thrown into the stream several times by the abrupt banks and slippery stones. With much difficulty, we reached the place of our destination at sunset. Estimated distance travelled to-day, thirty-three miles. Wet and weary, we sought retirement. Our first favour was a brass kettle of cool water, which, without being fastidious to have it served in a more fashionable vessel, was drunk by all the party.

The best house in town was at our command, which certainly contained all the comforts of the place. The dimensions of the house were twenty feet by twelve. The eaves of the roof were four feet from the ground. The door was so narrow that it was necessary to turn the body to press through the doorway. The luxury of a fire in the middle of the house, with no egress for the smoke, was not to be lightly esteemed, though very hard on civilized eyes. The house would have been a place of rest, had the beds been either rough boards, or had they been made with even surfaces. But to lie on bamboo, five inches in diameter, with the only smooth side resting on logs, to keep the sleeper off the ground, while the round side reminded one of an improved manner of doing penance, was too much even for weary limbs to relish.

These inconveniences were made more comfortable by practice. But the almost insatiable desire to see a white man was extremely provoking. The house was crammed to get a sight of the stranger. The crowd eagerly gathered around him in the street. The same whoop and halloo saluted his ears wherever he went. Old and young must have a look at him. Any dirty hand was liable, at any moment, to lay hold of his hair, or give a nip at his beard. He was constantly a subject of remark; even his feet could not be passed by without raising the question, whether the white man had any toes, because, forsooth, his feet were hid in shoes. To bar the door, which had neither hinges nor latch, was too much like being in a cage. Besides, the smoke was your inveterate enemy; and the idea that some rude hand would push the door aside to look at you, was not very flattering to those within. In justice to their inquisitiveness, it must be said, that it was not rude; the kindest feelings were mingled with their anxiety to see the white man, who, they often said, had come a long journey.

How the Sabbath was passed.

Saturday night, of the 15th of June, was the first we passed in our new quarters. The Sabbath abated the excitement of yesterday, except some strangers came from other towns. To become all things to all men, constrained us to submit to many things which would otherwise have been insufferable.

Not knowing whether I could communicate with the inhabitants, I went into the reception house, and had some of them called in. After a little conversation, I was able to speak to them through two interpreters. One heard Benga, and spoke Mbiko or Bondemo, and the other spoke to the audience partly in Bondemo and partly in Pangwe.

The gospel plan of salvation was unfolded to this untutored tribe, who had never felt the genial beams of the Sun of Righteousness in their darkened understandings. Great is the mystery of godliness to them—God manifest in the flesh. Their hearts are indeed hard, but who can tell whether some of them may not be found on the right hand at the great day. To the missionary, it is one of the pleasantest thoughts of his life, that he held up Christ before them for the first, and perhaps the last time. The promise is sufficient to reach even unto them in their native wilds. "My word shall not return to me void." They asked several questions about what was said to them, and showed that they would willingly receive a minister to dwell among them. The Sabbath passed pleasantly.

On the 17th, we visited five more towns of the same tribe. The last town gave two thousand two hundred and twenty-nine feet above the level of the sea. We arrived at the last Pangwe town at twelve o'clock. Estimated distance travelled to-day fifteen miles. According to my computation, we were one hundred and fifty-five miles from Corisco. Having discovered that my guide did not fulfil his promise in taking me in the direction I had desired to explore, I signified to him that I would return to the second town we had visited. He was unwilling to return, and I set out with my carriers, and reached the town at six o'clock. My guide and his followers returned the next day. We made preparations for returning to the coast the day following.

Returning to Corisco—Fears of the people.

We were two days on the road going back. There was the same tedium of travelling. Three natives joined our company, to carry some produce the Bondemoes had purchased. My guide, having neglected to take me in the direction he had promised, knew that he had laid himself open to censure. I told him frankly that he had not fulfilled his promise. When we arrived at Mbenis town he felt that he had partially lost my favour, and was fearful he would not receive pay for his services as my guide. Since our departure, a woman belonging to his family had died. She lived in Ilobi, and had married a man of the Benga tribe. The law of witchcraft would justify the Bondemoes in retaining a man belonging to the same tribe till the matter was settled. Things being so complicated, the men who came with me from the coast began to fear that one of them would be retained in custody. One of them said there appeared no hope of their release; but as the Lord brought the children of Israel out of Egypt against all human probability, if we trusted in him, he could deliver us also. I did not share in their fears, and, as the result proved, there was no particular cause of apprehending trouble. This may be taken, however, as an evidence of our influence among even these heathen bushmen.

On the 20th of June we left our friends at Dibani, and began to descend the river. The teacher remained to explain the word of God to the Bondemoes. We had not gone far before we heard that the Corisco people were expected to enter the river to make war on an offending tribe. None of the boatmen wished to incur the possibility of being shut in the river, and chased by war canoes. Our descent consequently was rapid. I called on my old friend Matevâ, where we had another teacher. He gave us shelter, and we rested our weary limbs. I had determined to spend the Sabbath with him, but the fears of the boatmen prevailed. Matevâ expressed many regrets as we departed, but yielded to our importunity. At eleven o'clock, Saturday night, we reached Large Ilobi, and spent the Sabbath with our licentiate. On Monday, the 24th of June, we landed at Corisco, making the fifteenth day of our journey.

When and how to reach the interior.

The prospects of entering the interior, if that is desirable, must be a work of time. The people of Corisco and the inhabitants living on the river manifest no desire to interfere with our operations. But the more uncivilized tribes, on the head waters of the Muni, are not willing that we should pass by them to form stations. There is a natural division of the tribes made by the great chain of mountains which separate the coast tribes from those east of the mountains. Could our labourers succeed in passing this dividing line, no barrier need be apprehended to the free ingress of the country. At present there is a misapprehension of our design in going through the land, and living in certain localities. They have but one opinion of white men. Indeed, the word, white man, signifies with them, a foreigner who comes to trade. Their trade is their only means of subsistence, and every man expects to become a trade-man, if possible. This false estimate of the missionary, tends to shut up the way to more distant fields of labour.

The native helpers will do much to remove these wrong impressions. As they will be able to live among those unacquainted with the missionary, they will give them a better knowledge of the gospel of Christ. I have good reason to suppose that the matter of trade influenced my guide in the exploration just completed. I am confident he could have no sinister motive, other than an unbounded covetousness. The guides of all our explorations manifest the same uneasiness when a desire is made known to go beyond them. There is no combination formed to resist the advance of the truth; but each individual wishes to "make his fortune" before his neighbour makes his. Kindness and patience will conquer all the wicked devices of Satan to hinder the spread of the gospel.

The exigencies of the mountain region would require a station on this side of the mountains which could communicate with stations on the east and south-east. The Pangwes, who occupy the country east of the mountains, will certainly be down on the Muni in a few years. They would welcome a teacher among them, but they are completely in the power of their neighbours, who hold the highways. A brother would need much of the spirit of Jesus, to be separated from his brethren on the coast and to live among them. But all things are possible with God. He who could raise up the persecutor Saul, and make him a missionary, can baptize his young servants here with the same Spirit. We need not be unnecessarily anxious. The work is the Lord's. There is no doubt but that the influence of the gospel will cross those mountains. The way seems to be prepared already. When the Spirit of God opens the way, "a highway will be there," "that the redeemed of the Lord may return, and come with singing unto Zion."

Yours, &c.,

W. Clemens.

MISSION IN NEW GRANADA.

EXTRACTS FROM A LETTER OF THE REV. W. E. M'LAREN: BOGOTA, OCTOBER 14, 1861.

Happy change in the prospects of the Mission.

. . . I confess I looked forward to your letter with no little foreboding, fearing the treasury might have suffered so seriously as to compel the abandonment of some of the missions, and this one, I thought, being perhaps the most unpromising, would be the first abandoned. Your assurances to the contrary, however, dispelled the fear, and gave us great joy, for, believe me, I do not want to see this enterprise abandoned, and it ought not to be, except from dire necessity. I devote my life to it, and if God gives the country peace, and prolongs my life, I believe I shall see not one, but many Protestant churches established here.

In the dark days of the revolution, I was accustomed to write you very despondingly, and while the circumstances of the country were exceedingly gloomy, I confess my faith in God was too much influenced by them. But I have learned a lesson. I was also prompted somewhat in making such representations by a desire not to present things in an aspect which facts did not justify. Brighter days have come. Earnest hopes have revived, for the future gives some promise. And yet we must continue to look full in the face that same sad contingency of war, anarchy, and confusion, for the Liberals have not yet conquered their enemy, who is conspiring even in Bogota, and has two formidable armies in the North and the West.

[Mr. McLaren gives some particulars here which may now be omitted. Later advices show that General Mosquera's government has been recognised in most of the States.]

In all other parts of the Republic, now "the United States of Colombia," there is peace, and the government moves on smoothly. Arboleda and Jiraldo openly proclaim this to be a war of religion, and their appeals to the fanaticism of the people are highly inflammatory. As a specimen, I translate this from one of them: "The Protestant bishop residing in Bogota was exercising, or could exercise his functions in the Cathedral, sustained by the bayonets of Mosquera; and the doors of this beautiful temple had been closed against the Archbishop!" On the other hand, the Liberals here, justly incensed at the course of the clergy during the war, express strong desires for the reformation of the church and the propagation of true Christianity. They have taken a long step forward in this matter, and I look upon it as the beginning of great things. My opportunities for observation are not the best, but scarcely a day passes that I am not rejoiced and encouraged by evidences that very, very many people are at heart Protestants. I have had interviews with ———, also, in which he expressed warm sympathy with our cause. You are aware that the Papal power in this country has been practically destroyed by the decree of Tuition. The acts and inclinations of the government, the manifestly Protestant tone of the press, the tremendous rebuke the clergy have received, the confiscation of $12,000,000 of monastic property, the remarkable developments of anti-Romanism, &c., make up a very bright picture; but while the facts are all true, an imperfect collocation of them would make a very deceptive picture. I wish these Liberals were as earnest in a desire to know the truth as they are in their rejection of Romanism. But the fact is, the question of religion is entirely a question of politics. Nothing is said about a better religion for religion's sake. There is little or no spirit of inquiry, and what efforts I am able to make are met with the utmost indifference, which I am afraid is the result of blank infidelity. While, therefore, I can report to you many important and encouraging facts, I must also add that immediate results favourable to the cause of our Redeemer do not show themselves. But the way is preparing for gospel triumphs.

Mr. McLaren had opened a depository of books, at which a few copies of the Scriptures were sold in the two preceding months, one to a priest of considerable influence, and "a good many persons had visited the depository, making inquiries, and reading." Services in English and a Sunday-school were kept up on the Sabbath, and pretty well attended. A prayer-meeting in Spanish, and a night-school for artizans, would be appointed when more settled times favour them. At the instance of the missionary, one of the leading newspapers in Bogota published, with commendation, an article headed "Christianity and Republicanism," adapted to the state of the country, from an American book, and translated into Spanish by a civilian of eminence in New Granada. After speaking of these and other matters, Mr. McLaren mentions

A remarkable case of hopeful conversion.

It has been God's good pleasure to give me a soul for Christ. The case is a remarkable one. Mr. M——, son of a very respectable and wealthy Englishman, has resided here for a number of years with his wife, a native of Panama. He has been in business in California and Mexico, also, where he made large amounts of money, and afterwards lost it. Through his father's influence, he was appointed to superintend the Santana silver mines near Bogota. He was very successful, making the first year, by commissions on silver produced, $10,000, and spending it all, and more too, "in riotous living." Infatuated with his success, he kept up a large establishment, giving balls and dinners, and revelling in the best of foreign luxuries. He was a frequenter, also, of gambling houses and other places of iniquity. Of course he overstepped his income, and became involved. . . . . From that period he began to go down hill, plunging deeper and deeper into the worst vices, adding to his previous bad habits that of excessive drinking. Finally he found himself the occupant of a miserable dwelling, without money, friends, or business. His poor wife and child began to lack the necessaries of life. Five weeks ago last Sabbath, he came home to find the dinner table without a morsel on it. He went into his bed-room, put a revolver to his forehead, and discharged it. The interposing hand of God alone prevented the bullet from piercing his brain. It flattened on his skull like a dime, after ploughing its way through the scalp, and lodging beneath it, near the top of the head. I was called to see him the next day, and found him profoundly impressed with the mercy of God in saving his life, and deeply penitent on account of his sin. I have visited him daily until his death, which took place on Sabbath afternoon. I was alone with him until his last breath, when his wife entered. Let me briefly say that Mr. M—— gave pleasing evidences of being born again. I believe he died in the Lord. Whenever he was rational, he expressed to me his entire trust in Christ alone, and earnestly desired to live that he might live to God. Indeed, he confidently expected to recover, until two days before his death; and when I told him that he must die, he calmly resigned himself to the hands of his Heavenly Father. For all this I thank God, and rejoice that he has given me one soul for the first year in Bogota. A gentleman who has known him from his youth, told me he had never known a wilder man. How sovereign and wonderful is the grace that thus singled out a man sunk to the lowest depths of degradation, thrust him back as he attempted to leap into eternity, and gave him time for repentance and reconciliation with God.

MISCELLANY.

THE MISSIONARY LEAVING HIS FIELD.

I have not unfrequently been asked about the trials and sacrifices of missionaries; nor would we affect to conceal that their pathway is beset with manifold self-denials. The missionary's life is a life of wearing care, severe toil, and sore trial and self-sacrifice. It has well been styled a "standing martyrdom," not, however, from hunger, nor thirst, nor nakedness, nor often from the shedding of blood, but from the sorer rending of heart-strings. There are scenes in that life which are never written—which can never be told—but which are experienced and felt through the inmost fibres of the soul. It was my privilege, on my return from Persia, to conduct home with me several fragments of broken families—not unmeaning incidental emblems of the nature of the service. There was in that company an unmarried female missionary, with health prostrated from long, arduous, unremitted, and very successful missionary labours, who must sunder herself from scores of beloved pupils, and other scores who had been such, or been led by her to the cross of Christ, all bound to her as children to a mother, and making the place of their separation a Bochim, as she now turned her face from them toward her own distant, widowed mother, of more than fourscore years!

There was in the same company a deeply-stricken missionary widow, bidding farewell to the grave of her husband. There was a small orphan girl, whose parents and only sister had found their graves on missionary ground. There were two other missionary daughters, sisters, of eleven and thirteen, whose parents, almost a score of years in the field, had the hard lot of parting with their loved offspring at that tender age, and sending them to the opposite side of the globe. That parting was a peculiarly affecting scene. The long-looked-for and much-dreaded hour arrived. The solemn sound of the bells announce the caravan before the door, and the party must file in. The two daughters are now seen hanging on the neck of their fond mother, whose emotions at that moment can better be conceived than described. The caravan is waiting; and the not less feeling father, pale from inward conflict, must summon them away; but for the first time, perhaps, in the lives of those docile children, his voice is not heeded. He must take them by the arm and lead them from the yearning embrace of their mother. Arrived at the door, there comes from one of the departing weepers the touching cry, "O papa, do let me go back and kiss mamma once more!" Wonder not if that father's heart falters. A large concourse of Nestorians, who had assembled to bid us farewell, look on and weep, and smite on their breasts, deeply moved with this affecting form of missionary sacrifice for Christ's sake, and for their sakes; and an aged matron of that sympathizing people raises her voice with the plaintive cry, "Enough! enough! Do not consume that poor mother's heart!"

In that company of fragments of families, on my return, there was yet another missionary child, from a neighbouring mission—a loved daughter, bidding adieu to her aged parents, who have toiled at their post almost forty years, and must part with that cherished solace of their descent to the tomb.

Few know the living martyrdom, in missionary experience, connected with the separation of parents from their children, who are sent to this country, and the desolation of the homeless condition of returned missionaries and their children, and missionary widows and orphans in America, where most of their kindred are, in many cases, in the graveyard, and a new generation in their places. May I be spared the pain of ever again hearing, from a beloved, only missionary child, who had been tossing, between two and three years in this country, without any feeling of home, the touching expression, "I never expect to find a home any more till I find it in heaven."

But I am treading on sacred ground. I have said that the trials of the missionary are not to be told. I may not farther lift the vail, nay, cannot, having passed through too many such ordeals to permit me to describe them.

Yet the missionaries do not complain. With all their sacrifices and self-denials, they account their work a privileged, a glorious work, unspeakably so, nor least of all in their tribulations. If I may be permitted to allude to my own feelings on the trying day of my departure from my missionary field, I should say, that the work never appeared to me so blessed as amid the affecting scenes of that day, to some of which I have referred. There were hallowed joys mingled with those cups of tears, even the bitterest.—Dr. Perkins.

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

In November, 1861.

Synod of Albany.—Pby of Albany—West Galway ch 20; Sab school 5 86; Kingsboro' ch, Eli Leavenworth, 10; Carlisle ch 13; Esperance ch 10; 2d ch, Albany, 368 38; Amsterdam ch Sab school No 4, 1; West Milton ch Fem Miss'y Soc. for Siam Mission school, 20 50 448 74

Synod of Buffalo.—Pby of Rochester City—First ch, Phelps, to con Rev J Faries l m 34 00

Synod of New York.—Pby of Hudson—Hopewell ch 8. Pby of North River—Calvary ch, Newburgh, mo con 36 60; Sab school 13 40, to con Mrs Benjamin Tyler l m. Pby of Bedford—Croton Falls ch Sab school 55 cts. Pby of Long Island—Islip ch 20; Mrs Dr Mowbray 5. Pby of New York—42d street ch mo con 11 89; Brick ch mo con 43 53; Chelsea ch 24 12; First ch mo con 98 41; annual coll, in part, 60; Madison ave ch 5; Sab school, to educate a child, 9 16; Fifth ave and 19th street ch Mission chapel 4 58. Pby of New York 2d—Scotch ch mo con, Sept and Oct, 146; Canal street ch mo con 11; Mt Washington ch 121 15. Pby of Nassau—Astoria ch mo con 22 64; 1st ch Williamsburgh, mo con 32 63; 1st ch Brooklyn, mo con 50 723 66

Synod of New Jersey.—Pby of Elizabethtown—First ch Perth Amboy, 11. Pby of Passaic—Chester ch 30; 1st ch Paterson, 21 87; 3d ch Newark, mo con 52 66, Sab school 6. Pby of New Brunswick—First ch N Brunswick, mo con 31 89. Pby of West Jersey—Cedarville ch Sab school 4 56; Salem ch 20 25. Pby of Susquehanna—Wyalusing and Herrick chs 8. Pby of Luzerne—Wilkesbarre ch 100 286 23

Synod of Philadelphia.—Pby of Philadelphia Central—Central ch Philadelphia, to support a school in Canton, under Dr Kerr, 125; Kensington ch Sab school 20; 2d ch Philadelphia, Youths' Miss'y Soc 82 25. Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Chestnut Hill ch 7; Allentownship ch 35; Catasaqua ch 35; Doylestown ch 15; Norristown 2d ch Sab school 4. Pby of Donegal—Stewartstown ch 5; Hopewell Central ch 7; Waynesburgh ch, add'l, 86 cts. Pby of Huntingdon—Sinking Creek ch 87 75; Spring Creek ch 83 25; Clearfield ch 12 80; Curvensville ch 3 20 523 11

Synod of Baltimore.—Pby of Baltimore—Govane chapel, Baltimore, Miss River's school, to educate a boy at Corisco, 20; Ellicott Mills ch mo con 50. Pby of Carlisle—Rev W B Craig 5; Monaghan ch 7; Petersburgh ch 3 62; Lower Path Valley ch 32 94; Burnt Cabins ch 9 56; Cumberland ch 26. Pby of Potomac—New York Avenue ch, Washington, D C, mo con 40 46 194 58

Synod of Pittsburgh.—Pby of Redstone—Round Hill ch 27. Pby of Ohio—East Liberty ch, Adonijah, balance to con Rev Wm Taylor l. m. 20; Central ch Pittsburgh, Sab sch, to ed a boy at Siam Mission 25; Canonsburgh ch 20. Pby of Clarion—Rockland ch 6 98 00

Synod of Alleghany.—Pby of Alleghany—Brady's Bend ch 7, Sab sch 1; Middlesex ch 10 25, of which from Master Seymour Welsh 75 cts; Miss Rebecca E Welsh 75 cts; Master Albert Weible 5 cents; Mary J Weible 5 cents. Pby of Beaver—Westfield ch Sab sch 10; Little Beaver ch 6 50, Female Missionary Society 9 50. Pby of Erie—Westminster ch Sab sch 4; Franklin ch Sab sch 4 52 25

Synod of Wheeling.—Pby of Washington—Lower Ten Mile ch 26 68; First ch Wheeling 100. Pby of Steubenville—Fairmount ch 5; Monroeville ch 4 36 136 04

Synod of Ohio.—Pby of Marion—Liberty ch 10; Bequest of R Sellers 3. Pby of Zanesville—Salem German ch 10; Newark ch Sab sch 14. Pby of Wooster—Unity ch Sab sch 10 50; East Hopewell and Nashville chs 18. Pby of Hocking—Athens ch 15 80 50

Synod of Sandusky.—Pby of Michigan—Westminster ch Detroit 30 00

Synod of Cincinnati.—Pby of Chillicothe—Washington ch 10; Bloomingburgh ch, for Rev R S Fullerton, India 7. Pby of Cincinnati—First ch Walnut Hills 11 63. Pby of Oxford—First and Third chs Oxford 32. Pby of Sidney—West Liberty ch Ohio 9 69 63

Synod of Indiana.—Pby of Indianapolis—Third ch Indianapolis 55 24. Pby of Whitewater—Sand Creek ch 7 60; Union ch 11; Sardinia ch 5 80 79 64

Synod of Northern Indiana.—Pby of Lake—Constantine ch 9; Valparaiso ch 10 48. Pby of Crawfordsville—West Lebanon ch 2 45 21 93

Synod of Illinois.—Pby of Peoria—Quiver ch 1; Delevan ch 5, Sab sch 1. Pby of Bloomington—Waynesville ch Sab sch 2 9 00

Synod of Chicago.—Synodical collection 11 60; Pby of Schuyler—Hopewell ch 3; Doddsville ch Sab sch 1 74. Pby of Rock River—Freeport ch 15. Pby of Chicago—Willow Creek ch West Sab sch 1 52 32 86

Synod of St. Paul.—Pby of St. Paul—Vermillion ch 2 50. Pby of Owatonna—Owatonna ch 3 5 50

Synod of Iowa.—Pby of Toledo—Toledo ch 5; Salem ch 6. Pby of Dubuque—Independence ch 8 19 00

Synod of Southern Iowa.—Pby of Council Bluffs—Clarinda ch 12; Bedford ch 2. Pby of Omaha—Blackbird Hills ch Nebraska 15. Pby of Fairfield—Libertyville ch 3 32 00

Synod of Missouri.—Pby of Missouri—Glasgow ch 22 00

Total received from churches, $2,898 67

Legacies.—Estate of Jane Armstrong dec'd, Washington Co., Pa., less disc't 88 25; Rebecca Austin dec'd, Fulton Co., Pa. 25 113 25

Seminaries.—Nassau Hall, New Jersey, Philadelphian Society 15 00

Miscellaneous.—A friend to send out new missionaries 2000; Wm W Wakeman to con Self l. d. 100; Miss H W, Washington, D. C., 5; Cash, Iowa 2; "H F L," Philadelphia 5; Brockport, N. Y., ch Joseph Sutphin, to cons Rev Joseph Kimball and Joseph Sutphin l. m's 48; A M S 30; Mrs Phillips, Low Point, Illinois, 1; A Missionary and his wife in China 200; Mrs Isabella W C Commings, to con her son, Neville B Craig l. m. 30; —— 2000; John, a Farmer's boy, made by extra labour 6; Silia Lake, Pa. 5; Miss Isabella Clapp, Milton, Mass. 2; Miss Mary C Latta, Corisco, Africa, 30, of which 20 for Julia Good, Corisco Mission; Mrs E E Townsend, Painted Post, N. Y. 3; Rev Wm Jeffrey, D D, Herriotsville, Pa. 2; Rev William Annan, Alleghany City, Pa. 5; Miss Sarah E Annan 5; Div. Stock Exchange Bank, Pittsbugh, 16; "G B" Cincinnati 11 4506 00

Total Receipts in November, 1861, $7,532 92

Special contributions for Endowment of Waldensian Seminary,

"C C B"	100 00
Previously acknowledged	14,100 00
	$14,200 00

WM. RANKIN, Jr., Treasurer.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Letters relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to Walter Lowrie, Esq., or Rev. John C. Lowrie, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

Letters relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to William Rankin, Jr., Esq., Treasurer—same address.

The Foreign Missionary—Two editions of this publication are printed. The Pamphlet Edition contains 32 pages, and is published monthly, at 50 cents a year for each copy. It is sent free, when desired, to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to the ministers of our churches.

The Newspaper Edition contains a selected portion of the contents of the pamphlet edition. A copy is sent free of charge, except for postage, to the children of each family in every Sunday School making regular contributions to the Treasury of the Board.

Address for either edition, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

Payments of Moneys for the Board may also be made at—

Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D. D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 910 Arch street;
Pittsburg, Pa., Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky., Andrew Davidson;
Memphis, Tenn., J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Mo., David Keith;
Natchez, Miss., Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Va., Henry C. Watkins;
Columbia, S. C., H. C. Bronson;
Augusta, Geo., James W. Davies.

Boxes of Clothing, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board, and should be preceded, or accompanied by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

Overland Mail.—Letters for the Overland Mail are forwarded from the Mission House by the steamers nearest the first and fifteenth of each month. Postage: from New York, to Siam, China, Japan, and Brazil, forty-five cents for each half ounce weight; but if sent by the French mail, thirty cents for each quarter ounce weight; to Liberia and Corisco, thirty-three cents for each half ounce weight; to India, via Southampton, thirty-six cents for each half ounce weight; via Marseilles, forty-two cents for a quarter ounce weight; forty-nine cents for a half ounce weight, sixty-seven for three-quarter ounce weight, seventy-four for an ounce weight, a dollar and five cents for an ounce and a half weight. Letters to be forwarded by the "French mail," or to India "via Marseilles," must be so marked. Postage on newspapers, six cents each. The postage on letters and newspapers must be prepaid. The letters forwarded from the Mission House to each Mission are put in an outside envelope, and therefore stamps should not be affixed to them. The postage is assessed according to the weight of each letter, and may be paid by sending post-office stamps to the Mission House.

Form of Bequest.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the Payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,

No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of Colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record and Sabbath-school Visitor, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., Corresponding Secretary, No. 821 Chestnut street.

All communications, reports, remittances of money, and orders for books, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage, and Business Correspondent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. Engles, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to James Dunlap, Esq., Treasurer.

BOOKS AND TRACTS NEEDED FOR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

Office of the Board of Publication,
821 Chestnut st., Philadelphia, December, 1861.

To the Ministers and Members of the Presbyterian Church.

Dear Brethren—A vast and most important work has, in the providence of God, been placed before his church, and by almost every conceivable motive she is called to undertake its speedy and earnest performance. I refer to the work of bringing the truth of God to bear upon the minds of those who have gone to fight the battles of our beloved country. Half a million of soldiers, and many thousands of sailors and marines, have placed their lives in jeopardy in her defence; and no Christian will fail to desire that they may each and all be supplied with such religious books and tracts as may be best adapted, by God's blessing, to convert and save their souls.

THE BOOKS ARE READY.

The Presbyterian Board of Publication has provided just such books and tracts. Upon the Catalogue of the Board's Publications may be found at least thirty or forty works admirably adapted to form a library for the camp or the ship. Besides these, the Board has recently issued, for the express use of the soldiers, several excellent works. "The Soldier's Pocket-Book" (price five cents) has, within a few weeks, been circulated by tens of thousands in various portions of our great armies. So has the "Soldier's Series" of tracts, (price ten cents;) "The Sinner's Resolve," an admirable card, especially useful in hospitals; sheet hymns; sheet music, &c. These have been received, wherever circulated, not only gratefully, but most eagerly.

THEY ARE EARNESTLY ASKED FOR.

Letters are now coming every day from chaplains, officers, and others, most urgently requesting us to forward packages of these works for distribution among the soldiers in the camps and on shipboard. From the multitude of these letters, I beg the privilege of submitting to the reader extracts of a very few, which he may regard as samples of them all.

FROM FORTRESS MONROE, VIRGINIA.

The following is from a chaplain at Fortress Monroe, Virginia:—"I have constant applications for religious books and tracts. A great many here feel tenderly on the subject of religion, and on the part of all there is a willingness to hear and read on the subject. Indeed, reading matter is so scarce here, that religious books and tracts would be read as a pastime in leisure hours. Many feel that in view of the dangers to which they are exposed, it becomes them to give earnest heed to the things pertaining to their everlasting state. Can you not furnish me with some of your small books and tracts?"

FROM A NEW YORK MINISTER.

The next is from a clergyman in the State of New York: "Please send me a package of small books and tracts to be distributed among soldiers. I can put them to immediate use. At Elmira are several regiments, and we have in my town the nucleus of a regiment which is rapidly forming. Mr. Q——, (for some time a colporteur of your Board,) is connected with the force here, and will, con amore, attend to the work of distribution. I have already given him all the tracts I had. Please send a good proportion of 'The Soldier's Pocket-Book.' I have examined a copy of it, and prefer it to anything of the kind I have seen."

FROM THE UNITED STATES NAVAL ACADEMY.

The chaplain of the United States Naval Academy, which is now located at Newport, Rhode Island, thus prefers his request for a supply: "Would there be any possibility of getting a contribution of your books, suitable for a youth's library, on board the frigate Constitution. I have a little nucleus of a library of religious books for the midshipmen, and wish to get more. In no place would the books be more likely to do good. We have now one hundred and forty lads on board, and, in a month, will have two hundred and twenty. They are hungry for something to read. On Sabbath, time hangs heavy on their hands, and they would read religious books, especially biographies, with avidity. I know the Board is greatly in need of funds, and if you cannot favour us, I will not murmur; but if you can, I will be very grateful for a donation, and so will the officers. A larger proportion of the midshipmen than ever before, are now from Presbyterian families."

FROM A CHAPLAIN NEAR WASHINGTON.

The chaplain of a regiment now stationed in the vicinity of Washington, to whom a box of books and tracts had been sent, thus writes: "The box of books and tracts so liberally donated by the Board to this regiment, is most gratefully acknowledged. It is a material aid; increasing my sphere of usefulness incalculably. The distribution of these precious little messages of good will and grace, procures for me readily an intimate access to nearly a thousand men, and affords suggestive occasions for pastoral effort, far beyond my anticipation. 'The Soldier's Pocket-Book' is just the thing. My supply of it has already run out, and I have constant applications for it. In Colonel P——'s regiment of New York Volunteers, (encamped close to us,) a large number could be happily distributed, if I would furnish them. 'The Soldier's Series' of Tracts, admirably selected and published by the Board, I find are actually worn out, as they pass from one reader to another. Hundreds of men, I know, are reading and re-reading, and pondering a far larger portion of religious truth, by reason of these instrumentalities, in camp, than they did in all their lives before. Can all this precious seed be lost, think you? Indications of immediate good, in manners and morals, I have already witnessed, and my heart has been filled with joy, by having seven men from different companies come to me, after reading the apt suggestions of the 'Soldier's Pocket-Book,' asking direction as to a place for private devotion. For my own and the neighbouring regiments, a large supply of your German tracts and little books are needed. The supply I had ran out directly. Constant applications are being made to me for German books. There are many Germans in each of the regiments here, affording a most favourable opportunity for the circulation of evangelical truth among them.

"The happiest instrument for good that you bestowed upon me, was the large package of the Sabbath-School Visitor. The beautiful type, the pictures, the printed tunes, the short, agreeable stories, and especially its newspaper form, render it most acceptable. The men who were on guard when I distributed the papers, called on me directly after they were relieved, for 'that paper with the tune, sir.' Do send me a large supply of them, from month to month, if the means of the Board will allow.

"The Church has a wide field in the army, and a rare opportunity for attempting a liberal sowing of good seed. She ought to keep our Board abundantly supplied with means, just now, or the opportunity may be lost, and worse, the tares may be most thickly sown. Camp vices, after the war is over, would then, like the scattered seed of the pestiferous thistle, be inevitably carried to a million of homes, to propagate soul-destroying sin. May there be no lack of good seed for this sowing! Every contribution, however small, will enable you to furnish some soldier with that which may save his soul. The chaplains will trudge along the ridges of the field, scattering this 'good seed,' if you will only fill therewith their sacks on the field."

NEED IN KENTUCKY.

Perhaps the most urgently important of all our army fields just now, is Kentucky. A clergyman in that State, who is at work for our Board, writes as follows: "I have made appeals, to a considerable extent, to brethren and churches in our State, for the soldiers. Still, the great armies of the whole country seem to be fast collecting in this State. The soldiers really clamour and beg for religious reading, and ought, without delay, and fully to be supplied. Ought not our Board, as matter of duty, as a matter of privilege, to do its share? Embarrassed by civil war throughout our borders, with these immense armies dividing and covering the State, our own citizens cannot possibly do as much here in this work as ought to be done. Then, again, the great body of the soldiers here are from other parts of the country, and Christian sympathies can be there most naturally awakened for them. I could do almost any amount of work among these men, with but little cost. What shall I do? How much? How can the Presbyterians and others in the regions whence these soldiers come, be reached, and induced to do their share in this great and neediest of all the Christian works now set before us in the whole world?

"We are in daily expectation of great battles here. What we do, we must do quickly."

OUR FUNDS EXHAUSTED.

These are only specimens of the appeals, of which, as has been said, dozens are now coming to us from every part of the land. But what is the Board to do? It is now, and has for months past, been making donations of books and tracts in amounts greatly exceeding its receipts. Nearly two millions of pages of tracts, and many thousands of volumes, have been given away. One hundred and fifty thousand soldiers and sailors, at least, have received gratuitous religious reading from the Board. Its resources are nearly exhausted. Must it cease from this good work? We now send forth this earnest entreaty to our churches, large and small, and to the patriotic and Christian men and women in those churches, and beg them to come to our help. Oh! compel us not to say to these soldiers and sailors, to these officers and chaplains, "Our means are entirely exhausted; we can give you no more books and tracts." Send us your contributions, large or small, for this blessed work.

Let all contributions be sent to JAMES DUNLAP, Esq., Treasurer, No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

WILLIAM E. SCHENCK,
Corresponding Secretary.

The Board of Publication have arranged a SOLDIER'S LIBRARY of seventy volumes, peculiarly adapted for circulation in the army. The catalogue price is $20—$15 cash.

In addition to Tracts prepared expressly for the army, they have a large number in English and German, the distribution of which among the soldiers cannot but do good. They have also music books and sheet music, which are much sought after in the camps.

COLPORTAGE AMONG THE SOLDIERS.

During the month just ended a colporteur of the Board has visited the following named camps, viz.—Curtin, Cameron, Greble, and Wynkoop, near Harrisburg; Crossman, at Huntingdon; and Coleman, at Lebanon; and distributed amongst the troops at the several encampments 280,000 pages of tracts, 4500 copies of the "Soldier's Pocket-Book," and 1000 copies of the "Sinner's Resolve." Eighteen thousand soldiers in all have been supplied with a portion of the word of life.

"It would be impossible to convey any adequate idea of the gladness with which these messages of grace were commonly received, nor of the demand for books, which an utter dearth of reading matter in many of the regiments had produced, the men having gone from home without anticipating their need in this particular. After a short sojourn in camp, the time begins to hang heavy, and the men will read anything in the shape of literature that may chance to fall into their hands, by way of pastime. As soon as it became known that my business in camp was to distribute religious reading, I was followed and beset by crowds of men in every part of the field, begging for books, and especially the 'Soldier's Pocket-Book.' 'Are you done giving out the little books, sir?'—'Have you no more of the little books, sir?' were questions that greeted my ears wherever I went. On one occasion, I was on the field as usual, with my bundle of tracts on hand, and so great was the desire to procure one before the stock should be exhausted, that I was crowded, and a forest of hands were held up, and as many voices calling out, 'Give me one, sir!'—'Give me one, sir!' My system, in the main, however, was to go through the camps by regiments and companies, and thereby omit none.

"The officers in command of the various camps, and indeed all the officers with whom I came in contact, received me most cordially, heartily endorsed my mission, and rendered me every facility in their power for carrying out the objects of my visit. I also received the hearty co-operation and concurrence of all the chaplains whom I met on the ground.

"I have had large opportunities for observing and forming an estimate of the moral, physical, and intellectual qualities of the men comprising the various regiments at these camps, and believe that, in this respect, they will compare favourably with any army in the world. The men possess that rich and ruddy complexion peculiar to the rural and mountain districts of the country, with finely developed features, and every indication of bodily strength, moral courage, intelligence, and respectability. They understand the merits of the question now distracting the nation, and about to be determined by the sword, and cannot fail to give a good account of themselves amid the shout of battle and the shock of arms.

"I observed throughout a most tender feeling on the subject of religion. In every regiment there is a greater or smaller number of decidedly religious men, who have taken a firm stand for Jesus, and they are respected by the others. Indeed, any man who will go boldly and faithfully to speak in the name of Christ, will be respected, and will not be without thirsty hearts and anxious souls to listen to him. In many of the regiments regular prayer-meetings are organized and well attended, while the Sabbath services are crowded by orderly and well-conducted men. In every camp I have visited, the banner of the cross is set up, and multitudes are flocking under it. It is not to be denied, at the same time, that there is also much profanity, but there is not, by any means, as much as might be expected in so large a body of men, removed from the restraints and influences of home, nor do the occasional ebullitions of this vice meet with any encouragement from responsible quarters.

"Upon the whole, my visits to these camps were highly satisfactory and encouraging. The men cannot fail to appreciate the efforts thus so opportunely put forth to sustain and deepen their religious impressions. On this point, a large number of highly interesting letters have been received from officers of regiments, surgeons, and chaplains."

NEW PUBLICATION.

THE LITTLE BROWN BIBLE. By E. L. Llewellyn, author of "Mary Humphrey." "Walter Stockton," &c. Pp. 179. Price 25 and 30 cts. Postage 6 cents.

This is a very excellent little work, and well adapted to teach all young persons the importance of making the word of God a lamp to their feet, and a light to their path. The story is interesting, and well shows how, through privations and trials, it may lead him who loves it to the respect of the world, and the highest enjoyment in his own soul.

DONATIONS RECEIVED FOR THE COLPORTAGE FUND OF THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION, DURING THE MONTH OF NOVEMBER 1861.

Pby of Londonderry—Newburyport 1st ch, Ladies' Association for Colportage 26 50, Ladies' Tract Association 14 50, Donation of T and S Caldwell 20 50, Sab sch 14; A "Female Member" of 2d ch 10	85 50
Pby of Troy—Troy 2d st ch, Sab sch	16 11
Pby of Albany—Schenectady ch	45 00
Pby of Ogdensburg—Oswegatchie ch	8 00
Pby of Genesee River—Warsaw 1st ch 7 12; Caledonia ch 11 75	18 87
Pby of New York—Rutgers st ch, Ebenezer Platt, Esq., 25; Yorkville ch 12; New York 1st ch, "A Friend" 1000	1037 00
Pby of Nassau—Brooklyn 1st ch	125 00
Pby of Passaic—Morristown 1st ch	18 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Trenton 2d ch 1; Pennington ch 17 50; Dutch Neck ch 10	28 50
Pby of West Jersey—Woodbury ch	4 50
Pby of Newton—Mansfield ch	12 00
Pby of Luzerne—Wilkesbarre ch	50 00
Pby of Burlington—Camden 2d ch	4 20
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Norristown 2d ch	4 00
Pby of Baltimore—Franklin st ch 20; Baltimore 2d ch, Rev G P Hayes 30	50 00
Pby of Carlisle—Dickinson ch	10 00
Pby of Marion—Marseilles ch	4 00
Pby of Zanesville—Rush Creek ch	5 00
Pby of Hocking—Athens ch	15 00
Pby of Sidney—West Liberty ch, per Wm Rankin, Jr	6 00
Pby of Rock River—Middle Creek ch	5 00
Pby of Schuyler—Shiloh ch	2 00
Pby of Winnebago—Beaver Dam ch	3 00
Pby of Owatonna—Owatonna ch, Rev H Chapin	2 00
Pby of Sioux—Fort Dodge ch	2 00
Pby of Louisville—New Castle ch, per W G Knight	20 55
Pby of Transylvania—Pleasant Grove ch, per W G Knight	9 35
Pby of Ebenezer—Carlisle ch	5 50
MISCELLANEOUS.
Mrs E E Townsend, Painted Post, 3; Thos Foster, Galena, Ill. 34 75; E B B, Pittsburg, Pa. 1; Chas Wiggins, St. Louis, Mo. 50; Mrs E Drake, per A Martien, 6; Mrs "C and J." Flemington, N. J. 5; "P" 5; Anonymous, Flemington, N. J. 3; Newark, N. J. 5; "A Friend," Wellsburg, Va. 1	113 75
	1709 83

Donations received for the DISTRIBUTION FUND OF THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION during the month of November, 1861.

Pby of Philadelphia—2d ch, from W R Thompson, 5; Media ch, per Rev Alexander Heberton 5 30	10 30
Pby of Donegal—Columbus ch, for soldiers	7 92
Pby of Allegheny City—Central ch	5 00
Pby of New Castle—New Castle ch, from "A Family," for the soldiers in Kentucky	7 00
Pby of Columbus—Columbus 1st ch	25 00
MISCELLANEOUS.
From ———, for the soldiers and sailors of the U. S. Army and Navy 1000; From Seaman's Friend Society, per Rev M Bonhomme 25	1025 00
Total,	2790 05
AMOUNT OF SALES during the month of NOVEMBER	2343 96
Total,	$5,134 01

JAMES DUNLAP, Treasurer.

NOTE.—The donation of two dollars, acknowledged in our December number as from "Muscatine church, Iowa," should have been acknowledged as from Master J. L. Cummins Waters, Muscatine, Iowa.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. H. I. Coe.

Treasurer—Archibald Gamble, Esq.

No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Missouri.

Communications on the subject of Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Donations should be sent to Archibald Gamble, Esq., St. Louis, Mo.; or, if more convenient, to J. D. Thorpe, Esq., Cincinnati, Ohio; A. Davidson, Esq., Louisville, Ky.; S. D. Powel, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Domestic Missions, No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia; T. H. Nevin, Esq., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. J. B. Kirtland, Memphis, Tennessee; or to William Rankin, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Foreign Missions, 23 Centre St., New York.

APPROPRIATIONS FROM THE GENERAL FUND.

No appropriation is made without the recommendation of the Presbytery, or the Church Extension Committee of the Presbytery within whose bounds the church applying for aid is located.

No appropriation is paid until the Board receives a certificate from the Trustees of the church aided, stating that their church lot is properly secured, and that the amount appropriated will complete their house of worship and leave the whole property free from debt.

Appropriations not called for within two years of the date thereof, are regarded as withdrawn.

CHURCH BUILDING.

There is a somewhat common impression that no houses of worship ought to be built now by aid-seeking churches. Those who think so say, "Let our destitute churches get along with temporary accommodations." Let them, say they, await the march of events, and aim simply to live if they cannot prosper. They therefore look upon all church building at present as rash and undeserving of the sympathy and aid of the people of God. There is just so much of truth in these views, that no church unable to build with its own means ought to undertake the work without a most urgent necessity for it. If constrained to build, it ought to do so only after the most careful consideration, and with the best possible management. It ought surely to build only such a house as will meet its present wants with provision for easy enlargement as soon as it may become necessary. These things being granted, the remainder of the impression is both unreasonable and incorrect.

It is unreasonable, because the Church Extension destitutions of our Zion are such as to lead every intelligent man to see that some church building must of necessity be always in progress. A year and a half ago the Board of Church Extension had information concerning about eleven-twelfths of all the churches in our connection. Of these, six hundred and fifty-three were then without any house of worship; two hundred and thirty-two had sanctuaries insufficient for their present wants; and two hundred and sixteen were in debt for their edifices. In other words, fully one-third of all our churches were in a crippled or destitute condition. This state of things, we think, has not very materially changed. We have now the names of nearly five hundred churches in the non-seceded States, who have no house of worship, while about four hundred more are cramped by debt or insufficient sanctuaries. Now it would be strange, indeed, if a considerable number of these nine hundred churches did not each year come to the crisis of their fate, and find it necessary to build, pay their debt, or disband.

The impression is not only unreasonable, but incorrect. Of the forty-three applications for aid filed since the first of April last, twenty-two were in behalf of churches that felt urged by a pressing necessity to undertake building this year. This number would have been considerably increased if the financial condition of the Board had warranted any hope of obtaining aid. Indeed, weighty reasons now press many churches to arise and build. Some of these allow us to present, or rather to suggest,

1. In the first place, the necessities of ministerial support have become, and are likely to continue, most pressing. This great problem, whose solution has always taxed the American church, has now assumed, in many places, a most alarming aspect. With home resources diminished and missionary aid curtailed, many ministers are likely to be forced from their fields by want of bread. Now, all experience shows that the possession of an unincumbered sanctuary in most cases greatly increases the ability of a church to support its ministers. This it does chiefly by increasing the congregations. That increase, in many cases, has been so great as to treble or quadruple the attendance on the sanctuary. The very large array of facts we have gathered heretofore, shows that a suitable sanctuary, free from debt, on the average, doubles the congregations that wait upon the preaching of the gospel. In view of this ascertained fact, not a few of our churches would be glad to make a desperate effort to secure a house of worship, if they could be assured of a reasonable amount of aid from the Board. Otherwise they have before them the speedy prospect of losing a preached gospel.

2. In the second place, many of our churches are now compelled to build, or abandon further effort to keep up their church organization. This arises partly from the reason already given, and also from the conviction that further effort without a sanctuary is well nigh hopeless. No minister or people who have not tried the experiment of attempting to build up a church without a suitable sanctuary, or under the pressure of a debt they cannot remove, can appreciate the dreary hopelessness that at length settles down upon those thus situate. They have tried the task of rolling upwards the stone that always rebounds before it reaches the top of the hill. They know the small chance of filling the seive, however bountifully the streams of effort may be poured upon it.

3. True economy now urges many to build. In these times, when the Board of Domestic Missions is so embarrassed, many of its missionary churches see that even a humble sanctuary would probably enable them to relieve that Board, in whole or in part. They remember and know the truth of the statements made by a late Secretary of the Domestic Board, when he said in the last General Assembly, "he was persuaded that if the brethren could look at this church building enterprise from the stand-point which he had long occupied, they would be convinced that it was TRUE ECONOMY, even in regard to other Boards of the Church. Very much of the missionary funds of the Domestic Board is absorbed in sustaining missions which would soon be self-sustaining if they had suitable churches. Many enterprises, that promise at first great success, are abandoned for want of houses of worship; whereas if they had houses, they would not only be sustained, but would be able to support themselves. We are constantly called upon, in the Board of Domestic Missions, to continue or to increase appropriations because the people are burdened with church debts. Either the want of edifices, or the burden of debt on those that have houses, is the great cause of continued demands on the Domestic Board. The very best method of economizing the missionary funds, is to build houses. Build houses, and they will find occupants who will rent pews and sustain the missionaries."

(To be continued.)

FORM OF A BEQUEST TO THE BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

I bequeath to my executors the sum of ——— dollars, in trust, to pay over the same in ——— after my decease, to the person who, when the same shall be payable, shall act as Treasurer of the Board of Church Extension of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, located in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, to be applied to the uses and purposes of said Committee, and under its directions, and the receipt of the said Treasurer shall be a full and legal acquittance of my said executors for the same.

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY THE BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION, DURING THE MONTH OF NOVEMBER, 1861.

RECEIPTS AT ST. LOUIS.

Pby of Albany—Amsterdam Village ch (special)	29 26
Pby of New York—New York 1st ch in part	1000 00
Pby of New York 2d—Scotch ch New York (136 special)	583 00
Pby of Nassau—Wallabout ch (special)	25 00
Pby of Troy—Stillwater ch	28 00
Pby of Long Island—Sag Harbour ch	15 09
Pby of New Brunswick—Cranberry 2d ch (special)	25 00
Pby of Northumberland—Mahoning ch in Danville (special)	30 00
Pby of Columbus—London ch 5; Mifflin ch 5 18	10 18
Pby of Indianapolis—Knightstown ch	10 00
Pby of Dubuque—Sherrold's Mound German ch	4 25
Pby of St. Louis—St Charles ch	10 15
Pby of California—Calvary ch, San Francisco (special)	200 00
At St. Louis,	$1969 93

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Londonderry—Londonderry ch	12 68
Pby of Genesee River—Caledonia 1st ch	11 75
Pby of New Brunswick—Titusville ch	20 00
Pby of Philadelphia—Ridley ch 3 50; Chester ch 11; Seventh ch 68 91	83 41
Pby of Hocking—Athens ch	10 00
Pby of Owatonna—Lake City ch	2 00
Pby of Sidney—West Liberty ch (per Wm Rankin)	6 00
From churches,	$145 84

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rev H Chapin, Owatonna, Minn. 2; Mrs E E Townsend, Painted Post, N. Y. 3; A Friend, N. York (per Rankin) 20	25 00
At Philadelphia,	$170 84

FOR CHILDREN'S CHURCH.

Sab sch of Baltimore 1st ch	10 00
Sab sch of Mount Holly ch, Burlington Pby	10 21
Sab sch of 2d street ch, Troy, N. Y.	10 00
Sab sch in Mt Vernon, Ohio	16 75
Sab sch of Eau Claire ch, Chippewa Pby	2 00
Sab sch of Hazleton ch, Luzerne Pby (per Powel)	5 00
For Children's Church,	$53 96
Total Receipts in November,	$2194 73

ARCHIBALD GAMBLE, Treasurer.

Ecclesiastical Record.

CALLS.

Mr. John Barrows has accepted a call to the Second Amwell Presbyterian church, N. J.

The Rev. S. J. Milliken, of the Presbytery of Florida, has accepted a call to the Presbyterian church at Newtown, Pa.

The Rev. F. D. Harris, of Bristol, has received a call to the church of Port Byron, N. Y.

The Rev. N. W. Conkling has received a call to the Scots church, Philadelphia.

The Rev. J. B. Davis has received a call to the church at Bridesburgh, Pa.

The Rev. Dr. Pease, President of the University of Vermont, has accepted a call to the First church, Rochester, N. Y.

The Rev. J. H. Frazee has accepted a call to the church at Tom's River, N. J.

The Rev. John E. Annan has received a call to the First church, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Rev. J. T. Smith, D. D., has received a call to a new church in Baltimore.

The Rev. William T. McElroy, late of Maysville, Ky., has temporarily taken charge of the Walnut street church, Louisville, Ky.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

The Rev. David Henry Barron was installed pastor of the Presbyterian church of Hollidaysburgh on the 12th of November.

Mr. H. H. Dobbins was ordained as an evangelist, by the Presbytery of Omaha, on the 15th of September.

The Rev. S. H. McMullin was installed pastor of the church at Smithtown, Long Island, on the 16th of November.

Mr. Wm. George was ordained and installed pastor of Springfield church, by the Presbytery of Ebenezer, on the 1st of November.

The Rev. James A. Paige has resigned the pastoral charge of the Park Avenue church, St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. Robert Taylor has been ordained and installed pastor of the church at Warren, Pa.

The Rev. Villeroy D. Reed, D. D., was installed pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Camden, N. J., on the 29th of November.

Mr. William H. Dinsmore was ordained and installed pastor of the church of Silver Springs, by the Presbytery of Carlisle, on the 19th of November.

The Rev. A. C. McClelland was installed pastor of the Fourth church, Pittsburgh, on the 21st of November.

Mr. L. Y. Graham was ordained to the ministry by the Presbytery of Blairsville, on the 2d of October, and installed pastor of the church at Somerset, Pa.

Mr. John J. Pomeroy was ordained and installed pastor of the church of Dover, Del., by the Presbytery of Lewes, on the 27th of November.

The Rev. Joseph F. Jennison was installed as pastor of the Old-school Presbyterian church at Pontiac, Michigan, on the 20th November.

LICENSURE.

Mr. George F. Cain has been licensed to preach the gospel by the Presbytery of Carlisle.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESSES CHANGED.

Rev. C. H. Heckman from Brownsville to Nebraska City, N. T.

Rev. S. H. McMullin, Smithtown Branch, N. J.

Rev. John Barrows, Lambertsville, N. J.

Rev. S. J. Milliken, Newtown, Pa.

Rev. W. J. Gibson, D. D., Chaplain of 45th regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers, care of Col. Welsh, Washington City.

Rev. J. H. Vancourt from St. Louis to St. Charles, Mo.

Rev. D. T. Carnahan from Baltimore, Md., to Fayetteville, Pa.

Rev. J. H. Frazee from New Brunswick, N. J,. to Tom's River, N. J.

Rev. John Caldwell from Eckmansville to Twenty Mile Stand, Ohio.

Rev. Myron Barrett from Stroudsburg, Pa., to Newton, N. J.

Rev. J. C. Abbott from Rocheville to Huntsville, Mo.

DEATHS.

The Rev. Archibald Tudehope, at Philadelphia, on the 6th of December, of constitutional decay, aged about 60.

The Rev. H. G. Comingo, D. D., at Steubenville, Ohio, on the 1st of December, of diphtheria.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Southern General Assembly.—This body assembled at Augusta, Georgia, on Wednesday, December 4th. The Rev. Francis McFarland, D. D., was elected Moderator by acclamation.—Presbyterian.

☞ The Stated Clerks of Presbyteries who have not received blanks for their returns to the next General Assembly, can be supplied with them, by applying to Peter Walker, 821 Chestnut street, who will attend to the duties of Dr. Leyburn, in his absence.

FUND FOR DISABLED MINISTERS, AND THE NEEDY WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

The following amounts have been received since the last report, viz.

From	Sugar Creek church, Allegheny Pby,	5 00
"	Mill Creek church, Allegheny Presbytery,	4 00
"	Ebenezer church, Allegheny Presbytery,	2 00
"	Clintonville church, Allegheny Presbytery,	3 50
"	Wilmington 1st church, New Castle Pby,	28 00
"	Oxford church, New Castle Presbytery,	3 00
"	Mifflin church, Columbus Presbytery,	5 32
"	Blendon church, Columbus Presbytery,	3 00
"	Westminster church, Columbus Pby,	20 20
"	Slateville church, Donegal Presbytery,	14 68
"	Lancaster church, Donegal Presbytery,	29 35
"	Pleasant Prairie church, Palestine Pby,	2 42
"	Kilgore church, Steubenville Presbytery,	3 00
"	Princeton 2d ch, New Brunswick Pby,	54 68
"	Salem church, West Jersey Presbytery,	55 00
"	Green Castle church, Crawfordsville Pby,	8 00
"	Newburgh church, North River Pby,	40 00
"	Lewistown church, Huntingdon Pby,	16 39
"	Huntingdon church, Huntingdon Pby,	85 00
"	West 23d street church, New York Pby,	36 11
"	Fifth Avenue and 19th street church, New York Presbytery,	912 71
"	West Liberty church, Sidney Presbytery,	6 00
"	Mount Pleasant church, Redstone Pby,	10 00
"	Lansingburgh 1st ch, Troy Presbytery,	24 43
"	Wheeling 1st church, Washington Pby,	47 00
"	Camden 1st church, Burlington Pby,	21 67
"	Franklin street ch, Baltimore Presbytery,	15 00
"	Westminster ch (in part) Baltimore Pby,	55 72
"	Rye church, Connecticut Presbytery,	15 45
"	Concord church, Erie Presbytery,	4 00
"	Athens church, Hocking Presbytery,	10 00
"	Gettysburg church, Carlisle Presbytery,	6 25
"	Galena South church, Rock River Pby,	33 50
"	Clatsop church, Oregon Presbytery,	2 60
"	Clarksville church, Beaver Presbytery,	4 00
"	Fond du Lac church, Winnebago Pby,	8 00
"	Hanover church, Madison Presbytery,	4 06
"	Pleasant Township church, Madison Pby,	3 50
"	Indianapolis 1st ch, Indianapolis Pby,	20 08
"	A Friend to the cause in New York,	50 00
"	Matthew Kean, Esq., of Bridgeton, N. J.	20 00
"	Mrs. Snowden of Princeton, N. J.	10 00
"	Friends at Adams Mills, Ohio,	3 00
"	Miss Mary C. Latta, of Corisco Mission,	10 00
"	Mrs. Charles E. Kelso, of Clinton, Conn.	50
"	"E. B. B.," of Pittsburg,	1 00
"	"A. M. S.,"	30 00
"	"A Friend," (per S. C. Hepburn,)	10 00
"	Rev. William J. Blain, of Albany Pby,	5 00
		$1713 02

Geo. H. Van Gelder,
Treasurer, Trustees of General Assembly,
Office, No. 320 Walnut Street.
Philadelphia, December 16th, 1861.

FORM OF BEQUEST FOR DISABLED MINISTERS OR FAMILIES OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

I give and bequeath to my executors hereinafter named —— dollars, in trust, nevertheless, that they shall within —— months after my decease, pay the same to George H. Van Gelder, Treasurer of the Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, or to his successor for the time being in said office, for the use of such disabled ministers, and their families, as the said, The Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America shall or may designate.

Nota.—This form will do for a pecuniary bequest. If stocks, or land, or other property is given, the phraseology should be modified to suit the case.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST

TO ANY OF THE

BOARDS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The State Laws differ so much that no one form will answer in all the States, but in every case it is essential to give the RIGHT CORPORATE NAME.

The oldest Board was originally called the Board of Missions, but is now incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania under the title of "The Trustees of the Board of Domestic Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

Of the Board of Education the corporate name is, "The Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

The Board of Foreign Missions is incorporated under the laws of New York, under the style of "The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

The Board of Publication is incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania under the style of "The Trustees of the Presbyterian Board of Publication."

The Board of Church Extension of the General Assembly is not incorporated, but the following form of bequest, it is supposed, would be valid.

I bequeath to my executors the sum of —— dollars, in trust, to pay over the same in —— after my decease, to the person who, when the same shall be payable, shall act as Treasurer of the Board of Church Extension of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, located in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, to be applied to the uses and purposes of said Board, and under its directions, and the receipt of the said Treasurer shall be a full and legal acquittance of my said executors for the same.

When real estate or other property is given, let it be particularly described.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN REGARD TO COLLECTIONS.

Whereas, Many of our churches do not contribute to our benevolent enterprises, and whereas, it is desirable to test the power of simultaneous effort; and whereas, an emergency has arisen, requiring the coöperation of all our churches to save our Boards from serious embarrassment, therefore,

Resolved, 1. That this Assembly earnestly request all our churches that have no fixed times for the purpose, to take up annual collections as follows, viz.

For the Board of Domestic Missions on the first Sabbath of November.

For the Board of Foreign Missions on the first Sabbath of January.

For the Board of Education on the first Sabbath of March.

For the Colportage Fund of the Board of Publication on the first Sabbath of May.

For the Board of Church Extension on the first Sabbath of July.

For the Disabled Ministers' Fund on the first Sabbath of September.

Resolved, 2. That when the annual collections cannot be taken up on the days above designated, it be recommended to take them up as soon thereafter as possible.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Domestic Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, Publication, and the Board of Church Extension, and is issued monthly in newspaper form at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at Twenty-five Cents a year: and all churches of less than fifty families at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, Mr. Peter Walker, 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

Postage, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance at office of delivery.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling and Pittsburgh.

An Offer.—Any missionary, colporteur, or other person, procuring new subscribers to the Record at 50 cents each, shall be entitled to 20 per cent. for each such subscription procured and prepaid.

CONTENTS.

Board of Domestic Missions.—Clothing, p. 1. State of the Funds, p. 1. Striking Utterances from a Layman, p. 1. Effects of the Crisis, p. 2. Lights and Shadows, p. 2. Receipts, p. 3.

Board of Education.—I. Ministerial Education. The New Year, p 4. Missionaries the Gift of God, in answer to the Prayers of his People, p. 4. How our Fathers viewed it, p. 5. Dr. John Breckinridge, p. 5. Dr. Emmons on Preaching, p. 6. II. Christian Education in Schools, Academies, and Colleges. p. 6. Receipts, p. 6.

Board of Foreign Missions.—Recent Intelligence, p. 7. "Watchman, what of the Night?" p. 7. What more we could do, p. 7. Lodiana Mission: Journal of Rev. A. Rudolph, p. 8. Mission in Japan, Medical Missionary Work, p. 9. Corisco Mission: a Missionary Journey Inland, p. 9. Mission in New Granada, Letter from Rev. W. E. McLaren, p. 11. Miscellany: The Missionary leaving his Field, p. 11. Receipts, p. 12.

Board of Publication.—Books and Tracts needed for Soldiers and Sailors, p. 13. Colportage among the Soldiers, p. 14. The Little Brown Bible, p. 14. Receipts, p. 14.

Board of Church Extension.—Church Building, p. 15. Receipts, p. 15.

Miscellaneous.—Ecclesiastical Record, p. 16.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME XIII. No. 2. | PHILADELPHIA, FEBRUARY, 1862. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

MISSION ROOMS,
No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. Tho's L. Janeway, D. D.
Treasurer—SAMUEL D. POWEL.

LETTERS relating to Missionary Appointments and other operations of the Board, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 910 Arch street, Philadelphia.

CONTRIBUTIONS should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:

ANDREW DAVIDSON, Louisville, Ky.

WILLIAM RANKIN, JR., Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

OUR FISCAL YEAR ENDS MARCH 1ST.

This number of the Record will be the last issued before the close of our financial year, and we avail ourselves of the opportunity to press upon our readers the great importance of sending forward, without delay, their contributions. Unless they are sent before the last day of February, they cannot appear in the Report of this year. The treasury has been embarrassed all the year. We commenced with a large debt, and have had to struggle in the face of the financial storm. Missionaries have been compelled to wait for their remittances for three months; a long period. Many have suffered much. Now our hope, under God, is in the churches. If they come up to our help, we shall be able, at least, to meet our obligations to the missionaries, and close the year with the payment of all their salaries due March 1. May we hope for this? May we hope to enter a new financial year with our debt greatly reduced? The churches can determine this.

NOTICE.—SPECIAL REPORT.

The form of a Special report will soon be forwarded to all our missionaries. In case any should miscarry we insert the form in this number of the Record.

We respectfully request the brethren to be prompt and punctual in filling the blanks, and returning the report to this office. If all will so oblige us, the Annual Report for the General Assembly will be more complete, and the statistical information be spread before the churches. Reports received after March 20 cannot be included in the Annual Statistical Table. Let all be prompt in this important matter.

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS,
No. 910 Arch Street,
Philadelphia, February, 1862.

Rev. and Dear Brother—The period is again approaching when we shall be called upon to render to the General Assembly a report of the operations of the Board of Domestic Missions throughout the year; and as the results of the labours of our brethren in the missionary field must, necessarily, occupy a prominent place in that report, we forward to you the annexed form of a Special Report, which contains the various items on which the General Assembly desires information. Will you be so good, therefore, as not only to give us some information on each item introduced, but also make that information as full and as accurate as may be in your power. We would ask it as a special favour, that you pay particular regard to statistical information; and should you be in possession of any interesting facts connected with your missionary work, that you would insert them under the head of "General Remarks." Your report will, of course, include the amount of labour performed, under the appointment of the Board, from the first of March, 1861, or, if appointed since that time, from the date of your commission.

As it will require some time to reduce into one the numerous reports furnished by our missionaries, we earnestly request you, after filling up the blanks, and completing your annexed Special Report up to the first of March, 1862, or to the end of your commission, if it should close sooner, to return it immediately after date, in an envelope, to the Secretary of the Board at Philadelphia. Your punctuality in this matter will greatly oblige us.

Sincerely and affectionately yours,

T. L. JANEWAY,
Corresponding Secretary.

☞You will please not introduce into your Special Report any other business than that which properly belongs to it. Otherwise, in the press of engagements in the office, it may be overlooked. And, should your quarter's salary be due at the time that you are forwarding your Special Report, do not expect payment on that report; but make a separate report for the quarter, and you will not be omitted in the regular payments of the office.

FORM OF SPECIAL REPORT.

Months of labour performed under commission from the Board, from March 1st, 1861, to March 1st, 1862.
Number of Congregations and Missionary stations supplied between March 1st, 1861, and March 1st, 1862.
Names of Congregations, &c.
Within the bounds of what Presbytery.
Churches organized between March 1st, 1861, and March 1st, 1862, and names of the same.
Number of Sabbath-schools in operation, (not Union Schools,) between March 1st, 1861, and March 1st, 1862.
Number of Teachers in schools during same time.
Number of Scholars in schools during same time.
Catechetical and Bible classes during same time.
Have you weekly Prayer-meetings?
Attendance on public religious services, whether good, bad, or indifferent. Please answer under one of the three heads.
Number of Baptisms between March 1st, 1861, and March 1st, 1862.
Additions on Examinations between March 1st, 1861, and March 1st, 1862.
Additions on Certificate between March 1st, 1861, and March 1st, 1862.
Total in Communion on the 1st of March, 1862.
Number of Coloured Communicants.
Amount paid over to the Board of Domestic Missions, from March 1st, 1861, to March 1st, 1862.
Amount paid over to the Board of Education, from March 1st, 1861, to March 1st, 1862.
Amount paid over to the Board of Foreign Missions, from March 1st, 1861, to March 1st, 1862.
Amount paid over to the Board of Publication, from March 1st, 1861, to March 1st, 1862.
Amount paid over to the Board of Church Extension, from March 1st, 1861, to March 1st, 1862.
Amount paid to other objects not including salary, from March 1st, 1861, to March 1st, 1862.
Are your collections for the different benevolent schemes of the church reduced to a system, and what is it?
What salary do your people promise towards your support, in addition to what the Board gives?
Has your church become self-sustaining this year?
What prospect of your church becoming a self-sustaining church?

☞NAME AND POST OFFICE ADDRESS (IN FULL.)

P. S.—Are you in want of clothing? If so, what family have you? Be particular to give height, age, sex, and general size of each member. Name any article of which you are in special need. We rarely have boxes of clothing on hand; but, when we receive the desired information, we furnish it from time to time to such Ladies' Sewing Societies as indicate a willingness to engage in preparing clothing. For some of the applicants we secure relief at once, for others we do not succeed in procuring it till Fall or Winter.

The following, from a missionary long in the field, endorses all we have said about missionary boxes. We saw this brother at a western Synod lately, and he had on, and in good repair, a coat which, three years before, had been sent him by some of our kind female friends. Such charity is cheap, and brings large blessings.

MISSIONARY BOXES.

"The Secretaries of our Board of Missions, in their Report for 1860, make the following remarks, viz., 'From statements made to us by the missionaries, we have reason to know that the clothing received by them has excited their liveliest gratitude.' None but those who have received aid in this way, know fully how to appreciate the remark contained in the above extract. Not that Christians in more favoured situations are destitute of feelings of sympathy, or ignorant of the fact, that some of the most faithful labourers in Christ's vineyard are toiling upon very scanty salaries. But, with all their knowledge of circumstances, with all their feelings of sympathy and tender interest, they are still unable to appreciate fully the relief that such donations bring to the home of the missionary. The writer has been a missionary for many years, and more than once has he beheld the approach of a long winter with feelings of the deepest anxiety, as to how his wife and little ones were to be supplied with suitable clothing for such a season of winds and storms. His salary, small at best, has wasted away from oft-repeated demands, until he hardly knows how to secure the food necessary to comfort, much less the clothing. But in his extremity he finds a letter in the post-office from the Secretary of the Board, informing him, that the ladies of A—— church, in some more favoured quarter of God's heritage, have prepared a "box of clothing" for himself and family, and it is already on its kind errand; there is the money to pay the freight. He will not attempt to describe his feelings at the receipt of such news. He hastens home to tell his wife and children; and more than once have they wept and prayed together, and together thanked God for such kind friends, whom they are not likely to see to thank in person. Yea, as we pen these lines, the tears force themselves to our eyes, at the remembrance of such seasons.

The box, long looked for by the juvenile members of the house, at length arrives. The scene at the opening is truly affecting. We have seen one after another of the wants of a family met, almost as completely as though a messenger had been there to seek out those wants. If ever we have thanked our Heavenly Father for temporal blessings, we have done it for those received in this manner.

In the following language, from the same report quoted above, we would say, 'The ladies, who are chiefly occupied in this work of benevolence, may rest assured that their labour of love is highly appreciated.'"

L. W. C.

A MISSIONARY IN PENNSYLVANIA.

November, 1861.

With the last of the last month, another year's labour performed by the writer, under the care of our Board of Domestic Missions, terminated, when I should have reported; but having been, just at that time, absent from home, in my distant field of labour, I found it impossible to do so till now. And although I write under very discouraging circumstances, so far as pecuniary aid is concerned, (as the Board has been unable to pay me my last quarterly appropriation,) yet as I am still under its care, I still write to it, that it may know how one, at least, of its missionaries is progressing with work over which it is its legitimate province to have an oversight. The Board may, by the soreness of the troubles which have come upon our land in these last days, be crippled in her efforts to do good, and her breadth of willingness in affording help to her missionaries be contracted; yea, she might even terminate her existence as a Board, if I might suppose such a thing of such an ecclesiastical power for good; but the good she has done, and is now doing, will occupy a broad and bright page in the work of redemption. Her memory and her name shall last when time shall have ceased to roll. The thousands of saints standing around God's throne, saved through the instrumentality of her missionaries, will be full proof of her usefulness—persons who might not have heard the gospel had it not been for her. Oh! sir, the Board is of God, and though it is unable to meet its present liabilities to its poor missionaries, who are in much need of money as a means of support, yet it has weathered so many storms, and lived in so many hard times, and wrought wonders in them all, for God still helped it, it will survive the weighty blow that has lately come upon it. God, in many ways, has proved to us, long ago, that he hath chosen her. She seems now merely to be sympathizing with all that is excellent in our country, because of the weight of trouble these have to sustain. Like our country, she was appearing to her supporters, as it was to its citizens, so mighty and powerful that it could almost continue to exist without our support. God has come forward to let the members of our churches and our citizens both know, that it requires all to work, and work, too, in the proper way, if either the Board or the country will be brought to flourish, or even to continue their existence. We poor missionaries will suffer, not only from the inability of the Board to pay us, but also, with the general ministry, from the deficiencies in our own charges. We must suffer exceedingly, then. Ministers who are in no way dependent on the Board, suffer merely from the pressure of hard times on their charge; we suffer both from the pressure of hard times on the Board, and also on our charge. But if God will bless us in our labours, this will yield us such comfort that we—I for one—will practise the closest economy, and be comforted with this, "God is a present help in every time of trouble." Stop! I quoted the verse incorrectly. It is far more encouraging in its import than that. It is, "God is a very present help in time of trouble." I know him to be of such a character. He has proved these words to be true. Supported by his hand, both temporally and spiritually, I have laboured for the last three months with usual success. True, with many of our pastors and missionaries, I have to lament that there is not the same degree of attention given to the things of God within these late days that I had the pleasure of informing the Board of a few years ago. When we should be close with God, walking in all his ways, I know we have given our time and attention to other pursuits. Now the war and its phases, its latest news, its bearing in the future on this and that, are the absorbing topics of the day. I think religion has become jealous that other subjects were thought and talked of more than she was, and, for the present, has ceased to work so mightily as formerly. I preach, and keep my people together, and wait and pray, and pray and wait, till God comes down with his Spirit, and demonstrates his power and willingness to revive drooping graces, and call dead souls to life.

Many of our young men have gone to the war, and we miss their presence in the congregation; their seats are empty, and there are but few of the same class to fill them. In Mount Vernon congregation, (we used to call it Pinegrove church, but since the organization of a church Mount Vernon,) I am encouraged beyond measure. I scarcely had the faintest idea that I would meet with such success in that field. Every time I visit the field, and that is once every three weeks, the people become more attached to me, and show their attachment by the manner in which they flock around me after service, and the strength with which each will press his or her invitation upon me to visit them. It shows that I am gaining their confidence, and hence, being prepared to do them much good. I was an entire stranger to that people the day I started from my place of residence in E——n to visit that field, and see what I could do for the cause of religion, as we advocate it; and from that day until now there has been nothing to discourage me. Some, even, are astonished, who were members of the Presbyterian church, and who had moved into that settlement a few years before I visited it, that I have progressed so rapidly. I would be exceedingly sorry to be under the necessity of leaving that field, and losing what we have gained there.

ONE JEWEL MORE GATHERED.

I have this day stood by a deathbed, and looked upon the corpse of a young and lovely woman, with her dead babe lying beside her. Amid the trials of pastoral life, in a field in many ways discouraging and unpleasant, it is a sweet comfort to remember, that the dear lady who has been unexpectedly stricken down, in the bloom of her youth and health, was one of a number who have been persuaded, since the Board enabled me to commence preaching here, to forsake the world, and to take up the cross, and follow Christ. Oh, the joy of being instrumental in preparing for the heavenly felicity even one immortal soul!

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia during the month of December, 1861.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Troy—Lansingburg First ch	175 13
Pby of Albany—Albany 1st ch 120 53, of which 25 from J S Rider; Rockwell's Falls ch 4 57, of which 1 from the Sab sch; Conklingville ch 69 cts; Rev J A Patterson 5; Bleeker ch 3; Rev W J Blain 5; Saratoga Springs ch 50 95; Kingsboro' ch 81, (from D B Judson 5, W J Peacock 75, T S Stanley 1); Tribes Hill ch 2; Mariaville ch 25, of which 15 from Rev D Lyon; Jewett ch 10	307 74

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Genesee River—Bath ch 100, of which 50 from Mrs Arabella Magee; Wyoming ch 25	125 00
Pby of Rochester City—Mrs Sarah Kay, of Rochester 3d ch	8 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Hudson—Monroe ch 10; White Lake ch 7 17 00
Pby of North River—Rondout ch 50; W C Beatty of Bethlehem ch 6 56 00
Pby of Bedford—White Plains ch 50; Yorktown ch 4 23; Croton Falls ch 7; South Salem ch 69 50 130 73
Pby of Long Island—Sab sch of Sweet Hollow ch 13 00
Pby of New York—Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch New York, in part 2018 06; Brick ch N Y., in part 948 22; Greenbush ch 18; Grand st ch N. Y. 116 04; Clifton ch Staten Island 40 3140 32
Pby of Connecticut—First ch Hartford 20 00
Pby of Nassau—Freeport ch 6 50; Ainslie st ch Williamsburg 25 25 (Sab sch 10, and mo con 15 25); First ch Brooklyn 32 50; Hempsted ch Foster's Meadow Sab sch 9 50 73 75

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Elizabethtown—Westfield ch 33 00
Pby of Passaic—First ch Morristown 850 00
Pby of New Brunswick—New Brunswick 1st ch collection 48 34, Sab sch Missionary Society 30, Dr G Janeway 30, Ladies' Missionary Society, a thank-offering 72 86=181 20; Cranberry 2d ch 30; Lawrenceville ch 113 41; Bound Brook ch interest on Steele legacy 11 335 61
Pby of Newton—Newton ch 100; Greenwich 1st ch 45; Belvidere 1st ch 75; Andover ch 3 223 00
Pby of Raritan—Flemington ch add'l 41; Amwell 2d ch 10 51 00
Pby of Susquehanna—Orwell ch 8; Canton ch 7; Independence 1st ch 1 16 00
Pby of Luzerne—Summit Hill ch collection 14 31, Sab sch 5 64, W 6, J S 5, J H A 1, S 5, P 13 05, =50; Newton ch 17; Sab sch of Pittston ch 9 24; Tunkhannock ch 6; Tamaqua ch 20 102 74
Pby of Burlington—Burlington ch 15 47; Camden 2d ch 40 55 57

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia—Seventh ch in part 249 55, of which 10 24 from the Sab sch; South ch 23 25; Chester ch 20; Tenth ch add'l E L H 5, P Walker 5, less 5 for Record=5; Westminster ch Philadelphia 20 317 80
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Cohocksink ch 30; Second ch 79 27; First German ch 5; Phœnixville ch 16; Charlestown ch 10; North ch 259 05, of which 100 from the treasurer of the Board of Domestic Missions 399 32
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Holmesburg ch 15; Huntingdon Valley ch 15; Sab sch of Germantown 1st ch 20; Roxborough ch 7 54; Falls of Schuylkill ch 5 57; Providence ch 11 85 74 96
Pby of New Castle—A member of New Castle ch 5, Mrs A C Kerr 25=30; Benevolent Fund of New London congregation add'l 45; Fagg's Manor ch 68 10; Wilmington 1st ch 62 21, of which 28 40 from the Sab sch 205 31
Pby of Donegal—Leacock ch 16 29; Bellevue ch 8 85 25 11
Pby of Huntingdon—Huntingdon ch 180; Alexandria ch 62; East Kishacoquillas ch 90 35; Bald Eagle ch 6 25, Mrs Sarah P Moore 3 75 =10; Little Valley ch 30; West Kishacoquillas ch 68; Moshannon and Morris chs 7 53, Philipsburg ch 7 65; Sinking Valley ch 37 75; Logan's Valley ch 17 80 511 08
Pby of Northumberland—Jersey Shore ch 30; Lewisburg ch bequest of Mrs Margaret Simonton deceased 12 50; Great Island ch 55 73; Female Miss Soc of Mooresburg ch 8; Miss S Huling of Williamsport ch 3 109 23

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore—Franklin street ch Baltimore 29 25; Taneytown ch 110 84; Baltimore 1st ch from the Misses M 50 190 09
Pby of Carlisle—Middle Spring ch 115 62; Harrisburgh ch mo con colls 52, Miss C J M 5 =57; Green Castle ch add'l 3; Middletown ch 19 08 194 70
Pby of Lewes—Pitts' Creek ch 13; Old Brick ch 6; Church Hill ch 4 50; Crumpton ch 1 50; A friend 2 27 00

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Redstone—Long Run ch 31; Rehoboth ch 48 95 79 95
Pby of Ohio—Bethel ch 40; Mount Carmel ch 4 48; Miller's Run ch Ladies' Miss Soc 13 25; Sharon ch 12; Pittsburg Central ch add'l 10 79 73
Pby of Blairsville—New Salem ch 15 80; Beulah ch 37 20 53 00
Pby of Clarion—Bethesda ch 18 00
Pby of Saltsburg—Saltsburg ch 30 13

SYNOD OF ALLEGHENY.

Pby of Allegheny—Tarentum ch 14; Concord ch 9; Pleasant Valley ch 6 29 00
Pby of Beaver—Clarksville ch add'l 2 50
Pby of Erie—Gravel Run ch 5; Fairfield ch 8 10 13 10

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington—Washington ch from "the Ladies' Home Missionary Society of Washington, Pa. 25 66," mo colls 13, less exch 10 cents =38 56; Cove ch 5 43 56
Pby of Steubenville—Ridge ch 15; Centre Unity ch 36, of which 30 from the Hanna Fund; Bacon Ridge ch 5 75; Still Fork ch 5; Island Creek ch 13 74 75
Pby of New Lisbon—Middle Sandy ch 12 50

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Marion—Radnor ch 4; York ch 3 7 00
Pby of Zanesville—Deerfield ch 6 60; Norwich ch 6 48 13 08
Pby of Richland—Chesterville ch 7 00

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.

Pby of Michigan—Bennington ch 7; Independence ch 5 12 00
Pby of Western Reserve—Northfield ch 20 00
Pby of Findlay—First ch Findlay 32 55 less exch 25 cents=32 30; Truro ch 3 07 35 37

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Chillicothe—Greenfield ch 13; South Salem ch 11 20 24 20
Pby of Miami—New Jersey ch 1; Franklin ch 13 14 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Walnut Hills 1st ch 10; Rev W H Moore 17 50, of which 5 "a funeral fee" 27 50
Pby of Sidney—Stony Creek ch 6; Logansville and De Graff chs, from Miss Anna M Moore 10 16 00

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany—German ch Jackson township 2 00
Pby of Vincennes—Upper Indiana ch 10 00
Pby of Madison—Hanover ch 23 00
Pby of Indianapolis—New Providence ch 3 00
Pby of White Water—Mount Carmel ch 30; Cambridge City ch 6; Ebenezer ch 3 39 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Logansport—Rensselaer ch 9 61; Indiana Creek ch 5; Mill Creek ch 2 50 17 11
Pby of Lake—Valparaiso ch 7; La Porte ch 12 68 19 68
Pby of Fort Wayne—Kendallville ch 5; Albion ch 4; Pleasant Ridge ch 5; Auburn ch 3 03; Bear Creek ch 2 97 20 00
Pby of Crawfordsville—Green Castle ch 13 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Kaskaskia—Trenton ch 6 00
Pby of Peoria—French Grove ch add'l 11 33; Peoria 2d ch in part 51 16 62 49
Pby of Hillsboro'—Sugar Creek ch 6; Hillsboro' ch 7 50 13 50
Pby of Bloomington—Metamora ch 4 20; Low Point ch 4 30 8 50
Pby of Saline—Olney ch 9; Salem ch 7 15 16 15

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.

Synodical collection 11 60
Pby of Schuyler—Shiloh ch 2; Prairie City ch 5; Sacred Fund of Galesburg ch 10; Oquawka ch 13 16; Warren ch 3 20; Pittsfield ch 7; Perry ch 5; John Knox ch 8 50; Camp Creek ch 8 61 86
Pby of Chicago—Centre ch 6; Victor ch 5; Willow Creek ch 25, less exch 18 cts=24 82; Lynn and Hebron ch 3 50 39 32

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Dane—Platteville ch 4 10; Hazel Green ch 2 10 6 20
Pby of Milwaukie—German ch Milwaukie 10 21
Pby of Winnebago—Winneconne ch 4; Dodge Centre and Burnett chs 7 50; Plover and Stevens' Point chs 4 57; Depere ch 12 75, of which 60 cents from the children; Assembly ch 15; Fond du Lac ch 25; Newport ch 3 90; New Lisbon ch 4 41; Rev Stuart Mitchell 6 94 84 07

SYNOD OF ST. PAUL.

Pby of St. Paul—Vermillion ch 2 50
Pby of Chippewa—Eau Claire ch 10; Chippewa Falls ch 1 85; Richland Prairie ch 1 25 13 10
Pby of Lake Superior—Superior ch 3 00

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Cedar—Mechanicsville ch 7 25; Red Oak Grove ch 11 50; Princeton ch 2; Summit ch 15; Marion ch 19; Rev R Carothers 5 59 75
Pby of Toledo—South Ridge ch 4 25; West Irving ch 2 15; Vinton ch 3 85; Corinth ch 2 50 12 75
Pby of Dubuque—Dubuque 1st ch 10; Independence ch 10; Foreston and Lime Spring chs 1 87 21 87

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.

Pby of Iowa—Round Grove ch 1 50
Pby of Missouri River—Clarinda ch 11 50; Bedford ch 6 17 50

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.

Pby of Greenbrier—Point Pleasant ch add'l 25 00

SYNOD OF PACIFIC.

Pby of Benicia—Napa ch 26 00

From churches, $9,050 20

LEGACY.

Patterson Estate, Pittsburg, Pa. 25 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

"——," to supplement salaries of domestic missionaries where the churches are in danger of being broken up 2000; A family offering, of which 3 the wages of three children (Anna S, George S, and James S Rea) for gathering in the products of a small lot, Pa. 5; A friend, Shippensburg, Pa. 5; A friend 5; O Rugg, Bloomington, Ill. 16; Mrs Charles E Kelsey, Clinton, Conn. 50 cents; H Brewster, Shirleysburg, Pa. 5; D, of Penna 6; from a friend 10; J B, Hanover, Ind. 2; Rev J W Drake, Greenville, Ohio 5; Miss Nancy Laing, Fredericksburg, Ohio, for Lake Superior Mission 9; The Religious Contribution Society of the Theological Seminary, Princeton, N. J. 30; W M and A G Sample, McEwansville, Pa. 50 cents; David Stewart, Colerain Forge, Pa. 50; Myron Phelps and wife, Lewistown, Ill. 62 50; Rev B O Junkin, Springdale Pa. 5; Robert Bell, Alexandria, Va., 2 50; Interest 14; "P," Chicago 110; James E Goddart, Brooklyn, N. Y. 3; New Rochelle, N. Y. 25; A young man, Cincinnati 4; Mr W 25; Edwardsburg, Mich., Miss Myra King 2, Mrs L K Taylor 5; Miss Lizzie McCullough, Mercer, Pa 10; L P Stone, New York City 100 2517 00

Total at Philadelphia, $11,592 20

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

CLOTHING.

1 Box from the Ladies of Uniontown ch Pa., valuation not given
1 Box from the Ladies of First ch, Morristown, N. J., valued at 120 00
1 Box from the Ladies of First ch, Morristown, N. J., valued at 185 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Trenton Third ch, N. J., valued at 90 00
2 Boxes from the Ladies of Pittsburg 2d ch, Pa., valued at 240 00
2 Boxes from the Ladies of Wooster 1st ch, Ohio, valued at 132 75
1 Box from the Ladies of Jewett ch, New York, valued at 80 00
1 Box from the Ladies' Missionary Society of Westminster ch, Baltimore, Md. 50 00
1 Box from the Ladies of the 2d ch, Sparta, N. Y, assisted by the 1st ch, and of which 10 from the Little Girls' Sewing Society, valued at 60 00
1 Box from the Ladies' Benevolent Association of Newton ch, N. Y., valued at 90 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Ashland ch, Ohio, valued at 58 25
1 Box from the Ladies of Central ch, Allegheny City, Pa., valued at 175 00
1 Box from some Ladies of Second ch, Germantown, Pa, valued at 210 00
1 Box from the Ladies' Missionary Society of Upper Octorara ch, Pa., valued at 57 00
1 Box from the Ladies' Missionary Society of Pittsgrove ch, N. J., valued at 82 50
1 Box from the Ladies of Mount Washington ch, Tubby Hook, N. Y, valued at 100 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Albany 1st ch, N. Y., valued at 163 69
1 Box from the Ladies of Princeton 1st ch, N. J., valued at 90 00
1 Box from the Ladies of the 1st ch, Elizabeth, N. J., valued at 136 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Blairsville ch, Pa., valued at 55 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Indiana congregation, Pa., valued at 58 50
1 Box from the Ladies of Centre ch, Allegheny Presbytery, Pa., valued at 51 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Cadiz ch, St. Clairsville Presbytery, Ohio, valued at 47 50
1 Box from the Ladies of Mahoning North ch, Pa., valued at 76 00
1 Box from the church of Alexandria, Pa., valued at 169 59

2577 78

Comprehensive Commentary from Rev J B Ripley, Philadelphia, Pa., valuation not given.

TREASURY AT LOUISVILLE.

Receipts into the Treasury at Louisville, Ky., during the month of December, 1861.

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany—Corydon ch 8 00
Pby of Vincennes—Bruceville ch 4 00
Pby of Indianapolis—Boggstown ch 5 00
Pby of White Water—Brookville ch 8 30

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.

Pby of Schuyler—Rev T P W Magruder, Rushville, Ill. 3 00

SYNOD OF SOUTHREN IOWA.

Pby of Fairfield—Birmingham ch 2 60

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Louisville—J W Duncan, Big Spring ch 5; a member of 1st ch Louisville 30, mo con coll 19 60 54 60
Pby of Transylvania—Mount Pleasant ch 22 40; Richmond ch 25 47 40

Total at Louisville, $132 90

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Officers of the Board.

James N. Dickson, President.
John McDowell, D. D., } Vice-Presidents.
Cyrus Dickson, D. D., }
James Dunlap, Esq., }
William Chester, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
R. Watts, Assistant.
F. D. Ladd, Recording Secretary.
William Main, Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies and Colleges, may be addressed to Rev. Dr. Chester, or Rev. R. Watts, No. 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of Money may be made to WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer, 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest."

OUGHT THE CHURCH TO CONTINUE THIS PRAYER?

It is the opinion of some that this heading has become obsolete—that the church, at least so far as our denomination is concerned, has reached a state of prosperity in which this estimate of the work to be done, and the numbers requisite to do it, is no longer sustained by facts. The assumption of these brethren is, that the words of our Saviour were chiefly intended to apply to a disparity between the work and the workmen in his day, or, at the farthest, during the initial or earlier states of the church's history. Although we have combatted this doctrine, on several occasions, and through various channels, both by arguments based on principle, and arguments based on facts, the error is so injurious to the cause for which this Board has been established, and the conclusions so manifestly fatal to the interests which are vital to the extension of Christ's kingdom, and ultimately subversive of the cause of missions, both domestic and foreign, that we feel it to be our solemn duty, before God and his church, to address ourselves to the exposure of it once more.

The question is not, "Are there ministers enough for the existing vacancies in our church?" but, "Are there labourers enough for the work of the harvest?" The remarks and arguments of the brethren who take the position that there are ministers enough, are, without an exception, based on the assumption, that the former, and not the latter, is the question. The facts which these brethren cite, in support of their position, show that they have mistaken the question, and that they have not their eye upon that field to which the ascending Saviour commissioned his church to carry the tidings of salvation. The observations, from which they infer an adequate supply, are restricted to a narrow field, and merely warrant the conclusion of a more than sufficient supply in a given place. We are told, for example, that there were ten candidates for the church at A; that there were twenty applications for a hearing during the vacancy of the pulpit at B: that in the course of a vacancy at C, which existed for two years, there were forty competitors. These are specimens of the data from which some of the brethren conclude that there is more than an adequate supply, and suggest that the language of the Saviour is no longer appropriate as a motto for the educational department of the Record, or as a watchword for the church of God in the execution of her great commission!

Such facts are manifestly of too limited a range to warrant the conclusion they are cited to establish. It may be true, that at three, or four, or a dozen places, there were too many candidates, and yet it may be true, for aught this fact proves to the contrary, that the harvest is plenteous and the labourers few. The excess of the supply over the demand in any community in a particular locality, will not justify the inference that there is a like excess everywhere. It might be true that there were forty candidates for the pastorate at C, and yet it might be as unquestionably true, that there were forty vacancies for which there were no candidates at all.

But let us pass from supposition to fact. According to the Minutes of our General Assembly for 1861, there are in our denomination 2767 ministers, while there are 3684 churches: that is, the number of our churches exceeds the number of our ministers by 917. Now it is to be conceded that of these 917 churches, a large number must be regarded as missionary outposts, two or more of them being embraced under one pastoral charge. But as an offset to this modification of the number of churches, it ought to be borne in mind that the number of ministers is subject to a like and a larger modification. Whilst the number of churches, in this comparison, ought to be diminished by the number of those attached to other charges, the number of ministers ought to be diminished by deducting, 1. Ministers who are professors in seminaries and colleges, those who are engaged as secretaries, and those who are acting as principals in academies. 2. Disabled ministers. 3. A large proportion of our foreign missionaries. The reduction arising from these sources is very great. Under the first head, as we are informed by the editor of the Presbyterian Historical Almanac, there are three hundred and fifty-two. In lieu of figures under the second head, we would refer our readers to three facts stated in the report of the trustees of the Fund for disabled Ministers to the last General Assembly. 1. The trustees inform the Assembly, that, besides aiding (during the year) twenty-six widows and two families of orphans, they had relieved twenty-four ministers. 2. "The trustees regret the neglect of many Presbyteries to investigate, and present for relief, cases of suffering within their bounds, not one-half of which, it is believed, are regularly reported." 3. The trustees also inform us, that there is one Presbytery, consisting of thirteen ministers, four of whom are infirm.

These facts certainly warrant us in reckoning the disabled ministers at fifty, and we are persuaded that the actual census of these sufferers would exhibit a much larger number.

The statistics under the third head will justify a deduction of thirty-four, for whilst there are fourteen foreign churches, there are forty-eight foreign missionaries.

From these three sources, therefore, we have a reduction of the ministerial force actually available as a field-force, in this country, amounting to four hundred and fifty! This reduces the available ministerial aggregate as given in the Minutes of 1861, to 2317, whilst it points to the startling fact, that the number of the churches exceeds the number of available ministers by 1367. Now after this excess of churches has been modified as much as facts will warrant, we are persuaded that there must still remain 800 or 1000 legitimate vacancies, for which there are no available ministers in our church. These 1367 churches cannot be absorbed in existing pastoral charges, so as not to leave an unresolved surplus of 800 or 1000 vacancies. We have no desire to exaggerate the ministerial destitution to which these figures point, and therefore solicit a thorough examination of the facts from which our deductions have been drawn.

Even on the assumption, then, that the only problem before us were the maintenance of a sufficient supply for the present and prospective vacancies of our church in this land, and to make provision for our natural increase as a denomination, we are warranted in the conclusion that the instrumentalities employed are not beyond what is required for the solution of it. Here is a work in which our entire array of schools, academies, colleges, and seminaries, has been engaged throughout our denominational career, and yet it must be acknowledged, that the demand is greatly in advance of the supply. The excess indicated by these figures is truly appalling. After all warrantable deduction has been made for cases in which several churches are embraced in one pastorate, we have still before us the sad fact, that if every available minister in our church were settled in a pastoral charge, there would remain 800 or 1000 churches for which there would not be a single minister! And when we say 800 or 1000, we have reduced the aggregate excess as much as can be fairly asked, for we have stricken off from 367 to 567 churches. We ask the brethren who are at ease on this subject, or who are passively or actively operating against the interests of the Board of Education, under the impression that there are too many ministers already, to ponder this tremendous fact.

On this point we would refer to only one other statistical fact. In 1851, there was, in our church, one minister to one hundred and three members, whilst in 1861, there is but one minister to one hundred and eight members. In this statement there is no deduction, whatever, made for ministers who are disabled, or who are engaged as professors, or secretaries, or teachers, or for those who are in the foreign field, as the object is simply to show that the aggregate increase of our ministry does not keep pace with the aggregate increase of our membership.

This we regard as a very serious and significant fact. The period embracing these ten years was one of unparalleled success in the operations of this Board. During its eventful years the Board enjoyed the counsels and labours of the beloved Van Rensselaer. If under the sunshine of such prosperity, with all the advantages incident to such an administration, we are compelled to acknowledge a decline in the ratio of our ministerial increase, as compared with our denominational progress, what, we ask, would be our position to-day, had no such agency as the Board of Education been in operation? The force of this question will be felt when we state, that one-half of our present ministry has been aided by this Board. Having laid this one fact before the intelligence of our people, we are willing to await their verdict. When our church is informed, on the authority of the Minutes of her General Assembly, that in the most prosperous decade in all her history, her ministry, as compared with her membership, has declined nearly five per cent., we are persuaded that her verdict will be that of the Master—"The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few." With this fact before her, she will say to all who would persuade her of the superabundance of her ministry, "whatever force your arguments might have had ten years ago, they must have less now; but ten years ago, the cry of the church and of a perishing world was, 'the labourers are few.' If so, then the cry now ought to be, that they are still fewer." Instead, therefore, of standing at the gateway of the great harvest field, and proclaiming to all who knock for admission to its toils, 'there are too many labourers already,' let those who love the Master, and pity a perishing world, catch the spirit of the compassionate Saviour, and cry, "the harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few."

In making these remarks, we have confined ourselves to the consideration of the question as propounded by those brethren who argue, from the number of candidates in particular fields, on particular occasions, that there must be a universal surplus, and that the work of this Board is consequently a work of supererogation. We have shown, if figures are to be trusted, that even with this unscriptural view of our mission as a church, we are falling behind—that our ministerial increase is not keeping pace with the increase of our membership. But it must be manifest that this is not the question. No Christian man, instructed in the duties of a Christian church, can seriously regard this as the mission given to his servants by Christ, when he sent them forth to preach the gospel. The field into which he then sent his disciples was the world, and as the church can point to no other commission as furnishing her with a warrant for preaching, so she can point to no other as designating the field of her labours. The argument thus indicated we will leave with the heart and conscience of the people of God. If, brethren, we are behind in supplying the destitutions of our own denomination, what a fearful account we have to render to Him, whose terror moved even the great apostle of the Gentiles, notwithstanding all the labours he had performed, and all the sufferings he had endured? Can any man, with the cry of a perishing world ringing in his ears, and the terror of the Lord before his eyes, conclude that there are too many labourers already in the great harvest-field?

But we have not room to press this inquiry upon the understanding, and heart, and conscience of the church. Brethren, turn to that prayer, which has long been the motto of our Board, and ask, in the retirement of your closets, and in the secrecy of your hearts, has it been too long or too urgently offered, or too largely answered? That motto was placed there by the hand of Cortlandt Van Rensselaer. With him the truth it embodies was a living reality, that impelled him to labour for the increase of the ministry, until he sank, exhausted under the burden of his toils, into an early grave. From the position he assigned it no hand may remove it. There let it ever wave, as the legend of the banner under whose folds he fought and fell; and let the church of God unfurl it to the winds of every clime, until the voice of prayer is lost in the shout of triumph over a garnered world!

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION
IN SCHOOLS, ACADEMIES, AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

DAY OF PRAYER FOR COLLEGES.

The church is now nearing this important anniversary. By the direction and counsel of the General Assembly—a direction and counsel repeated from year to year, for a long time—the last Thursday in February has been devoted to the spiritual interests of the rising generation. On that day, by the consent of most of the evangelical denominations in our country, "children and youth, and especially those collected in academies, colleges, and seminaries," are presented in the arms of the church's faith before the mercy-seat, that the God of Abraham, whose memorial is to all generations, would bestow upon them the blessings of the covenant, and, by enduing them with his grace, qualify among them many who may go forth as reapers into the great harvest-field.

As an additional reason for the observance of the day, in the manner and for the objects specified, it is our privilege to mention the evidences of the Divine approval wherewith almost all the past anniversaries have been marked. Rarely has it occurred, in the history of this day, that one or more of our educational institutions has not been blessed with an outpouring of the Holy Spirit. This has come to be so commonly the case, that it is now regarded as the rule, and the people of God meet on that day to present their prayers, in a spirit of great confidence, that they shall receive the blessing they seek. Among the many arguments presented on the occasion, the great fact that God has almost invariably heard and answered the prayers of his people, on this day, and for this purpose, is never lost sight of. Almost every address contains some reference to this great and glorious fact. The church, whilst lifting up her hands in supplication for fresh blessings upon her children, seems, on this day, to place herself before an Ebenezer of answered prayers. With this history to look back on, it is with great expectation we turn our eyes toward the approaching anniversary. What a history may be hidden in the shadows which now hide that last Thursday of February from our view! How freighted with blessings to the rising generation, and to those who shall follow that generation on the stage of time! The people of God, moved by his grace, meet in his earthly courts, and the Spirit, in answer to the intercession of our great High Priest, is sent down as the Advocate within, to inspire them with desires unutterable. These desires, feebly expressed, but perfectly intelligible to Him who knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit, find their way to the golden altar, and there mingling with the incense of Him who ever liveth to make intercession for all who come unto God through Him, are presented with a sweet smelling savour, well pleasing to the Father. This done, the treasures of grace are opened, and, from their inexhaustible stores, "abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness" descend upon waiting parents and their covenant seed. The church is refreshed in the very exercise of the function of intercession, and her children made partakers with her of the blessing of Abraham.

This, as already intimated, is not a fancy sketch. It is not a scene projected on the canvass of fiction by the pencil of imagination. It is, on the contrary, an outline of the history of the day of prayer for colleges. We are not, of course, to be understood as regarding this particular day as invested with any peculiar sanctity above the other secular days of the year. Whilst there is nothing in the man-appointed day, however, there is much in the Heaven-ordained institution of united prayer, offered on any day, or touching any thing, concerning which the people of God agree in asking him. Whilst there is no promise respecting any particular secular day, of which faith can take hold, there are exceeding great and precious promises respecting united prayer, and especially prayer for the increase of labourers, and for the bestowal of covenant blessings upon believers and their seed, concerning which the church of Christ may never cease to besiege the throne of grace. These promises believers may plead in concert, or individually, in any place, and at any time. The revivals wherewith God has followed, and, in many instances, accompanied the prayers of his people on this particular day, are sufficient evidence that the institution has met with the highest of all sanctions.

Having these memories associated with this anniversary, and these promises, which are all yea and amen in Christ, to present, and the plea of God's faithfulness to urge before his mercy-seat, let us hail its advent with enlarged expectations, and living faith, "for He is faithful that promised."

PRAYER AND ALMS.

Our Assembly has recommended, not only that prayer should be offered on the approaching anniversary referred to in the foregoing remarks, but also, that a collection be taken up on that day for the College Fund. To this order of the Assembly, the Board of Education would earnestly invoke the attention of the ministers, elders, and members of our church. Dear brethren, if we would expect God to forward, by his grace, the best interests of our educational institutions, we must discharge our duty towards them, by doing what in us lies to sustain them. We cannot, without the greatest presumption, ask God to make our fields wave with golden grain, or fill our barns with the treasures of harvest, or waft to our shores the commerce of the world, or vanquish our foes, without putting forth all our energy, and employing the legitimate means to secure these blessings. Equally presumptuous is it, to ask God to prosper our schools, academies, colleges, and seminaries, or to convert the world, except we use our best endeavours to build up and sustain these institutions, and qualify, and send forth, and sustain, those whom God, in answer to our prayers, may call as labourers into his vineyard. How can any man ask God to prosper parochial schools, academies, and colleges, and yet refuse to contribute to the support of these institutions? Every argument he employs before the throne of grace, in pleading with God, is an argument which we may use in pleading with himself. The temporal weal of the rising generation, inseparable as it is from the welfare of our common country, the connection of our school and college system with the increase of the ministry of reconciliation, and consequently with the extension of Christ's kingdom, the advancement of the glory of God in the conversion of those who sit in the region of the shadow of death, are all legitimate arguments in pleading with God; and what heart imbued with the love of Christ but must feel their force as arguments to excite the sympathies, and secure the coöperation of those who have tasted the great salvation? And what is true of these arguments is true of all others. There is no argument that can be urged at the mercy-seat, as a reason why God should prosper our educational institutions, which may not be urged at the bar of conscience, and the shrine of the heart, as a reason why the suppliant should contribute, to the best of his ability, for their sustentation. May we not turn to the suppliant when he has ceased his solemn intercession for the children of the church, and the perishing millions of the realms of heathen darkness, and translate his prayers to God into an irresistible appeal to all that is like God in his own soul? And if the cogency of our argument is questioned, may we not reply, "Out of thine own mouth will I condemn thee."

We waive further urgency of this principle, simply because we are persuaded that no Christian man will plead with God in earnest prayer for our institutions, who will turn a deaf ear to the cry of the devoted men who are sacrificing their all in the humble, wearisome toils of the parochial school, or the higher, but not less onerous, labours of the academy or college, without anything like an adequate recompense. If any man feel for these men, and the cause they represent, sufficient interest to bring him to his knees in his closet, or to the house of prayer on the coming anniversary, we know that he will give of his substance to sustain them as God has prospered him.

IS OUR SCHOOL SYSTEM ECONOMICAL?

We believe that our church has never made a better investment than she has done in aiding parochial schools, academies, and colleges. She has given no money from which more abundant, abiding, and valuable fruits have been gathered, in proportion to the amount expended. Whilst the amount of aid rendered to some of these institutions does not, "in ordinary cases, exceed $75 per annum," and is, in many cases, a smaller sum, yet the number of accessions to our membership from these unpretending institutions is larger, in proportion to the number in attendance, than the accessions from our churches. We can assure the church, on the basis of reliable statistics, that no Christian enterprise, whether domestic or foreign, has ever equalled our school system, either in its economics, or its proportional results. We make not this statement to disparage any other cause. On the contrary, it is our desire to refresh and rejoice the hearts of the brethren, by telling them how largely the Lord has blessed our feeble efforts.

The economy of the system will appear from the following considerations. 1. The smallness of the sum expended on the individual institution. 2. The fact, that in the collection and distribution of the money spent in this department, the Board employ no additional agency, and incur no additional expense. The expenses of the office, except in the matter of stationery and postage, are not increased to the amount of a single dollar by the operations of the Board in this department. Every dollar given to a parochial school, or an academy, or a college, reaches, without diminution, the intended object. Can anything more be asked on the score of economy?

Nor can it be said that the plan of the Assembly conflicts with our common school system. The duty of the state is one thing, and the duty of the church is another. Their spheres, whilst they cover the common territory of our humanity, and thus overlap each other, are nevertheless distinguishable. It is the object of the one to train the rising generation for the right discharge of the duties incident to citizenship in this country; it is the object of the other to prepare the same generation for a higher citizenship in a better land. Whilst the state discharges her duty, let not the church prove derelict. The faithfulness of the state may not be made an apology for the unfaithfulness of the church. Recent events have shown the wisdom of the state in founding her naval and military schools. In this the children of light may learn a lesson from the children of this generation.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Receipts at Philadelphia in December 1861.

I.—Fund for Candidates.

Pby of Albany—German ch Jackson Township 2; Ballston Spa ch (Ladies' cent a week coll) 17; Albany 1st ch, of which 80 from the Sab sch, 217 55	236 55
Pby of Mohawk—Westminster ch	35 62
Pby of Buffalo City—Portageville ch	2 57
Pby of North River—Bethlehem ch	18 00
Pby of Long Island—Fresh Pond ch	22 00
Pby of New York—First ch New York	1897 44
Pby of New York 2d—Scotch ch collection 333, John T Johnston 150, James B Johnston 100, Wm Post 46	629 00
Pby of Nassau—Freeport ch 5; German ch Williamsburg 3	8 00
Pby of Elizabethtown—Lamington ch 25; 2d ch Rahway 25	50 00
Pby of Passaic—First ch Morristown	850 00
Pby of Newton—Upper Mount Bethel ch 10 50; Newton ch 50; Belvidere 1st ch 60	120 50
Pby of Philadelphia—Sixth ch Philadelphia	44 68
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Central ch Mrs Stitt	3 00
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Chestnut Hill ch	40 00
Pby of New Castle—New London ch add'l	37 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Alexandria ch 31 50; Shirleysburgh ch 5	36 50
Pby of Northumberland—Muncy ch (from ladies of) in part 35; Buffalo ch 18; Chilisquaque ch in part 23 65; Moresburg ch in part 12; Milton ch add'l 78 cts; Washington ch add'l 27 cts; Warrior Run ch in part 5 18	94 88
Pby of Baltimore—Franklin st ch 20; Frederick ch 16 51	36 51
Pby of Erie—Gravel Run ch	3 00
Pby of Allegheny City—Central ch add'l	50 00
Pby of Washington—Washington ch 66 02, less exch 33 cts=65 69, of which 1 42 from the cent a week Ladies Society	65 69
Pby of Steubenville—Centre Unity ch "Hannah Fund"	37 00
Pby of Chillicothe—Hillsboro' ch	24 00
Pby of Oxford—First and Third chs Oxford	25 00
Pby of Sidney—Logansville and De Graff chs	5 00
Pby of Indianapolis—Indianapolis 1st ch	93 62
Pby of Peoria—Prospect ch 13 81; 2d ch Peoria 12 05	25 86
Pby of Schuyler—Oquawka ch	2 63
Pby of Chicago—Morris ch	4 00
Pby of Cedar—Tipton ch	15 00
Pby of Highland—Highland ch	2 00
	$4515 05

REFUNDED.

J F M	29 00

LEGACY.

Estate of Rev Henry G Comingo D D, Steubenville, Ohio	100 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Charles Wiggins, Esq, St. Louis, Mo. 50; A T, New York 1000; Chas E Kelsey 50 cts; Rev J W Drake, Greenville, Ohio, 5; Mrs Arabella Magee, Bath, N. Y. 50; Mr Robert Bell, Alexandria, Va. 2 50; Ladies of the 4th Avenue ch N. Y. 1; a young man of Cincinnati 4; John F Parsons, Esq N. Y. 25; Harriet A and Willie C Stewart, of Hanover, Pa. 1 50 each—3	1141 00
	$5785 05

II.—Fund for Schools, Colleges, &c.

Pby of Philadelphia—Tenth ch H. special	100 00
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Second ch Philadelphia, Ladies' Education Soc of, special	24 00
	$124 00
Total,	$5909 05

WM. MAIN, Treasurer.

Receipts at Pittsburg, Pa., in December 1861.

Pby of Allegheny—Concord ch 6 72; Pleasant Valley ch 4 28	11 00
Pby of Allegheny City—Highlands ch	4 90
Pby of Ohio—Miller's Run ch 18 00; Pittsburg 2d ch 77 58	95 58
Pby of Redstone—Uniontown ch 37; Laurel Hill ch 7 68; McKeesport 1st ch (Ladies' subscription add'l) 8 82; Rehoboth ch do. do. 3 33; Fairmount ch (Ladies' sub) 11 41	68 24
Pby of Blairsville—Cross Roads ch	4 00
Pby of Steubenville—Two Ridges ch (Ladies) 23 25; Harlem Spring ch 5	28 25
Pby of New Lisbon—Newton ch 6 75; Bethesda ch (Ladies' sub in part) 4 32	11 07
	$223 04

MISCELLANEOUS.

Patterson Estate per Rev Geo Marshall, D. D.	25 00
	$248 04
Total amount acknowledged,	$6,157 09

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.
January 13th, 1862.

Recent Intelligence.

INDIAN TRIBES.

Letters have been received from the Chippewa mission, dated to the 24th of December; from the Iowa, December 20th; and from the Omaha, December 27th. The report of the latter mission to the Indian Department, United States Government, is a very satisfactory paper; but it came to hand too late for insertion in this number of the Record. The Chippewa schools at Bear River and Grove Hill stations are spoken of in favourable terms. Mr. Williams speaks of the scholars in the Orphan Indian school, Iowa, as few in number, but doing very well.

AFRICA.

We have received letters from Sinou and Settra Kroo, in Liberia, from which extracts are given in another column, and a letter from the Rev. J. L. Mackey, dated at Corisco, September 14th, mentioning the safe arrival there, on the 11th of that month, of himself and wife, Mr. Nassau, and Mrs. McQueen.

SOUTH AMERICA.

Our letters from Rio de Janeiro, are dated November 8th, and from Bogota, November 15th. The news from Bogota is of a week's later date than was given last month; from Rio, five weeks later; and in both cases, of the same complexion—that of encouragement. The current of public opinion in Bogota, particularly, seems to be setting strongly against the Papal church.

INDIA.

Letters from this country have reached us under dates, at Lahor, of November 18th; Lodiana, October 16th; Saharunpur, October 30th; Mynpurie, October 19th; and Allahabad, October 18th. European friends at Lahor had expressed a warm sympathy with our missionary brethren, in these times of trial to the churches in this country. A most generous proposal was made by Sir Robert Montgomery, the Lieutenant-Governor, that his countrymen in that part of India should come forward, and supply any deficiencies in the support of the missions by the Board. Messrs. Newton and Forman replied to this most kind offer, that the wants of the mission, in this respect, were not yet very urgent—the reductions in the amount allowed from the church in this country having been but limited; but their English friends will probably make up the sum required to carry on their work as heretofore. A liberal donation was sent to the missionaries at Lahor, by a colonel in the army, a most excellent Christian man, who, before his check was cashed, was called to his rest by an attack of cholera. These marks of favour to our missions are the more gratifying, because they are shown by gentlemen who have long known our missionaries, and who are themselves mostly members of another church.

Mr. Forman mentions a school lately reopened for children in the Poor-house at Lahor, as being well attended. Mr. Caldwell, in a letter dated September 16th, reports the baptism of two aged Brahman converts at Roorkhee, in February last. Mr. Caldwell had found it necessary to go up to Landour for his health, in the hot season.

SIAM.

A letter from Petchaburi, of September 2d, the same date as the one acknowledged last month from Bangkok, gives encouraging notices of that new station. See an extract from this letter in another column.

CHINA.

Our letters from this country are dated at Tungchow, October 13th; Shanghai, October 24th; Ningpo, October 15th; Amoy, October 2d; and Canton, September 12th. These letters bring the sad news of the death of Mrs. Danforth, as reported more fully in another part of the Record. Mr. Culbertson and his family had made a most narrow escape from being lost at sea, during a severe gale, but had arrived at Amoy, instead of reaching Chefoo. We have seldom read of a more remarkable deliverance from death. The mission families at Tung-chow, in Shantung, had passed through a time of great excitement and peril, on account of the ravages of a band of insurgents or banditti, who laid waste a considerable district of the country, killing many of the Chinese, and plundering and burning their towns. Our brethren were kept in safety; but we learn with deep regret, that two American missionaries were put to death by these lawless troops—the Rev. Mr. Parker, of the Episcopal Board, and the Rev. Mr. Holmes, of the Southern Baptist. They both leave families, who will receive warm Christian sympathy.

At Yu-yiao, Mr. Rankin had the privilege of baptizing two hopeful converts in September. The number of members admitted to the Ningpo church during the year was sixteen. Mrs. McCartee had been very ill at Ningpo, but was recovering. Dr. McCartee's health requiring a complete change, after his long residence at Ningpo, he and his wife had reached Shanghai, on their journey for health; and it was probable they would come to California. The doctor's efficient and faithful labours as a missionary, make his leaving Ningpo greatly regretted.

ARRIVALS AND SAILING OF MISSIONARIES.

The arrival at Corisco of Messrs. Mackey and Nassau is mentioned above. Mr. Dodd arrived at Ningpo on the 11th of October, after a pleasant voyage. Messrs. Janvier, Roberts, and George, and their wives, arrived at the Cape de Verd Islands, November 9th, in the steamer Po Yang, on their voyage to the east—all well, and much pleased with their ship and its excellent captain. To-day, January 13th, the Rev. C. L. Loomis, M. D., and Mrs. Ogden and her child, of the Corisco mission, arrived at this city, in the Ocean Eagle, after a safe voyage.

The Rev. Thomas F. Wallace and his wife, embarked for New Granada, at this port, on the 11th of this month, January, going in the Northern Light, of the California line of steamers, to Aspinwall, and proceeding thence to Carthagena and Bogota. Mr. Wallace is a member of the Presbytery of Blairsville, and his wife is the daughter of one of our most esteemed ministers, who is also a member of that Presbytery. We ask for them an interest in the prayers of our readers.

MISSIONS IN CHINA.

A MISSIONARY EXCURSION FROM AMOY.

The Rev. M. S. Culbertson, of the Shanghai Mission, and his family, embarked for the province of Shangtung, in the north of China, in search of health for some members of his family. They soon met with a very severe gale, and were for a time in extreme peril—see a narrative of their remarkable deliverance in the Foreign Missionary of this month. Eventually they reached Amoy, from which the following interesting account was sent, under date of September 27, 1861.

I have just returned from a visit to the cities of Chiòh-bê (or Cho-bey) and Chang-chau, in company with the Rev. Messrs. Ostrom and Kip, of the Reformed Dutch church, and I am sure you will be interested in some account of my visit. These are the places visited by your lamented son, eighteen years ago, and the changes which have taken place in that period, although not so great as we could have wished, are nevertheless of such a character as to encourage the most sanguine anticipations for the future.

The first ten miles.

We left Amoy at one o'clock, P. M., on Wednesday, the 25th, in the small sail-boat recently built by the mission of the Dutch Reformed church, for the purpose of visiting the villages which are scattered in such numbers along the rivers and arms of the sea, which stretch into the country from the bay and harbour of Amoy. We dashed along at a rapid rate in a direction nearly west, before a strong northeast breeze. The first ten miles of our course was through a wide bay, shut in by bleak, rocky hills, without a tree, or any other vegetation, except here and there a little grass struggling for existence, and scarcely dense enough to conceal the coarse, yellow soil beneath. But as we passed along, we found that even among these rugged hills there dwells a large population. Every little valley, every level space between the water and the hills, revealed to our view a hamlet or village, with its green spot of cultivated ground, from which the inhabitants contrived to draw their means of subsistence. Having crossed the bay, we entered a narrower arm of the sea, or river, on each side of which the hills recede several miles back, leaving a large and fertile plain, thickly studded with villages, and sustaining a numerous population.

Landing at Chioh-be—View from a house-top.

On the south bank of the river, about twenty miles from Amoy, stands the town of Chiòh-bê, or "Stone Horse." We reached it just two hours and a half after leaving Amoy, and had our baggage, including provisions and bedding, removed at once to our lodging-place, in the building owned by the mission, in which is their chapel. Meetings are held in it daily by a native assistant, and the native church-members meet together here every evening for reading the Scriptures and prayer. After resting awhile, we took a survey of the place from the top of the house. One of the peculiarities which strikes me here is the use made by the people of their house-tops. Though seldom flat, yet some portion of the roof is generally laid with square, heavy brick, and often, too, some space is made flat enough to be used as a terrace. Thus in the cool of the evening numbers of people may be seen enjoying the breeze on the roofs of their houses, and sometimes they spread their mats and sleep there. So from our roof we looked out over the town. The bricks in this region are red, like those of our own country, and this, of course, gives character to the prevailing colour, in a bird's-eye view of the towns.

In the north of China the bricks are of a bluish or slate colour, which gives rather a sombre appearance to the cities. Chiòh-bè is a large, compactly built market town, standing near the middle of the extensive plain which stretches out to the hills on both sides of the river. Its population cannot be less than fifty thousand, and is by some estimated as high as eighty thousand; enough, in either case, to furnish, of itself, a large field for missionary effort. It is not, strictly speaking, a walled town, but, like Amoy itself, has a citadel, or walled enclosure, of limited extent, in which the inhabitants might take refuge in case of a sudden attack, and which might be held against a very superior force. We took a stroll, in the afternoon, through the streets, and walked around the wall of the citadel. The most striking feature of the place is the fine old banyan trees growing upon the ramparts, and curiously intertwining their roots through the crevices of the heavy stone wall, which constitutes the facing of the earth embankment. These banyans grow along the rampart throughout its whole extent. Some of them are of immense size, and while their wide-spreading branches afford a delightful shade, their roots form a complete network over the face of the wall.

The church in Chioh-be—The sovereignty of grace.

In the evening we attended the service with the church-members and religious inquirers. They read a portion of Scripture, verse about, and Mr. Ostrom expounded, each person being at liberty to ask any question, or offer any suggestion. All joined heartily in the singing, which is a favourite exercise among them. Those who are not able to read, generally manage to commit to memory a number of hymns, by which they are greatly aided in cultivating a devotional spirit. The service was closed with prayer, after which Mr. Ostrom met with the elders, to consult about various matters connected with the church. The number of church-members here now is about fifty. A remarkable feature in the progress of the mission work in and around Amoy, is the striking manner in which the Spirit of God seems to have chosen certain localities for the display of his power, while other neighbouring places, where the gospel has been quite as often and as earnestly preached, are left without any apparent benefit whatever. In Pe-chu-ia, Chiòh-bè, and several other places, the gospel, four, or five years ago, seemed suddenly to seize hold of the hearts of the people, so that numbers were at the same time brought under the power of the truth, and were in due time received into the church. At Chiòh-bè a good deal of opposition was manifested, and some of the new converts to the Christian faith were called upon to endure suffering for the sake of the gospel. On one occasion, particularly, some of their more violent opponents, seeing that the authorities would not give the Christians any protection, gave them formal notice, that if they closed their shops, and met together at their place of worship on the following Sabbath, their houses would be plundered. They met and consulted together as to the course to be pursued, and although they had no missionary to preach to them, they resolved that they would hold their usual meeting, and keep their shops closed, leaving the result with God. They carried this resolution into effect, and their enemies were so far restrained that their meeting was not disturbed, and their shops and dwellings were unmolested. At present they are left in peace, and once in two weeks one of the missionaries from Amoy spends the Sabbath with them.

A remedy for opium-smoking—The journey resumed.

One of the elders has charge of the chapel, and resides with his family in the building. He is a man of more than ordinary intelligence, and has acquired a great reputation among the Chinese as a maker of pills for the assistance of persons endeavouring to free themselves from the power of the appetite for opium. He was taught to make these pills by one who had been instructed by Dr. William Young, who laboured in Amoy some years ago, as a missionary physician, in connection with the English Presbyterian church. The composition of the pills is no secret, but though others have tried to make them, the Chiòh-bè elder seems to have a certain skill in working up the materials, which gives his pills a reputation superior to all others. They are sold at three cash apiece, or about three for a cent, and he now sells several hundred dollars' worth every year. He has just boxed up fifty dollars' worth to send to Fuh-chau, and many are also sent to Swatow. Much of his time is given to the preparation of these pills, but all the profits derived from the sale he pays over to the mission treasury. As to the true value of the pills, I am not able to speak, but persons giving up the smoking of opium require some medical assistance to brace up the system under the sinking which is the consequence of the want of the accustomed effects of the poisonous drug. I doubt not these pills are useful, but it is probable that many who desire to break the chains of this habit seek the pills under the delusion that they destroy the appetite. They cannot possibly do more than aid those who curb the habit, by the exercise of a resolute will.

On Thursday morning we proposed to go on to Chang-chau, some fifteen miles from Chiòh-bè, and in order to take advantage of the favourable tide, it was necessary to make an early start. We accordingly rose about four o'clock, and at five our boat was under way. We had not wind enough to carry us forward, and were therefore obliged to rely upon our oars. As we had six men to row, we made steady progress; but the current was against us, being stronger than the tide, owing to very heavy rains a few days before. Somewhat less than half-way to Chang-chau, the hills close down upon the river, making a narrow pass, beyond which the great plain of Chang-chau opens out on either hand, bounded, in every direction, by lofty hills. Like the plain of Chiòh-bè, it is studded with numerous villages, and supports an immense population.

Infaticide—A child rescued.

The prevalence of infanticide in this province has often been spoken of, and we had, on our way, ocular proof of its existence. While moving slowly along, a dark object was seen floating on the water; and as it drew near, it proved to be an earthen jar, in which was seen an infant, which seemed to be alive. It was carried rapidly past us by the current, and it was with some difficulty we succeeded in securing it. On reaching it we found, sure enough, that it contained a living child. It was a large, strong child, evidently born during the previous night. It was entirely destitute of clothing, and had a little white cloth thrown over its face, probably to shield it from the sun. We attended to its wants as best we could, and it was soon sleeping soundly. It was of course a girl, for boys are not often thus abandoned.

Opposition to the Gospel at Chang-chau—A large temple visited.

It was nearly eleven o'clock before we reached Chang-chau. Our boat drew up near the first bridge, which has here been thrown across the river. We immediately landed, and passed through the streets of the suburb to a house which has been occupied by the brethren of the Reformed Dutch mission as a preaching place. Some time since, while one of the native assistants was preaching in it, a crowd gathered outside, and exhibited their hostility by throwing stones. The roof was completely riddled, and the whole building considerably injured. We found it still in the condition in which the mob left it; but Mr. Ostrom had made arrangements with the elders at Chiòh-bè to have it repaired immediately. It was a very poor room, but when put in order, will furnish a position in which at least a beginning may be made; and it is hoped that ere long the opposition, which comes chiefly from "lewd fellows of the baser sort," will be done away, and they may then secure a more eligible situation. The brethren are in hopes that they will soon have a church organized in this great city. Within a few weeks past, inquirers, to the number of twelve, have been in the habit of attending meetings at Chiòh-bè, and some of them give so much satisfaction as to their religious experience, that they will probably soon be baptized.

As we stood in the room, a crowd gathered, and Mr. Ostrom addressed them. They listened respectfully, though some of them were not very quiet. In the street we were followed by a crowd, some of whom were disposed to have some sport with the foreigners. Small stones were occasionally thrown at us by the boys, by way of bravado. Once I was struck on the shoulder with a large oyster-shell; but I afterwards found that it had been thrown by a crazy man, who pertinaciously followed us from the time we landed until we embarked again. When we reached the city gate, we found the ground around it so overflowed with water, that people were being carried over on the backs of coolies. We followed their example, and thus, for the consideration of three cash each, we were set down dry-shod within the walls. The whole city, we were told, had been overflowed two days before, from the rise in the river, occasioned by the recent heavy rains.

Passing through the streets near the wall, we proceeded to a large temple in the northern quarter of the city. It is the largest temple in all this region of country, and differed very little from similar structures in the north of China. The same gods and goddesses, and the same gaudy tinsel found there, are here reproduced. This temple stands at the foot of a hill, from the top of which we obtained a fine view of the city and the surrounding country. Looking down upon the city, we should have expected to see a mass of brick walls and tile roofs, not very attractive to the eye; but to our surprise, the view presented was rather that of a beautiful forest of magnificent trees, than of a large and densely peopled city. Occasional glimpses of the tile roofs revealed the existence of the city, but the green foliage of the banyan was the object which chiefly filled the eye; yet one walking through the streets would not suspect the existence of so many trees. They are for the most part planted in the small courts behind the houses, and spreading out their enormous branches over the low roofs, furnish a very agreeable shelter from the heat of the sun, and hide them from the view of any one looking down from above.

A beautiful plain and its large population—Affecting reminiscence.

Looking over the country, we had a view of the whole of that magnificent plain. It just now presents a splendid appearance. The rice is growing luxuriantly, and presents the appearance of one vast carpet of green, with patches here and there of deeper green, indicating the fields of sugar-cane. The whole is almost a perfect level, unbroken by a single ridge or slope, so far as we could see from our position; and even the little hillocks and groves which mark the site of the graves in the flat country around Shanghai, are here wanting. The plain is bounded on all sides by hills, which in the distance have the usual blue tint, but near at hand look bleak and barren, though much less so than those near Amoy. Through the centre winds the wide river, which is the source of its fertility; and in all directions are scattered the towns, and villages, and hamlets, in which reside the numerous population who derive their subistence from the cultivation of the soil.

And when are these multitudes to receive the gospel? How little has been done since my beloved associate, Walter M. Lowrie, stood, eighteen years ago, on this hill, and from this same little tower, looked abroad over the villages of that populous plain, and sighed for the day when the gospel should have free course among them. But it is encouraging to remember, that while at that time the presence of a foreigner was scarcely tolerated, and his visit even drew upon him a public rebuke from a high British official, the missionary may now at least freely visit the place, and preach the gospel under official protection. What is wanting now, is men and money, and then the power of God's Spirit will not be withheld.

The population of Chang-chau can only be roughly guessed at. The space enclosed by the walls is somewhat less than that lying within the walls of Ningpo, and the population must be considerably less. Still it may reach two hundred thousand. Must these all be left to perish? Shall another eighteen years be allowed to pass away, without some earnest effort for their salvation?

Return to Amoy, and the "Baby-guest."

Leaving Chang-chau at one o'clock, we ran down to Chiôh-bê with a fair wind, and after a short stay there, proceeded towards Amoy, hoping to reach it in the early part of the night. We had a strong breeze, but it was against us, and we were obliged to beat. A little after dark we met a large passage-boat running up before the wind. It was their duty to keep out of our way; but the helmsman probably did not see us, and our boatman kept on his course, expecting that the other would steer clear of us. The consequence was, that our little craft came very near being run down; and she must in that case have been dashed to pieces. This catastrophe was avoided only by bringing our boat round before the wind, so that the two boats came into collision at the side, and not at the bow; and the only bad effect was to elicit a few angry words from the boatmen. As we proceeded the wind grew higher, and when we reached the entrance to the open bay, it was not deemed prudent to encounter so rough a sea in the dark. We accordingly drew up under the shelter of a hill, and prepared to pass the night in the boat.

Our awkward attempts to minister to the comfort and provide for the wants of our baby-guest, furnished us with no little merriment. Our boat being crowded, we suspended a sheet overhead for a hammock, hoping that the little stranger would there sleep quietly. She gave ample evidence, however, of the possession of a sound pair of lungs, and an abundant supply of soaked biscuit failed to quiet them. After exhausting our coaxing abilities, we were obliged to resort to the paragoric-bottle, which one of our number had with him, and then we slept in quiet. At three o'clock this morning we were under way again, and reached Amoy in time for breakfast. The friends here were rather astonished at our baby; but measures were at once taken to place it in the care of one of the Christian women of the native church. May this little one, thus saved from death, grow up to be a blessing to her countrywomen!

Yours in the gospel,

M. S. Culbertson.

MISSION IN SIAM.

ENCOURAGEMENT AT PETCHABURI.

The Rev. S. G. McFarland writes as follows, under date of September 2, 1861.

We have been very much encouraged in the commencement of this new station. The people show a great willingness to receive books and listen to preaching. They come every day to receive books; and many come from a great distance on the Sabbath, to attend preaching. The attention on the Sabbath is very encouraging. Some of those who are in our employ show great interest, and profess a desire to become Christians. In January last, a young man came, and desired me to take him into the family. He said he was the son of a nobleman, and that that he wished to study English, and learn the Christian religion. After some consultation, I agreed to take him on trial awhile. He has been with us ever since. His father is dead, and his mother does not want him to become a Christian, and he determined to leave them. On that account he has no support, only what I give him. I have taken him at my own expense, and he writes some, and renders what service he can about the house. He is progressing in English, being able to read and translate a little. He professes to be interested in religion. We have endeavoured to give him what instruction we could; and pray that God would convert him, and make him a devoted missionary to his own people. He is an excellent Siamese scholar. O what an influence he might have, if he was a Christian! His name is Kao. Pray for him, that the Spirit may touch his heart, and bring him to the feet of Jesus.

The most remarkable case is the one of whom I wrote you in my last. His name is Nai Kon. The more we know of him, the more we are astonished. His whole soul is engaged in the good work; and wherever he goes, he is constantly teaching the people about Jesus. What is so remarkable about him is, that he was taught by the Holy Spirit in such a remarkable manner, and that, too, without seeing a missionary. He says, that before he met the missionary, he believed, and went about teaching others. He is now troubled about his wife. She opposes him, and will not listen to his instructions. But the last time he came to see us, he said she was more tender than before. He prays with and for her, and earnestly desires to have her believe. Nai Kon is a remarkable example of the power of the gospel. His son is in the school here.

Mrs. McFarland has a class of seven Siamese boys; and they are really a bright and promising class. One is the son, and two the grandsons of the Governor. One is the son, and one the cousin of the Prahpalat, who has shown us so much attention here. Mrs. McFarland teaches them English, and is very much encouraged with their success.

I hope the trouble in our beloved country will not seriously affect the cause of missions. We want one or two more men here very much.

MISSIONS IN INDIA.

THE CONDITION OF THE HEATHEN DEPLORABLE.

The heathen are sitting in darkness and in the shadow of death. They are "in darkness," the emblem of ignorance; they are "in the shadow of death," a deadly, awful shadow; they are sitting there, making no effort and having no wish to escape, like dead men in a dismal cemetery. Their condition is deplorable.

1. If we look at their case as it is shown to us in sacred Scripture, what do we see? Everywhere the severest judgments are denounced against idolatry, and against idol worshippers: "Idolaters shall not inherit the kingdom of heaven;" "without are murderers and idolaters." The great characteristic of most heathen people is their idolatry—their paying religious worship to idols.

The Scriptures clearly teach, moreover, that there is salvation only through the name of Jesus Christ. The apostle asks, "How shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard?" It is one of the sad features of the case of the heathen, that they have not heard of the name of Jesus as the Saviour of sinners. They will not, therefore, be condemned for unbelief in his blessed name; but they will be judged according to the light of nature, and their own conscience condemns them, accusing them of many sins.

The Scriptures also speak of a certain meetness of character for the heavenly world, as necessary before men can find admission to heaven: "Without holiness, no man shall see the Lord;" "there shall in nowise enter into it anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie." Alas, for the heathen! they possess not this holy character, but the very opposite; and their miserable religion inspires them with no desires after holiness, but tends only to make them more and more depraved.

2. If we look next at the case of the heathen, as it is presented to the eye of a Christian observer, when he visits them in their own country, what do we see? Look at them as men of business; and do you see truth, integrity, honesty, or fair dealing? The testimony of all who have dwelt in heathen lands is, that falsehood, deception, dishonesty in every form, everywhere abound. The condition of most men in heathen countries is precisely what we might expect to see, where there is no reward for virtue, no hinderance to vice, and hardly any punishment for crime—where the gods are examples of every license and crime, and the ministers of religion are, if possible, more depraved than other classes of men.

Look at them in their social relations; and do you see intelligence, refinement, delicacy, purity, or domestic virtue? Do you see husbands loving their wives, and wives living as the faithful and affectionate companions of their husbands; parents examples to their children in everything that is good, and children obedient to their parents; the family a blessing among the heathen?

Look at them in their consciousness of sin, engaged in religious duties, to obtain the favour of God; and do you see them ever finding the way of peace? They go from one idol shrine to another; they prostrate themselves before many a hideous image; they bathe in many a sacred stream; they part with their most valuable possessions; they sometimes sacrifice the lives of their children; they torture their bodies, and sometimes destroy their own lives under the car of an idol god; and thus they go—they know not where! The load of sin is not lightened; conscience finds no relief; they never gain rest; they are ever without any good hope.

Look at them in their trials and afflictions; they are not exempt from sickness, bereavement, and death. Do you ever see them resigned, patient, filled with consolation and hope? You may see the sons carrying their aged father or mother to the banks of a river, there to wait for death, under the burning sun and the dews of night—these young men accounting this the greatest kindness that could be shown to a parent. You may see the bereaved mother casting herself inconsolable on the ground, in despair, wailing for her daughter, taken away by the hand of death. You may see the heathen, as they draw near the end of life, in deep ignorance of the world beyond the grave; you ask one of them, "Where do you expect to go when you die?" and his reply will be, "I do not know."

These views of the deplorable case of the heathen will not properly impress our minds, if we do not consider them as applying to individuals. It is of millions, it is of large multitudes, but it is also of men and women, considered one by one, each one having the same nature with our own, the same capacities, the same never-ending existence—it is the case of every heathen man and woman that is deplorable. Would that one of these poor heathen could be brought before the churches, as the missionary sees him! Let it be a Brahman of the highest grade, with whom a missionary once met at Lodiana, a young man of five-and-twenty, who had lately lost his wife by death—a man of more than ordinary talent, and of considerable learning, one of most gentle and courteous manner—whose thoughtful and penetrating eye seemed to read your mind, but yet a man who worshipped God in a thousand things, and a thousand things as God. He knew not the reason why death entered into the world; he had no correct views of sin as the cause of death; he knew not where to find comfort in sorrow, nor how victory could be gained over death and the grave; he knew not where his wife had gone; he had no hope of ever seeing her again. He was without God, and without hope, having his own sins and sorrows, having his own dark destiny, going to a heathen's eternity! And he was one out of a great multitude, each one of whom is to live for ever; but to live, how and where?

This is a dark picture. Yes, but is it not a true one? Is there not reason to fear that too many in the church form inadequate views of the deplorable case of the heathen? Is not a serious, earnest belief, too often wanting; a real feeling, such as we have when we think of the dying or the dead? The heathen are surely dead in trespasses and in sin. They are dying; and dying, never to have a spiritual and happy life. What we do for them, we must do quickly. We and they are alike passing away. God help us to do our duty to them! Such is the prayer of one who was among them as A MISSIONARY.

MISSIONS IN LIBERIA.

RECAPTURED SLAVE CHILDREN AT SINOU, LIBERIA.

The Rev. James M. Priest writes as follows, from his station, at Greenville, Sinou county, November 10th, 1861.

I wrote you respecting the Arkoe and Congo boys. The mission boys I do not want to give up. But all the others, except the girl, I will be compelled to give up, unless I can get some help to feed and clothe them. I made this fact known to brother Mackey, when he was on shore, while on his way to his station at Corisco. He begged that I would try to keep them, for their sake. I have made a sacrifice, and, in consequence of which, have involved myself. Had that hundred dollars [of special funds, transmitted through the Board, for a year's support of recaptured Africans,] which was paid to the government, been paid to me, it would have helped me much; yet I think the Board was right in allowing this government the amount which was given, and the government highly appreciates the help rendered; this I know is the case. I would not have the Board to understand me to make any demand on them for those Arkoes which I was not authorized to receive under my care. I merely mention my necessity, which leads me to a course that might be questioned in the end. Our Board has done a great deal for Liberia, and for Africa—more than their share, in my opinion, and as a matter of conscience we cannot say aught in this particular. I am making some use of the classical books you sent. I have a class of six. You may send me the same amount of books at the same price I paid for the others.

As the meeting of our Presbytery is close at hand, and as the churches will send up their report, I will say but little about the church and school. The day-school is too large just now; this is the case, owing to the Baptists having no day-school.

The Sabbath-school is large, made up with our children, Arkoes, Congoes, Popaes, Ouosee, &c. The natives will be improved.

SCHOLARS AT SETTRA KROO—PROGRESS SINCE 1843.

Mr. Washington McDonough, after receiving his freedom from the late John McDonough, of New Orleans, and a partial education through his liberality, went to Liberia as a teacher in 1842, and was stationed among the Kroo people. It was then hoped that Settra Kroo would become an important centre of missionary influence; its name is connected with the names of some choice missionaries of the church, three of whom, the Rev. Messrs. Canfield, Atwood, and Sawyer, do rest there in the grave until the resurrection. Discouragement, caused by repeated bereavements, led to the reduction of the staff of labourers, and for many years only one teacher has occupied this post. His labours have been limited, and yet not in vain, as we may hope. The expense of keeping up the station is not large, and we may believe that the cause of Christ is thereby promoted. These remarks will introduce the following extract from a letter of Mr. McDonough, dated at Settra Kroo, November 6th, 1861.

My school has been going on, though in a feeble manner, owing to the want of regular supplies. You wished to know how many scholars I have in my family. Now I have three of my own children, three orphans, Liberians, four Congoes, and four Kroo boys—all to feed and clothe, besides my wife and self, making in all sixteen souls.

If any one that knew these people in 1842 or '43, were to come among them now, he could easily perceive the change that has taken place. There is no poison-wood mixture given now, compared with what there was in the period abovementioned. There has been none drunk on the Beach, or given by the old head-men, from 1852 until October 25th, 1861, at which time they gave the old king poison-wood; but after the wood affected him, they would not kill him, but cured him by giving other things to kill the poison, and then compelled him to leave the place and country.

If you wish the station kept up, there will have to be a thorough repair. The present building will have to be taken down, and a new one built, out and out.

MISSION IN BRAZIL.

EXTRACTS FROM A LETTER OF THE REV. A. L. BLACKFORD.

German Missionaries—Notices of labours among Brazilians.

Mr. Blackford, writing at Rio de Janeiro, November 8th, 1861, after expressing the warmest gratification on learning that Mr. Schneider would soon join the mission, to be employed at first among the German settlers, but eventually among the native inhabitants, as his chief sphere of duty, then proceeds as follows:

We shall give him a hearty welcome. He will find ready for him an open door, and plenty of work in his proposed field of the Germans of San Paulo province. They are like sheep without a shepherd and in the midst of wolves. Two German missionaries arrived here recently from the seminary at Basle. If they come in the spirit of that institution, it is great cause for rejoicing. They are employed by the government here to labour among the German colonists. One goes to the province of Espirito Santo, north of this, and the other to Santa Catharina, in the extreme, or near the extreme south. Neither will be within hundreds of miles of brother Schneider's proposed locality.

No special change has taken place in the nature of our operations, or prospects of the cause, since our last writing. There is reason to believe that both the truth and the Spirit of God are at work among increasing numbers of the people. Less has been done in the circulation of the Scriptures, &c., since the troubles in August last, and the discussions in the papers of a more recent date, of which mention has been made. Only two days ago, however, I was asked for Bibles by a native or Portuguese bookseller, who purchased forty. I understand he has been selling for some time. Our colporteur will perhaps soon proceed to the province of San Paulo. Some discussions are now and then on foot here; none very significant, however. Mr. Holden [of the Episcopal mission] is still in his controversy with the priests at Pará. They are now discussing "Which is the one true Catholic church of the Nicene Creed?" A writer from Pará, in our morning paper, strongly condemns the discussion, as one from which "the church has nothing to gain, but all to lose."

While on this subject, I will say, that I trust, if they can, the Committee will make us an appropriation for publishing here. It seems to me that we should not neglect a means of aiding the truth which is so open to us, and might reach so many. I say this without consulting Mr. Simonton. Hereafter we may be jointly more definite.

OBITUARY.

DEATH OF MRS. H. E. LOOMIS, OF THE CORISCO MISSION.

Alongo, Corisco, September 14th, 1861.

The angel of death has again visited our mission, and borne away a sister from our little company. Mrs. H. E. Loomis died on the 20th of August from protracted fever. Afflictive as the stroke is, obedience to a Father, who does not afflict willingly, forces us, with our gushing tears, to kiss the hand that has been laid so heavily upon us. Another mysterious link in the salvation of the Benga people has been suddenly severed. Why God cuts short useful lives which have been devoted to his cause, is known only to himself. We would not ask him a reason for any of his doings, "seeing he giveth not account of his matters to any." "What we know not now, we shall know hereafter."

Life too often weaves golden scenes of happiness out of the vanity of the mind. These gilded joys, as well as the more Christian enjoyment of home, and the society of an affectionate mother, yielded to the claims of the Saviour. She, whose death is here noticed, freely made a sacrifice of all for a missionary life, to toil for the redemption of Africa. She decided for a home among the heathen, and to die for Christ, knowing that she "had in heaven a better and an enduring substance."

On the 21st of January, 1860, she arrived at Corisco, in company with her husband. On the 9th of May of the same year, after having passed their acclimation, they entered on their work permanently, by being appointed to the charge of the station at Evangasimba. Here she laboured patiently among a strange people, who could not appreciate the sacrifices of the servant of Christ. Her feeble health was doubtless her greatest trial. Seldom has any been so severely afflicted with repeated attacks of fever as fell to her lot. Naturally robust, and of a strong constitution, she felt her attacks of fever more severely. These were no less than eighteen, two of which were of a malignant type. She was no doubt made more familiar with death by being laid aside for a time.

After a short sickness, not peculiar to the climate, she was prostrated with fever on the 27th of July, which lasted eighteen days. Part of the time her pulse rose to one hundred and forty beats a minute. The writer had the happiness to see her before the termination of this first attack. Though very weak in body, her faith was strong in Christ. On being interrogated whether she could trust in the merits of the Saviour, she promptly replied, Yes. As there was much doubt in our minds whether she would recover, she was asked if she could realize that the will of God was good, whether she should recover or should die. The same promptness answered in the affirmative. It was evident she had been thinking of death, and preparing for the result of her sickness. Her friends will be gratified to know that she was free from pain. She said she knew she had some fever, but no pain. On another occasion, she remarked, "that she had felt all the bitterness of death, and yet it was not bitter."

On the 14th of August her fever abated, leaving her very feeble. Our hopes of her restoration to health revived, but only to be disappointed. On the 18th of August the fever returned. Her extreme weakness did not disturb her hope of heaven. As the outer man perished the inner man was renewed day by day. Growing much weaker on the 19th, she was informed that this attack would probably prove fatal.

On inquiring again whether she could still trust in Christ as her Saviour, she replied, "Yes, that she thought she would have died by the first attack, and she was prepared now." It becoming more evident that she could not live, she was asked if she had any word for friends in America. She answered, "that she had desired to see them, and especially her mother, once more, but it was immaterial now; they would all soon follow her." She never regretted coming to Africa.

Sinking gently from life, she passed along to Jordan almost imperceptibly. A short time before the spirit fled, she had a spasm, which deprived her of the power of speech. She so far revived as to communicate with her husband. By request he sung part of the hymn, "There is rest for the weary." Her soul could sing, though her lips could not. She united by humming the chorus, "There is rest for the weary, there is rest for you." In this peaceful state of mind she left us on the morning of the 20th of August, at four o'clock, "to rest from her labours on the other side of Jordan," which she had almost reached while conversing with us. We bade her adieu with the benediction of the Spirit—"Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord: yea, saith the Spirit, for they rest from their labours, and their works do follow them."

She now rests sweetly in the grave-yard at Evangasimba, beneath a tree whose branches overshadow similar forms, who died in the same faith. WM. CLEMENS.

DEATH OF MRS. DANFORTH.

Writing at Tung-chow, September 19th, 1861, the Rev. J. A. Danforth communicates the painful intelligence of the removal of Mrs. Danforth by death. It was doubtless gain for her to die, but we greatly regret her loss to the mission. The tribute here paid to her excellence is one richly deserved. The sincerest sympathy will be felt with Mr. Danforth in this bereavement.

Dear Sir—It is with a sad and heavy heart that, after so long a delay, I once more sit down to communicate with you. God has indeed led me through deep waters, and conducted me along a dark and devious way. During seven or eight long and weary months, has my poor wife lingered through a severe and protracted illness. Having already delayed too long in Ningpo, with the advice of physicians we hastened to this more salubrious climate, hoping for benefit, and even restoration, from the change. For a while she somewhat improved; but suddenly growing worse, and alarming symptoms manifesting themselves, we repaired to Che-foo for medical assistance. There the swelling in her throat, which had threatened speedy suffocation, was removed, and she grew better. But now she lost her appetite; and though free from pain, she gradually became very much emaciated, lost almost all her strength, and could derive no further benefit from the physicians. We therefore returned to Tung-chow, hoping the change to its purer air, and to her own home, now almost ready, would result favourably. But, alas! her disease had taken too firm a hold upon her. Shortly after reaching home, she rapidly declined, until, on the 13th inst., her thirty-third birthday, she folded her hands, and gently fell asleep in Jesus. So calmly and peacefully did she pass away, that we could scarcely perceive when her freed spirit escaped from its prison, and sped away on angel's wings, to that better land, where > "Sickness and sorrow, pain and death,

> Are felt and feared no more."

Trusting in the righteousness of Christ alone, a more calm and peaceful death it has never been our privilege to witness. Long and weary months had she suffered, and much of the time intensely; but not a murmur escaped her lips. Resigned in all things to the will of Him who doeth all things well, she patiently awaited the result, desiring to live, only that she might more worthily serve and honour him. But now she enjoys a blessed release. She has entered into "rest"—eternal rest; rest from weary toil, and anxious care, and earth's unnumbered woes. There, no doubt, she and her dear brother, who preceded her but a short time since, together roam the heavenly fields, plucking immortal fruits from the tree of life, and drinking blissful draughts from salvation's never-failing wells. We cannot wish her back to this dreary scene of sorrow, sin, and death. No, no! rather, far, wish ourselves away with her, to share that fulness of joy, and those pleasures, which are at God's right-hand for evermore.

Of my own feelings, it does not become me here to speak. But I cannot refrain from bearing a brief testimony to her worth. She was ever a loving and faithful wife, most gentle and kind; the void her absence makes cannot be expressed. Her sound and mature judgment, her strong common sense, her decision and energy in action, her refinement and delicacy of sentiment, her high sense of honour, her gentleness and serenity of temper—no doubt the result of a very marked growth in grace during the last few years—and the warmth and strength of her attachments, all combined to render her character one of the most perfect and complete which this imperfect world affords.

That this severe affliction may be abundantly blessed to us all, is my most earnest prayer.

I am yet undecided what to do. In Ningpo I enjoyed very good health; and my little acquaintance with that dialect, sometimes induces me to return thither. But when I consider that they are soon to be reinforced, and that men are needed here, I almost conclude that it is my duty to remain. Inclination would certainly decide in favour of Shan-tung; but I shall consult with the brethren of the two missions before my final determination is taken. When I first arrived in China, and indeed before leaving the States, I desired a more northerly climate, both on my own and my wife's account, but especially on hers.

That the great Head of the Church may plenteously endow you with wisdom for the conduct of his affairs in this part of the vineyard, is the earnest prayer of

Yours in Christ, J. A. DANFORTH.

MISCELLANY.

HOPE FOR MADAGASCAR.

Native Christians.

The reports respecting the death of the Queen of Madagascar, and the accession of her son to the throne, have been fully confirmed, and the new sovereign has not lost an hour in proclaiming to the civilized world the course of just and enlightened policy which he intends to pursue. He has announced his earnest desire to maintain amicable relations and commercial intercourse with all nations; and these wise and just views were specially communicated to the governor of Mauritius for transmission to the government of England.

. . . At the same time, our venerable missionary, the Rev. John Le Brun, received a letter from the king, accompanied by one from his prime minister, Ra Haniraka, who was hospitably entertained by Mr. Le Brun, in his own house, for six months, about thirty years ago, having previously spent several years in England, chiefly at Manchester, in the acquisition of various branches of useful knowledge. Both these letters were written in English, and contained expressions of friendship for Mr. Le Brun, and stated, also, the measures already adopted by Radama at the capital, for the establishment of schools, which might, as he said, tend to dispel the dark superstition which had so long prevailed in his country. Our venerable friend, feeling too much advanced in years and infirmities to undertake a visit to Madagascar, the church at Port Louis presented an earnest request to their pastor, the Rev. Joseph John Le Brun, immediately to undertake this mission. He most readily complied with their wishes, and, accompanied by two native Malagasy evangelists who had long resided in Mauritius, proceeded, at the close of September last, to Tamatave.

We can scarcely hope to receive any tidings of the arrival of the British embassy, or of our friend, at Antananarivo, and their reception by the king, for the next six weeks; but we trust that they may be favoured with the special mercy of God, and that their visit may be the commencement of free, enlightened, and Christian intercourse with the new sovereign and his people.

Renewal of missionary labour projected.

For the happy change in Madagascar, which, by the gracious providence of God, has thus been brought to pass, and the bright prospects for the future which it opens to the church of God at large, and the members of the Society in particular, many have long been hoping, waiting, and praying. . . . . We trust that our Malagasy brethren, who have bravely withstood the fury of the storm, may not become enfeebled by the rays of royal patronage which they will naturally welcome.

The events under review left the Directors of the Society without hesitation as to their course of duty. Eight years since, when the prospect of deliverance for the persecuted Christians of Madagascar, and the admission of Christian teachers from Britain, appeared to be at hand, upwards of £7000 [$35,000] were raised by the members of the Society, to accomplish this object, and although the sanguine hopes then cherished were for the time disappointed, this fund has been held sacred, and is now happily available for the object designed. It appeared, also, to the Directors, that their long-tried and beloved friend, the Rev. William Ellis, whose visit to Madagascar in 1856 was connected with incalculable advantages, would be the man to undertake another visit to the island, with a view precisely to ascertain facts, which in their bearing may have great influence on the future progress of the gospel, and to prepare the way for the introduction of a new body of Christian labourers. Our devoted brother, notwithstanding various real difficulties which would have deterred many, readily accepted the invitation of the directors, regarding it as the clear and imperative call of his Divine Master to this new and arduous course of duty.

Mr. Ellis embarked for Mauritius on board the "Pera," at Southampton, on the 20th ult.; and we feel assured that, by the fervent supplications of the mission church, he will be commended to the guidance and care of Him whose gracious protection has been around him, amidst perils by land and perils by sea, throughout his prolonged and honourable course. On his arrival at Mauritius, it will probably be too late in the season to proceed at once to Madagascar; but he will have opportunities of corresponding both with the king and the native Christians, and will thus be able to assure them of the interest of his countrymen in their future prosperity, and especially of the unabated sympathy and affection of the British churches.

In the confident hope that the report of Mr. Ellis will justify the measure, the Directors, in the meantime, have resolved to use all practicable means to send forth, in the early part of the ensuing spring, a band of missionaries, (not less than six in number,) suitably qualified for the different departments of labour demanded by the new circumstances of the church in Madagascar, and by the favourable facilities likely to be afforded for the extension of the gospel among the multitudes who are yet the victims of impure habits and debasing superstitions. In addition to brethren directly bearing the missionary office, it is hoped that other devoted individuals may be found—one, at least, well instructed in surgery and medicine; a second, with qualifications for promoting general and Christian education, by training native schoolmasters; and a third, practically acquainted with the art of printing.

Obstacles to be expected.

The papers of the French colony of Bourbon, or Réunion, inform us, that among the first visitors to Madagascar on the reopening of the country, were M. Lambert and Père Jouan, shortly followed by two other priests. It is affirmed, also, that M. Lambert holds a high place in the confidence and regard of the new sovereign, and that, under the influence and instruction of Père Jouan, he has become a Catholic. We are well aware that about the year 1856 this French ecclesiastic succeeded in obtaining, for awhile, a residence at the capital. This he did by concealing his real profession and objects, and assuming to be a teacher of mathematics. It is probable that he was actually at Antananarivo at the very time that our friend Mr. Ellis was there; but shortly afterwards, with M. Lambert and others, he was detected in a plot against the queen's government, and, together with every French resident, he was forthwith expelled the country. At that time the views of the prince were in no degree favourable to Popery, nor has he since given the slightest indication that his attachment to the principles and professors of Protestantism has been changed.

But we confidently anticipate the early appearance of a large body of Popish missionaries in Madagascar, and that every effort will be employed to turn away both the king and his people from the right ways of the Lord. The Catholic authorities, not only in Bourbon, but in France, and throughout Europe, will doubtless make a vigorous effort to establish their system over the minds of a people just emerging from the darkness of Paganism; in proof of which we give our readers the copy of a notice just posted on the doors of certain Catholic chapels in the city of Cork, in the following terms:—"Young men wanted for missionaries to Madagascar!"

Only let these efforts be restricted to moral means, unsustained by fraud, bribery, and violence, and we have no fear of the result. With the word of God in their own tongue, the Christians of Madagascar are already familiar; their efforts among their countrymen to extend it are vigorous and determined; and He who has graciously enabled them to withstand the fiery persecutions of Paganism, is able to preserve them from the wiles and sophistries of Popery. In Tahiti, from which it expelled the English Protestant missionaries, its handful of worthless converts is its shame; while the Protestant churches, left to the oversight of native pastors only, have increased one-fourth in number.

The writers of the French colonial press in Bourbon boldly assert the right of France to the supreme political power in Madagascar, and would rejoice to make Radama a mere tributary to the imperial government; and in Paris the same pretensions are also put forth, and this course of policy strongly advocated. So lately as the 12th ultimo, an elaborate article appeared in the Journal des Débats, from the pen of M. Jules Duval, maintaining the right of France to the sovereignty of Madagascar, and reflecting on the imperial government for its supineness in not having already adopted means to enforce its claim. These pretensions might well awaken the most painful forebodings if they were likely to be enforced; but the government of Britain will respect and maintain the independent sovereignty of the new king, and we have no apprehension that the government of France will pursue the contrary course of injustice and dishonour.—London Missionary Magazine, December, 1861.

DONATIONS
TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS
In December, 1861.

Synod of Albany.—Pby of Londonderry—Londonderry ch mo con 26 03; Ladies' Miss'ry Assoc'on 22 92; Gentlemen's Miss'ry Assoc'on 35. Pby of Albany—Charlton ch 5; first ch, Little Falls, ann coll 17 59, mo con 23 61; Kingsboro' ch, Willard J. Heacock 75; Jewett ch 10; Hamilton Union ch 90; Tribes Hill ch Sab sch 2 307 15

Synod of Buffalo.—Pby of Genesee River—Tuscarora ch 5; Central ch, Geneseo 25; Bath ch 110, of which 75 from Mrs Arabella Magee; Wyoming ch 25 165 00

Synod of New York.—Pby of Hudson—Hempstead ch Sab sch 13 29; Bloomingburg ch 11; Hopewell ch, D C Bull 10. Pby of North River—Bethlehem ch, Wm C Beatty 6; first ch Kingston, add'l 27 85. Pby of Long Island—Amagansett ch mo con 13. Pby of New York—Chelsea ch ann'l coll 55, mo con 19 50; 42d street ch mo con 13 31, Ladies' Bible-class, per P D Whitmore 20; first ch, Clifton, Staten Island 25; first ch, N Y, ann'l coll, add'l 500, mo con 157 90; Madison ave ch 17; Fifth ave and 19th street ch mo cons, Nov and Dec, 53 20; Brick ch mo con 32 31; 15th street ch mo con 57 22. Pby of New York 2d—Stanton street ch Sab sch, No. 94, to educate a child at Siam 25; Canal street ch mo con 11; Washington Heights ch mo con 10. Pby of Connecticut—First ch, Hartford 45, of which 10 from Sab sch. Pby of Nassau—Williamsburg ch mo con 36 27; Astoria ch mo con 18 90; first ch, Brooklyn 290, mo con 32 50 1500 25

Synod of New Jersey.—Pby of Elizabethtown—First ch, Plainfield 15. Pby of Passaic—Third ch, Newark, ann'l coll 122 74, mo con 21 92, Sab sch 7; first ch, Morristown 1288. Pby of New Brunswick—Lawrence ch 35 97. Pby of Newton—Belvidere ch 100. Pby of Raritan—Clinton ch Ladies' Sewing Circle, to cons Mrs Mary Trimmer L. M. 30. Pby of Luzerne—Tamaqua ch 10 1630 63

Synod of Philadelphia.—Pby of Philadelphia—Moyamensing ch, col'd class in Sab sch 10; Tenth ch, Philadelphia, mo con 77 28. Pby of Philadelphia Central—Great Valley ch 19 35. Pby of Newcastle—Oxford ch 145 80; Newcastle ch, Mrs A C Kerr 25; Sab schools of Fagg's Manor ch 5 52, viz. Boyd's 1 59, Manor 1 20, Penn's Grove 1 10, Greenwood 1 16, Homeville 47 cts. Pby of Donegal—Strasburg ch 10 50; Union ch, Colerain, David Stewart 50. Pby of Huntingdon—Lewiston ch 26 49; Lower Tuscarora ch, in part 197; Alexander ch Sab sch 5 38; Mifflinton and Lost Creek ch, 65, Rev S Lawrence 3. Pby of Northumberland—Great Island ch, Lock Haven, Sab sch 8 60; Lewisburgh ch, bequest of Mrs Margaret Simonton dec'd, 12 50; Bloomsburg ch Ladies' Miss'y Soc'y 24 82 686 24

Synod of Baltimore.—Pby of Baltimore—Franklin street ch, Baltimore 15 34; Central ch, Baltimore, Sab sch, to educate a boy 17 33. Pby of Carlisle—Shippensburg ch 125; Tom's Creek and Piney Creek chs 100, viz. Alex'r Horner 20, Wm Walker 10, Margaret Witherow 10, Dr Annan 5, John Witherow 5, Samuel Gault 5, Jacob Shewmaker 5, James McAllister 5, Silas Horner 5, John Horner 5, John Thomson 5, Rosa Stewart 5, Dr R Annan 2, Stephen Smith 50 cts, John Gault 1, E & L Snider 5, R S Grier 6 50; Mouth of Juniata ch 12; Harrisburg ch, half mo con colls for 6 months 52; Wells Valley ch 13; McConnellsburg ch 47; Great Conewago ch, Ladies' Sewing Soc'y 10. Pby of Potomac—Darnestown ch 6 68, Youths' Miss'y Society 3 32 401 67

Synod of Pittsburgh.—Pby of Redstone—Dunlap's Creek ch Sab sch 5 05. Pby of Ohio—Bethany ch 61 30. Pby of Blairsville—Ebensburg ch, Little Girls' Miss'y Soc'y 5 60. Pby of Clarion—Bethesda ch, Ladies' Miss'y Soc'y 7; Beechwoods ch 8; Callensburgh ch 13 85, Sab sch 1 50; Concord ch, Fem Miss'y Soc'y 5 10; New Rehoboth ch 5 50. Pby of Saltsburgh—Gilgal ch 10; Pine Run ch 12 134 90

Synod of Alleghany.—Pby of Alleghany—Concord ch 9; Pleasant Valley ch 6. Pby of Beaver—Sharon ch 4; Beaver Falls ch 25; Westfield ch, to cons Mr S L P Taylor of Mount Jackson, Pa, L. M. 27; Slippery Rock ch 6 25. Pby of Erie—Park ch Sab sch, Erie, for Mrs Gayley's school in China 50; Gravel Run ch 3; Franklin ch 25 155 25

Synod of Wheeling.—Pby of Washington—Fourth ch, Wheeling, to educate a boy at Corisco 25; Washington ch mo con 13, Ladies' Miss'y Soc'y, in part to cons Dr Thomas McKennan L. M. 21 25. Pby of St Clairsville—Crab Apple ch Sab sch 22. Pby of Steubenville—Centre ch 5; Ridge ch 20; Centre Unity ch, Hanna Fund 30; New Cumberland ch 3 03. Pby of New Lisbon—Bethesda ch 5 69; Hubbard ch 2; Bethel ch 11 91; Rehoboth ch 9; Yellow Creek ch, Youths' Miss'y Soc'y 15, Juv Cong l, 183 88

Synod of Ohio.—Pby of Columbus—First ch Columbus, mo con 52 10; Westminster ch mo con 45 29; Mifflin ch Sab sch 1 96. Pby of Marion—Radnor ch 5; Iberia ch 3; Wyandott ch 98 cents, Sab sch 1 42. Pby of Zanesville—Pleasant Hill ch 25 50; Newark ch 10 50; Muskingum ch 13. Pby of Richland—Perrysville ch 16; Clear Fork ch 6; Ontario ch 7; Milford ch 9; Oliversburgh ch 10; Lexington ch 7 63; Bloomington ch 2. Pby of Wooster—Unity ch in part 55 25, of which 30 to con J S Brown L M; Jackson ch 14 35 285 98

Synod of Cincinnati.—Pby of Miami—Pleasant Valley ch 44 35, Rev H R Wilson and wife 50, their children, Bessie L, Mary J, Henry, and James L 5 65, a New Year's gift. Pby of Cincinnati—Pleasant Ridge ch 12 25 112 25

Synod of Indiana.—Pby of New Albany—German ch Jackson Township 2. Pby of Madison—Hanover ch 13 44. Pby of Indianapolis—First ch Indianapolis 40 25, of which 25 from Sab sch; Bethany ch Sab sch 3 58 69

Synod of Northern Indiana.—Pby of Logansport—Frankfort ch 20; First ch Fort Wayne 52, to con Mrs A Hamilton L M 65; Pleasant Ridge ch Sab sch 1. Pby of Crawfordsville—New Hope ch 4 65; Waveland ch 12 35 96 00

Synod of Illinois.—Pby of Peoria—French Grove ch 8; 2d ch Peoria 24 40; 1st ch Henry 20; Elba Centre ch 3 50. Pby of Hillsboro'—Greenville ch 12 67 90

Synod of Chicago.—Pby of Schuyler—Camp Creek ch 27. Pby of Rock River—2d ch Freeport, Sab sch 15; Princeton ch 23 30 65 30

Synod of Wisconsin.—Pby of Milwaukie—German ch Milwaukie 3 69

Synod of Iowa.—Pby of Cedar—First ch Muscatine, mo con 12. Pby of Dubuque—1st ch Dubuque, Iowa, mo con 10 22 00

Synod of Southern Iowa.—Pby of Iowa—Mount Pleasant ch 6 20. Pby of Des Moines—Albia ch 3, Rev J M Batchelder 1 10 20

Synod of Missouri.—Pby of St. Louis—Union ch [illegible]32; German ch 33 50, Rev W H Parks 3 68 50

Synod of Kentucky.—Pby of Louisville—First ch Louisville, mo con 20 70; 2d ch Louisville, mo con Oct and Nov. 28 45; 4th ch Louisville, Thomas Stevens 5. Pby of Muhlenburg—Hopkinsville ch Sab sch 2 40. Pby of Transylvania—2d ch Danville, Ky. 10. Pby of West Lexington—Frankfort ch 72 80; Bethel ch 26 75. Pby of Ebenezer—Sharpsburg ch 8; Elizaville ch Sab sch 3; Burlington ch, J M Preston 50 227 10

Synod of Pacific.—Pby of Oregon—Portland ch 11 50. Pby of Benicia—Napa ch 29 50. Pby of Puget Sound—Olympia ch 1 42 00

Total received from churches, $6,224 58

Legacies.—Bequest of Rev Henry G Comingo, D D, dec'd, Steubenville, O. 100; bequest of Angelica Torrence, Beaver Co., Pa. 10; Patterson Estate, per Rev Dr Marshall 72 71; Estate of Robert Patterson, of Burgettstown, one fourth legacy less coll tax 40 222 71

Seminaries.—Princeton Theo Seminary Bible Miss'y and Tract Society 50; Oxford Fem College Soc of Inquiry 38 33 88 33

Miscellaneous.—Reformed ch Sab sch, Hackensack, New Jersey, for India 42 68; Dr Vail, Johnsonburgh, N. Y. 5; H C W. Annual Thank-offering 1; Col G Loomis 5; Ladies of the 4th Avenue Presbyterian ch, N. Y., for Choctaw mission 10; H R Cantly, England 6; Coloured Home, N. Y., to ed a child at Corisco 15; A Young Man of Cincinnati 4; Miss Anna M Turner 5; Society of Reformed Protestant Dutch ch California 43 50; Charles Wiggins, St. Louis 100; J R Calderwood, West Galway, N. Y. 5; Mr W 25; John E Parsons, Esq. 25; L P Stone 100; Widow of the late Rev Eli Smith, Vincennes, Ind. 10; Miss M C Gibson, Chippewa mission 100; Ira C Sutton, Chippewa mission 2; Grove Hill ch Chippewa mission, mo con 33; Mary Luella Agnew, Wyandott, Ohio 57 cents; "Old Zed," near Muhlenburg, Ky. 20; H Brewster, Shirleysburg, Pa. 5; Mrs Charles E Kelsey, Clinton, Conn. 50 cents; Rev J W Drake, Greenville, Ohio 5; Margaret McFerren, Cambridge, Ohio, for Futtehpore school 2 50; Robert Bell, Alexandria, Va. 2 50; Margaret Brown, Buford, Ohio 1; Norwich Cong 9 54; Hon W H Lowrie, Pittsburgh, Pa. 17; Jacob Legenberger, Nasnville, Ohio 5; Mrs A D Brandriff, Fort Wayne, Ind. 5 610 79

Total Receipts in December, 1861, $7,146 41

One box of clothing from the Female Missionary Society of Rehoboth ch, Pby of New Lisbon, valued at 31 75, for Chippewa mission

WM. RANKIN, Jr., Treasurer.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Letters relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to Walter Lowrie, Esq., or Rev. John C. Lowrie, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

Letters relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to William Rankin, Jr., Esq., Treasurer—same address.

The Foreign Missionary—Two editions of this publication are printed. The Pamphlet Edition contains 32 pages, and is published monthly, at 50 cents a year for each copy. It is sent free, when desired, to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to the ministers of our churches.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,
No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of Colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record and Sabbath-school Visitor, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., Corresponding Secretary, No. 821 Chestnut street.

All communications, reports, remittances of money, and orders for Books, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage, and Business Correspondent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to the Rev. W. M. Engles, D.D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to James Dunlap, Esq., Treasurer.

CLOSE OF THE FISCAL YEAR.

Pastors and churches are reminded that the fiscal year of the Board of Publication will close with the last day of February. Only contributions received before that time for the Colportage and Distribution Funds will be acknowledged in the next Annual Report.

OUR COLPORTAGE FUND.

Our Colportage Fund continues largely in arrears, and hence our colportage work is necessarily much curtailed. We earnestly request all churches or private contributors who may design to contribute something for colportage this year, to forward their offerings before the last day of February, when our fiscal year closes.

OUR DISTRIBUTION WORK.

In answer to the appeal published in the last number of the Record and in a circular letter, we have received many donations for our work of distribution among the soldiers and sailors, some of these donations being of a truly munificent size. With this help, we have been enabled to continue this very interesting branch of our labours to the present time. Within the last few weeks large boxes and packages of books have been sent to Port Royal, South Carolina; to Fortress Monroe, Virginia; to the camps around Washington, Alexandria, Baltimore, Frederick, Harrisburg, &c.; to Western Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri; to navy-yards and many United States ships, and a variety of other places. Tens of thousands of soldiers and sailors have gladly received these books and tracts, invoking the blessing of Heaven upon the donors.

With so constant a drain upon our limited fund, it is again beginning to run low. We trust that those who have money to give for the Lord's work will not overlook this highly important and promising channel, through which they may send it to the great field. It is only by your help, Christian brethren, that we can continue to scatter these seeds of divine truth among our soldiers and sailors.

THE SOLDIER'S POCKET-BOOK.

This precious little volume continues to go forth more and more widely on its errand of light and love. We are receiving numerous letters from officers and chaplains in every division of the army, testifying to its excellence, and adaptedness to do good, and to the avidity with which it is everywhere sought after by the soldiers who have seen it. Nor are the instances few or doubtful in which it is acknowledged and blessed by the Spirit of God. One chaplain, in a letter just received, says:—"Six privates of one company, in one tent, by its perusal have been led to establish worship in their tent, and I hope very soon to sit at the communion table with them all. Oh! it was a happy inspiration which induced its preparation!"

We are issuing edition after edition of the "Pocket-Book," and nearly all of them are distributed gratuitously among the regiments in various parts of the wide field of war. We hope those who are able to give either much or a little, will help us to carry forward these distributions.

THE CAMPS AND SHIPS.

Our laborious colporteur has continued his good work in the camps and ships around Philadelphia during the month of December last; and the following is an extract from his report to the Board for that month:

"The following named camps, regiments, and ships-of-war have been visited, and supplied with tracts, books, &c., during the month, to wit: Camp Olden, Trenton, N. J., 1300 men; Camp Stratton, Beverly, N. J., 1000 men; Camp Wayne, Westchester, Pa., 1000 men; and seven other regiments encamped and in barracks in the city and vicinity, numbering in all 11,300 men. Also, the following named ships-of-war at the navy-yard: Hatteras, State of Georgia, Wissahickon, Itasker, Keystone State, Mystic, Sciota, Tuscarora, Kittatinny, J. C. Dobbin, J. S. Chambers, Brooklyn, and Tahoma. Total of ships, 13; of sailors, 1560. Total of soldiers and sailors supplied during the month, 12,861.

"There have been distributed, of tracts—including 300 copies of 'Devotional Poetry,' and 250 Cards, 'Sinner's Resolve'—153,875 pages. Of 'The Soldier's Pocket-Book,' 4950 copies; and of 'The Sailor's Companion,' 92 copies. Total of pages, 153,875; volumes, 5042.

"Three regiments included in the above aggregate, which had been visited, supplied with tracts, and included in a former report, were revisited and supplied with 'The Soldier's Pocket-Book,' during the period embraced in this report. Five of the above-named ships have been furnished with 'The Sailor's Companion.'

"I have been received with the utmost courtesy by all the authorities in both branches of the service, with whom I came in contact, and afforded every facility for carrying out my mission.

"The eagerness with which the soldiers receive and read, and the anxiety manifested on the part of chaplains, colonels, and other officers, to procure the books and tracts, show that an unabating, if not an increasing interest is felt, not only in the publications of the Board, but in the spiritual well-being of the soldiers; and I am encouraged to hope that the seed thus sown may be 'bread cast upon the waters,' to be found 'after many days.'

"The camp-ground of a regiment recently gone to the 'seat of war,' which had been largely supplied with tracts, not only from the Board, but from other religious societies, was visited by your colporteur immediately after its vacation by the troops; and while large quantities of newspapers and other printed matter was found strewn over the field, not a solitary tract or fragment of a tract was to be seen. This circumstance was a source of deep satisfaction and thankfulness to myself; and it is recorded for the gratification of others interested in this most laudable Christian enterprise.

"Many of the commanders and other officers of the vessels visited are pious and God-fearing men, and sent their sincere thanks to the Board for the gifts of books and tracts which they received; and pledged themselves to use all their influence, both in word and deed, to secure their proper use and appreciation on the part of the men of their respective commands.

"It was my aim, as far as the Lord enabled me, to make the ceremony of presenting these gifts more or less impressive and emphatic, and to do what I could to secure their future use by the recipients; praying that the Holy Spirit might be pleased to carry the sacred messages home to their hearts." R.

SOLDIER'S LIBRARY

OF THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION,
CONTAINING SEVENTY VOLUMES.
Catalogue Price, $20—For Cash, $15.

	Price.
Way of Salvation. By Dr. A. Alexander	15
Pleasures of Religion	30
Life of Captain Wilson	25
Spirit of Prayer	20
Friendly Visit	15
Life of Major-General Burn	30
Life of Lieutenant-Colonel Blackader	25
Scripture Portions	30
Destruction of Jerusalem	25
Religious Experience. By Dr. A. Alexander	55
Chief End of Man. By Rev. J. Hall, D. D.	25
Christian's Portion	15
Dying Thoughts	40
Thoughts on Religion	35
Acquaintance with God	20
Fountain of Wisdom	45
Bible Truth. By Dr. A. Alexander	40
Sick-Room Devotions	20
Chamber of Sickness	35
Salvation. By Rev. W. J. McCord	20
The Three Questions	25
Baxter's Call	25
Alleine's Alarm	25
Bunyan's Holy War, 68 engravings	$1.50
Proverbs of Solomon	15
Psalms in Prose	20
Causes and Cure of Skepticism	15
Providence of God	30
Christianity from God. By Rev. John Cumming, D. D.	40
Saint and Sinner	10
Anxious Inquirer. By Rev. J. Angell James	25
Come to Jesus. By Rev. Newman Hall	15
Life of Colonel Gardiner	30
Green Pastures (muslin gilt)	25
Still Waters (muslin gilt)	25
My Father's God	20
Counsels to the Young. By Dr. A. Alexander	20
Patience. By Dr. J. W. Alexander	10
Waterloo Soldier	25
Captives of Abb's Valley	30
Fear Not	15
The Warning Cry	10
Gospel and Epistles of John	20
God's Word to Inquirers	15
Learn to say No. By Rev. A. W. Loomis	25
Select Stories	35
Our Friends in Heaven	45
Thoughts on Prayer. By Rev. Jonathan Greenleaf, D. D.	35

Grains of Gold	cents 35
Pictures of Truth	35
Not a Minute to spare	20
Talks about Jesus	15
Little Bob True	35
Only Believe	15
Ye will not Come	10
The Last Days of Jesus. By T. V. Moore, D. D.	55
Sketch of Lieutenant Alexander	10
Physician's Counsels	20
May I believe?	25
Arthur Singleton	35
The Peaks of Otter	10
Titles of our Lord	50
Drops of Truth	35
Bar of Iron	25
Am I a Christian?	25
Words of Wisdom	40
Remarkable Escapes	45
Boys of Wyoming Valley	30
Beauty of Immanuel. By Le Roy J. Halsey, D. D.	50
The Wonderful Lamp	35

The Board have also prepared, especially for the soldiers, THE SOLDIER'S POCKET-BOOK. 64 pages, 32mo, bound in cloth. Price 5 cents. Containing:—Advice and Directions to Soldiers; Short Prayers; Scripture Selections, including Five Psalms; The Ten Commandments; Twenty-four Hymns; Hints to Soldiers on sundry matters.

Many thousands of these books have already been distributed in the camps and elsewhere, although it was issued only very recently. It is just the right book for every soldier to carry in his pocket, that he may draw it forth and read or sing whenever an opportunity occurs. Our colporteurs and the army chaplains say it is sought for with avidity.

Among the other publications suitable and useful for distribution among soldiers and sailors will be found the following:

IN PAPER COVERS.

	Price.
Pilgrim's Progress	$1.00
Religious Experience. By Dr. A. Alexander	30
Prize Essays on the Sabbath	25
Providence of God	10
Baxter's Call	8
Alleine's Alarm	8
Salvation. By Rev. W. J. McCord	8
Anxious Inquirer. By Rev. J. Angell James	10

18mo. TRACTS.

Government of the Thoughts	2
Pardon of Sin	3
What is Fame worth?	3
Our Young Men	3
Forgive us our Debts	4
Closet Companion	4
Labourer's Right to the Sabbath	3
Perils of Licentiousness	3
Devotional Poetry	5

MUSIC BOOKS.

Juvenile Psalmist	30
Juvenile Psalmist, in four parts, each	5
Social Psalmodist	40
Sabbath-school Bell ($10 per 100)	12

SHEET HYMNS.

Just as I am—to tune of Woodworth (per dozen)	2
Say, Brothers, will you meet us? do.	2
My days are gliding swiftly by do.	2
A Pilgrim and a Stranger do.	2
Good News do.	2
Come unto Me do.	2
Stand up for Jesus do.	2
America do.	2

TRACTS—12mo.

Fifteen Pages for One Cent.

No. in Catalogue.		Pages
17	Christ's Gracious Invitation	16
25	Neglecting the Saviour	20
26	Grace to the Chief of Sinners	28
28	Christ Precious	24
38	The Immediate Choice	16
52	Work of the Holy Spirit	20
55	The Gospel Call	8
56	What is Faith?	4
57	Refuge from the Storm	8
60	To Sinners under Conviction	20
65	Jehovah our Righteousness	4
66	Words of Warning	4
67	Now!	4
69	Sin our Enemy, God our Friend	4
73	Who shall dwell with Devouring Fire?	4
74	Without God	4
75	The False Peace and the True	4
77	The Sin-bearer	16
79	Message from God	16
80	Stop!	4
81	Blood on the Door-posts	4
82	To a Young Disciple	4
84	Scarcely Saved?	12
92	Love to an Unseen Saviour	12
95	On Backsliding	4
97	The Lighthouse	12
103	How Sinners are Accepted	4
107	Come to Jesus	48
108	It is I!	44
116	What think ye of Christ?	4
119	The Sympathy of Jesus	12
120	Who shall dwell in Heaven?	8
122	What shall I do?	8
127	Time Lost	16
129	To a Young Man	20
148	The Spirit Quenched	16
149	Right Soon!	8
153	True Philosophy for Mechanics	4
157	Too Late!	16
165	A Friend Indeed	4
177	The Village Carpenter	16
183	The Army Surgeon	4
200	Don't Swear	4
218	What's the Harm?	4
222	Turn and Live	4
223	The Dungeon and the Ladder	4
224	The Triumph of Grace	4
225	The Nature of Conversion	28

IN GERMAN.

	Price.
Soldier's Pocket Book	5
Religious Experience. By Dr. Archibald Alexander	60 and 75
Great Supper. By Dr. A. G. Fairchild	15

TRACTS IN GERMAN.

No. in Catalogue.		Pages
17	Christ's Gracious Invitation	16
65	Jehovah our Righteousness	4
73	Who shall dwell with Devouring Fire?	4
74	Without God	4
75	The False Peace and the True	4
77	The Sin-bearer	16
79	A Message from God	16

Orders to be addressed to WINTHROP SARGENT, Business Correspondent, No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DONATIONS RECEIVED FOR THE COLPORTAGE FUND OF THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION, DURING THE MONTH OF DECEMBER 1861.

Pby of Londonderry—Londonderry ch	11 00
Pby of Albany—Carlisle ch 5; West Milton ch 6 87; Saratoga Springs ch 24 41	36 28
Pby of Ogdensburg—Hammond ch	5 00
Pby of Rochester City—Rochester 3d ch	84 39
Pby of Hudson—Goodwill ch	20 00
Pby of Bedford—South Salem ch	13 50
Pby of Long Island—Fresh Pond ch 8; Huntington ch, to con Rev Thomas McCawley hon mem 30; Smithtown ch 8 33	46 33
Pby of New York—New York 1st ch "A Lady" 50; University Place ch W M Halsted 50	100 00
Pby of Nassau—Brooklyn Central ch	46 93
Pby of Elizabethtown—Rahway 2d ch 25; New Providence ch 10; Metuchin ch 10	45 00
Pby of Passaic—Morristown 1st ch	850 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Trenton 3d ch 20; Ewing ch 5; Trenton 2d ch, per Rev A D White 5 35	30 35
Pby of Philadelphia—Fourth ch Sab sch, to con W J Lewis hon mem	30 00
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Hestonville ch, per Rev Dr West 7 25; 2d ch "A Member" 50	57 25
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Neshaminy ch	6 10
Pby of New Castle—Benevolent Fund of New London Congregation	20 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Curwensville ch	10 00
Pby of Northumberland—Sunbury ch Mrs H R Jorden	5 00
Pby of Baltimore—Govane chapel 5; Ellicott Mills ch 17; Rev Cyrus Huntington 13; Baltimore 12th ch 10	45 00
Pby of Lewes—Dover ch	1 00
Pby of Carlisle—Harrisburg ch 20; Dr J Curwen 20; Hagerstown ch 25; Mercersburg ch 15	80 00
Pby of Potomac—Darnestown ch	5 00
Pby of Saltsburgh—Harmony ch	3 00
Pby of Erie—Park ch "F and L Spencer" 5; Park ch Sab sch to con Samuel S Spencer hon mem 35	40 00
Pby of Allegheny City—Manchester ch	19 75
Pby of Steubenville—Centre Unity ch	25 00
Pby of Marion—Milford Centre ch 6; Marysville ch 5	11 00
Pby of Western Reserve—Westminster ch Rev F T Brown, Cleaveland, Ohio	12 00
Pby of Miami—Springfield ch	10 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Cincinnati Seventh ch 28 36; Goshen ch 2 12; Lebanon ch 19	49 48
Pby of Indianapolis—Indianapolis 1st ch	84 38
Pby of Fort Wayne—La Grange ch 4; Fawn River ch 2	6 00
Pby of Crawfordsville—Bethany ch	5 00
Pby of Sangamon—Springfield 1st ch	40 00
Pby of Peoria—Peoria 2d ch	12 65
Pby of Hillsboro'—Hillsboro' ch	4 00
Pby of Bloomington—Atlanta ch 5 35; Metamora ch 2 20; Low Point ch 4 80	12 35
Pby of Chicago—Rockford ch	8 53
Pby of Lake Superior—Superior ch, per Dr C O Waters	1 00
Pby of Cedar—Tipton ch	15 00
Pby of Dubuque—Andrew ch 3; Hopkinton ch 3 39	6 39
Pby of Council Bluffs—Afton and other chs, per Dr C O Waters	48 18
Pby of Omaha—Mission ch	2 00
Pby of Fairfield—Keosauqua ch	1 50

MISCELLANEOUS.

"A Young Man," Cincinnati 4; John E Parsons, Esq. 25; "A Friend" in Portage City 5; "A Friend" in Delaware 1; "C," Morristown, N. J. 5; "P W," Columbia, Pa. 2; Miss M Brown, Paxton valley, Pa. 10; Rev R Bell, Alexandria, Va. 2 50; James Russell, North Jackson, Ohio, 5; "P, Chicago" 50, Rev J H Kirkpatrick, Greenville, Pa. 2	116 50
	2084 84

Donations received for the DISTRIBUTION FUND OF THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION during the month of December, 1861.

Pby of Philadelphia—Seventh ch, from "C H," for the soldiers	5 00
Pby of New Castle—Forks of Brandywine ch, per Rev Dr Happersett	10 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Miss Booth 2; "A Friend" 5; Dr S G Bird 5 61; A Lady who has two sons in the army, per R Junkin 3 33; "E B B" 50 cents; G Elliott, books for Soldiers 26 14; Robert Chamberlain, Esq. 5; Rev James Matthews 20	67 58
Total,	2167 42
AMOUNT OF SALES during the month of DECEMBER	4049 37
Total,	$6,216 79

JAMES DUNLAP, Treasurer.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. H. I. Coe.
Treasurer—Archibald Gamble, Esq.
No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Missouri.

Communications on the subject of Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Donations should be sent to Archibald Gamble, Esq., St Louis, Mo.; or, if more convenient, to J. D. Thorpe, Esq., Cincinnati, Ohio; A. Davidson, Esq., Louisville, Ky.; S. D. Powel, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Domestic Missions, No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia; T. H. Nevin, Esq., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. J. B. Kirtland, Memphis, Tennessee; or to William Rankin, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Foreign Missions, 23 Centre St., New York.

"HIGH TAXES TO CÆSAR."

The subjoined letter, from a very efficient minister in one of our Ohio Presbyteries, presents, very pointedly, some of the great difficulties in the way of benevolent contributions. The excuse he mentions, and which finds expression in the words "for the people have to pay such high taxes to Cæsar," is one likely to find louder utterance as the war taxes increase. Let those who withhold from the Lord for this reason, remember that in the present conflict, wise statesmen, skilful generals, and brave soldiers, cannot secure a desirable peace without God's blessing. Let them examine the remarkable declarations in the 8th chapter of Zechariah, especially in the 10th verse, and learn that civil war is one of God's judgments on covetousness, and that building the Lord's house may bring peace and prosperity to an afflicted land. Our brother says:

"The smallness of the crop of Christian fruits, in the way of contributions to our Boards, is, in a great measure, traceable to the ministry. I do not charge my brethren in this Presbytery with want of faithfulness in preaching the gospel of Jesus; but there is too much modesty in presenting the claims of God upon the people to give for his cause. In many cases, the causes are not presented at all. I take this partly from declarations of brethren, and partly from the tables of statistics in the Minutes of the General Assembly for 1861, and the same will appear on all the Minutes for six years past. You may take ——, for example. They gave last year, according to the Minutes, $143 to all causes, and yet they number 271 members, and have quite a number of rich men in connection with the church and congregation. I think the cause lies here: brother G. speaks of the matter, and his session think it better not to present the matter, 'for the people have to pay such high taxes to Cæsar,' i. e., that they may render to Cæsar that which is Cæsar's, though they withhold from God that which is God's. I once was sent to that church, when vacant, by Presbytery, to preach, and take a collection for the Board of Education. The word was ahead of me, and the people set it down they would not give. Friends urged me not to speak of the matter—it would make me unpopular. Members of session sought me out with anxiety, to plead with me not to present the cause. But I plead till I got permission, and succeeded in getting $50, some subscribing who on Saturday said they would not give. From this and similar experience in other places, I am of opinion, that a plain, earnest, scriptural argument, would make our churches far more efficient in contributing to all our Boards. * * * If our nation lives through the present struggle, it will be a great honour to have helped in the time of peril, even to death: will it not be a greater honour to have helped the church of God to hold on in her glorious work, even if we should not only not add a cent to our capital, but take dollars from it. When our blessed Lord comes to gather up his jewels, who of all his people will not wish to share in the honour of his kingdom—the honour of being co-workers with him in gathering the elect from the four quarters of the earth. Is there any way by which the members of our churches can thus work together with Christ, but by giving alms as well as praying?"

CHURCH BUILDING—(Continued.)

In the last number of the Record, we presented some of the reasons which force our feeble churches to erect sanctuaries, even amid our present troubles. Those reasons were, the necessities of ministerial support; their imperilled church organizations; and true economy, especially in the use of missionary funds.

Another, and a fourth reason is, the unkindness of other denominations. Unwelcome and unexpected as it is in these days, when common disasters ought to make all men, and especially all professed Christians, forbearing and helpful towards each other, it is nevertheless true that within the last few months several of our churches have been forced to arise and build, by the unkindness of other denominations.

For example, in quite a large town in Illinois, our church was recently worshipping in a hired sanctuary, that they had reason to think they could occupy, at least until brighter days dawned on our country. The Methodists, however, went privately and bought the church, without letting our people know anything about it; thus forcing them to disband, occupy an uncomfortable hall, or build. They chose the latter alternative, and, through the blessing of God and the aid of the Board of Church Extension, expect soon to worship in their own sanctuary. In another and a smaller place, in the same state, the only room in which service could be held, was owned by a Universalist. This room our people had rented, and used for some time, when suddenly the owner took it from them, that a Universalist society might be organized, and worship therein; seemingly in the hope that our church would thus be forced to disband. Here again, by the aid of the Board, a comfortable church, free from debt, has been built by our little flock.

A fifth reason, which, in connection with those already named, has encouraged some of our poor churches to build this season, is the cheapness of building. In many localities, especially in the newer states and territories, the cost of building has wonderfully diminished within the last four or five years, until it has reached a comparatively low point. In some places, one dollar will now go as far as four or five dollars would five years ago; and we think it safe to say, that our frontier churches can build now for less than one-half the sum required in 1857.

These considerations, with humble faith in that God who required not only the walls, but the temple at Jerusalem to be built in troublous times, have led a goodly number of our churches to build amid the alarms of war. A still larger number, we have reason to believe, are simply awaiting the movements of the church in sustaining the Board of Church Extension, to decide whether they shall live, and build, or abandon the hope of a sanctuary, and die.

Thankful are we to say, that the people of God have, by a liberality scarcely expected in these disastrous days, enabled us to aid most of the more pressing cases that have come before us; and that we hope the Lord means in this, as in other departments of his work, to cause the riches of the liberality of his children to be made manifest in great trial.

Donations received by the Board of Church Extension, during the month of December, 1861.

RECEIPTS AT ST. LOUIS.
Pby of Maumee—Hicksville ch	5 00
Pby of Dubuque—Dyersville German ch	1 00
Pby of Columbus—Sab sch Columbus 1st ch	25 00
Pby of Chicago—Rockford 1st ch	40 00
Pby of Chillicothe—Union ch	8 30
Pby of Crawfordsville—Bethany ch 8 50; Rockville ch 6	14 50
Pby of St. Paul—Vermillion ch	1 00
Pby of Peoria—Peoria 1st ch 51 50; Peoria 2d ch 21	72 50
Pby of Western Reserve—Westminster ch Cleveland	14 00
Pby of North River—Kingston ch	15 00
Pby of Fairfield—Locust Grove ch 3; Libertyville ch 2 56	5 56
Pby of Mohawk—Park Central ch Syracuse, special	50 00
Pby of Fort Wayne—Fort Wayne 1st ch (special)	110 00
From churches,	$361 86
MISCELLANEOUS.
"A Friend," St Louis (special)	300 00
At St. Louis,	$661 86
RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA.
Pby of New Castle—New London Congregational Benevolent Fund	20 00
Pby of Baltimore—Franklin st ch 20; 2d ch in part 16	36 00
Pby of Steubenville—Hanna Fund of Centre Unity ch	25 00
Pby of New Albany—German ch of Jackson Township	2 00
Pby of Muncie—Indianapolis 1st ch	95 00
Pby of Winnebago—Winneconne ch	2 50
Pby of Oregon—Clatsop ch	3 30
Pby of Troy—Lansingburg 1st ch, per Wm Rankin Jr.	24 50
Pby of New York—Jersey City 1st ch, per do.	41 89
Pby of Elizabethtown—Rahway 2d ch, per do.	25 00
Pby of Passaic—Morristown 1st ch, per do.	450 00
Pby of Fort Wayne—Fort Wayne 1st ch add'l, per do.	4 00
From churches,	$729 19
MISCELLANEOUS.
Mrs Charles E Kelsey, Clinton, Conn. 50 cents; A Young Man, Cincinnati 4	4 50
At Philadelphia,	$733 69
RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURG.
Pby of Beaver—Sharon ch 3 25; Tarentum ch 7	10 25
Pby of Allegheny—Scrubgrass ch	4 00
Pby of Allegheny City—Allegheny City 1st ch	45 35
Pby of Zanesville—Zanesville ch	10 00
Pby of Saltsburg—Harmony ch	2 00
Pby of Blairsville—Ebensburg ch	8 15
At Pittsburg,	$79 75
For Children's Church.
Pby of Monmouth—Shrewsbury ch	2 00
Total Receipts in December,	$1477 30

ARCHIBALD GAMBLE, Treasurer.

Ecclesiastical Record.

CALLS.

The Rev. Charles Wadsworth, D. D., has received a call to the Calvary church, San Francisco, California.

The Rev. T. De Witt Talmadge has declined the call to the Third Reformed Dutch church, Philadelphia.

The Rev. J. B. Stewart has received a call to the Third Presbyterian church, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Rev. J. Halsted Carroll, of Brooklyn, has received a call from the South Congregational church, New Haven, Connecticut.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

Mr. David T. Campbell was ordained by the Presbytery of Iowa, and installed pastor of the Unity church, Morning Sun, Iowa, on the 20th of November.

The Rev. James H. Baird was installed pastor of the Fifteenth church, Philadelphia, by the Presbytery of Philadelphia, on the 16th of December.

Mr. N. W. Conklin was ordained and installed pastor of the Scots Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, by the Presbytery of Philadelphia, on the 26th of December.

Mr. Jonathan Cross has been ordained as an evangelist by the Presbytery of Baltimore.

PASTORAL RELATION DISSOLVED.

The Rev. Dr. Yantis has resigned the pastoral charge of First Presbyterian church, Danville, Ky.

The David Waggoner has been released from the pastoral relation of the church at Pulaski, by the Presbytery of Beaver, on the 17th of December.

The Rev. James Y. Mitchell has resigned the pastoral charge of the church at Philipsburg, N. J.

The Rev George Frazier has resigned the charge of Lafayette and Newstead churches, Ky., and removed with his family to Danville, Ky.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESSES CHANGED.

Rev. J. M. Barnett from Superior, Wis., to Hillside, Pa.

Rev. Charles B. Smyth from Delhi, N. Y., to box 3132, New York City.

Rev. O. J. King from Brighton to Keosauqua, Iowa.

Rev. Jos. McMurray from Newportville to Gloucester, N J.

Rev. Pliny Twitchell from Wyoming to Oakland, N. Y.

Rev. J. B. Davis from Titusville, N. J., to Bridesburg, Pa.

Rev. W. P. Carson from Winnebago Depot, Ill., to Epworth, Iowa.

Rev. W. G. Hillman from St. Marys, Ohio, to La Fayette, Ind.

Rev. David T. Campbell from Sharon, Pa., to Morning Sun, Iowa.

Rev. J. P. Finley from Paris to Fulton, Mo.

Rev. Alexander Henry from Danville to Versailles, Ky.

Rev. George Stebbins from Tiskilwa to Kewannee, Ill.

Rev. J. M. Husted from Zion to Bel-Air, Md.

Rev. Silas Johnson from Worthington, Ohio, to Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Rev. F. M. Symmes from Pleasant to Vernon, Ind.

Rev. W. B. McKee from Bayfield, Wis., to Strode's Mills, Pa.

Rev. A. Harlan from Jackson to Neely's Landing, Mo.

Rev. A. Munson from Jackson to Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Rev. W. A. West from Spring Run to Dry Run, Pa.

Rev. J. Conzett from Dubuque to Sherrill's Mount, Iowa.

Rev. George Ainslie from Hagaman's Mills, N. Y., to Rochester, M. T.

Rev. Edwin Town from Philadelphia to Churchtown, Pa.

Rev. Wm. A. Fleming from Irwin's Station to Johnstown, Pa.

Rev. Augustus Taylor from Amanda to St. Mary's, O.

Rev. Franklin D. Harris from Bristol, Pa., to Port Byron, N. Y.

DEATHS.

The Rev. William M. Scott, D. D., of the Northwestern Theological Seminary, at Princeton, N. J., on the 22d of December, aged 44.

The Rev. Lewis Cheeseman, D. D., at Philadelphia, on the 21st of December, in the 59th year of his age.

The Rev. Henry Ruffner, D. D., at his residence, in Kanawha county, Va., on the 17th of December, in the 73d year of his age.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Rev. Miles T. Merwin is now supplying the Dutch Reformed church in Gilboa, N. Y.

The Rev. O. O. McClean will supply the church at Middletown, in the absence of Mr. Davis, on account of ill health.

The Rev. Samuel J. Wilson, D. D., has been invited to supply the Sixth Presbyterian church, Pittsburg.

The Rev. W. A. Fleming is supplying the church at Johnstown, Pa., in the absence of Rev. B. L. Agnew, who is chaplain of Col. Power's regiment, now at Port Royal.

The Presbytery of Missouri River is directed to meet at Council Bluffs, Iowa, on Friday before the second Sabbath of April, 1862, at seven o'clock, P. M.

FUND FOR DISABLED MINISTERS, AND THE NEEDY WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

The following amounts have been received since the last report, viz.

From	N. Brunswick 1st ch,	N. Brunswick Presb'ry,	28 98
"	do. 2d ch,	do. do.	8 60
"	Cranberry 1st church,	do. do.	34 00
"	Alexander ch,	Philadelphia Central do.	14 00
"	Twelfth Presb. church,	Baltimore do.	7 00
"	Sixth do.	Philadelphia do.	32 12
"	Grand View church,	Palestine do.	15 00
"	Sugar Creek church,	Hillsboro' do.	7 00
"	Second Street Presb. church,	Troy do.	57 71
"	Plain Grove church,	Allegheny do.	7 00
"	Middlesex church,	do. do.	11 10
"	Allegheny 1st ch,	Allegheny City do.	66 50
"	Sewickley church,	do. do.	11 56
"	Rochester German ch,	do. do.	61
"	Easton 1st church,	Philadelphia 2d do.	35 00
"	Tipton church,	Cedar do.	20 00
"	Williamsport ch,	Northumberland do.	26 00
"	Warsaw 1st church,	Genesee River do.	8 54
"	Rutgers Street church,	New York do.	50 00
"	Elizabethtown 1st ch,	Elizabethtown do.	62 00
"	Bridgehampton ch,	Long Island do.	16 00
"	Salem church,	Blairsville do.	5 00
"	Middletown 2d church,	Hudson do.	13 45
"	Bethlehem church,	North River do.	20 00
"	Rahway 2d church,	Elizabethtown do.	25 00
"	Richardsville church,	Clarion do.	1 50
"	Academia church,	do. do.	4 50
"	Mount Tabor church,	do. do.	2 00
"	Uniontown church,	Redstone do.	20 00
"	Fairfield church,	Erie do.	4 40
"	Williamsburg German ch,	Nassau do.	2 00
"	Brooklyn Central church,	do. do.	50 29
"	Fort Wayne 1st ch,	Northern Indiana do.	4 00
"	Pleasant Ridge church,	Fort Wayne do.	3 00
"	Short Creek church,	St. Clairsville do.	4 00
"	Murraysville church,	Blairsville do.	11 25
"	New Salem church,	do. do.	5 00
"	Forks of Wheeling ch,	Washington do.	25 00
"	Georgetown church,	Erie do.	4 00
"	Shirleysburg church,	Huntingdon do.	2 00
"	Clearfield church,	do. do.	8 26
"	Curwensville church,	do. do.	3 00
"	Little Valley church,	do. do.	10 00
"	Bellefonte church,	do. do.	29 58
"	Coshocton church,	Zanesville do.	12 00
"	Apple Creek church,	Coshocton do.	6 00
"	"Coshocton Presbytery, its dying gift,"		16 00
"	A. Chapman, of Alquina, Ind.,		3 00
"	Mrs. Dr. Murray, of Elizabeth, N. J.,		10 00
"	Robert Creighton, of Philadelphia,		5 00
"	"A. L. T., of Doylestown, Pa.,		15 00
"	A daughter of a Presbyterian elder,		1 00
"	Mrs. A. C. Kerr, of Newcastle, Del.,		10 00
"	Mrs. Littleton Kirkpatrick,		20 00
"	Richard McDonald,		5 00
"	George McDonald,		50
"	Rosana Francis (coloured,)		50
"	A gentleman,		3 00
"	Mrs. A. M. Mower,		1 00
"	Rev. Cyrus Huntington,		10 00
"	A lady of 1st Presbyterian church, N. Y.,		50 00
"	New Providence ch,	Elizabethtown Pby,	11 00
"	New Vernon church,	do. do.	4 00
"	Muscatine German church,	Cedar do.	1 00
"	Anonymous,		5 00
"	Rev. A. B. Gilliland,		10 00
"	Reily church,	Oxford Presbytery,	25 00
"	Manokin church,	Lewes do.	12 63
"	Buffalo church,	Northumberland Pby,	27 00
"	Benevolent Fund of New London congregation,	Newcastle Presbytery,	20 00
"	Tribe's Hill church,	Albany do.	2 00
"	Chestnut Level church,	Donegal do.	11 50
"	Wea church,	Logansport do.	2 50
"	Govane chapel,	Baltimore do.	10 00
"	Mercersburg church,	Carlisle do.	20 00
"	Miss Myra King,	Edwardsburg, Mich.,	1 00
"	Mrs. L. K. Taylor,	do. do.	3 00
"	Rev. E. W. Taylor,	do. do.	1 00
"	"Fides,"	do. do.	5 00
			$1115 58

GEO. H. VAN GELDER,
Treasurer, Trustees of General Assembly,
Office, No. 320 Walnut Street.
Philadelphia, January 13th, 1862.

FORM OF BEQUEST FOR DISABLED MINISTERS OR FAMILIES OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

I give and bequeath to my executors hereinafter named ——— dollars, in trust, nevertheless, that they shall within ——— months after my decease, pay the same to George H. Van Gelder, Treasurer of the Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, or to his successor for the time being in said office, for the use of such disabled ministers, and their families, as the said, The Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America shall or may designate.

NOTA.—This form will do for a pecuniary bequest. If stocks, or land, or other property is given, the phraseology should be modified to suit the case.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN REGARD TO COLLECTIONS.

Whereas, Many of our churches do not contribute to our benevolent enterprises, and whereas, it is desirable to test the power of simultaneous effort; and whereas, an emergency has arisen, requiring the coöperation of all our churches to save our Boards from serious embarrassment, therefore,

Resolved, 1. That this Assembly earnestly request all our churches that have no fixed times for the purpose, to take up annual collections as follows, viz.

For the Board of Domestic Missions on the first Sabbath of November.

For the Board of Foreign Missions on the first Sabbath of January.

For the Board of Education on the first Sabbath of March.

For the Colportage Fund of the Board of Publication on the first Sabbath of May.

For the Board of Church Extension on the first Sabbath of July.

For the Disabled Ministers' Fund on the first Sabbath of September.

Resolved, 2. That when the annual collections cannot be taken up on the days above designated, it be recommended to take them up as soon thereafter as possible.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Domestic Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, Publication, and the Board of Church Extension, and is issued monthly in newspaper form at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at Twenty-five Cents a year: and all churches of less than fifty families at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, Mr. PETER WALKER, 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

POSTAGE, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance at office of delivery.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling and Pittsburgh.

AN OFFER.—Any missionary, colporteur, or other person, procuring new subscribers to the Record at 50 cents each, shall be entitled to 20 per cent. for each such subscription procured and prepaid.

CONTENTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.—Our Fiscal Year ends March 1st, p. 17. Special Report, p. 17. A Missionary in Pennsylvania, p. 18. One Jewel more gathered, p. 18. Receipts, p. 18.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—I. Ministerial Education. Ought the Church to continue this Prayer? p. 20. II. Christian Education in Schools, Academies, and Colleges. Day of Prayer for Colleges, p. 21. Prayer and Alms, p. 22. Is our School System economical? p. 22. Receipts, p. 22.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Recent Intelligence, p. 23. Missions in China: a Missionary Excursion from Amoy, p. 23. Mission in Siam: Encouragement at Petchaburi, p. 25. Missions in India: the Condition of the Heathen deplorable, p. 25. Missions in Liberia: Recaptured Slave Children at Sinou, Liberia, p. 26. Scholars at Settra Kroo, p. 26. Mission in Brazil: Extracts from Letter of Rev. A. L. Blackford, p. 26. Obituary: Death of Mrs. E. H. Loomis, p. 26. Death of Mrs. Danforth, p. 27. Miscellany: Hope for Madagascar, p. 27. Receipts, p. 28.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.—Close of the Fiscal Year, p. 29. Our Colportage Fund, p. 29. Our Distrbution Work, p. 29. The Soldier's Pocket-Book, p. 29. The Camps and Ships, p. 29. Soldier's Library, p. 29. Receipts, p. 30.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.—"High Taxes to Cæsar," p. 31. Church Building, continued, p. 31. Receipts, p. 31.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Ecclesiastical Record, p. 32.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME XIII. No. 3. | PHILADELPHIA, MARCH, 1862. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

MISSION ROOMS,

No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. T. L. JANEWAY, D. D.
Treasurer—SAMUEL D. POWEL.

LETTERS relating to Missionary Appointments and other operations of the Board, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 910 Arch street, Philadelphia.

CONTRIBUTIONS should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:

ANDREW DAVIDSON, Louisville, Ky.

WILLIAM RANKIN, JR., Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

COLORADO.

DENVER CITY, Nov. 11, 1861.

Dear Brethren—Packing up a few of my most devotional and best theological books, I left the lovely precincts of Brownville, April 3d, with much sorrow and deep regret. Leaving a dear "little flock" in the wilderness, without a shepherd, and to go away far back into the wilderness, was to me somewhat trying. Yet, urged by the Board, and encouraged by this inviting field, after much prayer and meditation, I concluded to go. After attending the spring meeting of Presbytery, and having enjoyed once more the privilege of meeting around the altar of prayer with a few of my old parishioners at Florence, I left Omaha, bound for the notorious Denver; and after a pleasant trip of six days and six hours in the coach, I arrived here Friday, April 26th, at eight o'clock, P. M., and put up at the "Cherokee House," at twelve dollars a week for boarding and lodging.

Though tired, I preached the following Sabbath, on a short notice, to a respectable congregation, in the City Hall, on Blake street, which soon increased fourfold, when we met in the Methodist brick church, which we occupied until October, when it was rented from us. Since then we have been driven about from place to place, like sheep without a fold. During the sitting of the Legislature, they tendered us their hall. At the close of which, I went all over town, begged money, purchased a stove, and fitted up a hall (seventy-two by twenty-two feet) formerly occupied as a billiard-saloon, and now directly over a very large liquor store. Thus, with the spirit of alcohol below, and praying for the Spirit of God above, and relying upon him who is with us always, we hope to be "mighty through God, to the pulling down of these strongholds."

Since my arrival I have been "troubled about many things." When I first met with the Board of Directors, one said to me, "You will have everything to do yourself." This I found was too true. One good brother, however, has acted as sexton. But, excepting a few dollars collected by a kind friend, I have "got" up my own subscriptions, and made my own collections. To do this in a strange place, was a hard trial; yet I had to do it or "give up the ship," and quit the field. Besides, after I had spent all, I had nothing to take me away; and, for a while, never in all my life was I so much concerned for my daily bread. I resolved to trust in God. O how precious are his promises! "Trust in the Lord, and do good, and verily thou shalt be fed." I soon received a little "material aid" unexpectedly; and although I sit upon a borrowed chair, am warmed by a borrowed stove, sleep under a borrowed cover, and rest my head upon a borrowed pillow, yet "I still live;" better off, no doubt, than many other missionaries. And when I feel my unworthiness, I dare not complain. "All things work together for good."

Give.

I am very sorry to see the churches so slow in replenishing the empty treasury of the Board. Is this a matter of necessity? Has the war taken all "the Lord's money"? Has it not rather just put it in circulation? Does not the stirring language of the apostle James, now appropriately apply to the church, when he says, "Your gold and silver is cankered"? Does not the very rust of them bear witness against us? Does not the hire of the missionaries—who, under God, have done so much to advance the Redeemer's kingdom, and establish Presbyterianism in the great far West—which by you is kept back by "withholding more than is meet," cry aloud, "Give, give"? Must the self-denying missionary resign his field to Satan and the world, and go home, for the want of support? Can the "well to do" Christian afford to lose the blessedness of giving, in these days of trial and conflict? Can you, O child of God, refuse to give, since Jesus, though rich, became poor, that you might become rich? Must the good work cease? Must the chariot-wheels stop for the want of pecuniary power? God forbid! The struggles of a bleeding church forbid! And is there no remedy? Must the feeble churches either fade and die, and thousands of immortal souls be lost, for the want of mere pay, when one is more valuable than "the whole world"? If the Christian can suffer this, "how dwelleth the love of God in him?" May God strengthen and revive his church, and enable her to "devise liberable things" for its support!

It is now near twelve o'clock, and I must retire. Good night!

Church organized.

January 14, 1862.—On the 15th of December, we organized a Presbyterian church in Denver, of eighteen members and two ruling elders, with a fair prospect, if we can keep it running, of building up a good congregation. The unsettled condition of the people, together with the prevailing spirit of religious indifference and recklessness, which seems to seize so many upon coming here, operate against us; yet, for religious enterprise, we will compare very favourably with the West in general.

We have an interesting weekly prayer-meeting, usually with a small attendance, yet sometimes very respectable. Last week we had about twenty, which is more than usual. We expect to open a Presbyterian Sabbath-school early in the spring, and hope some of the schools or churches of your city will send us a good library and papers for the children.

I have preached to all classes of people—to governors, judges, lawyers, miners, gamblers, soldiers, Roman Catholics, Jews, and Mormons. And although some appear to be "past feeling—many of whom would never be redeemed"—said a minister of two years' sojourn here; yet generally they are willing to help to support the gospel. With a population of some thirty thousand, throughout Colorado, the harvest is great, and the labourers are few. The field, though hard, is white, and ready to harvest. Now is the time to "thrust in the sickle and reap." Our church ought to have three more men in this territory—one at Central City, one at Canon City, and another at Tarryall and Buckskin Joe. "Brethren, pray for us."

Fraternally yours, A. S. B.

THE STATE OF THINGS—BY A MISSIONARY IN ILLINOIS.

Dear Brother—My quarterly report for the term ending the 1st inst., has been delayed until now. In the times of difficulty which have fallen upon the country, and in which the churches, especially the feeble missionary churches, are sharing very largely, the question has often occurred to me, What is to become of the pastors of these struggling and widely scattered flocks? The salaries, at best, are usually at a low figure, and often irregularly paid; yet, with the promptness which has characterized the payments of the Board of Missions, the ministers have been enabled to hold on with some encouragement and hope of ultimate success. But now, when the streams which filled the treasury of the Board have been cut off, or so far obstructed as to yield but a reduced and imperfect supply, and the people composing the churches straitened in their means, and their payments becoming more irregular, all resources seem to fail the lonely and dependent missionary. If they were all young, single men; or if all of them could, like Paul, turn their attention, even temporarily, to some handicraft which would remunerate, the trouble might be somewhat obviated; but all are neither young, nor single, nor handicraftsmen. And yet, house-rent, and clothes, and bread and butter, if not postage, periodicals, and books, must be had; and in addition, the best possible preaching must be given. If your house rent is not paid, you must preach; if your clothes are seedy, you must preach; or if, again, your meal-barrel has collapsed, and your coal or woodpile has just expired by consumption, still you must preach.

The fastidiousness of people who are either too poor, or too parsimonious, or too negligent to sustain comfortably an educated, intelligent, and really pious minister of the gospel, is beyond all conception, and, indeed, beyond all endurance. But what is to be done? And what remedy can be applied? I confess, my mind labours. With some of the churches there is an earnest desire and purpose to do what they can to become self-sustaining, while others are despairing, and almost ready to abandon all effort. To meet the difficulties, it seems to me several things are needful.

1. A renewed and deeper appreciation of gospel ordinances—for themselves, their children, and their country.
2. A settled purpose to sustain a ministry to dispense these, at all hazards.
3. A corresponding extra effort to supplement the reductions and delays of the Board of Missions, and a prompter attention to the wants and necessities of the pastor. Prompt payments almost double the value of a salary. If money cannot be given, give produce. Let him see that even in your common troubles, you sympathize with him.
4. Let all the churches contribute something regularly to the funds of the Board; and then let those who have hitherto given largely, either continue their contributions, or, if possible, increase them. While in some cases the means of a few may be curtailed, yet certainly there are some who might still give thousands. Can they better spend the means God has given them? If these churches perish, and if these pastors should be compelled to turn their attention to some secular business, what will become of the moral and religious elements which constitute the safeguards of society?

Let a scriptural ministry be withdrawn, and the churches be closed, and the curse of civil war would be a blessing compared to it. Will not, then, the rich men of the church, east and west, come to the rescue?

My labours have been as usual during the quarter, and attended by increased numbers. At our last communion we had no additions. Our mission Sabbath-school is still quite flourishing, even more so than our church school.

In October last, the house we occupied, the second Methodist church, was sold under a trust-deed to the first Methodist society, and we were obliged to seek new quarters. On my return from Synod, I called a meeting, and laid the case before the people. We must dissolve or build. They resolved to build, and went at it immediately. We have now a plain, comfortable frame house (forty-five by thirty-two) inclosed, and plastered with the first coat. A few moderate days will enable us to put on the second coat, and then we shall soon finish it. The Board of Church Extension gave us five hundred dollars, and we raised the remainder mostly here at home. Whole cost about fifteen hundred dollars. Nothing but the direst necessity could have induced these few people to build at such a time, and especially at such a season of the year.

SELF-DENIAL.

Iowa, October, 1861.

Dear Brother—At the close of the term—six months—for which I was commissioned, I sit down to render a brief report of my labours. By the good hand of God upon me, I have been enabled to prosecute my usual labours without interruption—preaching from two to four times a week, attending one prayer-meeting and a Bible-class weekly. The seed has been sown in public, and to some extent in private, but the harvest has not been gathered. Oft have I exclaimed, "Who hath believed our report?" The war excitement has its effect in drawing off attention from religious things. Several members of my churches, and a large number from my congregations, are away in the service of their country; among them is my second son. My congregations are in consequence thinned, at Sigourney especially.

In view of the embarrassment of the Board, the poverty of the people, and the destitute condition of the church at Talleyrand, (Liberty church,) fourteen miles distant, I have recently engaged to supply it one-third of the time. This increases my labour and exposure; my absence from home being on an average seven or eight days each month. I am aiming to make an arrangement by next spring, to get into the country, a few miles nearer to the greater portion of my work, and where I may live cheaper.

The churches thought they still needed two hundred dollars to make me a living; but, as the Board was straitened, and bread cheaper, I proposed to reduce the amount to one hundred and seventy dollars. A commission was given, after delay, for seventy-five dollars for six months. I then proposed another reduction, and had action of Presbytery, asking for sixty dollars for the next six months. This may suffice, as something is expected from Talleyrand for the last half of the year. If the circumstances of the Board will justify that much to be appropriated, and the seventy-five dollars now due can be paid by Christmas, I think I can make ends meet, by Divine favour.

I am satisfied that ministers, as well as people, will have to economize in these times. For the sake of the country and the church, we should be willing to do it. Something approaching to the habits of our fathers must be resorted to, when ministers lived very much as the poorer of their people, partly on the avails of manual labour of themselves and families. What will become of this land, if the neglected gospel be withdrawn, and half-sustained and discouraged ministers retire or turn aside to secular employments? The good seed must still be sown; and while large portions of the adult male population are in the camp, their wives and children must not only have bread for the body, but the more needed bread for the soul.

While there is real diminution of the church's resources, it is to be feared there are those who make the times an excuse for niggardliness in supporting the ministry and the cause of benevolence. Let men beware; they shall reap as they sow. It is blessed to give.

We design next month, in accordance with the advice of the Assembly, to give each of the churches an opportunity, and urge a contribution to the Board of Domestic Missions. But I anticipate very meagre returns; money is not in the country.

Ask the friends of Zion, and of Zion's King, to pray for the missionaries and mission churches in these trying times. We on the outposts, especially, need their prayers and yours.

"HE THAT WATERETH SHALL BE WATERED."

The following note to the Secretary, illustrates God's fulfilment of his promise; and shows both how much may be done, and how God rewards his servants who urge their people to a high standard of Christian benevolence—see Malachi 3d chapter 8th to 10th verses.

January 14, 1862.

Dear Brother—The collections in —— church are taken monthly, such a number being devoted to foreign, and the like to domestic missions. Our regular contribution for the year was sent on September 2, 1861, amounting to $47.53.

Upon the receipt of your last appeal to the churches on behalf of domestic missions, I preached on the first Sabbath of this month on our duty in building the walls of Jerusalem, (after having taken our collection for foreign missions,) then read your moving circular, and the letter of the elder from Illinois, I proposed a special subscription, heading it myself with five dollars. The response was greatly more favourable than I anticipated. I enclose this day to Mr. Powel, as the result, $50.63, about two dollars yet unpaid. In my ministry of eleven years here, such a thing was never done before. The church is small, and the property mostly in the hands of those who are not disposed to give.

They gave it cheerfully, and on the following Wednesday evening gave me an unexpected surprise visit, the substantial results amounting to eighty dollars.

If this people would do this towards relieving our suffering domestic missionaries, I am persuaded the church will respond to your call. Pray assure those suffering and self-denying men that their salaries shall be paid. The Lord will build Jerusalem.

Your brother in Jesus.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia during the month of January, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.
Pby of Troy—H W Knickerbacker of Lansingburg ch 10; Park ch, Troy 32 52; Sandy Hill ch 34	76 52
Pby of Albany—Carlisle ch 9; Esperance ch 6	15 00
Pby of Mohawk—Oneida Castle ch 10; Durhamville ch 2 75	12 75
SYNOD OF BUFFALO.
Pby of Ogdensburg—Morristown ch	3 00
Pby of Genesee River—Bath ch, additional, from Mary, Lizzie, and Anna Ray, children of Rev W E Jones	1 00
Pby of Buffalo City—Bethany Centre ch 4; East Aurora ch 3 50	7 50
SYNOD OF NEW YORK.
Pby of Hudson—Damascus ch 2; Goodwill ch 100; Deer Park ch 13; Goshen ch 51 28; Hempstead ch 9; Hopewell ch 6	181 28
Pby of North River—Newburg 1st ch ann'l coll 100, mo con 65, Sab sch 40, Geo Clark 25	230 00

Pby of Bedford—Red Mills ch 10 00
Pby of Long Island—East Hampton ch 39; Sab sch of 1st ch Sag Harbor 30 14; Sweet Hollow ch 5 75 74 89
Pby of New York—Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch N. York add'l, 1503 75, of which 3 75 from Mission chapel; First ch, N. York 3170 08, of which 100 from a lady; University Place ch. N. York, in part 200, of which 100 from W M Halstead; Brick ch add'l, 400 5273 83
Pby of New York 2d—Peekskill ch add'l, from S V B 2 00
Pby of Nassau—Ainslie st ch Williamsburg 56; Brooklyn 1st ch 35 91 00

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Elizabethtown—Liberty Corner ch 20; Rahway 2d ch 36 56 00
Pby of Passaic—Newark 3d ch 125 64; Chatham Village ch 40; German ch, Paterson 2 50 168 14
Pby of New Brunswick—Ewing ch 20; Princeton 2d ch mo con 16 81 36 81
Pby of West Jersey—Cape Island ch 22 99, of which from Youth's Miss Soc'y 5 48, and Sab sch 6 14; Brick ch Cedarville 25 47 99
Pby of Newton—Andover ch 3; Yellow Frame ch 21 31; Marksboro' ch 15 70 40 01
Pby of Raritan—Solebury ch 16 06; Forestville ch 5 21 06
Pby of Susquehanna—Towanda ch 20; Wyalusing 2d ch 8 28 00
Pby of Luzerne—Pottsville 2d ch and Sab sch 25; Eckley ch 7 36; White Haven ch 2 64; Pittston ch 76 23, of which 6 23 from Sab sch; Connyngham ch 10; Plymouth ch 3 33; Kingston ch 50 63, an extra coll'n; Mauch Chunk ch 20; Wilkesbarre ch Sab sch 20; Hazleton ch 27 37 242 56
Pby of Burlington—Plumsted ch (New Egypt) 6; Camden 1st ch 60 50 66 50
Pby of Monmouth—Tom's River ch 6 56; Manalapan ch 25; Middletown Point ch 32 54, of which 16 40 from the ladies 64 10

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia—Fourth ch 140; Middletown ch and Media 26 51; First African ch 5; West Spruce st ch, Mrs E Field 5, a lady 5; Fifteenth ch Sab sch 10; Tenth ch add'l, from W D B 20 211 61
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Second ch, from a member 150, of which 100 for California, and from "Y" 10=160; Penn ch 8 26; Sab sch of Spring Garden ch 13 81; West Arch st ch, from Mrs R 20; North ch, from Young Men's Bible-class 17 04 219 11
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Bristol ch 22 61; Doylestown ch 7 60; Abington ch, add'l 5; Newtown ch 9; Pottstown ch 14; Brainerd ch, Easton, 38 25; from a lady of Chestnut Hill ch 40 136 46
Pby of Newcastle—Lower West Nottingham ch 23, less for Record 7== 16 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Hollidaysburg ch 41 82; Williamsburg ch 47 10; Birmingham ch 49 31; Shaver's Creek ch 7; Curwensville ch 5 21 150 44
Pby of Northumberland—Mahoning North ch 40; Washingtonville ch coll'n 17, a friend 3=20; Derry ch 7; Berwick ch 18 75; Mifflinsburg ch 6; New Berlin 1st ch 24 87 116 62

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore—Ellicott's Mills ch Thistle Sab sch 10, Rev C Huntingdon 40=50; Warren ch 10; Govane chapel 15; Baltimore 1st ch, in part, Mrs Brown 800, G S Brown and others 700=1500 1575 00
Pby of Carlisle—Hagerstown ch 40; Fem Miss Soc of Mercersburg ch 33 25; Lower Marsh Creek ch 68; Barton ch 5; Frostburgh ch 3 95; Longacoming ch 3; Fayetteville ch 17; Harrisburg ch, from C J M 2 50 172 70
Pby of Potomac—New York Avenue ch, Washington city, of which 13 10 from Youth's Miss Soc 138 49

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Redstone—Dunlap's Creek ch, in part, 33 73; Tent ch 43 20, of which 18 50 from Ladies' Sewing Soc; Mount Pleasant ch 32 32; Brownsville and Little Redstone chs 34 75; West Newton ch 22 60 166 60
Pby of Ohio—Racoon ch 26 75; Valley ch 50 cts; Pittsburg 1st ch add'l from Sab sch 30; Pittsburg 2d ch 302 59, of which from Sab sch 14 84 and mo con 10 11; Bethany ch 59 50 (males 41 25, females 18 25) 419 34
Pby of Blairsville—New Salem ch 22 60
Pby of Clarion—Emlenton ch 6; Mt Vernon ch 2; Richland ch 6; Male and Fem Miss Soc of Licking ch 13 27 00
Pby of Saltsburg—Leechburg ch 25 68

SYNOD OF ALLEGHENY.

Pby of Allegheny—Amity ch 10; Union ch 7; Hainsville ch 10; Middlesex ch 12 39 00
Pby of Erie—Greenfield ch 4 00
Pby of Allegheny City—A member of Manchester ch 5; Sewickley ch, from Mrs S E M 1; German ch, Rochester, 1 42 7 42

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington—Fairview ch 10; Wheeling 4th ch 29; Ladies' Home Miss Soc of Washington ch, add'l 2 36; Wheeling 1st ch 29 12; East Buffalo ch 5; New Cumberland ch 12 87 48
Pby of Steubenville—Steubenville 1st ch, a balance 5; Minerva ch 3; Waynesburg ch 5; Bethlehem ch 2 50 15 50
Pby of New Lisbon—Canfield ch 18 00
Pby of St. Clairsville—Beallville ch 4 73; Powhattan ch 2 27; Morristown ch 4; Freeport ch 2; Short Creek ch 5 30 18 30

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Columbus—Lower Liberty ch 5 01
Pby of Marion—Iberia ch 5; Corinth ch 3 75 8 75
Pby of Zanesville—Washington ch 35; Cosbocton ch 22; Pleasant Hill ch 14 67; McConnellsville ch 20; Cross Roads ch 1 40; Clark ch 9 102 07
Pby of Richland—Fredericktown ch 7; Ashland ch in part 45 18; Martinsburg ch 14; Mount Pleasant ch 3 69 18
Pby of Wooster—Mount Hope ch 9 43; Nashville ch 6; Berlin ch 13; Hopewell ch 12 40 43
Pby of Hocking—Alexander ch 7 00

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.

Pby of Michigan—Pontiac ch Sab sch 2 50
Pby of Western Reserve—Guilford ch 10 24; Westminster ch Cleaveland 13 72; Bedford 1st ch from Wm H H Coon 10 33 96
Pby of Maumee—First ch Toledo 14; Bryan ch 1 15; Delta ch 3 32; Rev D S Anderson 53 cts 19 00
Pby of Findlay—Truro ch 2 77; Shannon ch 1 3 77

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Chillicothe—Washington ch 13 25
Pby of Miami—Springfield 1st ch 25; Clinton ch 106 (of which Ladies' Benevolent Society 5, Young Ladies' Benevolent Society 5,) less exchange 53 cts=105 47; Springfield 2d ch 18 85 149 32
Pby of Cincinnati—Pleasant Ridge ch 12; Bethel ch 8 83 20 83
Pby of Oxford—Oxford 1st and 3d chs 28 31
Pby of Sidney—Newton ch 8 93; Covington ch 3; New Salem ch 2 13 93

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany—Charlestown ch 25; Livonia ch 9 75 34 75
Pby of White Water—Mount Carmel ch 13 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Logansport—Frankfort ch 10; Wea ch 7 50 17 50
Pby of Lake—South Bend ch 25; Sumption's Prairie ch 17; Constantine ch 6 15 48 15
Pby of Fort Wayne—Pleasant Ridge ch 5; Bluffton ch 5 62; New Lancaster ch 2 38; La Grange ch 6 83; Fawn River ch 1 92; Wabash 2d ch 10 31 75
Pby of Crawfordsville—Terre Haute ch 19; Waveland ch 8 67; Rockville ch 15; Bethany ch 11 88 54 55
Pby of Muncie—Tipton ch 12 45; Muncie ch 10 36 22 81

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Kaskaskia—Nashville ch 3 25
Pby of Palestine—Pleasant Prairie ch 6 00
Pby of Sangamon—Young Ladies' Mite Society Springfield 1st ch 10; "A friend to the cause," Springfield, Ill. 5 15 00
Pby of Peoria—Elba Centre ch 6 00
Pby of Bloomington—West Urbana ch 10; Dwight ch 2 11; Monticello and Harmony ch 3; Fawn Ridge 7; Reading ch 2 50; Lexington ch 5 29 61
Pby of Saline—Golconda ch 10 00

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.

Pby of Schuyler—Hopewell ch 3; Ipava ch 4 50; Vermont ch 3 50; Sab sch of Monmouth ch 5 16 00
Pby of Rock River—Freeport ch 5 75; Rev J H Marshall 10 15 75
Pby of Chicago—Rockford 1st ch add'l 50; Morris 1st ch 10 60 00

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Dane—Platteville ch 2 50; Oakland and Cambridge ch 7 25; Rockville ch 2 60 12 35
Pby of Milwaukie—Waukesha ch 18; Westminster ch Beloit 29; Germantown station 5 30 52 30
Pby of Winnebago—Weyauwega ch 4 50

SYNOD OF ST. PAUL.

Pby of St. Paul—Andrews ch St. Anthony 13; Hudson ch 5; Forest ch 2 10 20 10
Pby of Lake Superior—Ontonagon ch 4 00
Pby of Owatonna—St. Peter ch 17 50

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Cedar—Unity ch 4 50; German ch Muscatine 4 75; Long Grove ch 5; Rev J M Jones 5 19 25
Pby of Toledo—Shiloh ch 1; Sand Prairie ch 1 10; South Ridge ch 3 5 10
Pby of Dubuque—Waukon ch 6; South Grove ch 4; Dubuque First ch 34, of which mo con 4 50 44 00

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.

Pby of Iowa—St. Peter ch (Evangelical) 10 47
Pby of Des Moines—Columbia ch 1 10; Charitan ch 1 50; Osceola ch 1 3 60
Pby of Fairfield—Libertyville ch 3; Keosauqua ch 1 50 4 50
Pby of Missouri River—Bellevue ch 5 75

From churches, $11,442 14

MISCELLANEOUS.

"B— —n" 100; A friend of missions 13; A Sturgeon, Harrisburg, Pa. 2; Mrs S E Smith, New Castle, Delaware 5; A friend, Plainfield, N. J. 5; Rev E C Wines, D D 5; "——" 1500; Isaac Skiles, Sr, Uniontown, Pa. 10; Margaret Brown, Buford, Ohio 1; Miss Jane R Wilson, Shippensburg, Pa. 5; from a lady friend, a wedding fee 5; G W McClelland, Upper Strasburg, Pa 5; W G, Bridgeton, N. J. 5; from C C B, for Minnesota 100; "Bridgeton, N. J." 15; A thank-offering from S 50; Ezra M Hunt, Metuchin, N. J 10; Myron Phelps, Esq., and wife, Lewistown, Ill. 37 50 (additional to 62 50 last month); Miss Anna Brown, Bordentown, N. J. 10; a friend 10; M C, Princeton, N. J., 16 25; Rev Prof R P Dunn, Providence, R. I., 20; A Lady, Philadelphia 5; Mrs Mary Magill, Danville, Pa. 3; Interest 30; G W F, St. Paul, Minnesota 24 69; B F X 2 50; "Wyndcliffe," New York 5; A friend 5; J 2; A friend 1; A friend 2; A friend 2; William Wilson, Philadelphia 50; Rev Thomas L Janeway, D D, add'l 150 2211 94

LEGACY.

Bequest of Robert Patterson in part 40 00

Total at Philadelphia, $13,694 08

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

☞The credit of $13, given in the last Record to Sweet Hollow church Sabbath school, was an error, and the same has been returned to that school by request.

CLOTHING.

1 Box from the Ladies of New Brighton ch, Pa., valued at 110 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Mercer ch, Pa., valued at 80 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Brick ch, New York, value not given.
1 Box from the Ladies of Allegheny 1st ch, Pa., value not given.
1 Box from the Ladies of Brooklyn 2d ch, New York, value not given.
1 Box from the Ladies of Ainslie street ch, Williamsburg, N. Y., value not given.
1 Box from the Ladies of Franklin ch, Indiana, valued at 35 20
1 Box from the Ladies of Beaver Falls ch, Pa., valued at 110 00
1 Box from the Ladies' Benevolent Society of Henry ch, Ill., valued at 80 00
2 Boxes from the Ladies of Seventh ch, Cincinnati, Ohio, valued at 275 00
1 Box from the Dorcas Society of 2d ch Philadelphia, Pa, valued at 137 00
1 Box from the Ladies of St. Charles ch, Mo., valued at 55 50
1 Box from the Ladies of Spring Garden ch, Philadelphia, Pa., valued at 125 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Washington ch, Pa., valued at 171 88
1 Box from the Ladies of Sinking Valley and Logan's Valley congregations, Pa., valued at 63 14
2 Boxes from the Ladies of Harrisburg ch, Pa., valued at 145 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Chester ch N. J., valued at 60 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Hollidaysburg 1st ch, Pa., valued at 88 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Park ch, Erie, Pa., valued at 70 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Knightstown ch Ind., value not given.

☞A box acknowledged in the last Record as from Central church, Allegheny City, valued at $175, should have been credited to Central church, Pittsburg, (Rev. Dr. Jacobus pastor.)

TREASURY AT LOUISVILLE.

Receipts into the Treasury at Louisville, Ky., during the month of January, 1862.

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany—Wm Prauge, Jeffersonville ch 5 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Peoria—First ch Peoria 52 70

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of Wyaconda—Mr A Wayland, Des Moines ch 2; Waterloo ch 4 6 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Louisville—Shiloh and Olivet ch 10 25; First ch Louisville, mo con coll 14 25; Mulberry ch 15 85; a friend in Chestnut street ch Louisville 5; Hebron ch 14 59 35
Pby of Muhlenburg—Rev A S Howsley, Greenville 5; Mount Zion ch 1 25 6 25

MISCELLANEOUS.

"Old Zed," Sleepy Hollow, Ky. 10 00

Total at Louisvile, $139 30

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Officers of the Board.

James N. Dickson, President.
John McDowell, D. D., Cyrus Dickson, D. D., James Dunlap, Esq., } Vice-Presidents.
William Chester, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
R. Watts, Assistant.
F. D. Ladd, Recording Secretary.
William Main, Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies, and Colleges, may be addressed to Rev. Dr. Chester, or Rev. R. Watts, No. 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of Money may be made to William Main, Esq., Treasurer, 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest.

ARE YOU CALLED TO THE MINISTRY?

The duty of every Christian to examine himself whether he be in the faith, is one of universal acknowledgement among the people of God. The fact that a man is in communion with the visible church, presupposes that he has duly considered whether he has been called into the kingdom of Christ by the Holy Spirit, and that he often reviews the evidence on which at first he rested the conclusion that he was indeed a child of God. This is all right, and wise; but we are afraid that there is another question very closely connected with the interests of the kingdom of Christ in this world, equally obligatory, and claiming no less our most earnest consideration, which a large number of Christian men, either never consider at all, or else consider very superficially.

This question is the one placed at the head of this article. It is our purpose to call to it the attention of two classes of Christians:—1. Those who have already considered it, and, having decided in the affirmative, have entered upon a course of preparation. 2. Those who have never considered it at all. To the former we would say but little at present, except to counsel them, that they frequently review the ground upon which they have concluded that they have been called of God to preach the unsearchable riches of Christ. Dear brethren, if it behooves a man often to inquire into the foundation of his own hope of heaven, surely it becomes him diligently to inquire whether he is called to an office, the functions of which are so intimately connected with the eternal happiness or misery of others. If you have been really called by the Holy Spirit to this office, you will often ask, as did the apostle of the Gentiles, "Who is sufficient for these things?" Who is sufficient to exercise the functions of an office from which are the issues of eternal life, or eternal death? Young brethren, you who are engaged in preparing for the work of the ministry, we beseech you, in the name of the Master, that you consider, again and again, whether you are called to be ambassadors for Christ.

It is, however, to those Christian young men who have never considered this question at all, that we propose now to present it. And at the very outset we would inquire, how it has come to pass that you have never considered a question so manifestly associated with the interests of all that you profess to hold dear? How comes it that the foremost of all the instrumentalities ordained of Christ for the ingathering of his wandering sheep, and the spiritual nourishment of those already gathered, has secured so little of your attention, that you have never inquired whether you might not be a chosen vessel to bear the name of your Saviour far hence to the Gentiles? If the very foremost purpose of your first love, in the day of your espousals, was to tell others of the Saviour you had found, how is it that you have never asked yourselves individually the question, "May not this be the business of my life?"

Mark it well, we are not now addressing those who have examined this question, and decided in the negative. We are assuming that you have never weighed the matter at all; and what we would know, dear brethren, is simply this: how it is that the question has never forced itself upon you? We confess that we are at a loss to discover how any young man, over whom the Saviour has thrown the mantle of his righteousness, freely pardoning all his sins, and into whose soul he has breathed the Spirit of peace, and love, and sonship, can fail to ask himself the question, "Am I not called to proclaim this Saviour to perishing sinners?" We know of no solution, consistent with the assumption of the vital Christianity of a young man, except this—that he has at once entered upon the service of Christ in some of the many other departments of Christian labour, and has become so engrossed with work connected with the progress of Christ's kingdom, that he has lost sight of the claims of this question. Regarding this as the true solution of the enigma, we would ask the attention of all who have neglected the question from such causes, to one or two considerations.

1. God has not left it with the individual believer to choose in what capacity he shall serve him. This is a recognised principle of the Divine administration both under the Old Testament and the New. He who ordained the offices of prophecy, priesthood, and kingship, under the former dispensation, and designated men to exercise the functions of these offices, also claims it as his, under the gospel dispensation, to ordain offices, and call and qualify men to fill them. In view of this unquestionable principle, then, dear brethren, we would ask, who has chosen your present spheres of labour—yourselves or Christ? If you have chosen for yourselves in what capacity you shall serve, is it not manifest, if the principle assumed be a valid one, that you have usurped one of Christ's own prerogatives? Can you conceive of any possible way of escape from this fearful conclusion, if it be true that it belongs to Christ to make the choice which you have made independent of his counsel? If you have never considered in what capacity Christ has designed you should serve, and have consulted your own taste or convenience in determining the question, is it not manifest that you have conferred with flesh and blood, instead of consulting the Head, whose prerogative it is to assign to each member his place and office in the mystical body?

2. The second point to which we invite your attention, is the character of the signs by which the vocation of a man to the ministry is indicated. Christ, in calling men into the ministry, since apostolic or primitive times, does not designate them, or indicate his purpose, by miraculous endowments, but by gifts which may be overlooked both by their possessors and by others. This lays upon men the onus of a strict investigation, both in reference to themselves, and others whose credentials it may be their duty to examine. If it were the wont of the church's Head to designate the heralds of the cross by gifts of healing, or of tongues, a man destitute of such manifest indications of a call to the ministry, would incur no guilt by waiving at once the consideration of this question. He might conclude, in the absence of miraculous gifts, that he was not called to the office of an ambassador. But as the gifts by which the Master indicates his future ambassadors are not miraculous, there cannot be such prompt and facile decision.

This will be all the more manifest by a reference to these gifts. Aptness to teach, capacity for ruling well, blamelessness of character, vigilance, sobriety, modesty, hospitality, benevolence, patience, gravity, are among the endowments of a Christian minister. It is manifest that there is nothing miraculous in these qualifications, and it is equally manifest that the man who possesses them all in the happiest combination, is most likely to be the least aware of the fact. Now, dear brethren, in this lies your danger. As the data furnished by the Holy Spirit, as the ground upon which a man is to conclude whether he is called to preach the gospel, are not miraculous endowments, is it not clearly possible that you may have overlooked qualifications which would warrant the conclusion that you have been called to the ministry? If so, then you may be engaged in the prosecution of a calling to which you have not been called, and may be guilty of despising your high vocation as an ambassador of Christ. It is not our purpose to impress you with the idea that, even in this position, you are not serving the Master. We are ready to concede that you are, and willing to recognise any sacrifice which you may lay upon the altar. But the point we wish to urge is this: that it is not your prerogative to choose in what department of labour you may serve. This belongs to Christ the Head, and is a prerogative which he will not give even to a member of his mystical body. It is, therefore, your duty to ascertain what his will concerning you is. Your proper attitude is that of Saul of Tarsus, when arrested by the Saviour—"Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" And as your sphere of service is not disclosed by special revelation, you ought, as you value the favour of Christ, at once to apply yourself to the examination of the endowments which the Head of the church has bestowed upon you. The nature of the endowments will determine the question of duty. If you have the gifts whereby Christ is wont to designate his ambassadors, then you are called to the office of an ambassador, and are bound to prepare for the discharge of its duties. Your first duty, therefore, is to consider for yourselves, individually, the question, "Am I called to preach the gospel?" If you have never considered it, we counsel you to begin the investigation now.

IS IT THE DUTY OF THE CHURCH TO EDUCATE, AT HER OWN COST, EVERY YOUNG MAN WHOM THE HOLY SPIRIT CALLS TO PREACH THE GOSPEL?

1. Our first position, in our attempt to prove that it is the duty of the church to educate, at her own cost, every young man whom the Holy Spirit calls to preach the gospel, is, that it is the duty of the CHURCH to preach the gospel to every creature. We have emphasized the term church for the purpose of bringing out, at once, the point upon which this part of our argument turns. To the church, and not to apostles—to the church, and not to any order of church officers, whether temporary or permanent, was the great commission given, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." This interpretation is warranted by the circumstances under which the commission was given—by the fact that no discrimination is made, in the giving of it, between church officers and church members, and by the fact, that this was the view of the commission entertained by the church, as illustrated by the historic events recorded in the New Testament. These several considerations we have not room to expand in the compass to which we feel bound to restrict an article in the Record. Besides, we are satisfied that Presbyterians, and, indeed, the great body of Christians, practically, if not in theory, recognise this as the true view as to the repositories of the great commission. It is upon the assumption that it is the duty of the entire church to carry the tidings of salvation to the uttermost ends of the earth, that the entire membership, in every denomination, are appealed to for funds to carry on missionary operations. Take away this principle from such appeals, and they will fall pointless and powerless upon the hearts and consciences of the people of God. If the entire church is not responsible for the execution of the great commission, then, except on the principle that works of supererogation may be performed by the people of God, there can no appeal be urged upon them to send missionaries to the heathen. If it be not the duty of every church member to do his utmost to carry out this commission, on what principle, except the principle of supererogation, can he be urged to contribute to the cause of missions? There can be no duty where there is no command; there can be no transgression where there is no law. The word of God is a complete, as well as an infallible rule of faith and practice, and no man may urge upon another a duty which that word does not enjoin, or counsel him to shun what it does not forbid. Private members of the church, therefore, can be called upon to aid in the sustentation of missions, on no other principle than that they are commanded to make the gospel known to every creature.

2. Our second position in support of the doctrine that it is the duty of the church to educate young men who are called to preach the gospel, is, that the gospel is to be preached by men called by the Holy Spirit and separated to this work. On this position it is scarcely necessary to dwell. The statement of the proposition seems to be all that is required to secure for it the ready assent and approval of all evangelical denominations. Even the society of Friends hold the essential truth embraced in it; for it is only on the assumption that a member of that body is moved by the Spirit, that his right to preach is recognised. With regard to this question, all denominations agree on three points: 1. That it is the prerogative of Christ to choose his own ambassadors. 2. That those, and those only, whom he chooses, have the right to preach. 3. That he indicates the objects of his choice by the gift of the Holy Spirit calling them to the work. That these three points are sustained by express statements of Scripture, and illustrated by our Saviour, both in the days of his humiliation, and after his ascension to the mediatorial throne, is a truth too manifest to justify any formal argument in its support.

3. Our third position, therefore is, that it is the duty of the church to preach the gospel to every creature through this Heaven-ordained agency. We say therefore, because this position follows, as a necessary consequence, from the two preceding positions. If the duty of preaching the gospel to every creature, is a duty binding upon the entire church—a duty whose obligation reaches to every church member, and if the preaching is to be performed by men chosen and set apart to that work by Christ, then it is manifest that the only way in which the entire church can discharge this duty, is by sending forth and sustaining those whom Christ calls. And it can be no less manifest that the number to be sent is to know of no limitation, except the sovereign grace of Him who calls. On no other principle can the entire church, or the particular denomination in its entirety, be regarded as obeying the command of Christ, issued to his church in the great commission. If our missionaries in India and elsewhere do not go forth as our representatives, and if, in their toils, they are not sustained by us, how can we claim that we are fulfilling this great commission? Is it not clear that if the connection of these missionaries with us, as our representatives in the great harvest-field of heathenism, be severed, we, as a denomination, are not carrying out the command by which it is made the duty of the church to preach the gospel to every creature? Admit the principle that these heralds of salvation go forth on their own account, in discharge of a duty resting only on those who are called to preach, and that they, and they only, are responsible for going forth, or staying at home, and that there is no obligation upon the church to send them, and when this principle is adopted by our church, let us from that hour cease to call them our missionaries, or to flatter ourselves that we are engaged in fulfilling the commission in which Christ has enjoined it upon the entire church, and therefore upon all her members, to preach the gospel to every creature. This principle, however, no church on earth has adopted, and we have no reason to think that our church, after such glorious achievements, both on the field of foreign and domestic missions, will ever cease to send forth and sustain, as her representatives in executing her commission, those whom her Head calls to the work of the ministry. We believe that no church of Christ will continue to pray for the evangelization of the world, and to ask the Lord of the harvest to send forth labourers into his harvest, and yet refuse to furnish the means to send forth those reapers whom he calls in answer to her prayers.

4. Our next position is, that the duty of the church, under this commission, embraces the sustentation of every yonng man who is called by the Holy Spirit to preach the gospel during his preparation for the work. This last point is perhaps the only one, in connection with the great commission, on which any member of the Presbyterian church has any doubt. The discussion of the points already stated, however, may not have been in vain. We are persuaded that but little reflection is necessary to enable one to see that the principle involved in this position, is the very same which has been already recognised in the previously specified positions, and which no Presbyterian would for a moment call in question. In the acknowledgment that it is the duty of the church to send the gospel to every creature, and that the church must be represented in her entirety in the discharge of this duty, there is, as already seen, a full recognition of the duty of the church to sustain those who represent her on the mission field. But why is she bound to sustain her missionaries, if she is not also bound to sustain her candidates? It cannot be because the time of the former is more exclusively occupied than the time of the latter, for in the one case as well as in the other, the entire time of the individual is presumed to be occupied. Nor can it be because the latter is not engaged in the work embraced under the great commission, for obligation to preach the gospel implies the right and the duty of providing and employing all the means necessary to accomplish that end. The duty of preparation is as manifest as the duty of preaching; and the duty of preparation is not one whit more obligatory on a young man who is called to the work of the ministry, than it is on the church. The special call given by the Spirit to the individual, imposes upon him the duty of preparing for the work to which he is called, and the universal commission given to the church imposes upon the entire mystical body the duty of preparing men for the execution of it. If the commission does not imply preparation, neither does the call. The duty of preparation, therefore, is common to the church and the candidate. It is the duty of the candidate to prepare for the work to which he is called, and it is the duty of the church to prepare for the very same work.

And further; as the only way in which the church can prepare for preaching, is by preparing preachers, and as she is restricted in her choice to those whom God has called, it follows, that the duty of preparation resting on the church in virtue of her commission, and the duty of preparation resting on candidates in virtue of their call, meet and coalesce in the preparation of the same persons. The special onus of this preparation, resting respectively on the church and her candidates we shall consider in our next.

DEATH OF A CANDIDATE.

It is with a feeling of deep sadness we insert the following notice of the sudden death of one of our candidates. The young man whose departure has called forth from his fellow-students the tribute of sorrow, and sympathy, and esteem, embraced in these resolutions, though cut down as the flower of the morning, has evidently neither lived nor studied in vain. We would take this opportunity of expressing our own sympathy for his bereaved mother and relatives. It is ours to recognise the worthiness of the Lamb to open the book and to loose the seven seals thereof, even when he sends forth into our households the pale horse of death.

Mr. Otis B. Webster, a graduate of the College of New Jersey, and a member of Princeton Seminary, died suddenly at his home in Chester, New Hampshire, on Sunday, January 26th. At a meeting of the students of the Seminary, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased God to remove, by a sudden and mysterious dispensation, our beloved fellow-student, Otis B. Webster; therefore,

Resolved, That while we rejoice in the assurance of his unspeakable gain, we cannot but mourn for ourselves the loss of an earnest co-laborer and warm-hearted friend, and for the Church, thus deprived of the services of one whose high attainments as a man, a scholar, and a Christian, promised to render him an effective workman in the Master's vineyard.

Resolved, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the sorrowing family, bereft of a faithful son and a noble brother; and while we mingle our tears with theirs, would unite our prayers also, that this affliction may work out for them and for us "a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory."

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, and be published in the Presbyterian, the New York Observer, the Presbyterian Banner, and the Princeton Standard.

WILLIAM T. SMITH,
J. E. LAPSLEY,
C. D. KELLOGG, } Committee.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

IN SCHOOLS, ACADEMIES, AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

THE HOME MOTHER.

Some one, writing for the Masonic Mirror, has drawn a charming picture of a home-loving, child-loving mother:

"We must draw a line, aye, a broad line, between her and the frivolous butterfly of fashion, who flits from ball to opera and party, decked in rich robes, and followed by a train as hollow and heartless as herself—she who, forgetful of the holy task assigned her, neglects those who have been given in her charge, and leaves them to the care of hirelings, while she pursues her giddy round of amusements.

"Not so our home-mother! blessings be on her head! The heart warms to see her in her daily routine of pleasant duties. How patiently she sits, day after day, shaping and sewing some article for use or adornment for her little flock! And how proud and pleased is each little recipient of her kindness! How the little face dimples with pleasure, and the bright eyes grow still brighter, as mamma decks them with her own hands in the new dress she has made! How much warmer and more comfortable they feel, if mamma wraps them up before they go to school! No one but her can warm the mits and over-shoes, or tie the comforters around the necks!

"There is a peculiar charm about all she does—the precious mother! They could not sleep, nay, for that matter, she could not, if she failed to visit their chamber, and with her soft hands arrange them comfortably before she slept. Her heart thrills with gratitude to her Creator, as she looks on those sweet blooming faces; and when their prayers are done, she imprints a good-night kiss on each rosy little mouth. It may be, too, a tear will start for one little nestling, laid in its chill, narrow bed, for whom her maternal care is no longer needed. It sleeps, though the sleet and snow descend, and the wild winter winds howl around its head. It needs no longer her tender care. A mightier arm enfolds it. It is at rest. She feels and knows that it is right, and bends meekly to the hand that sped the shaft, and turns with a warmer love, if it be possible, to those little ones who are left her to love. How tenderly she guards them from every danger, and with what a strong, untiring love, she watches by their bedside when they are ill! Blessings be on the gentle, loving, home-mother! Angels must look with love upon her acts. Her children shall rise up and call her blessed, and the memory of her kindness shall enfold her as a garment."

EDUCATION.

The education of man, and above all of a Christian, is the education of duty, which is most forcibly taught by the business and concerns of life, of which, even for children, especially the children of the poor, book learning is but a small part. There is an officious disposition on the part of the upper and middle classes, to precipitate the tendency of the people towards intellectual culture in a manner subversive of their own happiness, and dangerous to the peace of society. It is mournful to observe of how little avail are lessons of piety taught at school, if household attentions and obligations be neglected, in consequence of the time taken up in school tuition, and if the head be stuffed with vanity from the gentlemanliness of the employment of reading. — Wordsworth.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA IN JANUARY 1862.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Pby of Troy—Sandy Hill ch 15; Stillwater ch 27 96	42 96
Pby of Albany—Schenectady ch 123; Galway ch (from the Ladies of) 17 50; West Galway ch 10; Carlisle ch 9; Esperance ch 4; Jewett ch 14; Saratoga Springs ch (ladies' collection in part) 15 80	193 30
Pby of Genesee River—Bath 1st ch	9 55
Pby of Buffalo City—East Aurora ch	3 50
Pby of Hudson—Goodwill ch	20 00
Pby of Long Island—Huntington ch (Ladies of) 86; South Hampton ch (Ladies' Society of) 24	110 00
Pby of New York—Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch 1000; Brick ch 539 58	1539 58
Pby of Connecticut—Hartford 1st ch, Rev T S Childs	10 00
Pby of New Brunswick—First ch New Brunswick (from the ladies of, in part) 51 51; Pennington ch 60; Ewing ch 5	116 51
Pby of West Jersey—2d ch Bridgeton	8 00
Pby of Newton—Bloomsburg ch	9 66
Pby of Susquehanna—Wyalusing 2d ch	3 65
Pby of Luzerne—Nanticoke ch 3; Scranton First ch 110; Wilkesbarre ch 50; Newton ch 2	165 00
Pby of Philadelphia—African 1st ch 5; Tenth ch, R C Grier 10, R Cresswell 5, Miss H A Dillaye 10	30 00
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Second ch Philadelphia (Ladies' Education Society of) special 38 50, from a member of 150—188 50; Central ch, W Atwood 2, Alexander Nesbit 10, D Graham 5, W Noland 5, James Field 25, James Ray 5—52; West Arch street ch a lady of, 25	265 50
Pby of Northumberland—Williamsport ch (Ladies' cent a week collection)	6 25
Pby of Baltimore—Govane chapel 5; Baltimore 1st ch 550; Baltimore 2d ch 33	588 00
Pby of Carlisle—Frostburg ch 1 05; Hagerstown ch 25	26 05
Pby of Lewes—Manokin ch ("for 1861")	31 78
Pby of Erie—Meadville ch	20 00
Pby of Washington—Wheeling 4th ch	27 00
Pby of Steubenville—Annapolis ch (add'l)	15 00
Pby of St. Clairsville—Grandview ch 7 50; Crab Apple ch 1 50	9 00
Pby of Columbus—Columbus 1st ch (from Sab sch of) special	30 00
Pby of Michigan—Plymouth 1st ch	10 00
Pby of Miami—Springfield 2d ch	20 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Springfield ch	8 06
Pby of New Albany—Livonia ch	5 60
Pby of Madison—Scipio ch	3 00
Pby of Bloomington—West Urbana ch	10 00
Pby of Chicago—Kentyre ch	12 00
Pby of Dane—Oakland and Cambridge ch 2; Rockville ch 1	3 00
Pby of Winnebago—Weyawega ch	3 00
Pby of Cedar—German ch Muscatine	6 00
Pby of Dubuque—Andrew ch 3; Bellevue ch 13 36	16 36
Pby of Oregon—Portland ch	21 00
	$3398 31

MISCELLANEOUS.

"——" 1000; "M H A," Brooklyn, N. Y. 2; Rev Professor R P Dunn, Providence, R. I., 18; Mrs Magill, Danville, Pa. 2	1022 00
Total	$4420 31

WM. MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURG, PA., IN JANUARY 1861.

Pby of Redstone—McKeesport ch (ladies of add'l) 2 60; George's Creek ch 18 50	21 10
Pby of Ohio—Lawrenceville ch (ladies of) 22 10; Pittsburg 1st ch (ladies of add'l) 52	74 10
Pby of Clarion—Licking ch (ladies of) 55 52; Leatherwood ch (do.) 31	86 52
Pby of Saltsburg—Rural Valley ch ladies of, 16 53; Elderton ch do. 5 98; Elder's Ridge ch do. 6 25; Currie's Run ch 17	45 76
Pby of Allegheny—Sunbury ch 10; Union ch (ladies of) 25	35 00
Pby of Allegheny City—Sharpsburg ch	18 08
Pby of Zanesville—McConnellsville ch	6 00
Pby of Richland—Mount Pleasant ch 4; Waterford ch 2 50	6 50
Pby of Steubenville—Bloomfield ch	2 00
	$295 06

LEGACY.

Estate of Robert Patterson dec'd, in part	40 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mr Tabor, Clarion, Pa.	1 00
	$336 06

Total amount acknowledged, $4,756 37

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.
February 11th, 1862.

Recent Intelligence.

INDIAN TRIBES.

Our latest letters are dated at the Omaha mission, January 13th; and at Bear River station, Chippewa mission, February 6th. In the former mission the brethren were looking forward to the celebration of the Lord's Supper in a fortnight, and hoping then to admit one or two persons to the church.

SOUTH AMERICA.

We have received letters from Rio de Janeiro, dated to the 9th of December; from Bogota, December 20th; and from Aspinwall, January 21st. Mr. Schneider arrived at Rio on the 7th of December, after "a short and prosperous voyage," and found the missionaries all well. Mr. Blackford was on a missionary journey in the interior. Mr. Simonton refers to one or two persons whose interest in religious instruction gives him much encouragement. Mr. McLaren's purpose of commencing religious services in Spanish had been delayed by a severe attack of sickness, from which he was recovering. His tract, El Protestantismo, was printed, and would be put in circulation as soon as political quiet was restored. In a previous letter he mentioned the administration of the Lord's Supper in Bogota. There were six communicants, one of them having been received on profession of her faith. It was hoped that others would come forward at the next communion. The letter from Aspinwall mentions the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace at that place, on their way to Bogota.

AFRICA.

Letters have reached us from Corisco, dated November 12th; and from Liberia, dated to December 7th. At Corisco, Mr. Mackey says, "We have much that is interesting in our work here, though we have not the evidence of an active work of grace as at some previous times. The members of the mission are all in ordinary health, and are all engaged with interest in their work."

INDIA.

The only letter received from this country since our last issue is dated at Saharunpur, December 2d. Two of the native assistants were then distributing the Scriptures and tracts in the towns and villages near that city. The large number of orphans under Dr. Campbell's charge, between fifty and sixty, many of them quite young, afforded an interesting and important sphere of missionary labour.

SIAM.

We have received letters from Bangkok, dated to November 13th. Mrs. Mattoon's health, we regret to learn, was such as to render it uncertain whether she could long remain in Siam. She had been quite ill, but was slowly recovering. At the communion on the first Sabbath in November, a native girl was admitted to the church; she had accompanied Mrs. Mattoon on her visit to this country. An increasing interest seems to be apparent in the attendance on the Sabbath services. The brethren regard with lively satisfaction, also, their printing-press, which would soon be in full operation; one form of a work had been struck off.

CHINA.

The latest dates at Canton come down to November 30th; Shanghai, to November 22d; Ningpo, to November 21st; and Tung-chow, October 25th. At Canton, Mr. Happer had the pleasure of baptizing a native woman, the wife of a Chinese who was baptized some years ago in New York, and who has since returned to China. Six other persons applied for admission to the church, and it is hoped they will be received, after longer trial. The two hospitals, and the branch dispensary at Fat-shan, were doing a good work. The latter place will be occupied as a station as soon as the mission is reinforced.

Mr. Culbertson and his family had returned to Shanghai. All the brethren lament the death of the Rev. Dr. Bridgeman at that city, for thirty years a faithful missionary of the American Board in China. Of late years, he and Mr. Culbertson have been closely connected together in the work of translating the Scriptures.

At Ningpo, Mr. Dodd was ordained by the Presbytery on the 3d of November; Mr. Green preached the sermon, and Mr. Rankin gave the charge usual in this service. At an out-station, not far from Ningpo, an aged woman was baptized, November 10th, and four others were examined by the church session, who will probably soon be admitted to the church. Another hopeful convert had been baptized in the San-poh district. In this district, a native house had at length, after much difficulty, been rented for one of the missionaries; but the unsettled state of things, on account of the vicinity of an insurgent force, led the brethren to postpone for a while his removal to that place. The reported invasion of the insurgents was causing much excitement among the people. In the midst of this, the brethren observed with pleasure that the native Christians did not give way to the prevailing alarm, but rested on the promise of God's care of his children. Dr. and Mrs. McCartee had embarked for San Francisco in the barque What Cheer, expecting to call at Kanagawa.

At Tung-chow all was quiet, though the banditti threaten to return in the spring. Mr. Nevius speaks of the little room they occupy as a chapel being filled to overflowing by Chinese hearers, and a woman aged eighty-three years had applied for baptism.

JAPAN.

Letters have been received from Dr. Hepburn, dated at Kanagawa, October 3d. The doctor sends his annual report, which is quite satisfactory, and expresses his desire to have another labourer associated with him. It gives us pleasure to add, that one is under appointment, who we hope will be able to go out early next summer.

MISSION TO THE CHINESE IN CALIFORNIA.

The letter of Mr. Loomis concerning his work at San Francisco, will be found in another column, and is inferior in interest to no former paper from his pen.

OMAHA MISSION.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT.

Omaha Mission, October 29, 1861.

Dear Sir—In accordance with the regulations of the Indian Department, the following Report of the Presbyterian Mission and School is respectfully submitted.

Returns of Scholars—Their out of school occupations.

The school at this place and among this people not only holds the same position which it has maintained in past years, as an agent of much good to the Omahas, but, as our report will show, is occupying higher ground, and gaining favour.

I arrived at this place, April 26th, 1860, and on the following 29th, assumed the superintendence. At that time there were in the school, boys 17, and girls 11. On account of measles and whooping-cough, which early broke out among the pupils—some of them dying, one at the mission, and two others at their homes—it dwindled to, boys 16, and girls 6; making a total of 22. Since then, by accessions now and then, we are able to report as in attendance at this date, boys 30, and girls 22, and 2 more in prospect. Thus it may be said we have a total of 54.* This is beyond our complement, which calls for 50. With very little effort, more boys could be secured, the people seeming to be more desirous of instruction for their boys than for their girls. I mention this only to prove what I have already stated, as to the favour of the people towards the mission.

Concerning the exercises of the children out of school, I would report, that the boys are accustomed to spend a portion of their time at manual labour, under the direction of the farmer and teacher. Under their instruction and oversight, the boys will contribute much, this year, to filling the barn and the granary. It would be well to state here, that two of the larger boys spend half of their time, on alternate days, in the government blacksmith-shop. Thus they are preparing to be, in time, "the learned blacksmiths" of their people. Under the direction of the female members of the family, the girls are taught the different branches of housewifery in turn, so far as their ages will permit.

Studies—Progress—Behaviour.

In regard to school matters, I condense from the report of our teacher to me, as follows:

"School is in session during five days of the week, the sixth being a day of recreation, &c. It is divided into eleven classes, viz.—four reading, three geography, one writing, one arithmetic, (mental and written,) and two primary. The most advanced of the reading classes makes use of McGuffey's "Fourth Eclectic Reader." The second uses the "Third Reader" of the same author's series. The third reads in the "Second Reader;" the fourth, in the "First Reader." And then come the primaries, learning principally from the black-board. The geography classes are making regular, but not rapid progress. The children memorize words very readily, but gain ideas rather slowly, having to study in a language which they cannot use fluently. The same remark will apply to the arithmetic classes. The mind is good enough; but the words are in English, while they do their thinking in Omaha. In penmanship they far excel white children of equal advantages, so far as neatness and rapidity are concerned. No difficulty is found in keeping this branch in advance of all others. In regard to vocal music, they compare favourably, and a few of them might be called good singers. They are all making some progress in learning the elements of vocal music. Their attention to study is very good; and order,

* Since increased to 56—boys 31, and girls 25.

good. Corporal punishment is seldom resorted to. Kindness of feeling exists among themselves, and affection towards the teacher and all the mission family. There still exists a too general disposition to converse in their native language."

The health of the school, for more than a year, has been excellent.

Mission family—Buildings—Farm—Expenses.

The mission family is composed of Mr. Isaac Black, wife, and two children, of Pennsylvania. It would not be out of place to remark here, that Mr. Black was, for some years prior to his removal here, not only a successful teacher, but superintendent of public schools in Butler county, Pennsylvania. Mr. Joseph S. Betz, wife, and child, of Nebraska. Miss Ellen Smith, of Iowa. Rev. R. J. Burtt, wife, and two children, of New Jersey, formerly of the Choctaw mission. Their occupation is as follows:

Mr. Black, teacher; Mrs. Black, seamstress for boys; Mr. Betz, farmer; Mrs. Betts, care of girls; Miss Ellen Smith, matron's assistant; Rev. R. J. Burtt, missionary and superintendent; Mrs. C. G. Burtt, matron, housekeeper, &c.; John Springer, (native,) interpreter.

The mission building is constructed of a very hard rock, found in the surrounding bluffs. It is three stories high, with basement, kitchen, and cellar. Its dimensions are seventy-five by thirty-five feet. Exclusive of basement and attics, it contains seventeen rooms, used as follows: One large dining-room, one large school-room, one large chapel, two large bedrooms, two storerooms, one sitting-room for girls, and the remainder for families and spare rooms.

The outbuildings consist of a barn, with stables for horses and cattle; corn-crib, with wagon-house, granary, and tool-house; smoke, milk, ice-houses, and shop.

By means of the farm, we shall be able to supply ourselves fully with corn and potatoes, beef and pork, and partly with wheat and molasses. The farm, comprising some fifty acres of arable land, under the direction of Mr. Betz, ably assisted by our larger boys, has been well cultivated this year. It has been placed under good and stout rail-fencing. Here is the school for Omaha farmers in embryo.

The amount of money expended during the last fiscal year, ending May 1st, including the amount received from government, was four thousand four hundred and seven dollars and twenty-seven cents, nearly one hundred dollars more than the previous year. Yet there was really a saving, since in that amount was included the expenses incidental to the return of the previous mission family, and the arrival of the present; the increased number of pupils, and the erection of some outbuildings. Although we still have more pupils added, and some improvements just completed, we hope to come within the amount of the previous years. And here I would remark, that the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions (Old-school) have, since the removal of the mission to this place, expended several thousands of dollars more than they have received from government.

Notices of climate, soil, &c.—Concluding remarks.

In regard to climate, soil, and its productions, mineral resources, water privileges, and general aspect of the Reserve, I have but little to say. The climate, on account of its dryness, especially in the winter season, is, like that of all this region of country, excellent for pulmonary complaints.

The soil, generally, is not only good, but excellent. In proof of this, I may safely say that the Omahas, this season, have thousands of bushels of corn more than they can consume. Were it not for the brokenness and roughness of the Reserve, it might be as fine a farming country as could be desired.

The minerals found here, so far, are a soft red sandstone, too soft for building purposes, crumbling on exposure to the air. In the bluffs adjacent to the mission, a very hard limestone is found, containing petrifactions of wood and leaves, among which I recognise the foliage of the cotton-wood, walnut, and elm, of different varieties. As these trees still flourish, and these bluffs are nearly half a mile from the Missouri river, and the stone is found so deeply imbedded, there is here a problem for our geologists to solve.

Water privileges are almost nothing.

I have already alluded to the roughness of the country. Were you to ride over these prairies, you would suppose that some rolling ocean had suddenly, yea, instantly, solidified. It is up and down, up and down, even along the Missouri river, where the greatest amount of the timber which is growing on the Reserve is found. This timber consists principally of oak, walnut, and basswood. There are two "bottoms," partly clear and partly wooded. Here you find the cotton-wood and elms.

Before closing this part of the report, I may say, that there is a growing anxiety on the part of the Omahas to educate their children. Of this I have already given ample evidence in the former portion of this paper. Long since have I been satisfied, by a residence and labours of some years among the Choctaws, as well as by my experience among the Omahas, that if the Indians are ever to be brought into a state of civilization, it must be by means of such schools as this.

For the mission family and the Board, I tender to the Department our thanks for the appointment of so able and efficient an agent as the present incumbent.

In regard to my labours as missionary, I have a few words to say. Every Sabbath, services are held, not only at the mission, but at either of the two villages alternately. We are not without hope; the good seed has been sown; it will spring up, grow, and produce its fruit. As a missionary, I am encouraged; as a superintendent, I am encouraged; as a labourer for the civilization and Christianizing of this people, I am encouraged. What more can I say? Nothing. Therefore, respectfully submitting this to you, and through you to the Department, I remain

Yours, truly, R. J. BURTT,
Superintendent and Missionary.

AFRICA: CORISCO MISSION.

EXTRACTS FROM THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE REV. C. L. LOOMIS, M. D., AT EVANGASIMBA, OCT. 1, 1861.

The church—Preaching—State of religion.

The care and oversight of the church was entrusted, by the Presbytery, to the Rev. T. Spencer Ogden, whose fidelity in this important field was limited only by the limits of human ability. To watch over each lamb of the flock in the midst of these wolves, to encourage the desponding, to guide the inquirer, to warn the straying, to reprove the transgressor, to discipline the incorrigible, to feed the flock of Christ with the bread of life, dispensed as each is able to bear it, demands all the attention of an "earnest man," the devotion and solicitude of a Christian father.

There has been preaching twice on the Sabbath, and generally once during the week—generally through a native interpreter—besides daily morning and evening services in the two dwellings of the missionaries, accompanied by familiar expositions of the Scriptures; these services being well attended by the neighbouring people. The regular attendants at church have become few; transient hearers often drop in for a day, and on communion Sabbath. When the only service is at Evangasimba, our large chapel is crowded. The Christian people hold a weekly prayer-meeting by themselves, in the mission town; and the candidates for the ministry, and often others, who have gifts for speaking, collect people in the towns on the Sabbath, for exhortation and prayer. Yet it must be confessed, that the state of religion is discouraging. We can secure the attendance of our scholars and workmen, and those who expect favours of us, but fail to interest the masses. I think the preacher is too far from the hearer—there is a work at the people—but not enough among them. The greater half of pastoral work is almost neglected. Here, as elsewhere, there must be pastoral visitation.

The tide-wave which was setting towards the church, is ebbing; the true golden sand only remains. Many expected greater benefits. The people are impulsive and unstable. The movements of the French and Spanish relative to the possession of Ilobi; the talk of buying both Ilobi and Corisco; the presents made to the head-men; the distribution of rum; the wars with neighbouring tribes; the numerous "palavers" between families; the incitements of trade, and the desperate efforts of a few heathens among us to uphold and revive the ancient heathen customs, which had begun to give way before the power of Christianity—all these things absorb the interest, and distract attention from the missionary work. Yet the agents of both the Spanish and French governments have been to us uniformly polite and courteous.

Not a few Christians suffer persecution in some form, and many more are threatened with the wrath of "Ukuku," whose ceremonies are rendered as imposing and terrific as possible. Yet does this "tribulation" work some good, separating the wheat from the chaff. The Christian is more decided, while the wicked becomes more bold. The line being drawn, each goes to his "own company." This "falling away" of some, does but strengthen those who remain. We look for ultimate good. This trial of faith "worketh patience, experience, hope."

Sabbath-school—Catechumen class.

The Sabbath-school, under the care of the pastor, has failed in meeting only three Sabbaths during the year; the number of pupils varying from thirty to sixty-five, ages from six to sixty years. Two Bible-classes have been formed of those who can read, and are instructed by missionaries. The full number of teachers is eight, of whom some one is often detained by sickness. The pupils commit to memory texts of Scripture, hymns, and the Catechism, in English and Benga; many of them have committed the whole of it. Instruction is given in both languages. Those who cannot read are taught the word of God by their teacher, and by hearing some one repeat the words, until they can fix them in their mind. This is a severe tax on the memory of those who cannot understand the language; yet they do not fail on that account. It is cheering to hear them repeat the sacred truths, though in an unknown tongue. It is still God's word, and it is to be hoped that they may some day be able to comprehend its meaning.

The Catechumen-class meets at the close of the Sabbath-school. The interest in these exercises rises and falls with the state of religious feeling. Sometimes the meetings become formal and irksome, and few attend; but when the heart is moved by the Spirit, the numbers increase, and there is opened an effectual door for good. Indeed, without this "school of piety," many candidates for church-membership must be left sadly ignorant of the fundamental principles of religion, and many inquirers for the way of life be lost in darkness.

The girls' school—Its toil and promise.

The superintendence of the girls' school was confided, by vote of the mission, to Mr. Ogden. Under his supervision, the commodious dwelling, commenced during the previous year at the new station, was completed; the school-house, with the sewing department, was rebuilt, besides a dining-room, kitchen, and fixtures, and a house for his interpreter and two or three boys, still under instruction.

To gather girls into school here, to watch over them while at their studies, to pacify the parents, who wish to take them away as soon as they learn to sew, and to regather them after being thus enticed away, and restore discipline without giving offence, involves an amount of toil which must be experienced to be understood. We have to beg the privilege of teaching, feeding, and clothing these children, and keeping them from vice, and then pay their dowries to the full value; after which it requires the eye of an argus to prevent their parents from exposing them to the debauchery from which they have been rescued. Could we be permitted to receive, unembarrassed, twenty-five of those recaptured Congo girls, we might fill up our school with such as would make good wives for our educated boys from the mainland—to whom Corisco people will never give their daughters—and thus convey to our Corisco people an idea that an education for their daughters is worthy of their assistance, instead of their efforts to prevent its attainment.

Until January 1, 1861, the school in the schoolroom was under the charge of Miss M. M. Jackson, assisted by Miss Latta, since November 16, and Mrs. Ogden. On account of her marriage at that time, she resigned the charge of the school, and it has since devolved upon Miss Latta, who has done a good work under difficulties. I would remark, that during the severe illness of Mr. and Mrs. Ogden, the school had a vacation, and Miss Latta rendered invaluable assistance in the care of the sick.

The school, for the coming year, is under the superintendence of Mr. Nassau; the dwelling-house, and general oversight of the school, indoors, is in charge of Mrs. McQueen; and the charge of the school-room is in the hands of Miss Latta. The school is now well provided for, and, with God's blessing, we look for cheering results.

Instruction of native assistants—Translation of the Gospel of Luke—A tribute to the memory of Mr. Ogden.

The instruction of two candidates for the ministry, and three native helpers for the mainland, besides a few boys who once belonged to the advanced school, was also the work of Mr. Ogden. In this work he received much assistance from Mrs. Ogden, who also taught an evening class of young men, as her health permitted.

Besides these labours, he translated the Gospel according to Luke into the Benga language—a work of untold care and study. But here came a pause. His house was finished; the school established; one candidate licensed; Luke completed in the vernacular—when his Master bade him rest. His work is done. We wished him to visit America, six months before. He felt it his duty to remain. We may regret his decision; but none can censure the man who, in the face of peril, steadily holds what seems to him the path of duty. He ever looked forward for greater success in the work of African missions. When, just before his last illness, as he returned from his business to his house, he was presented with his new-born babe, he devoutly exclaimed, "Well, if the Lord will, we shall give Africa another missionary!" His latest thoughts, his most earnest dying words, were in behalf of the sacred work on the mainland. This he called upon others to carry on. In great peace of mind, on the 12th of May, 1861, he fell asleep in Jesus. His bereaved wife, with truly Christian fortitude, though encumbered with the care of her babe, cheerfully took up his work there, and has since discharged the duties of his station to the entire approbation of the mission. Since that event, the general duties of the pastor have fallen entirely upon the writer, assisted by Andéké.

Medical missionary work—The Christian doctor and Ukuku are strangers.

The practice of medicine has been, at times, very laborious; yet is it a most agreeable employment, being my only "appropriate" department of missionary labour. Among the people there has been an unusual amount of suffering. Maladies of a malignant type have prevailed. The wars and "palavers" have furnished many severe cuts, and some gunshot wounds, which have required many days of careful treatment; the people frankly admitting that "no Corisco man is fit to make medicine for this sickness—we want white man's medicine—missionary be father to us." It is believed that careful attention to these severe cases will do much to draw away the trust reposed in "fetisches," and inspire confidence in the missionaries, and in the God they worship. He who feels that his life has been thus saved, after being given up by the "wise men" of his own people, and when even his gods fail him, will listen kindly to words with which, in health, his carnal mind is at enmity.

There was one case of thirty-three butcher-knife cuts, in which life was only saved by the utmost efforts; one, of gangrenous ulcer, barely escaped amputation or death. These and some others required dressing at short intervals during day and night, for weeks. Their complete restoration awakened astonishment and gratitude. The treatment has been successful in every case—with thanks be it spoken—where the sufferers were willing to continue the medicines as directed.

Two severe cases, after gaining so far as to be out of danger, on the advice of friends, true heathens, determined to call in again Ukuku, as counsel at least, to make medicine for "his part," as he had been treating them before they came to the mission, and expected great fees if they recovered. They were told kindly, "that the missionary cannot practice with Ukuku. We are strangers. We trust in very different gods. We use medicines of very dissimilar qualities. We cannot expect good from the use of unknown medicines, never before combined. Besides, in such a compound practise, science is left at the mercy of superstition. If successful, the credit is given, of course to Ukuku; if not, the blame is charged to the missionary. But the physician is also bound to act as a Christian. He may not beat the drum, sing, dance, or bow down in the house of Ukuku, to secure health to his patient; for this is trusting in another god. No more can he administer medicines while the friends around him insult his God by the abominable rites of 'devil-worship,' as their part of the healing art." This position is well known, and respected; and, so far as we know, is approved by all.

It remains but to add, that in both these cases the "devil medicines" failed to prevent a relapse, with more alarming symptoms, and the friends, candidly admitting that his medicine is "not fit for this case," came again to ask for "Christian medicine." They have ever been assured that if Ukuku is no more to be called upon, they shall have the best medicines, and the best efforts of the missionary, who trusts only in God to make them effectual to restore health.

My efforts among missionaries here met with a different result. I have been called to treat of intermittent fevers 32, remittent 5, malignant 5, two of which proved fatal. The others promptly yielded to remedies, but these two baffled every effort. I stand appalled at the utter futility of human means, and can only say, in deep humility, "The will of God be done." Our stricken hearts cannot express our woe. Our mission suffers, yet is God able to carry on his work, though we all must leave it.

Miscellaneous Matters.

In a mission of some magnitude, different kinds of labour must receive attention, as this report shows. It is usually the case that the missionaries apportion or divide these labours among themselves, as was done at Corisco. In this division of labour there is often room and need for good judgment, charity, and humility—missionary qualifications which our brethren are anxious to possess in large measure; of course, there is danger of errors and mistakes. More or less attention, moreover, must be paid to matters of business. In the peculiar circumstances existing, the pressure of these on the writer of this report was severe; yet we feel persuaded his labours "in season and out of season" were not in vain in the Lord.

The toil required at this station is not a little. The bamboo houses soon decay. The thatch roofs cannot outlast the storms of three years. There are houses to build anew, as well as to rebuild. The boats require much attention. Men accustomed only to canoes use a boat roughly, especially a mission boat. The trouble of sending our mail to Gaboon every month, the difficulty of finding men who fear no "palavers" there, all enhance the labour of the missionary. The duties of treasurer have been severe. Our limited supplies have made necessary much business at Gaboon, at Ilobi, and with such ships as could be boarded. Our heavy building operations have required heavy and frequent payments. The purchase of building materials alone is no light task. All these departments of business require personal inspection, direction, and personal work. Competent assistants I have been unable to secure. My lack of experience in this business, and the unfavourable circumstances attending it, have demanded all my time, leaving but a few hastily seized fragments at night, in which to prepare for preaching. Not a moment remained to bestow upon the study of the language; very little to provide for the sick in my own family; not one day of leisure, save those which were passed under fever, seventeen attacks of which have visited me during the year, two of which were malignant.

Tribute to the memory of Mrs. Loomis—Missionary fidelity.

Yet these days of leisure and rest from toil were saddened by the fact that they doubled the cares of another, dearer than the sick one; for the duties of the treasurer still go on, though he is sick. But she who was so ready to assist me in health, so efficient and prompt to relieve me from my duties in sickness, forgetful of her own sufferings, sank, at last, under accumulated ills, and fell a prey to malignant fever. Her cares were many; her sorrows were multiplied; yet did she suffer and toil on alone, and without complaint. She was happy to be a missionary, and anxious to do all her duty in the sphere assigned her. She did what she could. From sun to sun she was never at rest, save on her sick-bed. There was an emphatic meaning in the words she desired to be sung, when she could no longer speak—"There is rest for the weary." She who had no home while here, has now "a Christian's home in glory." She met the first approach of death with joy, saying, "It is all right." I respond, "Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight." "The Lord hath done all things well."

Let it not be said, I pray you, that our oft-repeated sickness, and her untimely death, were the result of our imprudence. We were both accustomed to fevers and the means of cure. We came to the work with good health and strong constitutions. We made the most assiduous efforts to restore and preserve health. We tried to be faithful here in the discharge of the duties laid upon us; we also tried to save health and life, that we might be the more useful. We could do no more under our circumstances. Would that our ability had been commensurate with our duties!

Respectfully submitted, by your Christian brother, in deep affliction,

C. L. Loomis.

CHINA—CANTON MISSION.

ANNUAL REPORT FOR THE YEAR ENDING OCT. 1, 1861.

Another year has come and gone. The good hand of God has been over us, sparing the lives of the several members of the mission, and permitting us to continue our labours uninterruptedly. We have not been without affliction in the little ones of some of our number. One, almost before it began to live, was taken back to our Father in heaven. Another has been on the verge of the grave, but we now trust will be restored again to health.

Our hearts have been cheered with the prospect of new labourers being sent us. We are also gladdened with the more settled and brightening state of affairs in China. But when we look back to our native land, whence we expect help and encouragement, we see a dark cloud overshadowing her, and our hearts bleed for our dear country, our beloved Zion, and the precious cause of missions. Our continual cry goes up to God for our country, and all we hold dear there. May God help her, and that right early!

The work of the year, aside from the day-schools, [separately reported,] is embraced under the following divisions.

The preaching of the word.

Preaching has been regularly maintained in all three of our chapels. The new one in the western suburbs, which has lately been deeded to us in regular form, is now under our control as mission property. Daily service has been held in it, with occasional exceptions, throughout the entire year. Mr. Preston's three weekly services there have been somewhat laborious; he having to walk a distance of about two miles, each way, to and from his house. It has, however, been the best arrangement which could well be made, until another chapel can be purchased in a nearer location. As to attendance, the room is always well filled with listeners, and great numbers have here been permitted to come under the sound of the gospel.

In the chapel at Dr. Happer's, service is held every Sabbath morning, designed principally for the pupils of the day-schools. On Sabbath and Thursday evenings, also, a service, in the form of a lecture and prayer-meeting, has been regularly maintained.

At the chapel connected with the hospital there has been preaching on the three dispensing days of the week, as well as on the Sabbath. The hearers, made up mainly of the regular inmates of the hospital, and those who come in from abroad to be treated and receive medicine, present a more orderly appearance than is usual. The by-passers, who are attracted in, greatly increase the number; and it is no small pleasure sometimes to see the head of a family coming in, leading his child, to listen to the preaching of God's word. Another interesting and peculiar feature in the attendance here, is that females daily form a part of the congregation. They are induced to come, either for the purpose of having themselves or their children treated in the hospital, and thus the gospel is brought to a class which is very difficult to reach.

Street preaching has not been neglected, although it does not hold as prominent a place as formerly. Mr. Preston preached every Sabbath morning in an open court of the principal temple in the city, until the weather became too hot. It was an interesting service, often attended by several hundreds, many of whom listened attentively from first to last. Dr. Kerr has also preached, as circumstances permitted, at suitable places where an audience could be collected.

Although preaching has thus been so abundant, we have no precious tokens of the Spirit's power attending it to any heart, bringing it to the foot of the cross. We cease not to pray that God, in his mercy, will soon appear, and give us some, yea, much fruit of his grace, in this barren field. "Lord, how long?"

Hospital work.

Under the care of Dr. Kerr this work has been conducted with much interest and success. The reputation of the hospital is gradually spreading among the masses of the people here, and out into the villages and country around. The many diseased cured, and difficult operations successfully performed, have touched the hearts of the people in a tender point. Thus they are becoming slowly impressed with the truth, that we are not here for selfish or mercenary motives, but from a desire to do them good.

As to statistics, the number of patients received is, males 9825, females 2631, making a total of 12,456. 326 have received vaccination between the months of January and June, during which time only it is practicable, on account of the weather. The in-door patients of the year number 203.

The work at Fat-shan.

The work at this place has been assuming a more permanent and encouraging form. The narrow quarters occupied at first, for hospital and preaching purposes, were, early last spring, exchanged for others more commodious. Dr. Kerr has visited there once every week during the cooler weather, and every two weeks during some of the hottest months. Great numbers of the diseased, averaging about two hundred at each visit, have come, with the fullest faith, to be treated for their many diseases, and much has been done for their relief. The number of vaccinations for the year at this hospital is 494. The total number of patients treated 6720. Those cases requiring time, and special surgical operation, have been referred to the hospital at Canton. These hospitals cannot but be a wide door opened for gaining the confidence of this people.

At these visits, the gospel has been preached to large numbers. Though the opportunity, at these times, for getting the ears of the people, is not the most favourable, yet we trust the great truths of the gospel have been, to some little extent, impressed on the minds of many. Several stays, of greater or less length, have been made by different members of the mission. By these various means, our good intentions are made known to them, and the way gradually opened for securing a place among them to live. We hope, before long, that two of our number will be able to take up their residence in this great and growing city.

Outside labour.

The hospital of the London Missionary Society being left without a medical missionary, Dr. Happer has taken charge of the medical department until a new one shall have arrived. He is assisted in his duties there by our native assistant, A-ts'ung, who has a very good knowledge of medicine.

Mr. Condit, having not yet entered on active missionary work, during the summer, has regularly assisted in supplying the seamen's Bethel at Whampoa, twelve miles below this city. About one hundred of the foreign soldiers garrisoned at Canton, having been brought up under the influence of Scotch Presbyterianism, have desired a service of their own. In connection with Mr. Nevin, of the U. P. M., he has, also, alternately preached to them on Sabbath afternoons.

Our hearts are strengthened to go forward in the blessed work before us. The way has never been so thoroughly opened into the regions back and beyond this city. In a political sense, the peace treaty of the last year has opened the whole empire. The hope is gaining ground that the Chinese, as a government, are inclined permanently to keep it, and henceforth remain on friendly terms with foreign nations. Also, as regards the feelings of the Chinese, barriers are being broken down, which will more open the way into the great heart of the people.

In view of this, the call for an increase of God servants becomes still more pressing and urgent. China's future prospect is, in itself, a powerful, though silent, appeal to every church and every Christian heart at home. May God give them the desire and the ability so to respond, that earnest, devoted labourers shall soon be found in the whole of this great field, and the waste temple of Zion arise out of the dust, shining forth in her beauty and her power.

In behalf of the mission,

IRA M. CONDIT.

October 29th, 1861.

MISSION TO THE CHINESE IN CALIFORNIA.

LETTER OF THE REV. A. W. LOOMIS.

A rainy Sabbath morning's reflections and work.

We are sure that our readers will follow our missionary brother with their sympathies and prayers, while they read these graphic and touching accounts.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 20, 1861.

It is some time since I have written concerning our mission; but we have had nothing very special to write about. The main features of our work continue on nearly the same, from week to week, and from month to month. The attendance at the chapel is better than formerly. Yesterday, though a rainy day, between forty and forty-five were present; the Sabbath previous, we had fifty. On Thursday evening, we often have from twenty to thirty. Last Thursday evening it was blowing a gale, and dark, and very rainy, when we had only half a dozen; but even that was more than we expected. We have still to use our best efforts to call the audience together, otherwise we would have fewer to speak to than we now have.

Yesterday morning it rained very hard until nearly ten o'clock, when a few bright spots began to appear in the sky. I had pretty much concluded not to attempt anything among the Chinamen this morning, for, it being wet and uncomfortable, they might choose to be left to themselves, and so I might take the opportunity to go and hear a sermon made for Christian people. However, when the sun looked out between the clouds, I started; but not with the most elastic feelings, or with an expectation of the most agreeable morning's work. Soon I came in sight of a beautiful church edifice. There, said I, will very soon be gathered scores of well-clad and intelligent people. To walk up that broad aisle, spread out the manuscript, and pronounce the sermon before that audience for the space of half an hour; then, after the other services, to go home, and feel that half the Sunday's work is over—that would be quite a different business from what I am expecting to be engaged in. But again, I thought, probably not a person will enter there, that has not already heard of Jesus; not a person but already knows what he must do to be saved. Some will be there who have been to church fifty or a hundred times this year; most of them have read the Bible through, and some have read it many times. To help the pastor in his care of this flock, are several officers—deacons and elders—faithful men. There are also many Sabbath-school teachers to give the "line upon line" their two hundred and more children of various ages; therefore, even if they had no pastor, and were they to-day to have no preaching, not one of them would in consequence go blindly to destruction.

But within this city there are, this very morning, more than three thousand people, lately from the midst of heathenism; very many are ignorant of God, of Jesus, of heaven. Some have never heard the gospel preached; and even those of them who know most of Bible truths, still know less than most Sabbath-school children have been taught.

Then said I, again, Who is it needs the physician—he that is sick, or he that is whole? Who needs a teacher—the ignorant or the learned? Who needs a guide—they who already know the road, or the stranger and the blind? Let me hasten, therefore, to find some of these three thousand strangers, who are all on the wrong road, and are rushing to destruction. Possibly I may succeed in directing the dim, uncertain gaze, of even one poor wanderer towards the light that shines from the cross, which may some time result in his being found journeying on joyfully in the path of the just, which shineth more and more unto the perfect day.

Well, no longer doubting or desponding, I hurried on, prepared to do as well as I might be able with whomsoever Providence should bring in my way. In the public hall of one of the "company houses," I met four men, all of them persons that had seen better days: one came to this country three or more years ago, bringing three thousand dollars; but having been bred to books, and not to business, he and his three thousand were soon parted; and now he has to keep up an unremitted struggle to save soul and body from parting company also. Though his fine clothes all became ragged long ago, he still wears all the manners of the gentleman and scholar.

Another of the four was a dignified man of fifty, with moustache, and black flowing beard. He too is a scholar, but not so much of a gentleman; for he sometimes, while we are reading, throws in a contemptuous remark, and would, if he could, prevent others listening to us.

The third was a man such as a stranger would not be likely to describe particularly; for there was nothing striking in his appearance.

The fourth was a young man in dilapidated boots, hauled on over the legs of his well-worn pants; and besides these he wore a gray woollen shirt, and nothing more. Excepting two very crooked eyes, he had a pleasant face. I found him reading a volume of Chinese historic tales. This he was willing to lay aside for a while, and reminded me that weeks ago I had given him a book; and now he asked if I would read and explain a portion of it, as I had done one Sabbath morning not long since. Of course I was glad to do it; and so he went and fetched it, then drew two stools up to the table, laid down the book, turned over the leaves, then turned back some of them until he found the place, and said, "So far we read the other time." Then we read, explained, remarked, and questioned for near an hour.

Such was my Sabbath-school that rainy Sabbath morning. I cannot say that I was greatly flattered with the progress of my pupil, for some of his answers were quite aside from the book: nevertheless he has been gathering some new notions; and since the time I first sat down by his side to read and talk with him alone, he has been very regular in his attendance at the chapel. As yet, however, he gropes about almost in utter moral darkness. He desires to learn, I think; for once, on Sabbath evening, I found him still talking with the teacher, whom he had followed from the chapel to his room.

And now, if we here shall continue faithful in teaching, and you there earnest in praying, you may yet meet him, not as we have described him, but in robes as white as any of those who follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth.

A Sabbath-school "a little different"—A "sermon here on the spot."

On a previous occasion, my Sabbath-school was a little different. First, in a "company house" near Telegraph Hill. Here we had crab-fishers mending their little nets; others were mending their clothes. There were also men from the mines, whose purses had been drained to the last half-dime, and who, in the fruitless search for more, had wasted (what money cannot buy) health and physical energy. That poor fellow, nursing his rheumatic limbs, is recently from the Frazer river region, which he characterizes as "e'm ho shai kai," which, literally translated, means a miserable country. That other one has wandered far and wide over both California and Oregon; has dug up fortunes, and used them up again. Besides these, there are sick, and halt, and blind. Others are sleeping, who through the night were dreaming over their opium-pipes. Seating myself near three or four of the quietest-looking persons in the company, we conversed a while about dumb idols, and the glorious Jehovah; about this world, and the next; about the body, and the soul; about lost man, and his Redeemer. Leaving all these—to what destiny, I know not; but, alas! poor creatures, they are still in the dark and downward way—I started homewards.

Not far from home, I turned into a narrow street, then down into a basement room—a boarding-house. But two men were in the room, and one of them, a tailor, working on a garment. There being but these two, I proposed to myself to look into some other house, or go to my room and rest till the afternoon, and was merely repeating the invitation to these men to come and worship with us at our chapel at two o'clock; when the tailor, probably more in jest than earnest, says, "You see I am very busy, and cannot come to your meeting, so please give me a sermon here on the spot." We took him at his word, laid down a book upon his work-bench, drew up a stool beside him, and so we kept him reading and listening for more than half an hour. Meantime, boarders came in from their lodging-rooms, others crawled down from their bunks, others, still, came in from the streets; these gathered around, some looking over our shoulders. One asks, "Who is this man?" another asks, "What strange doctrines are these? another says, "Does he tell not to worship Kwan-ti, Kwan-yam, ancestors, and such like? Who, then, shall we worship?" We left them still wondering, and discussing the subject among themselves. Several of this company we recognised as present with us in the afternoon; and they, with others, as has frequently been the case of late, were down from the mines, and waiting to embark in the next ship for China.

New characters—Loss of property and life.

We are meeting with new characters constantly, from whom we might glean volumes of history as strange as some romances. Not many weeks ago, a Chinaman came up from Panama, where he had lived nine or ten years. I questioned him concerning the Chinamen who, a few years ago, were brought from Fukeen province to work upon the railroad. He says that all died, either by disease or by their own hands. Whether it was just so, I cannot say; but all accounts affirm that the number of deaths was frightful, and that there were many suicides every day.

About three months ago a poor Amoy sailor was introduced to me, who had been picked up on a piece of his wrecked vessel, off from the coast of China, and brought on to this port. The Chinamen here made up a purse, and sent him home.

There are two, three, or four, Amoy men, who, of late, are occasional attendants at the chapel; they understand some of the Canton language and some English. One of them is a rather pleasant man; he was several years servant in an American family in Honolulu. He once brought a Sandwich Islander to see us; the two conversed quite fluently together in the Hawaian language.

On a Thursday evening, not long since, while waiting for the people to assemble, a duskish looking person entered the room, and, in very good English, asked, "What church is this?" He came forward, and we soon learned some of his history. He was once a pupil of the mission school in Canton, under the care of Dr. Happer. He has been in California several years. In his hand he held a newly purchased book—a French Grammar. "What are you doing with a French Grammar?" said I. "And do you not talk French?" said he, whereupon he began exhibiting his proficiency in that language. Amongst the mining camps he had fallen in with Frenchmen, and so had learned to talk a little in their language, and was intending to prosecute the study during his voyage home to China; for he expects to take passage on the next ship. Whether he carries much money I do not know.

Some Chinamen say that where you see a man dress himself up uncommon nice on returning home, you may calculate that he has not much besides; but the men who have gold dust in their belts go rather shabbily dressed. Judging by this rule, our new acquaintance might be supposed to have something of a pile.

The papers have informed you of the devastating floods in different parts of this State and in Oregon. The loss of property has been great: many lives have also been lost. The floods came down so suddenly that escape was difficult, especially where it came upon the sleepers at midnight. Whole Chinese mining camps were swept away, and many Chinamen have been drowned.

I remain yours affectionately,

A. W. Loomis.

MISCELLANY.

DEGRADATION OF WOMAN.

Nothing, perhaps, tends more to perpetuate the mental bondage of the Hindus, than the ignorance, and consequent degradation which Brahminism has entailed on the female sex. We very justly attribute to the female part of our community a great share of the mental exaltation and refinement, and the active benevolence which bless our society. But in India a woman is a blank. She exerts no influence on society, nor can she exert any under the present state of things. A long and continued degradation has rendered the Hindu woman unqualified to share in the intercourse of the other sex; and iron-handed prejudice forbids her to become qualified. A sad experience has so long taught her that she is inferior, and by nature degraded, that she now seems fully to believe that she is so, and submits, without a murmur, to be treated as a being of inferior species.—Memoirs of Babajee, 1836.

MOHAMMEDISM DEGRADING TO FEMALES.

This morning, very early, a little Mohammedan woman came, and bringing me a nosegay, sat beside me a moment, with more than usual dejection in her countenance; then suddenly rising and kissing my hand, she said, sorrowfully, with her face half veiled, "can you give me any medicine for my eye?" Supposing her to be afflicted with ophthalmia, the universal disease of the natives, I said, "Does your eye pain you?" "No," said she, "but for several years something has been growing upon it, and for one year I have not been able to see with that eye;" and she added, "Ahmed (her husband) says, if I cannot see, he will send me away from him." Poor woman! my heart ached for her, and I promised to consult Dr. Whitely in reference to her case. Such is the kindly nature of the religion of Mohammed! How effectually it tends to overthrow the plan of Jehovah's government!—Memoirs of Mrs. Smith.

FEAR OF DEATH AMONG THE HEATHEN.

Among the Chinese, the fear of death is distressing. Their imagination has invented no fewer than ten hells. One is stuck full of knives; another, an iron boiler full of scalding water; another, of cold ice; in another, the punishment consists in pulling out the tongue; another is full of poisonous serpents; in another, the victim is drawn in pieces; another is a hell of blackness and darkness. You may hear them praying—

"May I not fall into the hell of swords—of serpents—of boiling water," &c. I bring this forward to show that, to some extent, they are crying out, "What shall I do to be saved?" Is there one here who will refuse to say, "Exert yourselves to the utmost to carry the gospel to every creature?"—Rev. Dr. Morrison.

DONATIONS
TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS
IN JANUARY, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Troy—Malta ch 16 45, Sab sch, to ed a child in Shanghai 25. Pby of Albany—Schenectady ch, Judge McQueen 25, Thos L Walker 25; Carlisle ch 5; Esperance ch 2; Mayfield Central ch 3 101 45

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Ogdensburgh—Heuvelton ch 3 80; Rev R W McCormick 1 20; Second Oswegatchie ch 23 32; Morristown ch 6. Pby of Genesee River—Warsaw ch 14 07, Sab school 16 60; Caledonia ch 21 08; Bath ch Sab school 22 30 108 37

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Hudson—Hempstead ch 6; Hamptonburgh ch 41. Pby of North River—Marlborough ch 35, mo con 18; Middle Hope ch 7, to con Mrs E F JAGGER and THOS D BLOOMER L. M's.; Bethlehem ch 24 41. Pby of Bedford—Red Mills ch 15. Pby of Long Island—Middletown ch 5 28. Pby of New York—Forty-second street ch mo con 18 20; Madison Avenue ch mo con 19; First ch mo con 208 37; Brick ch mo con 49 07; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch ann'l coll 6390, mo con 23 30; Mission chapel 3 76; Chelsea ch mo con 17, Sab sch, per Miss Stevenson, for Canton mission 2; University Place ch 250, of which 150 to con Rev ALBERT BARNES KING Life Director; 15th street ch mo con 22 69; West 23d street ch mo con 25, Sab sch 25; German ch N. Y., 6; German ch Sab sch, N. Y., per Rev H A Friedel 5; Grand street ch Sab sch 30; Rutger's street ch 229. Pby of New York 2d—Canal street ch mo con 12; Washington Heights ch mo con 5; Yorkville ch 25; Scotch ch Sab sch 92. Pby of Nassau—Williamsburgh ch mo con 39 31; Astoria ch mo con 21 31, Sab sch, to ed a boy in India 25; 1st ch Brooklyn, mo con 35 7729 70

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—First ch Elizabeth, to con Rev EVERARD KEMPSHALL Life Director 366 21, Young Ladies' Miss'y Soc'y 102 70. Pby of Passaic—First ch Paterson, ann'l coll 26 30, mo con 14 19; Third ch Newark, mo con 21 43, Sab sch 5 50. Pby of New Brunswick—Dutch Neck ch 20; First ch New Brunswick, mo con 108 34; Second ch Trenton 20 25, Sab sch 9 75; 2d ch Princeton, ann'l coll 56 56, mo con 16 82; Laurenceville ch 50; Ewing ch 15. Pby of West Jersey—Second ch Bridgeton 25; Cape Island ch Sab school 10 91. Pby of Newton—Lower Mount Bethel ch 31; Upper Mount Bethel ch 10. Pby of Raritan—Amwell United 1st ch 16. Pby of Susquehanna—Wyalusing 2d ch 5; Independence ch 1 10, from a missionary 90 cents. Pby of Luzerne—Pittston ch Sab sch 6 28; 2d ch Pottsville, Sab sch 25; Nanticoke ch 5; Kingston ch 39 58, of which 5 from Mrs Charles Dorrance; Hazleton ch 36 53; Newton ch 5. Pby of Burlington—Mount Holly ch 18; Plumsted ch 5; First ch Camden 25. Pby of Monmouth—Manalapan ch 20; Shrewsbury ch 31; Middletown Point ch 16 14, Ladies 16 40; First ch Monmouth 5 1189 89

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—Tenth ch Philadelphia, mo con 35 27; 4th ch Philadelphia, to con Rev P H MOWRY L. M. 30; 6th ch Philadelphia 143 40, of which 20 75 from Sab sch for Corisco mission; 9th ch Philadelphia 37 71; 15 street ch Sab sch 10 35; West Spruce street ch, Mrs Field 5, Rev Joseph H Jones, D D 30. Pby of Philadelphia Central—Spring Garden ch 296 49, of which from Mrs E Smith 100, Miss A Greenleaf 100, to con Rev MORRIS C SUTPHEN and DAVID H GILBERT, M D, Life Directors, Rev James Clarke, D D, 20, H D Gregory 10, John Hocker 10, Rev M C Sutphen 5, Gilbert Combs 5, H K Smith 5, J Newton Baker 3, T C Pollock 1, and E W Rogers 1; West Arch street ch, from Mrs R 20; Second ch, from a member 150, and from Y 25. Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Falls of Schuylkill ch Sab sch 6 30; Chestnut Hill ch, a lady 50; Abington ch 173 25, of which 13 25 from the Juv Miss'y Society for Ningpo mission; Slatington ch 20, Sab sch 2. Pby of New Castle—New Castle ch mo con 100, Sab sch 26, Mrs Ferris 2, Mrs Black 1, Dr Cowper 20, two friends 5, Wm Cowper 20, Mrs Spottswood 10, a friend 2 50. Pby of Donegal—Slateville ch 14 33; Little Britain ch 10; Leacock ch 17 37; Bellevue ch 10 07; Chestnut Level ch 30. Pby of Huntingdon—Lower Tuscarora ch Gap Sab sch 6 04. Pby of Northumberland—New Berlin ch Sab sch 3; Sunbury and Northumberland chs 16; Milton ch 50; New Berlin ch 26 89 1404 97

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.—Pby of Baltimore—First ch Baltimore, Mrs George Brown 2000, George S Brown and others 1236; First ch Ellicott's Mills Sab sch 5, Rev C Huntingdon 25; Patapsco Sab Sch 20; 2d ch Baltimore 50; Taneytown ch 120; Young Ladies' Sem'y at Thorndale 36, and Thorndale Sab sch 4 to ed children at Corisco; Annapolis ch, Youth's Miss'y Soc'y, to ed a Siamese boy 25; Govane chapel 15. Pby of Carlisle—Hagerstown ch 40; Mercersburg ch 75 25, of which 2 75 from Sab sch. Pby of Lewes—Dover ch 14. Pby of Potomac—New York Avenue ch Washington, D. C., Youth's Miss'y Soc'y 13 10; 7th st ch Washington, D. C., Youth's Miss'y Soc'y 10 3688 35

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Redstone—McKeesport ch Sab sch 30, to con Mrs ELLEN MILLER L. M.; Rehoboth ch 41 60, of which 3 25 from Sab sch. Pby of Ohio—East Liberty ch in part 75; Central ch Pittsburgh 63 92; 2d ch Pittsburgh, Sab sch, Howard scholarship 25. Pby of Blairsville—Somerset ch 5 60; Blairsville ch 30 50; Johnstown ch 31 30. Pby of Clarion—Leatherwood ch Male and Female Miss'y Soc'y 6 07. Pby of Saltsburgh—Glade Run ch Sab sch 5; Indiana ch Sab sch 13 08; Plum Creek ch 21 54 348 61

SYNOD OF ALLEGHANY.—Pby of Alleghany—Freeport ch 26 60; Butler ch 100, of which 25 from Sab sch; Sunbury ch 5. Pby of Beaver—Pulaski ch 7; Clarkeville ch 25. Pby of Erie—Meadville ch 45; Park ch Erie 32; Evansburg ch 4; West Greenville ch 10 84. Pby of Alleghany City—German ch of Rochester 3 42, of which 2 from Sab sch; Woods Run Mission Sab sch 13; Concord ch 3 60; Bridgewater ch 40 95; Sewickley ch, S E M 1; Sharpsburg ch Sab sch 26 08 343 49

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—First ch Wheeling 29 12, Sab sch 75; 3d ch Wheeling 11; 4th ch Wheeling 28; West Alexander ch 100, of which 15 from Sab sch, to ed a boy at Corisco; Hookstown ch Sab sch 6 25; East Buffalo ch 5. Pby of Steubenville—1st ch Steubenville, bal 9; East Springfield ch 9; Waynesburg ch 7; Minerva ch 4; Bloomfield ch 4. Pby of New Lisbon—Salem ch Sab sch mission box 5 57; Canfield ch 18 310 94

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Columbus—Lithopolis ch 4; 1st ch Columbus 41 42. Pby of Marion—York ch 6. Pby of Zanesville—Buffalo ch 37; Washington ch, Wm Robe 5; Bristol ch 5 64. Pby of Richland—Waterford ch 8 65; Bladensburg ch 10; Shelby ch 8, Sab sch 5 130 71

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.—Pby of Michigan—Westminster ch Sab sch, Lowrie miss'y soc'y 11. Pby of Western Reserve—Westminster ch mo con, to sup of Rev Cornelius De Heer, Corisco, 23 78; 1st ch Springfield 23, Sab sch 12 60; 2d ch Springfield 10. Pby of Maumee—Bryan ch 3; Delta ch 2 54, D S A 46 cts 86 38

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Chillicothe—Cynthiana ch 3; Marshall ch 3. Pby of Miami—Middletown ch 17. Pby of Cincinnati—1st ch Glendale 31, of which 7 from Sab sch, mo con 23; 7th ch Cincinnati, Sab sch 16 50. Pby of Oxford—Eaton ch 7 25; Camden ch 2 75; Hamilton ch 60 10; 1st and 3d chs Oxford 31 41, of which 10 from Ladies' Soc 3d ch. Pby of Sidney—St Mary's ch 2 06 197 07

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of New Albany—Livonia ch 19 85. Pby of Vincennes—Vincennes ch 9 05. Pby of Madison—Vernon ch 7 35 90

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Logansport—Peru 2d ch, Sab sch 5; Reusselaer ch 4. Pby of Lake—Valparaiso ch 10 06; Constantine ch 4; Sumption's Prairie ch 20. Pby of Fort Wayne—Wabash 2d ch 11; Albion ch 5 05; Kendalville ch 6 60; Hopewell ch 2 35; Bluffton ch 1 80; New Lancaster ch 3 20. Pby of Crawfordsville—Waveland ch 8 67. Pby of Muncie—Union ch 3; Hartford ch 1 85 73

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Kaskaskia—Galum ch 6; Trenton ch 7 50. Pby of Palestine—Pleasant Prairie ch 12; Kansas ch 10. Pby of Sangamon—1st ch Springfield 20; Irish Grove ch 5. Pby of Peoria—Prospect ch 15; Farmington ch, Margaret Simpson 5. Pby of Hillsboro'—Sugar Creek ch 2 50. Pby of Bloomington—Towanda ch 15; Crow Meadow ch 2 20; Waynesville ch Sab sch 1 51; Mackinaw ch 6 107 71

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.—Pby of Schuyler—Macomb ch 19; North Henderson ch 14; Pope's River ch 2; Millersburg ch 13 87. Pby of Rock River—Lower Rock Island ch 6 30; Rock Island 1st ch, Sab sch 17 35; Malden ch 2; Arlington ch 2. Pby of Chicago—1st ch Rockford 5; Willow Creek ch 51, Sab sch 4 24; North ch Chicago 60 196 76

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.—Pby of Dane—Oakland and Cambridge chs 2, Sab sch 1; Rockville ch 1 35; Plattville ch 3 50. Pby of Milwaukie—North ch 36; Waukesha ch 10. Pby of Winnebago—New Lisbon ch 5 17; Newport ch 5 07, Rev S Mitchell 7 15 71 24

SYNOD OF ST. PAUL.—Pby of St. Paul—Westminster ch 10; 2d ch Stillwater 4; Trimbelle ch 4 50, Sab sch 86 cents; Prescott ch 1, Sab sch 36 cts. Pby of Chippewa—La Crescent ch 2 20; Houston ch 1. Pby of Lake Superior—Ontonagon ch 4 27 92

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Cedar—1st ch Muscatine, mo con 10, Sab sch 10; Davenport ch Sab sch 1; Summit ch 10; Long Grove ch 2; Unity ch 2; Mechanicsville ch 6 50; Red Oak Grove ch 8 64; German ch Muscatine 2. Pby of Dubuque—Bellevue ch 20 64; Epworth ch 2; Wayne ch 9 83 78

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.—Pby of Iowa—Onoowa ch 2; St Peter's ch 27 53, of which 4 43 from Sab sch. Pby of Fairfield—Ottumwa ch 3 35; Kirkville ch 3 15 35 03

SYNOD OF UPPER MISSOURI.—Pby of Highland—Highland ch 10 50; Westminster ch, Leavenworth City 5 50 16 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.—Pby of St. Louis—2d ch, Sab sch, to sup of Rev H V Rankin at Ningpo 600 00

Total received from churches, $16,901 00

LEGACIES.—Bequest of Mrs H W Condit, Oswego, N. Y. 100; Bequest of Harriet Stearns, Mifflinburg, Pa., aged 10 years and 5 months, 2 05; Estate of Mary E Finley, dec'd. of Sunbury, Butler co Pa., 38; Estate of Daniel Smith, dec'd, of Indiana co., Pa., 100 240 05

SYNOD OF REFORMED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—To support of four missionaries in India 1200 00

MISCELLANEOUS.—High st ch Newark, Sab sch, for Ningpo 28 64, Infant class 4 36; A Friend 1; Mr T Leonard, Westfield, Mass., for Choctaw Mission, 10; J 3; A Missionary and his wife in Canton 150; Rev A H Holloway 5; James Park, Adam co. Ohio, in part to con Lois Ella Park L M 10; A Friend, N. Y. 4; Rev E C Wines, D D 5; C Nevin, to ed a girl in Africa 25; Mrs N A Hammond to ed a boy in Africa 25; A Friend 3; William, Steubenville, O. 51 cents; Mrs Mary R Green, Mt Kisco, N. Y. 2; A Friend, per New York Observer, for Indians, 15; Little Jane and Maggie Gershom, Genesco, Ill. 1; A Sturgeon, Harrisburg, Pa. 2 50; Miss Jane R Wilson, Shippensburg, Pa. 5; Miss M Brown, Paxton Valley, Pa. 5; Rev Prof R P Dunn, Providence, R. I. 20; Mrs Magill, Danville, Pa. 5; A little boy, to buy Testaments for the Heathen 1; G W F, St. Paul's, Minn. 24 69; Miss N Lyle, New Petersburg, Ohio 3 366 70

Total Receipts in January, 1862, $18,707 75

Special contributions for endowment of Waldensian Seminary, C C B 100 00
Previously acknowledged, 14,200 00

Total, $14,300 00

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., or Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, Jr., Esq., Treasurer—same address.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY—Two editions of this publication are printed. The Pamphlet Edition contains 32 pages, and is published monthly, at 50 cents a year for each copy. It is sent free, when desired, to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to the ministers of our churches.

The Newspaper Edition contains a selected portion of the contents of the pamphlet edition. A copy is sent free of charge, except for postage, to the children of each family in every Sunday School making regular contributions to the Treasury of the Board.

Address for either edition, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—

Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D. D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 910 Arch street;
Pittsburg, Pa., Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky., Andrew Davidson;
Memphis, Tenn., J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Mo., David Keith;
Natchez, Miss., Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Va., Henry C. Watkins;
Columbia, S. C., H. C. Bronson;
Augusta, Geo., James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board, and should be preceded, or accompanied by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

OVERLAND MAIL.—Letters for the Overland Mail are forwarded from the Mission House by the steamers nearest the first and fifteenth of each month. Postage: from New York, to SIAM, CHINA, JAPAN, and BRAZIL, forty five cents for each half ounce weight; but if sent by the French mail, thirty cents for each quarter ounce weight; to LIBERIA and CORISCO, thirty-three cents for each half ounce weight; to INDIA, via Southampton, thirty-six cents for each half ounce weight; via Marseilles, forty-two cents for a quarter ounce weight; forty-nine cents for a half ounce weight, sixty-seven for three-quarter ounce weight, seventy-four for an ounce weight, a dollar and five cents for an ounce and a half weight. Letters to be forwarded by the "French mail," or to India "via Marseilles," must be so marked. Postage on newspapers, six cents each. The postage on letters and newspapers must be prepaid. The letters forwarded from the Mission House to each Mission are put in an outside envelope, and therefore stamps should not be affixed to them. The postage is assessed according to the weight of each letter, and may be paid by sending post-office stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the Payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,

No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of Colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record and Sabbath-school Visitor, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., Corresponding Secretary, No. 821 Chestnut street.

All communications, reports, remittances of money, and orders for books, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage, and Business Correspondent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to Rev. W. M. Engles, D. D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to James Dunlap, Esq., Treasurer.

OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS AND THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

While the providence of God has recently in some degree limited both the means and the opportunity enjoyed by the Board of Publication for carrying forward the work of colportage in its usual form, that same providence has opened a most extraordinary and promising field, for a time, among the defenders of our country on the land and the sea. The Board has eagerly availed itself of this opportunity, and has been doing among them a noble and blessed work.

It has prepared a "Soldier's Library," containing seventy choice and suitable volumes, which it furnishes for $15 in cash. No better library for a regiment or a camp can be found.

It has published for sailors a manual entitled "The Sailor's Companion," at the price of fifty cents, containing religious reading, hymns, prayers, burial service for use at sea, and other matter adapted to the needs of a sailor's life. This has received the warmest commendation of chaplains and pious naval officers. A large number of ships have been furnished with copies of this volume, and in every case they have been most gratefully received.

It has published an admirable little work called "The Soldier's Pocket-Book," which has been received in all the camps, and by all grades and kinds of soldiers, not only with eagerness, but with enthusiasm. Of this, 60,000 copies in English have already been issued, and the cry for more is daily coming to the Board from all our camps. Its price is five cents, or $5 per hundred. An edition in German has recently been issued, and is now beginning to circulate among the German soldiers. The Spirit of God has signally attended and blessed this little work in numberless instances to the conversion of the impenitent, the edification of Christians, and reclamation of backsliders.

The Board has published a great variety of tracts suitable for the soldier's reading, among them one package entitled "The Soldier's Series," price ten cents, of which many thousands have gone to the various camps. Also a card, suitable for use in hospitals and elsewhere, entitled "The Sinner's Resolve," which has been the means of doing great good among the sick and wounded.

Of the "Sabbath-school Visitor" large packages have been sent to the camps, and it is earnestly sought and read by the soldiers.

The "Social Psalmodist," a little work at thirty-five cents, contains the choicest and most familiar hymns and tunes, and has been an essential aid in promoting singing in the army, especially in the prayer-meetings and public services.

Of all these works thousands upon thousands have, through the Christian generosity of friends of the soldier and the sailor, been given to them without charge. It is believed that, since this war began, the Board has been graciously permitted to place a printed offer of salvation in the hands of at least 250,000 individuals of these classes.

The work still grows greater and greater. The opportunity only widens before us from day to day. During the month of January larger quantities than ever of books and tracts have been sent to Port Royal; to Hatteras; to Fortress Monroe; to the camps all along the Potomac; to the hospitals around Washington, Baltimore, and elsewhere; to Western Virginia; to Kentucky; to Missouri; to our various navy-yards and ships; and indeed almost wherever soldiers and sailors were to be found. Chaplains, pious officers, and even pious privates who are engaged in these labours gratuitously, send us their thanks for supplies already furnished, and invariably beg for yet more to be sent.

We would like here to insert extracts from many letters, but cannot. One minister in Kentucky, who is engaged in this work for the Board among the vast armies there collected, wrote, a few days ago—"I have supplied about 40,000 men, with the aid of several chaplains. General Buell has kindly given me a general pass to enter his lines at pleasure." And then he urges the Board to send on large supplies.

A Methodist chaplain, at or near St. Louis, writes:—"I have distributed all the books, and nearly all the cards sent me. They are joyfully received by all. I have never yet found a man to refuse any of the reading matter, and all seem anxious and very thankful for the books, tracts, and papers."

A labourer, now making distributions among the soldiers in and near Cairo, Illinois, writes:—"This place and adjacent outposts should be thoroughly supplied with our publications. I could most usefully distribute at least eight thousand of the 'Pocket-Books,' and of our other publications in proportion. But whatever is done should be done quickly." This last remark is solemnly true. One or more great battles may soon put thousands of these soldiers beyond the reach of any offer of salvation.

Such is the work in hand. Such are the growing opportunities. But just now, sad to tell, the means for carrying it forward are entirely exhausted. Early in December an appeal for aid was sent out in religious newspapers and by a circular. Many generous responses were made in the shape of contributions to the Distribution Fund. But so incessant and importunate have been the demands for books and tracts, that the money received is all expended. The Executive Committee of the Board, a few days ago, voted away the last remaining dollar.

Must the Board cease from this blessed work among the soldiers and sailors?

Will not the pastors of our churches make our need known to their people?

Will not individual Christians, without waiting for their churches, send us such help as God may incline and enable them to give?

Remittances should be addressed to James Dunlap, Esq., Treasurer, 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

W. E. Schenck,
Corresponding Secretary.

P. S. Churches or individuals sending contributions may have books and tracts sent to particular regiments or companies in which they are specially interested, by giving us a name and address to which we may forward the package.

SEED NOT SOWN IN VAIN.

Indiana.

Rev. W. E. Schenck, D. D.

At the commencement of this year one of our colporteurs writes that he had some time previous sold "Thoughts on Family Worship," by James W. Alexander, D. D., to a young lady, and to that book she ascribed the conversion of five persons—herself, parents, and two brothers, who had all united with the church, and given good evidence of conversion.

Another colporteur writes, a few months ago, that he sold a copy of "James's Anxious Inquirer," to a young man, who has since spoken of that book as the means used in his conversion.

A little more than a year ago we sent a young German colporteur into one of the largest cities of Indiana, to work mostly among Germans. Recently, while on a visit to that city, a brother remarked, that he superintended a school established a year since by that colporteur. Some thirteen or fourteen persons had, by that colporteur, been brought to see their lost condition, and had found Christ their Saviour, and were all of them consistent members of evangelical churches. This colporteur, in the employ of the Board, in the space of four months established two Sabbath-schools, now in successful operation. He established a weekly prayer-meeting in a church, the minister being opposed, and had removed prejudice from several ministers of other denominations among the German people. The amount of good accomplished by this one colporteur, in four months, will never be fully known on earth.

H. B. S.

A WORD FROM MISSOURI.

A Methodist chaplain of an Iowa regiment of cavalry, now in Missouri, having been furnished with one hundred copies of our "Soldier's Pocket-Book," for gratuitous distribution among the men of his regiment, sends us the following letter. The wants of this regiment have been met in part only.

"Benton Barracks, St. Louis, Mo.,
December 22, 1861.

Dear Brother—Lieutenant H. gave me the little books for soldiers, ("The Soldier's Pocket-Book,") for which the men of our regiment, as well as myself, are very thankful. The books are gladly received, and, from their character and style, must, with the blessing of God, be very useful. The Board which publishes these works, and furnishes them so liberally to our soldiers, may never know the good they are accomplishing, or have its labours properly appreciated and rewarded in this world, but the certain promise to those who cast their bread upon the waters, is, that they shall gather it, though it may be many days in the future. Who can estimate the rich harvest that will be realized in eternity from this precious seed? I could use two or three hundred more of these little books to good advantage. .

Very truly yours,

C. G. T."

Danville, Ky., Feb., 1862.

Rev. W. E. Schenck, D. D.

Dear Brother—Yours of the 10th ult., accompanying a package of books, was duly received. Please accept my thanks. Many of the tracts and Sabbath-school Visitors I distributed to the men, who were not merely willing, but eager, to receive them; the books I keep as a circulating library, and they are so popular that the demand for them far exceeds my supply. Especially is there a clamour for "The Soldier's Pocket-Book." I have given away nearly all the copies sent, and to numerous subsequent applications have been compelled to say that I could not supply them. I need very much about three hundred more of the "Pocket-Book."

The regiment has only received one month's pay since enlistment. Money is very scarce, even among officers. If the paymaster ever comes around, I intend to try to raise some money from the regiment to supply our own wants. At present we must look to benevolent friends. For what you have done I am very grateful; and trust and believe that much good will be done, and much evil prevented, by the distribution of the books and tracts already sent.

Yours in the gospel,

J. M.

NEW SABBATH-SCHOOL BOOKS.

Since our last book-notice in the Record, the Board of Publication has added the following new and interesting books to its list for Sabbath-school libraries:

I. The Wonderful Lamp, or light for the darkest place. 18mo. pp. 239. Price 30 and 35 cents. Postage 8 cents.

The Wonderful Lamp is a far better one than that of Alladin, of which, no doubt, many of our young readers have read in the "Arabian Nights." It is God's own pure and holy word. The volume shows how wonderful, how powerful, and how valuable this blessed Lamp is, especially to such as are called to walk along dark and thorny paths through this world. It is well written, and will amply repay perusal.

II. Madeleine, or The Lost Bracelet. By the author of "Little Flora," "James Harwell," "Christmas at Home," &c. 18mo. pp. 100. Price 15 and 20 cents. Postage 5 cents.

This is another volume in the Board's Sabbath-school series. It is an unusually instructive and entertaining little book. We can confidently commend it to all juvenile readers.

III. A Little Book for Little Folks, about the Book of books. 24mo. pp. 72. Price 15 cents. Postage 3 cents.

This little volume will not fail to interest the "Little Folks," for whom it was written. It is strange how many wonderful things can be told about the Bible, and how inexhaustible is the variety of wonderful truths to be drawn out of it. Many of these are here set forth in a very novel and pleasing manner by the author, so as to furnish both entertainment and important instruction to his little readers.

IV. Self-Sacrifice, or the Pioneers of Fuegia. Compiled for the Board of Publication. By Sarah A. Myers. 12mo. pp. 300. Price 60 cents. Postage 12 cents.

No reader who opens this volume will be ready to lay it down without first giving it a thorough perusal. It is well entitled "Self-Sacrifice," for it contains a record of brave adventure and self-denial rarely equalled, even in the history of Christian missions. Every pious heart will glow with admiration and sympathy while the eye traces on these pages the story of Christian zeal and daring, exhibiting itself in wild and inhospitable Patagonia and the islands adjacent. We hope the book will have a wide circulation. It cannot fail to develope and increase a missionary enthusiasm in the bosom of every pious reader. A fine likeness of the devoted Captain Allen F. Gardiner forms a frontispiece to the volume.

V. Johnny Wright, or the Boy who tried to do Right. By the author of "Little Bob True," "Stories on the Petitions," "Little Words," &c. Pp. 300. Price 35 and 40 cents. Postage 9 cents.

This is the story of a little boy, who, when quite young, lost his father, who had been careful to instil into his mind correct principles. The trials and temptations to which he was subjected, and the happy results of his persevering efforts, are here detailed. We regard it as one of the very best books for the young yet issued by the Board.

VI. Jeanie's Scrap-Book. Compiled for the Board. 18mo. pp. 216. Price 25 and 30 cents. Postage 7 cents.

VII. Ellie's Scrap Book. Compiled for the Board. 18mo. pp. 216. Price 25 and 30 cents. Postage 7 cents.

Two pleasant volumes, filled with profitable and well-written tales.

Donations received for the Colportage Fund of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, during the month of January 1862.

Pby of Troy—Troy 2d ch	49 84
Pby of Albany—West Galway ch 11 25; Jewett ch 40	51 25
Pby of Buffalo City—Portageville ch	3 69
Pby of Hudson—Goshen ch 16 22; Washingtonville ch 5 50	21 72
Pby of Bedford—Red Mills ch	5 00
Pby of Long Island—Jamaica ch 32 19; Islip ch 6; Amagansett ch 4; Middletown ch 10	52 19
Pby of New York—Chelsea ch, per Wm Rankin, Jr.	30 00
Pby of Nassau—Wallabout ch, per do.	15 18
Pby of Elizabethtown—Elizabeth 1st ch, to con Rev E Kempshall hon mem	151 80
Pby of West Jersey—Bridgeton 2d ch	5 00
Pby of Susquehanna—Wyalusing ch 2 30; Rome ch 1; Troy ch 4	7 30
Pby of Luzerne—Hazleton ch 27 16; Kingston ch 8; Newton ch, Rev J B Adams 2	37 16
Pby of Philadelphia—Chester ch Sab sch	10 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Little Valley ch 6; Lewistown ch 32 27	38 27
Pby of Northumberland—Washingtonville and Derry chs 13; Great Island ch, "A member" 2	15 00
Pby of Baltimore—Frederick ch 14 50; Baltimore 1st ch 200	214 50
Pby of Carlisle—Carlisle ch 3; Bedford ch, to con Mrs A M Sample hon mem 46, Sab sch 4	53 00
Pby of Potomac—New York Avenue ch Washington, D. C.	70 50
Pby of Ohio—Central ch Pittsburgh, per Rev M W Jacobus, D D	30 00
Pby of Erie—Venango ch 7; Meadville ch, John Reynolds 15	22 00
Pby of Washington—Wheeling Fourth ch 15; Mount Prospect ch 15 53	30 53
Pby of Steubenville—Annapolis ch 6; Amsterdam ch 3	9 00
Pby of New Lisbon—Middle Sandy ch 7; Deerfield ch 7 50	14 50
Pby of St. Clairsville—Mount Pleasant ch	18 50
Pby of Columbus—Westminster ch	2 00
Pby of Marion—Iberia ch	8 00
Pby of Zanesville—Brownsville ch 7 20, Sab sch 2 80	10 00
Pby of Coshocton—Keen ch	6 00
Pby of Western Reserve—Lafayette ch 8; Northfield ch 5	13 00
Pby of Miami—Springfield 2d ch	19 61
Pby of Cincinnati—Cincinnati 7th ch 84 10; Central ch 37 25; Cincinnati 1st ch 25 50	146 85
Pby of Findlay—Enon Valley ch 1 30; West Union ch 6 34; Blanchard ch 4	11 64
Pby of New Albany—Livonia ch, Dr Alexander McPheeters	14 00
Pby of Logansport—Lafayette 1st ch 11 19; Roseville ch 1	12 19
Pby of Peoria—Lewistown ch	50 00
Pby of Rock River—Rock Run ch	2 50
Pby of Chicago—Rockford 1st ch, a further contribution for soldiers 23 97, less for Record 50 cents=23 47, from the Sab sch 9 53, less for Visitor 1=8 53	32 00
Pby of Dane—Rockville ch 70 cents; Cambridge and Oakland chs 1 70	2 40
Pby of Chippewa—Galesville ch 2; Winona ch 5	7 00
Pby of Cedar—Wilton and Blue Grass ch 14 25; German ch 4	18 25
Pby of Dubuque—Bellevue ch 7 80; Sherrod's Mound ch 2 25; Farmer's Creek ch 1	11 05
Pby of Iowa—Burlington First ch 10; Middletown ch 50 cents	10 50
Pby of St. Louis—St. Charles ch 3; Bon Homme ch 2 90; Bethel German ch, Ladies' Sewing Society 5	10 90
Pby of Palmyra—Palmyra ch 5; Ashley ch 5	10 00
Pby of Ebenezer—Ashland 1st ch	7 05
MISCELLANEOUS.
"A Friend," per Wm Rankin, Jr. 1; Mary and Lizzie Hughes 2; three friends of the cause of Christ, Coleraine Forge 15; Rev D X Junkin, Newport, R. I. 2 80; "Amicus" 10; C C Riggs, Charon, Pa. 3; "Wyndcliff" 5; Martin Dunlap, Lake, N. Y. 1; Rev M W Jacobus, D D, Alleghany, for distribution among the soldiers 30; "John" 200; Rev J Hall, Mrs Jane Hall, Miss Nancy Henderson, each 3=9	279 80
	1640 77

Donations received for the Distribution Fund of the Presbyterian Board of Publication during the month of January, 1862.

Pby of Hudson—Goshen ch, from "Amicus," per Rev S C Hepburn	10 00
MISCELLANEOUS.
"G W F" 24 69; J S Heacock, for the Soldier's Library 15; R M Hockenbury, for books for soldiers 10; "Mrs S," 2d ch, per Dr Engles 1; W M Beetem, Carlisle, Pa. 10 50; Rev H G Finney, Gettysburg, Pa. 5; Wm Beard, Frankville, Iowa 2; Mrs Thomas Pomeroy 1, for tracts for soldiers	69 19
Total,	1719 96
Amount of Sales during the month of January	3093 82
Total,	$4,813 78

JAMES DUNLAP, Treasurer.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. H. I. Coe.
Treasurer—Archibald Gamble, Esq.
No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Missouri.

Communications on the subject of Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Donations should be sent to Archibald Gamble, Esq., St. Louis, Mo.; or, if more convenient, to J. D. Thorpe, Esq., Cincinnati, Ohio; A. Davidson, Esq., Louisville, Ky; S. D. Powel, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Domestic Missions, No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia; T. H. Nevin, Esq., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. J. B. Kirtland, Memphis, Tennessee; or to William Rankin, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Foreign Missions, 23 Centre St., New York.

CLOSE OF THE FISCAL YEAR.

The fiscal year of the Board of Church Extension closes the first of April. Thus far, the Board, and the feeble churches it was created to aid, have shared fully in the disasters of the country. The condition of affairs, however, has not been so desperate as some seem to have supposed. Not a few appear to have been labouring under the strange impression that the Board has been in a state of entire suspension, and that it was not giving any aid to our houseless churches. So far is this from being the case, that the Board has aided during the last ten months fifty-one churches, or within one of the number aided during the same period of last year. It is true that the receipts, as compared with the corresponding ten months of the previous year, have fallen off about one-half; but until the first of February the applications had diminished in nearly the same proportion. Until recently, therefore, the Board has been able (chiefly through the munificence of a few individuals) to give some aid in nearly every case of immediate and pressing necessity. It has indeed seldom been able to give all it desired to grant, or that applicants thought they ought to have; yet in nearly every case the appropriation tendered has saved the church from destruction, and will free it from debt. We feel, therefore, that we have great reason to be thankful to God, and to take courage anew in the Church Extension enterprise.

We ought not, however, to disguise the fact, that within a few days the aspect of affairs has materially changed. Our reported receipts for January, 1862, are but $330.98—a sum incomparably smaller than the receipts of any previous January. Moreover, while the last dollars in the treasury are being appropriated, the stream of applications is rolling with enlarged volume towards the vacuum. Within three days no less than six applications, calling for $1500, have been received. To-day there are on file sixty requests for aid, desiring in the aggregate over $20,000. A few of these may never be pressed. Some of them can be held in abeyance until the close of the war; but very many will probably have to be granted or declined in a short time. In the present state of the country, the Board cannot anticipate its income, or promise money until it is in the treasury. Those, therefore, who sympathize with our destitute churches, will see the necessity for prompt and generous contributions if our feeble bands are to be saved from dispersion. Shall the pittance that will shelter our perishing flocks be withheld?

FORTIFIED POSTS.

In the lurid light of civil war our nation is learning the value of many things it has overlooked or underrated in the past. Among other things appreciated now, as they never were before, are our fortified posts. The granite walls and strong casemates of our great fortresses, often declaimed against heretofore as wasteful follies, are now seen to be worth many times their cost. Even the earthen bulwarks and temporary entrenchments that girdle our armies and protect our cities are highly regarded. Does this suggest no lesson to the church of God? Her armed bands, gathered in church organizations, are in an enemy's country. They are striving to bring back to their allegiance the revolted subjects of the gracious King. Around them are mighty and malignant foes. Among them are lukewarm friends, and, it may be, subtle traitors. Without the protecting influences of the sanctuary they are but companies encamped on the open field, exposed to sudden assaults and easy dispersion. Shall they be left thus imperilled at a time when iniquity abounds, and the love of many waxes cold. Above all, shall no external protection be afforded them against the flood of sin that is likely to roll over the land from fields red with slaughter, and camps schooled in vice. Even though the present conflict eventuate in accordance with the highest hopes of the patriot and the Christian; even though good-will and permanent union succeed to strife and separation; even though the Spirit of the Lord work mightily in the armies that cover the land, incalculable evils must stalk in the train of war. No human intellect can fathom the wave which a million of men may roll home from the field, the fleet, the camp, and the hospital. How shall our unsheltered churches, now barely able to resist the ordinary currents of evil, withstand unprotected the mighty tide that may soon lift its crest against them. Shall not the church speedily fortify the posts she has taken, and everywhere gather even her advance guards and forlorn hopes within the protecting walls of the sanctuary.

CHURCH VENTILATION.

While comparatively few church edifices can be built now, there are many sanctuaries erected heretofore whose imperfect ventilation greatly hinders the reception of the truth. Not a few preachers and hearers are weighed down by a drowsiness as painful as it is mysterious. If they will look to the ventilation of their churches, and adopt the suggestions of the subjoined article, they will find a marked improvement.

Messrs. Editors—Two weeks ago the Presbyterian gave us the following good advice:—"Fix your windows so that the upper sash can be let down—and keep them down always when service is held in your church. Your church would even be sweeter and more healthful, if it could be ventilated during the course of the week."

In cities this is attended to, and where people are convinced of its value. But many churches in the country have the upper sash fixed—nor will the trustees make it moveable, unless first convinced that there would be an advantage in it.

Our church was built during the war of 1812–14, and, of course, before ventilation was imported; and for about forty years we endured all the evils of bad and unvital air—never, in all our naps, dreaming that there was any help for it. We then fixed the windows to let down from the top. But two evils will be found everywhere to attend this:—1. Unless the summer day is very calm and warm, those near the windows complain of cold air coming down on them. In winter, when often a church becomes oppressive, drawn windows are out of the question. 2. Should it blow up cool, as the pews in usual church structures are against the wall, you cannot get to the windows to make a change, without noise and confusion.

How do we manage?

1. As your correspondent advises, we keep the upper sash drawn during service in the summer.

2. The trap door into the attic is fixed so as to turn on central pivots; and by means of a cord within reach from the gallery floor, is easily moved.

Advantages found by several years' trial:

1. It works without noise, and can be adjusted during service.

2. Any one at hand can attend to it.

3. Closed at the beginning of winter service, it can be opened when the house becomes warm:—Always open in summer.

4. It lets off the bad air, but sends no cold draft on you.

5. Left open after church, it ventilates during the whole week.

6. It took a carpenter only half an hour to fix it.

We have the like arrangement in our lecture-room. A.

Donations received by the Board of Church Extension, during the month of January, 1862.

Pby of Zanesville—Salt Creek ch	3 00
Pby of Logansport—Rossville ch	1 00
Pby of Schuyler—Hopewell ch	2 00
Pby of Rock River—Malden ch	3 00
Pby of Chicago—Marengo ch	5 00
Pby of St. Paul—Andrew ch at St Anthony	5 00
Pby of Dubuque—Bellevue ch 8; Hopkinton ch 4 15; Andrew ch 3	15 15
Pby of Fairfield—Fairfield ch	6 00
Pby of Ebenezer—Ashland ch	7 05
Pby of New Brunswick—Ewing ch, per S D Powel	5 00
Pby of West Jersey—Bridgeton 2d ch, do	12 00
Pby of Luzerne—Nanticoke ch 3; Wilkesbarre ch 50; Hazleton ch 17 47; Newton ch 2	72 47
Pby of Baltimore—Govane chapel 5; Baltimore 12th ch 8	13 00
Pby of Washington—Wheeling 4th ch	26 00
Pby of Crawfordsville—Waveland ch	8 66
Pby of Dane—Rockville ch	75
Pby of Cedar—Muscatine German ch	3 00
Pby of Bedford—Red Mills ch, per Rankin	5 00
Pby of New York 2d—Sing Sing ch, per do.	35 00
Pby of Susquehanna—Wyalusing ch	3 06
Pby of Lake—Constantine ch	8 00
Pby of Clarion—Elkton ch 2; Union ch 7; Brady's Bend ch 4 (per Nevin)	13 00
Pby of Saltsburg—Leechburg ch (per do.)	9 42
Pby of Allegheny City—German ch Rochester (per do.)	1 42
MISCELLANEOUS.
Legacy in part of Robert Patterson, late of Burghettstown, Pa. 40; Rev E L Belden, Muscatine, Iowa 5 50; Sab sch of Muscatine 1st ch, Iowa 4 50	50 00
Total General Fund,	$312 98
For Children's Church.
Pby of Albany—Children of Bethlehem ch (per Rankin)	3 00
Pby of Saltsburg—Sab sch of Indiana ch	15 00
Total Children's Church,	18 00
Total Receipts in January,	$330 98

ARCHIBALD GAMBLE, Treasurer.

Erratum.—In the last Record, a contribution of four dollars credited to Fort Wayne church, Indiana, should have been credited to Elhanan church, Fort Wayne Presbytery.

Ecclesiastical Record.

CALLS.

Mr. D. K. Freeman has received a call to the church of Harmony, N. J.

The Rev. George C. Bush has accepted a call to the church at Hackettstown, N. J.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

Mr. John Burrows was ordained and installed pastor of the Second church, Amwell, by the Presbytery of Raritan, on the 26th of November.

The Rev. D. W. Fisher was installed as junior pastor of the First church of Wheeling, on the 5th of January.

The Rev. Dr. Jacobus was installed pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, Pittsburgh, on the 14th of January.

Mr. D. B. Hervey was ordained and installed pastor of the Presbyterian church, Mount Vernon, Ohio, by the Presbytery of Richland, on the 16th of January.

Rev. J. H. Towne, D. D., was installed pastor of the First church, Milwaukie, on the 4th of January.

Mr. John L. Swain was ordained as an evangelist, by the Presbytery of Susquehanna, on the 28th of January.

PASTORAL RELATION DISSOLVED.

The pastoral relation between the Rev. Rufus Taylor and the church at Hightstown, N. J., has been dissolved.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESSES CHANGED.

Rev. D. M. Williamson from Logansport, Ind., to Kewanna, Ind.

Rev. George Bush from Stewartstown to Hackettstown, N. J.

Rev. W. W. Campbell from Fairmount, Va., to Uniontown, Pa.

Rev. C. K. Thompson from Thorntown to Lebanon, Ind.

Rev. J. M. Jones from Walcott, Iowa, to Dayton, Pa.

Rev. F. A. Shearer from Princeton to Washington, Iowa.

DEATHS.

The Rev. F. K. Nash at his residence in Robeson county, N. C., on the 31st of December, 1861.

The Rev. J. B. Ripley, pastor of the Mariners' church, Philadelphia, on the 7th of February, of pulmonary consumption, in the 38th year of his age.

FUND FOR DISABLED MINISTERS, AND THE NEEDY WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

The following amounts have been received since the last report, viz.

From	Cool Spring church,	Erie Presbytery,	3 00
"	Meadville church,	do. do.	10 00
"	West Kishacoquillas ch,	Huntingdon do.	15 00
"	Crab Apple church,	St. Clairsville do.	18 50
"	Bath church,	Genesee River do.	13 20
"	Tuscarora ch,	do. do.	3 00
"	Antrim church,	Londonderry do.	7 00
"	Rural Valley church,	Saltsburgh do.	10 00
"	Concord church,	do. do.	5 00
"	Sag Harbour 1st ch,	Long Island do.	24 50
"	Eckley church,	Luzerne do.	3 00
"	Wilkesbarre ch,	do. do.	50 00
"	Buffalo church,	Zanesville do.	6 00
"	Summit church,	Cedar do.	4 00
"	Long Grove ch,	do. do.	1 00
"	Carlisle church,	N. Y., Albany do.	3 00
"	Granville German ch,	Milwaukie do.	5 70
"	Camden 2d church,	Burlington do.	18 00
"	Union church,	Muncie do.	4 00
"	Rehoboth church,	New Lisbon do.	3 84
"	Newton church	do. do.	2 16
"	Stevensville church,	Susquehanna do.	3 00
"	Wyalusing church,	do. do.	3 00
"	Fort Wayne church,	Fort Wayne do.	30 00
"	Westminster ch,	Philadelphia do.	15 30
"	1st African ch,	do. do.	6 62
"	Bound Brook ch,	New Brunswick do.	83 00
"	Lexington church,	Madison do.	5 00
"	Bondout church,	North River do.	20 00
"	7th st, Washington City ch,	Potomac do.	5 00
"	Charleston ch,	New Albany do.	7 00
"	Manchester ch,	Allegheny City do.	10 00
"	South Salem ch,	Bedford do.	42 00
"	Lamington ch,	Elizabethtown do.	12 00
"	Towanda church,	Bloomington do.	2 00
"	Bellevue church,	Dubuque do.	8 20
"	Burghettstown ch,	Washington do.	13 15
"	Lower Ten Mile ch,	do. do.	5 00
"	Lawrenceville church,	Ohio do.	27 50
"	New Salem church,	Allegheny do.	3 00
"	Scrub Grass church,	do. do.	4 00
"	Johnstown church,	Blairsville do.	35 00
"	Annapolis church,	Steubenville do.	4 00
From	Rossville church,	Logansport Presbytery,	2 00
"	Lexington church,	do. do.	5 00
"	Middle Spring church,	Carlisle do.	46 75
"	Bridgeton 1st ch,	West Jersey do.	100 00
"	Winona church,	Chippewa do.	3 00
"	Kensington ch,	Philadelphia Central do.	25 00
"	Spring Garden ch,	do. do.	51 79
"	Williamsport ch, (add'l)	Mrs. E. V. Bennet,	5 00
"	Providence church,	St. Louis Presbytery,	2 85
"	Second church,	do. do.	87 10
"	Tenth Presbyterian ch, in part of 450	Philadelphia Presbytery,	250 19
"	H. K. Corning,	of New York,	100 00
"	"L. I.,"	of do.	500 00
"	A Lady,	of Philadelphia,	90 00
"	A Lady of West Arch st ch,	Philad'a,	10 00
"	"M. H. A.,"	of Brooklyn, N. Y.,	2 00
"	A Stranger,	Lawrenceville, N. J.,	10 00
"	"G. W. F.,"	of St. Paul, Minnesota,	24 69
"	A Lady,	of Newport, R. I.,	10 00
"	A Friend,	Harrisburg, quarterly sub'n,	10 00
"	A Friend,	Harrisburg, Pa.,	5 00
"	Pontiac Sunday-school,		2 50
"	M. M. Hammill,	of Lawrenceville, N, J.,	20 00
"	Miss Booth,	of New Castle, Del.,	5 00
"	A Lady of 2d Presb'n ch,	Philadelphia,	5 50
"	Miss Martha Patton,	of Chambersburg,	10 00
"	A member of Ontonagon ch,	Lake Superior Presbytery,	2 00
"	Mrs. Page,		1 00
"	"M. E. M.,"		2 00
"	Mrs. Cuyler,	of Philadelphia,	10 35
"	Cranberry 2d ch,	New Brunswick Presb'ry	20 00
"	Trenton 3d ch,	do. do.	22 05
"	Baltimore 1st ch,	Baltimore do.	150 00
"	Olive church,	Zanesville do.	4 25
"	Newton church,	Sidney do.	4 00
"	Wyalusing 2d ch,	Susquehanna do.	3 05
"	Troy church,	do. do.	16 00
"	Rome church,	do. do.	2 00
"	Orwell church,	do. do.	2 00
"	Hazleton church,	Luzerne do.	14 87
"	Newton church,	do. do.	5 00
"	Mrs. Jane Coates,	of Washington church, Northumberland Presbytery,	1 00
"	Rev. J. N. Boyd,	do. do.	75
"	F. T. W.,	Shade Gap,	5 00
"	"John,"		100 00
			$2302 36

GEO. H. VAN GELDER,
Treasurer, Trustees of General Assembly,
Office, No. 320 Walnut Street.

Philadelphia, February 14th, 1862.

FORM OF BEQUEST FOR DISABLED MINISTERS OR FAMILIES OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

I give and bequeath to my executors hereinafter named, ——— dollars, in trust, nevertheless, that they shall, within ——— months after my decease, pay the same to George H. Van Gelder, Treasurer of the Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, or to his successor for the time being in said office, for the use of such disabled ministers, and their families, as the said, The Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, shall or may designate.

NOTA.—This form will do for a pecuniary bequest. If stocks, or land, or other property is given, the phraseology should be modified to suit the case.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST

TO ANY OF THE

BOARDS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The State Laws differ so much that no one form will answer in all the States, but in every case it is essential to give the RIGHT CORPORATE NAME.

The oldest Board was originally called the Board of Missions, but is now incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania under the title of "The Trustees of the Board of Domestic Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

Of the Board of Education the corporate name is, "The Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

The Board of Foreign Missions is incorporated under the laws of New York, under the style of "The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

The Board of Publication is incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania under the style of "The Trustees of the Presbyterian Board of Publication."

The Board of Church Extension of the General Assembly is not incorporated, but the following form of bequest, it is supposed, would be valid.

I bequeath to my executors the sum of ——— dollars, in trust, to pay over the same in ——— after my decease, to the person who, when the same shall be payable, shall act as Treasurer of the Board of Church Extension of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, located in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, to be applied to the uses and purposes of said Board, and under its directions, and the receipt of the said Treasurer shall be a full and legal acquittance of my said executors for the same.

When real estate or other property is given, let it be particularly described.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN REGARD TO COLLECTIONS.

Whereas, Many of our churches do not contribute to our benevolent enterprises, and whereas, it is desirable to test the power of simultaneous effort; and whereas, an emergency has arisen, requiring the coöperation of all our churches to save our Boards from serious embarrassment, therefore,

Resolved, 1. That this Assembly earnestly request all our churches that have no fixed times for the purpose, to take up annual collections as follows, viz.

For the Board of Domestic Missions on the first Sabbath of November.

For the Board of Foreign Missions on the first Sabbath of January.

For the Board of Education on the first Sabbath of March.

For the Colportage Fund of the Board of Publication on the first Sabbath of May.

For the Board of Church Extension on the first Sabbath of July.

For the Disabled Ministers' Fund on the first Sabbath of September.

Resolved, 2. That when the annual collections cannot be taken up on the days above designated, it be recommended to take them up as soon thereafter as possible.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Domestic Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, Publication, and the Board of Church Extension, and is issued monthly in newspaper form, at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at Twenty-five Cents a year; and all churches of less than fifty families at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, "Mr. Peter Walker, 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

POSTAGE, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance at the office of delivery.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburgh.

AN OFFER.—Any missionary, colporteur, or other person, procuring new subscribers to the Record at 50 cents each, shall be entitled to 20 per cent. for each such subscription procured and prepaid.

CONTENTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.—Colorado, p. 33. The State of Things—by a Missionary in Illinois, p. 33. Self denial, p. 34. "He that watereth shall be watered," p. 34. Receipts, p. 34.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—I. Ministerial Education. Are you called to the Ministry? p. 36. Is it the Duty of the Church to educate, at her own cost, every young man whom the Holy Spirit calls to preach the Gospel? p. 37. Death of a Candidate, p. 38. II. Christian Education in Schools, Academies, and Colleges. The Home Mother, p. 38. Education, p. 38. Receipts, p. 38.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Recent Intelligence, p. 39. Omaha Mission: Annual Report of the Superintendent, p. 39. Africa: Corisco Mission, Annual Report of the Rev. C. L. Loomis, M. D., p. 40. Canton: Canton Mission, Annual Report, p. 42. Mission of the Chinese in California, p. 42. Miscellany, p. 43. Receipts, p. 44.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.—Our Soldiers and Sailors and the Board of Publication, p. 45. Seed not sown in vain, p. 45. A Word from Missouri, p. 45. New Sabbath-school Books, p. 46. Receipts, p. 46.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.—Close of the Fiscal Year, p. 47. Fortified Posts, p. 47. Church Ventilation, p. 47. Receipts, p. 47.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Ecclesiastical Record, p. 48.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME XIII. No. 4. | PHILADELPHIA, APRIL, 1862. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

MISSION ROOMS,

No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. T. L. JANEWAY, D. D.

Treasurer—SAMUEL D. POWEL.

LETTERS relating to Missionary Appointments and other operations of the Board, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 910 Arch street, Philadelphia.

CONTRIBUTIONS should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:

ANDREW DAVIDSON, Louisville, Ky.

WILLIAM RANKIN, JR., Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

MISSION ROOMS, March 1, 1862.

The Board of Domestic Missions, through Divine mercy bestowed upon the church, are permitted to announce, that their condition being so far improved, and their burdens so far removed, they wish to return to their former mode of commissioning for an entire year, and not for part of the year, thus requiring renewals. Necessity and a dark future compelled their late cautious steps. Presbyteries therefore applying, will inform the Board when a less period than twelve months is intended. Our trust is, that the future contributions of the churches will enable us to move with punctual regularity, and meet all claims when presented.

In making this announcement we would urge upon churches who have not yet contributed, and whose collections fall in the spring of the year, the absolute need of vigilant attention, to transmit such contributions. That we might pay all labour reported to March 1st, we have exhausted the treasury, and close the fiscal year with only fourteen dollars balance.

At the close of the year the missionaries in Missouri, who were commissioned, and have been mainly paid from the Western Executive Committee's Fund at Louisville, were thrown upon our hands, from the inability of that Committee to aid them. We promptly met their demands, and paid the amount due them. And still further, at the end of February, the above Committee requested us to pay the missionaries in Kentucky, because their collections were so light they were unable to meet these claims; and almost one thousand dollars were transmitted, as we were closing our accounts. This office has almost entirely carried on the whole field, and borne the entire burden. We call it a burden in no offensive sense; we feel thankful that we were able to meet these demands, and relieve men in regions swept by civil war.

It is obvious, therefore, that if we hope to pay punctually the missionaries in this wide field, we must be supplied with funds. The fact that our collections are heavier in the last half of our fiscal year, renders the earlier moiety more difficult to manage. If the churches who ordinarily contribute in the first six months will urge the claims of the missionaries, we may hope to gladden their hearts by prompt remittances, and relieve the office of much anxiety.

The times are brightening. The currency of the country is improving; and we are hopeful for our land. The rural districts were never so easy in their material interests as now; and we trust they will honour the Lord with their substance, and with the first-fruits of all their increase. By the good blessing of our God, the next six months will place the Board in a position wherein she can devise more liberal things, and gird her loins for mightier labours.

MANIFOLD RESULTS.

Illinois, January 29, 1862.

Dear Brother—This week terminates four years of service in this field, under commission from the Board. In this time, one hundred and ten communicants have been received—thirty-five on examination, and seventy-five on certificate. There were fifty-six names on the roll in January, 1858; now there are about one hundred and twelve, perhaps a few more. I have not counted since April last. This comparison shows about as many dismissed and deceased, as were enrolled at the beginning of the term. One only has died—a lovely young disciple. There have been fifty-six children and four adults baptized.

The contributions to benevolent purposes have amounted to $1129.47, viz. To Foreign Missions, $289.34; Domestic Missions, $257.10; Church Extension, $138.09, &c. There has been a gain every year in this; the greatest, in the last; and yet I am persuaded we have lost in worldly substance, rather than increased, since the spring of 1858; both in consequence of the removal of valuable families, and of the pressure of the hard times upon those who remain, especially since the war commenced.

Notwithstanding the disastrous effects of the war—as great here as anywhere, save in the border States, in those localities where the armies are collected—we have forwarded in 1861, to Foreign Missions, $155.96; to Domestic Missions, $162, (two contributions;) to Church Extension, $40, &c.—making an aggregate of $450.75, as shown in the detailed report of the session, before the congregation, at their annual meeting, the first Monday of this year. Of this sum, the little Sabbath-school, made up nearly altogether of pupils and teachers from families in humble circumstances, gave $66.30, in addition to $12.04 forwarded in 1861, but collected in the last quarter of 1860. One class contributed $26.19; and yet but one connected with it gave ten cents every Sabbath. Now when I remember that our feeble flock were really greatly straitened to meet the domestic expenses of the congregation, I am amazed at this result.

At the end of every year a deficit in the revenue has been discovered, notwithstanding the aid from the Board. At the late annual meeting to close up for 1861, though the price of the majority of slips had been raised to thirty dollars each, and the rest in proportion; and though all available slips were let and occupied at these enhanced rates—higher than those of any church in town, and a great deal higher than usual among Old-school churches in this region—and though such was the scarcity of seats, that one brother, who paid the price of two (sixty dollars,) could not get one for his family to occupy—there was found to be a deficit of two hundred and forty-six dollars in actual receipts.

You may wonder how we come short, with seats so high, and all available ones rented. Well, I will tell you. First, I find that all our seats, rented and paid for, at present high rates, with from $70 to $80 realized from Sabbath collections, will not meet our current expenses, viz.—salary $900, lot rent $40, and about $120 for sexton, gas, fuel, cleaning, repairs, &c. Secondly, there is always a very considerable amount of pew-rent uncollectable: last year more than ever before—perhaps from $200 to $250.

In addition to the payment of current expenses from year to year, we have collected the money by special subscriptions, and paid off old debts amounting to over $700—contracted (how, I cannot imagine) before I came to this field; and in six weeks time we have bought, and paid for, the most eligible lot for our church in the city, at a cost of about $1648. Remember, our present tenement is an old, long, low thing, sixty-two by thirty-one, about eleven or twelve feet ceiling, and would probably not command $100 at a sale; it stands on a leased lot, the lease running one year yet.

So much for the past. Now, a word as to the future. It is gloomy enough in some views. We dare not try to build, unless generous friends elsewhere will furnish us five thousand dollars. I am not blinded by partiality, when I affirm that such a lift would be worthily bestowed, and the money well invested. And yet I am satisfied we can never meet our annual expenses by pew-rents and collections, until we have a new house, corresponding with others here. Yet I am determined, at present at least, not to ask our ruling elders to request the Board to renew their commission, even at a reduced rate. So far then as I can now see, I must make my calculations to leave the field, for some one who can cultivate it at less expense, if such can be found. It would be a pity to have it left unprovided for; for I must say I know of no church in the whole West that deserves so much at the hands of the church at large. I would be willing to challenge the Northwest, yes, and any other section, to show another church, which, in equally trying circumstances, has given $450 to benevolent objects in 1861, and $1129 in four years; and whose members generally have at the same time done so much, in proportion to their means, for home purposes.

In taking leave of the Board, at least for the present, allow me to thank them for the important assistance given this church; and the executive officers for the uniformly courteous manner in which they have treated me in my correspondence and business with the office. Not an unkind word has passed between me and either the officers at Louisville or Philadelphia.

May God carry the Board, and the feeble churches, both those who cut loose—some of them, perhaps, too soon—and those which remain under the fostering care of the Board, through this period of darkness!

Very truly yours.

SOWING IN HOPE.

Wisconsin.

Dear Brother—For the last month or more the truth has seemed to fasten the attention of my hearers more than usual, and we have had indications of the Holy Spirit's presence which are truly encouraging. But none were led to take any decisive step in coming to Christ.

I looked forward to the blessed week of prayer with pleasing anticipation, and when it arrived appointed services for prayer and exhortation on each evening during the week. I have but one male member here a helper, and very weak at that, so that the burden of duty fell upon myself, and as the people came out, I preached as well as prayed with them every evening; and oh what precious evidence there was that Jesus was among us. The thought of multitudes of dear brethren sending up the incense of prayer with us, was in itself inspiring, and we found the sweet promise verified, "While they are yet speaking, I will answer." The attention was deep and solemn, and some few were brought under strong conviction of sin, while those heard the word who had not before for years.

I notice a peculiarity in the Lord's work here which is worthy of notice. Those who have been awakened are wives of Universalists. One, as mentioned in a former report, united with us amid the opposition of friends, and the work of grace was very striking. Now two others have come to my knowledge, women of excellent character and standing, in whose cases we feel a peculiar interest; for in taking a position upon the Lord's side they will exert a powerful influence. Others appeared wrought upon, but of them I cannot positively speak.

I bless the Lord daily that I was led to resist flattering inducements in the East, to engage in this needy and oft discouraging Western field, and I begin to see the strong reasons why I should come.

What would one of our dear Eastern brethren think of being obliged to do all studying, and write all sermons, in the room where my dear wife attends to all household duties, while the three children romp and play about her? I thank the Lord that he enables me to learn the rule of abstraction; and we missionaries, who must be hewers of wood and drawers of water as well as preachers of the gospel, are obliged to learn many things of which we never before dreamed. But all this is nothing if our backs are fitted for their burden, and we have evidence of being in the way of duty. This the Lord gives.

Your draft came to hand, and, though late, it was most welcome and timely. Once last fall I pledged my credit upon the strength of the Board's anticipated supply. As the time drew nigh I learned that I was to be disappointed, and laying the case before the Lord, I asked him to save my credit for his cause's sake. Now mark the providence. A friend in the East who owed me, sent, at the right hour, just enough to pay my debt, but in his doubt as to the amount, he had overpaid me ten dollars, saying that if he was in error I must keep it for a future settlement. So the Lord enabled me to wait, without inconvenience, upon the Board, and showed his own sweet care of our smallest necessities.

"His loving-kindness, Oh how great!"

Yours in the gospel, J. F.

A RETIRING VETERAN.

In 1836, this aged servant, as he is, went to the then unoccupied regions on the western bank of the Mississippi, and was the first of our order in that field. The destitution which he met on every side prompted him to assume the labour to which his life was given, and ever since, passing with his faithful companion from year to year to the new and uncultivated fields, until he reached the Missouri river on the west, and thus along a line, from river to river, three hundred miles, this true and scriptural bishop collected and organized thirty churches, three Presbyteries, and one Synod. In these churches are fifteen ministers, and his comfort is, that wherever the gospel ministry goes, God will have a people for his name, to the glory of his rich grace.

Six months since he requested to be relieved, because of increasing infirmities and advanced age, not, however, till the venerable Elijah had found and commended to the Board an Elisha to tread in his steps, and, we pray, to wear his mantle; and now, in the mellow close of his evening hours, he dwells in a region to which he has been an instrument of such blessing, waiting until he is summoned to his reward. But, though rich in faith, he is poor in earthly resources. He has been too busy in his Master's work to accumulate for the winter of his life, and he modestly says, that if we can furnish him and his venerable companion, now seventy-three years of age, with clothing, it will be thankfully received. It is here, and in such cases, that we feel the need of large supplies in the Fund for Disabled Ministers, whereby the church might place such on her retired list, and soothe the decline of a life employed for Christ.

Had Christ's great idea been realized, the world would have exhibited the glorious spectacle of a whole race in family compact; clothed in a robe of happiness, with charity for a girdle, feasting at a perpetual banquet of beneficence; hailing the accession of every new-born member as the advent of an angel, an addition to their common fund of enjoyments; and finding greater blessedness than that of passively receiving happiness, in exercising the godlike prerogative of imparting it—a whole order of intelligent beings, having one heart and one mind—a heart beating in concert with heaven, and diffusing, with every pulse, life, and health, and joy to the remotest members of the body.—Harris.

SHE HATH DONE WHAT SHE COULD.

In reading the very interesting appeal in the Home and Foreign Record for January, 1862, I thought, what more can I give? And remembering some jewelry, lying by for years, I sold it for old gold, and send you the enclosed for the home missionaries.

I mention the fact, that you may publish it, if you please; for, no doubt, many Christians have useless things put away, which might be made available for the treasury of our blessed Lord, if the idea was suggested to them. New York.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Receipts into the Treasury at Philadelphia during the month of February, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Albany—Saratoga Springs ch add'l 5; Ballston Centre ch 3 18; Broadalbin ch 8; Carlisle ch 5; Tribes Hill ch, a balance, 25 cts; Albany 3d ch 86 69	108 10
Pby of Mohawk—Oswego 1st ch 156 81; Westminster ch Utica 100; Oneida Valley ch 10; Oneida ch 17	283 81

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Ogdensburg—Oswegatchie 1st ch	57 00
Pby of Genesee River—Wyoming ch 33 58 (of which 5 the pastor's offering) less 3 10 for Record and 17 cts exch—30 31; Warsaw ch 15, less 2 for Record—13; Bath 1st ch 15, of which 5 from the Ladies' Miss Soc	58 31
Pby of Rochester City—East Bethany ch 7 25; Phelps ch 66	73 25

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Hudson—Middletown 2d ch 54 20; Bloomingburgh ch 3 30	57 50
Pby of North River—Matteawan ch 250; New Hamburg ch 15	265 00
Pby of Bedford—North Salem ch 28; White Plains ch 16; Bedford ch, Ladies' Missionary Association 60; South Salem ch, Ladies Missionary Association 31	135 00
Pby of Long Island—Sab sch of East Hampton ch 20; West Hampton ch 6 50 add'l; Speonk ch 3 50; Smithtown ch 8 50, of which E J Mundy 3; Southampton ch 10; Huntington ch 112 45	160 95
Pby of New York—Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch N. Y., add'l 2000, and from the Mission Chapel 4 50—2004 50; First ch N. Y., add'l 21; Madison Avenue ch N. Y. 138; Brick ch, add'l, N. Y. 250; Jersey City 1st ch 242 82	2656 32
Pby of New York 2d—Mount Washington ch	44 78
Pby of Connecticut—South East ch (of which Mrs Buell 3 66)	11 00
Pby of Nassau—Lawrence street ch Brooklyn 10; Williamsburg ch 76 01, of which J B 4	86 01

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Elizabethtown—Rahway First ch 50; Elizabethport ch 10 55 — 60 55
Pby of Passaic—Chester ch 23; Elizabeth 2d ch 236 23; Flanders 1st ch 23; Connecticut Farms ch 30; Third ch Newark, a member 1 50 — 313 73
Pby of New Brunswick—Hightstown ch 25, of which 5 from the Rev R Taylor; Trenton 3d ch 69 61; Kingston ch, from Mapleton Sab sch 4 40; Sab sch of Princeton ch 9 10; Cranberry 2d ch add'l 10; Witherspoon street ch Princeton, from a member 2; Cranberry First ch 63 43 — 183 54
Pby of West Jersey—Brick ch Cedarville, add'l 16; Cape Island ch add'l 1 — 17 00
Pby of Newton—Lower Mount Bethel ch 13; Harmony ch 39 50; Newton ch Sab sch 25 — 77 50
Pby of Raritan—Amwell 1st ch 16 25; Clinton ch 70; Flemington ch add'l 20 75; Clinton ch Ladies' Sewing Society 5 50, Mrs J E 1 50, F S A 4—11 — 118 00
Pby of Susquehanna—Troy ch 14; Rome ch 1 50; Monroeton ch 5; Wysalusing ch 5; Wysox ch 5 — 30 50
Pby of Luzerne—Harvey's Lake ch 5; Nanticoke ch 5; Hazleton ch add'l 7; White Haven and Eckley chs 2 50; Tunkhannock ch 10 50; Plymouth ch Sab sch 2 93; German ch Scranton 4 — 36 93
Pby of Burlington—Columbus ch — 15 00
Pby of Monmouth—Freehold Village ch 15; Millstone ch 6 — 21 00

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia—Chester ch Sab sch 11; A lady of the 9th ch Philadelphia 10; South ch add'l 5 75; Fifteenth ch 9 32; West Spruce street ch, from a lady 3 — 39 07
Pby of Philadelphia Central—North ch add'l, mo con colls in part 21 23; Central ch add'l, from Mrs W 1; Second ch, a lady 1 60; West Arch street ch add'l, from J D Reinboth 25 — 48 83
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Norristown 1st ch Sab sch 5; Newtown ch add'l 11; Neshaminy ch 79 45; Durham ch 8 31 — 103 76
Pby of New Castle—Lower Brandywine ch 10; Greenhill ch 18 30; Oxford ch 115 05 — 143 35
Pby of Donegal—New Harmony ch 4; Cedar Grove ch 18 75 — 22 75
Pby of Huntingdon—Pine Grove Mills ch 21 82; Bald Eagle ch add'l 6 18; Rev S M Moore 2; Cottage ch 12; Mifflintown and Lost Creek chs 85; Lower Tuscarora ch 163; Milroy ch 81 50; Morris and Moshannon chs 2; Shade Gap ch 24 50; Upper Tuscarora ch 6 50; one-half of a Presbyterial collection 11 59 — 416 09
Pby of Northumberland—Elysburg ch 5; Holland Run ch 5; Sab sch of Williamsport ch 15; Washington ch, from Mrs Jane Coates 2, Mrs Hannah McCormick 25 cts—2 25 — 27 25

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore—Westminster ch Baltimore, add'l 100; 12th ch Baltimore 28 10 — 128 10
Pby of Carlisle—Chambersburg ch 203; Big Spring ch 109; Silvers' Spring ch 33 15; Paxton ch 50; Shippensburg ch 92 50; Lower Path Valley ch 1 50; Bloomfield ch 18; Cumberland ch, from J B H Campbell 5 — 512 15
Pby of Lewes—Rehoboth ch — 7 00

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Redstone—Laurel Hill ch 30, of which 11 06 from the Female Missionary Society; Connellsville ch 69 10 — 99 10
Pby of Ohio—Racoon ch 1 25; Hopewell ch 7 68 — 8 93
Pby of Clarion—New Rehoboth ch 8 75, of which 1 from "A G," Brookville ch 12 24 — 20 99
Pby of Saltsburg—Mahoning ch — 2 60

SYNOD OF ALLEGHENY.

Pby of Beaver—Slippery Rock ch add'l 5 50; North Sewickley ch add'l 1 56; Mt Pleasant ch 7 — 14 06
Pby of Erie—Meadville ch 55; Georgetown ch 15 — 70 00
Pby of Allegheny City—Sewickley ch 68 96, of which 3 56 from Shields Sab sch; Pine Creek ch 5; Beaver ch 12 15; Bridgewater German ch 33 cts; Freedom ch 3 46 — 89 90

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington—Fairview ch 16; Upper Buffalo ch 8 35; Allen Grove ch 6; Wolf Run ch 5; Ten-mile ch 15; Wheeling First ch 106 06 — 156 41
Pby of New Lisbon—Bethesda ch — 6 09
Pby of St. Clairsville—Birmingham ch — 6 00

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Columbus—Westminster ch Columbus — 15 00
Pby of Marion—Little Mill Creek ch 2 13; Broken Sword, Nevada, and Osceola chs 9 — 11 13
Pby of Zanesville—Duncan's Falls ch 5; Salt Creek ch 5 — 10 00
Pby of Richland—Bladensburg ch 10; Perrysville ch 7 50; Clearfork ch 1; Haysville ch 20 37; Ontaria ch 5; Belville ch 4; Milford ch 9; Shelby ch 7 — 63 87
Pby of Wooster—French ch Mount Eaton 12 58; Canal Fulton ch 10; Chippewa ch 9; Marshallville ch 3 — 34 58
Pby of Hocking—Athens ch — 40 00

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.

Pby of Michigan—Oakland ch — 10 00
Pby of Maumee—Eagle Creek ch 4; West Bethesda ch 3; Gilead ch 11 05 — 18 05
Pby of Findlay—Van Wert and Shanesville chs 11; Rev Thomas Elcock 12 — 23 00

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Chillicothe—Bloomingburg ch 12 78; Rocky Spring ch 9; Union ch 8; Red Oak ch 4 60; Rev J A I Lowes and family 2 — 36 38
Pby of Miami—Middletown ch 33, of which Sab sch 21; Washington ch 6; Dayton 1st ch 46; Sinking Creek ch 10 — 95 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Reading ch 18; Lebanon ch 27 25; Cincinnati 7th ch 110 — 155 25
Pby of Oxford—Venice ch 24 30; Beaula ch 5; Hamilton ch 15 39 — 44 69

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany—1st ch New Albany — 25 00
Pby of Indianapolis—Knightstown ch 10; New Prospect ch 2 15; Hopewell ch 27 35; Shelbyville ch 10; Bethany ch 12 — 61 50
Pby of White Water—Pleasant Grove ch — 7 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Logansport—Rossville ch 1; Delphi ch 16, less exch 16 cents—15 84; Logansport First ch 6 — 22 84
Pby of Fort Wayne—Decatur ch 8; Pleasant Hill ch 1; Fort Wayne First ch 16; Wabash ch 1 — 21 00
Pby of Crawfordsville—Crawfordsville ch — 16 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Kaskaskia—Galum ch 2 50; Liberty ch 1 35 — 3 85
Pby of Sangamon—First ch Springfield 25; Third ch Springfield 12 50; First ch Decatur 12 50; Tacusa ch 3 50 — 53 50
Pby of Peoria—Peoria 1st ch 100; Peoria 2d ch 28 90; Elmwood ch 9; Salem ch 5; Brunswick ch 5; Rev J E Marquis 6; Henry ch 20 — 173 90
Pby of Hillsboro'—Mason ch — 7 00
Pby of Bloomington—Bloomington ch 14 78; Galloway ch 4 50, of which 50 cents from Mrs W—n, of Reeder; Heyworth ch 5 15 — 24 43

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.

Pby of Schuyler—One-half Presbyterial collection 15; Aledo ch 7; South Henderson ch 6 06; Ebenezer ch 7; Westminster ch Quincy 10; Macomb ch 21 15 — 66 21
Pby of Rock River—Rock Island 1st ch 15; Rock Run ch 5; South ch Galena 22 10 — 42 10
Pby of Chicago—Aurora First ch — 10 00

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Dane—Oakland and Cambridge chs add'l 3; Monroe ch 60 cts; Richland City ch 4; Richland Centre ch 3; Fancy Creek ch 2; Highland ch 6; Belville ch 2; Oregon ch 4 — 24 60
Pby of Winnebago—Portage ch 17 50; Cambria ch 6 — 23 50

SYNOD OF ST. PAUL.

Pby of St. Paul—Trimbelle ch 5; Prescott ch 3 — 8 00
Pby of Chippewa—Galesville ch — 3 00
Pby of Owatonna—Lake City ch — 24 85

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Cedar—First ch Muscatine, mo con 10; German ch Muscatine 1; Davenport First ch 40 — 51 00
Pby of Dubuque—Canton ch 8, of which 5 from the pastor; Pleasant Grove ch 4 25; Andrew ch 2; Moquoketa ch 3; Lycurgus ch 2; Wayne ch 9 — 28 25

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.

Pby of Iowa—Middletown ch 6; St. Peter ch add'l 4 20; Unity ch 5; Oakland ch 3 55 — 18 75
Pby of Des Moines—Indianapolis ch — 5 00
Pby of Fairfield—Shiloh ch 5; Keosauqua ch 2 10; Fairfield ch 5 — 12 10
Pby of Missouri River—Glenwood ch 4 50; Pacific City ch 8 50; Plattsmouth ch 10; Brownville ch 11 13 — 34 13

SYNOD OF UPPER MISSOURI.

Pby of Highland—Burlingame and Superior chs 3 55; First ch Denver City 17 90; Osawkee ch 2; Lecompton ch 6 — 29 45

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of St. Louis—Bethel German ch 26, of which 5 from the ladies; Bonhomme ch 5 80; St. Charles ch 38 10, of which George C Sibley 5, R A Walton 5, F B Walton 4; Charles Wiggins, St. Louis 50 — 119 90
Pby of Potosi—Brazeau ch — 6 63

From churches, $8,273 65

MISCELLANEOUS.

John 500; A Sojourner, Newark, N. J. 10; "——" 2000; A friend of missions 2; A lady, Mass. 5; Lebanon, Ohio, Rev R I Hall 3, Mrs Jane Hall 3, Miss Nancy Henderson 3; W W Caldwell, Philadelphia 56; A lady, Newport, R. I. 5; F T W, Shade Gap, Pa. 5; Rev S Cowles, West Point, Iowa, 1; J C and J H Emery, Allison, Mich. 5; Mrs Margaret Spring, Gayville, Ill. 8; Two ladies, New York 500; C H S, Bound Brook, N. J. 5; A L F 10; W, Iowa 5; James Boyles, Philadelphia 20; Rev L Westcott 5; "C C B," for missions in Missouri 100; Gen R S Brown, Bethlehem, Pa. 7 50; Rev C M'Cain and wife, Forest City, Mo. 1; Rev W Jeffery, D D 2; A friend, Pittsburg, Pa. 2; J W P, Pittsburg, Pa. 3; W McGookin 1; R Gould, Chicago, Ill. 16; A friend 5; Mountain Female Seminary, Birmingham, Pa. 25; North Congregational ch, Enfield, Conn. 64 22 — 3377 72

LEGACIES.

Legacy of Jas X M'Lanahan, dec'd, late of New York City 400; Legacy, in part, of Rev J W Marquis, dec'd, late of Bellefontaine, Ohio, 50; Bequest of Mrs Mary Kelso, dec'd, late of Cumberland county, Pa. 80; Patterson estate, Pittsburg, Pa. 50 — 580 00

Total at Philadelphia, $12,231 37

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

CLOTHING.

1 Barrel from the First ch, Lansingburgh, N. Y., valued at — 100 00
1 Box from a few Ladies of New Brunswick, N. J., valued at — 110 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Dunlap's Creek and McClellandtown ch, Pa., valued at — 39 93
1 Box from the Ladies of Chambersburg ch, Pa., valued at — 225 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Chatham Village ch, N. J., valued at — 85 56
1 Package from a Lady, valuation not given.
1 Box from the Ladies of 2d ch Rahway, N. J., valued at — 125 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Newburgh 1st ch, N. Y., valued at — 105 00
1 Box from a "friend to domestic missions," valued at — 45 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Chestnut Hill ch, Pa., valued at — 150 00
3 Barrels from the Rev. Dr. Cleveland's ch, New Haven Conn., valued at — 180 00
1 Box from the Ladies of the 2d ch, Philadelphia, Pa., valued at — 175 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Salem ch, Ohio, valued at — 32 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Milroy, Mifflin Co., Pa., valued at — 73 00
1 Box from the Ladies in the Lower end of the Spruce Creek congregation, Pa., valued at — 172 50
1 Box from the Ladies' Benevolent Association of Newton ch, N. J., valued at — 65 00
1 Box from the Ladies of Brooklyn 2d ch, N. Y., valued at — 80 00
1 Bale from the Wilkesbarre ch, Pa., valued at — 94 38
1 Package from the Ladies in Kingston, Pa., valued at — 16 38
3 Boxes from the Ladies of the Seventh ch, Philadelphia, Pa., valued at — 405 00
2 Boxes from the Ladies of West Spruce street ch, Philadelphia, valuation not given.

$2278 75

TREASURY AT LOUISVILLE.

Receipts into the Treasury at Louisville, Ky., during the month of February, 1862.

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Logansport—Monticello ch 4; Centre ch 1 — 5 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Kaskaskia—Pleasant Ridge ch — 4 50

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of Wyaconda—Missionary Box Memphis ch — 3 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Louisville—Cloverport ch 2; 1st ch Louisville, mo mon coll 22 40; Thos Stevens, 4th ch Louisville 10; Owensboro' ch 101 15 — 135 55
Pby of Transylvania—Harrodsburg ch 43; Lebanon ch 5; A Lady in Danville 2 — 50 00
Pby of Ebenezer—1st ch Covington, mo con coll — 8 48

$206 53

LEGACY.

Bequest of Mrs Jane K Linn, late of Covington, Ky. — 25 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

From a young sister — 1 00

Total at Louisville, $232 53

A. DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Officers of the Board.

James N. Dickson, President.
John McDowell, D. D., } Vice-Presidents.
Cyrus Dickson, D. D., }
James Dunlap, Esq., }
William Chester, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
R. Watts, Assistant.
F. D. Ladd, Recording Secretary.
William Main, Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies, and Colleges, may be addressed to Rev. Dr. CHESTER, or Rev. R. WATTS, No. 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of Money may be made to WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer, 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest.

INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY.

The present month closes the fiscal year of the Board of Education. Contributions received within this month will appear in our Annual Report. We would, in the name of our Lord and Master, in the name of those whom he has called as labourers into his vineyard, and in the name of our colleges and seminaries, whose prosperity is so intimately linked with the sustentation of these beloved youth, call upon the brethren who thus far in the present fiscal year, have not taken a collection for this cause, to awake at once to our help. Dear brethren, we must obtain $10,000 in the present month, or fail to meet our engagements made with nearly five hundred young men recommended to us by the Presbyteries of the Presbyterian church. We would remind the Presbyteries and individual sessions of our church, that whilst there is a contract between the Board and their candidates, there is also one, which is not one whit less binding, between the Board and the Presbyteries. When the Board receive a candidate, they do so invariably on the recommendation of a Presbytery, and the Presbytery, in recommending a candidate, do, in that language which speaks louder than words, profess their purpose to do all that in them lies to sustain the Board in their endeavours to redeem their pledge given to the candidate on his reception. In view of this voluntarily assumed obligation, which is additional to that imposed by the General Assembly, we would ask every minister and elder who may have allowed the previous eleven months to pass without affording the church, over whose spiritual interests he has been appointed to watch, an opportunity of contributing to this cause, to seize this last month as the only one within the closing year in which this duty can be performed. You are not held responsible for the amount your people may give, but you are certainly responsible for affording them the opportunity of giving. Your relation to the flock over which the Holy Ghost hath made you an overseer, your relation to your brethren of the Presbytery, who are a party to the contract which pledges a scholarship to every young man recommended by them for aid, your relation to the General Assembly as a Presbyterian, and an office-bearer in the church which that Assembly rules, your relation to the harvest into which the Master has called these young men, are so many points in an argument which, with cumulative and overwhelming power, lays at your door the responsibility of our success or failure in the maintenance of a cause which lies at the foundation of all that our church is doing, or is commissioned to do, for the conversion of the world.

Now as there is not one of these points which a Presbyterian would call in question, it must be manifest that the office-bearer whose action or inaction may be the cause of the non-presentation of this cause in a particular church, ought to be able to assign a very weighty reason for the omission. The reason that should satisfy a servant of Christ when such a cause presses its claims upon his conscience, ought to be of such gravity as to warrant him in risking the dismission of our five hundred candidates, the closing or crippling of all our seminaries, and of many of our academic and collegiate institutions, and the arresting of accessions to our list of candidates for years to come.

We believe that in the entire round of earthly troubles, amid the upheaving of nations and the din of war, it would be hard to find a reason which could reconcile a Christian man to such an alternative, so long as he has a people to hear him in advocacy of the cause. A Christian man may forget the cause, and, forgetting, neglect the presentation of it, but this is a different matter from a studied refusal of its claims. Dear brethren, we do beseech you, as you love the interests of our Zion, avail yourselves of this last opportunity, and help us in this our time of need.

IS IT THE DUTY OF THE CHURCH TO EDUCATE, AT HER OWN COST, EVERY YOUNG MAN WHOM THE HOLY SPIRIT CALLS TO PREACH THE GOSPEL?

If, as has been seen in our last article on this question, it is the duty of the church (embracing her entire membership) to preach the gospel to every creature; and if, as was further seen, it is her duty to do this through the Heaven-ordained agency of men who are called to the office of the ministry by the Holy Ghost, it must be manifest, that the question placed at the head of this article is reduced to very narrow limits. If the positions embraced in this statement are valid, then the question of duty must lie between the entire church and the individuals singled out by the Holy Spirit, and called to the work of the ministry. The duty of preparation is implied in the commission given to the whole church, and no less unquestionably implied in the call to the execution of this commission, given to the individual. As the work of preparation involves not only labour, but cost, the question is, Who is to bear it—the young man, or the church? Against the former conclusion, and in favour of the latter, there are many weighty reasons:

1. The class of men chosen for the work of the ministry, warrants the inference that it is not the will of God that those who are called to serve him in the gospel of his Son, should bear the burthen of the work of preparation. What was true of the membership of the church at Corinth, is true of the ministry. To them, with singular appropriateness, the language of the apostle to that church may be addressed: "Ye see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble are called; but God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; and base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are; that no flesh should glory in his presence." It is just as true of the ministers of Christ as it is of the private members of his church, that it is not the wise, or mighty, or noble, who are called. The venerable Dr. Alexander, whose observation as an instructor of candidates for the ministry, through a long life, must give great weight to his opinion on this subject, in a sermon preached near the close of his life, advanced and sustained the proposition, that the gospel is not only preached to the poor, but by the poor. Indeed, so prominent is this fact in the history of the church, that we are persuaded few will call it in question. From the call of the fishermen of Galilee to this day, the Master has drawn his ambassadors chiefly from the poor. It has been by the poor that his gospel has been preached.

In this feature of his policy, as the Administrator of the economy of redemption, we have a clear intimation of his will, as to whether the cost of preparation should be borne by the church, or by the individual. By this course of procedure in calling his ambassadors, he shuts the church up to the necessity of providing the means requisite to the preparation of those whom he calls, or of refusing to fulfil her great commission. By laying upon his church the obligation to preach the gospel to every creature, by the agency of men called to, and qualified for the work, and then calling those who are not able, through lack of means, to qualify themselves, he places the church under the manifest necessity of supplying the means, or of proving recreant to her trust. When a young man of this class appears before a Presbytery, and the Presbytery, after due examination, are satisfied that Christ has called him to preach the gospel, it is at their peril they refuse to receive him as a candidate. Is there a Presbytery in Christendom that would refuse to receive a candidate, whom they believed to be called, because he was destitute of the means of obtaining an education? Why this were to revolutionize the policy of the Divine administration, and transfer the honours of a place on the embassy of reconciliation from the poor to the rich, and to wrest, so far as man can, the keys of the kingdom from the hands to which Christ has committed them. Such a position could not be taken except on the assumption that wealth is a condition of admission to the ministry. And if this ground is taken, and the divinely ordained rule of vocation, which was established on the shore of Gennesaret, remain unrevoked, then must the great majority of those whom Christ has called to the ministry be excluded from the harvest-field.

2. The readiness of the church to sustain candidates for the ministry is implied in that prayer which, in obedience to the command of her Lord, she is ever presenting before his throne of grace. In beseeching him to send forth labourers into the harvest, she professes her readiness to do all in her power to coöperate with his providence and grace in sending forth those whom he may call. She places no restrictions around his will, either as to number or means. She asks him to send forth labourers, and it were a reflection, both upon her sincerity and her humility, to say that she is not ready to receive, as his ambassadors, all whom he may choose to call, and to provide, as far as in her lies, all the means necessary to their equipment for the field. Would it not be impiety of the deepest dye to reply to the Lord, who, in answer to her supplication, had conferred upon her, as an ambassador, one who was not mighty, or noble, or wise, or wealthy, saying, "Take back thy gift, for he upon whom thy choice is fallen cannot bear the cost of preparation." If the church is now, for the first time in her history, either under the Old Testament or the New, to take the position, that she is not to bear the expenses incident to the preparation of her ministry, she is certainly under all the obligations which candour and sincerity can impose, in the most sacred of all transactions, to express, in unequivocal terms, when she bows before the Lord of the harvest, the conditions on which she is willing to receive an increase of labourers. Let her not ask as if she were willing to submit to the wisdom of her Lord all questions relative to persons and means, and then, as if she had reserved to herself the right of challenge, except from the list of his appointments those who are unable to educate themselves. On the principle that it is not the duty of the church to educate those whom Christ may designate as his ambassadors, that prayer which was placed upon the altar of incense by her great High Priest, cannot be offered any longer without modification. Instead of simply asking labourers, she must, in conformity with the principle, that those who are called are bound to bear the cost of their own preparation, pray the Lord of the harvest to call and send forth wealthy labourers into his harvest.

3. Justice demands that the cost of preparation be borne by the church. If it be said that such questions are too sacred to be determined on such principles, we would refer those who have any such doubts to the argument of the apostle in support of the temporal claims of the Christian ministry, 1 Cor. ix. He appeals to the customs of men, and argues from the fact that the husbandman, and the soldier, and the shepherd, and even the very oxen which tread out the corn, are rewarded for their labour, that the ministers of Christ ought to be rewarded for theirs. It is true the apostle is here simply laying the basis of an a fortiori argument, the conclusion of which he advances interrogatively, "If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we reap your carnal things?" But in laying the foundation of his argument on the principle of work and wages, he sanctions and authorizes the application of the principle of justice between man and man, in the settlement of all questions which may arise between the church and her servants, in the advancement of the kingdom of their common Lord. The question between the church and her candidates, during their course of preparation, belongs to this class. As the duty of preparation rests upon both, by virtue of the general commission and the specific call, the question is, By which of the parties—the candidates or the church—shall the cost be borne?

There can be but one answer to this question. The society, and not a few of its members, ought to bear the cost incident to all its operations. The church, as an organization for the evangelization of the world, as the apostle argues, is not to be regarded as exempt from the operation of this principle. In order, therefore, to prove that it is not the duty of the church to bear the expenses incident to the preparation of her candidates for the work of the ministry, it is necessary to show that her commission to preach the gospel to every creature, does not lay upon her the obligation to provide the means, or that the ministry is not embraced in the means. We are persuaded, that when a Christian man finds himself driven to the necessity of establishing either of these positions, he will prefer abandoning his opposition to the sustentation of candidates for the ministry.

In these remarks we have had reference to candidates who are not possessed of the means necessary to their support during a course of preparation. We wish it to be understood, however, that we do not base the church's obligation, in this matter, upon the indigence of her candidates. We have argued the will of the Master from the temporal circumstances of those whom he is wont to call to the work of the ministry; but we would be very far from resting the claims of the future ambassadors of Christ upon their present poverty. Had it been our purpose to advocate the cause of Christ's poor, we might have appealed simply to the benevolence of his people. But the cause in hand is the cause, not of the poor, but of men whom Christ has designated, and whom the church has recognised, as his servants, to execute the great commission committed to her trust. So long as the church is responsible for the execution of the commission, so long must she be held responsible, not simply on principles of benevolence, but on the principle of justice, for the sustentation of those who are preparing to execute it.

The full development and application of this principle are so important, that we shall devote another article to the subject in the next number of the Record.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION
IN SCHOOLS, ACADEMIES, AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

DAY OF PRAYER FOR COLLEGES.

The annual concert of prayer for colleges seems to have been generally observed by our churches. As yet we have not heard of any special manifestations of the grace of God in answer to the prayers of his people. It is, perhaps, our sin that we turn our eyes to that day, and set our hearts upon that institution, to the exclusion of other days, as days on which God is willing to hear and to bless. If the church have fallen into this error, God may convince her of it by withholding the blessing asked on that day.

We have called the restriction of our prayers and our expectations to that occasion, an error, and we are sure that such restriction is a serious error, and one which God is very likely to rebuke. It is well, and right, to agree, not only as touching any thing which we may ask of God, in concert with others who seek the same blessing, but also to agree as to the time in which we shall ask the thing determined. But surely, the interests at stake in our schools, academies, colleges, and seminaries, are too vast to be remembered only once a year! In these institutions are treasured up the hopes of the family, the church, and the state. They are the fountains whose waters are to gladden or desolate our homes, to revive or corrupt the church, to bless or curse our country. Well may such institutions, with their freight of interests, claim a place in every prayer offered by the people of God before his mercy-seat. In the house of God, at the family altar, and in the secresy of the closet, such interests as these demand a place second to no other class of interests that can be named. We would call upon all who, in any place, and at any time, call upon the name of the Lord Jesus, to remember before him our schools, academies, colleges, and seminaries.

As an encouragement and incentive to the presentation of this cause, on other and ordinary occasions of prayer, we would mention the present gracious work in progress at Princeton college, New Jersey. This work, which is pervading the entire institution, and extending, in its saving power, through the town, is the result of prayer offered by pious students on behalf of their fellow-students, at their ordinary prayer-meetings. These meetings, as we have heard, were begun last summer by some pious members of the college, whose hearts the Lord had touched, and the result is, that there has not only been a universal awakening among the young men, but a large number of hopeful conversions, and Nassau Hall is rejoicing under a baptism which is likely to equal any of the great revivals which have marked and shaped her past history, and made her a blessing to our church, our country and our world.

If we are wont to rejoice over the grace of God in his answers to special prayer, offered on special occasions, let us not lose sight of that grace which hearkens to a few students met in prayer on ordinary occasions, in the use of the ordinary means of grace. And let the grace which recognises the sacrifice offered in secret, encourage us to enter into our closets, and shut to the door, and wrestle with our Father, who seeth in secret, in behalf of our beloved youth and our educational institutions.

REPORT ON SABBATH-SCHOOLS AND YOUTH.

The Presbytery of West Jersey, in session October 4th, 1860, adopted the following resolution:

Whereas, The religious training of the children of the church is of paramount importance; and whereas, it is sometimes asserted that the present system of Sabbath-schools has diminished, or interfered with catechetical instruction by pastors and elders; therefore,

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to address the sessions of our churches, for the purpose of obtaining statistical and other interesting information respecting the Sabbath-schools under their care, to be presented to the Presbytery at its next stated meeting.

The Chairman of the Committee thus appointed has kindly permitted us to make the following extracts from this report.

In the statistical tables which the General Assembly annually requires of the Presbyteries, is one column devoted to infant baptisms, and another to the children in Sabbath-schools and Bible-classes; thus proving, by the very position of these items, how the church regards them—parallel with the other great objects of its care, next after its membership, and before its benevolent contributions.

These columns alone were sufficient to establish the authority of our present action, for that account which the General Assembly may rightfully ask every Presbytery to give, each Presbytery in turn may demand of its several church sessions. Pursuing these columns and the several paths of thought which open from them, we are brought, naturally and almost necessarily, to many inquiries, covering the whole subject of youthful training, and especially the care of the baptized children of the church.

Not by inference merely, but by explicit declaration, do we discover the mind of the General Assembly, and the duty which it authoritatively enjoined; for in 1809 (Digest, p. 182,) the Assembly "Resolved, That the different Presbyteries within our bounds are hereby directed to inquire of the different sessions whether a proper pastoral care be exercised over the baptized children in their congregations."

Again, the General Assembly in 1818 (p. 691 Minutes, see Digest, p. 182,) "Resolved, That the General Assembly recommend, and they do hereby recommend to the pastors and sessions of the different churches under their care, to assemble as often as they may deem necessary during the year, the baptized children with their parents."

In 1835, (p. 37, see Digest, p. 185,) "The Assembly have reason to fear, that whilst Sabbath-schools are doing good, they have, in many instances, superseded entirely the catechetical instructions of the pastor."

Also in 1840, (p. 310, see Digest, p. 185,)—"But we caution heads of families against the idea that their duties may be delegated to the Sabbath-school teacher. * * * The teacher is not the parent's substitute, but his helper; and it is equally the duty of the parent to superintend the instruction of his family as though there were no such thing as a Sabbath-school. These schools, it may be remarked here, should always be under the direction of the pastor and session, and they should see to it that our catechisms constitute in all cases a part of the regular course of instruction."

In 1854 again, (p. 183, see Digest, p. 185,) "There is, we are assured, no necessary conflict between the Sabbath-school and the family, as institutions in which this class (the young) may be trained in the knowledge of God's word."

In regard to the relation subsisting between the Sabbath-school and the church, and the subjection of the former to the authority of the latter, your committee now quote from a work of the American Sunday-school Union, and from a pen always respected and beloved: "Sunday-school teachers are catechists, and so far as they do this work under warrant of the church, are church catechists. The church, if she is wise, instead of looking askance at them, will subsidize them. They are a part of the church, trained in her bosom, doing her work, seeking her welfare, and amenable to her jurisdiction. If they teach error or transcend limits, let church authorities see to it."—See the American Subbath-school and Adjuncts, pp. 133, 134.

In conclusion, we submit these plain principles.

The children of our own church have a special claim upon us for instruction and pastoral care. In regard to this class, it is our first duty to teach and train them for Christ, that they may become Christians. Secondly and subordinately, to fit them to take the place of their parents in the Presbyterian church. Here the inquiry is appropriate, whether neglect in these particulars is not a sufficient reason why so few become pious, and why many of the young, when they are converted, depart from the church and faith of their parents.

Further, while it is our duty not to attempt to proselyte from other evangelical denominations, it is equally our duty to protect and guard our own youth from being proselyted by others. Even Sabbath-schools may be so conducted, and pastoral and presbyterial care may be so neglected as to neutralize, undermine, and destroy all attachment to our own church.

It is a duty common to all Christians to seek out the destitute. We recognise voluntary societies and Sunday-school conventions as useful coworkers, that stimulate us to action. They may find an unoccupied field of effort among the destitute, but they cannot perform our work, and we should not cast upon them our responsibility; neither should we allow them, by our default, an occasion to assume the parental, sessional, and Presbyterial duties which belong to ourselves.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Receipts at Philadelphia in February 1862.

I.—Fund for Candidates.

Pby of Albany—Tribes' Hill ch 1; Johnstown ch (ladies of) 40; Princeton ch 4 36; Ballston Centre ch 8 55	53 91
Pby of Mohawk—Oneida Valley ch	2 00
Pby of Genesee River—Sparta ch (of which 8 from the Ladies' cent a week 80c)	13 00
Pby of Rochester City—Phelps ch 17; St. Peter's ch 23 76	40 76
Pby of Hudson—Hopewell ch	6 00
Pby of North River—Newburg ch	21 00
Pby of Long Island—Amagansett ch 14; East Hampton ch (of which 20 from the Sab sch) 69	83 00
Pby of New York—Jersey City ch 55 40; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch 3586 81; West 23d street ch 35 50	3677 71
Pby of Elizabethtown—Plainfield 1st ch	15 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Princeton 1st ch 30 78; Trenton ch 46 45, of which for this Fund 41 45	72 23
Pby of Passaic—First ch Paterson	41 75
Pby of West Jersey—Greenwich ch	9 10
Pby of Newton—First ch Mansfield (ladies coll)	34 50
Pby of Susquehanna—Wysox ch 5; Orwell ch 1; Rome ch 1; Towanda ch 7 71; Troy ch 7	21 71
Pby of Raritan—German Valley ch 23, less paid Home and Foreign Record 5=18; Amwell 1st ch (special) 10	28 00
Pby of Luzerne—Scranton German ch	1 00
Pby of Philadelphia—Chester ch (Sab sch of) 10; Ninth ch add'l, from a lady of 10; Ridley ch 5; Middletown ch 10; 15th ch 1 22	36 22
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Second ch Philadelphia, from a lady 10, collection 52 85, Mrs J Shinn 2 50, add'l 15, Misses Freeman 6=86 35; North ch Philadelphia 51 50; Princeton ch West Philadelphia 22 73; Central ch, J Sibley 10	170 58
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Brainerd ch 21 10; Neshaminy ch 33 40	54 50
Pby of Huntingdon—Clearfield ch 16; Mifflintown ch 53	69 00
Pby of Northumberland—Warrior Run ch, of which from the Ladies 9	35 00
Pby of Baltimore—Westminster ch (of which Sab sch 50)	100 00
Pby of Carlisle—Middletown ch (ladies of) 2 60; Lower Path Valley ch 14; Burnt Cabins ch 7; Harrisburg ch 77 38	100 98
Pby of Ohio—West Elizabeth ch (ladies' cent a week coll)	5 25
Pby of Saltsburg—Indiana ch	35 00
Pby of Washington—Lower Ten Mile ch 5; Washington ch add'l, from ladies' cent a week coll 7 66	12 66
Pby of Columbus—Mifflin ch (ladies of) 5 27; Dublin ch, do. 7 24; Lancaster ch 5	17 51
Pby of Marion—Mount Gilead ch (ladies' cent a week coll)	9 00
Pby of Zanesville—Pleasant Hill ch	7 75
Pby of Maumee—Hicksville ch 3; West Bethesda ch 5	8 00
Pby of Chillicothe—Marshall ch	2 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Cincinnati 7th ch	58 05
Pby of Sidney—Stoney Creek ch	10 30
Pby of White Water—Pleasant Grove ch	5 00
Pby of Logansport—Rossville ch	2 00
Pby of Muncie—Union ch	4 00
Pby of Peoria—Lewistown ch 50; Henry ch 15; Delavan ch 5	70 00
Pby of Bloomington—Farm Ridge ch	5 00
Pby of Schuyler—Galesburg ch	10 00
Pby of Rock River—Rock Island ch	10 00
Pby of Chicago—Rockford ch 32 50, less paid Home and Foreign Record 50 cts, exch 24 cts	31 76
Pby of Dane—Oregon ch, from the ladies of	3 00
Pby of Winnebago—Burnett and Dodge Centre chs	4 00
Pby of Lake Superior—Superior ch	1 00
Pby of Chippewa—Galesville ch	1 00
Pby of St. Pauls—Central ch	15 00
Pby of Des Moines—Indianapolis ch	1 00
Pby of Cedar—Dewitt ch	5 00
Pby of Toledo—Toledo ch	5 00
Pby of Dubuque—Waukon ch 1; Lycurgus ch 50 cts	1 50
Pby of Iowa—Peter ch 3 55; Oakland ch 2 40	5 95
Pby of Missouri—Brownsville ch	11 12
Pby of St. Louis—Providence ch 2 85, less exch 2 79; 2d ch St. Louis 94 20	96 99
	$5130 79
LEGACY.—Estate of James X McLanahan, New York,	400 00
REFUNDED.—C———	43 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

A Sojourner, Newark, N. J. 5; "John" 200; A Lady, Massachusetts, 5; Rev R J Hall 3, Mrs Jane Hall 3, Miss Nancy Henderson 3, Lebanon, Ohio; Rev Salmon Cowles, West Point, Iowa, 1; from two Ladies, New York, 500; C H S. Boundbrook, N. J. 5; "——" 500; a friend 5; Wm McGookin 1; Alex'r Guy, M D, Oxford, Ohio, special, 60	1291 00
	$6874 79

II.—Fund for Schools, Colleges, &c.

Pby of Albany—Tribes' Hill ch	50
Pby of New York—First ch, New York, in part, 2000, united ch colls 99 90	*2099 90
Pby of New Brunswick—Third ch, Trenton	*5 00
Pby of Philadelphia Central—North ch, special	*4 00
	2109 40
Total	$8984 19

WM. MAIN, Treasurer.

* Collection on day of prayer for Schools, Colleges, &c.

Receipts at Pittsburg, Pa., in February 1862.

Pby of Clarion—Richardsville ch 62 cts; Callensburg ch 3 78; Concord ch 1 47	5 87
Pby of Blairsville—Salem ch	14 60
Pby of Ohio—Hopewell ch 5 84; Mansfield and Pisgah chs 18	23 84
Pby of Saltsburg—Pine Run ch 7; Glade Run ch 22 08; Concord ch 10 07	39 35
Pby of Erie—Mercer ch	12 26
Pby of Allegheny City—Freedom ch 31 cts; Sharpsburg ch 28; Bridgewater ch 10; Sewickley ch 18 44	56 75
Pby of Washington—Cross-Roads ch	11 35
Pby of Richland—Ashland ch, ladies of,	23 20
Pby of Fort Wayne—Fort Wayne 1st ch	21 00
	208 22

MISCELLANEOUS.

Patterson estate, per Rev George Marshall, D D	50 00
	$258 22
Total amount acknowledged,	$9,242 41

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.
March 12th, 1862.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

JAPAN.

Our advices from this country are dated to the 18th of December. Dr. Hepburn refers to the need of Christian books for the Japanese, but the missionaries have not yet had time to learn the language thoroughly, so that they could prepare them. The translation of the Scriptures is now receiving their attention, as far as this is practicable. A few medical cases were still treated by the doctor, the patients coming to his house, or staying at the hotels; the dispensary is not likely to be soon re-opened. The ship in which Dr. and Mrs. McCartee, of the Ningpo mission, were on their return to this country, touched at Kanagawa, and they were persuaded to remain there, expecting to spend six months with benefit to their health.

CHINA.

Our letters are dated at Tungchow, to November 27th; Shanghai, December 22d; Ningpo, to January 2d; Canton, December 30th. The principal event reported in these letters is the capture of Ningpo by the insurgents on the 9th of December. This caused great confusion and distress in the native community, and gave our missionary brethren great concern for the native church. They were exceedingly thankful to be able, at their latest dates, to report all the members of the church as safe; great anxiety had been felt for some of the leading members, who had been taken prisoners, but they were released at the instance of the missionaries, and also all the other natives who had been in any way connected with them. The loss of life was much less than usual on the capture of cities by the insurgents, but a large number of the inhabitants had fled from Ningpo. No restraint was imposed on the plundering of native houses and property. We are not yet sufficiently acquainted with the progress of events, to judge of their full bearing on our missionary work at Ningpo. In some respects, this work may be much embarrassed by the new state of things. On the other hand, this state of affairs may not last long; or, it may be the means of enlarging the usefulness of the mission. Time will show.

The brethren at Tungchow were encouraged by the earnest attention of an aged man to Christian instruction, and they hope that a servant woman in one of their families has become a sincere convert. At Canton, Mr. Preston writes, "We had the happiness to baptize four Chinese yesterday."

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts, on their way to Ningpo, and the missionaries for Siam and India, on board the Po Yang, had safely reached the Mauritius; all well, December 26th.

SIAM.

We have received letters from this country dated to the 21st of December. Dr. and Mrs. House were on a visit at Petchaburi, and Mr. and Mrs. McGilvary at Bangkok, making an exchange for a month—an arrangement favourable to the health and usefulness of both families. In general, the work and prospects of the mission were never more encouraging.

INDIA.

Letters have reached us from Allahabad, dated to the 18th of January; Futtehpore, January 1st; Futtehgurh, to December 31st; Saharunpur, January 2d; Kapurthala, January 18th; Lahor, January 3d. The health of Mr. Walsh had suffered so much, that it was deemed expedient for him to visit the Sand Heads, the pilot station for Calcutta. Before leaving Allahabad, he was permitted to receive two persons as members of the church by baptism—one, the daughter of a maulavi, or teacher; the other, an intelligent young man in government employ. His baptism was violently opposed by his family and friends, but he was enabled to witness a good confession for Christ. Mr. Walsh speaks warmly of the liberality of European friends at that city in the support of the mission school, and of the cordial aid rendered to our brethren in their missionary work by Mr. Williamson, the Scotch chaplain. Mr. Johnson, at Futtehpore, refers to an aged Brahmin, who seemed to be a sincere inquirer; the school at that station was doing well.

SOUTH AMERICA.

We have advices from Rio de Janeiro to the 23d of January; from Bogota, to the 6th of January; and from Mr. and Mrs. Wallace, at Baranquilla, January 31st, on their journey to Bogota. These letters give good accounts of the health of all the missionaries. Mr. Simonton gives us the pleasing intelligence from Rio of the organization of a church in that city; two persons were received as members on profession of their faith. One of these is an American gentleman, in business at Rio; the other is a Portuguese, who for many years has resided at that city, and whose views of the gospel, and his faith in it, were most gratifying to his religious instructor. Several meetings were held weekly, each attended by a few persons; the number of hearers was on the increase; and our brethren were encouraged by evidence that the Spirit of God was accompanying the simple teaching of the word.

THE RECEIPTS OF THE BOARD

From May 1, 1861, to March 1, 1862.

In ten months of the financial year of the Board, the total receipts are nearly $8000 less than in the same months last year. Over $5000 of this deficiency we find under the head of legacies, leaving about $3000 less from the living members of the church. Deducting, in both years, the contributions of churches in the so-styled seceding states, and making allowance for two contributions, larger than usual, acknowledged this year, but which last year did not reach the treasury until later in the year, and we still have the pleasing result, that the deficiency thus far this year in the receipts of the churches—neither legacies nor miscellaneous included—is but $2093.

We think this brief statement, considering the times, will be regarded as a reason of great thankfulness to God.

And now, after this little statement reaches its readers, a whole month will remain before the mission year ends—on the 30th of April. A great deal can be done in a month, especially by churches that have not yet sent forward their collections. We wish very much that the churches which now support the missions may give the whole sum that last year was given by all. They can. God will richly bless them, if they will. Try, and see.

WALDENSIAN MISSIONS IN ITALY.

Resume of the Work—December 26, 1861.

It is the happiness of our church to be united with the ancient church of the Waldenses, in the support of its missionary work. Funds are remitted to our Vaudois brethren from year to year, for this purpose. It is but a small sum that is thus expended, amounting last year to two thousand six hundred dollars; but it is welcomed by our Christian brethren, and we have reason to believe it is the means of doing much to extend the gospel in Italy. We have translated, partly abridging, the following paper, written by the Rev. J. P. Revel, D. D., which gives a general view of the Italian missions of the Waldensian Synod.

We would here remind our readers that the endowment fund in aid of the theological seminary of this Synod, which was recommended by our General Assembly in 1855, yet lacks several thousand dollars of reaching the sum (twenty thousand dollars) which was considered suitable for this object. We wish this unfinished work could be soon completed.

In the Old Provinces. At Courmayeur, Aoste, Turin, Casale, Pignerol, Genes, and other places, the missionary agents of the Vaudois church still pursue their labours to spread the gospel. These agents are evangelists, colporteurs, and teachers. They have encountered a good deal of opposition from the priests, and such of the ignorant people as could be stirred up by them. One of the colporteurs was repeatedly assaulted and severely injured, in three villages near Aoste. At another station, the evangelist was assailed by a mob, and threatened with a pistol; but he induced "the man of the pistol" to enter his place of worship. The funeral services of a good woman were disturbed, in still another place, by riotous persons; yet this was overruled for good, by calling forth a declaration of the magistrate in favour of religious toleration. All kinds of artifice and falsehood were made use of by the priests in this opposition to the gospel, but with success by no means proportioned to their zeal. On the contrary, the truth makes progress. In one place, a house is secured for the mission; in another, the schools give special encouragement; a lay-evangelist is stationed here, and a teacher there; and some new members are added to some of the little churches. The printing-press and the publication, Buona Novella, have been removed from Turin to Florence, leaving the evangelist and his assistant at Turin more time for the work of preaching the gospel.

In the Provinces of Lombardy. A central station has been established at Milan. In 1859, some attempts were made to introduce the gospel into this city, but they did not meet with encouragement. The minds of men were then occupied with political matters. "God gave us strength to persevere, and he has granted us a labourer, devoted, faithful, and active, who in a few months has gathered around him, as hearers of the word, one hundred and fifty persons on the Sabbath, and from sixty to one hundred and twenty on week-day evenings." A depot for Bibles and tracts has been opened, with good results. Visits are made by the minister to Pavia, Bergame, and Brescia, to conduct services with greater or less frequency, and with encouraging prospects of doing good.

In the Provinces of Tuscany. "Our position at Florence gains strength. The purchase of a house for Vaudois use, spacious enough to accommodate the persons connected with the School of Theology and the teachers of schools, and the possession of this guaranteed to us by a royal decree, gives us the evident right of citizenship in the eyes of the public and of the authorities. We are at home. . . . The congregation is increasing, and among the communicants are some persons of education and good social position. . . . Our services have never been disturbed, nor has any unfriendly demonstration been made against us since we occupied the palace of a Cardinal, Salviati, [now the Vaudois house, above alluded to.*] . . . The number of our students is increased this year; we have now twelve—two Neapolitan ex-priests, one Romagna ex-priest, two Livournese, (one of them an ex-Jew,) one Swiss, one French, and five Vaudois. Nine lodge in the house. We have not thus far had any cause of regret, either in their studies or their conduct. . . . Those of them who are in the second and third year of their course, are useful in conducting an evening school and a Sunday-school. The primary schools for boys and girls are doing well, and the number of scholars gradually increases. . . ."

The station at Livourne has made decided progress since a fine but modest chapel, holding four hundred persons, has become our property, and been opened for public worship. The opposition of the priests and their agents here proved ineffective. A school for boys gives encouragement. A depository of religious books, the controversial tracts of the evangelist, the discourses in the chapel, are specified among the means used; and in eighteen months a church of sixty communicants, and an audience often exceeding three hundred persons, are results already gained.

"In the isle of Elba, some sailors, brought to a knowledge of salvation at Nice, in meetings held by one of our evangelists, carried to their island some copies of the Bible. These were explained by the more advanced among them in knowledge and Christian experience. This season they urged us to send them an evangelist. One of our students visited them, and was most warmly welcomed. Meetings were held in some of the towns; the bishop and priests took the alarm; the mob was excited; and on one occasion, the house in which the meetings were held was on the point of being fired, when our friends withdrew. At present an ex-priest performs the duties of an evangelist, and has an encouraging audience.

"In Sicily we also have a minister, who has preached at Palermo, and occasionally at neighbouring places, for nearly a year. Happy effects are already produced; but the priests are most violent in their opposition. They stirred up the mob, and at length prevailed on the lieutenant of the king to request our evangelist to suspend his public meetings until quiet was restored. In a town in the interior, a colporteur was badly treated, and many of his Bibles burned. Nevertheless, our evangelist says, 'The impression one receives is, that in these ends of the Italian country all things tend to encourage our work.'"

* Mr. Malan, Moderator of the Waldensian Synod, in an address in Paris, thus referred to the removal of the School of Theology, and the purchase of the old Salviati palace in Florence:

"This measure seemed at first untimely and rash, but the event refuted these fears. The school is now installed in a real palace, which furnishes halls for their studies, apartments for the professors, a chapel for their religious worship; and all who are able to judge, perceive that it is called to exert a most happy influence. The governor of the country himself congratulated the Vaudois for having established this centre of action at Florence."

MISSIONS IN CHINA.

REPORT OF THE DAY SSCHOOLS FOR THE YEAR 1861.

The two day-schools for boys, and the one for girls, have been continued under the same teachers, and in the same places, as during the previous year. Our boys' school is in the chapel in Thirteenth street, and the girls' school is in the same building, which is used as a chapel for women. Many of the pupils also are the same as were in school the last year.

A discouraging feature; its cause, and its probable removal—Apparatus needed.

One discouraging feature of day-schools is, that the pupils do not remain so long under instruction as we could wish. This is the case with our schools at present, because of the recentness of their commencement in this part of the city. The pupils being from very poor families, as soon as they are able to earn a cent or two a day, they must go and assist in procuring means for the common support. The importance of this small sum can only be appreciated in connection with the statement, that there are many who procure what food they have for two and three cents a day. This cause affects the attendance of the pupils at different periods of the year. There are some months in which boys can get employment, as in the fruit season, when they go about the streets selling fruits; and during the last three months of the year, at which time marriages are the most celebrated. Then boys are in demand, to carry the banners, lanterns, cakes, sweetmeats, and the bridal outfit, which are always carried in the marriage processions.

We hope to see the same results here as have been experienced in other parts of the city, where such day-schools have been longer in existence. The schools having gained the confidence of the people, they are attended by boys from a better class of families; and hence they are more regular in their attendance, and continue longer in connection with the schools.

This desirable result would be hastened, in the judgment of the mission, if we were authorized to furnish our permanent school-rooms with suitable desks and seats, and if we had some supply of apparatus, such as is used in the class-room at home, for giving instruction. It may appear inopportune to ask for such grants at the present, but this is a pressing need.

Course of instruction—"Three interesting youths."

The same course of instruction has been continued as formerly. The gospel has been read and explained in each school every day, and prayer offered by the assistant, Lam Atsung. The pupils have studied Christian books a portion of the day. In this way they have memorized the epitomes of revealed truth that have been prepared for them: the Ten Commandments, the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and some of them the whole Gospel of Matthew, in Chinese. They at the same time pursue the study of the Chinese Classics in the same manner as is common in other schools. The boys of both schools attend religious service in the chapel, at my residence, at eleven o'clock on every Sabbath. Previous to the service they are questioned in the presence of the audience, on a lesson in the Gospel of Matthew; and in the afternoon the Scripture lessons of the week are heard in review by myself and the assistant. Even when the pupils remain in the school only one year, they get such a knowledge of the elementary truths of revelation, and of religious terms, as prepares them to hear, with profit and instruction, the gospel at any future time, as cannot in any other way be so readily imparted.

One very interesting feature of the schools this year has been, that it has enabled me to have three interesting youths under constant religious instruction. One of them is placed in my house by his mother, who provides his support, in order to have him under my care and instruction. The other two are employed as assistants in dispensing medicines in the hospital. But as their time is not fully occupied, I have had them attend school a part of each day. They have also attended worship in my family every evening, and the weekly lecture and prayer-meeting on Thursday and Sabbath evenings; and they have formed a class for instruction in the Catechism, two evenings of the week. These unusual facilities for inculcating divine truth have been, as I trust, followed with a blessing, and I hope for the best results in their cases.

Mrs. Happer's girls' school—Gratifying progress.

The attendance and progress of the girls in the day-school have afforded Mrs. Happer the greatest pleasure and encouragement. The number in attendance at the school has increased. There have been twenty-one pupils. No remuneration is given here to pupils in either school for their time, to induce them to attend. She endeavours to train them to habits of thrift and industry, by making needle-work a part of their daily duty. If they can, by the excellency of their work, get any orders for work, they are permitted to retain the proceeds of their industry. She has imparted some instruction in singing. They are delighted to learn it, and they manifest the same pleasure in singing "There is a happy land," "Around the throne of God," and some other hymns in Chinese, as children in America do in singing them in our more mellifluous language.

Their progress in plain and ornamental needlework has greatly gratified their parents, and their progress in their lessons has been most gratifying to all. Special instruction in Christian doctrines, with prayer, is given twice a week, and they always attend when service is held for women. There have been some very interesting cases of interest in learning to read, and in the earnestness with which the Scriptures are read. A young lady, a niece of the teacher, who was not a pupil, read the Gospels with Mrs. Happer with a great deal of interest, and attended all the religious services with great regularity up till the time of her marriage. She is always very glad, when on a visit home, to meet Mrs. Happer, or when religious services happen to be at that time. A girl who was going out to work preferred to come to the teacher's to work, at lower wages, in order thereby that she might enjoy the opportunity of learning to read. One or two married women have attended to learn to read. The fruits of such a school will be abundant, and most desirable, in time. All who fully appreciate the influence of woman for all that is good, when she is converted by the grace of God, will realize the great importance of such a source of influence. The prayers of all such are earnestly desired in its behalf, that the Spirit of God may convert these pupils, and make them the instruments of good to others to the latest generation.

Boarding pupils—Class of women.

The two boarding pupils have pursued their studies as usual, and with good progress. We cannot report that they are yet the subjects of renewing grace; but we sometimes hope that Clara, the elder one, is gently moved upon by the Holy Spirit, and the other one, Mary, is not without the convictions of sin. On one occasion, especially, they came to Mrs. Happer with tearful eyes, and said they felt they were great sinners, and that they had determined to seek Jesus at once. She has a very interesting class of women on Sabbath afternoon.

It is composed of these two pupils, two of the old pupils who are married, a seamstress in a Christian English family, who comes and spends her Sabbaths here, and her mother, and some other women. But in all these things, how utterly futile are our efforts without the Holy Spirit. May He grant the renewing of the Holy Ghost to all those who are thus favoured with the knowledge of the gospel!

ANDREW P. HAPPER,
Superintendent of Schools.

REPORT OF THE NINGPO MISSION, OCTOBER 1, 1861.

Changes in the staff of Labourers.

Nowhere, as in the mission field, are we so forcibly reminded of the Master's injunction, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." Repeatedly have these words received additional emphasis, as one after another of our community has been compelled to retire from this field on account of health.

[The report then refers to the death of the wife of one of the English Episcopal missionaries at Ningpo, to whose excellence a warm tribute is paid; the return to this country of Mrs. H. V. Rankin, on account of health, with her children, Mr. Rankin remaining at his post, though feeling deeply this separation from his beloved family; the return of Mr. and Mrs. Inslee to this country; the removal of Mr. and Mrs. Nevius and Mr. and Mrs. Danforth to Shantung, and the death of Mrs. Danforth, whose memory is warmly cherished, while much sympathy is expressed for her bereaved husband; the removal of Mr. Gamble to Shanghai, when the printing-press was transferred to that city; the expected return of Dr. and Mrs. McCartee to this country, greatly to the regret of their associates, who hope for their return to China. The past summer is described as one of unusual sickness. The report next mentions the force then on the ground, Messrs. Rankin, Green, and Morrison, with Mrs. Green and Mrs. Morrison. Mr. Dodd arrived before the report was despatched, and Mr. and Mrs. Roberts have probably arrived before this. The report then proceeds—]

Efficiency of Native Labourers.

Our efficiency must not be estimated by the small number of foreigners in the field, reduced as this still further is, by reason of two having but an imperfect command of the language for preaching. God has greatly blessed us in giving us an efficient staff of native helpers. Though these may not have that warmth to be found in more ardent temperaments, we believe we may with truth affirm, without exception, that they are earnest, and devoted to their work. It is interesting to observe their conscientiousness with regard to itineration. In one of the journals we noted the acknowledgment by one, who had always been faithful in the discharge of his duty, that his sin was great, inasmuch as he had not gone out as much as he should in the former part of the month. There are in all fourteen, of whom five are catechists, seven are school-teachers —four male and three female—and two colporteurs. These, with the exception of the last, are located at five stations, not including a preaching station, which, in addition to their regular duties, two of the catechists have alternately attended on the Sabbath.

Notices of Out-stations.

No new stations have been added during the year. Efforts have been made, on more than one occasion, to procure a suitable house at Vonghwô, but as yet without success. At Sih-kia, where a house had been rented by one of our number, there was for some time preaching every Sabbath. When the hearers became numerous, a native teacher and his wife went there to impart a knowledge of the truth to those who came daily. We regret to say that the interest subsided. The hearers fell away, until very few came. Owing to these circumstances, the work has been suspended. We have not yet, however, concluded to abandon it in that direction. At present there is a work in progress at Dziang-eo, about sixteen miles from Yü-yiao, whose results are undetermined. It has been carried on wholly by the native assistants in that part of the field, aided by one from Ningpo. For over three weeks two men have been continually there, preaching from early in the morning until late at night. The preaching place has been thronged, not only with people from Dziang-eo, but also from the surrounding villages. As yet little evidence has been seen of the Spirit's presence in his reviving power. We can only hope that by the providence of God a way may be opened for us, and that we may see the seed there sown bearing precious fruit. The formation of a station at this point must depend upon the indications of Providence. Those are well led whom God guides.

General view of the work.

On comparing the present with the past year, it has not been a season of so much increase. In our boarding-schools, though the attention on the part of the pupils to the religious instruction has been good, there has been no special interest. At two of the out-stations the catechists have had to mourn the entire indifference with which their message has been received. They have also been grieved by the unchristian conduct of one of the members. Even at Ningpo we have not been permitted to witness such results from the preaching of the gospel as could have been desired. The two chapels here have been regularly attended by two of our most capable and best instructed assistants. The attendance has been good, especially at the Fu-Zin. During the summer evenings services were held at the Level Bridge chapel, where both the assistants were present. The services, for the greater part of the time, were well attended. The attention at these chapels has been very good. We are not able to point to much visible results of all this labour.

It is a cheering thought, however, that through the instrumentality of the preaching at these chapels, and the tracts there given, the gospel is disseminated over a wide extent of country which we cannot at present reach in any other way. Ningpo being an emporium, attracts to it many from other cities, and even some from other provinces, who are here solely for the purpose of trade. We have at Yü-yiao ascertained, in conversing with strangers, casually met, that they had gained some knowledge of Christianity at Ningpo. The same remark is likewise true of persons who have been on the way from Zias-Nying to Yü-yiao, a distance of ninety miles. Some attempts have been made to place one or more of the Gospels, with other books, in the hands of those who come from the tea district, distant from here six hundred or seven hundred miles. Their dialect is so different that little could be effected by means of preaching. Another mode in which the gospel has been made known is by open-air preaching. The catechists have done much in preaching publicly, wherever they could gather a knot of listeners, whether in the place of their residence or the surrounding villages. In at least one instance, known to the writer, they have received an addition to their ranks in the person of a carpenter at Yü-yiao, whose practice it is, after his work for the day is done, to preach to those who may ask him to explain the new system. The colporteurs, moreover, have visited some cities and hundreds of villages which as yet lie beyond the reach of our stations. Perhaps we ought not to omit the fact that a few have been, more or less repeatedly, to the Fu-Zin chapel, apparently with the design of becoming more thoroughly instructed as to the religion of Christ, but thus far they evince no anxiety for their souls' salvation.

Evidences of the Divine blessing—Happy death of converts.

We have not, however, been without the Divine blessing upon our work. Sixteen have been added to the church. Of these, two are from each of the boarding-schools, two from the neighbourhood of the Level Bridge chapel, and ten from the various out-stations. Two of these stations deserve special mention, viz., Yü-yiao and Bao-kô-tah. The former deserves this, not only by reason of those that have been added to the church, but also on account of the work in the prison. Though the interest is less than formerly, the change wrought in that place, through the influence of the gospel, cannot but have made its impression upon all who have witnessed it. Notwithstanding the diminished interest, six still continue to attend upon the instructions afforded by the catechist. The authorities have allowed us free ingress and egress, and it has been with their consent that the ordinances of baptism and the Lord's supper have been administered within the walls. The other station deserving a passing notice is Bao-kô-tah. At this station one of the graduates of the boarding-school has had charge of a school. In addition to his labours as teacher, he has been faithful in proclaiming the gospel in this his native place. During the greater part of the year much interest has been felt in divine things. Four have been gathered as the fruit of these labours, one of whom was over seventy, another eighty. Thus from the prisoner, and from the self-righteous Budhist of three-score and ten, the gospel has won rich trophies.

We regret to report that five members of the church have been removed by death during the year. Ah-jih was baptized in 1854; for some years she had been useful as a monitor in the school, and had uniformly maintained a Christian character. About a year ago she was seized with a singular melancholy, which resulted in her death. Of the other four it may be said, their end was peace! They died in full confidence that to be absent from the body was to be present with the Lord. Of these Kong-kweng-iao acted as an assistant: he accompanied Mr. Nevius to Hang-chow; on his return he was useful in Dr. McCartee's dispensary nearly to the time of his death. The second was Yi-üong-nyün, commonly called Nyün-pang, the oldest communicant in San-poh. Baptized in 1857, his life until its close was a consistent one. The third was the son of one of our colporteurs, a member of our school, who had but shortly before been received into the fellowship of the church, when he was called away thus early to his rest. The last was Mary Loomis, formerly a pupil of the school. In her lingering illness her views of the Redemer were clear, and her trust in his atoning work firm.

New church organized.

On an application from Yü-yiao and San-poh the thirty-two members residing in these two places were constituted by the Presbytery of Ningpo a separate organization. In the mother church there remain eighty-four members, eight of whom are foreigners. The Rev. Mr. Rankin was appointed by Presbytery as stated supply to both churches. We trust that ere long the churches here will be supplied with native pastors.

Candidates for the Ministry.

The growing importance of this work is recognised by the brethren, and strenuous efforts are made to supply the want. At present six candidates for the ministry are under the charge of Presbytery. Two of the number have been receiving daily instruction during the year, either from Mr. Rankin or Dr. McCartee. Under their care, the Old Testament, with the exception of the poetical books, and the Gospels, have been carefully gone over, the students taking notes of the explanations given. In the absence of suitable commentaries, the importance of such exegetical study cannot be too highly estimated. They have also received instruction upon the early Christian controversies and our form of church government. We hope that some practical plan will soon be devised by which those at the out-stations may be enabled to carry on systematic study while they are engaged in their work. The pressing want is text-books. We are glad to mention that an advance has been made in this direction. The first volume of a work on theology, by Mr. Nevius, will shortly be in press. When complete, our instructors will have a thorough course of divinity to put in the hands of their pupils.

The boarding and day-schools.

During the year thirty-six boys and twenty-six girls have been receiving instruction at the two boarding-schools. The usual studies have been carefully attended to. Four of the boys forming the first class are expected to graduate in the course of the coming year. They still continue in their determination to study for the ministry. It is interesting to learn that the sympathies of the girls in the cause of missions have been called forth by the formation of a missionary society, having as its object the contribution of the money earned by their needlework to help in making known the gospel in their own land. In addition to those already mentioned, we have had three daily schools for boys at the out-stations, and two schools for girls at Ningpo. When we consider that the Chinese girls are brought up without education, much good may be expected to result from such schools. Even though their term may be short, the colloquial is so readily learned that a few months suffice to enable them to read, and also to store their minds with more or less Scripture truth. Their principal study is committing the Scriptures to memory.

Concluding remarks.

Thus have we endeavoured to present a survey of the field in our various operations. Yet we cannot confine ourselves to these narrow limits; we must look at the regions beyond. The country is now open. The most skeptical can no longer doubt. The treaties not only are ample and satisfactory, but they are carried out in good faith by the officers. As a proof of their feeling with respect to them, we would refer to an interview had with the mandarin of a place, distant two hundred miles from here, by two missionaries from Ningpo. In reply to questions put by them, he simply referred them to the treaties which had reference to the privileges in question.

In the arrangement made by the Americans with the rebels, a clause was inserted, through the influence of one of our number then acting as interpreter, not only securing missionaries from molestation, but promising them protection wherever the rebel arms should be carried. Ought not, then, the churches in America to hear the cry which comes up from China, Come and save us, for we are sinking down to hell!

The importance and the extent of our field enlarge as we become more thoroughly acquainted with it. Whether we look at what God has accomplished, or what we believe he intends to accomplish, we would say with the apostle, "Now thanks be unto God, which always causeth us to triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest the savour of his knowledge by us in every place: For we are unto God a sweet savour of Christ in them that are saved, and in them that perish. To the one we are the savour of death unto death, and to the other of life unto life." And who is sufficient for these things?

In behalf of the mission,

W. T. Morrison.

The Field in Shantung.

The Rev. J. L. Nevius, writing at Tungchow, November 23, 1861, gives the following encouraging account of the new field of labour in the north of China. Mr. Nevius and his wife, Mr. Gayley and his wife, and Mr. Danforth, are now at Tungchow, one of the chief cities of the province of Shantung.

Though we have not yet been formally constituted a separate mission, we have thought that you might like a fuller account than you have yet received of our present condition and prospects. No report was written at the usual time for sending them, on account of the confusion that then prevailed here, in consequence of an incursion of the rebels.

The Climate.

Our expectations with reference to the healthfulness of this place, have thus far been more than realized. Our almost insular position gives us the advantage of constant sea air. More than this, the climate is remarkably dry. We have, most of the time, a cloudless sky, and the temperature is very equable. There seem to be no diseases peculiar to the climate. The physical development and healthful appearance of the people contrast strikingly with what we see in Ningpo and Shanghai. People here attain to a greater age than in the south of China. It is not an uncommon thing to meet with persons eighty or ninety years old.

We have not been without occasional sickness; but it must be remembered that the most of us were invalids when we came here; and we are happy to say that the effect of the climate on the health of each one of us has been beneficial in a high degree.

But while the year has been full of blessings, it has also been one of trial. God has seen fit to remove one of our number by death. Mrs. Danforth left Ningpo in March last, in a very weak and precarious state of health; and a return home, or removal to a more favourable climate, was absolutely imperative. Rather than leave the mission field, she chose to seek for health in the north of China, notwithstanding the privations and difficulties necessarily incident to a new station. On reaching Tungchow, she seemed for a time to improve, and sanguine hopes were entertained of her recovery. But God had determined to call her from a world of trial and suffering, to enter early into the rest of his people; and on the 13th of September she fell asleep in Jesus. By the kindness of the authorities we succeeded in obtaining a beautiful and suitable burying-place on a bluff close by the sea. Here we laid her in her last resting-place, feeling that our great loss is her eternal gain. She is the first Protestant missionary buried in this part of China.

The Rebels.

In the month of October the rebels invaded this part of the province. These bands have some political connection with the Nankin insurgents, but exceed them in barbarity and cruelty. You have no doubt heard that Messrs. Parker and Holmes, of Yentai, lost their lives in an attempt to visit them. These two brethren were highly esteemed and useful men, and their loss was deeply felt.

The country is now as quiet as ever, and the news that a large part of the rebel army was destroyed by the imperial troops on their way back to their headquarters, has given us the hope that we will not be visited by them in the coming spring, as we have had reason to expect.

Friendly relations with the people.

As far as our friendly relations with the people and officers are concerned, nothing is left us to desire. The people treat us with marked respect. We have frequent calls from the district magistrate, who has in various ways rendered us valuable assistance. We have met with very few of the hinderances and annoyances which missionaries have generally had to contend with in the opening of new fields. There is already much to encourage us in our work. Many seem to be more or less interested in the truth, and there is one inquirer, an old man over eighty, whom we expect to baptize soon.

Preaching.

The room opened last summer in Mr. Gayley's house for daily preaching by the native assistant, proved too small to accommodate those who came to listen to the gospel. It was also found desirable to exchange it for another place, in consequence of its being next door to a chapel opened by our Baptist brethren. We succeeded in obtaining an excellent place on the principal street of the city at a nominal rent of $4.00 for the house, and $6.00 for an entrance on the street. It is government property, and was obtained by the favour of the authorities. The same building in good repair, at the ordinary rates of rent in that vicinity, could not be obtained for less than $100 a year. The place was in a very dilapidated condition. We have fitted up a suitable room for a chapel, which will accommodate eighty or one hundred hearers, and two smaller rooms for the native assistant. The expenses for repairs will be less than $100. There is another building on the premises, which can be fitted up for use in the future, in case we require it. We expect to open the chapel next week.

Our assistant, Dzao Ts-yü, has proved a faithful and efficient man, and gives us much satisfaction. His excellent knowledge of Mandarin has enabled him to enter at once upon his duties without the previous labour of acquiring a new dialect.

Shantung as a mission field.

It appears to us that Shantung is a most interesting and inviting field for missionary labour. There can be little doubt that it will be the Sanatarium of China; and its healthfulness points it out as a most desirable place for a school for the training up of a native ministry for China. The Romanists are already in the field, and have secured two large building sites in the capital of the province, expecting to commence operations as soon as the country becomes more quiet.

When we speak of Shantung as a mission field, we do not refer to Tungchow alone, where we now reside, but to the whole province. We have not sufficient light as yet to advise the fixing upon any particular place as a principal permanent location. It is evidently our duty to remain here for the present, but it may be desirable in the future to establish our principal mission station elsewhere, perhaps in the provincial capital.

As far as we can learn, the same characteristics belong to the climate of the whole of the northern part of this province. We hear from the Chinese that a hundred miles south of us the climate begins to be rainy, damp, and changeable, much resembling that of Ningpo and Shanghai. It is not at all probable that any intermediate position on the coast between here and Shanghai can be made available as a health station. Yentai (commonly called Chefoo) would have the advantages of constant intercourse with Shanghai by foreign ships, and of foreign protection in case of danger; but these advantages are more than counterbalanced by other considerations. Yentai is simply a trading village, owing all its importance and wealth to its fine harbour. It is inhabited by merchants and traders, who live there without their families, and the place is so notoriously immoral that a respectable Chinese woman will not go there to reside, nor can women from the neighbouring villages be induced to visit the missionary ladies at Yentai. It must be added, that the moral character of the place has not improved since it has been opened to foreign commerce. We feel that the occupation of such a place, when others, hopeful and encouraging, offer themselves, would be a serious error.

A Physician much needed.

Reference has been made in former letters to our great want of a medical missionary. Wherever we are located this want will be felt. Aside from the importance of having a physician in every station, the probability that we will frequently be visited by invalids from the south, requiring medical attendance, makes the presence of one here all the more imperative. We have thought it important again to present this subject before you, and trust that ere long we may have the pleasure of welcoming a medical brother to this interesting field.

Having been prevented by the incursion of the rebels from making any extended explorations of this and the adjoining provinces, we are unable to give you minute information of the country about us. It is evident, however, that other fields, on every side of us, perhaps not less important and promising than this, are ripe for the harvest. The opening of China to missionary labour, so far as the reigning dynasty is concerned, is now a fact. The unsettled state of the country on account of the rebels is the great obstacle to the indefinite extension of our work, and we trust that this will ere long be removed, or overruled for good. We need a large force to enter in and possess the land. What is the church willing and able to do in responding to this call?

On behalf of the mission,

JOHN L. NEVIUS.

CHIPPEWA MISSION.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATION AT GROVE HILL.

Grove Hill, January 3, 1862.

Dear Sir—We have forwarded vouchers and reports of the school to the agent, which the government requires. In now sending this report to the Board, I may say in general, that the past year presents nothing of special interest at this station.

Death of a scholar—Sickness of another.

There has been some sickness, and one death in the school. A bright, apt little girl, of seven years, died in the institution. The father was very dissipated, spending everything for drink. While she lay sick he was drinking, occasionally coming to see her in his sober moments. Her death appeared to touch him. I addressed them plainly at the funeral, and tried to impress them that the death of their child was an affliction sent in mercy to arrest their minds, and call them to the Saviour, and if they turned to God by repentance, they would hereafter see this bereavement to be a mercy. Both parents have since attended meeting. He has been sober, and she quite disposed to receive instruction. Another little girl, of ten, was taken home very sick. We had little hope she would recover, but she got better. She has not returned to school. Her mother says she will send her again when she gets entirely well.

Number of scholars—Their studies and improvement—Religious services.

We had eleven girls and fourteen boys in the summer; now we have nine girls and fourteen boys. Our plan was to take about twelve girls and thirteen boys; but girls of a suitable age, and good promise, have not offered. All the children except two read in the Testament. Eleven study the quarto geography, and have quite a correct knowledge of it. Arithmetic, grammar, history, philosophy, physiology, and book-keeping, have been studied during the year, and some are quite advanced in several of these studies. The children now in school are orderly, and are making praiseworthy improvement. The prevalence of the measles and whooping-cough for a time interrupted the children in their regular studies; but the school has gone on with less friction, and more pleasantly and satisfactorily than usual. If the school should be suspended, these children would be scattered, and very few, if any of them, would have opportunity of any further improvement, and be exposed to a vicious influence that would be likely to destroy many of them.

There has not been any special religious interest among the children, nor in the congregation. Meetings have been regularly attended, and the members of the church have conducted themselves well. One who had been a backslider for a long time, asked to be restored, and has been very orderly, and attentive to all the meetings. On Sabbath, meetings are held morning and afternoon, with Sabbath-school, and prayer-meeting on Friday afternoon at the church. A prayer-meeting is held on Wednesday evening at the native houses, conducted by the chief and other leading members.

Discouraging things—What is duty?—Signs of great good done.

Our congregation is small, but quite regular. From eighty to one hundred, including the school, are usually present. When we consider the time and means necessary to continue regular religious services among these people, and the little prospect of any increase in numbers, and the almost certain prospect that as a white population presses around them they will become less, the question arises, Shall we continue our labours? To abandon them does not appear duty. Without care, without Sabbath services, and instruction, they will be scattered and perish. The duty still appears plain to go forward with our work, while the church will furnish the means of continuing our labours. The mission is the mission of the church, and we are but servants of the Master, under the direction of the church, as she gives direction and means to labour.

Will you inform the churches that here are yet immortal minds needing instruction, famishing souls needing the bread and water of life. Shall the cup of salvation be withdrawn from the lips of these perishing people. Tell God's people that the work they sent us here to do in the wilderness is still in progress; where twenty years ago all was a barren waste of paganism and spiritual death, the desert blossoms. Plants of righteousness are seen. Fair blossoms and pleasant fruit are found. Immortal ones are gathered into a church, and living according to the precepts of the Saviour. Tell them, on the first Sabbath of this new year some forty, most of them natives of the forest, gathered around the memorials of the Saviour's suffering, and commemorated the death of the same Saviour they love. Ask if we shall leave them. Ask them to remember these perishing ones, lest the Master have occasion to say, "Inasmuch as ye did it not to these the least, ye did it not to me."

P. DOUGHERTY.

MISCELLANY.

"HE, BEING DEAD, YET SPEAKETH."

Mrs. Ingalls, of the Baptist Mission in Burmah, in describing her tour to Bassein, speaks of an interesting instance of the efficacy of the labours of her late husband.

"Having left my girls at their cooking, I thought, 'I am the only one to testify to the truths of the gospel;' but I soon had a middle aged man by my side, who joined me in telling the people about the creation of the world. I was very much struck with his correctness, and, turning around, inquired who had told him about these things. 'O, I heard this many years ago, from teacher Ingalls,' he said; 'he told me all about the Lord Jesus Christ, who came to this world, and died for us, and I shall never forget it.' I then asked him if he did not know me. He replied that he did not; and I then told him that I was 'Mamma Ingalls.' He was much startled at this, and clasping his hands, bowed very low at my feet. I sat down by him, and questioned him of his future hopes. He said he did not worship idols, and did not revere Gaudama; he believed in the eternal God, and hoped to become his disciple at some future time."—The Macedonian, Jan. 1862.

THE BRAHMANS.

The Brahmans of India, as our readers are aware, are the highest class of people in that country—a very haughty and imperious race. They obtain such influence over the minds of others, that it is no unusual thing for them to receive a certain kind of worship from their fellow-men. Even the water in which the Brahman washes his feet is deemed so sacred, that people of the lower castes will drink it with superstitious reverence, expecting to derive some important benefit from its reception. They are the priests and teachers of the false religion which prevails in India, and the great opponents of the blessed gospel. It is dreadful to think of the crimes which the people are induced to commit under their special direction and teaching.

Some time ago, one of our missionaries at Meerut thus records the following instance of this:

"A shocking circumstance occurred to-day. A Hindu rushed forward, and threw his living child into the stream, as a sacrifice to Gunga, having violently forced it from the arms of the weeping mother. Some people were encouraged and directed, by the vigilance of the Judge, to rescue the poor little creature from death; and they happily succeeded. The man was taken up, and on being questioned, declared, 'This Brahman,' pointing him out, 'directed me to do this, to atone for my sins.'"—Ch. Miss. Inst., Nov. 1861.

BURIAL OF A MISSIONARY'S CHILD.

Mr. Scudder, of Madura, India, wrote, in September last, to friends at Boston: "We have had duties outside of the ordinary line to perform today. Mr. Rendall's little daughter, one year old to-morrow, who has been hanging on the edge of the grave for two weeks past, quietly died yesterday evening at ten o'clock. This morning, at nine o'clock, we buried her—so quickly do the dead have to pass from sight in this tropical country. Some pine boards, which had formed a part of my carriage case, served for a coffin, which was made last night. Hattie lined it neatly with white muslin, and Mr. Washburn and I covered it with black cambric, to hide the poverty of the looks. We had a brief service in the sitting-room—the judge and doctor of the place joining us, and the natives sitting respectfully by the door—and then Mr. Washburn and I took the coffin into my carriage. We walked to the cemetery, where already many little children lie, and under the shade of the tall cocoa-nuts, laid this little one by their side. It was a new service for me to perform. Within two weeks, one little one has come into the circle, and one has left it."—Missionary Herald.

AN IMPORTANT DISTINCTION.

Dr. Judson said that the Karens were like men with empty vessels, that only wanted filling; while the Buddhists had vessels which must be emptied, and they were unwilling to do so.

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

IN FEBRUARY, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Troy—Second ch. Troy, Industrious Soc'y 10. Pby of Albany—Charlton ch 35 50; Kingsboro' ch 6 37; Ballston Spa ch 25 55; West Milton ch 8 82; Princeton ch 47 50; Broadalbin ch 8; Carlisle ch 5; Ballston Centre ch mo con 8; 1st ch, Albany, 701 49; Tribes' Hill ch 5. Pby of Mohawk—Park Central ch, Syracuse 38; Oneida ch 20; Oneida Valley ch 15 934 23

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Ogdensburgh—Hammond ch 16. Pby of Genesee River—Moscow ch 5; Wyoming ch ann'l coll 17 80, mo con 6 46, Sab sch 7 62, less Record and exch, 28 62; Bath 1st ch 10. Pby of Buffalo City—Bethany Centre ch 3 14. Pby of Rochester City—Third ch, Rochester, 143 05 205 81

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Hudson—Scotchtown ch 102 96, Sab sch 4 59; Goshen ch Sab sch, to ed heathen children, 50. Pby of North River—Newburgh 1st ch 100; Cold Spring ch 25. Pby of Bedford—Mount Kisco ch 21 20, Sab sch 3 80; Bedford ch 76, of which 30 to cons OZIAS W PECK L. M. Pby of Long Island—Southampton ch 58; Bridgehampton ch 25; West Hampton ch 5; East Hampton ch 161, Sab sch 16. Pby of New York—Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch ann. coll add'l 3000, mo con 12 60, Mission chapel 4 50; Chelsea ch mo con 17 50; 1st ch, N. York, mo con 201 50, Sab sch, for Shanghai mission school, 62 15; Brick ch mo con 42 86; 42d street ch ann'l coll 42 93; Lebbeus B Ward 100; University Place ch ann'l coll 1765 28, mo con 276. Pby of New York 2d—Scotch ch mo con 210; Canal street ch mo con 11; 1st ch, Peekskill, ann'l coll and mo con 132, less 5 for Foreign Missionary. Pby of Connecticut—Rye ch mo con 32 25. Pby of Nassau—Second ch, Brooklyn, 57 11; Astoria ch mo con 18 71; Williamsburgh ch mo con 36 48, Sab sch, for Iowa 50, for Corisco 40; German ch, Williamsburgh, 2 6758 42

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—Westfield ch 42 66, Sab sch 15; Baskingridge ch 65; Pluckamin ch 17; New Providence ch 15; German ch, Meyersville, 1. Pby of Passaic—Connecticut Farms ch 30; Newark 3d ch Sab sch 4; 1st ch, Paterson, mo con 7 37; German ch, Paterson, 2 50. Pby of New Brunswick—Pennington ch 36; Laurence ch 88 37; Central ch Sab sch, for Corisco, 20; Trenton 3d ch 66 02; Titusville ch Sab sch 5; Princeton ch Sab sch 9 10. Pby of West Jersey—First ch, Bridgeton, 172, children of a family 8; Woodstown ch 6; Brick ch, Cedarville, 31. Pby of Newton—First ch, Newton, 120 25; Andover ch 4. Pby of Raritan—Clinton ch 30; Lambertville ch 40. Pby of Susquehanna—Orwell ch 2; Rome ch 1 50; Troy ch 10; Monroeton ch 5. Pby of Luzerne—Hazleton ch Sab sch 8 33; Lake ch 5; Tunkhannock ch 5 50; Mauch Chunk Sab sch 38; German ch, Scranton 1. Pby of Burlington—Columbus ch Sab sch 9 920 60

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—Seventh ch, Philadelphia, 443 82, of which 50 to ed two children at Corisco; Chester ch 48, of which 23 from Sab sch; 9th ch, Philadelphia, a lady 10; 10th ch, Philadelphia, ann'l coll, less 10 for Record, 206 75, three mo con colls 71 95, W J M 20, W Sargeant 10, R Creswell 5, 15th ch, Philadelphia, 1 23; West Spruce street ch, a lady 2. Pby of Philadelphia Central—North ch mo con, add'l, 21 23; Cohocksink ch 21; Penn ch 10, mo con 18 86; Spring Garden ch Sab sch 13 35. Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Holmesburg ch 28 88; Neshaminy ch 55 65. Pby of Newcastle—Red Clay Creek ch Sab sch 6; White Clay Creek and Head of Christiana chs 20; 1st ch, Wilmington, 87 81, of which 14 02 from Sab sch and 10 from Mrs Dr Porter. Pby of Donegal—Leacock ch 1; Columbia ch Sab sch 47. Pby of Huntingdon—Milroy ch 100; Bellefonte ch 83 50; 1st ch, Hollidaysburg, 42 40, Female Miss'y Soc'y, for Orphan School at Allahabad 50, for Canton Mission 15 25; Sinking Valley ch 35; Cottage ch 12, one-half of presbyterial coll 11 59; Little Valley ch 33. Pby of Northumberland—Washington ch 21 47; Jersey Shore ch 13; Sunbury ch Sab sch 1 75; Williamsport ch Sab sch 10; Warrior Run ch 30 1708 49

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.—Pby of Baltimore—Westminster ch, Baltimore, add'l for 1861, 175; 12th ch, Baltimore, Sab sch 5; Pby of Carlisle—Upper Path Valley ch 56 50, of which 25 from Sab sch, to ed a boy in Siam; New Bloomfield ch 20; Silver Spring ch Sab sch 10; Dickinson ch 25; Burnt Cabins ch, add'l, 50 cts; Lower Path Valley ch 2 25; Greencastle ch 60 15; Carlisle ch 176 25. Pby of Lewes—Snow Hill ch, Md. 12 50 543 15

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Redstone—New Providence and Jefferson chs 10; Uniontown ch 83 45; Mount Washington ch 4. Pby of Ohio—Miller's Run and Canonsburg chs, to sup of Rev Samuel F McFarland, Siam Mission, 40; Hopewell ch 11 37; Chartier's ch 40 62; Temperanceville ch 11 81; Mt Washington ch 13 50; 1st ch, Pittsburgh, 539. Pby of Clarion—Callensburg ch Female Miss'ry Soc'y 6 50. Pby of Saltsburgh—Harmony ch 5; Parnassus ch 8 773 25

SYNOD OF ALLEGHANY.—Pby of Alleghany—Scrub Grass ch 3. Pby of Beaver—Mount Pleasant ch 12 50; Clarksville ch, bal to con Rev C C RIGGS L M 5. Pby of Erie—Franklin ch Sab sch, to ed a boy in India 6; Concord ch 4. Pby of Alleghany City—Bridgewater ch Sab sch 8 50 39 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—Cove ch 5 36; Forks of Wheeling ch 47; First ch Wheeling 106 07. Pby of Steubenville—New Hagerstown ch 22; 2d ch Steubenville 41; Steubenville Fem Sem Soc'y of Inquiry 17 43; Big Spring ch 6; Bethlehem ch 5. Pby of New Lisbon—Clarkson ch 7; Deerfield ch 14 75; Madison ch 8 73; Long Run ch 19 60; Concord ch 3 39. Pby of St. Clairsville—Martinsville ch 7 47; St. Clairsville ch 41; Kirkwood ch 44 66 363 46

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Columbus—Mount Pleasant ch 25; Westminster ch 40 06; Scioti ch 4; Mifflin ch 14 55. Pby of Marion—Delaware 1st ch 10. Pby of Zanesville—Brownsville ch 28; Marietta ch 2 27; Zanesville 1st ch 15; Cambridge ch 42 60. Pby of Richland—Ashland ch in part 40 65. Pby of Coshocton—Berlin ch 11, mo con 9 26, Sab sch 6 35 248 74

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.—Pby of Michigan—Oakland ch 5. Pby of Western Reserve—Springfield ch 3. Pby of Maumee—Hicksville ch 5; Union ch 6 19 00

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Chillicothe—Rev J A Lowes and family 4; South Salem ch 149, of which 6 from Sab sch; Eckmansville ch 7 50. Pby of Miami—Third ch Dayton 25; Sinking Creek ch 12 35; Miami City ch 20; Franklin ch 11 06; First ch Dayton 116 33, of which 60 62 from the Sab sch. Pby of Cincinnati—Fifth ch Cincinnati, Sab sch 20. Pby of Oxford—First and Third chs Oxford 8; Hamilton ch 15 39; Bethel ch 12; College Corner ch 15. Pby of Sidney—Cherokee ch 5; Belle Centre ch 3; Troy ch 7 430 63

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of New Albany—Jeffersonville ch, Wm Prague 5. Pby of Vincennes—Upper Indiana ch 10; Bruceville ch 2; Indiana ch 3 70. Pby of Madison—Hanover ch 5. Pby of Indianapolis—Knightstown ch 10; Shiloh ch 2; Boggstown ch 6 80; New Prospect ch 2 20; Shelbyville ch 12. Pby of Whitewater—Pleasant Grove ch 7 65 70

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Logansport—Rossville ch 4; Indian Creek ch 5; Mill Creek ch 4 25; Monticello ch 3; Centre ch 2; Logansport ch 13. Pby of Lake—Goshen ch, Ind., 4, Sab sch to ed a boy at Corisco 14 50. Pby of Fort Wayne—Eel River ch 6; Columbia City ch 4; Fort Wayne First ch 22 25, Sab sch 47; Decatur ch 4 75; Pleasant Hill ch 1 25; Flat Rock ch 1; Wabash ch, Mrs A Still 1. Pby of Crawfordsville—Greencastle ch 10; First ch Terre Haute 12. Pby of Muncie—Muncie ch, Ind. 8 35; Tipton ch 3 170 35

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Palestine—Oakland ch, Ill. 11 20; Mattoon ch 50 cts. Pby of Peoria—Second ch Peoria 29 30, a member, in part, to con Rev SAMUEL HIBBEN L M 15; Lewistown ch 50; Elba Centre ch 6. Pby of Hillsboro'—Hillsboro' ch 5 50. Pby of Bloomington—Waynesville ch 9 55; Dwight ch 2; Metamora ch 2 75; Low Point ch 4 25 136 05

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.—Pby of Schuyler—Ebenezer ch 10 30; Oquawka ch 4 80, Sab sch 1 50; First ch Aledo 6 42; Galesburg ch 30; Prairie City ch 2; Shiloh ch 2; Perry ch 5, one half of Presbyterial collection 15. Pby of Rock River—Camden ch Camden Mills, Rev Jacob Coon and wife 5; Rock Island 1st ch 15; South ch Galena 20; Zion ch 2 10; Newton ch 3 122 12

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.—Pby of Dane—Richland City ch 2; Richland Centre ch 2; Fancy Creek ch 2; Pby of Milwaukie—North ch Milwaukie 10; Westminster ch Beloit 63 15 79 15

SYNOD OF ST. PAUL.—Pby of St. Paul—Central ch St Paul's 10; First ch Hudson, Sab sch 5 50; Jonathan Green 2 50. Pby of Chippewa—Galesville ch 2; La Crescent ch 3, Eau Claire ch mo con 6, Sab sch for Corisco 14 31. Pby of Lake Superior—Superior ch 1. Pby of Owatonna—Lake City ch 4, mo con 10; Rev Wm Spear 30, bal to con himself Life Director; St. Peter's ch 10 98 31

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Dubuque—First German ch Dubuque 25; Peosta ch 2; Independence ch 3; Andrew ch 2 03; Maquoketa ch 2; Waukon ch 1; German ch Lycurgus 50 cts 35 53

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.—Pby of Iowa—Trenton ch 3; Evangelical St. Peter's ch 5. Pby of Des Moines—Indianapolis ch 1. Pby of Council Bluffs—Sidney ch 10; Pacific City ch, Rev D L Hughes and family 3. Pby of Fairfield—Birmingham ch 12 34 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.—Pby of Louisville—First ch Louisville, two mo cons 32 25; a friend 20; 2d ch Louisville, two mo cons 22 70. Pby of Transylvania—Paint Lick ch 20 78; Silver Creek ch, Mrs N M Moran 2. Pby of West Lexington—Georgetown ch 10; Cherry Spring ch 11 70; Midway ch 15. Pby of Ebenezer—Lebanon ch 6 56 140 99

Total received from churches, $13,826 98

LEGACIES.—Bequest of Mrs Mary Kelso, Penn. 80; John S Crane Assignee of H Wallace 11 04; Legacy of James X McLanahan, dec'd, of N. Y. 400; Patterson Estate 50; Estate of Wm Thompson, dec'd, of Long Run ch 10 551 04

MISCELLANEOUS.——— 7341 67; Miss Jane Vanderveer, Futtehgurh Missions 2; Mrs "M A S," Belleville, N. J. 2; S Wells Williams 98 37; Wm McGookin 1; "W H" 2; John Callahan, to ed a boy in Corisco 5; Rev M F and Mrs Mary Adams, for Orphan Girls' School in Lodiana, in memory of their daughter Mary Emma 30; Anna E Brown's savings, a little girl 1 50; Rose C Stewart, Penn. 2; a friend of Bogota 2 64; Richard Blydenburg, Smithtown, Long Island 5; Miss R Gould, Chicago, Ill. 8; Col G Loomis 5; Mrs John Morrison, N. Y. 5; Rev S H McDonald Bellville, Penn. 3 65; a friend, to con Rev JOHN STOCKTON L M 30; Jane street United Pb'n ch, N. Y., Sab sch, for Ningpo 10; two ladies 500; Fort Washington Sab sch, Miss A Dickinson's class 3 50; North Congregational ch Enfield, Conn, Rev A G Brigham pastor 64 23; J R Calderwood, West Galway, N. Y. 5; Rev Joseph Platt, Ill. 30; Rev George Morris, Mansfield, Ohio 220; Miss Janet Morris 250; A Porter, Chippewa Mission 50; Rev Robert McCachren, Newville, Penn. 10; a friend in Danville, Ky. 25; Rev A S Howsley, Greenville, Ky. 5; Mr A Wayland, Des Moines, Mo. 2; "Wyndcliffe," a thank-offering 20; Rev R J Hall, Lebanon, Ohio 3; Mrs Jane Hall 3; Miss Nancy Henderson 3; Wm Beard, Frankville, Iowa 2; Rev S Cowles, West Point, Iowa 1; W, Iowa 5 8756 56

Total Receipts in February, 1862, $23,134 58

Special contributions for endowment of Waldensian Seminary. C C B 100 00

Previously acknowledged, 14,300 00

Total, $14,400 00

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., or Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, Jr., Esq., Treasurer—same address.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY—Two editions of this publication are printed. The Pamphlet Edition contains 32 pages, and is published monthly, at 50 cents a year for each copy. It is sent free, when desired, to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to the ministers of our churches.

The Newspaper Edition contains a selected portion of the contents of the pamphlet edition. A copy is sent free of charge, except for postage, to the children of each family in every Sunday School making regular contributions to the Treasury of the Board.

Address for either edition, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—

Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D. D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 910 Arch street;
Pittsburg, Pa., Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky., Andrew Davidson;
Memphis, Tenn., J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Mo., David Keith;
Natchez, Miss., Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Va., Henry C. Watkins;
Columbia, S. C., H. C. Bronson;
Augusta, Geo., James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board, and should be preceded, or accompanied by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

OVERLAND MAIL.—Letters for the Overland Mail are forwarded from the Mission House by the steamers nearest the first and fifteenth of each month. Postage: from New York, to SIAM, CHINA, JAPAN, and BRAZIL, forty-five cents for each half ounce weight; but if sent by the French mail, thirty cents for each quarter ounce weight; to LIBERIA and CORISCO, thirty-three cents for each half ounce weight; to INDIA, via Southampton, thirty-six cents for each half ounce weight; via Marseilles, forty-two cents for a quarter ounce weight; forty-nine cents for a half ounce weight, sixty-seven for three-quarter ounce weight, seventy-four for an ounce weight, a dollar and five cents for an ounce and a half weight. Letters to be forwarded by the "French mail," or to India "via Marseilles," must be so marked. Postage on newspapers, six cents each. The postage on letters and newspapers must be prepaid. The letters forwarded from the Mission House to each Mission are put in an outside envelope, and therefore stamps should not be affixed to them. The postage is assessed according to the weight of each letter, and may be paid by sending postage stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the Payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,

No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of Colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record and Sabbath-school Visitor, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., Corresponding Secretary, No. 821 Chestnut street.

All communications, reports, remittances of money, and orders for books, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage, and Business Correspondent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to Rev. W. M. Engles, D. D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to James Dunlap, Esq., Treasurer.

OUR WORK IN KENTUCKY.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 28, 1862.

Rev. W. E. Schenck, D. D.,
Corr. Sec'y of Board of Publication.

Dear Sir—Our people seem readily to comprehend something of the dreadfully corrupting influences of camp life. They see that, in rain, and snow, and mud, and sleet, but little preaching can be done; that every division of the army here is almost constantly moving; that from exposure to this extremely wet, chilling winter, large numbers must be sick; that these sick are in hospitals, widely scattered over the country, in the lines of the march of the troops, wherever covering and protection from weather could be had, in large and small towns, and in the country; and I have found it easy to show them that well-selected religious reading, (tracts, and small practical volumes,) in the hands of chaplains, were the most timely and powerful agency to effect the moral work with these men. The chaplains know their men, and can avail themselves of their leisure to furnish them with reading. They can cheer up all these dark, cheerless hospitals with the blessed pages of truth—warning the sinner, instructing the inquirer, applying a balm to every wound, and comforting the child of God.

There are 150,000 soldiers now in this state. The number, and widely-scattered sick, and their moral destitution in many instances, all make an appeal to us, and through us to benevolent and Christian hearts throughout our whole country, the adequate expression to which I feel utterly unable to give. As you know, I have already distributed among them about 500,000 pages, supplying, say 40,000 men; some 25,000 pages went into the hospitals. Many chaplains have said to me, that their regiments had not had a page since they had been in the state; and there are several large divisions of the army in this state, to which I have not been able to send a page. I am utterly overwhelmed, when I contemplate the field before us—the demand upon us for large effort; but we cannot adequately distribute our books and tracts, for the want of means.

A general pass from General Buell enables me to enter his lines at pleasure; and had I the tracts and books, I could know the wants of, and supply every chaplain in the state. And, after doing so much, I could make a strong appeal to very many who could, and doubtless would, make liberal contributions to our work.

Dear sir, if you know how to reach the hearts and purses of our Christian people, do—do it without delay; for while we delay, hundreds perish, and are gone for ever! I feel that I ought to be engaged constantly in supplying these poor fellows with the word of life, ere they perish. Dreadful has been the exposure, dreadful the sufferings, and most commendable and praiseworthy the bravery of these men; and our obligations to them are of the highest character. Do give me liberty, as soon as possible, to spread widely our books and tracts among these destitute, brave, and suffering fellows.

Yours, truly, M. G. K.

N. B.—Persons inclined to help carry forward this good work, may send their contributions to James Dunlap, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Publication, No. 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

COLPORTAGE IN ARMY HOSPITALS.

Cairo, Illinois, March, 1862.

Rev. Dr. Schenck:

My Dear Sir—Since my last was written, I have continued, day after day, my pleasant yet arduous colportage work among the soldiers in this vicinity. I have visited all the hospitals I can find in Cairo, and also the Mound City General Hospital, containing, at the time of my visit, over fourteen hundred inmates. I have conversed with every one of those men able to understand me, and have put one of our Soldiers' Series of tracts into the hands of every one able to read. It has been no light labour, yet the good hand of the Lord seems to have upheld me, and his Spirit seems to have put words into my mouth. O how eagerly these poor and suffering sick and wounded receive and read what is offered them, and how intently they listen to the few words spoken to them in love! Many of them feel that they probably will die, and confess that they are not prepared for the great change. I try to direct them to the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world. May the Spirit seal and bless the instructions.

One frightfully wounded man, who must soon die, yet is able to read, refuses the tracts. He says he needs nothing of the kind. He has never been afraid of death, since he could remember. He knows nothing of Christ, and has never learned to trust in him. I try to awaken him from this fatal stupor—to impress upon him his need of a Saviour, and to teach him the way to Christ. He listens, apparently unmoved; and with a few solemn words of warning, I leave him.

To me, this colportage work in hospitals, where the ground seems to be specially prepared for the seed, is peculiarly pleasant and hopeful. These men are willing to read, and they are forced to think. Always, after finishing my labours in a ward, and before leaving these men for ever, I turn at the door, to see what they are doing, and find nearly every man in the ward carefully reading his tracts. It is gratifying to find that, in nine cases out of ten, lighter and less profitable reading is laid aside for the attractive and instructive tracts of the Soldier's Series.

Dare any one say that all this work is in vain? Dare any one pronounce it useless? Sometimes, when a poor man says he cannot read, a hospital nurse will say, "Take the tracts, and I will read them to you." And it is a very common thing for some one able to read, to offer to read aloud to those upon adjoining beds. This I have seen in many cases.

"Halloo, shipmate, what have you brought us to read?" said one of the men scalded by the accident on board the gunboat Essex, as I entered the ward where he lay. "I have brought you a few religious tracts, my friend, which I hope you may find to your spiritual profit," I replied. "That is the kind we need here," said he; "lay them in my hand, so that I can read them." I did so; and when I last saw the poor man, he was attentively reading his tracts. Christian brother! Christian sister! is this useless labour?

"What have you to sell?" the men will ask, as I set down my basket in their quarters. They appear delighted when I tell them I have nothing to sell; that I do not want their money; but that I have brought them religious tracts and books. "To whom are we indebted for all these?" is the often repeated inquiry; and I know the men are grateful when I tell them that a few friends of the soldier give their money to the Presbyterian Board of Publication, to enable it to prosecute this good work. Would that every member of our church would take stock in this enterprise, in proportion to his ability, and thus call down upon his head the soldier's blessing!

I am very often asked to write my name and post-office address, in the "Soldier's Pocket-Book." This little book becomes daily more and more popular. It is impossible to meet the demand, without giving one to each soldier. It does seem wrong to deny the book to men who beg so earnestly for it. Will not the church enable us to put one into the hands of every soldier?

I have now laboured two weeks in Cairo and its vicinity. In that short time I have distributed four thousand two hundred and fifty "Soldier's Pocket-Book," giving one to about every three men of a regiment. I have also distributed more than one hundred and fifty thousand pages of tracts, and have placed religious reading, of the Board's publication, in the hands of more than fifteen thousand men. Fifteen regiments, and several companies and parts of regiments, have been supplied with books and tracts. And now, when the work of supply is but just begun, my stock is exhausted; and you tell me that the exhaustion of the Distribution Fund prevents your sending me more stock at present. This is indeed painful. Must I then leave this great work undone? Must I indeed turn my back upon these thousands—upon the forty thousand men at Commerce, within twenty miles of me? Two weeks' labour would supply them; and must I leave them unsupplied? Now, when these aggregations of men—ten, twenty, aye, forty thousand, upon one or two miles square—enable a colporteur to do the ordinary work of months in a single day, will not ample means be given our Board for the vigorous prosecution of this good work? Cannot the means be provided to enable me soon to return to this promising field of labour, and feed these immortal thousands with the bread of life? Thirty or forty thousand men within reach, and the church unready to furnish the means to supply them with religious reading! Must it be so? "Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Ashkelon; lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph." C. O. W.

THE FAMILY.

The family is like a book:
The children are the leaves,
The parents are the cover, that
Protective beauty gives.

At first the pages of the book
Are blank and purely fair,
But time soon writeth memories,
And painteth pictures there.

Love is the little golden clasp
That bindeth up the trust;
Oh break it not, lest all the leaves
Shall scatter and be lost.

COLPORTAGE IN AND AROUND PHILADELPHIA.

A colporteur of the Board, labouring in this city, reports that he distributed during the month of February 68,519 pages of tracts, including 500 copies of the "Sinner's Resolve,"—4780 copies of the "Soldier's Pocket Book," German and English, and 13 miscellaneous volumes.

These have been distributed among 5750 soldiers, consisting of portions of regiments in the neighbourhood of the city, portions of regiments passing through from other states, and invalids in the various hospitals, to wit, in the hospitals of the Cooper Shop and Refreshment Saloons, at the military hospitals at Christian street, Broad and Cherry streets, and Fifth and Buttonwood streets.

Many very interesting incidents occurred in connection with this mission in the course of the month, which space will not permit us to record. Suffice it to say, that our books and tracts were received by all with great thankfulness, and by many of those passing through the city with greediness, while many a warm "Thank you," and "God bless you," was returned by the receivers.

LETTER FROM ELLSWORTH, CONNECTICUT.

THE WAY THE BOOKS ARE RECEIVED IN CAMP.

Messrs. Editors—Some days since I forwarded to the captain of one of our companies of volunteers, a package of the "Soldier's Pocket Book," published by the Presbyterian Board. Since the distribution, which was done in the thorough manner of writing the names of the men in the books, and presenting them when they were drawn up in line, I have received the following account of their reception.

"The boys were very much gratified to receive the 'Soldier's Pocket-Book,' and some of them wished me to propose three cheers for the generous donors. But I told them that a better test of their gratitude would be the manner in which they used them.

"Several times since then, I have seen men, who were sick in the hospital, with a copy of the 'Soldier's Pocket-Book' before them, searching into, and learning those truths which would not only benefit them in this life, but prepare them for the life to come."

A PRAYING DRUMMER BOY.

A little drummer boy went on one of the transport ships to Fortress Monroe, with his regiment, and just at evening, overcome with the fatigues of the day, he had lain down upon the deck, and had fallen asleep. The dews were falling. The colonel came along and shook him by the shoulder, and told him he would take cold if he continued to lie there, and advised him to go below, and get to his rest for the night. As he was getting up, his Bible fell out of his pocket upon the deck. He picked it up and replaced it. Some kind hand, perhaps a mother or a Sunday-school teacher, had given him that Bible.

He went below and prepared himself for his bed. When ready, he kneeled down—many loudly-talking men standing around—put his hands together in the attitude of prayer, and poured out his heart silently to God. He heeded not the noise around him. In a moment all was hushed; the company, being overawed by the conduct of the boy, reverently stood silent until he had finished his prayer.

DONATIONS RECEIVED FOR THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION, DURING THE MONTH OF FEBRUARY, 1862, FOR SOLDIERS, SAILORS, AND GENERAL COLPORTAGE.

Pby of Albany—Carlisle ch 5; Albany 1st ch 64 25; S J Rider 15	84 25
Pby of Mohawk—Oneida Valley ch	3 00
Pby of Ogdensburg—Oswegatchie ch, two ladies	10 00
Pby of Rochester City—Port Byron ch	11 00
Pby of Bedford—South Greensburg ch	14 52
Pby of Long Island—Smithtown ch, E F Mundy	3 00
Pby of New York—Jersey City ch 49 34; Rutgers Street ch 157 17, T Skidmore Esq 30, E Platt Esq 12	248 51
Pby of New York 2d—Peekskill ch 57 50; Jersey City 1st ch, "a member" 10	67 50
Pby of Nassau—Brooklyn 1st ch, Atlantic Mission School	9 00
Pby of Elizabethtown—Plainfield 1st ch 10; Rahway ch Sab sch 20	30 00
Pby of Passaic—Newark 3d ch 10; Connecticut Farms ch 16; Chester ch 26	52 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Titusville ch Sab sch 6 67; Trenton 1st ch 82; Pennington ch 20; Trenton 3d ch 21	129 67
Pby of West Jersey—Deerfield ch 4; Williamstown ch 5; Fisherville ch 2; Cedarville Brick ch 7 25	18 25
Pby of Newton—Mt Bethel ch	6 00
Pby of Susquehanna—Wysox ch	5 00
Pby of Luzerne—Scranton German ch 1; Nanticoke ch 3; Tamaqua ch 5; Newton ch, J B Adams 5; Scranton ch, S Sherrerd 15	29 00
Pby of Burlington—Plumstead ch	3 00
Pby of Monmouth—Millstone ch 5; Freehold Village ch 30	35 00
Pby of Philadelphia—Media and Middletown chs 6 50; 15th ch 1 23; 7th ch, Penn Square 29 24, a member 20	56 97
Pby of Philadelphia Central—West Arch Street ch, a member 30; Alexander ch 10 10; Central ch 99 52	139 62
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Holmesburg ch 4 28; Chestnut Hill ch 24; Neshaminy ch 5 90; Germantown 1st ch 112 72	146 90
Pby of Newcastle—Penningtonville ch, in part	5 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Tuscarora ch 10; Hollidaysburg ch 17 39	27 39
Pby of Northumberland—Warrior Run ch 15; Buffalo ch 16 75	31 75
Pby of Baltimore—Westminster ch 166, do. Sab sch 41 72; Taneytown ch 15	222 72
Pby of Carlisle—Bedford ch, Miss Anna Cox 5; Chambersburg ch, Ladies' Assoc'n 10	15 00
Pby of Redstone—Long Run ch 26 16; Harmony ch 1	27 16
Pby of Ohio—Mingo ch 15 80; Miller's Run ch 20	35 80
Pby of Erie—Gravel Run ch 3; Washington ch 2	5 00
Pby of Allegheny City—Rochester German ch 71 cts; Bridgewater German ch 16 cts; Freedom German ch 38 cts	1 25
Pby of Washington—Cross-Roads ch 15 30; Upper Buffalo ch 18	33 30
Pby of Steubenville—Harlem ch 6 22; Waynesburg ch 4; Bethlehem ch 2 25	12 47
Pby of Columbus—Lithopolis ch	2 00
Pby of Zanesville—Coshocton ch 5; Norwich ch 1 95; Duncan Falls ch 2; Pleasant Hill ch 3 03	11 98
Pby of Richland—Martinsburg ch	10 00
Pby of Wooster—Jackson ch	5 28
Pby of Coshocton—Apple Creek ch 12; Nashville ch 3; East Hopewell ch 1 50; Clark ch 6	22 50
Pby of Western Reserve—Springfield ch	3 00
Pby of Chillicothe—Hillsboro' ch	65 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Lebanon ch 1; Cincinnati 5th ch 14 50	15 50
Pby of Sidney—Stoney Creek ch	11 00
Pby of Vincennes—Evansville ch	50 00
Pby of Whitewater—Pleasant Grove ch	4 00
Pby of Logansport—Monticello ch 2; Delphi ch, to aid in supplying soldiers with books 16	18 00
Pby of Lake—Goshen ch	2 12
Pby of Fort Wayne—Bluffton ch 2 21; New Lancaster ch 1 56; Fort Wayne ch 4 75	8 52
Pby of Sangamon—Irish Grove ch	5 00
Pby of Peoria—Henry ch	15 00
Pby of Bloomington—Crow Meadow ch, A S Sherwood	6 55
Pby of Rock River—Rock Run ch	3 00
Pby of Schuyler—Galesburg ch 10; Perry ch 5	15 00
Pby of Chicago—St Anne 2d ch	1 00
Pby of Winnebago—Burnett and Dodge Centre chs 3 75; Horicon ch 4	7 75
Pby of Dubuque—Waukon German ch 1; Lycurgus ch 45 cts	1 45
Pby of Des Moines—Indianapolis ch 1; Albia ch 4 45	5 45
Pby of Louisville—Elizabethtown ch 10 90; Shelbyville ch 27 25; Owensboro' ch 21	59 15
Pby of Transylvania—Lebanon 1st and 2d chs 26 40; Danville 1st and 2d chs 95 05; Stanford ch 15 45; Harrodsburg ch 19 20; Hanging Fork ch 8 15; Lancaster ch 16 65; Silver Creek ch 33; Newhope Reformed ch 8; Richmond ch 37; Paint Lick ch 32 45	291 35
Pby of California—Calvary ch	126 20
MISCELLANEOUS.
"A Friend," per Wm Rankin, Jr. 5; William McGookin 1; Rev John Pitman, Ohio, 5; bequest of R Patterson, dec'd, 40; Rev S B Cheek 5; Persons at Springfield 10; Rev W J McKnight 5; Dr Harding, Shelby county, 5; Otho Harding and baby 1 10; John Shaflaugh 2; Miss Sally Logan 10; Rev E W Bedinger 6 67; Rev G H Fullerton 2; Rev J R Hendricks 5; Members of Legislature, Frankford, Ky. 49; Unknown persons, Louisville, Ky. 9 92; A friend to the Gospel, Allentown, N. J. 2; "A friend," Danville, Pa. 2; Walter Lowrie, Esq. from two ladies, New York, 500; Legacy of James K McLanahan, New York, 400	1065 69
	3350 52

Donations received for the DISTRIBUTION FUND OF THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION during the month of February, 1862.

Special Donations for Sailors and Soldiers.

Princeton 2; A mite 2; Harrisburg Presb ch Sab sch, per J F Seiler, sup't, 25; A B B, Exchange Place, N. York, 20; A friend in Elizabeth 1st ch, N. J. 5; Presbyterian family in Newcastle, Del. 10; W L Patterson 5; Brooklyn 3; A friend, Zanesville, 5; A J B, Flemington, 5; "L J" 500; A lady member of the Scots' Presb ch, Philadelphia, 1; "W," Iowa, 5; W H O 2; Two sisters, Baltimore, 2 60; A sister, Harriottsville, 1; "E S," House of Refuge, Pittsburg, 5; C M & J 8; Mrs L, Delaware, 1; C, Oswego, 3; "A friend" 1; Three little children 2 50; Burlington 1; Rev A G Finney 6; H O 2; "New York" 25; Blank 1; M, 10th ch, 2; L 2; Mrs E H, 2d ch, 5; J B 10; "A lady," Trenton, 5; Miss R 2; Blank 5; Rev W Carden 2; Soldier's friend 5; Mary Wynkoop 5; Miss R, add'l, 1; G Mollison 10; Miss Sarah Donnelly, for herself and Bible-class, 4; Miss M Brown, Salona, Pa. 10; W A McClung 1; Zerelda Hutchinson 1; J H Symmes 5; A friend, Fishkill Landing, 25; A C Fisher, Warsaw, N. Y. 3; Bridgehampton, N. Y. 1; "G," New York, 30; A loyalist, Wilmington, Del. 5; B S, Spencer, 1; Mrs E J H, Williamsport, Pa. 5; R B M, Belleville, Pa. 5; P L C, New Haven, Conn. 1; S J H, Baltimore, Md. 5; G W, Geneva, N. Y. 2; E C W, Mauch Chunk, 4; J Brydesburg 1; E B Fuller 175; B E B, Pittsburg, Pa. 1; Geo S Dwight, N. York, 15; F Lawrence, Sheboygan, Wis. 20; "E," Caledonia, Livingston Co. N. Y. 10 50; * * * New York, 2; Mr Field 5; Rev T A Vaughn, D. D. 5; N S, a member of the 2d ch, per Rev Dr Shields, 2; James Allan, Plattford, Neb. 3; John Tweed, Wellsburg, Va. 3; Blank, Princeton 1 | 1054 00 |
Total,	4405 12
AMOUNT OF SALES during the month of FEBRUARY	4871 87
Total,	$9276 99

JAMES DUNLAP, Treasurer.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. H. I. Coe.
Treasurer—Archibald Gamble, Esq.
No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Missouri.

Communications on the subject of Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Donations should be sent to Archibald Gamble, Esq., St. Louis, Mo.; or, if more convenient, to J. D. Thorpe, Esq., Cincinnati, Ohio; A. Davidson, Esq., Louisville, Ky.; S. D. Powel, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Domestic Missions, No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia; T. H. Nevin, Esq., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. J. B. Kirtland, Memphis, Tennessee; or to William Rankin, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Foreign Missions, 23 Centre St., New York.

APPROPRIATIONS FROM THE GENERAL FUND.

No appropriation is made without the recommendation of the Presbytery, or the Church Extension Committee of the Presbytery within whose bounds the church applying for aid is located.

No appropriation is paid until the Board receives a certificate from the Trustees of the church aided, stating that their church lot is properly secured, and that the amount appropriated will complete their house of worship, and leave the whole property free from debt.

Appropriations not called for within two years of the date thereof, are regarded as withdrawn.

FIVE OR SIX CHANGES.

The subjoined statement, from the Rev. D. L. Hughes, minister of our church, at Plattsmouth, Nebraska Territory, reveals the trials of a houseless church. He says: "We are badly in need of a church edifice in Plattsmouth, not only for ministerial support, and congregational convenience and comfort in the worship of God, but also for congregational growth and efficiency. I have been labouring there over four years, often at very great inconvenience, having been compelled to change our place of preaching five or six times from shanty to shanty, and from store-room to store-room. And yet, amidst it all, I have been encouraged, so that our little congregation has more than doubled in that time.

"The population of Plattsmouth is not short of eight hundred, and slowly but steadily growing. It is destined, in time, to be a place of some importance, and yet there is no church there of any denomination, except a small one erected last season by the Roman Catholics. We made a good beginning last year, and then stopped. I preached a sermon on the subject, and the people secured a lot, purchased all the bricks necessary, part of the stone, &c., and got them all on the ground. Then, times being hard, and all being pressed for the necessaries of life, the work ceased. Last Sabbath, both morning and evening, in my discourses, I called their attention again to the subject. I urged them to arise and build, stating my unwavering belief in the success of their efforts, if they would, in reliance on God, only apply the will and the muscle, for as to money, it is almost 'nought' among us. I promised to furnish all the flooring, and more if necessary. Another man promised ten perches of stone, and others promised work, so that their zeal on the subject seems revived.

"Now if the Church Extension Board can furnish us about $300, I feel confident that during the present year, with God's blessing, the church may be completed, entirely free from debt. We can build, and make everything sufficiently comfortable for us for several years to come, I believe, for from $1000 to $1500. We can build a great deal cheaper now than formerly, which is another consideration for immediate effort. I think it very doubtful if we can ever build cheaper than at present. Then, too, by pushing on our enterprise now, we shall have the advantage of 'outside' assistance, which is always no small matter. A house 24 feet wide, 50 feet long, and 15 feet high, will answer our need. Please let me hear from you immediately, if possible, as we are anxious to go right ahead, and yet cannot, as our hope of success depends on a favourable reply from the Board of Church Extension."

I AM ABLE TO PREACH BETTER.

The Rev. James Frothingham, a missionary in Minnesota, in acknowledging the receipt of an appropriation to Shelden church, writes thus:

"We have now a neat and pleasant house of worship, a great desideratum in this western world. I am able to preach better in the new building. This is no illusion. In a mechanical point of view, it is a relief to the voice from the little, low, crowded log school-houses, which we often use. Even these we have failed to find in some places, and have been driven around from one place to another in a very unpleasant manner. I feel less wearied from preaching, less hoarse, and thus better fit for my second service four miles distant. Thus, in a spiritual point of view, it is a decided help to worship to have a stated place of meeting of our own. One not profaned by every secular use, but set apart for the sole purpose of worshipping God. Our meetings are more solemn and interesting, and I think that there is reason to believe that the Holy Spirit is moving among us. May the glory of God ever abide in the house which he has permitted us to build for his worship.

HELP NEEDED.

The committee of the Presbytery of Chippewa, whose field includes portions of the states of Wisconsin and Minnesota, in forwarding an application to the Board, say, "We feel that we are asking much for this field, and shall be compelled to ask much in time to come. But we are in a new field; our forces here are few and weak, and if this land is ever won to Presbyterianism and to Jesus, it must be, in the providence of God, through the active sympathies, prayers, and aid of the church abroad. That God, through his people, will abundantly replenish his treasuries, is the earnest prayer of your brethren in Christ."

Donations received by the Board of Church Extension, during the month of February, 1862.

RECEIPTS AT ST. LOUIS.

Pby of Palmyra—Hannibal 2d ch	2 35
Pby of Toledo—Salem ch	4 00
Pby of Steubenville—Hagerstown ch	5 00
Pby of Rock River—Rock Island ch	10 00
Pby of Zanesville—Duncan's Falls ch	2 00
Pby of Peoria—Elmwood ch 3 50; Salem ch 4 60; Brunswick ch 2 37	10 47
Pby of St. Paul—St. Paul Central ch	12 00
Pby of Indianapolis—Indianapolis 3d ch	25 00
Pby of Logansport—Logansport ch	5 00
Pby of Genesee River—Tuscarora ch	5 00
Pby of Sangamon—Irish Grove ch 5; Petersburg ch 14 75	19 75
Pby of Lake Superior—Superior ch	1 00
Pby of St. Clairsville—Special, as follows: St. Clairsville ch 6; Woodsfield ch 2 60; Mount Pleasant ch 5; Martinsville ch 9; Wegee ch 8; Beech Spring ch 16; Cadiz ch 13	59 60
From churches,	$161 17

MISCELLANEOUS.

A Friend (special) 1675 00; C H (special) 700	2375 00

LEGACY.

Legacy of James X McLanahan, New York	400 00
At St. Louis,	$2936 17

RECEIPTS AT CINCINNATI TO MARCH 1, 1862.

Pby of White Water—Greensburg ch	12 24
Pby of Chillicothe—Hillsboro' ch	24 00
Pby of Findlay—Riley Creek ch 2; Johnstown ch 4	6 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Cincinnati Seventh ch	28 36
At Cincinnati,	$70 60

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA AND NEW YORK.

Pby of Albany—Albany 1st ch 9; Charlton ch 8 52	17 52
Pby of Mohawk—Oneida Valley ch	4 00
Pby of New York—Chelsea ch 50; Yorkville ch 20; Jersey City ch 45 38	115 38
Pby of Passaic—Connecticut Farms ch	10 00
Pby of Connecticut—Rye ch	16 10
Pby of New Brunswick—Trenton 3d ch	44 94
Pby of West Jersey—Brick ch Cedarville	8 62
Pby of Susquehanna—Rome ch 1; Troy ch 6	7 00
Pby of Luzerne—White Haven ch 3; Eckley ch 7; Scranton German ch 1; Nanticoke ch 2	13 00
Pby of Burlington—Plumsted (or New Egypt) ch	3 00
Pby of Philadelphia—Philadelphia 15th ch 1 23; Philadelphia 9th ch 21 50	22 73
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Chestnut Hill ch 21; Neshaminy ch 15 90	36 90
Pby of Huntingdon—Shirleysburg ch	3 00
Pby of Northumberland—Buffalo ch	4 25
Pby of Erie—Meadville ch	15 00
Pby of Zanesville—Pleasant Hill ch	4 25
Pby of White Water—Pleasant Grove ch	4 00
Pby of Schuyler—South Henderson ch	3 58
Pby of Dane—Oakland and Cambridge ch	2 00
Pby of Chippewa—Galesville ch	4 00
Pby of Dubuque—Waukon ch	1 00
Pby of Des Moines—Indianapolis ch	1 00
From churches,	$341 27

FROM SABBATH-SCHOOLS.

Sab sch of Chester ch, Philadelphia Pby	10 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

A Friend 5; Wm McGookin 1 (per Rankin)	6 00
Total at Philadelphia,	$357 27

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURG.

Pby of Redstone—McKeesport ch	8 00
Pby of Saltsburg—Glade Run ch 15; Concord ch 10	25 00
Pby of Allegheny—Centre ch	9 00
Pby of Washington—Waynesburg ch	6 00
Pby of Clarion—Richardsville ch 1 50; Mount Tabor ch 2	3 50
Pby of Steubenville—Minerva ch	2 00
Pby of Richland—Shelby ch 6; Blooming Grove ch 3; Waterford ch 2 85	11 85
Pby of Wooster—Dalton ch (bal)	16 00
Pby of Fort Wayne—Bluffton ch 5 32; New Lancaster ch 2	7 32
Total at Pittsburg,	$88 67

FOR THE CHILDREN'S CHURCH.

Pby of Albany—Infant class of Saratoga Springs ch	3 00
Pby of Winnebago—Sab sch of Dekora ch	1 25
Pby of Dubuque—Sab sch of Dubuque 1st ch	2 00
Sab sch of Windsor ch, New York	10 00
Pby of Crawfordsville—Sab sch of Greencastle ch, per J D Thorpe	1 50
Total Children's Church,	$17 75
Total Receipts in February,	$3470 46

ARCHIBALD GAMBLE, Treasurer.

Ecclesiastical Record.

CALLS.

The Rev. James H. Callen has received a call to the church of Kingston, N. J.

The Rev. Charles Wood has received a call to the Presbyterian church, Absecon, N. J.

The Brick Presbyterian church, New York, has given a call to the Rev. W. G. T. Shedd, D. D., of Andover Theological Seminary, to be associate pastor with the Rev. Dr. Spring.

The Collegiate Reformed Dutch church, New York, has given a call to the Rev. Joseph T. Duryea, pastor of the Second church, Troy, N. Y.

The Rev. Thomas H. Crowe has accepted a call to the church at Jeffersonville, Ind.

The Rev. Frederick T. Brown has accepted a call to the Bridge Street church, Georgetown, D. C.

The Rev. Calvin W. Stewart has declined the call to Spruce Creek church, Huntingdon Presbytery.

DEPOSITION.

Henry J. David has been deposed from the ministry, and excommunicated, by the Presbytery of Luzerne.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

Messrs. T. F. Wallace and William Cunningham were ordained as evangelists, by the Presbytery of Blairsville, on the 21st of January.

Mr. G. W. F. Birch was ordained and installed pastor of the Third church of Springfield, by the Presbytery of Sangamon, on the 17th of January.

Mr. John S. Stewart was ordained by the Presbytery of West Jersey, and installed pastor of the church of Greenwich, February 11th.

PASTORAL RELATION DISSOLVED.

The Rev. Edgar Wqods has resigned the pastoral charge of the First church, Columbus, Ohio.

The Rev. Samuel Hibben has resigned the pastoral charge of the Second Presbyterian church, Peoria, Ill.

The Rev. Frederick T. Brown has resigned the pastoral charge of the church at Cleveland, Ohio.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESSES CHANGED.

Rev. D. R. Campbell from Wintersville to St. Clairsville, Ohio.

Rev. Edgar Woods from Columbus, Ohio, to Wheeling, Va.

Rev. S. H. Thompson from Lakeland to new post-office Holbrook, N. Y.

Rev. Thomas H. Crowe from Cincinnati, Ohio, to Jeffersonville, Ind.

Rev. E. Henry from Dillsborough, Ind., to St. Charles, Ohio.

Rev. W. J. McCord from Tribes Hill to Wassaic, N. Y.

Rev. Frederick T. Brown from Cleveland, Ohio, to Georgetown, D. C.

DEATH.

The Rev. Dabney Carr Harrison, son of the Rev. Peyton Harrison, D. D., killed at the taking of Fort Donnelson.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN REGARD TO COLLECTIONS.

Whereas, Many of our churches do not contribute to our benevolent enterprises, and whereas, it is desirable to test the power of simultaneous effort; and whereas, an emergency has arisen, requiring the cooperation of all our churches to save our Boards from serious embarrassment, therefore,

Resolved, 1. That this Assembly earnestly request all our churches that have no fixed times for the purpose, to take up annual collections as follows, viz.

For the Board of Domestic Missions on the first Sabbath of November.

For the Board of Foreign Missions on the first Sabbath of January.

For the Board of Education on the first Sabbath of March.

For the Colportage Fund of the Board of Publication on the first Sabbath of May.

For the Board of Church Extension on the first Sabbath of July.

For the Disabled Ministers' Fund on the first Sabbath of September.

Resolved, 2. That when the annual collections cannot be taken up on the days above designated, it be recommended to take them up as soon thereafter as possible.

FUND FOR DISABLED MINISTERS, AND THE NEEDY WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

The following amounts have been received since the last report, viz.

From New Harmony church,	Donegal Presbytery,	2	00
" Strasburg ch,	do. do.	11	75
" Wheeling 4th ch,	Washington do.	30	00
" Marengo ch,	Chicago do.	4	00
" Indiana ch,	Saltsburg do.	15	25
" West Lebanon ch,	do. do.	4	25
" Brick ch,	West Jersey do.	13	00
" Greenwich ch,	do. do.	9	10
" Union ch,	Allegheny do.	10	00
" Butler ch,	do. do.	11	00
" Hamilton ch,	Columbus do.	3	00
" Dublin ch,	do. do.	3	50
" Pleasant Hill ch,	Zanesville do.	2	20
" Norwich ch,	do. do.	2	25
" Malden ch,	Rock River do.	4	15
" Waynesburg ch,	Steubenville do.	4	00
" Minerva ch,	do. do.	2	00
" New Hagerstown ch,	do. do.	5	00
" New Cumberland ch,	do. do.	2	37
" Oneida Valley ch,	Mohawk do.	3	00
" Beech Spring ch,	St. Clairsville do.	14	00
" Jersey Shore ch,	Northumberland do.	19	00
" East Kishacoquillas ch,	Huntingdon do.	50	00
" Hollidaysburg 1st ch,	do. do.	15	03
" Pluckamin ch,	Elizabethtown do.	4	50
" Newton ch,	Long Island do.	83	50
" Connecticut Farms ch,	Passaic do.	12	75
" Schenectady ch,	Albany do.	53	00
" Amsterdam ch,	do. do.	12	51
" Pontiac ch,	Michigan do.	9	00
" Galesburg ch,	Schuyler do.	5	00
" Sewickley ch,	Allegheny City do.	18	06
" Central ch,	do. do.	50	00
" Oswegatchie ch,	Ogdensburg do.	18	00
" Bethel ch,	Madison do.	3	00
" Annapolis ch,	Baltimore do.	3	00
" Union ch,	Muncy do.	1	75
" La Crescent ch,	Chippewa do.	2	00
" Scranton German ch,	Luzerne do.	2	00
" Waukon ch,	Dubuque do.	1	00
" Brownstown German ch,	New Albany do.	2	00
" Scots ch,	Philadelphia do.	23	64
" Ninth ch,	do. do.	21	50
" Groveland ch,	Genesee River do.	13	45
" Seventh ch,	Philadelphia do.	111	60
" " add'l, from a member,	do. do.	100	00
" Central ch,	Philadelphia Central do.	105	16
" do. from Mr. Barnes,	do. do.	1	00
" Chestnut Hill ch,	Philadelphia 2d do.	25	00
" 7th st. Washington ch,	Potomac do.	8	00
" Three Families in Westminster ch,	Baltimore Presbytery,	75	00
" Connecticut Presbytery,		20	00
" Mrs. Wm. Blaney, of Mt. Gilead ch,	Washington Presbytery,	1	50
" Rev. Wm. Cargen, of Cambridge, Wis.,		3	00
" Rev. E. B. Fuller,		75	00
" "W. O. M.,"		1	00
" Monticello church,	Logansport Presbytery	3	00
" Centre ch,	do. do.	2	00
" Waynesburg ch,	Donegal do.	29	50
" Burlington ch,	Burlington do.	12	73
		$2003	00

GEO. H. VAN GELDER,
Treasurer, Trustees of General Assembly,
Office, No. 320 Walnut Street.
Philadelphia, March 15th, 1862.

FORM OF BEQUEST FOR DISABLED MINISTERS OR FAMILIES OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

I give and bequeath to my executors hereinafter named, ——— dollars, in trust, nevertheless, that they shall, within ——— months after my decease, pay the same to George H. Van Gelder, Treasurer of the Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, or to his successor for the time being in said office, for the use of such disabled ministers, and their families, as the said, The Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, shall or may designate.

NOTA.—This form will do for a pecuniary bequest. If stocks, or land, or other property is given, the phraseology should be modified to suit the case.

PRESBYTERIAN HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

This Society, which was organized in 1852, embraces all the branches of the Presbyterian Church, and is incorporated by the Legislature of Pennsylvania. It has a library of about 3000 volumes, and a large collection of manuscripts, portraits, and relics of the older divines, to which additional contributions are solicited.

Cor. Sec.—Samuel J. Baird, D. D., Woodbury, N. J.

Librarian and Treasurer—Samuel Agnew, Esq., Philadelphia, Pa.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST TO ANY OF THE BOARDS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The State Laws differ so much that no one form will answer in all the States, but in every case it is essential to give the RIGHT CORPORATE NAME.

The oldest Board was originally called the Board of Missions, but is now incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania under the title of "The Trustees of the Board of Domestic Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

Of the Board of Education the corporate name is, "The Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

The Board of Foreign Missions is incorporated under the laws of New York, under the style of "The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

The Board of Publication is incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania under the style of "The Trustees of the Presbyterian Board of Publication."

The Board of Church Extension of the General Assembly is not incorporated, but the following form of bequest, it is supposed, would be valid.

I bequeath to my executors the sum of ——— dollars, in trust, to pay over the same in ——— after my decease, to the person who, when the same shall be payable, shall act as Treasurer of the Board of Church Extension of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, located in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, to be applied to the uses and purposes of said Board, and under its directions, and the receipt of the said Treasurer shall be a full and legal acquittance of my said executors for the same.

When real estate or other property is given, let it be particularly described.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Domestic Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, Publication, and the Board of Church Extension, and is issued monthly in newspaper form, at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at Twenty-five Cents a year; and all churches of less than fifty families at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, "Mr. Peter Walker, 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

POSTAGE, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance at the office of delivery.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburgh.

AN OFFER.—Any missionary, colporteur, or other person, procuring new subscribers to the Record at 50 cents each, shall be entitled to 20 per cent. for each such subscription procured and prepaid.

CONTENTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.—Prospects of the Board, p. 49. Manifold Results, p. 49. Sowing in Hope, p. 50. A retiring Veteran, p. 50. Receipts, p. 50.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—I. Ministerial Education. Individual Responsibility, p. 52. Is it the Duty of the Church to educate, at her own cost, every young man whom the Holy Spirit calls to preach the Gospel? p. 52. II. Christian Education in Schools, Academies, and Colleges. Day of Prayer for Colleges, p. 53. Report on Sabbath-schools and Youth, p. 54. Receipts, p. 54.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Recent Intelligence, p. 55. The Receipts of the Board from May 1, 1861, to March 1, 1862, p. 55. Waldensian Missions in Italy. Resume of the Work—December, 26, 1861, p. 55. Missions in China: Report of the Day-schools for the Year 1861, p. 56. Report of the Ningpo Mission, October 1, 1861, p. 57. The Field in Shantung, p. 58. Chippewa Mission: Annual Report of the Station at Grove Hill, p. 59. Miscellany, p. 59. Receipts, p. 60.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.—Our Work in Kentucky, p. 61. Colportage in Army Hospitals, p. 61. The Family, p. 62. Colportage in and around Philadelphia, p. 62. Letter from Ellsworth, Connecticut, p. 62. A praying Drummer Boy, p. 62. Receipts, p. 62.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.—Five or Six Changes, p. 63. I am able to preach better, p. 63. Help needed, p. 63. Receipts, p. 63.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Ecclesiastical Record, p. 64.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME XIII. No. 5. | PHILADELPHIA, MAY, 1862. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

MISSION ROOMS,
No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. T. L. Janeway, D. D.
Treasurer—Samuel D. Powel.

Letters relating to Missionary Appointments and other operations of the Board, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 910 Arch street, Philadelphia.

Contributions should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:

Andrew Davidson, Louisville, Ky.

William Rankin, Jr., Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

HOME AND FOREIGN HEATHENISM.

The Object.

It is indeed a godlike work undertaken by our home mission. To change the moral deserts of our country into gardens, to arrest men who are posting to ruin, and to change their whole condition and destiny now and for eternity; to cleanse the heart where malignity and lust dwell, and plant purity in it; to cleanse the hearth where hate broods and strife reigns, and to make love to dwell there; to extinguish the fires of infidelity and revolution which are smouldering at the bottom of the social edifice, and to convert the dangerous classes of society into the stay and defence of the country; this is the aim of our home mission.

The Country not yet Christianized.

But, like all aims truly great and largely and lastingly benevolent, this work must be prosecuted, at the outset especially, amid many difficulties and discouragements. The first difficulty we have to grapple with is the ignorance that prevails on the subject. It is not easy to get people to believe that the country is so bad as it is. It is not easy, at least, to get them to realize the magnitude to which the evil has grown. They live in a city, it may be, the majority of the inhabitants of which are still professedly Christian. They never stir abroad on Sabbath unless at church hours, when the streets are thronged with worshippers. They find, too, that the worship of God is observed in the families of their own immediate neighbourhood. They take what they see to be a fair specimen of what they do not see—the little christianized Scotland around them to be a sample of all Scotland. They cannot realize the far different scenes which are to be met with in the lanes and closes of the city in which they live; the practical heathenism that is being openly manifested, it may be, within a stone's cast of the very church in which they are met to worship God, and at the very hour when they are so assembled. Much less can they realize the picture of those towns and villages of sudden growth, where the fear of God and the worship of God are not. They cannot believe how unmitigated is the heathenism that reigns there. They see no idol's temple rearing its dark towers in the centre of these towns. They hear of no idolatrous festival, no bloody rite being practised in these communities, nor do they see devotees in Scotland throwing themselves beneath the wheels of an idol's car; and therefore many think, because they miss the outward accompaniments of heathenism, that the heathenism of a Christian land cannot be nearly so bad a thing as the heathenism of a professedly pagan country. But what hinders that it should not be as bad, nay, that it should not even be worse? Can climate or latitude work any essential change upon it? Is it not essentially the same godless thing everywhere? Is it not the same malignant and destructive thing everywhere? Does it not destroy man, body and soul, and work the ruin of its unhappy victims, as effectually in Scotland as in India or Africa? The modes of destruction and of self-ruin may vary in different countries. It smites its victim in one way in this land, in in another in that; agreeing only in that it destroys him in all—its end everywhere is death. In India it teaches its votary to immolate himself to an idol of stone or wood; in Britain it prompts him to offer himself in sacrifice to some vile lust. In Scotland he worships intemperance, or other vices; but equally with the pagan votary of India and Africa, he worships his god with the precious life.

The two Heathenisms.

In one respect the heathenism of a Christian land is superior to that of a country wholly given to idolatry. In a Christian country heathenism is somewhat restrained and mitigated by the surrounding Christianity. Its vilest excesses are prohibited, its darkest forms are forbidden by the moral sense of the majority, and the restraining power of Christian institutions; but, to make amends, as it were, it allies itself in a civilized land with all the appliances of civilization, and so becomes a much more formidable thing than in its comparatively rude and simple state of paganism. By availing itself of powers which it could not create for itself, and which are indirectly the production of Christianity, it is able to inflict wider and more effectual injury on that very Christianity to which it is indebted for the means of doing it mischief. Thus it is, to a large extent, a delusion that the heathenism of a Christian land is a less noxious and dangerous thing than the heathenism of a pagan land. And yet, how often is the belief cherished, and cherished where it is not avowed in words, and where the person may scarce be conscious that he really does cherish it? and yet, wherever it is entertained, it must operate in the way of relaxing and deadening all efforts for the removal of this heathenism, and the rescue of its miserable victims. But, be our home heathenism better or worse than our foreign, we ought to remember that our responsibility therewith is greater. It is at our very door; it is easily accessible; we cannot now plead ignorance of the extent to which it exists amongst us. After recently published facts, there is no room for remaining any longer credulous on this point; and great must be our guilt, if we do not immediately and earnestly give ourselves to the task of saving those who are perishing within reach and before our very eyes.

Popular indifference and opposition.

There is another difficulty in the way of our home mission, common to it, however, with missionary effort everywhere—the indifference, to wit, and not unfrequently the opposition of those we come to rescue. Salvation is a gift which the fallen have no power of themselves to appreciate, and the deadliest part of the injury sin has inflicted is the distaste and positive hatred of the only remedy. When our deputies enter a village of the lapsed, they are often regarded by the inhabitants, as our Saviour was, as men come to torment them before their time. They have come to drive thence the many devils that inhabit there, in the shape of intemperance, lewdness, and profanity. The people would rather company undisturbed with their vices; and much courage, and not a little patience, are required on the part of those who come proffering a deliverance that is far from being a welcome one. And yet this difficulty is often found to vanish as soon as it is earnestly grappled with. There are instances not a few of the most hardened communities being speedily and wondrously softened. There are instances of the gospel, rudely and bitterly opposed at first, warmly welcomed in a short time into places where Satan's seat was—idols expelled, that God might be admitted. How encouraging such facts! They show us that the gospel is the right instrument with which to work; that if we wish to cleanse and regenerate our land, it is the gospel of God's grace that alone can do it. They show us that the kindness of going forth into the highways to seek the lost has power to melt the heart; and especially do such instances show us that our undertaking is receiving the countenance and blessing of the

Most High, and that we ought to prosecute it on a yet larger scale; that we ought to second it with more earnest prayers and richer offerings; and far more heartily than ever consecrate the ever-increasing commercial wealth of this country to the surpassingly noble object of its thorough evangelization; and never to stop short in our efforts till we have made our land a model land altogether.—Home and Foreign Record of the Free Church.

Human nature is ever the same—the depraved heart is alike in all regions and in all climates. "It pleases God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." The overthrow of heathenism, at home or abroad, must be accomplished by the ministry of reconciliation. There may be phases in which this enmity is intensified, and circumstances which render it more titanic; but before the cross it must fall, as has been abundantly proven in the history of eighteen centuries. What a field looms up before the eye of Christian philanthropy! and how magnificent are the wastes which the church has to supply! The church must never rest—eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. The times of disaster which have overwhelmed us for our national sins, increase the need of sleepless effort. Armies are apt to forget Sabbaths, and camps are filled with profanity and intemperance; and corruption and peculation in filling contracts show that man's inhumanity to man still exists. If the church does not now awake to the fell necessities of the times, heathenism will gain upon us, and heavier burdens will fall upon us, because of present remissness. Our mission churches have sent out their patriot volunteers. Elders have gone forth to battle for a nation's life. Churches have thus been weakened. War and disease will thin their ranks, and the noble pillars of our churches in missionary regions will sleep elsewhere than beside the churches whose foundations they laid in faith.

In some parts of the field our churches are ruined and the pastors are refugees. The work of reconstruction is upon us, or will be at the end of the war. The work and toil of years are gone, as to visible fruits. The battle is to be fought over, and the foundations of the second temple to be laid when the exiles shall return. Was there ever such a call to arise? Did the voice of reproving providence ever sound so loud? And can it be done? Are there means and men enough? Men enough! Are we not discussing the question of too many ministers, and asking the seminaries to pause and limit the supply to the supposed contracted demand? Men enough! There might be, if a missionary spirit were alive in the church, and men could survey the tempting fields which open on our sight. Have we means? Surely, if the gold and the silver is the Lord's, that is, if his people so recognize his blessed ownership. The money used for things of no real comfort, and even for many of positive injury, on the part of the professed people of God, would avail to keep abreast of the growing demands of our country. Ah! the harvest is great and the labourers are few—a few toiling labourers amid leagues of unoccupied land! In the new and blooming Territory of Colorado, with its mines of tempting gold, and its population of 30,000, we have one missionary. The writer has a dear son, surgeon in the United States army at Fort Wise, in Colorado, who hears no preacher's voice, and has seen none, except when one came from Denver City to marry the officer of the fort to the daughter of the Indian agent. Ah! had our church the men and the means, we could march with the advancing population who rush over the plains which skirt the eastern base of the Rocky Mountains. To live at such a time, is a privilege whose dimensions only eternity can compute. To live with such chances to labour for Christ amid the throes which overspread the land and the world, is no mean honour. But then—the responsibility!

WITHIN ARE FEARS.

Iowa, January 2, 1862.

Dear Sir—As a missionary under their appointment, the Board of Domestic Missions have a right to expect a report from me, of my labours for the last three months. These have been busy months to me, and have passed rapidly away. I have given myself, without reserve of time, to my ministerial duties. I have preached twice each Sabbath, and taught a Bible-class every alternate Sabbath, and have had a regular week-day appointment, once a month, at three different points; two of them about thirteen miles from home, and occasional appointments in other places. I try to visit all the families in my charge two or three times each year.

Our weekly prayer-meetings at Toledo have been attended with something more than usual interest. We hope that the Spirit of grace and of supplication has been, in some measure, given to us. I trust that not only have God's people been blessed, but that some beyond the pale of the visible kingdom have been led to feel their need of a Saviour. With all the counteracting influences, and all the discouraging circumstances, and so many things to draw away the minds of people from religious reflections; with all the harassing cares of a family, with inadequate support, and pecuniary embarrassments, I have laboured with cheerful hope of ultimate success, and have been sustained, and felt very happy in my work.

Sometimes a dark cloud of despondency comes as a chill over my soul—"I am using up all the pecuniary avails of my labours, and my wife is exhausing her strength; soon we will be unable to labour, and what will become of us, and those dependent on us?" Are these sad reflections a temptation from the wicked one? Is it the duty of missionaries in the Western field, to continue to devote all their time to a work that keeps them in a state of privation, bordering on actual want of the necessaries of life, and will leave them penniless, in case of age, or disability from sickness, or other cause?

I acknowledge that the temptation is sometimes almost overpowering, to turn aside, at least in part, from the duties of the ministry, to some occupation that will afford a better pecuniary return for labour. I have hitherto resisted every such temptation, and still feel cheerful in my work. It is a work to which the Lord has called me, and it is following my Saviour in self-denial and cross-bearing; and why shrink from it? Somebody must do the work, or the elect will not be gathered. This gospel of the kingdom must be preached to all nations—to the poor, scattered over these Western prairies.

One thing I have recently feared, which is, that the minds of our churches were diverted from their care for the missionaries, to providing for those soldiers who handle carnal weapons. I only wish to say, "This ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone." I suppose there is not too much done for the soldiers; but I believe that they and their families are better provided for than those who are wielding the spiritual armour on these Western battle-fields. But we labour in a cause that, without a peradventure, has the great Captain of salvation on its side, and will triumph at last.

I hope that it will not be long before the Board will be able to send me what is due for the last two quarters' labour. I have saved my credit by borrowing; and when the time of the loan run out, by borrowing again.

With Christian regard, yours in the Lord.

A CHRISTIAN SOLDIER.

Illinois.

Dear Brother—We were called to part with one of our greatly esteemed ruling elders, who died November 29th, 1861, in the forty-first year of his age. Last June, in the midst of the prevailing excitement which the war aroused, Mr. C. enlisted in the Knox Dragoons. During the latter part of the summer the regiment to which he was attached was ordered to St. Louis. From Jefferson Barracks I received a long letter from him, filled with faith and hope, and a cheerful trust in God. Soon after this his company went with Colonel Mulligan's regiment up the Missouri river, and was at Lexington on the fatal 12th to the 21st of September. On the night of the 11th of September, he laboured very hard in the trenches, and in the terrible battle of the 12th, fought bravely amid his companions in arms, who were falling around him. Overcome by the sleepless labours of the night, and the hard fighting of the day, he was conveyed sick to the hospital. Here, on the 21st, he was taken prisoner, and exposed to hardships which he was unable to endure. Stripped of his outer garments, and exposed to a cold, chilling storm; not allowed even to provide himself with any suitable covering, he contracted the type of disease which closed in death.

He was among the sick and prisoners brought down to St. Louis by the steamers which were sent up with a flag of truce for them. On Saturday, October 12th, he reached his brother's, near Galesburg. Lingering for nearly seven weeks, he died peacefully on Friday. I was with him nearly every day during his illness, and truly can I say, "his end was peace."

His fellow-soldiers speak of him in the highest terms. He was ever a Christian. He was a man of few words, but those were always for Christ and his cause.

Our church deeply feels the loss of such a man; but while we mourn his loss in our counsels and prayers, we cannot but feel that to him the exchange was one of unspeakable gain.

FROM A MISSIONARY IN MARYLAND.

Dear Sir—I now send you the report of the fourth quarter's services in the mission stations of F—— and L——. It is now a year since I came here; and my routine of labour has been as during the previous quarter. I preached at these places on alternate Sabbaths. At F——, finding that it was impossible in the winter season to collect the congregation in the afternoon, I had only one service in the forenoon. Thinking it well to engage in evangelical work, at the beginning of this quarter I took the liberty of preaching at Maryland Mines, about twelve miles distant. The Baptists were kind enough to open their place of worship for our use. We had good audiences there, and I have reason to believe that good was being done.

As B—— and P—— churches were left destitute of ordinances, it was necessary to give them a helping hand. It pleased the Lord greatly to bless and encourage me in my labours at B——. In my domiciliary visitations, which were welcomed by the people, I found a goodly number of families, the parents of which had been members of churches at home, who had entirely neglected their duty in this respect since coming to this country. The result of these visits was an increased attendance, both at church and in the Sabbath-school. The week-day services were also well attended. An old man, a farmer, whose face was much disfigured by cancer, asked me to come and preach a sermon in his house. He is a Socinian. I accepted his invitation. There were fifty-seven adults present, besides many children. I preached from 2 Cor. v. 20, 21. The truth was blest to him. In another farm-house we had a large congregation of backwoodsmen, who seemed to drink in the word with great avidity. In no portion of my field of labour have I been so much comforted as here.

One old man sent for me a few days ago, saying he wished very much to see me. He was sixty-two years of age, and lying on his deathbed. He had several sons married in the neighbourhood. He said that he had sent for me to let me know that when in Scotland he had been a member of the Free Church, and had never known what it was to be absent one Sabbath from church; but since coming to this country, fifteen years ago, with his children, he had never been within a church-door. He lived only a stone-cast from the church. "I do not know," said he, "how I shall answer to God for my wicked and strange neglect of gospel privileges. If the Lord spare my life, I shall be a constant attender at the sanctuary." It pleased the Lord to call him to his account a few days after I saw him.

One woman here, the mother of six children, said, that "since coming to that district, and being away from the stated means of grace, she was miserable, and wanted to be back to her home, where she heard the gospel preached; but since a Presbyterian church had been built at B——, she had no desire to go away—her mind was at perfect peace."

These, and numerous such cases, made me take a deep interest in the place, and indeed they have taken a deep interest in me; although only some twelve members have exerted themselves for my comfort and welfare, in the midst of their deep poverty, in such a way as to make me feel grateful to the King of Zion.

I have been able to go down to P—— on four different occasions, and preach for them on Monday evening in their place of worship. There is only one male member left to take charge; all the others have been driven from the place. At times we had a goodly number of females present. It was my intention to try to reach them on Sabbath evening, if possible; but the impassable nature of the roads and heavy storms prevented me.

Thus a year's labours have just been closed. They have been arduous, and, on the whole, delightful, though mixed with much that was discouraging and painful. May the great Head of the church own and bless them.

As I am at a loss to know the kind of information needed by the Board, and the exact form in which reports are usually drawn up, having never seen any, I am afraid that I have not exactly met the requirements of the Board.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Receipts at the Treasury in Philadelphia during the month of March, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Albany—Albany 2d ch 288 89, of which 50 from I W Vosburgh; Rev W J Blain 10	298 89

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Ogdensburg—Heuvelton 1st ch	5 25
Pby of Genesee River—Groveland ch	13 72

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Hudson—Cochecton ch 2 25; Goshen ch, a member 5	7 25
Pby of North River—Calvary ch Newburgh, mo con 5 82, Sab sch 3 79	9 61
Pby of Bedford—Croton Falls ch 10; South Salem ch, Ladies' Benevolent Association of Boutonville 11	21 00
Pby of Long Island—Amagansett ch	5 00
Pby of New York—University Place ch New York 1514 04; Rutgers street ch New York 190; Jersey City 1st ch 170 02; North Haverstraw ch 3; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch New York, add'l, 14 07, of which 4 07 from the mission chapel	1891 13
Pby of New York 2d—Hamden ch 12; Peekskill ch, from V B 3	15 00
Pby of Nassau—Wallabout ch 12 19; First ch Brooklyn 77 50; Central ch Brooklyn 200	289 69

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Elizabethtown—Metuchin 1st ch	16 85
Pby of Passaic—Morristown 2d ch, add'l	26 96
Pby of Newton—Belvidere ch	8 00
Pby of West Jersey—Cold Spring ch	35 00
Pby of Luzerne—"Cash," Mauch Chunk ch 2; Pittston ch add'l 5	7 00
Pby of Corisco—Evangasimba ch	20 50

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia—Seventh ch Philadelphia, from a member	20 00
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Central ch Philadelphia, from J H Freeman	10 00
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Providence ch, a lady	2 50
Pby of New Castle—New Castle ch, from "a well-wisher" 5; Rockland ch 3 16, less exch 70 cts=2 46	7 46
Pby of Donegal—Lancaster ch Sab sch	17 00
Pby of Northumberland—Williamsport ch 42; New Columbia ch 8; Bloomsburg ch 42, of which 3 from H C Hartman's Sab sch class	92 00

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore—Chesnut Grove ch, add'l	2 00
Pby of Carlisle—Mercersburg ch	50 00
Pby of Potomac—Seventh street ch Washington 13; Youths' Missionary Society of New York Avenue ch Washington City 6 88	19 88

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Redstone—Dunlap's Creek ch	1 75
Pby of Ohio—Lawrenceville ch 3 89; Mansfield and Mount Pisgah ch, add'l from the Ladies 2; Concord ch 5 50; Lebanon ch 15	24 39
Pby of Blairsville—New Salem ch	13 50
Pby of Clarion—Richardsville ch	4 00
Pby of Saltsburg—Warren ch	9 00

SYNOD OF ALLEGHENY.

Pby of Allegheny—Brady's Bend ch 6; Scrubgrass ch 3; Ebenezer ch 4 25; North Butler ch 4 50; Mr and Mrs Richard Van Dyke, Sr., of Harrisville, Pa. 10	27 75
Pby of Beaver—Little Beaver ch	5 00
Pby of Erie—West Greenville ch	7 00
Pby of Allegheny City—First ch Allegheny	33 65

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington—Washington ch mo con coll	18 43
Pby of Steubenville—Steubenville Second ch, a member	5 00

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Columbus—Rev G L Kalb, Circleville, Ohio	5 00
Pby of Marion—Marysville ch 8; Milford Centre ch 4; Bucyrus ch 7 50	19 50
Pby of Zanesville—Senecaville ch 11; Muskingum ch 6; Brownsville ch 12; Newark ch 7	36 00
Pby of Richland—Utica ch 5; Waterford ch 9 45	14 45
Pby of Wooster—Jeromeville ch 4 82; Dalton ch 30 50; Wooster ch 29 30	64 62

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.

Pby of Findlay—West Union ch 7; Enon Valley ch 2	9 00

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Chillicothe—First ch Chillicothe	66 71
Pby of Miami—Clifton ch, add'l	2 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Sab Sch of 5th ch Cincinnati	20 00

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of Indianapolis—Bloomington ch, of which 1 15 from the Sab sch	13 50

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Lake—Valparaiso ch 8 50; Tassinong ch 3 35	11 85
Pby of Fort Wayne—Elhannon ch	4 00
Pby of Crawfordsville—Brazil ch 6 75; Ohio ch 4	10 75
Pby of Muncie—Union ch 4; Hartford ch 2	6 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Peoria—Farmingham ch	6 50
Pby of Bloomington—Monticello ch 4; Atlanta ch 3 55	7 55

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.

Pby of Schuyler—Macomb ch, a balance	1 00
Pby of Rock River—Andover ch	15 00

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Dane—Platteville ch	3 00

SYNOD OF ST. PAUL.

Pby of Chippewa—Winona ch 20; La Crescent ch 5; St. Charles and Fremont chs 4	29 00

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Dubuque—Epworth ch	41

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.

Pby of Iowa—Burlington ch 8 60; Mount Pleasant ch 14 68	23 28
Pby of Missouri River—Council Bluffs ch	16 50
Pby of Fairfield—Keosauqua and Troy chs	2 70

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of Palmyra—Hannibal 1st ch	10 00
From churches,	$3,439 48

MISCELLANEOUS.

E B Fuller, Trenton, N. J. 100; "T. W," Cumberland Co., Pa. 10; Mrs Julia Housel, Newton, Iowa 2; "Mrs R," Washington City, D. C. 10; R P Bracken, Dunbar, Ohio 1; "a friend, carefully hoarded savings of months 1;" Rev J Grier Ralston, Norristown, Pa. 50; W S Amberson, Waynesboro' Pa. 25; Rev William James, D D, Albany, N. Y. 50; James Bayard, Philadelphia 50; "W," Philadelphia 20; Interest 14,; Rev W J McCord 2; Jacob S Dodd, Newark, N. J. 5; James Hay, N. Y. 10; John S Crane, M D, Goshen, N. Y. 20; W Meanor, Harrison City, Pa. 30; "A G R," Newark, N. J. 2	402 00

LEGACIES.

Legacy of Thomas Egleston, dec'd, late of New York City 2000; Legacy of Mrs Margaret Sanderson, dec'd, late of Milton, Pa., 200; Patterson estate, Pa. 25	2225 00
Total at Philadelphia,	$6,066 48

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

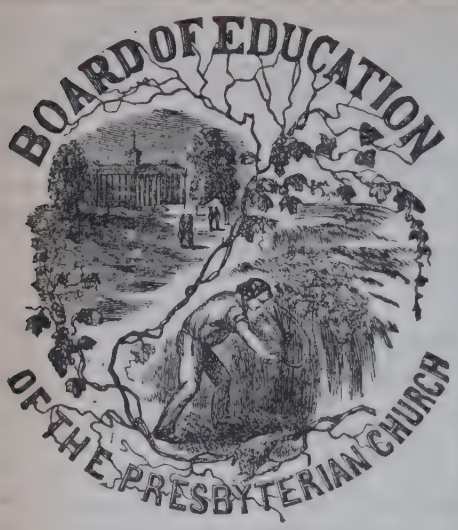
CLOTHING.

1 Box from the ladies of the Mount Washington ch of Tubby Hook, New York, valued at	160 00
1 Box from the ladies of Chelsea ch, New York, (Rev Dr Smith's) valued at	265 00
1 Box from a few ladies of Georgetown ch, D. C., valued at	40 00
1 Box from the Newton ch, Long Island, N. Y., (Rev J P Knox) valued at	180 00
1 Box from the ladies of the 1st ch, Columbus, Ohio, valued at	112 33
1 Box from the ladies of Brooklyn 1st ch, N. Y., valuation not given.
1 Box from a lady of Troy, N. Y., valuation not given.
1 Box from the ladies of Astoria ch, N. Y., valued at	120 00
1 Box from the ladies of Allegheny Central ch, Pa., valued at	240 00
2 Boxes from the ladies of Morristown ch, Ohio, valuation not given.



No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Officers of the Board.

James N. Dickson, President.

John McDowell, D. D.,
Cyrus Dickson, D. D.,
James Dunlap, Esq., } Vice-Presidents.

William Chester, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.

R. Watts, Assistant.

F. D. Ladd, Recording Secretary.

William Main, Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies, and Colleges, may be addressed to Rev. Dr. Chester, or Rev. R. Watts, No. 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of Money may be made to William Main, Esq., Treasurer, 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest.

A NEW FISCAL YEAR.

It is with trembling the Board of Education cross the threshold of another fiscal year. In reliance upon the churches, they resolved, in the month of August last, to stand by their young men for another year. This resolution met the approbation, not only of our colleges and seminaries, but of the entire church. We have yet to hear of a single dissenting voice from this approving verdict. All said, that there was no other course open to the Board which would not cripple our colleges and seminaries, embarrass our candidates, and arrest, for a long time to come, the increase of the ministry, and the progress of our Zion both at home and abroad. The Board felt that they dare not dismiss five hundred young men to whom the faith of the church was pledged, and thus shake confidence in an institution which has furnished one-half of our present ministry. They refused to do this, and the church approved. They determined, without any reduction of appropriations, to sustain their candidates, and the churches, by their approval, said they would sustain the Board.

Thus fortified, the Board entered upon the fall months of the past fiscal year. They had confidence in the people of God scattered over this wide and still wealthy land, and hoped, by special efforts on their part, to be enabled to fulfil their promise. The result is easily told. The year is now closed, and the Board is compelled to enter upon a new year largely in debt. The reason is as easily told as the result. Whilst many of the brethren have acted nobly, and the ladies, in many instances with heroic devotion, have rallied around the Board, there are many of our churches which have contributed nothing to this cause during the year. With the brethren who have neglected to present this cause, or who have stood in the way of the presentation of it, must rest the responsibility of the evils incident to our present financial embarrassment.

IS IT THE DUTY OF THE CHURCH TO EDUCATE, AT HER OWN COST, EVERY YOUNG MAN WHOM THE HOLY SPIRIT CALLS TO PREACH THE GOSPEL?

The affirmative of this question has been argued in a former article, (1) from the purpose of Christ as indicated by the temporal circumstances of those whom he is wont to call as his ambassadors, (2) from the profession made by the church in her prayer for an increase of labourers, and (3) from the obligation of the church, by virtue of her commission, to provide the means for the evangelization of the world, and the consequent injustice of exacting the cost of this provision from the evangelists themselves.

The conclusion established by these arguments is confirmed by the example of the Master. When he called Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, he separated them, at once, from their occupations, and threw them upon the people of God for support. The force of the example of the Saviour in this matter, arises from the fact, that the men whom he withdrew from their employments were withdrawn for the purpose of preparing for the work of the ministry, and not for the purpose of entering immediately upon it. From the time of their call to the night of his betrayal they were with him. They were with him "in the regeneration," and were partners in his poverty—the disciples of Him who had not where to lay his head. Pious persons, among whom the women of Galilee and the sisters of Bethany have an imperishable memorial, ministered to the wants of both the Master and his disciples. Beyond these offerings, the Saviour and his little band of students had no means of subsistence. During their course of preparation Christ placed them in such circumstances, as to render it necessary that the church should bear the cost of it. He wrought miracles to feed the multitudes, but, with one exception, (John xxi.,) none to feed his disciples. Through all his ministry, with the exception of the temporary mission of the seventy, he treated them as mere students; and yet no one seems to have called in question their claims to a support. And even on that mission they do not go forth as fully equipped ambassadors. They are restricted both as to their field and the subject-matter of their embassy. They are sent to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, and are to "say unto them, the kingdom of God is come nigh unto you." Yet, notwithstanding the partial nature of their commission, and the limitation of the sphere in which they were to exercise it, they are to be sustained by those to whom they are sent. To them and their labours the Saviour applies the aphorism, "the labourer is worthy of his hire," and throws around their claims the most terrible of sanctions, "He that heareth you heareth me, and he that despiseth you despiseth me; and he that despiseth me despiseth Him that sent me." They are commanded, on going forth, to wipe off from them the very dust of the city that would reject them; and upon that city he pronounces a doom more intolerable than the doom of Sodom.

This is solemn language, and what renders it peculiarly so, is the fact, that the ground of this sentence of condemnation is not merely the non-reception of the message, but the refusal of shelter and sustenance to the messengers. The reception which the Master claims for the seventy whom he sends before him to herald his approach, embraced temporal support. And it may be laid down as a rule, to which there will be found but few exceptions, that the treatment of the messenger is an index to the treatment of his message. Where the ear is opened to hear the word, the heart will be open to sustain those who proclaim it; and where avarice bars the door of the heart against the claims of Christ's servants to a temporal support, no matter what the profession may be, the message has not been received. By condemning those who should reject the seventy, the Saviour recognises the application of this principle to the case of those who are merely preparing for the work of the ministry, and warrants the conclusion, that he will hold to a strict reckoning those who refuse them the necessary sustentation.

Now there is just one alternative for those who deny the claim we have been endeavouring to establish. They must prove that the disciples whom Christ carried with him during his ministry, and for whom he claimed a support from the people, were not simply students, but well-informed, thoroughly furnished, and ordained ambassadors. This proposition, we are persuaded, no man will attempt to establish. They are treated by their Lord and Master as pupils, and up to the very hour of his ascension give evidence of great misapprehension of the nature of his offices as the Redeemer of God's elect. Their whole history, from the time of their call and separation, as disciples, to the day on which the Holy Spirit was poured out upon them by their ascended Lord, proves them to have been erring men; zealous, it is true, but deeply imbued with Jewish prejudices, until, by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, and the bestowal of miraculous gifts, they were eventually fitted for the unrolling of their great commission. The fact, that during these years of their minority and pupilage the Saviour claimed and received for them a support from the people, is sufficient evidence of his will in reference to the sustentation of candidates for the ministry.

We would call upon the Presbyterian church to ponder these arguments, and to imitate the example of the church in the days of Christ. If the Old Testament church, dwelling still under the shadow of the old dispensation, was placed under contribution by the Master, and called upon to furnish both the men and the means requisite for their training during their preparatory course, how much rather may the church of the New Testament, before whose eyes Jesus Christ has been evidently set forth as a crucified Redeemer, be urged, and entreated, and besought by the mercies of God to present her sons before the Lord of the harvest, and to furnish them, as far as in her lies, with all things necessary to their entrance upon the work.

We verily believe that the church is asleep on this subject. We count our seminaries, and parade, with something bordering on ecclesiastical pride, our educational institutions, and boast of our long roll of candidates, as if we were doing some great thing for Him who has given himself for us, and demands of us that we present our bodies a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God! Some, indeed, venture beyond this same goal of boasting, and take the ground that we have too many ministers, and that our seminaries, in which they have been trained, should be abandoned, and devoted to secular purposes. But, O brethren! how can we list to the wail of anguish of lost men, as they grope amid the hopeless gloom of heathenism for the way of life, and conclude that we have too many heralds of the redemption that is in Christ, or that we are lavishing too largely upon candidates for the holy ministry the wealth which God has given us? If we are unwilling to undergo the privations incident to the life of a missionary ourselves, is it too much if we are asked and urged to furnish the means necessary for the equipment and sustenance of those who have abandoned all for Christ?

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

IN SCHOOLS, ACADEMIES, AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

RISE AND PROGRESS OF OUR EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM.

We are indebted to the kindness of Mr. Joseph M. Wilson, editor of the Presbyterian Historical Almanac, for the privilege of publishing the following extracts from the fourth volume of that invaluable treasury of current, authentic Presbyterian history:

The first action taken by the Presbyterian church towards public education and establishing an institution of learning, was the following action of the Synod of Philadelphia, during its sessions in Philadelphia, in May, 1739.

"An overture for erecting a school or seminary of learning being brought in by the Committee, the Synod unanimously approved of the design of it, and in order to the accomplishing it, did nominate Revs. Ebenezer Pemberton, Jonathan Dickinson, Robert Cross, and James Anderson, two of which, if they can be prevailed upon, to be sent home to Europe, to prosecute this affair with proper directions."

It was the year 1743, however, before the school was definitely established at New London, Pennsylvania, under the following regulations: "That this school be kept open, where all persons who please will send their children, and have them instructed gratis in the languages, philosophy, and divinity. And in order to carry out this design, it is agreed that every congregation under our care be applied to for yearly contributions, more or less, as they may afford, and as God may incline them to contribute."

The interest thus clearly manifested continued to increase, and the "Records" of the church show that provision for the education of ministers was always a leading object of anxiety. Various expedients were adopted, funds were collected, to aid indigent students at an early period of the church; and this policy has been continued under various forms, ever since, sometimes by individuals privately, sometimes by churches and presbyteries. But it was not until the year 1818, that a more comprehensive plan was introduced to the attention of the members of the church.

During the session of the Synod of Philadelphia, in Baltimore, Maryland, in October, 1818, the subject of an Education Society was brought before the Synod; and after its adjournment, a meeting was held in Philadelphia, by a few who felt the importance of the movement. They appointed J. J. Janeway, D. D., William Neill, D. D., and the Rev. James Patterson, a committee to mature a plan for the organization of such a society. Rev. Robert F. Smith, then editor of The Religious Museum, a weekly newspaper published at Milton, Pennsylvania, was requested to announce to the religious public this preliminary measure, which was done, and a copy of the paper sent to each minister in the Synod.

After free consultation with those ministers who were manifestly interested in the cause of education, the committee decided that an Education Society ought to be established, to be under the direct control of the General Assembly; and which should faithfully represent the whole denomination, thereby systematizing and directing all the energies of the presbyteries and congregations to educate young men willing to consecrate themselves to the ministry, but unable to defray their own expenses whilst preparing for the work; sustaining them through the whole course of their academical and theological studies, until licensure; that the managers of this society should serve as a Standing Committee, or Board of Education, for the supreme judicatory of the church, through which all the presbyteries and auxiliary societies should annually report their operations to the Assembly; that from the surplus funds of the presbyteries, and from all other sources, a general fund be formed, from which all coöperating presbyteries and auxiliary societies may obtain such assistance as the number of their candidates and other circumstances may demand.

In order to establish such a society, a meeting was held in the Third Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, December 9th, 1818, when a committee was appointed, consisting of Rev. Drs. J. J. Janeway, William Neill, James P. Wilson, Ashbel Green, Archibald Alexander, Samuel Miller, and Rev. James Patterson, to prepare a constitution and by-laws to govern the society. Another meeting was held in the Sixth Presbyterian church on the 17th of the same month, to hear the report, and the society was organized as follows:

President—Robert Ralston, Esq.

Vice-Presidents—Hon. Elias Boudinot, LL.D., Elias Boudinot Caldwell, Esq., William Flinn, D. D., William Neill, D. D., Eliphalet Nott, D. D., John Woodhull, D. D., Ashbel Green, D. D., LL.D.

Corresponding Secretary—Ezra Stiles Ely, D. D.

Recording Secretary—Rev. George Chandler.

Treasurer—John Stille, Esq.

Ministers—Archibald Alexander, D. D., Thomas J. Biggs, James K. Burch, Eliphalet W. Gilbert, Samuel Blatchford How, J. J. Janeway, D. D., John Ewing Latta, Samuel Miller, D. D., James Patterson, George C. Potts, James P. Wilson, D. D.

Elders—Divie Bethune, Branch Green, Alexander Henry, James Kerr, William Kirkpatrick, Jacob Mitchell, Joseph Montgomery, Samuel Morrow, John McMullin, William Nassau, John Pool, John R. B. Rodgers, M. D., James Stuart.

The first meeting was held in the session-room of the Second Presbyterian church, December 21, 1818, at which time Rev. Drs. Green, Miller, and Alexander, were appointed a committee to prepare and publish an address to the churches.

The design of the society was to obtain as many auxiliary societies as possible, and to place all candidates under the direct care of the managers, at such private institutions, academies, or theological seminaries, in which they may enjoy the greatest advantages at the least expense. They also decided that the allowance granted the students shall be governed by the circumstances of each case.

Between the time of the organization of the society, until the meeting of the General Assembly in May, 1819, they received under their direct care five candidates. Two were in the theological Seminary at Princeton, New Jersey; the third was studying on prospective means; the fourth was a coloured man of very promising talents; and the fifth was an apprentice of eminent piety, and of industrious and frugal habits, whose employer relinquished his services.

The amount received from annual subscribers of one dollar each, was $240; from sixty-one life-subscribers, $1470, and from miscellaneous sources, $119.50. Total, $1829.50.

The lively interest manifested by the friends of education, in thus inaugurating a plan, enabled members of the General Assembly to act with promptness, and they formally organized the Board of Education at an early day of their session in Philadelphia, in 1819, and appointed the following ministers and elders to constitute said Board:

Ministers—Archibald Alexander, D. D., Henry Axtell, Isaac V. Brown, D. D., Samuel Blatchford, James Blythe, D. D., J. Caldwell, D. D., C. Coffin, D.D., Ezra Stiles Ely, D. D., Andrew Flinn, D. D., Ashbel Green, D. D., Francis Herron, J. J. Janeway, D. D., John E. Latta, S. Martin, S. Miller, D. D., William Neill, D. D., George C. Potts, J. B. Romeyn, John Holt Rice, D. D., R. G. Wilson, D. D.

Elders—Andrew Brown, Alexander Henry, W. Kirkpatrick, W. Leslie, Zachariah Lewis, Col. J. Linklaen, W. Maxwell, J. Montgomery, Samuel Morrow, John McMullin, H. Potter, E. Putnam, R. Ralston, John W. Scott, W. Trigg, John Woodworth.

The efforts of the Board were directed to the encouraging of presbyteries to do more for the cause of education; but it was understood that each presbytery was expected to cultivate its own ground, to retain and disburse its own funds, and remit the overplus, if any, to the parent Board. This plan was found to be seriously defective, though while it lasted, the members of the Board did all they could to encourage pious men to come forward and study for the ministry, to awaken the attention of presbyteries, and to raise funds. Ezra Stiles Ely, D. D., who was Corresponding Secretary, prosecuted the plan with much energy until his resignation in 1829. William Neill, D. D., was elected as his successor. He resigned in 1831, when, under the counsels of John Breckinridge, D. D., who had been elected Corresponding Secretary, a reorganization of the Board took place, and its operations became enlarged. At the meeting of the General Assembly in 1831, the number of members was increased to sixty-seven, of which number thirty-two were ministers, and thirty-five other male members of the church, as follows:

Ministers—Arch. Alexander, D. D., J. W. Armstrong, James Blythe, D. D., H. A. Boardman, R. J. Breckinridge, J. N. Campbell, C. C. Cuyler, D. D., Sylvester Eaton, W. M. Engles, W. J. Frazer, A. Green, D. D., LL. D., F. Herron, D. D., D. Lansing, D. D., P. Lindsley, D. D., Alexander Magee, Samuel Martin, D. D., Cyrus Mason, J. Matthews, D. D., Samuel Miller, D. D., N. Murray, T. McAuley, D. D., LL. D., W. L. McCalla, D. McConaughy, D. D., J. McDowell D. D., Wm. Neill, D.D., William Nevins, Eliakim Phelps, George Potts, George C. Potts, Reuben Post, J. W. Scott, W. B. Sprague, D. D., Robert Steele, C. B. Storrs, J. C. Syles, M. Waddell, D. D., Henry R. Weed, S. G. Winchester, J. Witherspoon.

Laymen—Solomon Allen, L. N. Beebe, Matthew L. Bevan, Andrew Brown, Thomas Bradford, A. Champion, Thomas Elmes, Salmon Fitch, Henry B. Funk, Felix Grundy, John Henderson, Alexander Henry, Zachariah Lewis, Thomas Lindsy, William Maxwell, A. W. Mitchell, M. D., J. B. Mitchell, J. Montgomery, Samuel Morrow, Charles McIntyre, Henry McKeen, Thomas McKeen, John McMullin, Matthew Newkirk, E. Patterson, David Patton, H. Potter, George Ralston, Robert Ralston, James Schott, John Stille, Samuel Thompson, A. Van Linderin.

John Breckinridge, D. D., the Corresponding Secretary, entered into the work with great zeal and success. Agencies were established in all portions of the church, and though occasionally the American Education Society crossed his path, his indomitable energy and variety of resources enabled him to sustain the interest of the church in behalf of its own Board.

William Chester, D. D., became the Assistant Secretary during this administration; and with his heart in the work, and possessing peculiar faculties for impressing the minds of youth with the importance of their studies, and enjoying a widespread influence among the people, has proved that the wisdom of the selection was pre-eminent. He is now Corresponding Secretary, and after a service of thirty years, his zeal is unflagging, and his continuance in well-doing is an honour to the Board and the church.

In 1835, the General Assembly elected John Breckinridge, D. D., Professor of Pastoral Theology in the Theological Seminary at Princeton, N. J., and the Board of Education elected Francis McFarland, D. D., as his successor. The system of Agencies was continued, it being found necessary, not only on account of the indifference of many of the ministers to the claims of the Board, but by reason of the growing encroachments of the American Education Society, which had become so troublesome, that in 1837 the Corresponding Secretary issued an address to the churches on the subject. This was followed by increased efforts, and new agencies were appointed in different parts of the church.

In 1841 Dr. McFarland resigned, and Matthew B. Hope, D. D., was his successor, and the interests of the Board were further advanced by the various plans adopted by him. He resigned in 1846; (a memoir of Dr. Hope will be found in The Presbyterian Historical Almanac for 1861, pp. 90, 91,) and was succeeded by Cortlandt Van Rensselaer, D. D. The personal popularity of Dr. Van Rensselaer, the strong claims he had upon the affections of the church, and his well-known energy, perseverance, and liberality, at once gave the Board of Education a position which up to this time it had failed to command.

We trust that the ship built, and launched, and manned by these fathers in Israel, whose names are associated with the trials and triumphs of Presbyterianism in America, will not be deserted by their sons and successors in the hour of her peril and the tempest's might.

DISCIPLINE IN CHILDHOOD.

Young people who have been habitually gratified in all their desires, will not only more indulge in capricious desires, but will infallibly take it more amiss when the feelings or happiness of others require that they should be thwarted, than those who have been practically trained to the habit of subduing and restraining them, and consequently will in general, sacrifice the happiness of others to their own selfish indulgence. To what else is the selfishness of princes and other great people to be attributed? It is in vain to think of cultivating principles of generosity and beneficence by mere exhortation and reasoning. Nothing but the practical habit of overcoming our own selfishness, and of familiarly encountering privations and discomfort on account of others, will ever enable us to do it when required. And therefore, I am fully persuaded that indulgence infallibly produces selfishness and hardness of heart, and that nothing but a pretty severe discipline and control can lay the foundation of a magnanimous character.—Lord Jeffery.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA IN MARCH 1862.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Pby of Londonderry—Londonderry 1st ch	30 00
Pby of Troy—Park ch 25 20; Waterford ch 75; Malta ch 3 60	103 80
Pby of Mohawk—Oswego 1st ch	48 67
Pby of Ogdensburgh—Morristown ch, of which from the pastor 1 89	5 00
Pby of Genesee River—Groveland ch	9 98
Pby of Rochester City—Wheatland 1st ch 10; Phelps 1st ch, Ladies' penny coll 10; Rochester 1st ch, (Ladies' cent a week coll) 34	54 00
Pby of North River—Cold Spring ch 10 33; Kingston 1st ch 15	25 33
Pby of Long Island—Huntington South ch (from the ladies of)	22 40
Pby of New York—German ch New York 11; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch add'l 20; 15th street ch 33	64 00
Pby of New York 2d—Sing Sing ch	60 00
Pby of Nassau—Brooklyn 1st ch coll 170, less paid candidates 50=120; Brooklyn 2d ch 73 69; Williamsburg ch, J B 4; Brooklyn Central ch 56 68	251 37
Pby of Elizabethtown—Perth Amboy ch 13; New Providence ch 8; Elizabethport ch 20; Metuchin 1st ch 7 25; New Vernon ch 15	63 25
Pby of New Brunswick—Trenton Second ch 15; Princeton 2d ch 50 80; Princeton 1st ch, (from the ladies) 20	85 80
Pby of West Jersey—Cold Spring ch 35; Williamstown ch 9; Fislerville ch 5 25	49 25
Pby of Susquehanna—Towanda ch	10 24
Pby of Raritan—Second ch Amwell (Mt Airy)	13 00
Pby of Luzerne—Kingston ch 8 52; Pittston ch 10; Wyoming ch 3 14	21 66
Pby of Monmouth—Manalapan ch (from the ladies)	25 00
Pby of Philadelphia—Chester ch 35; Sixth ch 40	75 00
Pby of Corisco—Evangasimba ch	8 00
Pby of Philadelphia Central—West Arch street ch 62 06; Spring Garden ch 136 81; Seventh ch, W W Caldwell, Esq. 7 50	206 37
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Conshohocken ch 11; Frankford ch, Miss M Wetheril, special 25; Providence ch 2 50; Abington ch 50	88 50
Pby of New Castle—Forks of Brandywine ch	26 50
Pby of Donegal—Waynesburg ch 8; Slate Ridge ch 10 57	18 57
Pby of Huntingdon—Lower Tuscarora ch (of which paid candidates 105) 178 64; Hollidaysburg 1st ch 45 67	224 31
Pby of Northumberland—Berwick ch 5; Brier Creek ch 5; Great Island ch (from the ladies) 14 77; Milton ch 92 cts; Washington ch 52 cts; Sunbury and Northumberland chs 15 44; Derry ch (ladies' collection) 16; Washingtonville ch do. 15	72 65
Pby of Baltimore—Ellicott's Mills ch	21 00
Pby of Carlisle—Upper Path Valley ch	24 55
Pby of Potomac—Seventh street ch Washington	5 00
Pby of Lewes—Dover ch	16 00
Pby of Erie—Mill Creek ch 7; Sugar ch 8; Park ch 20 22	35 22
Pby of Washington—Third ch Wheeling 5 04; Burghettstown ch 8	13 04
Pby of New Lisbon—Rehoboth ch	6 76
Pby of St. Clairsville—Martinsville ch	6 00
Pby of Marion—York ch 3; Marysville ch 8 25; Milford Centre ch 5	16 25
Pby of Zanesville—Marietta ch 3; Coshocton ch 12; Zanesville 1st ch 7	22 00
Pby of Wooster—Millersburg ch (ladies' cent a week coll)	15 00
Pby of Western Reserve—Springfield ch (ladies' cent a week coll)	8 00
Pby of Findlay—Rockport ch 2 02; Ottawa ch 60 cts	2 62
Pby of Maumee—First ch Toledo	6 00
Pby of Miami—Greenville ch	2 00
Pby of Vincennes—Indiana ch 5 70; Upper Indiana ch 4; Bruceville ch 2; Vincennes ch 6 27	17 97
Pby of Madison—Vernon ch (one-half from the ladies) 11 50; Hanover ch (of which from the ladies 6) 21 76; Lexington ch, ladies of 6	39 26
Pby of Logansport—Mill Creek ch (of which from the pastor 5) 6 40; Indian Creek ch 5 25	11 65
Pby of Fort Wayne—Wabash ch	8 70
Pby of Lake—Crown Point ch	1 50
Pby of Kaskaskia—Trenton ch	5 00
Pby of Palestine—Grand View ch	11 00
Pby of Bloomington—Towanda ch	6 00
Pby of Hillsboro'—Sugar Creek ch	5 00
Pby of Sangamon—Irish Grove ch 5; Petersburg ch 13; Springfield Third ch 10 15; North Sangamon ch 31	59 15
Pby of Schuyler—Monmouth ch 29, less express 1 =28; Camp Creek ch (of which 10 from Rev Joseph Platt) 15; Prairie City ch 2	45 00
Pby of Milwaukie—North ch (ladies' cent a week coll)	23 50
Pby of Winnebago—Winneconne ch 2; Depere ch 6 74	8 74
Pby of Chippewa—Sheldon ch 2; Winona ch 6; St Charles and Fremont chs 4	12 00
Pby of St. Paul—Westminster ch 5; St. Anthony ch 10 30	15 30
Pby of Owatonna—First ch Lake City	5 00
Pby of Cedar—Cedar Rapids ch	6 50
Pby of Dubuque—Epworth ch 3 36, Sab sch 41 cts=3 77; Sherrold's Mound ch 9	12 77
Pby of Iowa—Unity ch 3 21; Ononwa ch 1	4 21
Pby of Fairfield—Keosauqua ch	2 06
Pby of Highland—Westminster ch	5 50
Pby of Missouri—Glasgow ch	12 00
Pby of Potosi—Brazeau ch	5 00
Pby of Ebenezer—Millersburg ch	4 00
	$2188 90

REFUNDED.

C P V	50 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

L H M, Philadelphia 3; David Parrish, Esq., N. Y. 100; John Taylor Johnston, Esq., N. Y. 100; Robert Carter, Esq., N. Y. 100; John C Green, Esq., N. Y. 100; Rev Wm James, D D, Albany 50; John C Prentice, Esq., Brooklyn, N. Y. 100; B H Delamater, Brooklyn, N. Y. 25; W S, Waynesboro', Pa. 25; A Guy, M D, Oxford, Ohio 60 (special); James Brown, Esq., N. Y. 100; James N Dickson, Philadelphia 50; Rev J C Backus, D D, Baltimore, Md. 100; Mrs L B Ward, N. Y. 100; Rev C C Beatty, D D, Steubenville, Ohio 30; K, through Mission House, N. Y. 31 70	1074 70
	$3313 60

II.—FUND FOR SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &c.

Pby of New York—First ch, New York, add'l 318 10; united chs 3	*321 10
Pby of New Brunswick—Union meeting 1st and 2d chs New Brunswick	*5 00
Pby of West Jersey—Blackwoodtown ch	*2 00
Pby of Burlington—Burlington ch	2 31
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Penn ch, special *10; Second ch 18 56; West Arch street ch, special, (of which from Rev J Edwards, D D 10) 12	40 56
Pby of Philadelphia—Westminster ch, special	*21 00
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Slatington ch, special 10; Morristown 1st ch, special 21 50	*31 50
Pby of Northumberland—Williamsport ch, special	*13 00
Pby of Baltimore—First ch Baltimore 150; Westminster ch 14 60	*164 60
	601 07

Total $3914 67

WM. MAIN, Treasurer.

* Collection on day of prayer for Schools, Colleges, &c.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURG, PA., IN MARCH 1862.

Pby of Redstone—McKeesport ch, of which Sab sch 70 cts	18 64
Pby of Ohio—East Liberty ch, add'l 15 75; Mansfield and Mount Pisgah chs 20; Pittsburg Central ch, add'l 32 17	67 92
Pby of Blairsville—Murraysville ch	8 07
Pby of Clarion—Academia ch	3 00
Pby of Saltsburg—Harmony ch (young men) 2 35; Plum Creek ch 14 65; Bethel and Jacksonville chs 12	29 00
Pby of Allegheny—Rich Hill ch	5 00
Pby of Allegheny City—First ch	97 70
Pby of Washington—Forks of Wheeling ch	30 00
Pby of St. Clairsville—St Clairsville ch	23 00
Pby of Richland—Lexington ch	5 00
Pby of Wooster—Unity ch (add'l) 32 50; Wooster ch (ladies 35 15) 49 97	82 47
Pby of Fort Wayne—Elhanan ch	3 00
	$372 80

Total amount acknowledged, $4,287 47

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.
April 12th, 1862.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BOARD.

The Annual meeting of the Board of Foreign Missions is appointed to be held at the Mission House, New York, May 5th, 1862, at four o'clock, P. M.

On Sabbath evening preceding, a Sermon for the Board will be preached (D. V.) by the Rev. John M. Krebs, D. D., in the church on Fifth Avenue and Nineteenth street, Rev. Dr. Rice's, and a brief Abstract of the Annual Report of the Executive Committee will be read at the same time.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

INDIAN TRIBES.

Letters have been received from the Chippewa mission, dated to the 21st, from the Iowa, to the 31st, and from the Omaha, to the 29th—all of March. The letters speak of the missions as making the usual progress. Mr. Dougherty reports the organization of a church in the neighbourhood of his station, composed of six members previously connected with the mission church.

SOUTH AMERICA.

We have received letters from Bogota, dated to the 13th of February; from Rio de Janeiro, dated to the 5th of February; and from San Paulo, February 4th. Mr. McLaren speaks of less encouraging prospects in New Granada, owing to the civil conflict not yet ended, and still more to the fanatical spirit of the ignorant masses. His weekly service in English was continued, and opportunities of doing good among the natives were quietly improved. Mr. Schneider gives an account of his arrival at San Paulo, in the southern part of Brazil, where an important field of labour was set before him. He also gives an interesting account of his visit to a settlement of Germans, before he went to San Paulo, which came to hand too late for insertion in our present issue. Mr. Blackford had returned from his visit to the province of Minas Geraes, and his journal will be found in the Foreign Missionary of this month.

AFRICA.

Our advices from Corisco are dated to the 18th of January. Messrs. Mackey and Clemens had the pleasure of receiving six converts into the church by baptism, as the fruits of missionary labour among the Kombe people by a native Christian teacher. See Mr. Mackey's very interesting journal on another page.

INDIA.

Letters have come to hand from Rawal Pindi, January —; Lahor, February 14th; Lodiana, February 17th; Saharunpur, February 17th; Dehra, February 3d; Futtehgurh, January 28th; Gorukhpore, January 8th; Calcutta, February 3d. The last reports the arrival of Dr. and Mrs. Janvier and Miss Beatty at Calcutta, after a most favourable voyage. Mr. and Mrs. Ullmann were at Gorukhpore, on a journey for Mrs. Ullmann's health, Mr. Ullmann engaging in missionary labours by the way. We learn with much regret the death of the second daughter of the Rev. J. Newton, the wife of the Rev. Mr. Ferguson, a Scotch chaplain at Sealcote; she was supported by a good hope through grace, and her last hours were full of peace. Mr. Rudolph mentions the admission of two members to the church at Lodiana, and the increase of orphan girls in the school to fifty-two. Several brethren had been making journeys to preach the gospel amongst the neighbouring towns and villages, and were generally well received.

CHINA.

Letters have reached us from Canton, January 30th; Shanghai, January 28th; and Ningpo, January 18th. Mr. Happer gives interesting particulars of the converts whose baptism was reported last month. Two of them are teachers, and the other two assistants in a hospital. He mentions also the organization of a church at Canton on the 9th of January, having seven native members, as an occasion of great interest to the brethren. At Shanghai, the approach of the insurgents was creating apprehensions of collision between them and the Europeans, as the English and French forces would defend the city. At Ningpo no material change is reported in the state of affairs. The way did not seem open for missionary labour among the rebels, then in possession of the city, though limited efforts to circulate the Scriptures among them had been made. They are described as being extremely ignorant of religious subjects.

JAPAN.

Letters have been received of dates to the 30th of December; but they do not contain additional news of special interest.

MISSIONS IN CHINA.

Annual Report of the Mission at Shanghai.

Changes in the Missionary Company.

. . . . In reviewing the year we feel grateful that our labours have not been seriously interrupted. Though afflicted with the diseases incident to this climate, yet we have been able to keep in operation the several branches of mission work connected with this station. It might be expected, however, that in a circle of so many families, some sad changes would take place during the time covered by our report. Death has visited us again and again and again, and each time laid his icy hand upon one of the little ones, the joy and sunshine of our homes! Mr. Gayley's family have been thus afflicted, and Mr. Culbertson's family have twice, during the year, followed such of their number to the grave.

We have also to notice Mr. Gayley's leaving for another part of this vast field, and Mr. Gamble, of the Ningpo mission, joining us. At the close of last year Mr. Gayley was fast coming to the conclusion that he must seek another location, or leave the field altogether. From one disease or another, induced by the climate, he was unfitted for close application or arduous duties, for a large part of the year. In the month of February, the mission agreed that he should spend the summer in Shantung province, with a view to establishing a station there, if it should be found practicable and desirable. Joined by Mr. and Mrs. Danforth, of the Ningpo mission, Mr. Gayley, with his wife and children, left early in the spring, and established themselves for the present at Tungchow, a large city situated on the gulf of Pechele, and on the north shore of the Shangtung promontory. From what we have been able to learn of this location, it seems to possess an agreeable and salubrious climate. The people are said to treat the missionary with respect, and seem disposed to listen to his message.

Desirableness of occupying stations in the Interior.

The subject of establishing one or more new stations, has long been before the brethren of the Shanghai and Ningpo missions; and Hangchow and Soochow were the cities they confidently expected to occupy. But when it was found that the bloody rule of the rebels in the territory west of us precluded all mission work in that direction, and that large, healthful fields were opening up in the north, inviting labourers, if the hand of Providence was not seen pointing to this open door, at least it was believed that a city of refuge was provided for the sick.

The country north of the Yang-tsz is the larger and most healthy portion of the empire; and though not the most populous, taken as a whole, possesses a vast territory, thickly studded with cities and villages. Such a field, with apparently so salubrious a climate, it is to be hoped, will not be looked upon merely as a sanitarium. Hitherto the servant of the church in China has been shut up to these open ports, where he has had to contend with the usual heathen superstitions, a most difficult language, and such spiritual apathy as can scarcely be found elsewhere; and this too in a climate which will surely weaken the energies, where the health or life does not fall a sacrifice. Let it not be said, that useful lives have been thrown away on this part of the empire. Those who have laboured and died here, have entered the only open door, and laid the foundation upon which the future church will surely rise, a lasting monument to their memory. But the work thus well begun can, in many cases, be carried on by natives, with perhaps a single foreigner or two to counsel and instruct them. Thus may the church, to some extent, expand her operations, though not able to send forth more men immediately. Other things being equal, new stations ought by all means to be located in this northern and healthy part of the empire. In a country like this, united by trade, under one government, and using the same written language, it may never be necessary for foreigners to reside in every filthy and unhealthy city. However, we do not say, abandon these great centres of trade and influence which we already possess; nor, on the other hand, neglect to seize upon the salient points within our reach.

The Printing-press removed to Shanghai—Its large promise.

Another change to be mentioned is the removal of the press to this place. This too is a step not hastily taken. The Executive Committee have had it under consideration for many years; and having decided that it ought not to be longer delayed, issued its instructions to that effect, and in November, Mr. Gamble, with this valuable agency, joined us.

As this subject has not been before the church, it may be proper to speak of the importance of this location. If it were a single hand-press, employing but two or three men, and doing the work of a single mission, it might find ample scope in almost any of the large cities in China. But consider the extent of our operations, the amount of work turned off, the vastness of the territory to be supplied. It is desirable to have our own type-foundery, stereotype, and electrotype works, as well as printing-office and bindery. Old fonts of type are to be kept in order, new ones made, and five presses to be kept constantly running. Besides, we expect shortly to receive one of Hoe's single-cylinder presses, when we shall be able to throw off, at a moderate estimate, two hundred thousand pages per day.

The importance of a central location for such a fountain-head is obvious. Precisely such it has found. Shanghai is commercially connected with the various other large cities, centres of trade and influence, in the different parts of the empire, where it is desirable that these pages should circulate. Besides constant communication with other parts of the empire, we have steamers leaving almost daily for the various cities on the Yang-tsz.

It is a subject for devout gratitude to all who love the Saviour, that he has put it into the hearts of his people to establish such a mighty agency for good, in such a centre of influence.

The little Church—Presbytery organized.

Along with the press came several workmen, who have for many years been under Christian influence. Four being church-members, have taken letters, and united with us. Besides this, our little church has received one other addition. A native convert, who has been several years under instruction, and seeking admission, has been baptized and received. The three children of our other native member have been baptized; two children belonging to the mission families have been baptized, and another received into full communion, on profession of faith.

The Presbytery of Shanghai has been organized in connection with this mission, and the Rev. C. R. Mills, though not installed, has taken the pastoral oversight of the church. It is encouraging to see our church organization gradually set up; and we hope it will soon be completed, by the appointment of ruling elders in the church.

Want of interest in the Gospel—An interesting Inquirer—The great obstacle.

We wish we could speak of many taking a lively interest in our message; but, alas! it is not so. The scholars in our family are quite faithful in attending to outward duties, and listen to the gospel with good attention. We trust one of them is not far from the kingdom of heaven; but we have no reason to believe he has yet experienced a saving change. There are several who profess to be inquirers; but in one alone do we feel much confidence—he is a teacher, who has been with us many years. His upright moral character has always commanded our respect. In this righteousness he has been trusting, but we hope has now fled to the Lord Jesus Christ. He has renounced all idolatrous rites, and regularly attends divine service.

It is difficult to appreciate the trials of those who come from heathen prejudices and superstitions, to join themselves to the people of God. Filial reverence, which is a redeeming trait in the Chinese character, is brought into the field, to hedge up the way to Christ. After embracing Christianity, the native is supposed to love his parents no less, but more; hence the trial, when his proposition to join the church is met on their part with ridicule, expostulation, and even threats of suicide. Yet, thank God! grace has enabled many to triumph, and, as far as need be, forsake father, mother, brother, and sister, for Christ.

"I could die for my faith," said one of our most worthy members in China; "but to see my mother refuse to eat, while tears course down her cheeks on my account, is almost more than I can bear."

The teacher alluded to, is the oldest son, and his aged and widowed mother looks to him to perform the rites of ancestral worship. She cannot bear the thought of his becoming a Christian; and goes into a paroxysm of rage, whenever the subject is mentioned. His has in some respects been a strange experience. He is respectably connected, a literary graduate, possessed of good taste, and more than ordinary ability. Several years since, his family was suddenly reduced to poverty. Like many of his countrymen, he now did from necessity, what he was too proud to do before—become a missionary's teacher. In this capacity he learned the truths of the gospel, and for some time seemed to be under conviction. But if he embraced the Christian religion, he must give up his hopes of advancement as a literary graduate. It is to be feared that he said to the Holy Spirit, "Go thy way for this time." But God, by his providence and grace has followed him. In his person and family he has been often afflicted. He looks many years older than when I first met him, something more than a year ago. He has had grace to see the hand of God in these trials, and looks upon them as chastisements. It is to be hoped they may yield the peaceable fruits of righteousness. Will you not unite with us, in praying that he may forsake all, and follow his Saviour?

[To be concluded.]

THE REBELS IN NINGPO.

The future course of the Mission.

Our readers know that the city of Ningpo has been taken by the rebels, but with much less than usual loss of life. The bearing of this event on the large and varied work of our missionary brethren is a very serious question, and one which much occupies the thoughts of the missionaries. Perhaps it is too soon to form an opinion on the subject. What now looks very dark, moreover, may be overruled for good. One of the brethren, the Rev. D. D. Green, thus writes, under date of January 17th:

With reference to our prospects here there is a dark and a bright side. The dark side is the human side, the bright is the heavenly. Should the insurgents leave or be driven out of this place, the miseries of the people will be written in blood and cruelty, and it must be a long time before we can be where we were two or three months since. If the insurgents remain here the prospect is even worse, because

1st. All heavy commerce is at a stand-still, and trade cannot revive because of the military despotism of the leaders of this movement here, and of the savage hordes which, partly at the will of these leaders, and partly in defiance of their authority and commands, devastate the country, carry off such as they choose of the people, and subject all to a rule of violence. Hitherto they have been on good terms with, and seemed really desirous of keeping in the good graces of foreigners

2d. The present troubles at Shanghai, and the yet undetermined or noncommittal manner with reference to their future treatment of foreigners here, in case they do not have entire sway, to my own mind augurs no good. It is the opinion of some of those who have been here the longest, that if they had the power they would bitterly persecute everybody who did not exactly square with their ideas. This may yet be their course, or it may not. This is at least true, that they neither have power to restore commercial confidence, nor have much desire for the truth as it is in Jesus. They have great powers of destruction, but no power to build up. Our only hope is in God. By this awful scourge he has taught the people, and many of them have learned and acknowledged who their true friends have been. Whether they will learn and acknowledge the Christian's God and Saviour at this time, is yet to be seen. Our prayer is that they may, that they may escape further judgments. The kingdom shall yet be given to Christ. This is our hope.

Yours in Christ affectionately,

D. D. GREEN.

MISSION IN SIAM.

REPORT OF THE PETCHABURI STATION.

A new Station—The circumstances under which it was formed.

Just one year ago the mission resolved on the establishment of a new station. Petchaburi, the third city in size, and probably the second in importance in the kingdom, situated a few miles from the gulf coast, south-west of Bangkok, was selected as the most eligible place. They were led to this measure after mature deliberation and prayer, and the present prospects of the station fully justify the wisdom of the selection, and the hopes which were then entertained in reference to it.

At the last annual meeting, in October, Dr. House was appointed to purchase a lot, and take the initiatory steps towards the commencement of the station. He purchased a suitable lot, and by taking a house which belonged to the prime minister, and having it moved and enlarged, a comfortable dwelling was made for a family, while the cost of both house and lot together did not exceed the special contribution of seven hundred dollars, which had been made for this purpose the year before, by the friends of the mission in North Carolina.

Having about the same time received a fall from a horse, which rendered him for the time unable to occupy the station, he resigned in April, and Messrs. McFarland and McGilvary were appointed in his place. In the early part of June they, with their wives, moved over, and have occupied, up to this time, one house. They have been here but four months, and have been much engaged in building and settling; yet they have had much to encourage them, and have had some special tokens of the divine favour to them and the station. They have been much aided by the kindness of the authorities in the place, especially the Phra Palat, or lieutenant-governor, who has done much to render them comfortable.

The work of the Missionaries.

A regular Sabbath exercise was commenced by Mr. McGilvary, and the congregations have been larger and more interesting than we anticipated. Besides this, most of the houses and temples in the city and several of the surrounding villages, which are most easily accessible in the rainy season, have been visited, and hundreds of copies of portions of the Scriptures and other religious books have been distributed.

Mr. McFarland has been diligently and successfully engaged in the study of the Siamese language, and in erecting a building on the mission lot, which he will occupy when finished.

Mrs. McFarland, besides making good progress in her Siamese studies, has commenced a very interesting school for boys, having a son and other near relatives of the Governor and the Phra Palat (eight in all) for pupils. She is teaching them English; and by means of hymns and portions of Scripture, as well as by oral instruction, as far as she is able, much religious knowledge has been imparted to the youthful minds of those who may some day occupy prominent stations in the government. They are an exceedingly interesting class of boys, and we have great hopes in reference to them.

Mrs. McGilvary has translated the three Epistles of John, in which exercise she has been assisted by her husband and Mr. McFarland.

The above is a brief summary of the regular labours in the station. Besides these there has been an incident or two so encouraging and interesting, as to deserve a special notice in this report.

A Convert met with—A remarkable Narrative.

About the first of July, a very intelligent man, named Kon (Kawn,) from a neighbouring village, visited the mission, professing to be a Christian, and desiring to place his son, who accompanied him, under regular religious instruction. A longer acquaintance has confirmed the sincerity of his profession, and the hopes which were then awakened on his behalf. The following particulars have been learned in reference to him: He was the son of respectable parents; had been a pupil in a temple, when a boy, and afterwards a priest. He was wild and depraved in his youth. About twelve years ago his father received a book from a missionary, which he gave to his son. It seems to have made no particular impression on the father's mind, except that it was correct Siamese. It was that portion of the Old Testament history which contains the life of Moses, and the giving of the law. The reading of it produced in his mind a deep conviction of the folly of idolatry, and the truth of our religion. From that time he began to search for books, and some one to converse with; but living in an out-country village, it was so that he did not visit Bangkok but once afterwards, and failed to have an interview with one then. Some time after this he got from a neighbour, who did not value it, a copy of the Gospel of John, and subsequently the Acts of the Apostles and some tracts. All of these he had studied, until he can repeat chapter after chapter from memory. Nor does it appear to be a mere theoretical knowledge. He loves the truth, and the truth has made him free. He has studied it with earnest prayer for guidance and light, and has been, we believe, savingly taught of God. For the last four years he believes he has been a Christian, though very much needing some one with whom to converse, and to give him further instruction. His joy at finding the missionaries was intense, and he has listened with eagerness to all their instructions. He has walked five miles nearly every Sabbath since, to attend worship, and has given every evidence of his love to the Saviour and his cause. He feels a deep interest in the conversion of his own family and countrymen, and has already engaged with much earnestness in the distribution of books, and bids fair to be an invaluable assistant in the work.

"The entrance of thy word giveth light."

This case, we think, furnishes one of the most striking instances in the history of missions, in which a heathen by birth and education has come to a clear knowledge of the gospel plan of salvation, and to a saving knowledge of Christ, with no teacher but the word of God, which had been left by the passing missionary, and applied by the Holy Spirit. That word had been diligently and prayerfully studied, and its entrance had given light, had given understanding to the simple. Besides our interest in the man himself, and in his spiritual welfare, we were intensely interested in ascertaining what was the clearness of his views on the great doctrines of the gospel. We were surprised and delighted to find them so clear on all these points—the fall and consequent lost condition of the race, the necessity of regeneration, and man's entire dependence on the Holy Spirit. His views on the Trinity were especially interesting. In answer to the question what he understood in reference to it, he replied: "I do not know that I understand it exactly. From what I could gather, I see the Father is the Creator and Governor of the world, the Son is the one who came into the world to die for sinners, and the Holy Spirit is the one sent by the Father and the Son to be the Comforter." He had got the idea that there are three persons, equal in power and glory, yet but one God, firmly settled in his mind.

Encouragement.

Such a case as this in the very commencement of the mission, has served to establish the faith of the missionaries in the power of the simple word as a means to enlighten and convert the world. It has added new zeal, also, in disseminating that word. Coming to our notice, too, just at the time it did, we trust that it is a foretaste, a pledge of the blessings still in store for us.

He has not yet united with the church, as we have no organization here yet; but we hope to have a church formed at an early day, if the way be open. Besides this case there are several others, in reference to whom we have strong hopes that they will soon be prepared to come out on the Lord's side. At least three of those connected with our families as servants have expressed a desire to become Christians, and one of them now desires to unite with the church. There are a number of others who have had no connection with our families, who have been regular attendants on the means of grace, and one who has appeared to be an interested hearer of the gospel.

From all of these facts it will be seen that the members of the station here have had much to encourage them. Though entirely separated from all civilized society in these ends of the earth, the Lord has been with us, and watched over us, and blessed us. We should mention with special gratitude, in conclusion, that we have had such uninterrupted health, although we moved and settled after the rainy season had set in. This is matter of special gratitude, as we are so far from physicians and medical aid if we were sick. And whilst it becomes us to mention these facts with gratitude, they impose a strong obligation, and utter a strong appeal to the church at home to remember in their prayers the new station at Petchaburi.

Petchaburi, Siam, Sept. 25th, 1861.

MISSIONS IN INDIA.

Report of the Station at Dehra.

Health—Two native converts removed by death.

This encouraging report of Dehra was drawn up, we suppose, by the Rev. David Herron. He and Mr. Calderwood are ministers of the Reformed Presbyterian Church, as are Messrs. Campbell, Caldwell, and Woodside, but their relations to the Board as missionaries are the same as those of the other brethren, and they have always been satisfactory and pleasant.

At the close of the present year we have many reasons for gratitude and encouragement. The lives of the missionaries have been spared, and their health is better than it has been for several years. Although the past year was unusually unhealthy, only two of our native Christian community have been removed by death. One of these was an old woman eighty years of age. She professed to depend entirely on the merits of Christ for acceptance with God, and till the last her frequent ejaculation was, "O Father, I shall be very happy when thou wilt call me to thyself!" The other was a man of middle age. He was received into the communion of the church at the beginning of the year. From an examination of him as to his knowledge and experience at that time, and from observation of his quiet, inoffensive life afterwards, we had reason to believe that he understood and was influenced by the truths of the gospel. He united with us only once in commemorating the death of our Lord. We trust that he has now entered on the full enjoyment of the benefits which that death has purchased.

Hopeful inquirers—An interesting Narrative.

We have at present three inquirers, whom we hope to baptize in a few weeks. Two of these formerly belonged to the sect called Kabir Panth, are servants of one of the missionaries, and have been under instruction more than a year. They have regularly attended all the services in the church, have been members of a class in the Sabbath-school, have united with us and the native Christians in our daily worship, and have, we have reason to believe, been regular in praying to God in secret. One of the two is a boy of much promise. He reads Hindi fluently, and is making rapid progress in English. We trust that he may prove a true disciple, and that grace may be given him to qualify him to preach among the gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ.

The third is a young educated Musalman, who is employed by us as a munshi. He has renounced the religion of Mohammed, and calls himself a Christian. He is well acquainted with the Scriptures, and professes to be fully convinced of their being the word of God. As yet we have had no reason to doubt his sincerity. The account which he gives of the manner in which he became acquainted with the Scriptures, is interesting, and affords encouragement to those who are engaged in circulating the word of God among the heathen. Being a Khatt nawis (letter-writer) at Lodiana, and his time being not fully occupied, he determined to employ his leisure in making small paper fans, a business in which some of his neighbours were engaged. On inquiry, he found that they got the paper for their work from books received from the missionaries, and was told that he, too, could obtain as much as he needed from the same quarter. Accordingly he applied to Qadir Bakhsh, the catechist at Lodiana, and received from him several books, among which was a copy of the Gospel by Matthew. On tearing from it some leaves for the work mentioned above, his eyes fell on the words, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." He was so struck with these words and with what followed them, that he fastened the leaves in the place from which he had torn them, and read the whole book. He procured other parts of the Scriptures and read them carefully. When he came to us he said he had read all the New Testament except some of the Epistles. On learning these facts from him, we presented him with the whole of the New Testament. We trust that God has begun a good work in him, and pray that he may go on to know the Lord, and may yet preach Christ among the heathen.

Daily worship—Regular services.

Every day at noon the missionaries, the native Christians with their families, and the children of the boarding-school, meet together in the church, and spend from half an hour to an hour in the worship of God. The exercises on these occasions are singing, reading, and sometimes expounding the word of God, and prayer. Our Hindi and Musalman servants have not yet been induced to attend this service, but we hope, in time, all within our gates may be led to unite with us, and may be thus brought daily under the influence of the truths of the gospel. A regular Hindustani service was conducted the greater part of the year, on Tuesday evenings, but latterly it has been conducted at noon of the same day. Besides the usual services of the Lord's day, the native Christians, old and young, attend a Sabbath-school on the afternoon of every Sabbath. They are divided into five classes, and all have the same Scripture lesson, except the younger children, who are instructed in an easy catechism. Our English service, on Thursdays, was discontinued a great part of the year; but latterly, at the request of some of the European residents of the station, we resumed and have continued it with more encouragement than ever before. While thus we have been ministering to the spiritual wants of those over whom the Holy Ghost hath made us overseers, and of other Christians among whom our lot has been cast, we have not forgotten that our special mission is to the heathen, and our principal work to preach to them the gospel of Christ. With but few interruptions, preaching has been carried on daily in the bazár by the missionaries, the catechist, and the Scripture reader. Frequently large and attive audiences listen to us, but as a general thing, the message of the gospel is regarded as an idle tale. Apparently our preaching has been fruitless. We have to complain with the prophet, "Who hath believed our report?" However, we preach in faith, assured that God's "word shall not return unto him void," and that "all nations shall serve him." We attended the melas held at Tapkeshwar and Hardwár. At the latter place we spent several days, preaching to hundreds every morning and evening. When will these deluded people forsake their deified streams, and come to the fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and uncleanness?

A preaching Tour—Generally attentive audiences.

In the first two months of the year, one of the missionaries, with a native assistant, made a preaching tour in that part of the Saharanpur district which lies at the foot of the Sewalic Range. On account of the extensive jungle of that region, the villages are small and scattered, and difficult of access. In most of the places visited, no one that attended the preaching could recollect having ever seen a missionary among them. From a daily register of the names of the villages visited, &c., the following statement may be given of twenty days' labour: Number of villages visited, 68; aggregate number of families, as nearly as could be ascertained, 6773; number of hearers, 2700; population about two-thirds Hindus, and one-third Musalmans. The missionary and his assistant went together to each village, and addressed the people alternately, each speaking thirty or forty minutes at a place. The subject and manner of discourse varied according to circumstances, but it was our plan never to leave a place without at least announcing the cardinal truths of our religion—as man's sinfulness, his need of such a Saviour as is offered in the gospel, and the way in which this Saviour must be accepted. At two small Musalman villages not a person would listen to the preaching. At one or two others there was slight opposition; but as a general thing, respectable audiences listened attentively. In one large village of Kabir Panths, where missionaries had preached before, the head-men said they knew that the Christian religion alone is true, and expressed an earnest desire that a man who would preach to them and teach their children should be sent to them. More than half the villages did not contain a person that could read—hence not as many books as usual were distributed. It was indeed "preaching in the wilderness," but even "the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose."

The Boys' school.

Both the missionaries have, during the year, taught classes in the boys' school in the city. No material change has been made in the manner of conducting this school. In the vernacular departments, a competent teacher of mathematics was long a desideratum. Some months ago we employed one, and we think this has added not a little to the credit of the school among the natives. There has been a marked improvement in the regularity with which the scholars have attended. This, doubtless, was partly the result of a donation of fifty rupees by his highness the Raja of Kapúrthala, to be expended at the end of the year in presents to the boys who had attended most regularly and studied most diligently. Several of the boys were absent only about ten days during the whole year. The number of scholars on the roll is one hundred and seventy-one. One year ago it was one hundred and thirteen, and two years ago, eighty-one. Although, for a long time, many of the more advanced scholars have professed to believe, and that with apparent sincerity, that the Christian is the only true religion, yet we are sorry to say that we have had no good evidence of any true conversion in the school.

Girls' Boarding-school.

Last year we reported eighteen boarders and four day-scholars in the girls' boarding-school. This year we have to report twenty-four boarders and four day-scholars. The school commenced the year under very favourable circumstances, yet the progress of the girls has been beyond our expectations. As it is the wish of the parents, without exception, that their children should be taught English, instruction has been imparted to the higher classes chiefly in that language, and many of the girls are now able to speak and write it with a good degree of readiness and accuracy. They have been required to translate from English into Hindustani, and from Hindustani into English, and to write English compositions. While they have been pursuing a thorough course of English, they have not neglected their own language. They have daily lessons in both Roman Urdu and Hindi, and the coming year, the first and second classes are to learn to read the Persian character. Great care is taken to give the girls habits of cleanliness and order. They are required to assist in the preparation of their food, to make and keep in repair their clothes, and to keep in order the school-room and dormitory. The studies of the first and second classes are spelling, Scripture lessons, arithmetic, geography with outline maps, and grammar. On Sabbath, in addition to their Bible lessons, they are required to write an abstract of the morning's sermon. We have already had calls from other stations for teachers for Zanána and bazár schools, and we could in this place have two or three bazár schools, if we had well-trained Christian females to take charge of them. Our hope is that, in a few years, our school will send out a class of young women well fitted to meet the want now so much felt. With the exception of two cases of cholera, neither of which proved fatal, the health of the school has been uninterrupted.

A school for heathen girls was in operation the greater part of the year, taught by the wife of our Scripture reader. The average attendance was about twenty. The scholars were children belonging to the Ghoorka regiment. We found it, however, so difficult to get the girls to come to the mission premises without holding out inducements of money and clothing, that we recently discontinued the effort. We hope, however, soon to establish a school in or near the regimental lines, which we trust will be more successful.

AFRICA: CORISCO MISSION.

Journal of a short Missionary Tour to Kombe, by Rev. James L. Mackey.

The Kombe Tribe and Country—Intercourse with the Kombe people.

On the 26th of December, 1861, brother Clemens and I left Corisco, to make a short missionary tour to Kombe. The Kombe tribe and country are north of Corisco about thirty-five miles, and extend along the seacoast for a distance of twenty miles. There is one small tribe, the Bapuk, intervening between the Benga at cape St. John and the Kombe people; they do not exceed six or seven hundred in population, and speak the Benga language. The Kombe tribe is much more numerous, and speak a dialect which varies considerably from the Benga; though many of the people are able to speak the Benga as it is spoken at Corisco, and all seem to be able to understand it when spoken.

Our mission has, perhaps, had more intercourse with the Kombe tribe than with any other on the mainland. Many women from this tribe are married to Benga men, and reside in Corisco; this gives rise, together with the coast trade, to much intercourse between the two tribes. They have also shown more desire to send their children to school at Corisco, than any other tribe adjacent. Since the establishment of the school at Alongo, by brother Clemens, for boys from the mainland, this tribe has always been represented, and several who have been instructed in the school have been admitted to the church.

A Scripture Reader sent, and welcomed—Missionary visits—Candidates for Baptism.

More than a year and a half ago, our mission sent Belevi, a Benga man, whose mother was a native of Kombe, as a Scripture reader, to reside among the Kombe people. They received him with great cordiality, and have attended his meetings very well. On Sabbath the people come together at his house three times, to hear him read and explain the Scriptures. These Sabbath services are well attended; during the week he has morning and evening religious services, at which a few of the people always attend. He keeps up also a small school, at which eight or ten children receive instruction.

He has been visited frequently by Mr. Clemens, and occasionally by other members of the mission. For more than a year past, Belevi has been encouraged by the evident presence of God's Spirit, leading a number to inquire seriously after the way of life. Twelve had been gathered into a class, similar to the catechumen classes which we have at Corisco, to receive special instruction. Brother Clemens was satisfied, from various conversations which he had with members of the class, that some of them were prepared to receive baptism; and at his suggestion a committee of the session of the church at Evangasimba was appointed to go to Kombe and examine these candidates, and if the examination was satisfactory, baptize them, and hold communion services. The principal object of our visit was to attend to this duty.

Missionaries cordially greeted—Their preaching engagements—Questions asked and answered.

Thursday, Dec. 26.—After a pleasant sail of about nine hours from Corisco, we dropped our anchor opposite Belevi's house at Nanji, in the Kombe country. Belevi came out in a canoe, and gave us a cordial greeting. Ibia, one of our native elders, and myself, went on shore with Belevi. Brother Clemens had arranged to go on twelve or fifteen miles farther to the northward, to visit another of our Scripture readers, and to take some of his school-boys home on a visit to their parents. We had not left the boat long until the anchor was again up, and the boat under way.

By the time we got on shore, a great crowd had gathered, all eager to shake hands. This form of salutation is never performed among themselves, but they think it an indispensable act of politeness towards a white man. As soon as we arrived at Belevi's house, I requested the people to retire to their towns, and return in the evening, and I would preach to them. Soon after dark the house was crowded; it would hold only seventy-five or eighty persons. The attention given to the word preached was good; there was no talking, or signs of impatience. Before the congregation was dismissed, an opportunity was given for any one present to ask questions on the subjects touched upon in the sermon.

The first question asked was one which, no doubt, frequently arises in the mind of an intelligent heathen, when he first hears the gospel. One of the head-men present, who sat near to me, and who had given great attention to the word spoken, asked, "What will become of those who have never heard the gospel?" I explained to them as clearly as I could the teaching of the word of God on this subject. I asked them if they knew a man in their tribe who never did anything wrong. After some little hesitation and consultation, they thought they did. There were two men present whom they considered perfectly good; they did not quarrel or fight, or give anybody any trouble. When I mentioned several sins that they might be guilty of, it was acknowledged that they were drunkards. One man thought that the men would be good, if the women were not so wicked. Nearly all the troubles that they had arose from the wicked ways of the women. He seemed much surprised when I charged him, and others like him, with degrading the women by the treatment they gave them. This gave me a favourable opportunity to speak to them about the moral elevation of women by means of the gospel.

A White Missionary wanted.

One man said they would like much to have a white missionary. Though Belevi talked very well to them, still they did not know that he always told them the truth; a white man they could trust. I asked him if I should assume their dress, (which is both scanty and cheap,) and come there to live among them, bringing no money at all with me, if he thought, for the sake of the religious instruction I would be able to give them, the people would furnish me a place to live, and provide food for me. Several spoke out, that they thought they could not do it. I feared that many of them were more anxious for the profits they would have in building a house for the missionary, and providing him food, than for the benefit they might derive from his instructions. I told them what the Saviour said to the people, in John vi. 26: "Ye seek me, not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves, and were filled."

The conversation was continued for half an hour or longer, when the people were dismissed, with an invitation to come together again the next evening.

The people visited—Catechumen class examined—Excursion to a Balenga town—A pleasant incident.

Friday, Dec. 27.—This morning I employed in looking around among the native towns, and talking with the people. There is quite a cluster of villages at Nanji, and I suppose two hundred people live within half a mile of Belevi's house. During the course of the forenoon the catechumen class assembled, and those whom Belevi thought were prepared for baptism were examined. Six of those present gave satisfactory evidence of a change of heart, and showed a very creditable knowledge of the fundamental doctrines of the gospel.

In the afternoon, brother Clemens returned from his trip northward, bringing Ume, our other Scripture reader, with him. He had been travelling the greater part of the night, but the weather was good, and his trip had been a pleasant one. In the evening we had a crowded house again. Belevi read part of a chapter in one of the Gospels, explaining it as he read; he was followed by brother Clemens, who spoke of the love of God, and the duty of obedience to so good and kind a Father. The people seemed much interested and were very orderly.

Saturday, 28th.—This morning we made a short excursion of about three miles into the bush, to a Balengi town. The head-man of the town was at Nanji, and accompanied us. On our way we saw traces of numerous elephants; they are very destructive to the crops, sometimes they destroy the growing crops to such an extent as to threaten famine. The natives are not at all expert in killing them. They are too much afraid of them to venture close enough to do them any serious hurt with a gun. They often dig pitfalls, and occasionally succeed in capturing one. Their flesh is much esteemed by the Africans, and the ivory always commands a ready sale. We had a pleasant interview with the people at the Balengi town; we were presented with honey and fruits. A pleasant incident occurred at this town which shows us how the truth is spreading. We had spoken to the people a few words about the great salvation; we asked them if they had ever before heard of the true God and of the Saviour. They said they had very frequently, from a daughter of the head-man. She was married to a Kombe man, and was a member of Belevi's catechumen class. They said when she had been home visiting them, she had spoken to them frequently of the Saviour.

Examination again of Candidates for Baptism—Six Adults baptized.

After our return to Nanji we examined the candidates for baptism again, and we decided to baptize six of them the next morning. One more, who was absent, Belevi spoke highly of, and felt sure he would also have been admitted had he been present. In the evening we had services preparatory to the administration of the Lord's Supper, on which we expected to attend the next day. Besides the committee of the session, there were present four or five of our church members from Corisco and Ilobi, who had come along with us in the boat. Our services this evening were very well attended, but not by so many as on the previous evenings.

Sabbath, Dec. 29th.—Early this morning we held a prayer-meeting at which all the Christians and candidates for church-membership were present. The prayers of the native Christians were very earnest, and a deep interest pervaded the meeting: we trust the Spirit of God was present. Before ten o'clock the house was crowded to excess, and the doors and windows filled with people. Before the sermon the ordinance of baptism was administered to six adults. The scene seemed to make a deep impression upon all present. The sermon was listened to with great apparent interest. No congregation could have been more quiet, reverential, or attentive than this heathen congregation was, while witnessing for the first time the ordinances of the church of Christ. All the head-men from the towns around were present, and seemed no less interested than their people. In the afternoon and evening we had religious services, which were also well attended, but not by so great a crowd as was present in the morning.

"This first Communion Season."

This first communion season among a tribe of Africans, where two years ago unmitigated heathenism prevailed, was such as to encourage our hearts and strengthen our faith. We had the privilege of admitting six to the communion of the church, of seeing and hearing others who were inquiring the way to eternal life, and of seeing all the people around apparently interested in the word preached, and in the ordinances administered. What cause for thankfulness and gratitude to God! To his name be all the glory!

Homeward Voyage—Heavy Storm and bad exposure—Safely at Home.

Monday, Dec. 30th.—About one o'clock this morning we started on our return to Corisco. With a favourable land-breeze we made good progress until after daylight, when the wind coming out ahead turned us off in our course, and forced us to run out to sea more than we desired. At several points canoes came off to see us, and inquire after the news. Our boat is so well known, that it scarcely ever passes along the land north or south of Corisco without being frequently intercepted by canoes. Some wish to inquire after friends at Corisco, some after children who are in the school there, and some wish to sell fruits, eggs, or fish. If the wind is fair, they are frequently so far distanced that they are compelled to put back without getting within hail.

At twelve o'clock, noon, we began to see the tops of the trees on Corisco Island. Soon afterward the sea-breeze set in, and we had a fair prospect of getting on shore before dark; but the wind kept too much ahead, and drove us far down into the bay. A little before sundown a heavy rain-storm set in, and the clouds thickened so much that we lost sight of the land. We found ourselves at sea without a compass. The rain came down in torrents. We were not more than four miles from Corisco, but the rain was so thick that, with the aid of the vivid lightning, we could see no trace of the land. We could find no bottom so as to cast our anchor, and we were about coming to the disagreeable conclusion, that we would have to spend the night in our open boat, drenched, and floating at the mercy of the waves. But a kind Providence interfered; the thick clouds broke away, and we discovered the island in quite a different quarter from what we supposed it lay. After toiling at the oars until nearly the middle of the night, we reached the land. Our friends received us with joy, and we all felt grateful to that kind Providence which watched over us, and protected us during our journey.

MISCELLANY.

"ODDMENTS."—"ODDS AND ENDS."

Our Yorkshire friends are well acquainted with these expressions. When John comes home and empties his wallet, saith an old ditty,

> "his oddments prove
> Candles, soap, and such like stuff,
> Of which wed folks have ne'er enough."

Our readers will be glad to hear that our treasury is being enriched by oddments. We lately attended a village meeting, where a clerical friend amused and interested us by telling us the contents of a missionary-box which had been sent to him by a servant. It contained 9s. 10½d. [$2.45.] She said it was made up of "oddments."

Our young friends will be anxious to hear what the oddments were,—old rags, old iron, wool, and ears of corn. This industrious friend sells the old rags; whenever she finds a horse-shoe, or a piece of old iron, she treasures it up. At harvest-time, when the farmers are leading or carrying their corn, many ears are dropped as the carts and wagons are going through the gateways, and under the trees by the wayside. Here she is a busy gleaner; and she is also a diligent wool-gatherer, picking every bit of wool off the hedges left by the sheep. The old rags and iron she sells to a man coming about for such like wares; the corn she threshes out, and sells to a poor man to help to feed his pig; and when the wool has gone through the necessary process of cleaning, carding, and spinning, from the yarn come some very nice comfortable woollen stockings.—English Episcopal Missionary Instructor.

THE BRAHMAN AND THE CHRISTIAN.

A Brahman of my own age was performing his devotions to Gunga early this morning, when I was going to prayer. My soul was struck with the sovereignty of God, who, out of pure grace, had made such a difference in all the external circumstances of our lives. Oh! let not that man's earnestness rise up in judgment against me at the last day! In the afternoon they were performing the ceremony of throwing the effigies of Cali, collected from several villages, into the river. In addition to the usual music, there were trumpets. The objects of worship, which were figures of relief on the sector of a circle of about one hundred and twenty degrees, most gorgeously bedecked with tinsel, were kept under a little awning in their respective boats. As the budgerow passed through the boats, they turned so as to present the front of their goddess to me, and at the same time blew a blast with their trumpet, evidently intending to gratify me with a sight of what appeared to them so fine. Had their employment been less impious, I should have returned the compliment by looking, but I turned away. Yet I felt no tenderness of grief; nor in the morning did I feel anything like due thankfulness for God's electing mercy, in making me thus to differ from the Brahmans. I have daily and hourly proofs of my corruption; for when does my heart come up to what my half-enlightened understanding approved? yet I intend, through grace, to continue praying to the end for their poor precious souls, and that the kingdom of God may be set up here.—Henry Martyn, 1806.

DEVIL WORSHIP.

"I now state, and I wish it to be heard in every corner of the Christian world, that the devil is regularly, systematically, and ceremoniously worshipped by a large majority of the inhabitants of the island of Ceylon! The demon-worship of the Greeks and Romans had good, as well as bad demons; but I have never heard of a benevolent being in the worship as practised in Ceylon. They are all evil, exercising a most wicked and malicious influence over the affairs of men; and on this account, the natives are afraid of them continually.

When the Portuguese had possession of the island, they prohibited devil worship, and made it a capital offence for any one to profess himself a devil-priest. The Dutch also enacted laws against it; but still it exists, and nothing but the gospel of Christ can succeed in eradicating its principles, and destroying its practice."—Rev. B. Clough.

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

IN MARCH, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Londonderry—Windham ch 70; Antrim ch 32. Pby of Troy—Cambridge ch 123 37, of which 19 86 from Sab sch, to ed heathen children; Stillwater ch, to cons Rev. WILLIAM M. JOHNSON L. M. 49 12. Pby of Albany—Rev W J Blain 10; Mariaville ch 10; Kingsboro' ch, to cons ELI LEAVENWORTH L. D. 100; Saratoga Springs ch 81 06 475 55

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Ogdensburgh—First Oswegatchie mo con 32, Sab sch, to ed a boy in Ningpo 25, ditto in Corisco 25. Pby of Genesee River—Groveland ch 12 16, Sab sch 2 15. Pby of Rochester City—Wheatland ch 10 106 31

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Hudson—Hopewell ch 10; Deer Park ch 36 25. Pby of North River—Rondout ch 80; Calvary ch, Newburg, mo con 7 88, Sab sch 3 79. Pby of Bedford—Rye ch mo con 6 69; Croton Falls ch 7 10, Sab sch 2 50; South Greenburgh ch, Dobbs' Ferry, 17 25; North Salem ch 15. Pby of Long Island—Amagansett ch 11. Pby of New York—Forty second street ch mo con 18 94; Chelsea ch mo con 19 50; Fifteenth street ch 56 65; Brick ch ann'l coll 1373 95, mo con 74 14; first ch, of which 5000 from two members, for printing-press in China, 5125, mo con 164 23, "Earnest Workers," for Shanghai mission 350, Mission school, for Shanghai mission 3; 5th Avenue and 19th street ch 10, mo con 16 10, Mission chapel 4 07; West 23d street ch ann'l coll 69. Pby of New York 2d—Canal street ch mo con 10; Washington Heights ch 5; Hamden ch 8. Pby of Connecticut—Thompsonville ch 19. Pby of Nassau—Williamsburgh ch mo con 42 11, Mission school 10; Greene Avenue ch, Brooklyn, mo con 39; Astoria ch 16 89; Freeport ch 6; 1st ch, Brooklyn, mo con 77 50; 2d ch, Brooklyn, 384 14; Central ch, Brooklyn, 400 8499 68

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—New Vernon ch 20; Lamington ch 69; 1st ch, Metuchin, 26 25. Pby of Passaic—Springfield ch 42 24; Chatham village ch 80; Mount Olive ch 21; Third ch, Newark, for Papal countries 38 60, mo con 56 15, Sab sch 7 50. Pby of West Jersey—Blackwoodtown ch 15; Cedarville ch, add'l 2. Pby of Newton—Greenwich ch 48 91; Blairstown ch 16 36. Pby of Luzerne—Pittston ch, add'l 5. Pby of Burlington—Burlington ch 14 06. Pby of Monmouth—Red Bank ch 10. Pby of Corisco—Evangasimba ch 59, mo con 28 50 559 57

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—Middletown ch, Media, 15; 6th ch, Philadelphia, 25 25; 7th ch, Philadelphia, a member 20. Pby of Philadelphia Central—Spring Garden ch, Philadelphia, mo con 31 60; West Arch street ch, Philadelphia, 47 71. Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Germantown 1st ch 183 50, mo con 108 44, Sab sch 20, Infant class 12 30; Roxboro' ch 8; Falls of Schuylkill ch 6 13; Conshohocken ch 9; Providence ch, a lady 2 50. Pby of Newcastle—Forks of Brandywine ch 63 60; Newark ch 10; Upper Octorara ch 110; Fagg's Manor ch 73 Pby of Donegal—Lancaster ch Sab sch 17; Union ch 25, less for Record 6 25. Pby of Huntingdon—East Kishacoquillas ch 58. Pby of Northumberland—Berwick ch 4; Brier Creek ch 4; Ashland ch 2; Gordon ch 1; Great Island ch, Lock Haven, 71 54; Mahoning North ch. Danville, 43, Sab sch 15; Lewisburg ch 60 25; Williamsport ch, from Mrs E J Hepburn 10, bal to cons MINNIE R. HEPBURN L. M.; Milton ch, from Miss Jane Hammond 5; Bloomsburg ch 176 98, to cons John Brugler, T. J. Morris, Esq., John Robison, John Woodin, J. H. Vanderslice, and Miss Ellen McClure, L. MS., of which 3 44 from Sab sch infant class 1232 55

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.—Pby of Baltimore—Annapolis ch 27; Harmony ch 26; Central ch Sab sch, Balt. 22 51; South ch Sab sch, Balt. 20. Pby of Carlisle—Big Spring ch 100 88; Greencastle ch Sab sch 12 75, of which 5 for Siam Mission. Pby of Lewes—Manokin ch, Princess Anne 28; Pitts Creek ch 6. Pby of Potomac—New York Avenue ch, Washington, D. C. 36 10, Youth's Miss'y Society 6 88; Bridge st ch, Georgetown, D. C. 44 69; 7th st ch, Washington, D. C. 12 342 81

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Redstone—Connellsville ch 35. Pby of Ohio—Centre ch 30 50; 4th ch Pittsburgh 39 70; Valley ch Sab sch 2 50; Mansfield and Mount Pisgah chs 20. Pby of Blairsville—Congruity ch 27 22; Beulah ch 38 49; Unity ch 55; New Alexander ch 26. Pby of Clarion—Middle Creek ch 2 60; Oak Grove ch 1 40. Pby of Saltsburgh—Glade Run ch Sab sch 5 283 41

SYNOD OF ALLEGHANY.—Pby of Alleghany—Centre ch 20, of which from Fem Miss'y Soc'y 6; Slate Lick ch 24 15; North Butler ch 4 50. Pby of Beaver—West Middlesex ch Sab sch 3; Newcastle ch 25; Neshanock ch 57. Pby of Erie—Mill Creek ch 8; Sugar Creek ch 8; Oil City ch 7 58; Mount Pleasant ch 12. Pby of Alleghany City—Pine Creek ch 10; Freedom ch 4 46; Bridgewater German ch 33 cts 184 02

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—Allan Grove ch 5; Wolf Run ch 3; Frankfort ch 7 73; New Cumberland ch 10; Pigeon Creek ch 100; Claysville ch 26; Mount Prospect ch 6 41; Lower Buffalo ch 3 40; Pine Grove ch 3 60; Washington ch mo con 15 45. Pby of Steubenville—Island Creek ch 14; Kilgore ch 6; New Hagerstown ch 1; Oak Ridge ch 13 75. Pby of New Lisbon—Poland ch 13 228 34

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Columbus—First ch Columbus, mo con 43 47. Pby of Marion—Bucyrus ch 9 30. Pby of Zanesville—Washington ch 36 07; Salt Creek ch 8; Duncan's Falls ch 3. Pby of Richland—Lexington ch Sab sch 6 30; Waterford ch 4 55; Utica ch 4; Ashland ch 6 75. Pby of Wooster—Holmesville ch 2; Wooster ch 52 24, of which 20 81 from Sab school; Dalton ch, to con David Morrow L M 49 19. Pby of Coshocton—Apple Creek ch 21; Keene ch 10 255 87

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.—Pby of Western Reserve—Westminster ch, Cleveland, Ohio 20 00

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Chillicothe—First ch Chillicothe 71 66; Union ch 10; Pisgah ch 7. Pby of Miami—Second ch Springfield 69 14; Monroe ch 16 53. Pby of Cincinnati—First ch Cincinnati 83 02; mo con 56 65; 7th ch Cincinnati 189; Monroe ch 3 84. Pby of Sidney—New Salem ch 2 60 509 44

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of New Albany—First ch New Albany, to cons Rev S S POTTER L M 57 30. Pby of Indianapolis—First ch Indianapolis 143, Sab sch, to ed a child in India 25; 3d ch Indianapolis 40, Sab sch 20 50. Pby of Whitewater—Richmond ch 22 75 308 55

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Lake—Tassinong ch 4 49. Pby of Fort Wayne—Pleasant Ridge ch 6, of which 78 cts from the Sab sch; Elhanan ch 3. Pby of Crawfordsville—Bethany ch 11; Rockville ch 17 58 42 07

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Kaskaskia—Chester ch Sab sch 9. Pby of Sangamon—Petersburg ch 105. Pby of Hillsboro'—Second Jerseyville ch 3 50; Mason ch 6. Pby of Bloomington—Harmony ch 3 25. Pby of Saline—Olney ch 3 129 75

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.—Pby of Schuyler—Ipava ch 3 50; Vermont ch 3 50; Edwards ch 14 01; Fountain Green ch 5. Pby of Rock River—Middle Creek ch 10; Andover ch 5. Pby of Chicago—Rev Willis Lord, D. D., Chicago, Ill. 20; Victor ch 3; First ch Rockford, 125 189 01

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.—Pby of Dane—Oregon ch 3 15; Platteville ch 1 50. Pby of Winnebago—Oxford ch, Wisconsin 2; Winneconne ch 3 9 65

SYNOD OF ST. PAUL.—Pby of St. Paul—Vermillion ch 2 50, Sab sch 1. Pby of Chippewa—Winona ch 22 70, Sab sch 5; St. Charles and Fremont chs, Minn. 4; Sheldon ch 2; Richland Prairie ch 1; Foreston and Lime Spring chs 2 15 40 35

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Cedar—Marion ch Sab sch 1; 1st ch Muscatine, mo con 10; Tipton ch 21. Pby of Dubuque—Scotch Grove ch 15; Canton ch 1; Epworth ch Sab sch 1 49 00

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.—Pby of Iowa—West Point ch Sab sch 4 04; Franklin Centre ch, a member 1. Pby of Fairfield—Liberty ch 1; Lafayette ch 1 50; Sigourney ch 2 50; Fairfield ch 3 13 04

SYNOD OF UPPER MISSOURI.—Pby of Highland—Lecompton ch, Kansas 1 50

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.—Pby of St. Louis—Bethlehem ch 5; Zion German ch 5; Nazareth ch 5, Elder Ahrens 4 50; Bonhomme ch 3 50; Bethel ch 11 50; St. Charles' ch 17 15, Miss'y Soc'y to ed a Choctaw boy 15; Pine street ch, "M E S" 1 50, "G A S" 3 50. Pby of Palmyra—Hannibal First ch 10 81 65

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.—Pby of Louisville—First ch Louisville, mo con 21 65; Second ch Louisville, mo con 16 85; A friend 10; Chestnut street ch Louisville 151 85, a member 5; Shelbyville ch, in part, 90; 4th ch Louisville, Thomas Stevens 5. Pby of Transylvania—Lebanon ch 3; Paint Lick ch 57 43. Pby of West Lexington—Pisgah ch 21; Georgetown ch, in part, 10, Rev D P Young 10. Pby of Ebenezer—First ch Covington, mo con 25, Sab sch 50 476 78

SYNOD OF PACIFIC.—Pby of Oregon—Pleasant Grove ch 13 50. Pby of Stockton—First ch Stockton, San Francisco Cal., mo con 72 90; Reformed Dutch ch San Francisco, Cal. 48 134 40

Total received from churches, $14,173 30

LEGACIES.—Alexander Sheldon, dec'd, Amsterdam, N. Y. 1000; Mrs Margaret Sanderson, deceased, Milton, Pa. 200; Interest on Bequest of John Gallagher, deceased, of Cincinnati 30; Patterson Estate 25 1255 00

SEMINARIES.—Princeton Theological Seminary, Religious Contribution Society 40 00

MISCELLANEOUS.—A friend 1; H Guilford, Ohio 10; Jacob S Dod, Newark, N. J. 5; Friends, for Papal Europe 2500; "Tythes" 5; Paul B Du Chaillu 74 25; Little Belle 1 50; Rev E R Beadle 5; Col. G Loomis, Fort Columbus 5; James Bayard 50; James Hay, N. Y. 10; a friend, Pleasant Run, O. 5; One-tenth, "S T" 10; John S Crane, M D., Goshen, N. Y. 20; Thos Vannill, Bennington, Ind. 6; a lady in Massachusetts 5; Friend of Missions 5; Wm Sidney Smith, N. Y, to cons his wife L. M. 100: E B Fuller, Trenton, N. J. 75; Freeman Gould, Albion, Ill. 10; W S Amberson, Waynesboro', Pa. 25; "W," Phila 20; a friend, Carlisle, Pa. 2; Mr and Mrs Vandyke, Harrisville, Butler Co., Pa. 10 2959 75

Total Receipts in March, 1862, $18,428 05

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

NOTE.—The donation of $30 credited in February to Rev. M. F. Adams should be Rev. M. T. Adam.

One box of clothing from Concord and Pleasant Valley churches, Presbytery of Allegheny, for the Chippewa Mission, valued at $66 53.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., or Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, Jr., Esq., Treasurer—same address.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY—Two editions of this publication are printed. The Pamphlet Edition contains 32 pages, and is published monthly, at 50 cents a year for each copy. It is sent free, when desired, to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to the ministers of our churches.

The Newspaper Edition contains a selected portion of the contents of the pamphlet edition. A copy is sent free of charge, except for postage, to the children of each family in every Sabbath School making regular contributions to the Treasury of the Board.

Address for either edition, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—

Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D. D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 910 Arch street;
Pittsburg, Pa., Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky., Andrew Davidson;
Memphis, Tenn., J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Mo., David Keith;
Natchez, Miss., Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Va., Henry C. Watkins;
Columbia, S. C., H. C. Bronson;
Augusta, Geo., James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board, and should be preceded, or accompanied by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

OVERLAND MAIL.—Letters for the Overland Mail are forwarded from the Mission House by the steamers nearest the first and fifteenth of each month. Postage: from New York, to SIAM, CHINA, JAPAN, and BRAZIL, forty-five cents for each half ounce weight; but if sent by the French mail, thirty cents for each quarter ounce weight; to LIBERIA and CORISCO, thirty-three cents for each half ounce weight; to INDIA, via Southampton, thirty-six cents for each half ounce weight; via Marseilles, forty-two cents for a quarter ounce weight; forty-nine cents for a half ounce weight, sixty-seven for three-quarter ounce weight, seventy-four for an ounce weight, a dollar and five cents for an ounce and a half weight Letters to be forwarded by the "French mail," or to India "via Marseilles," must be so marked. Postage on newspapers, six cents each. The postage on letters and newspapers must be prepaid. The letters forwarded from the Mission House to each Mission are put in an outside envelope, and therefore stamps should not be affixed to them. The postage is assessed according to the weight of each letter, and may be paid by sending postage stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the Payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,
No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of Colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record and Sabbath-school Visitor, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., Corresponding Secretary, No. 821 Chestnut street.

All communications, reports, remittances of money, and orders for books, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage, and Business Correspondent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to Rev. W. M. Engles, D. D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to James Dunlap, Esq., Treasurer.

NOTICE TO COMMISSIONERS TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Commissioners and other persons expecting to attend the sessions of the coming General Assembly, at Columbus, Ohio, are reminded that, as the Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Publication designs, if Providence permit, to be there, they will have a favourable opportunity to transmit through him any contributions to the Colportage or Distribution Funds of the Board, or to pay sums due for the Sabbath-School Visitor, or Home and Foreign Record. He will also be glad to receive new subscriptions for those papers.

THE PAST YEAR.

During the present month the Board will render to the General Assembly its report for another year. It has been a year of mingled discouragement and unusual help. The existence of civil war, the general disturbance and depression of business, and other causes, existing at the beginning of the year, excited the liveliest apprehensions of danger and difficulty in regard to the affairs of the Board. Nearly one-half the area of the country and of the church was completely closed against its publications and its colportage work.

But by the blessing of God, and by the exercise of prudence and vigilance in the management of its business, it has been brought safely through this year of severe trial. Its colportage work and its ordinary sales have, of course, been temporarily and very considerably reduced. But it has been preserved from any positive losses in an extraordinary degree, and has been enabled to adhere to its cash system of payments throughout, neither borrowing or owing anything, and closes the year with a balance in its treasury, reduced indeed, but enough to enable it to enter upon the new year without danger of embarrassment.

For a considerable portion of the year, the Board felt great concern in regard to the contributions of the churches for its Colportage Fund, and there seemed to be a danger, that while the interest and sympathy of the people was so intensely drawn to new and unusual matters, the work of colportage might be compelled to cease almost altogether. But while the end of the year is reached with a diminished aggregate of contributions, owing to the fact that nothing has been this year received from Southern churches, it is found that the churches in the non-seceding states have given a little more than in the year before. And it is a pleasing fact, that over one hundred churches have this year contributed to our Colportage Fund, which have never contributed before.

The work of the Board among the soldiers and sailors has been the great work of the year. At least three hundred thousand of these brave men have received, by the printed pages of the Board, an invitation to Jesus Christ, and through him, to eternal life. It will be seen, from communications in this and the last numbers of the Record, that our colporteurs are following our armies, are entering the military hospitals, and are working among the thousands of prisoners in the West, everywhere scattering the precious seeds of divine truth among men ready and eager to receive it. Large packages of books and tracts are also going to the naval and military stations on our coast, all the way round to Ship Island, by every steamer that affords an opportunity. In carrying on these distributions, the Board keeps fully up to the means placed at its disposal. And however in some aspects the results of the last year's operations may seem much smaller than those of former years, the Board fully believes that in no year of its history has it done a more important or more useful work, than during the last twelvemonth.

AN APPEAL TO SABBATH-SCHOOLS TO HELP OUR SOLDIERS.

The Sabbath-school of the West Spruce street church, in Philadelphia, lately sent to the Board of Publication a generous contribution to aid in sending books and tracts to the soldiers. It was expended by an excellent colporteur who is laboring among the soldiers in Tennessee. He has written the following letter to the school, to show them how their money was used.

It must be a very great pleasure to that school to know that their contributions helped to place good books and tracts in the hands of at least 7500 soldiers, just a day or two before they were engaged in the terrible struggle at Pittsburgh Landing. Within a few days many of those brave men were cold in death, and resting in their graves. How many of them received benefit to their souls, only God can tell. But it was a blessed work just then to give them the invitation to salvation and eternal life through Jesus Christ.

Will not many more of our Sabbath-schools help the Board to carry forward this good work among the soldiers?

Savannah, Tennessee, April 2d, 1862.

George Junkin, Jr., Esq., Superintendent West Spruce Street Sabbath-school, Philadelphia.

My Dear Sir—I have the satisfaction of informing you that the recent very liberal donation of your Sabbath-school, to aid in furnishing books and tracts to the soldiers, has been already judiciously expended in this far-off section of our country. That it has done good—that the books and tracts with which it furnished me have delighted many a soldier in camp, and cheered the hearts of many pining in hospitals, you may rest assured. I do not entertain a doubt that if the generous contributors to the amount donated by your school ever gather "around the throne of God in heaven," they will meet soldiers there who were led to Christ the Saviour by the books and teachings which your money furnished.

I can only repeat to your children, through you, what I have previously stated to the Secretary of the Board of Publication, that nine-tenths of our soldiers are not only willing, but anxious, to receive books and tracts. They are far away from homes and kindred. There are no fathers and mothers, no brothers and sisters, to nurse them when they are sick, and they constantly endure great privations. They are thus made to think upon religious matters, and they are always grateful when religious books or tracts are offered them. What a precious privilege it is to minister to the wants of their immortal souls, and to feel a consciousness that we have done something to lead them to the Saviour. If the dear children of our Sabbath-schools and members of our churches could only see for one short hour what I daily see of the wants and gratitude of our soldiers, all would come forward with their donations to aid our Board of Publication in pushing forward the blessed work in which it is now engaged.

Let me give you and the children of your school a brief history of what I have done during the last few days, with the money given to the Board by these children, and a few—what a pity it is they are so few—other kind friends to the soldier. On my way to this place, our boat lay several hours at Paducah, Kentucky, and I went ashore to distribute books and tracts among the soldiers on the streets. Not less than twelve thousand pages of tracts were thus distributed. I offered a tract to a young soldier, whom I saw standing alone in the street. He received it thankfully, and said if I was a minister he would like to converse with me. He had, he said, been for several weeks seeking the Saviour. He was an entire stranger in Paducah, and was stationed at Fort Henry, where he knew of no one who could direct him to Christ. We sat down together upon an old box, and there I tried to direct him to the Lamb of God who taketh away the sins of the world. His mother was a praying, pious woman; he daily tried to pray. I endeavoured to teach him how to do so. Our interview was quite long and interesting, and seemed to do him good. I placed in his hands a supply of little books and tracts suitable to his case, and left him, with a promise on his part that he would continue to pray and seek the Friend of Sinners. This is only one of many cases which I have no room to give in detail. As I pass along the street, a squad of cavalry is seen dashing towards me. As the men approach, they rein up and surround me. Am I a prisoner? Only for a few moments. These men had seen my tracts and books, and when told of their character, they received them gladly, and went their way, reading as they went. This is merely an illustration of the willingness of the men to receive and read religious truth.

Nine miles above this place is "Pittsburgh Landing," where the army of General Grant is encamped. It is a city of tents, and covers a space of at least six miles square. Here I distributed about sixty thousand pages of tracts—one hundred and twenty-five dozen of sheet hymns—twenty-two hundred volumes—put religious reading in the hands of at least seventy-five hundred men—and made arrangements for sending further supplies from Cairo. But, my dear children, when you learn that there are tens of thousands encamped hereabout, you will see how little has been done when compared with what remains undone. Only a small portion of the army has been supplied. What shall become of the remaining thousands? Can nothing be done for them?

This place, Savannah, is the point to which the sick are sent from the army above. It has nine different hospitals, containing about seven hundred sick soldiers. Oh how gladly these poor men have received the books you sent them! As I entered a ward in one of the hospitals, I gave a "Soldier's Pocket-book" to a man whose bed was near the door, telling him, as I had not enough for all, that he must loan it to those lying near him. As I was passing out of that ward, a man lying next to the one to whom I had given the "Pocket-book;" begged piteously for "one of those little books with such good reading in it for a sick man." He was so importunate that I promised to bring him one the next day. He looked disappointed. "Will you surely bring it?" said he. I told him I would, if alive and well. About an hour after I had occasion to pass this same hospital, and took the poor sick man his "little book." He saw me when I entered the door, and when I held up the book his eyes fairly danced for joy. The men in this hospital said I was the first man who had ever come to converse and pray with them.

In two or three of the wards in another hospital the inmates have morning and evening worship, which is conducted by themselves. Here I found two or three recent converts, one or two earnest inquirers, and a good state of religious feeling. Here our books and tracts—the "Social Psalmodist" particularly—were gladly welcomed.

But I am making this letter too long, and must close. I hope, dear children, that what I have written, which is but a leaf from my daily experience, will stimulate you to greater efforts, and that you and I may meet in heaven many a soldier saved by our labours and donations.

Yours sincerely, W.

THE FORT DONELSON PRISONERS.

The following interesting letter is from our colporteur now labouring at Indianapolis among the Fort Donelson prisoners, who are under guard at a camp in that vicinity.

Indianapolis, April 9th, 1862.

Rev. W. E. Schenck, D. D., Cor. Sec.

Dear Sir—On the last day of March I commenced the work of supplying the Fort Donelson prisoners with the publications of the Board. They number 4018, besides some 200 in the city hospitals yet to be visited. They are mostly Tennesseeans and Kentuckians, with a few Mississippians. They are from twelve to sixty years old. Quite a number are boys under eighteen. Some of the latter recognised in the Sabbath-school Visitor an old acquaintance. Never have I seen men so anxious to get religious books. I have given them 2818 "Soldier's Pocket-Books," about 1200 volumes of other books—a volume for each man—50,000 pages of tracts, and 1000 Sabbath-school Visitors, and still they importune for more. My receipts of money as yet are nothing. It is earnestly to be desired that our churches would come fully up to the work.

At the commencement I gave away a few baskets of tracts, Visitors, and a few "Soldier's Pocket-Books," to satisfy the rush for books. This rush increased, and compelled me to visit the divisions by number, and to call first for the sergeant and get the number of men in his division, then to inquire for their minister. If they had none, I sought a pious man who could sing and conduct prayer-meetings—this to enable me to place the volumes and music in the hands most likely to use them best. I told them that if any book did not suit any person, he could return it to me in good order the next day. Not a single volume or tract has been returned, nor have I seen a single page of a tract or a book destroyed. I have seen no other books circulated among them but Testaments by the American Bible Society. I have myself begged Bibles and Testaments and supplied three of their ministers, who stated that they had lost their Bibles at Forts Henry and Donelson. Men meet me daily and implore for the "song-books," as they call the "Soldier's Pocket-Book." This continued anxiety for the "Pocket-Book" led me to consult some of our influential members in this place, and give an order for 2000 by telegraph. These are now all distributed. At the commencement of my second visit the announcement was made that an order had been sent to the Board at Philadelphia, and the books received within three days. As they wanted "song-books," they should have them, on condition that they would sing a hymn, and let me talk a little. This they readily assented to, and the service concluded with a brief prayer. Considerable feeling was visible on the faces of some of them. I feel that I have discharged the mission for the Board in all things more fully than in this last exercise. In my strength or weakness, I need your prayers to aid me in this great duty.

Very truly yours, H. B. S.

NEW PUBLICATION.

THE VAIL FAMILY, or Doing Good. Written for the Board of Publication. By Theodelinda. 18mo. pp. 392. Price 40 and 45 cents; postage 11 cts.

This book shows how those in the humblest circumstances are not deprived of the power of doing good; and how the exercise of benevolence and self-denial by the poor naturally results in their elevation in society. The story which runs through the work is replete with interest, and the conversations and reflections exhibit much careful thought.

DONATIONS RECEIVED FOR GENERAL COLPORTAGE, AND FOR THE SOLDIERS AND SAILORS, BY THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION, DURING THE MONTH OF MARCH, 1862.

Pby of Albany—Hamilton Union ch	3 00
Pby of Genesee River—Groveland ch 7 07; Tuscarora ch 5; Bath 1st ch 11 52	23 59
Pby of Michigan—Pontiac 1st ch Sab sch	3 00
Pby of Rochester City—St. Peter's ch Rochester	29 00
Pby of North River—Newburg 1st ch	73 75
Pby of Long Island—Huntington South ch	7 51
Pby of New York—Nyack ch 20; New York First ch 1791 32; New York Fifth Avenue ch 791 23	2602 55
Pby of New York 2d—Peekskill ch, Rev D M Halliday,	33 00
Pby of Nassau—Williamsburg ch 2; Brooklyn Second ch 69 54; Brooklyn German ch 2	73 54
Pby of Elizabethtown—Metuchin First ch, "a lady" 1, Ladies' Benevolent Society 5; Baskinridge ch 33	39 00
Pby of Passaic—Mt. Olive ch 11 51; Flanders ch 7 72	19 23
Pby of West Jersey—Millville ch	3 00
Pby of Newton—Belvidere First ch 15; Stillwater ch 5	20 00
Pby of Raritan—Lambertsville ch	10 00
Pby of Luzerne—Scranton ch 6 25; Pittston ch 18; Summit Hill ch 5	29 25
Pby of Corisco—Evangasimba ch	6 00
Pby of Monmouth—Red Bank ch	10 00
Pby of Philadelphia—Seventh ch Sab sch, add'l 1 50, a member 10; Tenth ch 158 35, W Jennison 5	174 85
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Great Valley ch	16 34
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Newton ch 12; Providence ch, "a lady" 2 50	14 50
Pby of Donegal—Cedar Grove ch	6 00
Pby of Carlisle—Harrisburg ch Sab sch 25; Waynesboro' ch, W S Amberson 25	50 00
Pby of Potomac—Washington, 7th street ch 5 00; Georgetown, Bridge street ch 25 03	30 03
Pby of Erie—Gravel Run ch, Rev James W Dickey, add'l 1; Fairfield ch 2 80; Meadville ch, Rev Dr Reynolds 24 25: Concord ch, in part, by Rev J H Sargent 3; Sturgeonville ch, J Eaton 4	35 05
Pby of Allegheny City—Allegheny Central ch	50 00
Pby of Washington—West Alexandria ch, in part 12; Washington ch 33 81	45 81
Pby of Steubenville—New Cumberland ch 2 47; Steubenville ch 6; Fairmount ch 2 45	10 92
Pby of Wooster—Millersburg ch 8; Holmesburg ch 2	10 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Springfield ch	7 10
Pby of New Albany—Brownstown German ch	2 00
Pby of Indianapolis—Franklin ch, Rev A B Morey	11 00
Pby of Saline—Olney ch	2 00
Pby of Bloomington—Farm Ridge ch	5 00
Pby of Rock River—Princeton ch	7 65
Pby of Chicago—Rockford First ch, Mrs Amanda Sheppard	1 00
Pby of Dane—Plattsville ch	2 50
Pby of Chippewa—St. Charles ch 2; Fremont ch 2	4 00
Pby of Winnebago—Winneconne ch 1; Wyauwego ch 2 45	3 45
Pby of Cedar—Red Oak ch	6 00
Pby of Dubuque—Epworth ch 41 cents; Scotch Grove ch 1	1 41
Pby of Missouri—Glasgow ch, Rev J A Quarles	6 00
Pby of Louisville—Owensboro' ch, A Davidson	21 38
Pby of Wyaconda—Kehoky ch 2; Athens ch 50 cents	2 50
Pby of Transylvania—Lancaster ch, per A Davidson	9 50
Pby of Oregon—Portland ch 21 50, H W Corbet hon mem 50	71 50
MISCELLANEOUS.
"B" 5; A Mayland, Desmoines, Ill. 2; A friend in Chicago 14; Martha Scott and other friends to the soldiers, Adams' Mills, Ohio 20; Rev A G Harned, Slatington, Pa. 1	42 00
	3634 91

Donations received for the DISTRIBUTION FUND OF THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION during the month of March, 1862.

Special Donations for Sailors and Soldiers.

"A Teacher," Elizabeth, N. J. 3; Three persons belonging to Liberty Corner Presbyterian ch, per Rev J T English, N. J. 7; Mrs C F Commings, Kishacoquillas, Mifflin Co., Pa. 1; Anonymous, Friendsville, Ill. 3; "Anonymous," Hickory, Pa. 2; Ladies' Aid Society, West Union, Va. 5; Rev Dr Vaughn 6 25; from "four children," Radnor, Pa., for soldiers 6; "Somerville," for Naval School, Newport, R. I., per James S Knowlson, 10; Wm Beard, bal. for soldiers 53 cts; Joseph Albree, Pittsburgh 5; Hannah Ferguson, New Pittsburgh, O. 1; "A lady" of Oswegatchie ch, N. Y., per Rev L Merrill Miller 2; Mrs C J Dewing, Wyalusing 3; N G Nuttman, Elizabeth, N. J., for a lady 3; Rev J A Whitaker, Chaplain of 11th Pa. Cavalry 2; H E McCord, Freedom Plains 1; B F Rittenhouse, Georgetown, D. C. 5; 1st ch Sab sch, Princeton, N. J., 26 50; Mrs C Field, for Soldiers 2 50; 2d ch Sab sch, Carlisle, from Mrs S J Beetem, add'l 3; "A R Y," Phelps 5; Anonymous, Salem, N. J. 3; W L Patterson, Summit Hill 5; Mrs A R Rumsey, Stafford, N. Y. 2; J S Moore, Petersburg, Ill. 5; A mother, Nicholasville, Ky. 1; C L B, New York 50; Rev Wm J Blain, Canaan Centre, N. Y. 10; Eliza McAllister, Taneytown, Md. 2; Rev J T Coit, St. Peter's ch Rochester, N. Y. 25; Anonymous N S Z, Harrisburg, Pa. 10; per Miss J E McConahey, Wooster, Ohio, Judge Avery 5; J H Kanke 3; E Quinby 3; Mrs M J Culbertson 1; J E McConahy 3; West Spruce street ch Sab sch, per George Junkin, Jr. 33 03; W A Hooper, Birmingham, Huntingdon Co., Pa. 1; Anonymous, M B P Elida 5; George Hill, for the 56th reg't P. V., for acc. of Rev Wm Cunningham, Chaplain, 16; Shirleysburg, Pa., for soldiers 1; Anonymous, "F L," New Haven 1; Anonymous, Miss R G, Ohio 1; a three months soldier 1; J M Mun, Schnectady, N. Y. 51 cts; Two young friends, New York 2; Eliza Hyndshaw, Stewartsville, N. J. 2; R Rumish, Davenport, Iowa, 1; the ladies of Chambersburg, per S J Nicoll 10; the pupils of two Primary Public schools, per Jennie H Walk 75 cts; a lady of Churchville, Md., as a thankoffering 10; From one who has brothers in the army, Harrisburg, Pa. 1; a Friend, Paradise, 50 cents; "M B B," Newville, Pa. 5; a Friend, Mason, Ill. 2; J S, Summit Hill, 5; A E Pomeroy, Roxbury, Pa. 1; J and R Steele, Shaver's Creek, Huntingdon Co., Pa. 3; Neshanock ch, per Rev Robert Dickson, 10; Towanda ch Sab sch, per Rev Julius Foster, 10; S C R, Graysville 2 — 364 37

Total, 3999 28

AMOUNT OF SALES during the month of MARCH 3870 32

Total, $7869 60

JAMES DUNLAP, Treasurer.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. H. I. Coe.
Treasurer—Archibald Gamble, Esq.
No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Missouri.

Communications on the subject of Church Extension, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Donations should be sent to Archibald Gamble, Esq., St. Louis, Mo.; or, if more convenient, to J. D. Thorpe, Esq., Cincinnati, Ohio; A. Davidson, Esq., Louisville, Ky.; S. D. Powel, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Domestic Missions, No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia; T. H. Nevin, Esq., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. J. B. Kirtland, Memphis, Tennessee; or to William Rankin, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Foreign Missions, 23 Centre St., New York.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

A large number of churches excuse themselves from contributing to the various objects of benevolence because they are themselves without a suitable sanctuary, or are in debt. Both Scripture and experience teach that this is unwise. The word of God says that the liberal soul shall be made fat, and all experience shows that the poverty of even feeble churches and communities is as much in will as in pocket. A generous regard for others, and a practical remembrance of the divine precept, that the field is the world, will not only secure the blessing of God, but will also enlarge the hearts of those who give. Many a minister of the gospel is to-day suffering from a meagre and ill-paid salary, because he has failed to instruct his people in the duty of giving, and to urge them to fidelity in their stewardship. In the department of church extension our houseless churches have a special interest. If each of the five hundred of such churches now accessible would contribute even ten dollars per annum, it would create a fund that would enable many of them to build each year, and would stimulate the benevolence of their more favoured brethren, greatly to their profit. To those who are withholding, under the plea of their own necessities, we commend these words of the pastor of our church, at Rockford, Illinois: "We need a house very much. Since July 1st, on every pleasant Sabbath—and nearly all have been so—our old shanty is about full, and there is no seat to rent. But though compelled to do without a suitable house ourselves, we will try to help you to help others. And while I presume not one of our men has had an income equal to his outlay, owing to failure of crops, and depression of prices for what produce there is, we send you $40."

"WE MUST BUILD OR DIE OUT."

Will the readers of the Record please peruse the simple, truthful statements of the following letter, recently received from Rev. Luther Dodd, of Toledo, Iowa. It reveals the necessities of a feeble church, and its sacrifices in securing a sanctuary. The writer says:

"It seems that the time has arrived that the life of our little church depends upon our building a house of worship. We have made our estimate, and reduced the building to as small a size, and as cheap a character, as will do. We have all promised to the full extent of our ability, and lack two hundred dollars. We expect to get that amount from the Church Extension Board. Shall we be disappointed? The church and lot will cost about one thousand dollars, and if you can give us encouragement that we shall receive this assistance, the building will be put under contract immediately. We know that there is a regular way to make application for help, but we want to have the thing under way before that can be done and an answer got. The materials can be gathered yet, before the roads break up here in Iowa, if we proceed at once.

"We have depended upon a school-room for a place of meeting until lately, but are now shut out by the School Board. We have by courtesy been using the Methodist church, but we cannot depend upon it for any length of time. We must build or die out. We cannot build without help. In the subscription we have raised, we feel conscious before God that we have done all we are able. You know that a poor missionary, with a salary down to the lowest living point, has nothing to spare. Now my name is on the subscription for one hundred dollars, and I do not think that it will require me to make any more sacrifice to pay it, than any other who is on the subscription and is a member of the church."

"WITHOUT SHOES FOR THE CHILDREN."

Let those who imagine our feeble churches do not encounter self-denial in church building, read the subjoined letter from Rev. George Ainslie, of Rochester, Minnesota, recently a missionary among the Choctaws, now a pioneer in the wastes of the Northwest. Under date of March 24th, 1862, Mr. Ainslie writes:

"We are agitating the subject of church building here. Our resolution to build will depend very much on the encouragement received from you. Rochester is central to a large portion of territory unoccupied by our body. The nearest church eastward is twenty miles (St. Charles); the nearest north, thirty miles (Lake City); west, thirty miles (Owatonna); south, I know not how far. The nearest New-school Presbyterian church is at Chatfield, distant twenty miles. The population of Rochester is perhaps fifteen hundred. There are strong Baptist and Methodist churches, and feeble Congregational and Episcopalian. The Baptists only have a church building. The Universalists have stated services, largely attended. The Presbyterian church has been organized about one year, and had at first six members. It now numbers seventeen. We worship at present in an upper room, cold, uncomfortable, and expensive. We propose to build small at present—thirty by forty feet—at a cost of perhaps eight hundred dollars. Our people here will give liberally. One poor hard-working widow promises twenty-five dollars. A farmer who could not give his children shoes this winter, will give twenty-five dollars. With two or three hundred dollars from the Board, I think we can build without debt.

"The country around is filling up, and there are openings for Presbyterian preaching in other parts of the county. I am establishing preaching stations at these points, and the prospect is good. I am not settled here. You will perhaps recognise my name as belonging to our Choctaw Mission for the last ten years. I am at present a fugitive, and therefore labouring here. As it is doubtful if our Board of Foreign Missions will resume the Choctaw Mission, I may assume permanent relations here. The people have signed a call."

Donations received by the Board of Church Extension, during the month of March, 1862.

Pby of New Brunswick—New Brunswick 1st ch 27 31; Dutch Neck ch 10	37 31
Pby of Albany—Hamilton Union ch (special)	5 00
Pby of Genesee River—Groveland ch	4 07
Pby of Chippewa—Winona ch 7; St Charles and Fremont chs 2	9 00
Pby of Peoria—Lewistown 1st ch 50; Henry ch 10	60 00
Pby of Allegheny City—Central ch	50 00
Pby of Chicago—Morris ch	10 00
Pby of St. Louis—Second ch 147 50; Pine st ch 32; Central ch 40	219 50
Pby of Cedar—Tipton ch	15 00
Pby of Dubuque—Independence ch 5; Epsworth ch 41 cts	5 41
Pby of Sidney—Stoney Creek ch	8 60
Pby of Missouri River—Bellevue ch	4 88
Pby of Erie—Milledgeville ch	5 00
Pby of Columbus—Lithopolis ch	3 45
Pby of Louisville—Portland Avenue ch 7; Walnut st ch 40 82; Owensboro' ch 21 37	69 19
Pby of Zanesville—Zanesville ch	2 24
Pby of Vincennes—Bruceville ch 2; Vincennes ch 10	12 00
Pby of Ebenezer—Flemingsburg ch 9 35; Cattlettsburg ch 4 50	13 85
Pby of West Lexington—Bethel ch	15 20
Pby of Muhlenburg—Mount Zion ch	1 20
Pby of Transylvania—Perryville ch	7 00
Pby of Indianapolis—Franklin ch	7 84
Pby of Logansport—Monticello ch	2 00
Pby of New York—Madison Avenue ch 19; Jersey City ch 78 83	97 83
Pby of Nassau—Williamsburg 1st ch, "J B"	1 00
Pby of Elizabethtown—Pluckamin ch	9 65
Pby of Passaic—Newark 3d ch (special)	33 71
Pby of Corisco—Evangasimba ch	6 00
Pby of Newton—Belvidere 1st ch	30 00
Pby of Burlington—Camden 2d ch	2 00
Pby of Monmouth—Freehold Village ch	15 00
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Providence ch	2 50
Pby of Huntingdon—Hollidaysburg 1st ch 21 23; Lower Tuscarora ch 20	41 23
Pby of Northumberland—Warrior Run ch	10 00
Pby of Potomac—Georgetown, Bridge st ch	30 42
Pby of Washington—Washington ch	32 43
Pby of Wooster—Millersburg ch	7 00
Pby of Winnebago—Depere ch	2 58
From churches,	$890 09

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rev Salmon Cowles, West Point, Iowa, 1; Mrs B F Spillman, Shawneetown, Ill. 1; A Lady 2; Mr A Wayland, Des Moines, Mo 2; E B Fuller, Trenton, N. J. 75	81 00
Total for General Fund,	$971 09

For the Children's Church at St. Anne.

Paint Lick ch, Ky.	25
Sab sch of Franklin ch, Ind.	5 00
Children of 1st ch Covington, Ky.	20 00
From Miss Ida B Powel's Sab sch class, Norristown 1st ch, Pa.	2 00
Total Children's Church,	$27 25
Total Receipts in March,	$998 34

ARCHIBALD GAMBLE, Treasurer.

Erratum.—Two Dollars credited in the last Record to Sab sch of Dubuque 1st ch, should have been credited to Sab sch of Prairie ch, Dubuque Presbytery.

Ecclesiastical Record.

PASTORAL RELATION DISSOLVED.

The pastoral relation between the Rev. Samuel Harrison and the Second church at Norristown, Pa., has been dissolved.

The pastoral relation between the Rev. Charles Wadsworth, D. D., and the Arch street church, Philadelphia, has been dissolved by the Presbytery of Philadelphia.

The Rev. R. G. Hinsdale has resigned the charge of the Third Presbyterian church, Troy, N. Y.

The Rev. Wm. R. Bingham has resigned the pastoral charge of the churches of Oxford and Upper West Nottingham.

The pastoral relation between the Rev. Thomas Love and the Red Clay Creek church has been dissolved.

CALLS.

The Rev. Wm. A. Scott, late of San Francisco, has been called to the First Presbyterian church, Boston, Massachusetts.

Mr. Matthew Newkirk, Jr., has received a call to the Central Presbyterian church, of Downington, Pa.

The Rev. S. R. Wilson, D. D., has received a call to the Grand street church, New York City.

The Rev. Dr. Davidson has declined a call from the Spring street church, New York City.

The Rev. William Prideaux has accepted a call to the Schellsburg church, and arrangements are made for his installation by the Presbytery of Carlisle.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

The Rev. Jesse B. Davis was installed, by the Second Presbytery of Philadelphia, as pastor of the church at Bridesburgh, on the 17th of March.

Mr. Samuel A. Hughes was ordained by the Presbytery of Columbus, on the 17th of February, and arrangements made for his installation as pastor of the Grove City church.

The Rev. William G. T. Shedd, D. D., was installed associate pastor of the Brick church, New York, on April 13th.

The Rev. Samuel R. Wilson, D. D., was installed pastor of the Grand street church, New York, on April 20th.

Mr. Lewis C. Bayles will be ordained and installed pastor of the Eighty-fourth street church, on April 23d.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESSES CHANGED.

Rev Thomas P. Speer from North Jackson to Ohltown, Ohio.

Rev. Samuel Harrison from Norristown to Plumsteadville, Pa.

Rev. Thomas K. Davis from Middletown to Pittsburgh, Pa.

Rev. J. H. Callen from Morrisville, Pa., to Kingston, N. J.

Rev. Orr Lawson from Tipton to Bell's Mills, Pa.

Rev. John Moore from Plainfield to Warsaw, Coshocton county, Ohio.

Rev. J. G. Condit from New Vernon to Sandy Lake, Pa.

Rev. John O. Proctor from Mercersburg to York Sulphur Springs, Pa.

Rev. R. G. Hinsdale from Troy, N. Y., to Princeton, N. J.

Rev. Wm. Sickles from Indianapolis to Shelbyville, Indiana.

Rev. J. T. Leonard from Harrisonville to Dunksburg, Mo.

LICENSURES.

Messrs. D. C. Marquis and Albert Dilworth, by the Presbytery of Beaver.

Samuel S. Shriver, John J. Beacom, and William W. Morehead, by the Presbytery of Blairsville.

Matthew L. Anderson, by the Presbytery of Allegheny.

Josias H. Young, Francis J. Collier, John L. Semple, and Charles T. Mullin, by the Presbytery of Philadelphia.

J. T. Osler, by the Central Presbytery of Philadelphia.

E. McKinney, by the Presbytery of Cincinnati, Ohio.

William Coleman and George T. Crissman, by the Presbytery of Chillicothe

John L Withrow and Washington O. Wright, by the Presbytery of New Castle.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Rev. W. J. R. Taylor, D. D., of Philadelphia, has been elected one of the Corresponding Secretaries of the American Bible Society.

Rev. George Willard, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, has been received into the Presbytery of Kalamazoo.

The Rev. C. C. Beatty, D. D., Principal of the Female Seminary at Steubenville, Ohio, has presented to the library of Allegheny Theological Seminary about five hundred valuable volumes, which will be of great use to the students.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Commissioners to the General Assembly are requested to forward their names to the Rev. J. D. Smith, Columbus, Ohio. On doing so, they will be informed, by mail, of the name and residence of the family who will entertain them during the sessions of the Assembly.

Members who have relations or friends in the city, with whom they expect to lodge, will please inform the Committee of Arrangements of this fact, by letter.

Arrangements with Railroad Companies for half-fare tickets, will be published as soon as made.

FUND FOR DISABLED MINISTERS, AND THE NEEDY WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

The following amounts have been received since the last report, viz.

From Knightstown church,	Indianapolis Presb'y		10 00
" Indianapolis 3d ch,	do.	do.	15 00
" Indianapolis 1st ch,	do.	do.	20 00
" Huntingdon ch,	Long Island	do.	5 00
" West Hampton ch,	do.	do.	7 55
" Speonk ch,	do.	do.	2 45
" Phelps ch,	Rochester City	do.	9 00
" Bridgeton 2d church,	West Jersey	do.	12 00
" Williamstown ch,	do.	do.	5 00
" Fislerville ch,	do.	do.	3 90
" Millville 1st ch,	do.	do.	5 20
" Yorkville 2d ch,	New York	do.	22 00
" Scotch ch,	New York 2d	do.	488 00
" Neshaminy ch,	Philadelphia 2d	do.	10 05
" Conshohocken ch,	do.	do.	6 00
" Providence ch,	do.	do.	2 50
" Germantown 1st ch,	do.	do.	92 30
" 2d Presby'n ch,	Philadelphia Central	do.	100 47
" Phœnixville ch,	do.	do.	1 00
" Charlestown ch,	do.	do.	1 00
" 4th Presbyterian ch,	Philadelphia	do.	40 00
" 15th Presby'n ch	do.	do.	11 29
" Union ch	do.	do.	30 42
" Lawrenceville ch,	Ohio	do.	2 50
" Freehold Village ch,	Monmouth	do.	20 00
" Manalapan ch,	do.	do.	10 00
" Little Mill Creek ch,	Marion	do.	1 40
" Lower Liberty ch	do.	do.	3 60
" Baltimore 2d ch,	Baltimore	do.	27 00
" Franklin street ch,	do.	do.	5 00
" 4th Presbyterian ch,	do.	do.	3 00
" Bridge street ch,	Potomac	do.	12 51
" Rockford 1st ch,	Chicago	do.	5 00
" Prospect ch,	Peoria	do.	8 05
" Tipton ch,	Muncie	do.	5 75
" Plumsted ch,	Burlington	do.	3 00
" Mount Prospect,	Washington	do.	7 00
" Rye ch,	Bedford,	do.	10 84
" Bridgewater ch,	Allegheny City	do.	24 48
" Lambertville ch,	Raritan	do.	10 00
" Leacock ch,	Donegal	do.	10 05
" Bellevue ch,	do.	do.	9 55
" Portage 1st ch,	Winnebago	do.	5 00
" Lithopolis ch,	Columbus	do.	3 14
" Bloomsburg ch,	Northumberland	do.	11 43
" New Columbia ch,	do.	do.	1 84
" Pittston ch,	Luzerne	do.	20 00
" Belvidere 1st ch,	Newton	do.	27 00
" Plover's and Svevens' Point ch,	Winnebago	do.	5 27
" Freeport and Slate Lick chs,	Allegheny	do.	11 00
" St. Charles and Fremont chs,	Chippewa	do.	2 00
" Mrs. H. M. Crame, of	Waterford ch,	Troy do.	25 00
" Rocky Spring and St. Thomas chs,	Carlisle	do.	10 00
" A Lady of Newport,			5 00
" Rev. R. P. Dunn, of	Providence, R. I.,		10 00
" Rev. Wm. J. Blain, of	Albany Pby,		10 00
" James Bayard, Esq., of	Philadelphia,		25 00
" "Mrs. L.," of	Dover, Del.,		1 00
" John Courtright, of	Columbus, Ohio,		2 00
" "Unknown," of	Quincy, Illinois,		10 00
" A Friend, carefully hoarded savings of months,			1 00
" A Friend in	Chambersburg, Pa.,		5 00
" Licking church,	Clarion Presbytery,		6 00
" Ligonier ch,	Blairsville	do.	14 00
" Donegal ch,	do.	do.	5 00
" Armagh ch,	do.	do.	8 00
" Saltsburg ch,	Saltsburg	do.	12 25
" Freedom ch,	Allegheny City	do.	66
" Bridgewater ch	do.	do.	33
" Cross Creek ch,	Washington	do.	28 00
" Cross Roads ch	do.	do.	6 00
" Oak Ridge ch,	Steubenville	do.	4 00
" Apple Creek ch,	Coshocton	do.	12 50
" McConnellsville ch,	Zanesville	do.	7 00
			$1368 28

GEO. H. VAN GELDER,
Treasurer Trustees of General Assembly,
Office, No. 320 Walnut Street.

Philadelphia, April 15th, 1862.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN REGARD TO COLLECTIONS.

Whereas, Many of our churches do not contribute to our benevolent enterprises, and whereas, it is desirable to test the power of simultaneous effort; and whereas, an emergency has arisen, requiring the coöperation of all our churches to save our Boards from serious embarrassment, therefore,

Resolved, 1. That this Assembly earnestly request all our churches that have no fixed times for the purpose, to take up annual collections as follows, viz.

For the Board of Domestic Missions on the first Sabbath of November.

For the Board of Foreign Missions on the first Sabbath of January.

For the Board of Education on the first Sabbath of March.

For the Colportage Fund of the Board of Publication on the first Sabbath of May.

For the Board of Church Extension on the first Sabbath of July.

For the Disabled Ministers' Fund on the first Sabbath of September.

Resolved, 2. That when the annual collections cannot be taken up on the days above designated, it be recommended to take them up as soon thereafter as possible.

PRESBYTERIAN HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

This Society, which was organized in 1852, embraces all the branches of the Presbyterian Church, and is incorporated by the Legislature of Pennsylvania. It has a library of about 3000 volumes, and a large collection of manuscripts, portraits, and relics of the older divines, to which additional contributions are solicited.

Cor. Sec.—Samuel J. Baird, D. D., Woodbury, N. J.

Librarian and Treasurer—Samuel Agnew, Esq., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Domestic Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, Publication, and the Board of Church Extension, and is issued monthly in newspaper form, at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at Twenty-five Cents a year; and all churches of less than fifty families at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, "Mr. Peter Walker, 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

POSTAGE, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance at the office of delivery.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburgh.

AN OFFER.—Any missionary, colporteur, or other person, procuring new subscribers to the Record at 50 cents each, shall be entitled to 20 per cent. for each such subscription procured and prepaid.

CONTENTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.—Home and Foreign Heathenism, p. 65. Within are Fears, p. 66. A Christian Soldier, p. 66. From a Missionary in Maryland, p. 67. Receipts, p. 67.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—I. Ministerial Education. A New Fiscal Year, p. 68. Is it the Duty of the Church to educate, at her own cost, every young Man whom the Holy Spirit calls to preach the Gospel? p. 68. II. Christian Education in Schools, Academies, and Colleges. Rise and Progress of our Educational System, p. 69. Discipline in Childhood, p. 70. Receipts, p. 70.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Annual Meeting of the Board, p. 71. Recent Intelligence, p. 71. China: Annual Report of the Mission at Shanghai, p. 71. The Rebels in Ningpo, p. 72. Mission in Siam: Report of the Petchaburi Station, p. 72. Missions in India: Report of the Station at Dehra, p. 73. Africa: Corisco Mission, Journal of a short Missionary Tour to Kombe, by Rev. James L. Mackey, p. 74. Miscellany: "Oddments."—"Odds and Ends."—The Brahman and the Christian.—Devil-worship, p. 75. Receipts, p. 76.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.—Notice to Commissioners to the General Assembly, p. 77. The past Year, p. 77. An Appeal to Sabbath-schools to help our Soldiers, p. 77. The Fort Donelson Prisoners, p. 78. The Vail Family, p. 78. Receipts, p. 78.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.—The Right Spirit, p. 79. "We must build or die out," p. 79. "Without Shoes for the Children," p. 79. Receipts, p. 79.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Ecclesiastical Record, p. 80.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME XIII. No. 6. | PHILADELPHIA, JUNE, 1862. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

MISSION ROOMS,
No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. T. L. Janeway, D. D.
Treasurer—Samuel D. Powel.

Letters relating to Missionary Appointments and other operations of the Board, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 910 Arch street, Philadelphia.

Contributions should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to the following persons:

Andrew Davidson, Louisville, Ky.

William Rankin, Jr., Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

EFFECTS OF THE WAR.

Missouri.

Dear Brother—I received a letter from Rev. E. L. Cleaveland, D. D., New Haven, Connecticut, concerning two casks sent to me by a society of ladies of Dr. Cleaveland's church, and also a letter with a draft of $30, all of which came safe to hand; and upon their reception I immediately answered their letters, and gave them such facts as I felt authorized to write. As our state is under martial law, we have to be very careful and guarded as to what we write, and to whom we write. When I mailed my letter to Dr. C., our eldest daughter (who was seventeen years old) was lying very low, and has since died. It has truly made a void in the family not to be filled, but as she died in the prospect of a happy and glorious immortality, we can only say, God has done whatsoever he pleased, and blessed be his holy name!

As you are the authorized agent to receive, and as it is my duty to transmit to you such facts as I may deem of importance, I desire to say a few things. My field of labour is at present in a most deplorable condition. It lies within the bounds of Platte Presbytery, which includes the Platte purchase. It was, before the war, the most flourishing portion of the state of Missouri. The truth, as far as our church was concerned, was advancing with the greatest rapidity. The gospel, with all its accompanying influences, was extending in every direction, and the power of truth was beginning to be felt in every ramification of society. As I travelled over the country, and witnessed churches, and schoolhouses, and all the varied instrumentalities for purifying and elevating society, and preparing man for his duty here, and happiness hereafter, my heart rejoiced. But all things have now changed. Many of the churches are now closed, the voice of the minister hushed, and congregation scattered; and some are used as barracks for soldiers, and God's people no longer go on his holy day to his sanctuary. The schoolhouses are no longer thronged with their little busy multitudes; the labours of the teacher have terminated, and the children scattered, and growing up in idleness, ignorance, and vice; and all the varied instrumentality which the virtuous and good had reared to stay vice in its evil work is now broken down, and wickedness and immorality have come in upon us like a flood. Oh! how long will this state of things continue? Will not God hear the prayers of his people, and, for the elect's sake, cause that these days be shortened? But the question that deeply concerns us at the present time, is, who will be prepared, and into whose hands will God commit the work of repairing the losses we have sustained, and building up again those walls that have been broken down? Many of our best ministers have already left, and others are still going. The state of society, and the condition of religion and morality, are sinking lower, and yet lower. Where, O where will all these things terminate?

I desire to do all I can, and preach whenever God, in his providence, may seem to open the way, but to expect any support from the people here is impossible at the present time. I know not what the Board is able or willing to do. We have had no Presbytery for over a year.

Yours, &c.

GOOD RESULTS.

Iowa.

Rev. and Dear Brother—The great Head of the church has enabled me to fulfil another three months' service at Scotch Grove and vicinity, in Dubuque Presbytery.

Sabbath, the 19th, was a joyful day for the church of Scotch Grove. Then was dedicated to the worship of God our new house of worship. It is a commodious and neat frame edifice, fifty-six feet long by thirty-five feet wide. The vestibule is ten feet wide, and over it is a room of the same dimensions, designed for sessional meetings, etc. The belfry is yet to be surmounted with a neat spire. The entire cost is nearly $2000, all of which has been secured without any appeal to friends abroad, or to the Church Extension Board for aid. We are thankful to Him who gave us "a mind to the work," and enabled us to do it, "even in troublous times."

Our people are almost entirely dependent on agriculture, and the unusually low prices of produce, and high prices of the commodities obtained in exchange, make the times rather trying. Many from the bounds of the congregation, including several of the members of the church, are also absent, and engaged in the military service of government. Yet there has been a lively demand in the way of renting pews, and there will be no trouble to raise enough to support the ministry for half the time. But we will have to defer for a time the purchase of a bell, and a communion set, and other articles which it would be very convenient to have.

I may humbly record what the Lord has permitted me to witness of progress in this church. Five years ago the number of members was thirty-eight. During that period we have received seventy-nine, being almost sixteen for each year; and forty-five of these, or nine per annum, were received on profession of their faith. Some have removed, and a few have died, and last year twenty-nine were, at their own request, dismissed to establish a new church of our order in the township (Wayne) west of this one. Our present membership is seventy-one.

Six adults and sixty children have been baptized, and the church, though not a large contributor, has become a tolerably regular contributor to all the Boards of the church. We trust that our present enlargement and success in the outward affairs of the house of God will be accompanied by very abundant spiritual prosperity. "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad."

I may report about the usual state of things in the vicinity during the three months past. At Canton we received one member by certificate. There seems to be considerable encouragement at my preaching station in Wyoming township. Six months having passed since I began to visit them on the evening of every alternate Sabbath, they are now making an effort to get the same proportion of service for the year coming. I trust that the Lord designs to magnify the word of his grace in that interesting community.

Yours in the gospel,

J. L. W.

ACTIVE LABOURS.

Minnesota.

In glancing over the last quarter's labours, I find some things cheering and encouraging. The new year has opened with pleasanter prospects than did the last. We have occupied our new house of worship, and find it convenient as well as comfortable. The pulpit has just been constructed, and we are about finishing the remainder of the inside work. The dedication will take place in March, near the end of the month.

At our last communion two were received to church membership by letter. One other member of our congregation, now a decided Christian, thought best to defer uniting with the church until the next communion. The death of her little boy in the autumn, has been made, we think, the means of her conversion. There are two or three quite interesting cases of inquiry.

At Yucatan, where I commenced preaching last May, not then knowing of a single Presbyterian Christian in that neighbourhood, and but few of other denominations, we expect to organize a church of at least ten members next month. Two of these, staunch and reliable Christians, have recently moved in; two others were once members of our church in the East, four originally Methodists, and two never before in connection with any church. Besides these, there are two Baptists who have not been asked to unite with us, but who may do so. Death has also been blessed to this community. The diphtheria has prevailed all winter. Early in December a little girl, member of our Sunday-school there, was called to another world. She was only eight years old, and all (or nearly all) her religious impressions were derived from lessons learned in this school. During her illness she repeated the hymns and verses which she had learned, seeming to draw great comfort from them. She called on all her schoolmates, and gave to each an affecting exhortation to seek their Saviour. She also enjoined, in a most solemn and impressive manner, upon all her relatives, to seek God before they died. She told them not to mourn for her; she was happy, happy as a bird; she was going to heaven to see God, to see Jesus her Saviour. She waited calmly and patiently for the coming of the messenger; then, as she felt death overpowering her, she kissed all, and bade them farewell; then, composing her limbs and folding her arms upon her breast, she died, as happy as though angels had come to carry her to her heavenly home. She left a sweet message of love for me, her pastor. The impression of this death has not yet worn off, and I hope it never may.

We held a meeting at Caledonia one evening this week, for the purpose of organizing a society and electing trustees, with a view to building a house of worship. Three reliable men were elected. This is the county-seat of Houston county. It is a centre of great influence, and we need a church there. The Methodists are the only other denomination there. There is no church, and we meet in a dirty schoolhouse. The inhabitants seem determined to have a Presbyterian church there. Our congregations are large and respectable, and I see much to encourage me.

I have lately commenced preaching at a point on the Prairie, four miles south of Caledonia, in a settlement of eastern people. There are several wandering sheep of the Master's flock there, and I hope to draw them, or be the instrument of drawing them back again to the Good Shepherd's fold. At these four places I preach regularly once a fortnight, at two on each Sabbath.

At Caledonia we have the nucleus of a church in four members ready to join, and some others who will unite, but we yet wait for an elder; when one is found we shall form a church in that place.

Yours truly,

J. F.

SELF-SUSTAINING.

Long Island.

Dear Brother—To-day completes my third year of labour under commission from the Board. We were permitted last Sunday to receive to our communion three persons on profession of their faith. We hope for still others; and all of these are from the young. I began here with about thirty-five; our whole number is now ninety-seven. I make this last statement in view of the next, which is the most interesting part to report.

We have resolved to become self-sustaining—to continue a mission station no longer; but to become a church, with complete and independent life. That this step should have been taken in this year of unexampled pecuniary hardship, I can attribute only to the direct influence of God's Spirit, blessing the seed sown from the pulpit during the past three years. That the harvest has come in so unexpected a time and manner, is only the more to the praise of God's grace.

We have tried the experiment of self-sustentation for three months; I ask you, therefore, to send me only the receipt for seventy-five dollars, which we have raised in collections for the Board during the past quarter, and which has been paid to me, instead of the Board's quarterly check.

In taking leave of you, I tender my sincere and grateful thanks on behalf of this people. The Board has proved an almoner worthy of our noble church.

My concluding reflections on this subject are two. 1. A word to domestic missionaries. Preach to your people on this subject of self-sustentation. 2. To mission churches. It is possible and pleasant to do constantly more and more towards the support of the gospel in your midst.

I ought to add also, before closing, that the step which we have taken will explain the apparently great and sudden falling off in our future contributions to the Board. Our self-sustentation absorbs seventy-five dollars per quarter, which, under the old regime, would be published as contributed to you. We must thus begin at the bottom of the hill again.

Affectionately, yours.

PRIVATIONS FOR CHRIST.

Illinois.

My Dear Sir—The year is nearly expired for which I was commissioned to preach to this congregation. I have laboured with them regularly one-half the time, travelling sixteen miles weekly. This is a new organization of twenty-two members—all farming people. As mentioned in my other report, we were excluded from the schoolhouse early in the summer, and have been obliged to preach in the open air, at the doors of small houses, and in a grove; this, on the prairie, is very severe on the lungs, owing to the strong winds. Our prayer-meetings and Sabbath-school were necessarily suspended, and we had to choose between giving up the enterprise and building. We chose the latter, and during the inclement weather of the last two months, have erected a comfortable sized building.

The attendance on preaching has been good, and equal to the size of the room we happen to use. Nothing very special has been witnessed, but we live in hopes of seeing this community brought under the influence of Presbyterian Christianity.

The pecuniary pressure has been so great that my people have only paid me one-fourth of the sum promised, to wit, about fifty dollars. For the same reason it has been judged best not to press the various benevolent objects of the church upon them this season; but we expect to operate on the plan of systematic beneficence enjoined by Presbytery.

I beg leave to add that the check sent me by the Board, viz., $18.75, and $50 from the congregation, making $68.75, is all that I have received for the year's services; the other portion of my time having been spent at points where no aid could be expected. On this sum I have had to feed, clothe, and educate my family—a wife and six children. We have been reduced to the brink of starvation, and when I have gone abroad to get something for the family to eat, I have seen so much privation and trouble from being in debt, among my members, even those owning good farms, and raising large corn crops, that I returned home empty, and yet comparatively cheerful. If Eastern benevolence can continue her aid to Western churches in this the day of their distress and pecuniary depression, with the elements of wealth which we possess, we will one day return a rich recompense.

I remain yours, truly,

P. S. The statement of my private or family wants, I could not make to Presbytery, and should feel unwilling to give them publicity in connection with my name.

CHEERING STATEMENTS FROM THE FAR WEST.

Dear Brother—What shall be our response to the churches that ask of the missionary watchmen, "What of the night?"—the night of toil and discouragement whose progress we so often report to you.

Sometimes the word is, "The hours speed on;" and again, "There are darker ones, that give omen of the dawn." How joyful then the shout, "Morning cometh!" and that we are sometimes privileged to hear. It has been upon my lips this past winter.

It would take too much space to tell how the gospel's power has been manifest among us. Not only has it elevated the moral sentiment in three communities, as confessed by all, but it has also destroyed the influence and credit of one of Satan's lying refuges, Universalism. A year since it stood in proud strength, but God has entered into the families of several who were bulwarks and pillars in its defence, and their Dagon of infidelity has broken to pieces before the humble ark of God.

Let me give you an instance: A reputable citizen took offence at plain preaching last summer, and vowed never to hear me again. He also did what he could to strengthen the hands of the opposers. But his awakened wife prevailed to have him accompany her to one of our evening meetings during the week of prayer. There he met with One mightier than Satan and an unbelieving heart. Not many weeks after, the following conversation took place between us:

"I feel that I am a great sinner."

"Dear friend, I am glad that you have found it out."

"But I am almost in despair."

"It is good for you to despair of yourself. Jesus is calling you to trust in him."

"Why did I not see these awful truths before?"

"Because now the Lord has answered our prayers, and his awakening voice has reached your heart. Will you hear him?"

"I will; I am determined to serve him," he replied, with tears; and he cast himself upon Jesus. He has set up the family altar in his large household. He is now with us in heart and voice, a brother beloved. Two sons of the praying mother who was chiefly instrumental in founding our mission church, have likewise cast in their lot with us. She has reaped her large reward.

The attendance and attention to the gospel has greatly improved of late, and the truth seems to be taking root in many minds. With the Lord's help we will pray for a harvest from this seed sown, and give him all the glory. Help us, brethren of the Eastern churches; follow generous gifts with generous prayers. I am preaching here to the scattered remnants of old Eastern congregations. They hear the echo of solemn truths, first learned from the lips of New England pastors.

Do not such facts enhance the interest of Domestic Missions, and prove their importance? A few years since they hardly had a Sabbath. Satan's seat was here; but some mourned over it, and their welcome to my coming seemed the assurance of the Lord to my soul, as to the apostle at Corinth, "I have much people here."

Your brother in the gospel.

"No language oftener meets a pastor's ear, than the complaint, 'I do not enjoy religion.' The churches present a painful contrast with the habitual happiness of the apostles, whose writings, though written usually in the depths of distresses, more than any human compositions overflow with a deep and exultant joy. But there is little apprehension of what is a prevalent cause of this lack of spiritual joy—the withholding of charity, and the consequent increase of worldliness, and the stagnation of holy love. Happiness cannot be poured into the soul from without, like water into a cistern; the water of life is not said to flow into a man, but to flow 'out of him.' To regain lost enjoyment, the Christian must increase the exertions and self-denial of love. Let him fill life full of efforts and sacrifices to do good, and he will fill it full of bliss. He can be blessed only in accordance with that law of the entire moral universe expressed in the comprehensive words of Christ, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'"

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF RECEIPTS

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Receipts at the Treasury in Philadelphia during the month of April, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Albany—Schenectady ch 157; Carlisle ch 10	167 00
Pby of Mohawk—Oneida ch	1 50

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Ogdensburg—First ch Oswegatchie, Ladies' Miss Soc 14, mo con colls add'l 6	20 00
Pby of Genesee River—Bath 1st ch	7 50
Pby of Buffalo City—Central ch Buffalo	27 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Hudson—German ch Jeffersonville	2 00
Pby of North River—Wappinger's Falls ch	5 00
Pby of Bedford—South Salem ch, Ladies' Benevolent Association 52, Sab sch 8	60 00
Pby of Long Island—Rev R D Gardner	5 00
Pby of New York—University Place ch New York 2 50; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch Mission chapel 3 93; Nyack ch 15; Waldburg ch 25; North Haverstraw ch 31 50	77 93
Pby of Nassau—Ainslie Street ch Williamsburg, N. Y.	75 00

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Elizabethtown—First ch Woodbridge 30; Pluckemin ch 9 15	39 15
Pby of Passaic—Morristown 1st ch 429 08; Mount Freedom ch 20; Paterson 1st ch 45 82	494 90
Pby of Newton—Stillwater 1st ch 30; Shawnee ch 5; Swartswood ch 2; Fox Hill ch 6; Ashbury ch 10; Pleasant Grove ch 10	63 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Hamilton Square ch	15 00
Pby of Raritan—Musconetcong Valley ch 30; Kingwood ch 18; Frenchtown ch 10 21	58 21
Pby of Susquehanna—Independence ch	3 00
Pby of Luzerne—Summit Hill ch Sab sch 2 02, P 2 98	5 00
Pby of Burlington—Camden 1st ch, Sab sch Association	18 04
Pby of Monmouth—Tenent ch	12 25

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia—Seventh ch Philadelphia, legacy, in part, of Mrs Mary Graham, dec'd, 250; Union ch and Sab sch 50	300 00
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Cohocksink ch Sab sch 60; Hestonville ch 7; Second ch Philadelphia, from a lady 1	68 00
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—First ch Easton add'l	50 00
Pby of New Castle—Oxford ch, a balance	3 58
Pby of Donegal—Middle Octorara ch 30 25; Lancaster ch 21 63	51 88
Pby of Huntingdon—One-half Presbyterial collection 13 50; Williamsburg ch 3 25	16 75
Pby of Northumberland—Washingtonville ch, a bequest of Miss Nancy Robison 50; Muncy ch 6 67	56 67

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore—Harmony ch 27; Franklin Street ch Baltimore 9 61; Govane chapel 15; Warren ch 10; Baltimore 2d ch 68 19	130 80
Pby of Carlisle—Mechanicsburg ch 20; Landisburg ch 5; Upper ch 1 75	26 75
Pby of Lewes—Buckingham ch	14 06

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Redstone—Sewickley ch 7 30; Round Hill ch 35 50; Uniontown ch 68 75	111 55
Pby of Ohio—Fairview ch 5; Male Benevolent Society of Centre ch 25 75; East Liberty ch, a balance 5; North Branch ch 5 50; Chartier's ch 19 05	60 30
Pby of Blairsville—Union ch 17 75; Harrison City ch 5; Ligonier ch 23 55; Donegal ch 12	58 30
Pby of Clarion—Mount Tabor ch 3; Rockland ch 2 50; New Bethlehem ch, from a lady 1 24	6 74
Pby of Saltsburg—Indiana ch 56 40; Gilgal ch 15; Marion ch 1 50; Mount Pleasant ch 2 50; Currier's Run ch 5	80 40

SYNOD OF ALLEGHENY.

Pby of Allegheny—Sunbury ch 6; Mount Nebo ch 4; Scrubgrass ch 2 50; Muddy Creek ch 12; Centreville ch 2	26 50
Pby of Erie—Girard ch 5 35; Franklin ch 20	25 35
Pby of Allegheny City—Emsworth ch 2 31; Freedom ch 1 15; German ch Rochester 1 20	4 66

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington—Waynesburg ch	4 00
Pby of New Lisbon—Bethel ch	8 00
Pby of St. Clairsville—Nottingham ch	20 00

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Marion—Kingston ch 4; Pisgah ch 6; Brown ch 5; Sandusky ch 3	18 00
Pby of Richland—Orange ch 7; Ashland ch 2 25; Savannah ch 11 75	21 00

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.

Pby of Findlay—Pleasantville ch 7; Blanchard ch 6	13 00

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Chillicothe—Pisgah ch 7; Bainbridge ch 6	13 00
Pby of Miami—Monroe ch	16 53
Pby of Cincinnati—Feesburg ch 3; Monroe ch 3 84	6 84

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany—Livonia ch 10 50; Orleans ch 4	14 50
Pby of Madison—Lawrenceburg ch Sab sch	11 30
Pby of White Water—Sand Creek ch	11 30

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Logansport—Peru ch	3 00
Pby of Lake—Constantine ch	10 53
Pby of Crawfordsville—Warren ch (of which 1 from the missionary box of pastor's family)	5 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Palestine—Palestine ch	10 00
Pby of Sangamon—Petersburg ch	74 00
Pby of Peoria—Lewistown ch Sab sch 57; Prospect ch 8 76	65 76

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.

Pby of Rock River—Arlington ch	1 75

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Dane—Madison ch 27 40; Hazel Green German ch 1 50	28 90

SYNOD OF ST. PAUL.

Pby of St. Paul—Stillwater 2d ch	5 00

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Cedar—Tipton ch 18 75; Cedar Rapids ch 28; Muscatine 1st ch, mo con colls 10	56 75
Pby of Toledo—South Ridge and Millersburg ch	2 25
Pby of Dubuque—Dubuque First ch, mo con colls 15; Hopkinton ch 3 12	18 12

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.

Pby of Iowa—New London ch	1 00

SYNOD OF UPPER MISSOURI.

Pby of Platte—Oregon ch	4 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of St. Louis—Second ch St. Louis	158 50
From churches,	$2,850 30

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mrs A B, Philadelphia 5 50; "Pennington" 20; Rev L D and Mrs Potter, Glendale, Ohio 2; Six months' interest on the Permanent Missionary Fund, from the Trustees of the General Assembly 425 78; Mrs F Z S Knight, Baltimore, Md. 2 50; Robert Creighton, Philadelphia 10; Mrs Hannah Ireland, New York 25; Rev M R Miller 7; Vermont Valley ch, Long Island, N. Y. 10; Tithes 10; "A M S" 50; Newville, Pa., Eliza Laughlin 5, Atchison Laughlin 5, Nancy Laughlin 5	582 78

LEGACIES.

B F Butler, dec'd, New York City, add'l 150; Mrs Catharine Beatty, dec'd, Trenton, N. J. 50; Mrs Catharine Haight, dec'd, late of Bedford, N. Y., per Rev. P B Heroy, 1000	1200 00
Total at Philadelphia,	$4,633 08

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

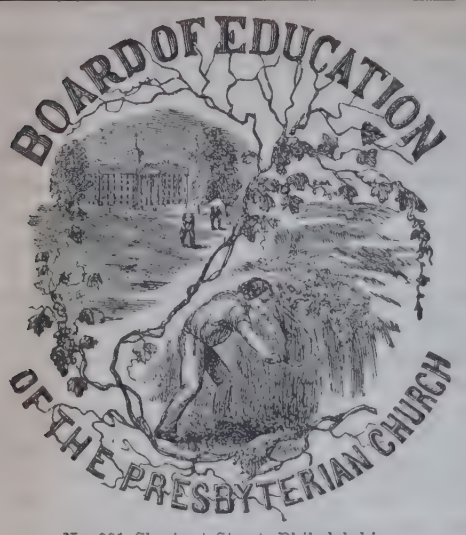
CLOTHING.

1 Box from the ladies of Allentown ch, New Jersey, valued at	91 00
1 Box from the ladies of Saratoga Springs ch, N. Y., value not given.
2 Trunks from the ladies of University Place ch, N. Y. valued at	208 00
1 Box from the ladies of Ewing ch New Jersey, valued at	80 00
1 Box from a Sab school class in Govane chapel, Md. valued at	35 00
1 Box from the ladies of Sharon ch, Pa., valued at	36 50
1 Box from a few ladies of Bath ch, N. Y., valued at	80 00
1 Box from the Waynesburg ch, Ohio, valued at	21 00
2 Boxes from the Ladies of Hamptonburg ch, N. Y., valued at	130 00
	$681 50



No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Officers of the Board.

James N. Dickson, President.
John McDowell, D. D., } Vice-Presidents.
Cyrus Dickson, D. D., } Vice-Presidents.
James Dunlap, Esq., } Vice-Presidents.
William Chester, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
R. Watts, Assistant.
F. D. Ladd, Recording Secretary.
William Main, Treasurer.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies, and Colleges, may be addressed to Rev. Dr. Chester, or Rev. R. Watts, No. 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of Money may be made to William Main, Esq., Treasurer, 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION TO THEIR FORMER CANDIDATES.

The Board of Education have been in operation for forty-three years. During this period, they have become affectionately related to a large number of young men—familiar with their names and much of their former history, and specially cognizant of their mental development, from the grammar-school to the pulpit. This interest does not subside; and it has excited in the Board a strong desire to know how it has fared with these young men in the actual work of the Harvest, since their connection with the Board has ceased.

Such information would, moreover, be of great importance to the interests which the Board have been appointed to subserve, and would furnish both instruction and encouragement for the future. The following questions, therefore, may be regarded by each former candidate under the care of the Board as addressed to himself, with the respectful request, that he forward replies to the office of the Board, 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, at his earliest convenience:

1. What has been your professional history since the termination of your connection with the Board? 2. How long were you a licentiate? 3. When were you ordained? 4. What time have you spent in teaching, and in what capacity were you so employed? 5. What amount of your labour has been missionary? 6. What general encouragements or discouragements have attended your labours?

William Chester,
Corresponding Secretary.

PRESBYTERIAL ACTION IN SUPPORT OF THE BOARDS.

Extract from the Minutes of Presbytery of Passaic.

Elizabeth, N. J., April 17, 1862.

The Rev. Dr. Chester addressed the Presbytery on behalf of the Board of Education, whereupon it was resolved that,

The Presbytery having learned, with much concern, that the Boards of the church are now in a state of very pressing embarrassment, and are unable to meet their pledges to those depending on them for aid, which cannot be withheld without much sacrifice and suffering on the part of those concerned, and injury to the cause, do hereby enjoin it upon the pastors and elders under their care, to take such measures as they may deem best to increase their contributions to these Boards of the church, and to afford relief in the present embarrassed state of their finances.

D. H. Pierson, Clerk.

READING THE RECORD.

Would that we had a church trained to read the Record! If our cry for help, sounded in its columns, can be heard in Missouri, and responded to in these times of distress, what results might we not expect if our entire church were taught to ponder its details of the great and pressing wants of our ecclesiastical institutions? One of the greatest evils now operating against our progress, both at home and abroad, is the prevalent neglect of this recognised organ of our church. How can our people be expected to take an interest in the united efforts of our churches, put forth through the agency of the several Boards, if they are not instructed, through this medium, as to the plans, and struggles, and achievements, of these institutions?

The following letter, from one of our ministers residing in a state devastated by war, is truly refreshing. If amid the scenes enacted in Missouri, a man can have an ear open to our appeal, and a heart that can feel for the cause we represent, surely it is not too much to expect a like sympathy and material aid from those who know of the present distress only by the hearing of the ear.

——, Missouri, April 14th, 1862.

Dear Brother—From the last Record I read of the straitened condition of the Board of Education, and, wishing to do all in my power to aid you "in your work and labour of love," I send you the enclosed $2—the contents of our missionary box. Times are hard, and money scarce, but we send this with our earnest prayers to Him who has "the silver and the gold," hoping He may enable you to meet all your demands, and do more for the advancement of His kingdom on earth.

H. P. S. W.

LETTER OF THE ASSEMBLY OF 1804 TO THE REV. DAVID RICE ON THOROUGH TRAINING.

Dear Sir—Your letter of the 18th of April has been regularly laid before the General Assembly, and although it ought to have been accompanied with an extract from the minutes of the Presbytery of Transylvania, yet the Assembly, having perfect confidence in you, easily waived that formality.

The inquiry which you propose, in the name of the Presbytery, concerning the propriety, in your present circumstances, of licensing and ordaining men to the work of the gospel ministry, without a liberal education, is certainly of great magnitude. Considering the great and ardent zeal on the subject of religion which has been awakened throughout so large a portion of the United States, the multitudes who are earnestly demanding of you the bread of life, and the few, comparatively, who are regularly ordained to break it among them, the reasoning seems specious at first, which would encourage us, in the instances you mention, to depart from the spirit of our standards on this subject; and some plausible facts frequently occur which appear to confirm this reasoning, and mislead the judgments of many honest and well-meaning men. On all subjects on which the human mind is roused to uncommon exertions, and inflamed with uncommon ardour, men become eloquent for a season; and even the most weak and ignorant often surprise us by the fluency and pertinency, as well as fervour, of their expressions. And in general revivals of the spirit of religion, that copiousness and pathos in prayer and exhortation, which are not uncommonly to be found among men who are destitute of any liberal culture of mind, and often even of any considerable natural talents, may tempt themselves, and lead others to conclude that they are endued with peculiar and extraordinary gifts for the service of the church, which ought not to be suffered to lie useless and unemployed.

An ardent zeal, too often united with a certain spiritual pride, and strong self-love, is apt to inspire some weak persons of an enthusiastic temperament, with vehement impulses to preach the gospel, which they flatter themselves are calls from heaven; but experience has repeatedly shown us, that these inward impulses most commonly affect men of great imbecility of mind, or of strong vanity. Experience farther shows, that when this fervour is somewhat abated, all their barrenness and defect of furniture for the holy ministry, and the sound interpretation of the sacred Scriptures, become manifest; and too many unhappy examples have occurred of those who have abandoned good morals when deserted by their zeal. And with regard to supposed calls to preach the gospel, no man can be rightly called to that sacred office out of the regular order which Christ has established in his church; no such inward call can be judged of by any church judicatory, nor distinguished by any certain criterion, from the visionary impulses of enthusiasm. The judicatories of the church can judge only of the life and conversation of men, their knowledge and their talents to teach.

Besides, we know that the nature of true religion is to render men humble. And such is the solemnity and importance of the duty of interpreting the word of God to the people, and speaking in his name, that a sincere penitent will rather wait to be sought out, than forwardly intrude himself into so holy a calling. And do we not find, in fact, that they are not usually the most prudent, judicious, and qualified to teach, among the laity, who are most solicitous to be constituted public guides and instructors in the church?

We do not say that a liberal education is absolutely essential to a man's usefulness in the ministry of the gospel; but reason and experience both demonstrate its high importance and utility. And where ignorant men are permitted to explain the Holy Scriptures, it ought to be subject to the direction and control of others of greater knowledge. But this is an order which it has not been thought proper to adopt in the Presbyterian church. And the superior comparative prosperity and usefulness of our church, and that of our eastern brethren, which is similarly constituted, is a demonstration, by no means equivocal, of the approbation and smiles of Heaven upon us, in the exercise of our present form of government and discipline. But were our opinion on this subject different from what it is, we cannot lawfully and conscientiously depart from our present standards till they be changed in an orderly manner by the consent of a majority of the Presbyteries which compose the body of the General Assembly.

You express your apprehensions, lest, if certain illiterate and unqualified men should not be admitted to the ministry of the gospel among you, they may withdraw from the church, and become the promoters of dangerous schisms. We answer, the path of duty is a safe path. Do what is right, and commit the event to God. If they are men of such a spirit, it is only a new proof that they are most unfit for the office to which they aspire. Parties created by them will neither be important nor durable. But if the gates of the church are opened to weakness and ignorance, she will soon be overflowed with errors and with the wildest disorders. We shall bring the ministry into disgrace and contempt; which should be, like the priesthood of Aaron, without blemish. If men are sincerely desirous of promoting the glory of God, let them first bestow the necessary pains and time to acquire the requisite qualifications for feeding and leading the flock of Christ; let them be regularly initiated into the priesthood, and not hasten to offer unhallowed fire on God's altar. If they are sincerely desirous of doing good, let them do it in that sphere in which they appear destined by Providence to move. In this, every Christian, the poorest and humblest, has ample scope to exercise his pious and benevolent dispositions, and to exert his talents, whatever they may be.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

IN SCHOOLS, ACADEMIES, AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

HIGHLAND, Kansas, April 21st, 1862.

My Dear Sir—In the progress of our school we find many things to interest and call forth renewed exertions. This wicked rebellion in our land is felt here, and especially in Missouri and the southern part of Kansas. There are now settled in our neighbourhood, and in reach of our school, over ten families who have fled from the vicinity and track of Price's army in Missouri. In that region, they say, the country is laid waste, and such things as schools and churches are not even talked of. These persons, having heard of our institution and quiet neighbourhood, have settled among us, mainly to get some advantage from our school and church. But they are entirely destitute. Money is out of the question. Some of them have light teams and wagons, with what little they could carry after losing farms and crops. One of them has just now brought in a fine Mitchell's map of the United States, the fruits of better days, which he offers for anything he can get to eat. To accommodate such, and a number of other children yet far back in learning, we have resolved to commence a strictly primary department. This, although a part of our institution, will be separate and apart from the preparatory and academic departments. To fill this place, we have engaged the services of a pious and experienced teacher, at the rate of two hundred and fifty dollars per year.

Now the object of this communication is to ask your Board if they cannot help us in this matter. If we can get this department through, we will allow the other classes to take care of themselves for the present, i. e., the higher branches will for the present support their own teachers. This branch of the school is vastly important, both in its immediate benefit on the children, and as an auxiliary to the higher branches in the future. And the help proposed is certainly due to these suffering families. That they are good Union people is clear, for it is their loyalty to our good old government that has, in most instances, brought these trials upon them. Their claims, therefore, as it seems to us, are doubly strong, and what may be contributed will not only be an immediate benefit to the needy, but go also to strengthen and sustain our Union. To us it seems like a clear opening of Providence, in which the two great interests of benevolence and patriotism can be both served at one stroke.

It is of no use to be tedious. "Ask that ye may receive," is a Scripture promise and injunction which encourages us, and if it is in the power of your Board to give us still more aid in these times of want, most thankfully will it be received.

Sincerely and affectionately your friend and obedient servant,

S. M. IRVIN, Secretary.

LAFAYETTE COLLEGE.

This institution, which for the last twelve years has been under the care and control of the Synod of Philadelphia, has continued to flourish, even in the present embarrassing times. The committee of the Synod, appointed at the last meeting to examine into its affairs, report, that "the institution is accomplishing, with a success vastly beyond any reasonable proportion to its fiscal powers, its high destiny. Its praise is in all the churches; its alumni have done their part in elevating the standard, and extending the reputation and usefulness of the legal and medical professions, and more especially have they aided the cause of evangelical truth and right, and planted the banner of the cross on many a rampart, behind which, otherwise, the legions of error and death would, to this day, have felt themselves safely entrenched." Nearly one-half of its alumni have entered the ranks of the gospel ministry. Of these, five are now professors in the various literary and theological institutions of our country, and five have become foreign missionaries. The Synod, at their meeting in 1859, also made the following record: "The college, as it appears from the very free and detailed statements of the Board of Visitors and its President, continues admirably to fulfil the ends of its adoption by the Synod, as a literary and religious institution. The standard of scholarship is high, and the range of studies as extensive as any college in the country. In every literary and religious aspect, the present condition of the college is such as affords every member of the Synod abundant reason for satisfaction and gratitude.

In regard to the course of instruction, it is peculiarly worthy of note, that in this College an able Professor of Philology conducts the study of the English language in the same way as the Latin and the Greek. The works of Milton and Shakespeare are made the basis of instruction in the rhetorical laws of English composition, and in the principles of epic and dramatic art. Select passages from them are thoroughly analyzed, the grammatical and historical etymology of every word discussed, and the text made the groundwork of general philological instruction. Anglo-Saxon, German, and French, are studied in the same way; and all the languages of the course are systematically compared in the light of modern philology, so as to illustrate each other, and language in general. An annual prize of thirty dollars has been generously founded by the Rev. William C. Fowler, D. D., LL.D., so extensively known for his labours in behalf of our mother tongue, which prize is bestowed on the student of the Senior Class who has made the greatest proficiency in English philology.

The location of the Institution is remarkable for its healthiness and the cheapness of living. One hundred and fifty dollars a year, with reasonable economy, will meet every expense.

It is to be regretted, however, that from the incomplete endowment, there is still an annual deficit in the current expenses of the Institution. About twenty-five or thirty thousand dollars, in addition to the present funds, would supply every lack of the College on its present scale. It may also be mentioned that a liberal-minded gentleman and scholar has determined to erect an astronomical observatory, and furnish it with an excellent telescope, entirely at his own expense, as a donation to the College, and that the execution of this purpose has only been delayed by the failure of the Synod to complete the necessary endowment of the College.

The present officers of the Faculty are—Rev. G. Wilson McPhail, D. D., President and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy; James H. Coffin, LL.D., Professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy; Trail Green, M. D., Professor or Chemistry; Francis A. March, A. M., Professor of English Language and Philology; Rev. John Leaman, A. M., M. D., Professor of Natural History, &c.; Rev. James R. Eckard, D. D., Professor of Rhetoric; Rev. Lyman Coleman, D. D., Professor of Ancient Languages; R. B. Youngman, A. M., Tutor.

DEATH OF A PROFESSOR.

HANOVER, Ind., April 28, 1862.

Dear Sir—I am called, in the providence of God, to send you a sad postcript to my report to the Board last week, as the following record of a Faculty meeting to-day will show. Professor Sturgus, whose decease is recorded, had been connected with the College as professor, in all, about sixteen years. His illness became alarming over a week ago, but hopes were entertained of his recovery almost to the last. He died on Saturday morning, with only fifteen minutes' notice of his speedy dissolution. His disease was typhoid fever.

At a meeting of the Faculty of Hanover College, April 28, 1862, the following minute was adopted with regard to the death of Professor Sturgus:

"Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to remove by death Minard Sturgus, A. M., Professor of the Latin language in Hanover College;

"Resolved, That by the decease of Professor Sturgus the Faculty has lost an agreeable associate and a judicious counsellor, the College a competent and faithful professor, his family a kind husband and father, the church in Hanover a valuable ruling elder, and the community a useful citizen.

"Professor Sturgus graduated at Hanover College in 1836. In 1840 he became Principal of the Preparatory Department of the College. In 1841 he was elected Professor of Ancient Languages, which position he held till 1852, when he resigned, and became a classical teacher, first in Louisville, Kentucky, and then in Monroe, Ohio. In 1858 he was recalled to Hanover College, one year as Greek Professor, and since then as Professor of Latin. After an illness of two weeks, he departed this life on the 26th inst., in the forty-fourth year of his age.

"Resolved, That we tender our sympathy to the bereaved family, whose loss is especially severe; feeling, however, that both we and they should bow with humble submission to the will of God, who has a right to dispose of his servants according to his good pleasure, and who, before calling him away, gave him and his surviving friends the joyful assurance that he was about to be transferred to a higher and nobler sphere of holy service in the kingdom of heaven."

Respectfully yours, JAMES WOOD.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA IN APRIL 1862.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Pby of Troy—Waterford ch, from Mrs H M Cramer	25 00
Pby of Albany—Carlisle ch	5 00
Pby of Mohawk—Park Central ch	12 00
Pby of Ogdensburgh—Hammond ch 4 55; Oswegatchie ch (ladies' cent a week coll) 53 82	58 37
Pby of Genesee River—First ch Bath (ladies' cent a week coll) 8; Warsaw ch 13	21 00
Pby of Long Island—Moriches ch (ladies' cent a week coll) 15; West Hampton ch 10	25 00
Pby of Bedford—Red Mills ch 5; South Salem ch 8	13 00
Pby of New York—Paid Candidates	240 00
Pby of Nassau—Astoria ch 31; Jamaica ch 36	67 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Second ch Cranberry 80; Dutch Neck ch 13	93 00
Pby of Passaic—Mount Freedom ch	10 00
Pby of Elizabethtown—Liberty Corner ch 25; 1st ch Woodbridge 30	55 00
Pby of West Jersey—Millville ch 5 20; Bridgeton 1st ch (of which from the Ladies' Education Soc 42) 230; Deerfield ch 3 62	238 82
Pby of Newton—Stillwater 1st ch 20; Stewartsville ch (ladies' cent a week coll) 18 09; Hackettstown ch, of which from the Rev George C Bush 25, ladies cent a week coll 23 79, collection 20 51=69 30; Blairstown ch 18; Pleasant Grove ch 10; Asbury ch 3; First Mansfield ch 8	146 39
Pby of Raritan—Lambertville ch 30; Amwell United 1st ch 13; Musconetcong Valley ch 19	62 00
Pby of Luzerne—Summit Hill ch (of which Mr N Patterson 5) 10; Kingston ch, collected by a young lady, 5 54	15 54
Pby of Burlington—First ch Camden 24; Tennent ch 7 75	31 75
Pby of Monmouth—Millstone ch 4; Village ch Freehold 52	54 00
Pby of Philadelphia—Tenth ch, Miss Wurts 100, R Creighton 5=105; Seventh ch 128 23	233 23
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Second ch, Ladies' Education Soc of, 37; Cohocksink ch 22 76; Great Valley ch 20	79 76
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Bridesburg ch (of which from B H Jenks, Esq. 100) 115; Newton ch 19	134 00
Pby of New Castle—White Clay Creek and Head of Christiana ch	15 00
Pby of Donegal—Mount Joy ch (from the ladies of) 11 35; Little Britain ch 10; Middle Octorara ch 11	32 35
Pby of Huntingdon—Hollidaysburg ch 45 88; Milroy ch 51 18; Lewistown ch 31 34, of which for this fund 28 34	125 40
Pby of Northumberland—First ch New Berlin	17 17
Pby of Baltimore—Taneytown ch 10; Annapolis ch 13; Second ch Baltimore 22 94; Govane chapel 3	48 94
Pby of Carlisle—Upper ch	1 25
Pby of Redstone—Morgantown ch (ladies cent a week coll)	1 15
Pby of Ohio—First ch Pittsburg, Mrs E F Denny	100 00
Pby of Allegheny City—Paid Candidate	180 00
Pby of Beaver—Mount Pleasant ch 3; Sharon ch 3	6 00
Pby of Erie—Meadville ch, Jno Reynolds, Esq. 100, Miss E Reynolds' Sab sch class of four little girls 8=108; Sugar Creek ch 2; Concord ch 5 85	115 85
Pby of Washington—Upper Buffalo ch 7; Third ch Wheeling 5; Cove ch 5; Mount Prospect ch 7	24 00
Pby of St. Clairsville—Short Creek ch	4 42
Pby of Columbus—Paid Candidates 60; First ch Columbus 32 83	92 83
Pby of Marion—Brown ch 5; Sandusky ch 2; Iberia ch 5	12 00
Pby of Zanesville—Bristol ch 3 48; Beulah ch 3; Deerfield ch 2 52	9 00
Pby of Chillicothe—Rocky Spring ch 5; First ch Chillicothe 19 80; Union ch 5 33; Eckmansville ch 4	34 13
Pby of Miami—Miami City ch	9 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Hopewell ch 9 39; Glendale ch 13 23	22 62
Pby of Oxford—First and Third chs Oxford 17 03; Third ch Oxford 5 05	22 08
Pby of New Albany—New Philadelphia 7 25; Charleston ch, paid Candidate 10	17 25
Pby of Sidney—Bellefontaine 1st ch	10 10
Pby of Madison—Pleasantown ch	8 51
Pby of Logansport—Rensselaer ch 6; Lexington ch 5; Lafayette 1st ch 8; Frankfort ch 7	26 00
Pby of Fort Wayne—Eel River ch 2; Columbia City ch 1; Pleasant Ridge ch 4	7 00
Pby of Bloomington—Wapella ch 3 05; Weymouth ch ch 5 92	8 97
Pby of Rock River—Freeport ch 5; Malden ch 3 50; Arlington ch 1 50	10 00
Pby of Milwaukie—Waukesha ch (of which 12 from the ladies' cent a week coll)	17 00
Pby of Winnebago—Newport ch 2; New Lisbon ch 3 05; Rev Stuart Mitchell 8 05	13 10
Pby of St. Paul—Forrest ch 1 80; Vermillion ch 1 70	3 50
Pby of Cedar—Muscatine ch (of which from Rev E L Belden 5 50)	10 00
Pby of Dubuque—Scotch Grove ch 8; Canton ch 1	9 00
Pby of Omaha—Nebraska City ch	1 30
Pby of St. Louis—Nazareth ch 3 85; Bethel ch 10	13 85
Pby of Wyaconda—Memphis ch	2 00
Pby of Transylvania—First ch Danville 100; Second ch Danville 200; New Providence ch 25	325 00
	$2889 48

REFUNDED.

G W	200 00

LEGACIES.

Estate of James Torbet, Ohio 1000; Estate of Mrs McCorkle, West Union, Ohio, 214 50, less exch 45 cents=213 96	1213 96

MISCELLANEOUS.

Edward S Jaffray, N. Y. 100; Wm White, Trenton 1; Jos G Briarly, Trenton 10; A G Richey, Trenton 25; E B Fuller, Trenton 100; Rev Cyrus Huntington, Ellicott's Mills, Md. 100; Alex Johnston, Connellsville, Pa. 100; W Bakewell, Pittsburg, Pa. 100; Myron Phelps, Lewistown, Ill. 100; Robert C Clark, Philadelphia 100; Rev John Knox, East Springfield, bal to con self hon mem 10; Miss Elizabeth Morris, Baltimore, Md. 100; J C Austin, Chambersburg, Pa. 100; Rev H R Weed, D D, Wheeling, Va. 75; A M Bruen, N. Y. 40; Rev C C Beatty, D D, Steubenville, Ohio 20; Religious Contribution Society of Princeton Seminary 17 75; J P Edie and family, Sioux City, Iowa 2; Hanover, Ind. 45 cents	1101 20
	$5404 64

II.—FUND FOR SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &c.

Pby of Huntingdon—Lewistown ch	3 00
Pby of Winnebago—Newport ch	1 90
	4 90

MISCELLANEOUS.

Coupons, C M, Philadelphia	30 00
	34 90
Total	$5439 54

WM. MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURG, PA., IN APRIL, 1862.

Pby of Ohio—Bethel ch 21 90; East Liberty ch 72 50; Lawrenceville (ladies penny coll) 4 50	98 90
Pby of Saltsburg—Elder's Ridge ch 6 05; Boiling Spring ch 13; Leechburg ch 10	29 05
Pby of Redstone—Laurel Hill ch	7 92
Pby of Allegheny—Middlesex ch (of which from the ladies 6 25) 14; Harrisville ch 6 60; Amity ch 8 40; Concord ch 9 07; Pleasant Valley ch 2	40 07
Pby of Allegheny City—Emsworth ch 4; Highlands ch 4 19; Sharpsburg ch (ladies of) 7; Freedom ch 65 cents	15 84
Pby of Clarion—Clarion ch	3 78
Pby of Washington—Hookstown ch 7; Waynesburg ch 3	10 00
Pby of New Lisbon—Bethesda ch (ladies, in part)	4 61
Pby of Richland—Haysville ch	3 64
	$218 81

MISCELLANEOUS.

James Laughlin, Esq. 100; from Patterson Estate per Rev George Marshall, D D, 25	125 00
	$343 81

RECEIPTS AT LOUISVILLE, KY., FROM APRIL 20TH, 1861, TO APRIL 25TH, 1862.

Pby of New Albany—First ch New Albany	25 00
Pby of Vincennes—Upper Indiana ch	4 00
Pby of Madison—New Frankfort ch	1 00
Pby of Crawfordsville—Terre Haute ch	7 00
Pby of Kaskaskia—Chester ch 4; Pleasant Ridge ch 5 60; Liberty ch 4 50	14 10
Pby of Peoria—Elba Centre ch	2 00
Pby of Saline—Shawneetown ch, Mrs B F Spillman	1 00
Pby of Wyaconda—Des Moines ch, A Wayland	2 00
Pby of Louisville—Walnut street ch Louisville 40 86; Portland Avenue ch 8; Chestnut street ch Louisville 65 75; Owensboro' ch, in part 40	154 61
Pby of Franconia—Mount Pleasant ch 19 55; Harmony ch 25; Lancaster ch 10 50; S B C, Danville 5	60 05
Pby of West Lexington—Mount Horeb ch 14; Hopewell ch 5 50; Frankfort ch 51; Rev D P Young, Georgetown ch 5	75 50
Pby of Ebenezer—Washington ch 10; Elizaville ch 3; First ch Covington 47 26; Carlisle ch, Ezra How 1; Catlettsburg ch 4 50; Greenwich Union ch 3 50	69 26
	415 52

REFUNDED.

R	44 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

John Burwell, Ironton, Ohio	25 00
	$484 52

ANDREW DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

Total amount acknowledged, $6,267 87

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.
May 12th, 1862.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

JAPAN.

We have received a letter from Dr. Hepburn, dated January 13th. The missionaries expected to be required to remove from Kanagawa to Yokohama, but they had not been able to obtain houses or land in that place.

CHINA.

Our letters from this country are dated at Canton, February 27th; Ningpo, to February 18th; and Shanghai, to February 20th. The brethren at Ningpo were rejoicing in several additions to the church—two of the girls in the school, the son of one of the elders, and two persons at Bao-ko-tah, one of these a man over eighty years of age. A few other hopeful cases of inquiry were found at Bao-ko-tah, which is a small town a few miles from Ningpo, one or two at Sanpoh, and a few in the girls' school. Mr. Rankin adds: "There is no interruption to missionary work among the villages generally, and the people are eager to hear the gospel. . . . Ask the churches to pray for us."

SIAM.

Our advices from Bangkok are dated February 6th. Mr. McDonald mentions that the number of scholars in the boarding-school has been reduced to twenty-two, in order to save expense. The arrival of Mr. and Mrs. George is reported in another paragraph.

INDIA.

Letters have reached us from Allahabad, March 5th; Futtehpore, March 2d; Futtehgurh, March 18th; Saharunpur, March 17th; Ambala, February 28th; Kapurthala, March 3d. Mr. Calderwood had been permitted to receive into the church, by baptism, three men and one woman at Ambala; Dr. Campbell to receive eight new members at Saharunpur; and Mr. Fullerton reports the baptism of a man about eighty years of age, and of a young man at Futtehgurh. These additions to the church gave the brethren great cause of rejoicing. Mr. Walsh had returned to Allahabad with health much improved.

AFRICA.

Letters have come to hand from Monrovia, March 10th, and from Corisco, dated to February 21st. Mr. James Amos, of the Niffau station, was at Monrovia on his way to this country, on account of the health of his wife. The missionaries at Corisco, Mr. Mackey says, were enjoying pretty good health, and their work was going on as usual. Mr. Nassau sends us an account of threatened trouble from the followers of Ukuku, which for a time endangered some of the missionary labours; but this had ceased.

SOUTH AMERICA.

Letters have been received from Bogota, dated to the 28th of March, mentioning the safe arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace at the end of their journey. From Rio de Janeiro our letters are dated to the 14th of March. Mr. Simonton, whose visit is mentioned in another paragraph, brings us full and valuable information about the missionary work in Brazil. It is a field of great interest, having its difficulties and discouragements, but one that is open for missionary labour, and this labour has already yielded some precious fruit.

INDIAN TRIBES.

Our letters from the Chippewa mission are dated to the 15th of April, and from the Iowa mission, April 16th, but furnish no points for special notice.

CHINESE IN CALIFORNIA.

Mr. Loomis, in a letter dated at San Francisco, March 31st, refers to measures pending before the Legislature, affecting seriously the rights of the Chinese in that state; some of these propose, by excessive taxation, to constrain the Chinese to leave the country.

MOVEMENTS OF MISSIONARIES.

The Rev. W. A. P. Martin, D. D., and his wife, and their two youngest children, embarked on their return to Ningpo, China, in the steamer Ta Kiang, at New York, May 6th. We ask for them a remembrance in the prayers of the churches. Mr. Simonton arrived at New York from Brazil, on a visit, on the 7th of May. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts arrived at Shanghai, on their way to Ningpo, on the 1st of February. Mr. and Mrs. George arrived at Bangkok on the 2d of that month, and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace arrived at Bogota on the 19th of March.

FINANCIAL RESULTS.

The receipts of the Board for the year ending April 30th, were $176,939.47; the expenditures, $177,892.32; leaving a balance against the treasury of $952.85.

END OF THE MISSION YEAR.

REASONS OF GRATITUDE.

The financial year of the Board ended on the 30th of April. The Annual Report of the Executive Committee gives a review of the missionary cause, both as to its home interests and its foreign labours, brought down nearly to the same date. This document, if approved by the General Assembly, will be printed as an extra number of the Record, and our readers can then judge for themselves of the present condition of the foreign missionary work of our church.

We feel quite sure that their judgment will be this:—that God has greatly, even wonderfully, favoured this work during the last year. The financial position of the Board, on which so much depends, is most satisfactory—so far as the past is concerned. There is no debt. The missions are nearly all in vigorous life, with the lamented exception of those among the southwestern Indians. Hopeful converts have been added to churches in different countries. New missionaries have been sent out, and new ground, in some instances, occupied. A larger number of men than usual are under appointment as missionaries, if the Lord will;—and thus the year ends. We do not now attempt to abridge the statistical returns of the Annual Report, nor can we here enumerate the many proofs which it brings to view of God's blessing upon the cause of missions; these will be found in the Report itself. They will appear all the more signal, by reason of the heavy clouds under which the year was commenced. It was then feared that our missionary work would be almost broken up. Now, we see that this work never before enjoyed more remarkable tokens of the favour of God. Let us bless the Lord for his great goodness to his people and their missionary labours. He has heard our prayers, let him receive our warm thanksgivings; and let stronger faith be in exercise for the time to come.

BEGINNING OF ANOTHER MISSION YEAR.

FAITH, PRAYER, GIVING, WORKING—STILL NEEDED.

The foreign missions of our body are mostly in such circumstances as awaken the hope of great results from their labours. This, we are sure, will be the conviction of every careful reader of the Annual Report. It is therefore with no desponding spirit that we enter upon another year of missionary labour. If God is blessing his people at home and his servants abroad in this work, and if his promises authorize them to expect still greater blessings in it, then let their faith be strong. We do not wish to conceal the fact, that there is room and need for the exercise of faith. We wish particularly to turn the attention of our readers to two things in the present condition of the cause of missions.

The first is this:—that if several large donations to the missionary treasury be deducted, amounting last year to about one-fourth of the whole income of the Board, then it remains that the ordinary church collections and other usual gifts are not equal to the current expenditures of the missions, as they now stand. We wish our readers would carefully consider what is stated on this subject in the Annual Report, under the head of "Finances," near the beginning. For the present, we will not enlarge on this matter.

The second is this:—that a number of approved brethren are under appointment as missionaries; see the paragraph "Under Appointment," in the Report. Now, keeping the preceding statement in view, what ought the Committee to do in regard to sending these new men forth?

"Send them out, by all means!" Yes—they are greatly needed; it is God who has made them willing to go, as we hope; the church is well able to send them, besides supporting the existing missions. But will the church furnish the means required? And ought the Committee to go much in advance of the standard already reached? Would their proceedings meet with approval, if these men were sent out, and at the end of the year a heavy debt should rest on the mission treasury? We forbear to multiply inquiries and suggestions. We are writing these lines in the hope of calling forth prayer on behalf of the Committee, as well as of the missions; and also to place before all our readers these words from the Report: "The Committee must not conclude that large gifts will not hereafter reach the mission treasury; but, nevertheless, it is wise to rely mainly on the regular contributions of the churches. Cannot these be largely increased? Must the church believe that all her means are exhausted in the support now given to this cause? It is a question to be answered before our blessed Lord and before a perishing world."

THE GIFTS OF CHILDREN.

The children of the church gave $6595 last year to foreign missions, as acknowledged separately, besides gifts that may not have been reported as from them. This is within a few hundred dollars of the sum acknowledged to their credit in the preceding year. We are thankful, indeed, for these gifts of our young friends. The Lord will accept them, and bless them as a means of doing good; and he will also bless the young donors. Their gifts of pennies and dimes, to send the gospel to the heathen, will lead them to learn many things about various countries and nations —a kind of knowledge which will be useful to them as long as they live. It will also lead them to consider what God is doing in the world for the salvation of sinful men. And it will lead them to prize the blessings of the Christian religion, and to see the importance of love to the Saviour, earnestness in religious duty, self-denial, and other principles, graces, and motives, which the blessed gospel sets before us. Thus it will prove an invaluable part of their training as the followers of Christ, for usefulness in this world, and for glory in the world to come. We know of no other cause which better fosters all these good influences in the Christian training of our children, than does this cause of foreign missions.

We must not write a long article, but we may express the wish that many more of our Sunday-schools could be enlisted in this good work. Probably not more than three hundred gave their offerings to make up the above sum of $6595. We wish at least ten hundred more would make collections this year. Why should they not? It would do them good, and it would do good to many who need their help.

Let it be remembered that a copy of the newspaper, The Foreign Missionary, is sent free, excepting postage, to the children in each family in every Sunday-school that makes regular collections in aid of the missions. The reading of this little newspaper has been found useful and interesting. It may be included as a part of the happy influences which a Christian parent or Sunday-school teacher would wish to throw around the beloved children of the church.

MISSIONS IN CHINA.

Annual Report of the Mission at Shanghai.

[Concluded from page 72.]

Every Means made use of—Chapel Services.

We make use of every means within our reach to bring these poor deluded people to a knowledge of the Saviour. Preaching, exhortation, private conversation, translation, printing, and distribution of books, have each received a share of our time. Preaching has not had such a prominent place among our labours as we would gladly give it. With the prospect of building a chapel immediately, we did not renew the lease on the suburb chapel. This left us with only a single chapel where we can get a good audience. However, this has been quite sufficient, for Mr. Culbertson has made the translation of the Bible his principal work. Mr. Mills has had several other duties devolving upon him, while Mr. Farnham's whole time is occupied with the study of the language, having but lately begun to speak in chapel. Still, with all these hinderances, we have had regular services at each chapel, besides opening that in the city for preaching several times a week. The attendance at that place has varied from twenty to sixty or seventy. What success has attended these efforts we cannot tell. Most of our hearers come and go, and are never seen again. Many come in, look about for a moment, listen to a few words, and go out; others sit for five or ten minutes; few stay through the whole service. It would seem impossible that those who are so ignorant of the law of God, and the gospel of his Son, should in this way learn enough to prove their salvation. But preaching is God's appointed instrumentality, and he can give it success. If, in answer to prayer, he open the hearts of this people, they will receive the gospel in the love of it.

At the chapel connected with the mission houses we have had but one service a week, and this is attended principally by our scholars and others in our employ, though there is always a good number of others present. Here the audience remains, and is usually quite attentive through the whole of the exercises, which is a hopeful feature of these services. Besides, most of this audience have some knowledge of the Scriptures.

We have two Bible-classes on the Sabbath, and a prayer-meeting on Thursday evening for the benefit of the church members and others interested, besides daily reading and exposition of the Scriptures in connection with family prayers.

Translating the Scriptures—Distribution of Books.

The translation of the Scriptures has reached the end of Ezekiel, and is rapidly drawing to a close, the New Testament being already in print. It would probably have been completed ere this reaches you but for the illness of several members of Mr. Culbertson's family. Some other works of less consequence have been translated or prepared for the press. From the report of the superintendent of the press you will see the number and size of the volumes that have issued from our press, and been sent forth into China and Japan.

What number of books we have distributed in this mission it is impossible to say; we have employed no regular colporteur, but have each distributed in connection with our preaching, and on other occasions as we have had opportunity. Private conversation and visiting from house to house have not been so faithfully pursued as other means. There are difficulties attending foreigners engaging in this that cannot be easily overcome. But we hope ere long native labourers may be raised up to prosecute this work.

"Education of the Youth."

One other department of labour remains to be noticed—the education of the youth. We have three schools, with an aggregate attendance of sixty scholars, forty boys and twenty girls. Mr. Mills' boys' school in the city, connected with the chapel, is taught by a Christian, and is well-attended, having an attendance of more than twenty. Mrs. Mills' girls' school also has about twenty in attendance. This school is supported by the Society of Earnest Workers, of New York city. Mr. Farnham also has a boys' school, with some sixteen in daily attendance.

As the girls do not remain long enough in school to acquire a knowledge of the Chinese character, their studies are limited to the colloquial and such religious and text books as have been translated into it. In all the schools a considerable part of each day is spent in the study of the Scriptures or other religious books. The boys are pursuing, in addition to this, the usual course of Chinese classics.

There is one feature of the schools, to which your attention has not been particularly called, that may be considered hopeful. I allude to something like a boarding department that has sprung up by the brethren taking one or more boys into their families, and sending them to the day-schools. This, you will perceive, involves but a small outlay, and the boys are, to a great extent, withdrawn from the corrupting example of the heathen, and are completely under our influence. One, formerly a beggar-boy, who for several years enjoyed this connection with us, has for some time past been an efficient assistant in the printing-office. We have four others, two motherless and two are orphans, good scholars, and promising boys. During the past year they have committed to memory and recited the whole of the Gospels of Matthew and Luke, besides attending to other studies. They listen attentively to instruction, and it is to be hoped they may become subjects of divine grace, and able assistants. To this source alone can we look for well-trained native helpers. The means for their support thus far has been contributed by a few friends of the cause in Savannah, Georgia, and Buffalo, New York. We could easily take several more such lads, equally hopeful, if there were those who would like to contribute a sum sufficient for their support, say six or seven cents a day for each boy.

A new Chapel and Printing-office.

You have already been informed of the purchase of the lots for the chapel and new printing-office. We have experienced the usual delays and difficulties with which you have been made familiar in former reports. These lots are on a thronged street, outside the Little East Gate, and thought to be very eligibly situated. The chapel is in course of erection, and will soon be ready for use. It is to be a building fifty-four feet long and thirty-four feet wide, two stories, a chapel below and dwelling above. It will be remembered that special funds for this lot and chapel, to the amount of $3450, were contributed by friends of the cause in this place and New York city.

It is very desirable that we should immediately erect a printing-office upon the lot adjoining. The building in which the press has been temporarily located is much too small to accommodate it for any length of time. Several departments of the business are either much cramped for room, or entirely suspended. We therefore hope and pray God will help his people to devise some means for placing a suitable building upon the lot now waiting for it, that this important agency may lose none of its efficiency.

A call for pity and help.

We have nothing further to add, only to urge upon the church the necessity of using every means possible to bring this people to a knowledge of the Saviour, without which they must surely be lost. "The wicked shall be turned into hell with all the nations that forget God."

"Our connection with the poor Refugees."

Our connection with the poor refugees from the cities destroyed by the insurgents, spoken of in our last report, has never ceased. Money has been raised and distributed among them, and employment sought in every way possible. We have taught them to bind our books, and at this time that work is performed entirely by this class of people. They are very glad to get good pay and steady employment, and it has been the means of bringing them in contact with the gospel. They are regular attendants at our little chapel on Sabbath, and attentive listeners. We trust they may become savingly acquainted, and when peace returns to this distressed land, and they go back to their homes so long left desolate, may they carry in their hands the word of God, and in their hearts the healthful influence of divine grace. In this we may see the providence of God in detaining against their will so many missionaries for so many years in Shanghai sowing the seed, and then bringing to this place thousands of refugees, who will reside here a few years amid these influences, and then, we hope, go back to their native places as missionaries of the cross of Christ.

As we see so many borne to their last resting-place, we are often reminded of those lines of Montgomery:

"The heathen perish day by day,
Thousands on thousands pass away!
. . . . . .
O Christians! to their rescue fly!
Preach Jesus to them ere they die!
Wealth, labour, talents, freely give,
Yea, life itself, that they may live.
What hath your Saviour done for you?
And what for him will you not do?"

"Finally, brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free course and be glorified, even as it is with you."

In behalf of the mission,

J. M. W. FARNHAM.

P. S. Since the writing of this report one of the translators, the Rev. Dr. Bridgeman, has gone to his reward. It is hoped his death will not interfere with the progress of the work.

MISSIONS IN INDIA.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STATION AT MYNPURIE.

The Rev. A. Brodhead and his wife, and three native Christian assistants, are stationed at this city, which lies between Futtehgurh and Agra, about forty miles west of the former.

In response to the inquiry of God's people, "What of the night?" the watchman must still reply, "The morning cometh." As yet, it is not. A few streaks of light appear, sure harbingers of day; but the inquirer must again and again come and return ere the gloom which settles over the heathen shall be dispersed; and we who are placed upon the outposts to await the coming of the Sun of Righteousness, must trust His word who said, "Let light be, and light was," till the day break, and the shadows flee away.

While in this waiting attitude, we have not ceased to be aggressive; and though we cannot make the announcement of wonderful progress, it becomes our duty to note God's dealings with us, and the interests committed to our care during the past year.

The Labourers—Different branches of work carried on.

Our numerical force remains the same as reported last year, namely, the missionary, one catechist, one Scripture reader, whose duties correspond with those of a catechist, and a Christian head-teacher, who, with the missionary, has the superintendence of the school. Sickness has prevailed to an unusual extent. While this has interfered with our labours to some degree, we are called upon to recognise the goodness of our Heavenly Father in sparing the lives of all.

The branches of mission work carried on have been the usual ones of preaching and teaching, together with the circulation of the Scriptures and tracts, as far as practicable. Two services have been held each Sabbath; the weekly evening prayer-meeting has been continued; and the monthly concert of prayer observed. In the early part of the year the Mission sanctioned the repair of the old school-house in the city, to be used for preaching. After the close of the rainy season, our Sabbath morning service was transferred thither, and, by this change, a better attendance of the people of the city has been secured; though, with regard to these, it must yet be said, that "the ways of Zion do mourn, because none come to the solemn feasts."

Sabbath Congregations—Village and Bazar work.

The Sabbath congregations have been somewhat diminished from the breaking up of the Police Levy, some of the members of which are communicants. They are now scattered through the district, and being without Christian intercourse and the ordinances of the word, their profession of Christ will be put to a more severe test. A Sabbath-school was begun a few months since, which, as yet, is confined for the most part to the children of the native Christians, and the orphans under our care. Our hope is that it may, by the blessing of God, become a means of good to others. During the last cold season the towns and villages in the district were largely visited by the catechist and Scripture reader, who generally found attentive audiences, and, in some instances, were permitted to preach the gospel where it never before had been heard. The bazar also has been visited regularly for preaching by the native assistants, and by the missionary as far as his knowledge of the language would permit. While this is the only practicable way of bringing the truth within reach of the masses, it must be admitted that the perceptible results are very few. Nevertheless, until He who commands us to sow beside all waters, shall countermand the order, we must be all things to all men, if by any means we may save some.

The School, and its Scholars and Studies.

The school continues to prosper, and fills an important place in our work at this station. At one time it was feared that the establishment of Government schools in the city might embarrass our operations. In the early part of the year a Tcheilee school, one of a system of Government schools organized throughout the Northwest Provinces, was set in operation here; and the teachers, zealous for their fees, had begun to draw away our boys in the vernacular departments, by telling them it was our intention to make them Christians. Fearing this influence, it was deemed proper to ascertain in what light our efforts were regarded by those in authority. A correspondence with the Director of Public Instruction resulted in the removal of the school to another part of the district.

The number of scholars in attendance at the mission school is two hundred and thirty-five; a larger number, I think, than has ever before been reported. More than one-third of the number are of the Brahminical caste. The whole number is classified as follows:—In the English department, sixty-five; in Hindi, one hundred and twenty-one; in Persian and Ordoo, forty-seven. Of course, a large number in each department are engaged with only primary studies; however, eight study Natural Philosophy, twenty-seven History, seventy-five Arithmetic and Geography, and thirty-five Grammar; while it is our aim to give all of the boys instruction in the Scriptures and Catechisms as soon as they are able to understand them. The boys of the first class in the English department, eight of whom are Brahmins, have committed the Shorter Catechism to memory, and are now reciting it with the proofs. Notwithstanding these boys, in some cases, manifest hostility to the truth, it is pleasant to observe that they are becoming more and more interested in their Bible readings, while one of the most intelligent of them, and who has hitherto been most determined in his opposition, lately stated before the class that he was examining his religion, and if he found that it was false, he should abandon it. Another of the class has been for a long time a diligent, and, as I believe, a prayerful student of the Bible in private. It may not be amiss to state, that the school is carried on at an expense of not more than five rupees (two dollars and a half) per year for each scholar. It is a matter for sincere regret, that in the present disturbed state of affairs in America, a larger force of Christian and capable teachers cannot be employed.

Inquirers—Orphan Children.

During the year several inquirers have been received into the compound, they having expressed a desire for instruction and baptism. We are sorry to state, that a short experience of their characters disclosed sordid motives in their coming, and they were not encouraged to remain.

In the famine months eight orphan children were consigned to our care by the relief committee of the district. One of the children being considered hopelessly imbecile, has been sent to the insane asylum at Bareilly. Of the remaining seven, those who are of a sufficient age are taught to read, and the girls to sow. None of their support has as yet been drawn from the mission fund.

We take pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of a communion service for our native Christian church from friends in Princeton, New Jersey.

SCHOOL EXAMINATION AT DEHRA.

Our last number contained the report of the station at Dehra, India. To this we now add the following pleasant and interesting paper, taken from The Hills, an English newspaper, published in that part of India. Our English friends at Dehra and other places have taken a warm interest in this school, and have contributed very generously towards its establishment and support.

DERAH, Saturday, Dec. 7, 1861.

We were invited to-day to witness a most interesting sight, viz., the examination of, and distribution of prizes to the children attending the "Dehra Native Christian Girls' Boarding-school."

The name of the school gives a correct idea of its purpose, and a little reflection will suffice to enable its value to be really conceived.

The large room where the exercises were conducted was in a bungalow in the American Presbyterian Mission compound. It was pleasant to see several carriages standing at the door, and on entering, to find the seats filled with between thirty and forty English women and men, as well as a number of native Christians. The English women seemed particularly in their place there; in encouraging by their presence, the education of these Indian girls, who are being trained up as the Christian mothers of Indian families.

The little girls, to the number of about thirty, were seated on forms at the upper end of the room, fronted by the usual green-cloth table, on which the books lay, out of which they were to be examined. Over the fire-place was the black-board, on which we were pleased to see music written as part of the exercise for the day. In front, the world hung on the wall with all the necessary bright colouring of divisions and countries, the dark shading of mountain, and tortuous lines of river. The little girls were cleanly and nicely dressed, almost wholly in the strictest native fashion, with the graceful snow-white chudder thrown over the head and shoulder. It was very pleasing to see the good taste displayed in this, for we have seen elsewhere native girls dressed up in English clothes, with bare (dark brown) necks and arms, which made them look particularly unattractive and ungainly. All being up-country girls, had regular features, and one or two were decidedly pretty. One was especially noticed for the particularly soft and amiable expression of her face.

The examination was conducted principally by the Rev. Mr. Herron, whose cheerful and affectionate mode of questioning the children took off from the chilly horror of similar occasions. Considering the very short time these girls have been in training, it was really surprising to hear the way they got through the very varied difficulties put in their way. They had to read in English, to them a foreign language, and that one of the most difficult to learn. In this they showed great proficiency, which was further tested by their having to translate English into Oordoo, and Oordoo into English. They had to read the New Testament in the Oordoo language, but written in the Roman character, and also the Hindee New Testament in the Hindee character, much of which is written in different words from the Oordoo version. They had to do arithmetic, and answer a host of terrible questions in English grammar. They had also to answer questions in a vernacular easy catechism, and to repeat the first half of the Shorter Catechism, both in Oordoo and English. This last seemed to them the most difficult task they had to go through, and no doubt from their not being able readily to understand in a foreign language what Scotch children have so much difficulty with in their own vernacular. The highest class then went through their facings with the geography, and were most at home in the map of India, which it seemed in every way proper they should be, considering it is their "own native land." The work of drawing out the stores of these little minds had lasted two full hours when it was resolved to finish. One interesting little girl, the youngest of the number, and who had taken no part in the answering before, was now brought up in front of the table, all alone, to tell what they had been able to get her little mind to do. A short hymn was the sensible and pleasant contribution she had to make to the general exhibition. Fixing her full dark eyes on Mr. Herron, as if thereby to keep them from being bewildered by the terrible array of great ones in front of her, she, after an anxious silence, began and repeated in a soft pleasing voice her allotted task, returning at its end, evidently with great pleasure, to her former seat on the floor.

A few hard questions in music, and a well sung hymn, concluded the exercises; after which the more gifted ones, who had prizes to receive, came up and received them from the hands of one of the ladies present, who read out the names and the particular excellence which had merited the reward or distinction.

On the girls leaving, Mr. Herron gave us a short sketch of the rise and progress of the school, and some account of the difficulties and encouragements they had met with.

It was first established in 1859, before which time there was no similar school, in which the parents and guardians had to pay for the education of their children, in the North of India, and where native Christian girls could be trained in the way that the well educated native Christian man would desire his wife to be.

Besides learning to read and write they are taught to cook, and the elder girls having each charge of a younger one, are thus early taught to be kind and useful. They also spend the afternoon of each day in learning to sew, &c.

The number of girls has increased within three years from eleven to thirty. Some of them are wholly supported by their parents, while others are partially so, and some very poor ones are kept at the expense of friends of the Mission.

In thus educating them, there is also the hope that some of these girls may devote themselves to the establishment, perhaps along with their husbands, of schools for the heathen girls in the city; for through this agency alone can an effectual work be accomplished among the heathen females around us; the great necessity for which, and the probable effects of which, under God's blessing, cannot be overrated.

Mrs Herron, through whose zeal and love for the work to which her husband has devoted himself the boarding-school was established and for some time conducted, continues actively to interest herself in its welfare and progress; but the burden of the day and the credit for its present state of great efficiency is Miss Miller's, who with untiring industry labours at the good work.

Before leaving, we went through the class-room, the sleeping apartments and play-ground. In the class-room, the delighted prize recipients were looking at their neighbours' gifts. One little girl, broken-hearted at her want of success, had buried her little face in her chudder, and continued weeping inconsolably, showing how valued these least of gifts are as a mark of approbation.

In the play-ground there sat an interesting pair, viz., a little girl about three years of age, who, all day long, delights in taking care of her little brother, an infant under a year old. Their favourite position is, as we saw them, sitting face to face, with her arms around him. Poor orphans! their mother was murdered in the most cruel manner by their father about six weeks ago at Mussoorie. He stabbed and cut her in the fierceness of his rage in about fifty places, and being caught, will shortly suffer the extreme penalty of the law.

These two are thus, through a terrible tragedy, rescued from the blighting influences of heathenism, and brought under the light of the gospel; and, may we not hope, are two of Christ's precious ones?

The specimen of the training of the others in this boarding-school to-day, leads us to hope for them with all confidence, and to join heartily with the others who witnessed all the proceedings to-day, and those who have aided and watched over its progress since its commencement, in wishing it every prosperity, success, and encouragement. Yours, sincerely.

MISSION IN BRAZIL.

Visit to a German Colony.

The Rev. F. J. C. Schneider, as his name indicates, is of a German family; though educated mainly in this country, he still speaks the German language with ease. His labours in Brazil will have reference, at first, to the German settlers, but eventually his work will probably be mainly among the natives of the country. The following letter will be read with much interest. It was addressed to his former pastor and friend, the Rev. Dr. Paxton, minister of the First Church, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Sao Paulo, Feb. 4, 1862.

Dear Sir—According to promise, I will now give you a brief account of my short experience among some of the Germans of this empire. Upon my arrival at Rio, upon the 7th of December, I learned that the Rev. Mr. Blackford, of the Board of Foreign Missions, was then upon an excursion into the interior, and that he had passed through a German colony, whose director, also a German, was very anxious to secure the services of a German Protestant pastor to labour among the colonists. Mr. Blackford told him that he expected me shortly to arrive at Rio, whereupon Mr. Kufa, the director, requested him to write to Mr. Simonton, the other Presbyterian missionary at Rio, that he should ask me to pay them a visit as soon as possible after my arrival, offering, at the same time, to secure me a free passage the greater part of the way. Therefore, as soon as was possible after arriving at Rio, I set out for Juiz de Fora, the site of the colony above mentioned.

The Journey.

I went on board a small steamer which plies between the city and Mauá, on the opposite side of the bay, and the beginning of the first railroad in the empire. A passage of a few hours across this, probably the most beautiful bay in the world, every turn of the wheels opening up new views among the many islands, and along the rock-bound shores, brought me to Mauá. Here a small train of cars, attached to a correspondingly small locomotive, was in waiting. These, in about twenty-five minutes, brought me to the terminus of the railroad, at the foot of the serra, or mountains, up which ascends the road to Petropolis, a country residence of the emperor and many foreign ministers and attachés, to Juiz de Fora, Saõ Joaõ del Rei, the diamond mines, and other places in the interior. Carriages, drawn each by four mules, were waiting here to take us to Petropolis. Into one of these I entered, and then, but for the rain which now began to fall in torrents, I should have had one of the finest rides I ever enjoyed. The road was built by the government, and is finer than any I ever saw in the United States. It is so well macadamized that there was no mud whatever, although it had been raining hard every day for two weeks. It is cut into the sides of the mountain, which, in many places, is very nearly perpendicular, and winds so much that frequently three turns are compressed into a space small enough to admit of a conversation being carried on between persons going in opposite directions. The scenery about you is grand and sublime beyond description, for peaks of granite rise in the most fantastic shapes around, and hide their tops in the clouds at the height of nearly two thousand feet. Below, as you ascend, are stretched out the plains of Mauá, with its diminutive railroad, the bay with its islands, forts, and shipping, and Rio de Janeiro with its white houses and beautiful steeples and towers. After having ascended nearly two thousand feet in about six miles, we reach the top of the serra, and then, in about two miles more, enter Petropolis.

The Germans at Petropolis.

This was at one time an imperial colony of Germans, but is now a city—i. e., it is no longer sustained by government patronage, but has received the privileges and immunities of a city, and is left to shift for itself. So long as it was still under the care of the emperor, the Germans had a Protestant pastor, part of whose salary was paid by government. I have heard, however, from different sources, that he was very unevangelical in his views and teachings, and even went so far as to assert publicly that, among other things, baptism and the Lord's Supper were mere ceremonies, that were good enough, but could very well be dispensed with. After he ceased to derive any support from government, because he had failed to impress his flock with much love for himself, and they were moreover rather indifferent to the concerns of religion, he was left almost without support. He then went away, and the church was almost entirely broken up. The Germans there are still without a pastor, and are very indifferent as to whether one settles among them or not. Their exact number in and about Petropolis I do not know, but suppose that it is about one thousand. They are not in a very thriving condition even temporally, for, as a general thing, the colonists in Brazil are of the lower class of German peasants, and lack both energy and intelligence.

The journey continued—The finest road in Brazil—The people.

I had arrived at Petropolis on the evening of December 30th. Next morning I took my seat in the diligence, for which Mr. Kufa had sent me a free ticket, and started for Juiz de Fora, distant nearly ninety miles. The road was as fine as that to Petropolis, and nearly level the entire distance, the steepest grades being only a rise of three feet in a hundred. It is the finest road in Brazil, and was built at enormous expense, by a company which has a certain per centage profit on the capital invested, insured to it by the government. It follows the course of two streams, the Parahyba and the Parahybuna, the road following each of them about half its length. It is graded, cut, tunneled, embanked, &c., into and under hills and over hollows, just like the railroads in Pennsylvania, and would, I doubt not, admit of a railroad being laid upon it, upon which locomotives could be the motors. It passes, however, through a very thinly inhabited country, and the few inhabitants that are seen are thriftless, indolent, and squalid as can well be imagined. It is very common to pass a mud hovel thatched with straw, in which are half a dozen strong, healthy men, several women, and a corresponding number of children, the men lounging or thrumming on a guitar, the women sitting on the ground doing nothing, even the children too indolent to play. Multitudes are content merely to exist, and while nature smiles around them, and the earth is luxuriant with vegetation, they will do nothing not absolutely necessary to supply their simplest wants. Education they have none, except perhaps an indifferent knowledge of reading, and their religion often is to wear a little trinket, blessed by a priest, as a charm around their necks.

Preaching at Juiz de Fora—The German colony and its condition.

Relays of mules are kept about every nine miles, and therefore I travelled faster in the diligence on this road than ever I did in a stage-coach in the States, and reached Juiz de Fora in the evening of the same day on which I left Petropolis. Here I was warmly welcomed by Mr. Kufa, and upon the following day, the first of January, preached to a very respectable audience, nearly half of whom, I was told, were Roman Catholics. I announced, at the close of the services, that I expected to preach in the same place, a school-house, upon the following Sabbath, and in the afternoon of the same day would deliver a sermon to the children. At the time appointed for the services of the Sabbath, an audience of nearly two hundred paid most profound attention to my discourse in the morning, and in the afternoon I preached to a very animating audience of some seventy children, many of them being accompanied by their parents.

The colony of Juiz de Fora was founded by a company—the same as that which built the road—and consists of about twelve hundred persons. They are scattered over an extent of country covering probably some fourteen square miles. The passage from Germany and other expenses were paid for them by the company, land was furnished them, and provisions sufficient to enable them to live until they could produce enough for themselves. This was all charged against them, and is considered a debt contracted, which they bind themselves to pay from the proceeds of their labour. The company have large facilities for transporting goods of all kinds from Rio to Juiz de Fora, the terminus of their road, and keep an immense number of wagons, mules, and men constantly employed. They also have large wagon-making and blacksmith shops, saw-mill, planing-machine and flooring-mill, &c., near the colony, all which could furnish many of the colonists with employment.

I was told, however, that few availed themselves of these opportunities, and that many of the colonists never earned enough to repay the money and provisions that had been advanced to them. Coming, as most of them did, from the densely populated portions of Germany, where agricultural labour is almost entirely performed by hand, and where labour-saving machines are nearly unknown, they are not well adapted for developing the agricultural and other resources of this country. Brazilian habits of listlessness and indolence, aided, as their example is, by the warm and enervating climate, have also a powerful effect in retarding the rapid development of a country whose resources seem to me to be almost boundless. Hence it is that with a climate and soil adapted to all our American vegetables, even farmers, or fazendeiros, as they are called here, eat onions and garlic brought from Portugal, potatoes from Germany and America, butter from Ireland, and bread, when bread is used at all, made of flour from America. Milk is scarcely ever seen where meadows of the richest grass are at the very door, and cheese is brought from Europe. God has indeed done much for Brazil, but man has done, and is willing to do, but very little. Even the building of the road spoken of above, was, by high officers of government, called a useless waste of money, as "the old road," on which mules would sometimes be almost suffocated in the mud, "was good enough for all purposes."

Educational and religious Matters—An inviting field for a Minister of the Gospel.

The company, and particularly the director of the colony, Mr. Kufa, take an interest in the moral and intellectual improvement of the colonists, thus, in a great measure, dependent on them. Probably half the members of the colony are Roman Catholics, whilst the others are Protestants. The company have therefore employed two school-teachers, one of each denomination, to instruct the children. They have also erected two tolerably large and commodious schoolhouses. They had also made efforts to secure the services of a Protestant German minister, but had met with so many hinderances that they determined to make no more efforts. The Roman Catholics attend service, or mass, in a chapel in an adjacent village, where the services are conducted by a negro, and in a language of which few of them understand a word.

Of the private home-life, and of the moral character of these Germans, I know but little from actual observation, as the almost incessant rains during my stay at Juiz de Fora made it almost impossible to go any distance; but, from what I saw during the services I conducted, it seems to me that it would be difficult to find a field more inviting to a devoted minister preaching the gospel in its simplicity and purity. Many Roman Catholics were present to hear me preach, and they were as attentive, and engaged in all the services with as much devotion as any others. Even the Roman Catholic teacher was present in the morning, and made some effort to secure the attendance of quite a number of Roman Catholic children in the afternoon. Preach the gospel, and the common people among the German Roman Catholics will nearly all listen to it as readily as any other. It is the priests, and not the people, that are opposed to the truth. Where there are no priests the gospel has free course; but where these are found, they sway the minds of their followers with almost unlimited power, and will seldom hesitate about the means necessary to accomplish their ends. I was told of one case, where, through the priest or his influence, two missionaries sent out from Germany to minister to his countrymen in a certain place, had been removed from their sphere of influence by means of poison administered to them in their food. A third has lately been sent to the same place, and he is, by many, not expected to live long.

Difficulties to be encountered.

Among the more educated and intelligent class of Germans, I am sorry to say, the prospect is less encouraging. They are, so far as I had an opportunity of judging, all infidel or rationalistic in their belief. Mr. ——, one of the most intelligent Germans I ever met, thinks that all systems of religion, whether Jewish, Mohammedan, Pagan, or Christian, are equally good, since, as he says, all inculcate love to our neighbours; and that, if they refrain from evil, as far as our weak humanity will enable us to do, and do good to others, all men, of all religions, will be saved at last. Another very intelligent German with whom I spoke on the subject, considered Christ's sacrifice on the cross to be merely supplementary to our own merits, intended merely to atone for the weaknesses to which we, as men, are subject. I had no opportunity of visiting the colonists at their homes, but think that with them also it will require much and persevering effort, blessed by the enlightening influences of the Holy Spirit, before they will be enabled to see the real evil of sin, and the necessity of relying entirely upon Jesus for salvation. This difficulty is much increased, when we consider that acts which, in the United States, and in nearly all parts of Europe, are considered highly immoral and dishonourable, are here regarded as perfectly allowable, and are practised by the priests, almost without exception. Delicacy forbids me to speak more plainly of habits by which Paul so well describes the heathen in his Epistle to the Romans. All that he says is equally applicable here.

The People of the Country—"Do not forget us in your Prayers."

In regard to the Brazilians, I can as yet say but little. They have almost universally lost all confidence in the priests, except at death. Then their superstition gains the ascendancy, and, though they may not have attended mass for years, they will then call for extreme unction and the sacrament of the eucharist to be administered to them. But as religion as they see it exhibited in the lives of the priests and their mummeries is the only idea they have of Christianity, it is but natural to conclude that all religion is a farce, and, as a consequence, it is difficult to imagine a people more indifferent to eternal things than are these. They are absolutely "without God in the world," not only practically, but theoretically. Our only hope is in God. He is mighty, and can bring light out of darkness. The gospel, too, is mighty to the pulling down of the strongholds of Satan, and building upon its ruins the glorious kingdom of his Son. This is our hope; and though human instrumentality is weak, he can employ the weak things of this world to pull down the things that are mighty, and the things that have no strength to destroy those that exalt themselves against him.

Do not forget us in your prayers, but ask that we may have strength given unto us to labour on in the face of many difficulties, and faith to believe assuredly that the triumphs of the gospel shall extend even over this land, where crosses are so numerous, but the power of the cross is entirely unknown.

Yours in Christ,

F. J. C. Schneider.

MISCELLANY.

THE HEATHEN AT THE JUDGMENT.

A Presbyterian minister, addressing an audience in the city of New York, once said:

"When I contemplate the heathen as immortal, the subject swells into a magnitude beyond the range of imagination. Every one of them will be an angel or a devil, millions of ages after the funeral of this world. Each of them will experience happiness more than all in heaven have yet enjoyed, or misery more than all in hell have yet endured. To think of the perdition of one pagan soul, is enough to awaken the deepest sympathy of the whole human race. But to contemplate the ruin of the hundreds of millions now on the earth, whose numbers are to be renewed once in twenty or thirty years, what heart can fail to dissolve in grief, and vehemently cry out for help to God and man? The fashion of this world is passing away, the sign of the Son of Man will appear in heaven, and you and all the heathen nations will be before his bar. When I ask you if it will not appear of more importance to have converted a single pagan than to have amassed the treasures of the Indies? I behold one of those heathen brought along in chains to receive his doom, and looking down into an eternal lake of fire—'Ah me!' says he, 'and am I born to this?' He casts an eye of anguish on those who once composed these churches, and raises his piercing lamentations—'How could you see me perish? Why did you not send the gospel to me? Ah! you never felt the pains of damnation.'"

EXPENSES OF HEATHENISM.

Rev. J. J. Weitbrect, in his "Protestant Missions in Bengal, Illustrated," said:—"I once visited the Rajah of Burdwan, and found him sitting in his treasury. Fifty bags of money, containing 1000 rupees ($500) in each, were placed before him. 'What,' said I, 'are you doing with all this money?' He replied, 'It is for my gods.' 'How do you mean that?' I rejoined. 'One part is sent to Benares, where I have two fine temples on the river-side, and many priests who pray for me; another part goes to Juggernaut, and a third to Gaya.' Thus one native is spending £25,000, or $111,000 annually from his princely income upon idols and Brahmins."

How long would it require a similar liberality on the part of Christians to extend the purifying and elevating influences of the gospel throughout the world?

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

IN APRIL, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Troy—Park ch Troy 23 19; Waterford ch 241 04, mo con 72 14, Sab sch 32 82 for Siam mission. Pby of Albany—Albany 2d ch 199 59; Esperance ch 5; Carlisle ch 9. Pby of Mohawk—Oneida ch 1 583 78

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Ogdensburgh—Rossie ch 6; 1st Oswegatchie ch mo con 7 40. Pby of Genesee River—Warsaw ch 15; Bath ch 7 50. Pby of Rochester City—Phelps ch Sab sch 35; 1st ch Rochester 6 50 77 40

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Hudson—White Lake ch 4; Hamptonburgh ch 16 80; Centreville ch 10; Goodwill ch 70; Goshen ch 148 23. Pby of Bedford—Bedford ch mo con 78; Croton Falls ch 10; Red Mills ch 5; South Salem ch, ann'l coll 100 75, mo con 59 50, Sab sch 10. Pby of New York—Forty-second street ch mo con 17 53, Sab sch 50, first earnings of a youth 1 12; Fifteenth street ch mo con 16 23; University Place ch mo con 112 90; Madison Avenue ch mo con 21, Sab sch 8 53; First ch mo con 160 21; Chelsea ch mo con 18; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch, ann'l coll, add'l 2725, mo con 37 02, Mission chapel 3 93; Greenbush ch Sab sch 10; Brick ch mo con 34 31; Nyack ch, N. Y. 15; Grand street ch 80; Jersey City First ch 548. Pby of New York 2d—Canal street ch mo con 12; Peekskill ch 36, less Record 15, Sab sch Miss'y Association, to cons URIAH HILL L M, 23; Sing Sing ch mo con 25. Pby of Connecticut—Rye ch 3 97. Pby of Nassau—Astoria ch mo con 19 63; Williamsburg ch mo con 36 76; 1st ch Brooklyn mo con 30, Sab sch for Corisco mission 100; Lawrence street ch Brooklyn 4; Miscellaneous 124 25 4770 67

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—First ch Plainfield, mo con 16 13; Liberty Corner ch 25; First ch Woodbridge 67. Pby of Passaic—Third ch Newark, mo con 28 77, Sab sch 7 30; First ch Paterson, mo con 22 08; First ch Morristown 156; Mount Freedom ch 20. Pby of New Brunswick—First ch New Brunswick 32 19; First ch Princeton 158; 2d ch Cranberry, to cons JOHN S DAVISON L M, 30, Sab sch, for school in Shanghai, 17; Dutch Neck ch 25, contents of M A D mission box 5; Third ch Trenton, Sab sch, for Miss Beattie's school in India 25. Pby of West Jersey—Greenwich ch 30; Absecom ch 2; Bridgeton First ch Sab sch 50; Williamstown ch 12; Fislerville ch 5; Swedesborough ch 4; Cedarville ch Female Miss'y Soc'y 18; Deerfield ch 30 65, of which Deerfield Sab sch 3 50, and Centre Sab sch 2 50. Pby of Newton—Musconetcong Valley ch 20; Mansfield First ch 72 41; Yellow Frame ch 32 15; Marksboro' ch 16 28; Bloomsbury ch 9 50; Stillwater ch 30; Swartswood ch 3; Fox Hill ch 5; Ashbury ch 10; Pleasant Grove ch 10. Pby of Raritan—Flemington ch 140 40; Milford ch 13. Pby of Luzerne—Summit Hill ch Sab school 5. Pby of Burlington—Rev John P Robins 25; 1st ch Camden, Sab sch 68 03, of which 50 to educate two Chinese boys; Squan Village ch 5. Pby of Monmouth—Tennent ch 11 50; Millstone ch 10; Village ch Freehold 85 1357 39

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—Moyamensing ch and Pascal Sab schools 70, for Canton and Ningpo schools; Tenth ch Phila. mo con 74; "W D B" 25; Fourth ch Phila. 50; Union ch and Sab sch 50, of which 30 to cons Rev ROBERT GAMBLE L M. Pby of Philadelphia Central—West Arch Street ch mo con 66 22; North ch Philadelphia, Sab schools, towards sup of Rev Dr Happer in China 100. Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Easton 1st ch 100; First ch Slatington, to cons Rev ROBERT McDOWELL L M 10. Pby of New Castle—Oxford ch bal 4. Pby of Donegal—Lancaster ch 21 62. Pby of Huntingdon—Logan's Valley ch 20 42; Huntingdon ch 160; Alexandria ch 57 25; half Presbyterial collection 13 50. Pby of Northumberland—Muncy ch Sab sch 12; Nippenose ch 5; Derry ch Female Missionary Society, to cons Miss HANNAH PATTERSON L M 30; Washingtonville ch, a bequest of Miss Nancy Robison, dec'd, 50 919 01

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.—Pby of Baltimore—Central ch Baltimore 139 16; Franklin street ch Baltimore 39 61; J H B 50; Second ch Baltimore 48; Broadway ch Baltimore 31; Fourth ch Baltimore 10; Govane chapel 15. Pby of Carlisle—Upper ch 3 25; Landisburgh ch 6 50; Mechanicsburg ch 35 377 52

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Redstone—George's Creek ch 10 86; Dunlap's Creek and New Salem chs 26; Brownsville ch 20 25, of which 5 50 from Sab sch, and 5 from Mrs R M Wallace; New Providence ch 18; Morgantown ch 54. Pby of Ohio—Centre ch Fem Benev Soc'y 18; Racoon ch 41, of which 5 from Sab school; 2d ch Pittsburgh, ann coll 245 45, mo con 10 11; Central ch Pittsburgh, mo con 38 46; 4th ch Pittsburgh, to ed a boy (Samuel Fulton) in India, 30; Bethel ch Ladies' Miss'y Assoc'n 50; East Liberty ch add'l 89 65, of which mo con 33 54, Sab sch 24 77, Tommy's box 2, Fanny Ward's box 34 cts; Sharon ch 35; Valley ch 15 25; Miller's Run ch 12. Pby of Blairsville—Salem ch 18; Congruity ch mo con 20 47. Pby of Clarion—Bethesda ch Ladies' Miss'y Soc'y 10; Brookville ch 13; Clarion ch 22. Pby of Saltsburgh—Leechburg ch 32; Gilgal and Marion chs Miss'y Soc'y 23, Sab sch 7; Glade Run ch Barnard Sab sch 2 58 862 08

SYNOD OF ALLEGHANY.—Pby of Alleghany—Middlesex ch 9; Centreville ch, Ladies' Miss'y Soc'y 25; Muddy Creek ch Sab sch 1 25. Pby of Erie—Mercer ch, J D Moore 1. Pby of Alleghany City—Sewickley ch 139 88, Sab sch 13 96; Central ch Alleghany City 62 56; Manchester ch 34 50; 1st ch Alleghany City 287 20, of which Sab sch and Bible class 52 75, and for North American Indians 45; Fairmount ch 13 86; Freedom ch 65 cts; Manchester German ch 1 20 590 06

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—Washington ch, Young Ladies' Miss'y Assoc'n 15 25. Pby of Steubenville—Harlem ch 8 60. Pby of New Lisbon—Newton ch 7 50; Peland ch 12 20; Bethel ch 18. Pby of St. Clairsville—Crab Apple ch 70 131 55

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Columbus—Lancaster ch 8. Pby of Marion—Kingston ch 6; Pisgah ch 6; Brown ch 7 50; Mount Gilead ch, Rev W B Faris 1, Sab sch 1. Pby of Zanesville—Newark ch Sab sch 10; Mount Zion and Hopewell chs 5; Cross Roads ch 1 50; McConnellsville ch 13 50. Pby of Richland—Martinsburg ch 14; Mount Pleasant ch 6; Ashland ch 11 50. Pby of Wooster—Jeromeville ch 6 25; Congress ch 7 87. Pby of Coshocton—Keene ch 5; Coshocton ch 25, of which 8 from Sab sch 135 12

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.—Pby of Michigan—Bennington ch 2. Pby of Western Reserve—Lafayette ch, John Lee 5; Northfield ch 20. Pby of Findlay—Findlay ch 42 40, of which 1 from three children of a family; Johnstown ch 4; Forest ch 3 76 40

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Chillicothe—Bloomingburgh ch 36 50, and Concord ch 22 20, towards support of Rev R S Fullerton; First ch Cincinnati, Ladies' For Miss Soc 124; 7th ch Cincinnati, Sab sch 14 38, Ladies' Miss'y Soc'y 150; Reading ch 14 361 08

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of Indianapolis—Bethany ch 5 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Logansport—Lafayette ch 8. Pby of Lake—Constantine ch 16 81, of which 12 50 to ed heathen boy. Pby of Fort Wayne—Liberty ch 3 35; Swan ch 4. Pby of Crawfordsville—Covington ch Sab sch 3 35 16

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Palestine—Palestine ch 5. Pby of Sangamon—3d Springfield ch Sab sch, for schools in Canton 15. Pby of Bloomington—Clinton ch 10; Waynesville ch Sab sch 1 72 31 72

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.—Pby of Schuyler—Carthage ch, Peter McBride 10, Mary McBride 1. Pby of Chicago—Centre ch 2; Marengo ch Sab sch 2 15 00

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.—Pby of Dane—German ch Hazel Green 1 20. Pby of Winnebago—Fond du Lac ch 16; Plover and Stevens Point ch 3 38 20 58

SYNOD OF ST. PAUL.—Pby of Chippewa—Black River Falls ch Sab sch 2; Rochester ch 1 75 3 75

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Cedar—Walcott ch 3; Blue Grass ch 3 60 6 60

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.—Pby of Iowa—Middletown ch 4. Pby of Omaha—Nebraska City ch 1 30. Pby of Fairfield—Libertyville ch, "J C" 1; Shiloh ch 2 8 30

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.—Pby of St. Louis—Second ch Sab sch, to sup of Rev H V Rankin, Ningpo 200 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.—Pby of Louisville—Second ch Louisville, mo con 18 15; First ch Louisville, mo con 13 40; Cloverport ch 6 80; Shelbyville ch, bal 5 75, mo con 14. Pby of Transylvania—Columbia ch 14. Pby of Ebenezer—Ashland ch 16 21; Flemingsburgh ch 6 95; Washington ch 40, Sab sch to support of Rev C W Forman, India, 11 50; Maysliek ch 7 50; Elizaville ch Sab sch 3; Carlisle ch, "Ezra How" 1 158 26

Total received from churches, $10,726 43

LEGACIES.—Estate of Mrs Cath Haight, dec'd, Bedford, per Rev P B Heroy, 637; Estate of Mrs. Beatty, dec'd, Trenton, 50, less expenses 50 cts; Estate of James Torbert, dec'd, Ohio, 575; Estate of Alexander Russell, dec'd, Ohio, 42 50; Patterson Estate 33 33 1337 33

SEMINARIES.—Princeton Seminary, Religious Contribution Society 40 00

MISCELLANEOUS.—Mrs Hannah Ireland, N. Y. 25, for Theological School, Geneva 10; Eliza Laughlin 20; Aitchison Laughlin 10; Nancy Laughlin 5; Col G Loomis 5; A Friend 35; George R Stuart, for press in China 100; Clinton ch, Phila. 20; Mrs Louisa Smith 2; Mrs J B Smith 2; Rev M R Miller 3; Miss M J Stewart's Sab school class of little boys, Brookville, Pa. 1: Mrs Sarah T Tyers 26; A Friend in Beloit, Wis., for Colportage in France or Switzerland 30; A Young Man of Cincinnati, for Evang Soc'y of Geneva 15 50; George A Craker, Chippewa Mission 25; "W E M" 58; Francis Dodd 5; A Friend in Brazil 450; Two Friends in Brazil 12; A Friend 6; James Russel, North Jackson, O. 35; Glen's Falls 1st ch N. Y., Sab sch, for school in Shanghai 45; Prof A Guyot, Princeton, N. J. 20; "A M S" 50; Fam Sab Offering for Japan 32 31; R Darby, Georgetown, D. C. 10; A Friend 5000; John Anderson, Scrub Grass, Pa. 2 50; M C L 200; Robert Creighton, Phila. 20; A Friend 20; Mrs L Westcott, McEwensville, Pa. 5; Wm M Glenn, Newville, Pa. 10; Wm O Robinson, Marshall, O. 10; A Widow, 1; J P Edie and Family, Sioux City, Iowa 3; Dying Gift of little Willie C Stewart 1; Sundries 50 6380 31

Total Receipts in April, 1862, $18,484 07

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., or Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, Jr., Esq., Treasurer—same address.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY—Two editions of this publication are printed. The Pamphlet Edition contains 32 pages, and is published monthly, at 50 cents a year for each copy. It is sent free, when desired, to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to the ministers of our churches.

The Newspaper Edition contains a selected portion of the contents of the pamphlet edition. A copy is sent free of charge, except for postage, to the children of each family in every Sabbath School making regular contributions to the Treasury of the Board.

Address for either edition, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—

Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D. D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 910 Arch street;
Pittsburg, Pa., Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky., Andrew Davidson;
Memphis, Tenn., J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Mo., David Keith;
Natchez, Miss., Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Va., Henry C Watkins;
Columbia, S C., H. C. Bronson;
Augusta, Geo., James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board, and should be preceded, or accompanied by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

OVERLAND MAIL.—Letters for the Overland Mail are forwarded from the Mission House by the steamers nearest the first and fifteenth of each month. Postage: from New York, to SIAM, CHINA, JAPAN, and BRAZIL, forty-five cents for each half ounce weight; but if sent by the French mail, thirty cents for each quarter ounce weight to LIBERIA and CORISCO, thirty-three cents for each half ounce weight to INDIA, via Southampton, thirty six cents for each half ounce weight; via Marseilles, forty-two cents for a quarter ounce weight; forty-nine cents for a half ounce weight, sixty-seven for three-quarter ounce weight, seventy-four for an ounce weight, a dollar and five cents for an ounce and a half weight. Letters to be forwarded by the "French mail," or to India "via Marseilles," must be so marked. Postage on newspapers, six cents each. The postage on letters and newspapers must be prepaid. The letters forwarded from the Mission House to each Mission are put in an outside envelope, and therefore stamps should not be affixed to them. The postage is assessed according to the weight of each letter, and may be paid by sending postage stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the Payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,
No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of Colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record and Sabbath-school Visitor, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., Corresponding Secretary, No. 821 Chestnut street.

All communications, reports, remittances of money, and orders for books, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage, and Business Correspondent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to Rev. W. M. Engles, D. D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to James Dunlap, Esq., Treasurer.

THE WORK IN TENNESSEE.

Nashville, Tennessee, April, 1862.

Dr. Wm. E. Schenck:

Rev. and Dear Sir—I brought with me here about 250,000 pages of our tracts, and 2000 Soldier's Pocket-Books, all selected and arranged in packages of 10,000 pages, and from 100 to 200 Pocket-books to the package.

I am sorry to have it to say, but I find here the most alarming destitution I have yet met with since I have been labouring among the soldiers.

There are thirteen hospitals here, and not less than 5000 sick and convalescent. In one house there are 2500 convalescent, and some have been in these hospitals for a month; and yet I have not found that any religious matter has been distributed among them, and there is not a post-chaplain in the city.

Many of the resident ministers have left the city, and those now here have burdensome charges of their own; and these perishing thousands, suffering under the hand of God in affliction, pass in rapid succession through these hospitals, and there is no one to say for the Master, "Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest." "Behold the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world." But Dr. Swift, Assistant Medical Director, United States Army, in charge here, kindly promises me to forward my petition for four post-chaplains to be detailed to this field with his approval.

In the three days I have been here I am rejoiced to be able to say, that I have found earnest and trusty Christian men and women, who have promised me to distribute my reading matter (messages of God's saving truth) to these sick and suffering men, and we have divided out the work among them, to each his or her hospital; and the work, by many pious hands, has already commenced. And as it is generally understood that this place is to be a very important hospital depot for the western army while south of us, here will be a very large and permanent field for Christian effort. And when we consider that these men do not remain longer than from three to thirty days in hospitals and barracks, how vast are the numbers whose souls are to be cared for! how short the time! and how prompt must be the effort! Oh! how I shudder at the thought of the responsibility which seems to rest upon my poor efforts!

The other day I took a Christian friend of this city with me, and about 10,000 pages of tracts and 100 volumes, and visited the convalescent barracks with 2500 men in it. I cannot picture to you the scene of 2500 half-sick, idle, loitering, lounging men, wholly unemployed, and wholly uninterested, lying, sitting, and loitering about en masse within the great building they occupy. But when they learned that we had something for them to read, we were at once surrounded, and so pressed that it was positively uncomfortable; and a little after, men could be seen in large numbers lying upon their cots, sitting in rows upon the sides of the streets, attentively perusing the few pages they had been able to get.

A few professing Christians came to us and expressed their joy at our visit; while many others said they were not Christians, but had not a thing there to interest them, and were glad to get something to read. The "Pocket-book" was eagerly sought after, (as it always is,) because it was a book, and a nice little book. I feel that I can scarcely conceive of men being placed in circumstances more favourable for Christian effort than these; and yet not a tract had been distributed, and not a sermon had been preached to them. I have been pleading with a brother here, whose soul is awakened by these things, both to preach to them himself, and to see that others do so, if possible.

How sad I have felt as I have met with so many intelligent young men, those who came out of intelligent, pious families, the Sabbath-school, and the house of God, yet so destitute—the mind and soul so utterly destitute!

My dear sir, I trust the Board will do all in their power to supply me for my work, and, God helping me, I will go forward. I will return home to-morrow to attend Presbytery and see my family, and will write, while there, to Mr. Sargent about our books in this state.

P. S. All I brought here will be speedily used in these hospitals. I understand, from chaplains whom I have met with, that their own regiments have had nothing since I supplied them months ago; and I am persuaded that the troops generally in Tennessee now are destitute of religious reading.

Yours truly, M. G. K.

THE PRISONERS AT INDIANAPOLIS.

In The Presbyterian of April 12th we find an interesting letter from the pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Indianapolis, Indiana, from which we make the following extract.

"The excellent District Superintendent of Colportage for the Board of Publication has been among us for a week, labouring among the more than four thousand prisoners at Camp Morton, distributing tracts, and conversing with many of them personally on religious subjects. The pastors of the city had been trying to do something for the spiritual good of these men, many of whom have been sick and dying in our hospitals, but it is better to have our random and occasional efforts give place to Mr. Shields' more systematic labours. He confirms the impression I had received from a few visits to the camp, of the great avidity with which religious reading is sought for, both by the prisoners and their guards. We have been completely surrounded by men's hands outstretched for tracts, and they are read, and taken care of for a second, and even third reading. The Soldier's Pocket-Book is a special favourite, notwithstanding the national sentiments upon its first page. Our own soldiers are all delighted with it. A short time before the battle of Donelson, Mr. James M. Ray, who has felt much interest in its distribution, gave a copy of the Pocket-Book, and of Cromwell's Bible, to Mr. B. K. Logan, of the 52d Indiana regiment, (a brother of the Rev. S. C. Logan of Valparaiso.) Mr. Logan slipped them in his breast pocket, and was so pleased with them that he kept them there. His regiment was one of Lauman's brigade, in Smith's division, the brigade whose successful assault on the enemy's entrenchments secured the surrender of the fort. In the charge, after firing eleven shots, Mr. Logan was himself struck and knocked down by a ball, which would have entered his heart but for those little books. This city has been a large military camp for a year. We have seen thousands of our brave Indiana soldiers here, and so have been led, in some degree, to realize the immense value of all those agencies which look to their religious good. Among them we are proud to recognise the very useful issues of our own Board of Publication. That Board has probably never done so important a work as during the past year. You, who nursed it through a feeble infancy, must greatly rejoice in the vigour of its maturity."

THE COLPORTEUR IN THE HOSPITAL.

Cairo, Illinois, April, 1862.

Rev. Dr. Schenck, Cor. Sec. &c.

Dear Sir—Having distributed in camps and hospitals up the Tennessee river all the stock I was able to take with me, and made arrangements for sending more in that direction as circumstances may require, I returned to this place, where, for the past few days, I have been labouring on transports bound up the Tennessee river, on boats bringing down our wounded, and among the sick in hospitals. The Mound City Hospital, containing at this time more than fifteen hundred sick and wounded inmates, has been again supplied with the ever-acceptable and invaluable publications of our own Board, and many thanks for such kind attentions to their spiritual wants have ascended from couches on which are stretched the helpless sick and suffering. I think I have visited and distributed books and tracts upon every government transport which has landed at Cairo since my return, and, wherever it was possible, I have had plain personal conversation with the sick, the wounded, and the well. I bless God that the seed does not all appear to be sown upon hard and stony ground. If God has not been with us—if the Spirit has not been doing his convincing and converting work—I know but little of his manifestations. "If God should call you away, are you prepared to die?" is a question I often ask, and, "No—but oh that I was!" is often the reply, uttered with a tearful eye and a quivering lip. And then I try to tell of Him who invites those who labour and are heavy-laden to his extended arms. That they will earnestly seek until they find Him, is often promised. God grant that this goodness may not be "as the early cloud and the morning dew!"

One of the wounded, a man somewhat advanced in years, has been for some time a follower of Christ, and has tried to serve him in the camp. When struck by a ball, in the leaden storm of that awful Sabbath at Pittsburg Landing, he was looking for protection to his Heavenly Father. His prayer was heard, and his life was spared. Would that hundreds had thus prayed!

On the lower deck of the same steamer, surrounded by wounded Union soldiers, lay a son of General Houston, of Texas. Badly, but not fatally wounded, he was taken prisoner at Pittsburg Landing. He is a sprightly and intelligent young man, of about eighteen years of age, in features closely resembling his father, as I knew him some fifteen years ago. He shows a Bible—the parting gift of a Christian mother—through which a Federal bullet had nearly passed. I spent some time in plain religious conversation with him. He told me that he had been religiously trained; that a praying mother had often directed him to the Saviour; that in camp he had habitually read his Bible, and led a life of external morality. He knew, he said, that something more was needed; that the present was the only accepted time; and that he should seek his Saviour without delay. I urged him to go back to his mother—when he did return—an earnest Christian, a faithful follower of Christ; and I cannot believe that all the serious impressions of that half-hour will be forgotten.

In the building formerly used as a hotel, and known as the "Lamothe House," I find fifty or sixty sick—very sick—secession prisoners from Island Number 10. I was the first visitor that crossed their threshold, and oh how grateful they were for kind words, religious talk, and religious reading! I gave religious reading to every one, and had practical religious conversation with every sick man there. Some were earnest Christians. Some, who had run well for a season, and then ceased to follow the Master, promised to pray for grace and strength to enable them to live near to him hereafter; and many promised to attend at once to the great matter of preparation to meet God in peace, through repentance towards him, and faith in Jesus Christ. Here three Romanists asked for my books and tracts, and they came to do so in this wise: I saw they were Irishmen, and said, "You are Catholics, I suppose." "Yes—we are Catholics." "Well," I replied, "we will not quarrel about names. It is enough if we truly love and follow the Lord Jesus Christ." I talked with them about their families, and distant homes, and soon they asked for my books, and tracts, and papers, and were left reading them attentively. These men were in a sad condition for want of suitable food, clothing, and bedding. I was enabled so to interest several ladies in their behalf, that the next morning their wants were fully met.

In the Post Hospital I have had religious conversation with every inmate. There is manifestly great tenderness of feeling, and much earnest attention to religious matters. Tearful eyes were not uncommon things on my last visit. Sometimes, when tired and faint, and sick, I think, "Now, I will pass this man by with the simple presentation of a tract;" and then the poor man looks up so sadly, so reproachfully, and seems to say, "Have you no word for me?" that I sit at his bedside and talk to him of Jesus. I have concluded to pass none by on such visits, if I only finish a ward a day. Entering one of the wards, I saw a sick soldier stretched on his cot, near the door, and much absorbed in reading his "Soldier's Pocket-Book." To me it was a pleasant sight. "What book have you, my friend?" I asked. "A little book given me by an elderly gentleman some time ago," said he. "Is it a good book?" I inquired. "Indeed it is," he responded; "it has been a precious book to me." I told him it came from me, and received a shower of thanks. How many instances of good accomplished in this way will be disclosed when the secrets of this world shall be revealed! And then, oh how amply shall we all feel repaid for the money and labour we have given to this work! Would that I could ask every church, every Christian in the land, "What are you doing for so great and good a work? Ought you not to do something—what you can—for it?"

Yours truly, W.

THE FLOATING HOSPITAL.

On board the Floating Hospital
Daniel Webster, New York, May, 1862.

Rev. W. E. Schenck, D. D.

Dear Sir—The Floating Hospital "Daniel Webster," under the auspices of the Sanitary Commission, has just arrived at this port from Yorktown, Va., which point she left at ten o'clock, A. M., on last Monday, with one hundred and eighty-seven sick and wounded soldiers from General McClellan's army.

To every convalescent, I have given a copy of the "Soldier's Pocket-Book" and some tracts; and to those able to read, but unable to sit up, I gave a card copy of the "Sinner's Resolve." I also distributed about thirty copies of the "Sick Room Devotions," and the same number of "Way of Salvation." They were greedily received by all, a large proportion being Roman Catholics, and read with great eagerness. Many of the men said they had not seen a book or paper for several months before. A good many came to me a second time for more, saying they had read those I had already given. Others asked me to write their names in their books for them, saying they would keep them as mementos of the kindness received on board the Daniel Webster. We had four deaths during the voyage, from pneumonia and typhoid fever. These were extremely critical cases on coming on board, and were unconscious all the time.

I have become very much interested in some of the sufferers. May the Lord be pleased to acknowledge this humble work. During the passage of the vessel from Yorktown, I have been about two-thirds of the time on active duty, and am now in much need of rest. The vessel will return again, as soon as possible, for another cargo. The duties connected with the position are exceedingly trying, and disagreeable in the extreme, yet I will endeavour to perform them with cheerfulness and tenderness.

Yours truly, R.

Donations received for General Colportage, and for the Soldiers and Sailors, by the Presbyterian Board of Publication, during the month of April, 1862.

Pby of Albany—Carlisle ch	5 00
Pby of Mohawk—Westminster ch Utica	14 11
Pby of Ogdensburg—Oswegatchie 1st ch	34 25
Pby of Michigan—Plymouth 1st ch	6 00
Pby of Hudson—Middletown ch 7 21; Hamptonburg ch 27 50	34 71
Pby of North River—Marlboro' ch 9; Middle Hope ch 4; Bethlehem church 18 for soldiers; Matteawan ch 50; Rondout ch 20	101 00
Pby of Bedford—North Salem ch 5; Mt Kisco ch 5; South Salem ch 10	20 00
Pby of Connecticut—Rye ch	30 52
Pby of Nassau—Williamsburg 1st ch	32 75
Pby of Passaic—Mt. Freedom ch	10 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Hamilton Square ch 5; Religious Contribution Society of Theological Seminary, Princeton 24 50	29 50
Pby of West Jersey—Greenwich ch	26 00
Pby of Newton—Hackettstown ch 15; Blairstown ch 12; Asbury ch 3; Mansfield 1st ch 5; Stewartsville ch 24 05	59 05
Pby of Susquehanna—Towanda ch	19 00
Pby of Philadelphia—Tenth ch Sab sch 55 33; R Creighton, Esq. 5; Ridley ch 4	64 33
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Easton 1st ch	10 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Hollidaysburg ch 70; Clearfield ch 10 25	80 25
Pby of Northumberland—Milton ch	20 00
Pby of Baltimore—Govane chapel 4; Baltimore 2d ch 23 86	27 86
Pby of Carlisle—Harrisburg ch, Dr John Curwen 20; Upper ch 75 cents	20 75
Pby of Redstone—Morgantown ch	12 00
Pby of Beaver—New Castle ch	10 00
Pby of Washington—Claysville ch	1 00
Pby of Steubenville—Corinth ch 3 50; Monroeville ch 1; New Hagerstown ch 8	12 50
Pby of Marion—Mount Gilead ch	14 00
Pby of Chillicothe—Union ch	3 67
Pby of Cincinnati—Cincinnati 1st ch add'l	1 00
Pby of Indianapolis—Indianapolis 3d ch	16 00
Pby of White Water—Union ch	5 25
Pby of Logansport—Delphi ch 16; Lexington ch 4; Logansport ch 6	26 00
Pby of Lake—Constantine ch	3 00
Pby of Fort Wayne—Fort Wayne 1st ch	32 00
Pby of Crawfordsville—Terre Haute ch	4 00
Pby of Bloomington—Heyworth ch	4 10
Pby of Schuyler—Carthage ch, Peter McBride 10, Horatio McBride 1 30	11 30
Pby of Cedar—Sugar Creek ch	2 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mrs Sarah C Woolsey and her son Wm H, Andover, Ill. 1; Miss Jane E Thompson 5; Rev H Parry, Windsor, Mass. 60; Jonathan D Steele, N. Y. 10; "A M S" 20; Charles Leslie Ray, Indianapolis 1; "Anonymous" 10; A Choate, Derry, N. H. 5; Rev H Chapin, Owatonna 1; W S Gilman, Esq., for himself 50, and his friend 25; A Widow, per John D Thorpe, 1; Legacy of David Lee, late of Cincinnati, Ohio 813 47	1062 47
[Rev S Cowles 1, omitted in January Receipts]	1810 37

Donations received for the Distribution Fund of the Presbyterian Board of Publication during the month of April, 1862.

Special Donations for Sailors and Soldiers.

"Anonymous," Rosevale, 5; A Lady of West Arch Street ch, Phila 5; A Gentleman in the Navy 5; Female Benevolent Society of Middle Octorara ch, for Soldiers 30 87; L M Washburn, Lockport, Pa. 4; Liberty Corner ch, Elizabethtown Pby, Rev J T English 10; Sab sch class of the South Presbyterian ch, Phila, 2 15; Mrs S A Moore, Newry, Pa. 2; Rev Charles Thayer, Prescott, Wis. 20; T M P, Bellefonte, Pa. 5; Mrs M L N, Bloomsburg, Pa. 5; Capt E K Lehman 25 cts; Major A B Wingart 25 cts; Capt George Flora 25 cts; Wm G McClellan 4 25, from Upper Strasburg, Pa; Rev R Beer, per Dr Boardman, 6 50; M B M, Books for Seamen and Soldiers 2; Miss Jennie H Walk, for Miss Wilson's Female school 1 11, Mrs Stoner's Female school 1 26, Mr Echart's Boys' sch 71 cts, her own Primary school add'l 28 cts, Chambersburg, Pa.; Maria B Boyd, Lima, Ohio 1; Jn J A, Stapleton, N. Y. 1; "Mrs M" of Maryland 4; "Binghampton" 6; "H," West Newton, Pa. 5; Miss C W Stewart, Colerain Forge, Pa. 3 43; H W London, Kingston, Pa. 1; S S Moore, Petersburg, Ill. 5; "A Friend," Pittsburg, Pa. 15; Miss O J Converse, Mass. 1; "Anonymous, E," New York 1 — 154 31

Total, $1964 68

Amount of Sales during the month of April 3187 32

Total, $5152 00

JAMES DUNLAP, Treasurer.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. H. I. Coe.
Treasurer—Archibald Gamble, Esq.
No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Missouri.

SEVENTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

In presenting our Seventh Annual Statement to the General Assembly, we are compelled to report that the work of Church Extension has shared largely in the disasters of the country. As compared with the previous year, the receipts for the last twelve months have fallen off forty-six per cent., the number of applications forty-four per cent., and of appropriations twenty-seven per cent. While these not unexpected results are to be deplored, there are not wanting facts full of encouragement. The simple fact, that the work of church building, from its very nature peculiarly susceptible to the paralyzing influences of civil war, has suffered no more in the midst of our tremendous struggle, clearly indicates its necessity, and the permanent value of the Church Extension scheme.

Again, though nearly one-third of the churches enrolled on the minutes of the last General Assembly have this year refrained from supporting its enterprises, the number of giving churches named in the usual statement of receipts herewith submitted, is four hundred and eight, being within twenty-six per cent. of last year, while the amount contributed by churches falls short less than twenty per cent.

Indeed, if the decrease in the contributions for the Children's Church, and in legacies, be taken into the account, the receipts from the other and less fluctuating sources are somewhat in advance of the previous year.

In presenting, therefore, the usual details of our work during the last twelve months, we feel that we have abundant reason to thank God, and take courage.

APPLICATIONS.

The number of applications for aid put on file from April 1, 1861, to April 1, 1862, was sixty-nine. These applications were from churches in the bounds of twenty-three Synods, forty-three Presbyteries, and twenty-one states and territories. These sixty-nine churches ask for aid amounting in the aggregate to $24,572.45, averaging $356.12 each.

Besides these new applications filed during the year, there were on file and undisposed of, April 1, 1861, ninety-four applications, calling for $36,116.75. The Board therefore, had before them, during the twelve months under review, one hundred and sixty-three applications, asking for $60,689.20.

During the year, thirty-five applications, calling for $14,400 were stricken from the file, because the requisite information had not been furnished in the two years allowed for that purpose.

There remained on file, and undisposed of, April 1, 1862, applications from sixty-one churches, calling for $24,991.75.

APPROPRIATIONS.

During the year ending April 1, 1862, appropriations, amounting to $13,866.10, were made to fifty-five churches, in the bounds of twenty Synods, thirty-nine Presbyteries, and seventeen states and territories. The average amount appropriated to each of these fifty-five churches was $252.11, or leaving out of view the special donations, $172.58.

Appropriations from the general fund, amounting to 1,550, were during the year withdrawn from five churches, to two of whom, however, new appropriations were soon after made.

The names and localities of all these churches may be found in the appendix to this report.

From April 1, 1861, to April 1, 1862, fifty-eight churches received their appropriations. The amount paid on their account was $17,777.45.

In view of the peculiar state of public affairs, the Board during the year refrained from anticipating its income, and made no appropriations until the funds were in the treasury to meet them.

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES.

The appropriated balance in the treasury, April 1, 1861, was $13,874.55. The receipts during the year were $17,064.17, of which sum $11,177.40 was from churches. The available means of the year were, therefore, $30,938.72.

The expenditures of the year, as shown by the treasurer's statement in the appendix, were $20,182.43. The balance in the treasury, April 1, 1862, was, consequently, $10,756.29 There were, however, unpaid at that time appropriations amounting to $10,060.48, leaving as the unappropriated balance, April 1, 1862, $695.81. This sum, though contributed during the fiscal year, was not reported to us until after its close, and was appropriated soon after its receipt was known.

COST OF CHURCH EDIFICES.

Remembering that the Board was created to aid feeble churches in new and destitute regions, we have continued to use our influence in favour of economy in church building. Since the organization of the Board, July, 1855, appropriations have been made to four hundred and forty-seven different churches. Of these, sixty-one were aided by special appropriations, for which the Board took no responsibility. As nearly as can be ascertained, the remaining three hundred and eighty-six churches cost $761,577, or $1,973 apiece.

When the average cost of materials during the last seven years, the vast expanse of country over which the funds were disbursed, and the peculiarly heavy outlay for building required in those prairie regions where the larger part of the work has been performed, are considered, no reasonable man will regard $1,973 as an extravagant average for the cost of the churches assisted by the Board.

A number of churches, whose cost was far above the average, have indeed been aided, but these were either cases in which a small gift from the Board was necessary to save large previous expenditures by the congregations themselves, or in which donors took the responsibility of designating such churches as the recipients of their gifts. If the special donations we did not control be left out of view, the average cost of the churches aided by the Board during the year was $1,127.90.

THE CHILDREN'S CHURCH.

At the time of our last annual report, we confidently expected to be able to report to the present General Assembly that the Children's Church at St. Anne was completed. This expectation has not been realized. Causes we could neither foresee nor guard against, have greatly delayed the work and increased its cost. We pushed forward the building as rapidly as we could until the month of September last. Then, finding that the funds contributed for that church were more than exhausted, that our appeals for aid were but scantily responded to, and that the very peculiar state of things at St. Anne rendered it impossible to ascertain what it would cost to finish the structure, we reluctantly suspended work until more propitious times. We cherish the hope that God, who has moved so mysteriously in regard to the work among the French Canadians in Illinois, may soon open the way for the completion of this noble monument to the liberality of the children of our church.

We ought, perhaps, to add, that of the $1,450 received by the Board for this enterprise during the fiscal year under review, more than $800 was really contributed previous to April 1, 1861, though not paid over to the Board by the parties who had received it until some time after that date.

AMOUNT OF AID NEEDED.

In closing this report, we deem it not improper to submit a few facts respecting the amount of aid needed by our feeble churches. Twenty years ago, when the work of church extension lay almost wholly in those heavily timbered regions where log churches could be erected, and made to serve all necessary purposes, until congregations grew strong, one hundred dollars, to purchase nails, glass, and the few other cash articles needed, was a large amount of aid to be given, and in most cases was amply sufficient. This state of things no longer exists. The wave of population and of church destitution has rolled into those prairie regions where log buildings are almost unknown, and where nearly every article used in the construction of churches requires the outlay of money. Moreover, even in those localities where log cabins once answered every purpose, the increase of population, and the general change in the style of building, renders them now, in most cases, unsuitable.

Accordingly we find, that out of seven hundred and sixty-one applications filed since the organization of the Board, only one hundred and nine, or one-seventh, were for one hundred dollars or less; and that of the four hundred and forty-seven different churches encouraged by appropriations of the Board, three hundred and fifty-seven, or four-fifths, required more than one hundred dollars aid to enable them to complete their sanctuaries free from debt.

If it be further remembered that one hundred dollars is but about one-twentieth of the average cost of the churches seeking aid from the Board, it will appear still more clearly that a larger sum is requisite to meet their necessities. In most cases, more than double that amount must be given, unless the process of church erection is to be made unduly exhaustive to our feeble churches. While, therefore, we have always been hampered by inadequate receipts, and have ever felt bound to make the scanty means put at our disposal go as far as possible, the experience of seven years convinces us that the General Assembly ought not to expect the five hundred houseless churches, still in its connection, to secure unincumbered sanctuaries with an average aid of less than two hundred or two hundred and fifty dollars.

By order of the Board,

W. H. Parks, President.

H. I. Coe, Secretary.

Donations received by the Board of Church Extension, during the month of April, 1862.

Pby of Albany—Carlisle ch	5 00
Pby of Troy—Cambridge ch	8 11
Pby of Mohawk—Oneida ch	3 00
Pby of Rochester City—Rochester 3d ch	86 60
Pby of North River—Marlboro' 8; Middle Hope 3 60	11 60
Pby of Bedford—South Salem ch 22, Sab sch 5; North Salem 5; South Greensburg, Dobbs' Ferry 15	47 00
Pby of New York—First ch 1889 28; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch 2795 07	4684 35
Pby of Long Island—Moriches ch 2; Amagansett ch 4	6 00
Pby of Elizabethtown—Woodbridge ch 15; Liberty Corner ch 6	21 00
Pby of Passaic—Mount Freedom ch	6 50
Pby of New Brunswick—Lawrence ch	51 25
Pby of Newton—Stillwater 1st ch	15 00
Pby of Raritan—Lambertville ch	10 00
Pby of West Jersey—Williamstown ch 3; Fislerville ch 2; Millville ch 3; Deerfield ch 3	11 00
Pby of Monmouth—Millstone ch 5; Manalapan ch 15	20 00
Pby of Philadelphia—Media and Middletown ch	5 00
Pby of Northumberland—Milton ch 20; Muncy ch 7	27 00
Pby of Baltimore—Govane chapel 3; Baltimore 2d ch 17 59	20 59
Pby of Carlisle—Dickinson ch 20; Upper ch 75 cents; Landisburg ch 1 50	22 25
Pby of Redstone—West Newton	12 00
Pby of Ohio—Fairview ch	1 00
Pby of Blairsville—Congruity ch 9 50; Blairsville ch 14; Unity ch 16	39 50
Pby of Steubenville—West Carlisle ch 13; Annapolis ch 2; Annapolis ch 2	17 00
Pby of Clarion—Clarion ch	3 00
Pby of Erie—Cool Spring ch	3 00
Pby of Allegheny—Butler ch	11 00

Pby of Allegheny City—Freedom ch 90 cents; Manchester German ch 1 20	2 10
Pby of New Lisbon—Deerfield ch	4 00
Pby of Zanesville—Coshocton ch	10 00
Pby of Michigan—Plymouth 1st ch	6 00
Pby of Crawfordsville—Terre Haute 1st ch	4 00
Pby of Logansport—Lexington ch	4 00
Pby of Lake—Constantine ch	4 00
Pby of Bloomington—Low Point ch 5; Metamora ch 2 25; Heyworth ch 5	12 25
Pby of Rock River—Dixon ch	5 00
Pby of Dubuque—Dubuque ch	10 00
Pby of Cedar—Walcott ch 2 20; Sugar Creek ch 2	4 20
Pby of Fairfield—Troy and Keosauqua chs	4 45
MISCELLANEOUS.
Rev J C Perry, Windsor, Mass. 35; J P Edie and family, Sioux City, Iowa 2	37 00
Total for General Fund,	$5254 75
FOR THE CHILDREN'S CHURCH AT ST. ANNE.
Pby of Steubenville—Steubenville 2d ch Sab sch	10 00
Total Receipts in April,	$5264 75

ARCHIBALD GAMBLE, Treasurer.

Ecclesiastical Record.

PASTORAL RELATION DISSOLVED.

At the meeting of the Second Presbytery of Philadelphia, on the 22d of April, the pastoral relation was dissolved between the Rev. G. W. McPhail, D. D., and the Brainerd church, Easton, the Rev. H. G. Hinsdale and the Second church, Germantown, the Rev. J. C. Laverty and the church of Conshohocken.

At the meeting of the Presbytery of Carlisle, on the 8th of April, the pastoral relation between the Rev. T. K. Davis and the church of Middletown, the Rev. J. H. Symmes and the church of Cumberland, the Rev. W. W. Eells and the church of Carlisle, was dissolved.

At the meeting of the Presbytery of Palmyra, on the 3d of April, the pastoral relation between the Rev. J. P. Finley and the churches of Mount Horeb, Paris, and Pleasant Hill, was dissolved.

The Rev. E. N. Crane has been released from the pastoral charge at New Vernon, N. J.

The Rev. William Cochrane has resigned the pastoral charge of the Scotch church, Jersey City, and accepted a call to a church in Canada West.

The Rev. H. M. Shockley has been released from the pastoral care of the church at Cambridge City and Ebenezer, Indiana.

At the meeting of the Presbytery of Newton, held at Stewartsville on the 22d of April, the pastoral relation was dissolved between the Rev. W. P. Melick and the Upper Mount Bethel church, and the Rev. J. Sanford Smith and the Andover church.

CALLS.

Mr. A D. L. Jewett has received a call to the church at Throg's Neck, Presbytery of New York.

A call from the churches of Churchville and Harmony was presented to the Presbytery of Baltimore for the services of Robert H. Williams, a licentiate, but retained in the hands of Presbytery till he finishes his seminary course.

A call from the church of Chestnut Grove for the pastoral services of the Rev. B. F. Myers was presented to the Presbytery of Baltimore, but retained in the hands of the commissioner from that church, till Mr. Myers receives his dismissal from the Presbytery of Carlisle.

Mr. Thomas Wallace has received calls from the churches of Osceola, Nevada, Broken Sword, and Wyandot, Presbytery of Marion.

The Rev. J. O. Proctor has received a call from the churches of Petersburg and Dillsburgh, Presbytery of Carlisle.

The Rev. William Prideaux has accepted a call to the church of Schellsburgh, Pa.

Mr. William Alexander has received calls from the churches of Lycoming, Lycoming Centre, and Linden.

Mr. Samuel V. McKee has received a call to the Indiana church, Presbytery of Vincennes.

The Rev. P. R. Cook has received a call to the Scaffold Prairie church, Presbytery of Vincennes.

The Rev. E. B. Smith has received a call to the Vincennes church, Presbytery of Vincennes.

The Rev. J. S. Marquis has accepted calls from the churches of Bacon Ridge, East Springfield, and Richmond, Presbytery of Steubenville.

The Rev. T. G. Scott has received a call from the church at Corinth.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESSES CHANGED.

Rev. J. N. Boyd, White Deer post-office discontinued, to Slifer, Union County, Pa.

Rev. J. E. Annan from Allegheny City to Cincinnati, Ohio.

Rev. James Williamson from Belleville to McVeytown, Pa.

Rev. Andrew J. Reynolds from Pleasant Run to Ludlow, Ohio.

Rev. D. Hall from Adams to Cowansville, Pa.

Rev. Charles P. French from Bull Creek, Va., to Williamsburg, Ohio.

Rev. Charles Wadsworth, D. D., from Philadelphia to San Francisco, California.

Rev. D. V. McLean, D. D., from Easton, Pa., to Plainfield, N. J.

Rev. W. Y. Allen from Rockville to Waveland, Ind.

Rev. S. M. Studdiford from Plainfield to Stewartsville, N. J.

Rev. W. R. Bingham from Oxford to Chanceford, Pa.

Rev. M. A. Hoge from Zanesville to Cleveland, O.

Rev. John S. Galloway from Springfield to Dayton, Ohio.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

Mr. M. L. Hofford, Principal of Beverly Institute, was, on the 22d of April, ordained to the office of an evangelist by the Presbytery of Burlington, N. J.

Mr. Francis E. Butler was ordained to the ministry by the Presbytery of Passaic on the 18th of April.

Mr. James A. Piper was ordained to the ministry by the Presbytery of Schuyler on the 8th of April.

Mr. Charles H. Lloyd was ordained as a missionary to Southern Africa in the University Place church, New York, on the 27th of April.

Mr. Thomas Wallace was ordained by the Presbytery of Marion on the 8th of April, and committees were appointed for his installation at Nevada and Wyandot.

Mr. James W. McKean, of Scotch Grove, Iowa, has been ordained as an evangelist.

Mr. C. B. Duncan has been ordained to the ministry by the Presbytery of Des Moines.

The Rev. D. V. McLean, D. D., was installed as pastor of the church at Plainfield by the Presbytery of Elizabethtown on the 25th of April.

The Rev. Samuel M. Studdiford was installed pastor of the church at Stewartsville by the Presbytery of Newton.

Mr. Samuel V. McKee, was ordained by the Presbytery of Vincennes on the 10th of April.

Mr. William Irvin was ordained by the Presbytery of New York on the 18th of February, and installed pastor of the church of Rondout.

Mr. Charles H. Raymond has been ordained as an evangelist by the Presbytery of White Water.

LICENSURES.

Messrs. Thomas W. Hughes, Alexander Proudfit, Charles H. Lloyd, Sylvanus N. Hutchinson, by the Presbytery of New York.

George A. Hutchinson and T. M. Wilson by the Presbytery of Schuyler.

D. H. Laverty, Benjamin Powelson, M. L. Todd, W. A. F. Stockton, H. G. Blaney, J. McCluskey Blaney, and J. B. Reed, by the Presbytery of Washington.

D. P. Lowary, J. W. Wightman, and —— Wilson, by the Presbytery of Ohio.

James H. Donaldson by the Presbytery of Saltsburg.

M. Calvin Ferriday by the Presbytery of Carlisle.

A. A. Dinsmore by the Presbytery of Wooster.

Samuel M. Henderson by the Presbytery of Steubenville.

John Berk by the Presbytery of Dubuque.

Robert A. Blackford, James H. Hunter, John Charles Beirhauer, by the Presbytery of Allegheny City.

DEATH.

The Rev. Charles H. Skillman, at Bound Brook, N. J., on the 19th of April, in the 29th year of his age.

FUND FOR DISABLED MINISTERS, AND THE NEEDY WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

The following amounts have been received since the last report, viz.

From Muncy church,	Northumberland	Presb'y,	8 00
" Milton ch,	do.	do.	20 00
" Washingtonville ch,	do.	do.	12 00
" Derry ch,	do.	do.	8 00
" Alexandria ch,	Huntingdon	do.	52 00
" Milroy ch,	do.	do.	45 89
" Lower Tuscarora ch,	do.	do.	90 00
" Spring Creek ch,	do.	do.	22 00
" McVeytown and Newton Hamilton chs,	Huntington	Presbytery,	45 00
" 2d Elizabethtown ch,	Passaic	Presbytery,	63 29
" 1st Morristown ch,	do.	do.	99 00
" Rockville ch,	Crawfordsville	do.	10 00
" Bethel ch, St. Louis		do.	3 95
" Kendallville ch,	Fort Wayne	do.	5 00
" Albion ch,	do.	do.	2 35
" Hopewell ch,	do.	do.	1 25
" Auburn ch,	do.	do.	3 00
" Bear Creek ch,	do.	do.	3 00
" Bluffton ch,	do.	do.	2 72
" Lawrenceville ch,	New Brunswick	do.	22 78
" Dutch Neck Creek ch,	do.	do.	5 00
" Sparta 2d ch,	Genesee River	do.	5 00
" Caledonia ch,	do.	do.	11 20
" Millstone ch,	Monmouth	do.	3 00
" Tennent ch,	do.	do.	5 75
" Plymouth 1st ch,	Michigan	do.	5 60
" Bethel ch,	Ohio	do.	14 00
From Hopewell ch,	Ohio	Presbytery,	12 00
" Deerfield ch,	West Jersey	do.	7 75
" Blackwoodtown ch	do.	do.	20 00
" Blairsville ch,	Blairsville	do.	14 00
" Unity ch,	do.	do.	18 60
" Buelah ch,	do.	do.	11 86
" Palestine ch,	Palestine	do.	5 00
" Camden 1st ch,	Burlington	do.	36 44
" West Newton ch,	Redstone	do.	12 00
" Morgantown ch,	do.	do.	12 00
" Long Run ch,	do.	do.	10 20
" Clarion ch,	Clarion	do.	3 00
" Rockland ch,	do.	do	2 50
" Cohocksink ch,	Philadelphia Central	do.	25 00
" Holmesburg ch,	Philadelphia 2d	do.	10 50
" Mansfield 1st ch,	Newton	do.	20 00
" Stewartsville ch,	do.	do.	14 05
" Frankfort church,	Logansport	do.	6 20
" 1st Presbyterian ch,	do.	do.	6 00
" Peru ch,	do.	do.	4 00
" Lafayette 1st ch,	do.	do.	7 00
" Red Mills ch,	Bedford	do.	9 00
" Hempstead ch,	Nassau	do.	20 00
" Jamaica ch,	do.	do.	21 45
" Liberty Corner ch,	Elizabethtown	do.	8 00
" Pittsburgh 4th ch,	Ohio	do.	16 00
" Ebenezer ch,	Saltsburg	do.	7 00
" Centreville ch,	Allegheny	do.	12 51
" Amsterdam ch,	Steubenville	do.	2 00
" Wrightsville ch,	Donegal	do.	10 00
" Buckingham ch,	Lewes	do.	15 94
" Oneida ch,	Mohawk	do.	3 00
" Upper church,	Carlisle	do.	75
" Landisburg ch,	do.	do.	1 50
" Warren ch,	Baltimore	do.	1 00
" Govane Chapel,	do.	do.	4 00
" Media and Middletown chs,	Philadelphia Presbytery,		5 00
" Dr. John Curwen of Harrisburg,			10 00
" Mrs. Mary Vance of St. Elizabeth Hospital,			5 00
" Rev. T. C. Perry of Windsor, Mass.			35 00
" New York Presbytery,			3 00
" Charles Wiggans of St. Louis,			50 00
" Mrs. F. Z. S. Knight of Baltimore,			2 50
" A Lady,			5 00
" Antrim ch,	Londonderry Presbytery,		7 21
" Allentown ch,	Burlington	do.	22 00
" Bennington ch,	Michigan	do.	5 25
			$1108 49

GEO. H. VAN GELDER,
Treasurer Trustees of General Assembly,
Office, No. 320 Walnut Street.
Philadelphia, May 12th, 1862.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Domestic Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, Publication, and the Board of Church Extension, and is issued monthly in newspaper form, at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Fifty copies or more to one address, at Twenty-five Cents a year; and all churches of less than fifty families at the same price, provided not less than twenty copies to one address are ordered. Payment in advance.

Address, "Mr. Peter Walker, 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

CONTENTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.—Effects of the War, p. 81. Good Results, p. 81. Active Labours, p. 81. Self-sustaining, p. 82. Privations for Christ, p. 82. Cheering statements from the Far West, p. 82. Receipts, p. 83.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—I. Ministerial Education. The Board of Education to their former Candidates, p. 84. Presbyterial Action in Support of the Boards, p. 84. Reading the Record, p. 84. Letter of the Assembly of 1804 to the Rev. David Rice on Thorough Training, p. 84. II. Christian Education in Schools, Academies, and Colleges. Lafayette College, p. 85. Parochial School in Kansas, p. 85. Death of a Professor, p. 86. Receipts, p. 86.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Recent Intelligence, p. 87. End of the Mission Year, p. 87. Beginning of another Mission Year, p. 87. The Gifts of Children, p. 88. Missions in China: Annual Report of the Mission at Shanghai, p. 88. Missions in India: Annual Report of the Station at Mynpurie, p. 89. School Examination at Dehra, p. 89. Mission in Brasil: Visit to a German Colony, p. 90. Miscellany: The Heathen at the Judgment, p. 91. Expenses of Heathen Worship, p. 92. Receipts, p. 92.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.—The Work in Tennessee, p. 93. The Prisoners at Indianapolis, p. 93. The Colporteur in the Hospital, p. 93. The floating Hospital, p. 94. Receipts, p. 94.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.—Seventh Annual Report, p. 95. Receipts, p. 95.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Ecclesiastical Record, p. 96.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME XIII. No. 7. | PHILADELPHIA, JULY, 1862. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

MISSION ROOMS,

No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. T. L. JANEWAY, D. D.
Treasurer—SAMUEL D. POWEL.

LETTERS relating to Missionary Appointments and other operations of the Board, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 910 Arch street, Philadelphia.

CONTRIBUTIONS should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to

WILLIAM RANKIN, JR., Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BOARD.

The annual meeting of the Board was held on Tuesday, June 17th, and was well attended. The following officers were elected.

President—Rev. John McDowell, D. D.
Vice-President—Rev. Henry Steele Clarke, D. D.
Recording Secretary—Matthew Newkirk.
Corresponding Secretary—Rev. Thomas L. Janeway, D. D.
Treasurer—S. D. Powel.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

MINISTERS.	LAYMEN.
John McDowell, D. D.	James Field,
Thos. L. Janeway, D. D.	John M. Harper,
J. H. Mason Knox, D. D.	G. W. Fahnestock,
James M. Crowell,	Matthew Newkirk,
Wm. P. Breed.	Henry D. Gregory.

ABSTRACT OF THE SIXTIETH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

FROM MARCH 1861, TO MARCH 1, 1862.

We extract from the Annual Report presented to the General Assembly, some points of interest to our readers, which will give a glance of the momentous work in which our church is engaged.

OUR WORK.

The work which is committed to the Board, contemplates two distinct and important objects.

I. To assist feeble churches, in regions already covered by the institutions of the gospel, in sustaining their pastors or stated supplies, until, in no great length of time, they may ripen into spiritual manhood, and not require continued aid. The necessity arises from the sparseness of the population, the comparative poverty of the people, and the ever-varying changes which pass over its face. The Board has done what it could for them, and heeded the applications of Presbyteries, and yet, in view of the danger of increasing the demands of this kind upon the funds of the Board, the Assembly has, in repeated instances, urged on Presbyteries "the union of small and contiguous congregations in the support of one pastor, which separately are unable of themselves to sustain a minister, with a view to the more efficient support of the ordinances of God among them, and with less expense to the missionary fund." Nor is this the only reason. The enforced confinement of an educated man, even though sanctified in part, to a narrow sphere, where growth is impossible, will dwarf his energies, and take away the stimulus which all men feel—that of an enlarging field, demanding more of exertion, and yielding the recompense of an appropriate reward. Man must trade to the best of his ability, with whatever talent a blessed Master, in his sovereign will, has bestowed; and yet men there are, who have received aid for fifteen and twenty years in the older states, and yet seem as unable to walk alone as in former times. The evil is manifest.

II. The second, and the great object assigned to the Board, has mightier proportions, and vaster importance. It is the aggressive, and more purely missionary work of the church, which sends the gospel to the destitute; which, starting from Jerusalem, goes forth to the provinces of the empire, and sustains, almost in whole, the preacher, as he lays the foundation which no other man has laid; to gather new churches in the waste places of our wonderful land; "to preach the gospel in the regions beyond," in obedience to the command of our dear departed Lord, "Go, preach my gospel to every creature."

The increase of our population is unprecedented in the history of nations. In a single decade, 900,000 were added to the state of Illinois, with its already vast population. In the same period, Wisconsin bounded from 305,391 to 775,873. Such are instances of almost fabulous increase. Ten—even twenty per cent. of annual increase, is the measure of many of these western states. The line of emigration is as the march of an army. Towns and villages spring up with a rapidity which render maps soon obsolete, and requires such frequent revision of our ordinary geographies. A desert blooms into life; the wilderness and prairies of a few years since, teem with an increasing population, needing the joys and comfort of the holy gospel. Much land remains to be possessed. The tier of territories falling behind Kansas and Arkansas, presents objects of deep anxiety, and supplies new motives for vaster effort. The stretch of territory between the parallels of 32° and 50° north latitude, and 80° and 120° west longitude, is the field on this side of the Rocky Mountains; and while it is true that part of this extended and imperial domain is desert, yet it is also true that there are large tracts admirably fitted for pasturage, and of marvellous salubrity, and therefore destined to maintain a large population. It has been the grief of the Board, the last year, that it has been unable to do more for these fields, and thus send forth her missionaries in the front rank of this great army of occupation. It is not unlikely that the closing war will stimulate this emigration, and precipitate larger masses than ever on the states and territories which spread beyond the great river of the West. Emerging from this war, as we trust our country will, with a government more firmly established—like the oak, strengthened by the very storms which have howled through its branches—with lessons of self-reliance, taught us by the selfishness of the European world; stimulated to produce, on a soil of such marvellous fertility, all we need of sustenance, and comfort too; we will enter, by the grace of God, on a career, which, if not hindered by our sins, will be grander than that which any other country has ever realized. The thirty millions, ere long, will be sixty millions; and imagination staggers at the possible development of our country.

SYSTEMATIC BENEVOLENCE.

Our church has seemed to settle her policy on this subject, and, with proper qualifications, it is the true one. Our Presbyteries seem to recognise and approve it. Our church organization chimes in with a harmonious working of the system. Our arrangements are complete; the machinery is entire. But no machinery, however perfect, can work without the intelligent supervision of the manager. There is no magic, as some seem to imagine, in the idea of systematic beneficence. It has no inherent life and self-moving power, like the wheels in the prophet's vision. It is only successful when ministers, elders, and members unite in the work—when all have the privilege of giving as the Lord has prospered each. The object must be presented, and intelligently perceived by the people, if we would evoke their sympathies and command their contributions. Our people must be instructed as to the commanding position of the different schemes, and their relative importance. The map of our country must be spread before them, with its countless destitutions; the statistics of population, and its character, are to be unfolded. We dare not count too much upon the knowledge, nor calculate too much upon the piety of our people. And who can give this instruction but their pastor? who give the details?—not agents—the policy of the church has dismissed them. It is the great duty of the minister, as he disciples all people. In the hands of an earnest and energetic ministry, wonders might be accomplished. If urged, in its due proportion to other duties, it might cover the land with churches, and with a living ministry. We have faith in God's church, and God's ordained means. It were distrust in his wisdom to speak otherwise. But the trumpet must give no uncertain sound when the sacramental host is summoned to the conflict. The principle of Christian beneficence is to be recognised. It must carry the cause to every individual member. None are to be passed, for none are to come empty before the Lord. It evokes the power of the church for good, and enables her to obey her Lord's last command. It increases her piety in the very effort to do good. He that watereth shall be watered. The reflex influence of benevolent action shall fall in gentle showers on his soul. It brings the church and the world into connection, and bids her do in the name of Christ. Instead of scanty contributions, there will be abundant treasures in the house of the Lord. And finally, the Board of Missions, instead of hesitating steps and cautious movements, will march onward, seize and occupy important posts, and, with the expansion of our mighty population, keep equal step. The missionaries would be assured of their support, and devise more liberal things, as they give themselves wholly to the work, unhampered by doubts of competent sustentation. Missionaries of the Church, sent forth in her name, and sustained by her ready and cheerful efforts, they would find pleasure in their heavenly work, and joy in the service of a blessed Master. In many instances this year, we are permitted to record, churches have increased their contributions. Of the increase of contributing churches, of which we have been wont to report, we cannot speak intelligently, inasmuch as intercourse has been suspended, and the fortunes of war have laid an absolute bar on the action of many. Some, perhaps, have chosen not to report; and the action of churches in several states seemed to recognise ecclesiastical separation. But, casting off this fact, the number of non-contributing churches is sadly large. All might do something. The humblest church on the verge of civilization has the privilege of sending its scanty offerings to mingle with the munificent gifts of metropolitan churches.

And yet, fidelity to the Master, and to the success of his cause, requires the Board to say, that thus far the system has achieved no great results. The number of contributing churches is fearfully small, and the amounts collected in many sadly meagre. There is some defect in the system, and it may well claim the time and solemn attention of a missionary church, as ours is, to inquire wherein the defect lies. The policy seems to ignore agencies, as of old conducted. They may and probably had their defects, but the substituted plan has not replenished our treasury, as its ardent and eloquent advocates seemed to predict. There has not been such an increase of funds as was commensurate with the augmenting resources of our people, and the multiplication of our numbers. It is in vain to depend on any machinery, however perfect. It is not, and it cannot be self-moving. The Board speak with great deference to the expressed views of past Assemblies, yet they feel that a modest statement of their impressions, on a subject of such immense importance, cannot be improper; and when they view, from their stand-point, the grand necessities of the land, and the inadequate means with which to overtake these wants, they feel justified in urging on the solemn attention of the Assembly this whole matter, as worthy of their best wisdom, and demanding their most solemn heed.

NEED OF FUNDS.

With all the comfort we are permitted to feel in overcoming so much of our indebtedness, and relieving our brethren in the field in their need, and though, in view of the financial difficulties of the country, and the troubles induced by rebellion, the comparison, in the field covered by the Committee at Philadelphia and Louisville, with the year previous, exhibits so slight a deficit, yet there has been a decline. It is true our legacies are less by $7470.01. It is manifest, the impression cannot be made too earnestly upon the heart of the church, that reliance on legacies is too uncertain to form basis of sober calculation. It is upon the steady inflowing of the benefactions of God's people that we most depend. The summer storm may swell our rivers, but the infiltration of a thousand springs from rocky terraces in wilderness and mountain solitudes, makes the stream which flows in beauty and grandeur to the ocean.

And now, when absolutely without a balance, yea, with a liability little less than $5000 on the treasury, our need is more urgent. This exhausted treasury must be replenished, that obligations to missionaries constantly falling due may be promptly met. A debt promptly paid is twice paid. It ought to be mentioned here, that while the inability of the Board prevented payment for three months and more after the salaries became due, the missionaries in general endured it with real heroism, and their correspondence revealed a piety worthy of the better days of Christianity. They yielded with Christian gracefulness to the sad necessity, and bore with uncomplaining submission the burdens imposed. Besides, there are fields white to the harvest; fields of unwonted promise opening before us. To enter upon these, the Board seeks the aid and vigorous co-operation of ministers and churches. These appeals become increasingly eloquent. The frontier stretches of our country; the great Pacific coast, where a nation has been born in a day; California, Oregon, Washington—"the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold,"—are asking for men to preach the gospel. There are places in California and Oregon to which it is immensely important speedily to send faithful men. The swell of the tide presses on the Mormon, and Utah ere long will receive the gospel. We have but one man in Colorado, and not one in New Mexico. These things ought not so to be. The Board is powerless unless the churches sustain her.

And has our church no ability to cope with these tremendous necessities? With more than 200,000 communicants in the states which have kept their loyalty, and amid the prosperity which has been showered on these states, is it asking too much to hope for an annual income of $200,000? It is perfectly within the power of the church to do this, and not diminish aught of what is required by the other Boards. It depends on the ministry to instruct and stimulate to healthful action the charities of the church. Fearfulness in pressing these claims is most mistaken policy, for it robs the church of the greater blessing in giving above receiving. Could our members awake to the necessities of the case, and look with tearful eye over these abounding desolations, we should, in some measure, awake to our responsibilities, and do more for Christ's crown and covenant.

CONCLUSION.

We close a year of trial and of mercy. Its early half was gloomy enough; the terrors of a large debt made us afraid; the known wants of the missionaries, waiting for their scanty remuneration, found us powerless to relieve them. The fearful uncertainty of all money matters in the early part of the year, the hopeless condition of the currency in the western states; war—civil war, was upon us; evil men rose in rebellion, and threatened to destroy both church and state; the fountains of the great deep of public credit were broken up. "But God was in the midst of us, and he arose for our help, and that right early." The appeals of the office met with generous response. Some of the smaller churches actually doubled their contributions. Never in its history has the Board received such gratifying assurances of the deep hold it has on the affection of our churches. There were difficulties—other and painful difficulties; the confidence of the church was momentarily withheld; but her true heart returned to her old love.

The amount of blessed influence of one year of missionary work upon the land cannot be estimated. The rain which falls in gentle showers is beyond all value. The drops which nestle in the bosom of the unfolding flower, or precolate the earth which sustains that flower, perform, in God's wondrous plan, their secret but effective mission. The influences of missionary work are oft as unseen and as mighty. Only eternity can fully disclose the secret, silent, but mighty power, of one single missionary church. Combine these influences, multiply by the number of missionaries, and the aggregate is beyond all human arithmetic. Shall these influences cease? Shall the rain not fall, nor the dew from heaven? Oh no! no! The cause is dear to our ascended Lord; it is his work—sanctified by his blessed example, and we are treading in his steps; and while our land is passing through the fires, kindled, we trust in God, not to destroy, but to purify, we are urged by motives, fearful as they are novel in our country, to press forward our great work. It is God's, and in time of trial we dare not falter. Our country, more than ever, needs godly ministers, and churches filled with the Holy Ghost. As a free people, our existence depends, under God, on the successes of the missionary work. Alike safe from foreign assaults, and secure hereafter from rebellion, will our people be, if they feel the power of that gospel sent to save. The work grows upon our hands. The cry, Come over and help us, is the plaintive utterance of our kindred who lay the foundation of empire in the West. Those who have gone forth from our midst, carrying with them the sweet memories of Sabbath bells, and the joy of the sanctuaries where their fathers worshipped, ask that these blessings be renewed in their far-off homes. Let us not be unfaithful to these, our neighbours and brethren—bone of our bone, and flesh of our flesh. Let us share their burden; let us fulfil their hope. Then shall we hear the voice of the Lord, as of old he said to his servants, the prophets—Thy people shall be all righteous; they shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of my planting, the work of my hands, that I may be glorified.

Amount furnished to missionaries from March 1, 1861, to March 1, 1862, at Philadelphia, $60,163.06; at Louisville, $7737.50. This shows a material decrease, caused, doubtless, by our political disturbances convulsing the country.

Receipts.—From all sources $85,332.62. The missionaries who had reported were paid in full to March, 1862. We were unable to establish new missions to any extent.

Whole number in commission March 1, 1861, was 518, to which have been added, by renewal of commissions expiring after that date, 121, making a total of 634.

Churches and mission stations supplied (as far as reported) is 803. Eighteen churches have been organized. Admissions on examination, 1783; on certificate, 1035. Sabbath-schools, 367; teachers, 2813; and scholars, 17,778. Almost one-half have not reported, and therefore the above is not the full returns.

SORROWING, YET REJOICING.

Iowa.

Rev. and Dear Sir:—With the beginning of this month terminated another quarter of my labours under commission from your Board. Rather more than ordinary labour has been performed without interruption, save upon the first Sabbath of February, during which day a beloved son, aged fourteen years and one month, departed this life, after just one week of extreme suffering. I sorrow not, however, as one having no hope; and thank God that my dear boy could say near the beginning of his sickness, "I have been thinking that Jesus may soon take me away." Yes, blessed Jesus! the Saviour of sinners, and especially the children of the covenant. At our late communion, upon the close of the week of prayer, which we endeavoured faithfully to observe, five additional members were received into the church, two upon examination and three by letter.

I look for fruit yet to be gathered from the good seed sown during this series of meetings.

Rev. C. O. Waters, Superintendent of Colportage, was with us, and preached with much acceptance.

Prayer meetings are held in each of the churches on the Sabbaths I am not with them, and also one during the week. Also, Bible and catechetical classes, and a large class in sacred music, have been maintained during the winter, as is believed, very much to the profit of the church.

The charge is in a healthful and growing condition, even in these troublous times.

Some six weeks ago a very pleasant "surprise gathering" was held in the church of S—, expressive of great good will, and of true Christian generosity. We sincerely pray that every one participating therein may more than ever realize, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

I rejoice in the replenished treasury of the Board of Domestic Missions in the midst of the terrible financial and civil distress prevailing, as indicative of the working and self-sacrificing faith of the whole Church, and as cheering the hearts and sustaining the hands of those toiling in the new and more destitute portions of our beloved Zion. In the fourteen years of my labours in Iowa, I have not known a time in which the Board of Domestic Missions has seemed so much like the right arm of the Church as the present. May God evermore strengthen and prosper it, until the knowledge of God shall fill the earth as the waters the great deep!

I wish twenty copies of the "Home and Foreign Record" for the ensuing year, the five dollars therefor to be retained out of my quarterage.

This, to me, is a very important auxiliary in my Missionary work.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF RECEIPTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Receipts at the Treasury in Philadelphia during the month of May, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Albany—Johnstown ch, of which 12 50 from the Sab sch	33 00

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Ogdensburg—An elder of Oswegatchie first ch	25 00
Pby of Genesee River—Sparta 1st ch	10 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Bedford—Poundridge ch	30 00
Pby of New York—Mission chapel of Fifth Av. and 19th Street ch N. York	2 75
Pby of Nassau—First ch, Brooklyn, of which mo con colls 26	356 00

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Passaic—Springfield ch	23 20
Pby of Newton—Stewartsville ch 53 48; Knowlton ch 9	62 48
Pby of New Brunswick—A friend, 2d ch, Trenton, 2 50; 2d ch, New Brunswick, 9 14	11 64
Pby of Raritan—German Valley ch	21 00
Pby of Luzerne—Wilkesbarre ch 100; Pittston ch Sab sch 8; Tunkhannock ch 7 50	115 50

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia—Rev J H Jones, D.D. 20; Seventh ch, legacy, in part, of Mrs Mary Graham, dec'd, 250; West Spruce st ch 203	473 00
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Second ch 32 21; Central ch, "Friends" 10	42 21
Pby of Newcastle—Fem Miss Soc'y of Forks of Brandywine ch	15 50
Pby of Donegal—Wrightsville ch Sab sch	7 78
Pby of Huntingdon—Sinking Creek ch 97; Spring Creek ch 85 77; Hollidaysburg ch, from a lady, 5	187 77
Pby of Northumberland—Milton ch 65; Lewisburg ch 57 25	122 25

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore—Chestnut Grove ch	14 00
Pby of Carlisle—Petersburg ch 7 12; Lower Path Valley ch 22 17; Burnt Cabins ch 6 41; Mercersburg ch, from Rev J R Agnew, 1	36 70
Pby of Potomac—Juv Miss Soc'y of Bridge St ch, Georgetown	50 00

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Redstone—New Providence ch	15 00
Pby of Ohio—Pittsburg 6th ch 50; Chartiers ch, add'l, 2 50	52 50
Pby of Blairsville—Ebensburg ch 20 80; Murraysville ch 15 75	36 55
Pby of Saltsburg—Bethesda ch 4; Warren ch 20; Pine Run ch 14	38 00

SYNOD OF ALLEGHENY.

Pby of Beaver—Newcastle ch	24 73
Pby of Erie—Sugar Grove ch	6 50

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington—West Union ch 10; Cross-Roads ch 16 65	26 65
Pby of Steubenville—New Harrisburg ch 2; Monroeville ch 1; Steubenville 1st ch 44 27	47 27
Pby of New Lisbon—New Lisbon ch 8 45; Poland ch 10	18 45

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Columbus—Columbus 1st ch 41 26; Circleville ch 40 76; London ch 10; unknown 2 02	94 04
Pby of Marion—Iberia ch	10 00

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.

Pby of Findlay—Rev Geo Van Eman	30 00

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of White Water—Richmond 1st ch	14 50

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Sangamon—Providence ch 83 05; Springfield 3d ch 12 50	95 55
Pby of Bloomington—Reeder 1; A E, Tonica, 1	2 00
Pby of Saline—Grayville ch	3 00

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.

Pby of Schuyler—Monmouth 1st ch Sab sch 5; Mount Sterling ch 7	12 00
Pby of Rock River—Middle Creek ch 10; German ch, Galena, 10; Morrison ch 5	25 00
Pby of Chicago—North ch Sab sch, Chicago, 50; Oswego ch 3	53 00

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Dane—Rockville ch 1 40; Decatur ch 5;	6 40

SYNOD OF ST. PAUL.

Pby of Chippewa—Galesville ch	3 00

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Cedar—Linn Grove and Springville chs	26 50

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.

Pby of Iowa—Spring Creek ch	4 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of St. Louis—Bethlehem ch 5; Nazareth ch 4; Bethel ch 8; Zion ch 2 80; Providence ch 7	26 80

SYNOD OF PACIFIC.

Pby of Oregon—Clatsop and Astoria chs	5 60
From churches,	$2,317 52

MISCELLANEOUS.

"C C B, for missions on Lake Superior," 100; a lady 3; Religious Contribution Soc of Princeton Theo Sem 69; Henry Brewster, Shirleysburg, Pa. 5; a widow 1; J P Edie and family, Sioux City, Iowa, 3; interest 69 85; "friends" 2; D A 5; Anonymous, Trenton, N. J. 2; W S Gilman, N. York, 50; J A Linn, Landisburg, Pa. 5; a father's thank-offering 10; "D, interior of Pennsylvania" 10; Mrs Eleanor A Bayles, Delaware Grove, Pa, 4; Mrs E R Chew 10; D B Jackson, West Haverford, Pa. 1; a daughter of an elder 1; Geo I Sampson, N. York, 91; Rev and Mrs A S Thorne, Pleasant Run, Ohio, 5; Mrs Magill 3; Miss E W Guffin, Schoharie, N. Y. 8	457 85

LEGACIES.

Legacy of Alex'r Sheldon, dec'd, late of Amsterdam, N. Y. 1000, less expenses, 12 50=987 50; Patterson estate, Pittsburg, Pa. 66 66; legacy of John High, dec'd, late of Chicago, Ill. 2500; legacy of Miss Ann Whitehill, dec'd, late of Lancaster Co, Pa. 146 38	3700 54
Total for May, at Philadelphia,	$6,475 91

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

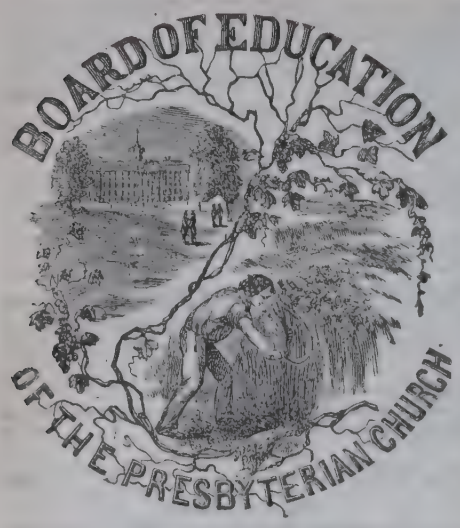
CLOTHING.

10 Boxes from the Ladies' Missionary Society of the 10th ch, Philadelphia, valued at	2000 00
1 Box from the ladies of Spring Creek Church Sewing Circle, Pa, valuation not given.
1 Box from a few ladies of New Brunswick, N.J. valued at	100 00
1 Box from the ladies of Moyamensing ch, Philadelphia, Pa. valued at	130 00
1 Box from the ladies of Williamsport ch, Pa., valued at	86 00
1 Box from the Ladies' Sewing Society of Uniontown ch, Pa. valued at	76 00
1 Box from Sharon ch, Ohio, valued at	37 50
	$2,429 50



No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Officers of the Board.

Charles Hodge, D. D., President.
John McDowell, D. D., } Vice-Presidents.
Cyrus Dickson, D. D., } Vice-Presidents.
George Sharswood, LL.D., } Vice-Presidents.
William Chester, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
R. Watts, Assistant, and Recording Secretary.
William Main, Treasurer.
Wilfred Hall, } Auditors.
Samuel H. Fulton, } Auditors.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies, and Colleges, may be addressed to either of the Secretaries, Rev. Dr. CHESTER, or Rev. R. WATTS, No. 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of Money may be made to WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer, 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

I. MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

"Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He would send forth labourers into His harvest."

ABSTRACT OF THE ANNUAL REPORT.

The annexed table exhibits the operations of the Board of Education in the department of candidates for the ministry:

The number of new candidates received has been		74
Making in all, from the beginning (in 1819,)		3164
The whole number on the roll during the past year has been		375
In their Theological course,	155
" Collegiate "	156
" Academical "	64
		375

The aggregate number of candidates this year is one hundred and thirty below that of last year. Whilst this decrease is deeply to be regretted—arresting, as it must in a short time, the progress of our church in all her departments of evangelical effort, both at home and abroad—it is, nevertheless, easily accounted for.

The first cause the Board would specify as contributing to this result, is the apprehension which began to prevail, towards the close of the summer months, that the income of the several Boards would be greatly diminished by the gloomy aspect of our national affairs. The accessions during the first four months of the year, from the Northern States alone, exceeded that of the corresponding period of the most prosperous year in the history of the operations of the Board, from the entire church, and seemed to warrant the expectation of an unusually large increase. This expectation the Board believe would have been realized, had it not been for the rise and prevalence of the opinion, that the resources of our ecclesiastical institutions must be seriously affected by the general prostration of business.

The operation of this cause is not mentioned with any intention of reflecting upon the young men who have been deterred thereby from entering upon a course of study. The Board would be far from censuring those who have postponed their entrance upon the ministerial curriculum under the influence of such an apprehension. On the contrary, they regard the hesitancy which has arrested the tide of accession, as a tribute to the high moral character of the youth of our church, who, though earnest and eager for the labours of the harvest, are nevertheless too noble-minded to incur debt without a reasonable prospect of paying it.

In accounting for this decrease in the number of candidates received during the year, the Board cannot omit to notice a fact which goes farther, perhaps, than any other, to account for the diminution. It ought to be borne in mind, in comparing the operations of the Board during the year now closed, with the operations of former years, that on the present occasion they are unable, in consequence of the state of the country, to inform the Assembly of the number of candidates received by a large number of Presbyteries in the South and Southwest. Hitherto the Annual Report covered the entire field occupied by the Presbyterian church in the United States; but the Report now submitted is necessarily restricted to a portion of this field. As the number of new candidates received by Presbyteries not represented in these statistics, but hitherto reported annually through the Board to the Assembly, amounted, on an average, to one-fourth of the whole number of new candidates, it is obvious that the absence of any account of their operations in this department must seriously affect the aggregate increase, and that if the statistics of this portion of the church were now available, the real decrease would be much less than the apparent.

In addition to the causes already mentioned, there is another, whose wide-reaching influence it was not to be expected the operations of the Board could escape. The class from which the ministry is recruited, representing, as it does, the intelligence, piety, and patriotism of the rising generation, was very likely to be alive to the dangers and claims of the nation in her great historic crisis. Under the magic power and impulse of their country's peril, many young men of this class have turned aside for a while from the prosecution of a cherished purpose, who will yet, if spared amid the dangers of the battle-field, enrol themselves as standard-bearers in the army of Christ. In the meantime, however, and until the restoration of peace, this cause must operate to the diminution of the number of young men seeking admission as candidates for the ministry.

Of the causes now recited as contributing to this decrease in the number of candidates received during the year just closed, there is but one over whose continuance and operation the Assembly can be expected to exercise much influence. This cause, which is doubtless the most potent for evil of the whole, is the failure of the churches to furnish the Board with the means necessary to enable them to meet promptly the claims of the candidates under their care, as those claims become due; and the Board would respectfully and earnestly invoke the Assembly to take into consideration the whole plan of Systematic Beneficence, and adopt some measure which may secure from all the churches an annual collection for the sustentation of the interest they represent.

The Board would earnestly solicit the attention of the Assembly to the following statistics, and the inferences they warrant in respect to the increase of the ministry, as compared with the increase of the membership of our church, within a period of ten years:

	Number of Ministers.	Number of Members.	Ratio of Ministers to Members.
1851,	2027	210,306	1 to 103 15/20
1852,	2039	210,414	1 to 103 13/20
1853,	2139	219,263	1 to 102 19/21
1854,	2203	225,404	1 to 102 6/23
1855,	2261	231,404	1 to 102 7/23
1856,	2320	223,755	1 to 96 10/23
1857,	2411	244,825	1 to 101 13/24
1858,	2468	259,335	1 to 105 1/24
1859,	2577	279,630	1 to 108 13/26
1860,	2656	292,927	1 to 110 7/26
1861,	2767	300,814	1 to 108 19/27

After making all proper allowance for the imperfection of the Presbyterial Reports which furnish the basis of the foregoing table, it must be admitted that the increase of our ministry has not kept pace with the increase of our membership during the past ten years. It may be difficult to ascertain the precise extent of this decrease, but there can be no doubt of the fact, that the increase in our ministerial supply has come short of our denominational progress. The measure of this decrease during the period embraced in the preceding table, as indicated by the statistics, is at least five per centum! So large a decrease, within so short a period, in the number of those contemplating an entrance upon the ministry, is sufficient to awaken serious apprehension in the minds of all lovers of our Zion. If the Presbyterian church cannot make ministerial provision to meet the demands of her own increase, it is manifest that her progress is at an end, even as regards the vineyard she now cultivates.

The field to which our church is commissioned, however, is not to be measured by the present boundaries of her vineyard. Placed, as she is, among the foremost of the evangelical denominations, in a land whose annual increase equals the population of some of the minor States of Europe, she must not close her eyes to the responsibilities of her position, or the obligations under which she is laid by her high commission and the mercies of God, to furnish her quota of labourers to this mighty, widening harvest field. Nor will the Presbyterian church be content to regard herself as a debtor to America alone. Spurning the boundaries of past achievements, she has recognised the full import of her commission, and gone forth to claim the heathen for the inheritance of her Lord, and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession. From these high places of the field of conflict she cannot retire. She cannot turn a deaf ear to the Macedonian cry now uttered by the teeming millions of China. She cannot, she will not turn away from India, now consecrated by the blood of her martyred sons. Holding in her hand the title-deed of her Master to an inheritance coterminous with the habitable world, she has embarked on an embassy in which she may not falter until the kingdoms of this world shall have become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ.

This high resolve she cannot execute without men. Her part in the embassy of reconciliation she cannot perform without ambassadors. It is, therefore, with sorrow the Board inform the Assembly, in their present Report, of a decrease in the number of young men who have sought admission, during the past year, to the labours of the harvest. The Board cannot but feel, that the prosperity of the department over which they have been appointed to watch, is an index to the present and prospective prosperity of the church. Other things being equal, our capacity as a church to supply with shepherds the flock already gathered, and to gather, on the fields of Domestic and Foreign Missions, the wandering sheep which, though given to Christ in covenant, and purchased by his blood, are yet without the fold, will be as our ministerial increase. Is there a believer in the power and faithfulness of God who can doubt, that if the number of our missionaries at home and abroad were doubled, or trebled, the annual results of their labours would be proportionally multiplied? The interests at stake, therefore, are fundamental interests; and the Board would invoke for them, in this trying period of their history, the most earnest attention of the Assembly. It behooves the church to inquire, whether the claims of a perishing world, and the duties embraced in the great commission, have been pressed with sufficient power and prominence upon the attention of the parents and youth of our church. The present is no time for retrogression in this great fundamental agency. When Christ is shaking all nations, and knocking for admission; when he is breaking in pieces the gates of brass, and cutting in sunder the bars of iron, for the redemption of his Israel, and beckoning, as he enters, to his servants to follow, is it a time for his church to withhold her sons from the sacrifice, or to keep back the means necessary to their equipment for the work to which the Master is calling them, with a voice loud and deep as the sound of many waters? Is it not rather a time when the bride ought to awake, and, responding to the spirit and providence of the Bridegroom, invite all nations to come and take the water of life freely?

The following table will inform the Assembly as to the comparative annual results of the operations of the Board, both in respect to new candidates and the aggregate number of candidates for the past eleven years:

Years.	New Candidates.	Whole No. of Candidates.
1852,	69	388
1853,	81	370
1854,	104	342
1855,	125	364
1856,	102	382
1857,	92	383
1858,	103	385
1859,	141	391
1860,	181	492
1861,	156	505
1862,	74	375

State of the Treasury.

The following is a general view of the pecuniary affairs of the Board, during the ecclesiastical year ending May 1st, 1862:

I. CANDIDATES' FUND.		II. SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.
Receipts,	$39,344 03		$3,687 74
Balances, 1861,	329 43		34 23
Total Income,	$39,673 46		$3,721 97
Payments,	43,725 13		1,994 39
Overdrawn,	$4,051 67	Bal'ce on hand,	$1,727 58

III. MISCELLANEOUS FUND.		IV. AFRICAN FUND.
Receipts,	$11 24
Balance, 1861,	8 76
Total Income,	$20 00
Payments,	20 00

Balance, 1862, $1,353 69

Of the African Fund, $1000 is funded.

The total receipts of the year, from all sources, are $43.043.01. The total receipts of the Candidates' Fund are $39,344.03—a decrease from the receipts of last year in this fund of $6209.51.

The following table shows the receipts for twelve years, in the fund for candidates:

1851,	$31,721 80
1852,	32,617 04
1853,	32,519 52
1854,	34,961 26
1855,	35,766 71
1856,	40,680 04
1857,	43,372 31
1858,	47,103 07
1859,	52,077 92
1860,	64,637 19
1861,	45,553 54
1862,	39,344 03

The causes which have operated to the diminution of the number of candidates, have also affected, to a very great degree, the aggregate amount of funds. In accordance with the directions of the Assembly, the Board have hitherto embraced in their Annual Reports, the operations, both in candidates and funds, of several Presbyteries "which prefer to retain their own organizations, and control directly the education of their own candidates." A very large number of these have not corresponded with the office during the year, and the present fiscal report gives no account of their fiscal operations. In addition to this, there are many churches which have been prevented by the state of the country from taking collections on behalf of the Board, or communicating the fruits of that benevolence which has, doubtless, in many instances abounded even amid the poverty and distress incident to war.

Yet, after making all due allowance for the operation of these causes, over which the Assembly cannot be expected to exercise any control, there is a diminution in the amount of the income of the Board which is well fitted to awaken anxiety in the minds of those who are to assume the responsibilities and encounter the toils of this department of the Master's service for another year. As the Treasurer's account testifies, the Board must cross the threshold of a new fiscal year largely in debt. This is a sad fact, and claims the earnest attention of the friends of the ministry of reconciliation. If the Board have been embarrassed throughout the operations of the past year, notwithstanding the fact that they began the year with a small balance on hand, what can they expect but embarrassment and financial restraint, now that they are compelled to face the same difficulties under the pressure of a debt? The Board would not forget that the unparalleled national distress has been the chief cause of these painful results, but as no distress can separate the people of Christ from his love, so they are persuaded, that no distress will prevent his people from manifesting their love toward him in acts of beneficence toward his servants and his cause. Nakedness, famine, peril, sword, may, and will deprive many a child of God of the ability to attain to the former measure of liberality, but if the widow, who had only the two mites, found no material of excuse in her abject poverty, there must, after all, be comparatively few whom even the present war has furnished with a scriptural reason for withholding their hand from casting into the treasury of the Lord.

Nevertheless, the Board will not despond. They have confidence in the people of God, and are not afraid to put their trust in him, in whose hands are the springs of wealth and the hearts of all men. They are persuaded that he will call no young man to the ministry, and then cast him upon the cold charities of an unsympathizing world. Whom he calls into the kingdom of his grace, he justifies, and will eventually glorify; and whom he calls to the office of an ambassador, he will sustain by the coöperation of his providence and grace. The Board would, therefore, take encouragement from every additional demand which the Lord of the Harvest may make upon their treasury, on behalf of those whom he has called into the field. They would regard the lists of accessions to the roll of ambassadors sent in by the Presbyteries, as so many proofs that it is the design of the Head of the Church to deliver them out of their present embarrassment, and to sustain them amidst the labours of another year.

II. CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

IN SCHOOLS, ACADEMIES, AND COLLEGES.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

1. Schools.

It might have been expected that this department of the work entrusted to the Board should not only suffer equally with the other departments under their care, but that this, of all others, should be most seriously affected by the curtailment of income incident to the national distress. This apprehension, the Board are sorry to say, has been sadly and fully realized. Whether the churches were so fully persuaded of the inability of the Board to respond to applications of this class, or whether their zeal on behalf of the religious instruction of the youth of our church, during the initial steps of their education, has become cold, the fact is, that there have been but few applications for assistance in comparison of former years. It is to be hoped that the waning of interest on this important subject is not so great as this fact would seem to imply, or that if the church has fallen from her historic position in reference to parochial schools, she will be won back by her watchmen to the old paths in which the Presbyterian church has trod for centuries, and in which she has achieved her greatest triumphs. The Board would cherish the persuasion that the abatement of interest evinced by the statistics of this department for the year, is more apparent than real, and that the church, though embarrassed by the calamities which have fallen as a blight upon all enterprises, both civil and religious, still stands by her historic motto, "THE SCHOOL AND THE KIRK."

The Board, however, would make record of their thankfulness, that, through the beneficence of some churches, whose liberality has abounded even in these days of darkness, they have been enabled to do something in this department.

2. ACADEMIES.

The experience of the Board in this department is confirmatory of the wisdom of the Assembly in giving such prominence to academic culture. Every year furnishes fresh proof of the importance of the academy in our educational system. There is a growing conviction of the necessity of a more thorough system of training in our primary and intermediate schools. This conviction is shared not only by Presbyteries and faculties of colleges, but also by teachers and principals of schools and academies. The increasing thoroughness of our colleges, the progress of the sciences, the demands of an age in advance of all others in the general diffusion of knowledge, have conspired to render this persuasion all but universal. The prevailing sentiment is, that the academy must be elevated, so as to furnish a thorough preparation for entering upon the collegiate curriculum.

The Board are happy to be able to report great progress in regard to this subject, not only in sentiment, but also in the actual elevation of the academic standard; and they hail with gratitude and delight the numerous proofs, furnished by our Colleges and Seminaries, of the beneficial effects of this elevation of the standard, upon the candidates who are now in course of preparation.

There is still evidence, however, that there is room for improvement, especially in the theological instructions communicated at many of these institutions. There is great danger arising from the temptation to popularize our academies, that our Presbyterianism may suffer loss. The position of these institutions in our educational system is such as to render it a matter of the very first importance, that they should be thoroughly pervaded with the leaven of Presbyterianism. It is most desirable that the Presbyterian ministry should have their early training in Presbyterian academies, under the care of Presbyterian teachers. The Board would not be understood as condemning or discountenancing academies not under Presbyterial control. An institution may be essentially Presbyterian, and yet not be governed by a Synod or Presbytery; and the Board rejoice in the prosperity of a number of institutions which, although not formally and directly subject to church authority, are nevertheless nurseries of the faith and polity of the Presbyterian Church.

3. COLLEGES.

The troubles incident to the present civil commotions, have wrought great evil to several institutions of this class, which, on former occasions, have had a place in the Reports of the Board. With many of them the Board have been unable to communicate during the current fiscal year. In some of them the course of instruction has been temporarily suspended, and in others the attendance has been so seriously affected as greatly to discourage both professors and students. On the other hand, the Board are happy to be able to report, that some of these institutions have enjoyed unwonted prosperity. God has vouchsafed, in a few instances, an unusual outpouring of his Holy Spirit, which has issued in a large increase of the church, and has encouraged those who have been the honoured instruments in the work, to hope for a large increase of the ministry. The God of Abraham hath remembered his covenant, and hath recognised the institutions of learning founded by his people, in the outpouring of his Spirit upon their seed.

CONCLUSION.

In entering upon another fiscal year, the Board feel, more than ever, the necessity of walking by faith, and not by sight. Were they to look simply at the things which are seen, they might well be deterred from encountering, for another year, the anxieties and difficulties incident to their stewardship, in these days of universal tribulation. But from their lot they cannot shrink. Looking beyond the things which are seen and temporal—from an exhausted treasury on earth to an inexhaustible treasury in heaven, they would thank God for the hope thus inspired, and gird up their loins for the labours of another year.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA IN MAY 1862.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Pby of Troy—Second street ch Troy	116 88
Pby of Albany—Saratoga Springs ch	30 72
Pby of Ogdensburgh—Oswegatchie 2d ch	30 00
Pby of Genesee River—Sparta 1st ch 15; Central ch Geneseo (from the ladies' cent a week coll) 15	30 00
Pby of Buffalo City—Central ch	35 26
Pby of Hudson—Goshen ch	22 13
Pby of Bedford—Bedford ch 57 50; White Plains ch 30 55; Mt Kisco ch 5	93 05
Pby of New York—Forty-second ch 33 38; University Place ch 480 50	513 88
Pby of Nassau—Astoria ch, paid candidate 25; Wallabout ch 15	40 00
Pby of Elizabethtown—Elizabeth ch	200 95
Pby of New Brunswick—Kingston ch (ladies of) 10; New Brunswick 2d ch 3 44; Princeton 1st ch (of which from the ladies 9 33) 20	33 44
Pby of Newton—Upper Mount Bethel ch (ladies' cent a week coll) 4 33; Lower Mount Bethel ch 5; Stewartsville ch 47 20	56 53
Pby of Raritan—Solesbury ch	11 20
Pby of Luzerne—Eckley ch	5 00
Pby of Philadelphia—Philadelphia Tenth ch, Misses Burt 50; West Spruce street ch 168 50	218 50
Pby of Philadelphia Central—(Mr Colwell)	10 00
Pby of Donegal—Chanceford ch 6; Slateville ch 16	22 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Sinking Creek ch 3; West Kishacoquillas ch 58 25; Sinking Valley ch 17 90; Birmingham ch 16 78; Tyrone City ch 10 20; Hollidaysburg ch 5	111 15
Pby of Northumberland—Warrior Run ch (from ladies of, in part) 5; Bald Eagle and Nittany ch (ladies of) 3; Milton ch add'l, do. 1 43	9 43
Pby of Baltimore—Central ch, from J H Perkins	50 00
Pby of Carlisle—Waynesboro' ch 100; Shippensburg ch 51 50; Greencastle ch 32; Carlisle ch 89 25	272 75
Pby of Potomac—New York Avenue ch	35 64
Pby of Clarion—Brookville ch (from the ladies of)	4 08
Pby of Saltsburg—Concord ch (ladies' cent a week coll) 5; Washington ch 5; Smicksburg ch, collection 12 28, Rev J M Jones and wife 5=17 28	27 28
Pby of Erie—Cold Spring ch	3 00
Pby of Washington—Claysville ch	1 00
Pby of Steubenville—Ridge ch 6; Centre Unity ch 3; Corinth ch 3 50; Little Fork ch (ladies of) 5; Monroe Mills ch 1	18 50
Pby of Columbus—Mt Pleasant ch 10; Westminster ch 23 46; Circleville ch (of which 10 from the Rev George L Kalb) 41 81, less exch 20 cts=41 61	75 07
Pby of St. Clairsville—Bellville ch (ladies' cent a week coll) 14 56; Beech Spring ch, do. 3 06; Crab Apple ch, do. 2 44	20 06
Pby of Marion—Delaware 1st ch	6 00
Pby of Western Reserve—Guilford ch 4 50; Lafayette ch (from the ladies of) 3	7 50
Pby of Logansport—Penn ch 4; Delphi ch, paid candidate 10	14 00
Pby of Hillsboro'—Zion German ch 2; Jerseyville 1st German ch 1 80	3 80
Pby of Bloomington—Crow Meadow ch	5 00
Pby of Schuyler—South Henderson ch 3 32; Ipava ch 3 53; Vermont ch 2 71	9 56
Pby of Rock River—German ch Galena 3; Yellow Creek ch 2 50; Fulton City ch 3 35	8 85
Pby of Winnebago—Oxford ch 2; Weyawega ch (from the ladies of) 1 60	3 60
Pby of St. Paul—Stillwater 2d ch	4 00
Pby of Cedar—Summit ch	8 00
Pby of Dubuque—Peosta ch 2; Andrew ch 3	5 00
Pby of Highland—Highland ch	5 00
	$2197 81

LEGACIES.

Estate of John High, Jr., Chicago, Ill. 3000; Estate of David Lee, Esq., Hamilton county, Ohio, 815 50, less exch 2 03=813 47; Estate of Miss Ann Whitehill, Marietta, Pa. 146 38	3959 85

MISCELLANEOUS.

J R A 1; W S Gilman, N. Y. 50; J A Linn, Esq., Landisburg, Pa. 5; George S Brown, Esq., Baltimore, Md. 100; Mrs. Magill 1; Alexander Guy, M. D., Oxford, Ohio 10, K 30; Richard Blydenburgh, to constitute hon mem 50; Rev N B Lyon, Prosperity, Pa. 5	252 00
Total	$6409 66

WM. MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURG, PA., IN MAY, 1862.

Pby of Redstone—New Providence and Jefferson ch	18 00
Pby of Ohio—Pittsburg 1st ch (of which from Jos Patterson, Esq. 100) 444 66; Pittsburg 4th ch, add'l 3 83	447 49
Pby of Clarion—Bethesda ch	5 60
Pby of Saltsburg—Ebenezer ch	16 00
Pby of Allegheny—Pleasant Valley ch 2 06; Slate Lick ch 23 50; Freeport ch 13 50	38 06
Pby of Beaver—Clarksville ch 11; New Castle ch 22 35; Beaver Falls ch 11	44 35
Pby of Allegheny City—Fairmount ch (ladies of)	13 05
Pby of Zanesville—Zanesville 2d ch	40 00
Pby of Wooster—Canal Fulton ch 7; Chippewa ch 6; Marshallville ch 3	16 00
Pby of Richland—Bladensburg ch	7 00
Pby of Findlay—Lima ch	3 00
	$648 55

MISCELLANEOUS.

"A Lady"	3 00
	$651 55

RECEIPTS AT LOUISVILLE, KY., IN MAY, 1862.

Pby of Louisville—Hebron ch, Rev Robert Morrison	3 00
Pby of West Lexington—Pisgah ch	4 00
Pby of Ebenezer—Maysville ch	49 00
	$56 00

ANDREW DAVIDSON, Treasurer.

Total amount acknowledged, $7117 21

CORRECTION:—In the receipts of last month, "Bedford Presbytery, South Salem ch $8," should have been from the Sabbath-school of that church.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.
June 12th, 1862.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

INDIAN TRIBES.

Letters have been received from the Chippewa mission, dated to the 20th of May; from the Iowa mission, to the 28th of May; and from the Omaha mission, to the 3d of June. Miss Anne M. Turner, lately connected with the Creek mission, and Miss Naomi Diament, formerly connected with the same mission, have re-engaged in the missionary work—the former in the Iowa mission, and the latter in the Omaha mission. They reached these stations since our last report of recent news was prepared, and were warmly welcomed. In general, the affairs of the missions were going on well at the dates above mentioned.

SOUTH AMERICA.

Our letters from Brazil are dated at Limeira, March 8th, and at Rio de Janeiro, April 7th. From Bogota, New Granada, we have received letters dated to the 21st of April. Mr. McLaren had commenced to preach in Spanish. The attendance was not large, but it was such as to give him much encouragement. The disturbed condition of public affairs hindered missionary labour. In the letter of latest date received, Mr. Wallace says: "It is difficult to tell what the state of the country is, or what are the prospects of the Liberals, so contradictory are the reports from the different states. The Liberals here, for the last two or three weeks, have been more hopeful than they were some time ago."

In Rio, Mr. Blackford speaks of a good attendance at the Portuguese service. Mr. Schneider writes from Limeira, a small town in the southern part of the empire, one hundred and forty-three miles from Santos. He was visiting some of the German settlements, and speaks of several thousand Germans within a few miles of the place from which he was writing, "many of whom have been here ten years, and have not, during that time, heard a single sermon." As might be expected, their religious condition is deplorable. Mr. Schneider had preached several times in different places, but met with serious obstacles in the indifference, formalism, rationalism, &c., of many.

AFRICA.

Letters have reached us from Monrovia, dated to the 5th of April; from Niffau, March 17th; and from Corisco, to the 19th of March. Mr. De Heer had made a visit to the river Congo, for the benefit of his health, and had returned to his station at Corisco; it would probably be necessary for him soon to visit this country for the same cause, after six years' labour in that exhausting climate. In the Annual Report, the mission among the Niffau people, Liberia, is spoken of as not unlikely to be suspended. We are glad to learn now, that Mr. T. R. Amos has returned to the station, and reports the people as being more friendly,—indeed, as quite unwilling to have the missionaries leave them.

INDIA.

The only letters received from this country since our last publication are from Rawal Pindi, March 31st; Kapurthala, April 18th; and Futtehgurh, to April 19th. Mr. Orbison had returned from a missionary tour in a district not before visited. Mr. Woodside speaks of the usual progress in their labours at Kapurthala. The Rajah had returned from Calcutta, where he had spent several months, and continued to take a warm interest in the mission at his capital. Mr. Scott speaks of the work at Futtehgurh as going on without change.

SIAM.

Dr. House, writing on the 19th of March, reports the prospects of the station at Petchaburi as being still encouraging, and says further—"Here at Bangkok, with little to cheer us, and some things greatly to try both our faith and our patience, we have nothing to absolutely dishearten us in our work. The work is the Lord's."

CHINA.

Our letters are dated at Canton to the 29th of March; At Ningpo, to March 17th; and at Tungchow, February 24th. After spending several months at Fat-shan, accompanied by his wife, and living in very narrow quarters, Mr. Condit had succeeded in making arrangements for the lease of a house. This is looked on as a decided step in advance. Mr. Happer mentions an increased attendance in the schools in Canton under his charge, and refers to two or three persons as inquirers. At Ningpo, Mr. Rankin baptized two of the scholars in the girls' school, on the 9th of March. Considerable interest in religious things seemed to be apparent in both schools. Mr. Green and one of the native assistants had returned from a visit to the Sanpoh district, where they saw much to encourage them in the progress of Christian knowledge among the converts, and of gospel leaven among the heathen. Mr. Gayley gives good accounts of the new field of labour in Shantung, and speaks of four persons who would probably be baptized at Tungchow on the next Sabbath; others were inquirers.

JAPAN.

Dr. Hepburn writes, under date of January 27th, at Kanagawa—"We are getting on quietly and comfortably. I have commenced to go more out among the people, in families about me, to talk with them about Jesus and salvation. It is yet with a stammering tongue."

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY ON FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The Minute adopted by the late General Assembly on this subject, will be found on the last page but one of the Extra Record of this month. It is a well written paper, and one marked by practical sense and an earnest tone. The Standing Committee, as we have reason to know, gave a thorough consideration to this department of the work of the church; and this paper embodies their judgment of its condition, and of the duty of our Christian people in regard to it. Its cordial adoption by the Assembly gives it the highest sanction which our theory of church-action can furnish.

Besides this formal expression of the mind of the Assembly, there were other proofs during its sessions of a similar judgment formed by respected brethren, including some who were at Columbus as visitors. One of the executive officers held particular conversations with not a few of these brethren, in regard to the duty of the Executive Committee in these days of calamity. In all cases their counsel was that the Committee should go forward, though with great caution. In most cases, they believed the churches would come up to the standard of last year, in their gifts. Two of these brethren, however, feared that in their Presbytery there would be some falling off in the contributions, though they hoped this could be prevented. In a few instances, brethren thought the churches, with which they were particularly acquainted, would give more than was given last year. These were the views of ministers held in high estimation, living in different parts of the land; and with these concurred several respected gentlemen who are ruling elders of the church.

It is indeed a serious question for the Committee—that of determining the line of policy to be pursued in such a year as this. To decide on retrenchment would be calamitous; to stand still in such a work is hardly less injurious; to go forward involves the risk of heavy pecuniary embarrassment. But if we do not greatly misjudge the case, our blessed Lord, by his Spirit and by his providence, is calling to his people to go on in this work. And the brief statement given above, will show that this is the judgment of our beloved church, as indicated in the methods specified. May our Christian brethren have grace from on high for this work of faith! Resting safely on the Rock of our Salvation, we must not give place to fear, nor yield to inaction; rather, let us feel assured that these times of shaking in our own and other lands, will the sooner bring to pass the establishment of the kingdom that cannot be moved.

WHAT THE CHURCH COULD DO.

Let us suppose that every minister, every church session, and every member of the church, were intelligently and deeply concerned in the work of sending the gospel to the heathen—so that no one would wish to be excused from any duty that might devolve upon him; so that each one would with a warm heart do all that he could, by prayer, by influence, by personal labour at home or abroad, by pecuniary offerings, for the love of Christ, and for compassion to lost and perishing souls—then, what could our church do in the work of foreign missions? This question, we suppose, no man can fully answer; but it may be answered, to some extent.

1. All could desire to understand the will of God, as revealed in the Scriptures on this subject; and then the pulpit could dwell on this Christian duty—its motives, its varied aspects, its discouragements, its success and reward. Topics of this kind would be often presented, and would always be welcomed. And the subject would find a good place in the instructions of the Sabbath-school and of the family.

2. All could wish to possess information on the progress of the missionary cause. Particular, frequent, and regular accounts would then be desired concerning each mission. We suppose the Record would be subscribed for by scores of thousands; the Foreign Missionary, by tens of thousands at least; and of the little newspaper Foreign Missionary, a copy would be handed every month to the children of each family in every Sabbath-school "throughout our bounds." How this would cheer up our missionary friends, and make them write even better articles than we now receive from their pens! And how it would fill our families with choice religious reading!

3. Every church could be found on the list of giving churches, and every church member would wish to offer a gift "according to that a man hath." Let us dwell on this point here for a moment. It would not be merely the loose change in one's pocket, nor that which cost us no sacrifice, which would then be given. It would often be money earned, or money saved, for this purpose. One of our good friends would very likely dispense with his now "only one segar a day," and add the nine dollars a year thereby saved to his missionary contribution; others would do likewise in many kinds of useless indulgence; and a very large sum would thus become tributary to the spread of the gospel. And yet we advocate no ascetic views of duty; a large range of Christian liberty as to many things, is certainly consistent with a high degree of Christian liberality. We cannot but believe, however, that the churches of this country might make a great advance in this work of giving. Last year the living members of our church gave $131,040 02 to the treasury of the Board. It was a noble offering, in these times. But could not an average gift of ten cents a week be obtained from each communicant? This would send over a million of dollars in a year to the mission treasury; and even this average of ten cents a week would make but a tenth part of the monthly assessment, as a tax, which is actually paid by each Chinese miner in one of our States.

4. Every qualified man that wanted to go out as a missionary could be sent forth. The number of our missionaries would then soon be increased tenfold. Perhaps before this mission year ends we might send out ten new men to China.

5. How many more prayers could be offered; and with how much greater faith and importunity!

Great would then be the blessing from on high on all our home interests as a church, and on all our missionary stations. We might hope to see such proofs of the presence of Jesus with the Church, as we have never yet witnessed.

All these results will one day be seen. The people of God are advancing towards them. O for greater speed! What we could do, we ought to do; and every motive urges us to do with our might what our hands find to do.

MISSION IN SIAM.

REPORT FOR THE YEAR ENDING OCTOBER 1, 1861.

Devout Thanksgiving—Kinds of Work—Religious Services in Bangkok.

In our review of the year now closed, we have cause for devout thanksgiving, that the lives of all our number have been graciously preserved. We have been visited by sickness, but it has in no case been unto death—healing mercies have been kindly given; and we end the year with undiminished numbers, and with no serious illness among us.

The mission work has been carried on with but little variation from previous years. Preaching, teaching, printing, and distribution of the Scriptures and Christian tracts, are the principal instrumentalities used to make known the gospel among the people.

The religious services at the station in Bangkok, have consisted of daily worship, comprising singing, reading, and explanations of Scripture and prayer, held with the pupils of the school and all in the employ of the mission.

The entire Congregation a Sabbath-school.

On the Sabbath, in addition to the regular preaching services, we have held a Sabbath-school, composed of the entire congregation, adults as well as the children; and in which all the missionaries residing at the station, having a sufficient knowledge of the language, have been engaged. This is a new feature in our work; or rather, it has in no previous year been so thoroughly organized, and the attendance has never before been so general. The teachers have found it a pleasant exercise, and we trust it may prove profitable to the learners.

Attendance and Attention—Regret and Encouragement.

Our Sabbath congregations have varied from about sixty to one hundred. Very few show any disposition to statedly lay aside their secular labours to attend worship on the Sabbath. A respectful, and in a few cases, an apparently interested attention has characterized our Sabbath congregations. We mourn, however, that so few are ready to receive the truth in the love of it, and show a disposition to obey it. Nevertheless, we have not been left entirely without a witness that God is willing to bless our labours. We have had the satisfaction of admitting two natives to the communion of the church during the year under review, of whom we have good hope that they are the children of God. These additions give us three native members in our little church. The degraded state of the people, and the universally low standard of morals among them, influences injuriously the character of the converts to Christianity from their midst, and often gives us anxiety as to the reality of their piety. We trust, however, they may be found among Christ's little ones, when he comes to receive his own people.

Mrs. Mattoon's Class of Females.

During the last part of the year, Mrs. Mattoon has given an hour every Sabbath morning to the instruction of a number of females, several of whom are mothers with young children, and cannot well attend the preaching services. Fourteen of these are adults, not able to read, who have no other means than these oral lessons, of becoming acquainted with the gospel. A few are young girls, who are also learning to read. She finds these women wholly ignorant of the simplest truths of revelation, but is encouraged by the hope, that by perseverance, and with the blessing of God, she may be useful to some of them.

The Scriptures and Tracts distributed at Bangkok and in the Interior.

The distribution of the Scriptures and Christian tracts, accompanied with oral instruction from our residences, and in various portions of the city, has been prosecuted as in former years. Less, however, has been accomplished in this department than we hoped, owing to the casualty which confined Dr. House for some months, and prevented his performing much active out-door labour during any part of the year. Previously to his going to the new station at Petchaburi, Mr. McGilvary industriously prosecuted this work from his residence in the central part of the town. Our native brother, the teacher in our school, has also engaged in this work with commendable zeal, and has dispersed many copies of the Gospels and other Christian books among his countrymen.

Several itinerations, for the purpose of making the truths of Christianity more widely and generally known among the people of Siam, have been made, principally by Mr. Wilson. He spent ten days in visiting the villages lying on the Meklong, the most western of the rivers emptying into the Gulf from the north; and another trip of twelve days was made up the Bampakong river, east of Bangkok. In both of these excursions he was well received, and had many opportunities of preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and of distributing Christian books. He made a third tour, occupying some twenty days, in company with Mr. McFarland and Mr. Telford, of the Baptist mission, in which they visited Chantibun and other towns on the eastern shore of the Gulf. Chantibun is the most important town in the eastern portion of the kingdom, and had not been previously visited by a Protestant missionary for more than twenty years. The Roman Catholics have a station there. The brethren spent about a week in labour at this place; were everywhere kindly received, and books were eagerly sought. On their return they spent a pleasant Sabbath at Bayong, another important provincial town on the eastern portion of the Gulf. They here exhausted their supply of books, long before the demand was supplied.

This part of Siam has as yet received little attention, but presents an important field for labour, which, if we had the men and the means, should be more frequently visited. In addition to the above tours, much colporteur work has been done in the frequent trips to and from Petchaburi, which the arranging for the new station there has made necessary. The experience of the past year has only served to increase the conviction of the importance of this branch of our work, and we hope to be able to prosecute it more vigorously the coming year.

The Christian instruction of Boys and Girls in Bangkok.

The boarding-school has been under the general superintendence of Mr. Wilson, who has been assisted in the instruction by Dr. and Mrs. House and Mr. McDonald. Under Mr. Wilson's superintendence, aided by Mr. Mattoon, a building for the use of the school has been erected, having a comfortable school-room, and dormitories for about forty boys. We have long felt the need of better accommodations for our school, and with those now provided, we shall be able to bring the school under better regulations, and render the supervision less laborious.

The school-roll for the year contains the names of forty pupils; a few of these did not remain sufficiently long to be considered permanent members of the school. The average daily attendance for the year is twenty-seven. Fourteen have left during the year; some of them the most advanced scholars, who are now engaged in business. The number in attendance at the close of the year is twenty-three. One of these now takes part in the instruction of the lower classes, giving promise of being useful in this department. In addition to the regular studies of the school, he has studied the elements of Geometry and Trigonometry.

All the boys now in school are studying both Siamese and English; besides the lower branches, Geography, Arithmetic, and History have been taught. In all these branches the pupils have made commendable progress. The practice of committing and repeating a passage of Scripture by each pupil daily, in connection with the devotional exercises, has been continued. The three little girls under Mrs. House's care are making commendable progress in their studies. They have committed to memory a morning and evening Prayer, the Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments, a short Catechism, and more than ten chapters in the New Testament. They can also repeat the Multiplication table in Siamese. They sew very neatly, and are forming habits of industry, neatness, and order. The boys' sewing-class, which meets every Saturday, under Mrs. House's care, has been continued, except when interrupted by sickness in the mission. Besides doing their own mending, they have made more than seventy garments for themselves during the year.

A small day-class of five or six girls, the children of families living on or near the mission premises, have been placed under the instruction of Esther, the native convert, who has been from a child in Mr. Mattoon's family. This class is under the general superintendence of Mrs. Mattoon. They have only been under instruction for a short period, near the close of the mission year, but have made good progress, encouraging us to hope the effort will be useful to the pupils, and demonstrating the ability of their young teacher to make herself useful in this department of labour. Several of the pupils are already beginning to read, and they have committed and can sing very well a number of Siamese sacred songs. This class is without additional expense to the mission.

The work of the Christian Press in Siam.

The press has been for the first time put to work in our own mission during the year under review. The following works, all reprints from former editions, have been printed during the year:

Old Testament History, from the Creation to the Birth of Joseph, 12mo.; 64 pages—3000 copies.

Gospel of Mark, 12mo; 60 pages—3000 copies.

Child's Book on the Soul, 12mo.; 121 pages—1000 copies.

Dialogue on Killing Animals, 12mo.; 28 pages—2000 copies.

Bible History (Child's Series,) 16mo ; 32 pages—4000 copies.

Faith and Practice, 16mo.; 32 pages—1000 copies.

Exhortation, 16mo.; 12 pages—2000 copies.

Child's Catechism, 32mo.; 32 pages—2000 copies.

The want of materials and sufficient funds have alone prevented increasing manyfold the products of the press. New works are needed, and several old ones of much merit are out of print, and should be renewed. We are also much in want of portions of Scripture, the supply of which has been exhausted, and still other portions which have not yet been printed in the Siamese. There is no more important part of our work than this of giving a Christian literature to such a people as this, who, with a very general ability to read, have no printed books, and few manuscript works in circulation, and who are ever ready to accept of anything in the way of books which may be offered.

An out-station at Petchaburi was resolved upon at the commencement of the year, but was not actually occupied till June last. For particulars concerning this station, we would refer to the report herewith submitted, [and which was printed in the Record of May.]

A Chapel needed, and commenced, but stopped for too good and too bad a reason.

We have long felt it desirable to have a chapel appropriated exclusively to religious purposes, both for the convenience of those who now meet with us for worship, and also that in this city of pagan temples, we might be able to point all to one temple dedicated to the service of the true God, to which we could invite them to come and listen to the gospel. At a time when we were expecting to provide for but one family at the new station, we entered upon the erection of a chapel. The necessity afterward of providing a second dwelling at Petchaburi, and the news which reached us of the embarrassment of the Board in raising funds, made it necessary to stop all expenditures for the chapel, except such as were provided for by special contributions on the ground. Probably more than enough to complete the chapel might have been raised here, had not a movement been initiated about the same time to provide a chapel for the use of the foreign Protestant residents. The foreign community being small, we thought it not best to make an appeal to them in behalf of our chapel at a time when it required their best efforts to secure their own. We have received, however, a few volunteer contributions, and we hope yet to complete, after some delay, our native chapel, without calling further upon the funds of the Board. We would mention, in passing, as a subject for gratitude, that the attempt to provide a chapel for English Protestant worship is likely to be successful. Much of Mr. Mattoon's and Mr. Wilson's time has been occupied in purchasing materials, and overseeing the work of building, which has lessened their labours in other departments. Most of the wood-work of the second dwelling at Petchaburi had to be prepared at Bangkok, and sent out to the new station. The new missionaries have been principally occupied in the study of the language.

Causes of humility and thankfulness.

In conclusion, we would say, that while we have occasion for deep humility on account of our neglect and want of faithfulness in our work, and to mourn over the little visible results of our labours, we have great reason for thankfulness for what we have seen of the goodness and power of God in the midst of us. Few years since the commencement of missionary labour here have witnessed so many additions to the mission churches here. Seven have united with the Baptist church, and three with the mission of the American Mission Association, making, with the addition to our own church, twelve, who during the year have enrolled their names among the people of God.

These mercy-drops, and the cheering fact connected with the circulation of Christian books, fully detailed in the report of the Petchaburi station, encourage us to go forward hopefully in our work, believing that though our bread be cast upon the waters, it shall be gathered again after many days.

MISSIONS IN INDIA.

Report of the Station at Lodiana.

This report was not received at the Mission House until after the Annual Report of the Executive Committee had been laid before the Board. It is dated October 31st, 1861, and will be found to be a clear and satisfactory paper. The labourers at this station are Messrs. Janvier, Rudolph, and Thackwell, and two native assistants, besides the ladies of the mission.

The retrospect of the past year furnishes nothing new or striking in missionary life; yet we see in it great cause for gratitude to a kind and protecting Providence. The missionaries and their families have been enabled to pursue their routine of duties uninterruptedly throughout the year; and have enjoyed comparatively good health.

Towards the close of the year there was more than the usual amount of sickness in the native Christian community, and two deaths—one, that of an old native woman, a widow, who had, at one period of her life, been the wife of a European sergeant-major, who left her a considerable amount of property; but she had long since been dependent on charity, and died a pauper; the other, a leper, whose life had been one of much suffering and pain; but he was cheered by the prospect of a life to come, where there shall be no more suffering, "neither shall there be any more pain." On his deathbed he furnished gratifying evidence of his trust in the Saviour; and he departed in full expectation of happiness in heaven. His death was the death of the righteous, and his last end was peace.

Preaching, etc.

This important branch of missionary work has been regularly continued throughout the year. The natives that come to listen manifest generally a friendly feeling towards us. The interruptions we have had when speaking were dictated, we think, not so much by a desire to oppose, as to obtain information. Provocations, such as we used to experience years ago, we had none. Whether the opponents have been tired out by our perseverance, or whether they see the utter uselessness of opposing the truth, or whether they have been brought to take a more favourable view of the gospel, it is a fact, that the people bear with our preaching, and listen to our reproofs and admonitions without anger. The platforms before the city church, and a hired shop in the centre of the city, are the two places where we address the people on week-days. The regular service in the city church every Sabbath afternoon continues to be attended by numbers from the city. To be able to conduct this service in a full church, in peace and quietness, on the Lord's day, we cannot but regard as a great privilege.

Itinerations and Fairs.

Mr. Rudolph, accompanied by Qádir Bakhsh, the zealous native assistant who has been so often before the public, made an itineration, last cold weather, of nearly a month, to the east of Lodiana. He visited one hundred and three villages, almost all of them inhabited entirely by Mohammedans, who have had very little or no education. He had opportunities of witnessing many idolatrous and superstitious observances amongst them. His reception in the villages, however, was generally good; and though there was opposition in some places, it was never fierce. Instances, it is true, were not wanting, in which the sullen looks of some indicated how unfavourably they were disposed towards the gospel; but they preferred silence to the risk of a discussion that might expose their ignorance, and go against their religion. In other places the truths of the Bible seemed to be remarkably well received. But few people in each village being able to read, the number of books distributed was but small.

Mr. Thackwell, accompanied by Qádir Bakhsh, attended the Chapár fair in September, where many volumes of the Gospels, Pilgrim's Progress, and other books were distributed. They also itinerated to the Nandpúr fair in March, and on the way they visited nearly forty villages. In consequence of the famine, the fair was but thinly attended; yet the gospel was preached to many hundreds during the three days on which the people were congregated.

It is believed that all the villages between Lodiana and Rúpar, embraced within the upper margin of the low land bordering on the river, and a line drawn at the distance of six miles, and parallel to it, have now been systematically visited; also that all the villages between Lodiana and Machhiwári, in the low land, have been similarly visited, in conformity with an act of the mission on itinerations, in 1858.

Church.

The church has received an accession of three members by baptism, and two by certificate; two others, who had resided for a time at another station, resumed their connection with this church. There has been one case of discipline, and two members have died. The attendance on the means of grace has been, in general, gratifying; and in some cases, we trust, owing to a real desire for God's word. In others, we fear it was more the force of habit, or a fear of censure, than a hungering after the bread of life. We rejoice to say, that in one instance, a church-member, who had for years been the cause of much anxiety and doubt to those that have had the oversight of this little flock, experienced, as we hope, a real change of heart. Her mind, being deeply exercised on account of her former sins, continued in darkness for some time. She cried continually for mercy, and searched the Scripture, with the most earnest desire to obtain forgiveness. At last it pleased the Lord to hear her cry; she received peace, and we trust that peace which the world cannot give, and which it cannot take away. On others this circumstance seemed to produce a salutary effect, though this may have been but of a transitory nature.

There are some inquirers with us, one or two of whom promise well; others are comparatively indifferent. One, a Brahman, and a man of a very serious turn of mind, sought the way of salvation most earnestly; but he could not bear with the weakness of some of the native Christians; he upbraided them for their light-mindedness, and eventually left us, without giving any intimation of his intentions. We still hope that he is not lost to the church of Christ, but that he will turn up at some other station, and join God's people.

Schools.

1. The City School. The past year has been, to some extent, one of transition. A Christian head-teacher, from Bengal, has been engaged, the school has been reorganized, a better system introduced, and a small monthly fee levied. Too short a time has elapsed to show the effect of these measures; but it is believed that they contain the germs of future progress, and will be beneficial to the school. The number of boys on the rolls, at the close of the year, is, in the English department 231, Persian 68, total 299.

2. Orphan Girls' School. Owing to the famine, this institution has grown in numbers far beyond what it ever had been before. At the close of last year it contained only twenty-five pupils; but from the beginning of January, children began to be sent to us in rapid succession from different parts of the country. The whole number admitted during the year is twenty-five. One of these died, and one of the older girls was married, leaving at present forty-eight; all of whom are fed, clothed, and taught in the institution. Besides these, there is one day-scholar attending the school.

When the famine broke out, we felt it to be our duty to receive all children that might be entrusted to us; for we had the assurance, that though we could not now, while the war lasts, look to America for further aid to meet the increased expenses of the institution, the Lord would provide means for the support of as many children as he might send; and in this expectation we have not been disappointed.

In another respect, still, have we been made deeply sensible of a merciful Providence watching over the interests of this school. It was in obtaining a properly qualified person to supply the place of a mother to these orphan children, and to assist in teaching them. Much as we always had felt the need of such assistance, little did we know, when we made arrangements last year for bringing this lady over from Germany, how far more urgently such help would be needed by the time she arrived here. Miss Sauter entered, with a most energetic and self-sacrificing spirit, upon her arduous duties, and these among so many newly received children, that had just been snatched from the horrors of death by starvation, were often of the most repulsive kind. Many of them were much emaciated, and had acquired exceedingly filthy habits. But the intelligence and the unceasing labour which were thus brought to bear upon the interests of the institution, overcame all difficulties.

The whole expense of bringing out the teacher had to be met from the proceeds of the sale of fancy articles sent out from Germany by benevolent friends. In this also we have succeeded; and we are glad to report that the funds of the institution have not in the least been embarrassed by this arrangement.

The older pupils read the vernacular in the Roman, as well as Persian character; they cypher and write, and study the elementary portions of geography. Scripture history forms one of the chief parts of their study. A little attention has been given to the study of English. They receive lessons in singing, and devote a considerable portion of their time to needlework. They make and mend their own clothes, and attend to all the domestic duties of the institution, such as cooking, sweeping, etc. The school continues in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph.

The Press.

Long after the destruction of the Book Depository during the mutiny, there were comparatively few books for distribution; and this was more especially the case with reference to publications in the Urdú language. This rendered it imperative to enlarge our operations as much as possible, with a view of creating a greater variety in that language. The object has been attained to some extent; and a larger number of publications has been issued than in any previous year since the press was established. The Rev. J. Newton has continued to discharge the editorial duties of the press, and in these he has been aided by the Rev. J. Newton, Jr. This assistance was of so essential a nature, that without it we should have been compelled to keep our operations within narrower limits. Mr. Rudolph has continued to have the management of the press.

Much has been done to improve the old fonts of type; and a considerable amount of new type has been cast. A Tabular View of the works which have been published during the year accompanies this report, and shows a total of 64,700 copies printed during the year, or 7,815,700 pages—mostly in Urdú, Hindi, and Panjabi.

AFRICA: CORISCO MISSION.

An Ukuku Palaver.

Writing under date of February 21st, 1862, the Rev. R. H. Nassau, M. D., sends us an account of certain proceedings of some of the heathen people, which for a time threatened seriously to affect the labours of the missionaries, and perhaps also their personal safety. We make the extracts which follow, from Mr. Nassau's narrative.

. . . . Perhaps you do not know who or what Ukuku is. I don't, and I cannot find any missionary who does. The word means "a spirit," and it may be a good or an evil spirit, according as it chooses to exercise its influence. On some parts of the coast, it has offered (strange enough!) to protect our Scripture-readers; but here its influence has been only for evil continually. It originates, makes, and sanctions all laws—perhaps is Law personified. But any man may be Ukuk', for he is also a man. (Here, if any native should say that publicly, Ukuku a ndi momo, especially in the presence of women, his life would be in danger.) Certainly, some man always represents the spirit, whose declarations are uttered through him.

Let me now tell you how he troubled me and "my children." You know we have twenty-four of them here. With all their hereditary and sedulously instilled fear, they huddled into quiet groups on Thursday, January 9th, when the whispered report came—Ukuk' a vakandi, (Ukuk is come.) . . . .

An Ukuku Procession.

Mr. Nassau connects this visit with the baptism of six hopeful converts at Kombe, this triumph of the gospel having stirred the anger of some of the leading heathen. A procession was resolved on, to visit the missionary stations for purposes of evil. This became known in the mission school, under the charge of Mr. Nassau, Mrs. McQueen, and Miss Latta, and caused great alarm among the scholars. Of this procession Mr. Nassau says:

A company of about forty men came marching by the house, along the public path, that lies only a few rods in front. They were proceeding at an ordinary firm marching step, looked not to the right hand or the left, and made no disturbance beyond a peculiar low deep grunting cry, which I have not yet learned to recognise, but which the native women know as the signal for them to secrete themselves. The procession soon passed by to Kombanyamango's town, that immediately adjoins our yard, where I soon heard them singing and dancing. Our Christians followed, not to participate in the house, for that our session recognises as a punishable offence, but simply to "see and hear," in the street, for they, when young lads, had been initiated into the society. (A society which some have thought may correspond to free-masonry.) The procession soon left the town to go to that of chief Imunga, by name Ulato, where the "palaver" was to be talked. Most of our young men returned at the sound of my bell for evening prayers. . . . .

A disagreeable Visitor.

The excitement continued on the next day. The followers of Ukuku visited Evangasimba, the station occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Mackey, whose firmness restrained them from excesses; but in the afternoon the children at Mr. Nassau's station became much alarmed; some of them fled to their relatives in the native towns, and others were taken away by their friends. A head-man and his three wives were among the disagreeable visitors at the mission house, to take away two of the scholars. The visit of this man was on this wise:

Presently he returned, entered the house, and came into the room with blustering haste. . . . . My brave Rover sprang at him, not recognising such disorderly entrance as allowable. There was a moment of excitement; he struck a tragic attitude, and drawing his long knife, plunged at the dog. Springing up, I seized the angry man by the arm, and bade my dog lay down. He was appeased, and returning the knife to its sheath, sat down. Mrs. McQueen adroitly invited him (as properly she does all the principal authorities) to sit up to the table; the best seat was given him, and his plate heaped with yam, bread, chicken, and plantains. Our drunken guest was voluble, and disposed to be exceedingly friendly and witty. In broken English and rum-tattered Benga he extolled himself and sons, protested his friendship, and said that he, at least, would make no trouble for the mission. At my request he sent from the house his women, who had continued their angry mutterings. He then called for his two little girls; they were brought. One is supported here by Miss ——, and the other, a remarkably intelligent little girl, delights to call herself "Isabela Pa Nasa," for my sister. Retaining my seat, and placing my right arm around them, he turned half about in his seat, and facing them, began some commands in a stern and firmer voice than which he had been using. It was terrible to look at him. His face seemed to become darker, and though I did not understand all his words, I felt the children shrink back in my embrace, and knew some fearful threat was uttered. He bade them remain at the school. Pulling out his knife, and passing it across his own neck, he threatened to cut their throats if they ran away. The little ones were returned to the room, and he left, somewhat sobered, but in an excellent humour. It was sad, exciting, not without its humorous aspects, and yet terrible.

The happy End.

The afternoon worship was conducted; some of the scholars were brought back, but others were taken away, so that only twelve remained. On the following day some of these were removed, but it would be only for a while. The Palaver—a sort of council for settling difficulties—was held at Evangasimba, and was attended by some of the native Christians, who evinced a good degree of firmness. The conclusion of the whole matter is thus related:

Mr. Mackey came to tell us the result. While rum and evil counsels prevailed, and the native men who were our friends were absent, (out of fifty in the council-house, only three, Imunga, his brother, and son, had held out for us,) the rest wanted to burn the houses over our heads. Imunga told them they had no business to go on Mr. Mackey's ground, and then Mrs. Mackey would not have seen them; that the mission would pay them no fine as a compromise, but he would pay the fine himself; and that if our houses were burned, an American man-of-war would blow down their own houses over their own heads. Noble man! I loved him; and as a testimony, refrained from punishing in any way his little runaway daughter. The trouble was over, and will never come in precisely the same shape; for Ukuku himself made a law at the close of the palaver, that Ukuku should never come on mission ground, nor in any way threaten the life of even a native Christian. God's name be praised! Satan divided against himself cannot stand. Our mission is stronger now than it was before the assault was made.

Sincerely yours,

R. Hamill Nassau.

MISSION TO THE CHINESE IN CALIFORNIA.

Varied Labours and Incidents.

The Rev. A. W. Loomis sends us the paper inserted here, under date at San Francisco of April 17th. The sad narrative he gives of the outrage perpetrated on a young Chinaman in that city, will be read with much feeling. We fear this is but one example out of many, of the bad treatment of these poor foreigners. Can nothing be done to secure for them a fair chance of redress in our courts of justice? As the case stands a Chinaman cannot be a witness, and lawless white men may often practise with impunity any outrage against these strangers. It is bad enough that the Chinese should be subjected to an oppressive tax, varying, if we have rightly read the newspapers, from two dollars and a half to four dollars and a half each month, on each person, even on the poorest labourers. This is surely oppressive; but this is of minor importance when compared with such examples of unpunishable violence as is here recorded. After all, the great remedy for all evils, among white or black people, is not the law of man, but the gospel of Christ. And this our esteemed missionary brother is commending daily to these poor Chinamen.

Arrival of Immigrants—Public School—An Inquirer.

While the rains were yet pouring down, and the interior country was still flooded, a ship-load of immigrants arrived. There were no means for them to reach the mines, and they remained in the city several weeks. We improved the opportunity, going frequently amongst them, teaching them in things relating to the kingdom of God. After they had all gone to the hills, another vessel arrived, and took their lodgings in six or eight different places. While they remained in the city, we devoted much time to them, visiting and teaching a part one day, and a part the next, and commencing the circuit again on the third day. The indications now are, that the immigration will be less this year than last.

The public school has been taught in one of the basement rooms pretty regularly, and is still in operation. But there have always been some applying for instruction, where they might also have the additional aid of an interpreter. We have taught such whenever we could agree upon an hour to suit both parties; but for several weeks past we have gathered all such together for two or three hours each evening, and we put a little religion into every evening's session—a thing which was tabooed (as I informed you a long time ago) in the other school. I am assisted by a young Chinaman, who is very zealous in trying to help his countrymen both to learn Christianity and the English language. Several who are availing themselves of this school to get some knowledge of English, are employed in families, or stores, or offices, and we allow them to drop in at any hour when they can be released from their service. Among these is a segar-maker, who seems quite anxious to advance in religious knowledge, as well as in the knowledge of other things. He used frequently to come into our rooms, so as to be with us at family prayers. I hope the Spirit is teaching him. He sometimes brings a Chinese friend, that he also may learn to worship God.

A Sad Narrative.

Among our acquaintances is a young man who, last winter, came down from "Chinese Camp," and has been staying in the city until the present time. He has been very regularly at our meetings, and always attentive when present. I have had a good deal of hope that the Good Shepherd has taken him into his fold, and that he may be called over to the right hand, at that day when the sheep are divided from the goats.

I send you a note which he wrote to me. It was brought to me by a Chinese lad, who told me further, that the writer, on the previous evening, had been assaulted on the street, and seriously injured, and wished to see me. I went, and found him suffering much. It seems that a friend had invited him to go and take a cup of coffee—it was nine o'clock in the evening. They were walking quietly across the plaza, when a big white man pushed another man against him, and jostled him from the walk. Recovering, he said, "Why do other people always persecute Chinaman? I not hurt you." Whereupon he saw the man fiercely coming up, and raising his foot; but he knew nothing more until he came to, and found his friend bending over him, and endeavouring to bring his life back. He was brutally kicked in the breast, and it will be many days before he can get about his business. And what is this person, that he should be thus used—is he a dog? He is a young man of gentle disposition, of cultivated manners; a good Chinese scholar, and a man of influence amongst his own people. He was for some time a teacher of one of the missionaries at Canton, and also taught a day-school for the mission. For a while past he has been coming daily to Mrs. Loomis, to be taught in English. His letter, though very imperfect, shows what he may become, if he keeps on. He is about twenty-seven years old. When last at church, he stopped to tell me some of his sorrows. When I saw him yesterday, he was the picture of distress. "O," said he, "my heart feels so sad! My letters from home made me very sorry; and the laws against Chinamen make me sorry; and to have been so near being killed makes me feel very bad. O, I don't want to stay here; I want to get home just as quick as I can."

Does not it seem as though there were some stumbling-blocks in the way of these poor people, before they can get to Christ? Ministers may preach, but the whole church must get up, and drag these blocks off the road, or it is probable some account will be required of them; especially if any of them have had any hand in placing these obstructions across the king's highway.

This interesting young man was hurt on Monday evening; I visited him on Tuesday, and again yesterday. My visit yesterday was very affecting. After some general conversation, he referred to his experience here in California. Since leaving home, both father and mother had died; his country, in various places, and in various ways, had been visited with calamities. Very recently, letters from home bring accounts of the death of other dear ones in his family; and here, in the land where, above all other places on the earth, he had been led to expect kind treatment, he meets with insult and abuse. "O," said he, "that business the other night was not the only time I receive injury. More than a hundred times—almost every time I walk the streets, some peoples insult me. They throw stones, throw water—everything—they laugh—call us bad names. O, we Chinamen are nobody; but we can have reliance in God—if not, I don't see what we can do. I think God is everywhere. If we pray, he hears us. He is good to all alike; and I think—" Here emotion choked his utterance, and tears filled his eyes, and coursed down his honest face.

Painful but weighty Reflections.

You will bear me witness, that I do not often refer to these unpleasant subjects; but when I have to meet them daily, you will excuse me for once in a while alluding to them, so that you may know some of our embarrassments. You can judge, for instance, how a man might feel, after travelling some distance, to find a poor benighted heathen to talk to, and after engaging their attention, to hear a shower of stones raining down upon the roof, and then to be appealed to by the heathen, to show them wherein our religion makes people more kind, and just, and mannerly, than does their own religion. You can judge whether there is any cause for a feeling of mortification and sorrow, when, on urging people to come to our chapel, they answer, that they would come, but for the fear of being assaulted on the way.

But I will close that chapter; it is far longer than I meant to make it. I will begin another; and let it be a chapter of incidents.

An educated Man—Christian Tracts in the box of Goods—An applicant for Baptism.

Last week I met in a store a young man from Portland, Oregon, who was here buying goods. I found him an educated man, and one who had improved by travel. I gave him books to carry home, for which he seemed grateful; and he immediately put them up with the articles he was purchasing. The next day we met on the street, and he proposed to accompany me to our house. Here we had another conversation; and he was glad to receive other books besides those given him the day before.

Yesterday I was visiting again. In a store, one man was packing a box for the northern mines. Chinese cakes nearly filled the box; but on the top a few medicines were placed, and the cover was about to be nailed down, when I proposed to offer a contribution. It was accepted, and I laid in two thin tracts. Bread, medicine, and Christian tracts! O, may the great Physician have a care for all that merchandize; and when, away up in the Shasta mines, this box is opened, and the anxious people gather around, may He, even from these two tracts, give some soul a taste of the bread of life, and to some sin-sick stranger apply the healing medicine!

Saturday, 19th.—I have been out amongst the Chinamen this afternoon; but not so much as usual, not being well. Coming home, I met in the door a man who had come to say good-by. Business having failed him in the city, he is going into the country across the bay; so that he will not meet with us as before. Some time ago he applied for baptism; but we preferred to have him wait a little. He has been very attentive, and improved all opportunities to learn the way of the Lord more perfectly. This illustrates what I have before told you about the shifting nature of our Chinese population, and of our own trials on this account; as we have to part with Christian friends, and thus lose their aid, and the help of their example, while others who begin to inquire after truth, are suddenly separated from us, to go we know not whither. But we commend them to the great Teacher. He can be with them anywhere, and can bring to remembrance the truth they have heard. Infinitely better provided for are they with Him, though without us, than with us, if without him.

He will not be at our little Sabbath evening prayer-meetings any more at present. These meetings have been pleasant and profitable, though attended by few, and in a small private room.

MISCELLANY.

MONEY SENT ABROAD FROM THE UNITED STATES.

We send out of the country annually about fourteen millions of dollars for the purchase of tea and coffee, nearly seven millions for spirituous liquors, and nearly one million for cigars. Yet, says the Boston Recorder, some of "our sage political economists scowl at the idea of sending away $300,000 to enlighten the world." They see no evil in sending millions away for articles of luxury, some of which are positively injurious. We trust Christians look with different eyes—have a keener vision, and more comprehensive view. The amount paid for the spread of the gospel, compared with the amount absolutely wasted, and worse than wasted, in our country, is a mere pittance. And it seems as if we were almost mocking Heaven, in complaining of the "hard times," and the consequent inability of the church to go on in the fulfilment of her "great commission." Were Christian families actually to practise retrenchment on articles not essential to their comfort, and with a self-denying, self-sacrificing spirit, spare what they might to send the gospel abroad, our only cry would be for men. We should have all the funds we could disburse, and yet no real loss be suffered by any person anywhere. Nay, it would prove, we believe, a source of profit to us. Money is now spent for that which is not bread, and labour for that which satisfieth not. God pours his blessings down when his people bring the tithes in. Give and it shall be given unto you. What doth the Lord require of us? To preach his gospel to every creature. This, then, is practical godliness. "Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come."—Macedonian.

EASIER TO SUFFER FOR CHRIST THAN TO DENY HIM.

Mr. Johnson, of the Baptist Tie Chiu mission, gives (Jan. 10) an account of the baptism of three candidates at Swatow. Two of them, men from Tathaupo, are cases of unusual interest. One of them is a young man, eighteen years of age, whose case has awakened the tenderest sympathy.

He was first seen occasionally at the chapel on the Lord's day, and was always very attentive. His interest seemed to increase, till he became a regular attendant, both upon the Lord's day and the daily services.

His parents and elder brother have thrown every obstacle in his way, and have used every means in their power to keep him away from us; but all in vain. Persisting in his attendance upon the chapel, and declaring his intention to give himself to Jesus, they commenced a course of violent persecution. He has been reviled and beaten by his father and brother. Even his aged mother, when he has returned from the chapel, has repeatedly driven him with violence from the house. But he has patiently endured everything, returning blessing for cursing; replying to the reproaches and threatenings of his parents, "My life I can give to you, if you wish it; but my soul belongs to Jesus. He must henceforth be the Lord of my heart; I must serve him." When he was received for baptism, I asked him if he was not afraid all this persecution would sometime cause him to deny his faith? "If Jesus does not help me, I will," was his reply; "but I feel now that it is much easier to suffer for Jesus than it would be to deny him."—Macedonian.

DONATIONS
TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS
IN MAY, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Albany—Johnstown ch 20 50, Sab sch 12 50; Little Falls ch 12; Kingsboro' ch, Miss Rebecca Brower 10; Jewett ch 59 34. Pby of Mohawk—Durhamville ch 2; Oneida Valley ch, proceeds of sale of jewelry 3 119 34

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Genesee River—Sparta First ch 10; Bath First ch Sab sch 10. Pby of Rochester City—Calvary ch 3 60, Rev B Roberts 1 40 25 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Bedford—Poundridge ch 40, Sab sch 10. Pby of Long Island—Sag Harbour ch 69 82; Amagansett ch 8; Middletown ch 22, Sab sch 2, Sab sch at Selden 1. Pby of New York—Eighty-fourth street ch 32 42; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch mo con 25, Mission chapel 2 75; Forty second street ch mo con 13 70; Chelsea ch mo con 16 50; First ch New York, mo con 135 58; North Haverstraw Scotch ch Sab sch 2; Yorkville ch mo con 6; Brick ch, Mrs Horace Holden 100. Pby of New York 2d—Canal street ch mo con 11. Pby of Connecticut—Rye ch mo con 12 30. Pby of Nassau—Williamsburg ch mo con 38 72; Astoria ch mo con 21 33; Roslyn ch 5; Brooklyn First ch mo con 26, Sab sch for Corisco 50 651 12

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—Metuchin 1st ch 6 50, Sab sch 2 50; New Providence ch Sab sch 4. Pby of Passaic—Paterson First ch 11 31; Morristown First ch mo con 181; Newark 3d ch mo con 31 84, Sab sch 7 35; Trenton 1st ch 181 13; New Brunswick 2d ch 82 14. Pby of West Jersey—Cold Spring ch 20, of which 12 from Sab sch. Pby of Newton—Knowlton ch 17 91, Sab sch 4 52; Hope ch 12 65, Sab sch 1 35; Stewartsville ch 59 80. Pby of Susquehanna—Wyalusing 2d ch 1. Pby of Burlington—Burlington ch 100. Pby of Luzerne—Pittston ch Sab school 8 732 10

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—West Spruce street ch Phila. 181 84. Pby of Philadelphia Central—Central ch Philadelphia 87 50, James Wray 15, J S 10, J V Cowell 10, D Graham 5, Alexander Nesbit 5, W Moland 5, A Shumway 1, Morrison 50 cts; 2d ch Phila. 32 21. Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Durham ch 7 20; Doylestown ch 17 77; Port Kennedy ch 14 18; Brainerd ch Sab school 11 25. Pby of New Castle—Smyrna ch 15 50. Pby of Donegal—Chanceford ch 27; Wrightsville ch Sab sch 5; Waynesburg ch 157 15. Pby of Huntingdon—Pine Grove Mills ch 17 25, Sewing Society 8 75; Hollidaysburg ch 54 25, A lady 2 50; Lower Tuscarora ch Academia Sab sch 22; Perryville Sab school 4 50; Sinking Creek ch, "R M" 5; Morris, Moshanon, and Philipsburg chs 12 50. Pby of Northumberland—Mahoning ch 50; Milton ch 6; Female Missionary Soc of Washingtonville ch, to con Mrs CATHARINE B CALDWELL L M 30; Buffalo ch 80 900 85

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.—Pby of Carlisle—Chambersburgh ch 361 69

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Saltsburgh—Glade Run ch Sab sch 4 08

SYNOD OF ALLEGHANY.—Pby of Alleghany—Concord ch, Miss Martha J Russell 1 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—Upper Buffalo ch 44 40. Pby of Steubenville—Monroeville ch 1; Corinth ch 13; Centre Unity ch 3; Ridge ch 6; New Harrisburg ch 2. Pby of St. Clairsville—Rock Hill ch 22; Beech Spring ch 36 50; Rev B Mitchell, D D 5; Fairview ch 3 50 136 40

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Columbus—Columbus First ch, a member 20. Pby of Richland—Ashland ch mo con 12 11, Sab sch, to ed a boy at Corisco 25 57 11

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.—Pby of Maumee—Union ch Sab sch 00 88

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Miami—Springfield First ch 50. Pby of Cincinnati—Hopewell ch Sab sch 7 75; Central ch Cincinnati 100; Walnut Hills First ch 4 70. Pby of Sidney—Sidney First ch 17 23 179 75

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of Madison—Hanover ch 12 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Lake—Valparaiso ch 8 31; Crown Point ch Sab sch 75 cts 9 06

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Palestine—Mattoon ch Sab sch 2. Pby of Sangamon—Portuguese ch Jacksonville 10; Providence ch 26. Pby of Peoria—Peoria 1st ch Sab sch 50. Pby of Saline—Grayville ch 3 91 00

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.—Pby of Schuyler—Monmouth ch Sab sch 5; South Henderson ch 4. Pby of Rock River—Rock Run ch 6; Fulton ch 4 30; Spring Valley ch 2; Beulah ch 8; Galena German ch 5 50. Pby of Chicago—Morris ch 7 40 42 20

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.—Pby of Milwaukie—Germantown ch 5 15, a poor widow 2 7 15

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Dubuque—Hopkinton ch 6 00

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.—Pby of Fairfield—Eddyville ch 2 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.—Pby of Missouri—Plattsmouth ch 6 00

SYNOD OF PACIFIC.—Pby of California—Calvary ch San Francisco 179 35. Pby of Oregon—Clatsop and Astoria chs 8 05 187 40

Total received from churches, $3,532 13

LEGACIES.—James Torbert, dec'd, Ohio, 425; William McClung, dec'd, Indianapolis, 698 25; John High, Jr., dec'd, Chicago, 2500 3623 25

SEMINARIES.—Princeton Theological Seminary, Religious Contribution Society 8 25

SYNOD REFORMED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—To support four missionaries in India 1200; for native assistant 495; for scholarships 975 2670 00

MISCELLANEOUS.—Witherspoon St. ch col'd Sab sch, Princeton, N. J. for Corisco 20, to educate an African boy, and 30 to cons LEWIS W. MUDGE L. M., Col G Loomis 5; Mission ch on Bear River 10 97; Rev John R Agnew, Mercersburg, Pa. 1; S C Wilder, Hadley, Mass. 5; a lady 200; two ladies 1600; a Thank-offering for restored health 5; J L 2000; Market Street chapel mission Sab sch 5; "E M," Georgetown, D. C. 2; a Friend 1; David Edwards 1; Mrs William Wallace 50; J A Linn, Landisburg, Pa. 30; a lady 3; "D A" 5; Mrs E R Chew 10; Mrs Magill 3; Henry Brewster, Shirleysburg, Pa. 5 3991 97

Total Receipts in May, 1862, $13,825 60

Special contributions for endowments of Waldensian Seminary, C C B 100
Previously acknowledged 14,400

$14,500

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., or REV. JOHN C. LOWRIE, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, JR., Esq., Treasurer—same address.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY—Two editions of this publication are printed. The Pamphlet Edition contains 32 pages, and is published monthly, at 50 cents a year for each copy. It is sent free, when desired, to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to the ministers of our churches.

The Newspaper Edition contains a selected portion of the contents of the pamphlet edition. A copy is sent free of charge, except for postage, to the children of each family in every Sabbath School making regular contributions to the Treasury of the Board.

Address for either edition, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—

Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D. D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 910 Arch street;
Pittsburg, Pa., Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky., Andrew Davidson;
Memphis, Tenn., J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Mo., David Keith;
Natchez, Miss., Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Va., Henry C Watkins;
Columbia, S. C., H. C. Bronson;
Augusta, Geo., James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board, and should be preceded, or accompanied by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

OVERLAND MAIL.—Letters for the Overland Mail are forwarded from the Mission House by the steamers nearest the first and fifteenth of each month. Postage, from New York, to SIAM, CHINA, JAPAN, and BRAZIL, twenty-five cents for each half ounce weight, but if sent by the French mail, thirty cents for each quarter ounce weight; to LIBERIA and CORISCO, thirty-five cents for each half ounce weight, to INDIA, via Southampton, thirty-six cents for each half ounce weight, via Marseilles, forty-two cents for a quarter ounce weight; forty nine cents for a half ounce weight, sixty-seven for three-quarter ounce weight, seventy-four for an ounce weight, a dollar and five cents for an ounce and a half weight. Letters to be forwarded by the "French mail," or to India "via Marseilles," must be so marked. Postage on newspapers, six cents each. The postage on letters and newspapers must be prepaid. The letters forwarded from the Mission House to each Mission are put in an outside envelope, and therefore stamps should not be affixed to them. The postage is assessed according to the weight of each letter, and may be paid by sending postage stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the Payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,
No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of Colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record and Sabbath-school Visitor, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., Corresponding Secretary, No. 821 Chestnut street.

All communications, reports, remittances of money, and orders for books, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage, and Business Correspondent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to Rev. W. M. Engles, D. D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to James Dunlap, Esq, Treasurer.

ACTION OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF 1862.

After the opening of the General Assembly, in the city of Columbus, Ohio, the following Standing Committee on the Board of Publication was announced by the Moderator, viz.—Rev. Samuel B. McPheeters, D. D., Rev. James Sloan, D. D., Rev. J. G. Ralston, Rev. R. J. L. Matthews, and ruling elders C. O. Waters, W. L. Sutton, and H. R. Kennedy.

The Annual Report of the Board was afterwards presented by the Corresponding Secretary, Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., and referred by the Assembly to the above Committee.

On Saturday morning, May 17th, the Standing Committee brought in their report, when the Secretary, by invitation of the Assembly, addressed the body. The discussion of the report continued until the hour of adjournment at noon, and again came up, as an order of the day, on Monday afternoon.

In the course of the discussion, Rev. L. R. McAboy, D. D., moved, as an addition to the report, that the Board be directed to inquire into the possibility of reducing the expensiveness of its working machinery, and report to the next Assembly. The Secretary of the Board was again heard; and, in the course of his remarks, he earnestly requested the Assembly to appoint a special committee of inquiry in regard to the affairs and operations of the Board—after which, on motion of Dr. S. B. McPheeters, the following resolutions were adopted unanimously:

Resolved, 1. That in view of criticisms made in this and former General Assemblies, a Committee of nine ministers and ruling elders, of which the Moderator of this General Assembly shall be chairman, be appointed to make a thorough examination of the affairs of the Board of Publication, and report to the next General Assembly.

Resolved, 2. That said Committee shall meet in the city of Philadelphia, at the call of its chairman; and the Board is hereby directed to give free and full opportunity to the committee in carrying out the objects of its appointment, and any information the committee may desire to procure. And all persons from any part of the church shall have full opportunity, and are requested, either in person or by writing, to present to the committee any objections or doubts they may entertain in regard to the plans and operations of the Board.

Resolved, 3. That the Board of Publication be directed to pay the travelling and other necessary expenses of the members of the Committee, from its treasury.

The committee of nine, appointed by the Assembly, under the first of the above resolutions, is as follows:

Chairman, Rev. Charles C. Beatty, D. D., Moderator of the Assembly; Rev. S. B. McPheeters, D. D., of the Synod of Missouri; Rev. L. H. Atwater, D. D., of the Synod of New Jersey; Rev. John M. Lowrie, D. D., of the Synod of Northern Indiana; Rev. William M. Paxton, D. D., of the Synod of Pittsburgh; Hon. H. H. Leavitt, of the Synod of Cincinnati; Mr. James Donaldson, of the Synod of New York; Mr. Charles Crosby, of the Synod of Chicago; and Mr. B. Whitely, of the Synod of Baltimore.

The Moderator was empowered to fill all vacancies in the committee.

The original report was then finally adopted, as follows, without further amendment.

The committee to whom was referred the Annual Report of the Board of Publication, beg leave to report:

That having carefully examined the Report of the Board, together with the minutes of the Board, and the minutes of the Executive Committee, they recommend the approval of these minutes, as far as written, and would respectfully submit the following resolutions to the Assembly, for its adoption:

Resolved, 1. That this General Assembly continue to regard the Board of Publication as a most important and efficient agency of the church, in disseminating and defending divine truth, and approves of the wisdom, prudence, and energy with which the affairs of the Board have been conducted during the past year.

Resolved, 2. That the Assembly is especially gratified to learn that the Board has entered with so much zeal and efficiency upon the most important work of supplying the army and navy of the United States, and also prisoners of war, with suitable religious reading; and that, notwithstanding the troubles of the country, it has been enabled to employ so many colporteurs, who devote themselves to their new and exceedingly interesting fields. And the Assembly, in view of the magnitude and urgency of their work, earnestly recommend the churches under its care to sustain the Board by liberal contributions to its Colportage and Distribution Funds.

Resolved, 3. That the Assembly is pleased to find that the Board is actively engaged in publishing books of suitable character for juvenile reading, and Sabbath-school libraries; and that it be recommended to the Board, in view of the present exigencies of the church, to furnish a still cheaper edition of Sabbath-school books.

Resolved, 4. That the Assembly renews its recommendation of the Sabbath-School Visitor to congregations, as a most efficient aid in the work of school instruction.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BOARD.

The Annual meeting of the Board was held in its Rooms, on Tuesday, June 10th. An unusually large number of members were present, including several from other states. The officers of last year were re-elected, excepting that James Russell, Esq., was elected third Vice-President, a place made vacant by the death of A. W. Mitchell, M. D. The same gentlemen as last year were placed on the Executive Committee, except that Rev. F. R. Harbaugh was elected in the place of the Rev. John Leyburn, D. D.

A variety of business was afterwards transacted, and the Board adjourned, having been pervaded throughout by a most delightful spirit of unanimity and fraternal feeling.

The condition of the country, and of business, bears heavily upon the Board, reducing its operations largely, both in its sales and in its colportage department. With this exception, its affairs were never in a safer or more hopeful condition. The great work of the Board this year is its work of distribution of religious reading among the soldiers and sailors, and in this it has, with God's help, been enabled to do much.

The officers elected at the annual meeting were as follows:

Rev. W. W. Phillips, D. D., President.

Joseph B. Mitchell, George Sharswood, James Russell, Vice-Presidents.

Rev. W. E. Schenck, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.

Rev. William M. Engles, D. D., Editor.

Rev Joseph H. Jones, D. D., Recording Secretary.

James Dunlap, Treasurer.

Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage and Business Correspondent.

Executive Committee.—Rev. Henry A. Boardman, D.D., Chairman. George Junkin, Jr., Secretary. Rev. William M. Engles, D. D., Rev. Joseph H. Jones, D. D., Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., ex officio, Rev. F. R. Harbaugh, George Sharswood, James Russell, James Dunlap, ex officio, James N. Dickson, Joseph B. Mitchell.

Committee of Publication.—Rev. William M. Engles, D. D., Rev. H. A. Boardman, D. D., Rev. Joseph H. Jones, D. D., Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., ex officio, Rev. F. R. Harbaugh, George Sharswood, George Junkin, Jr.

Committee on Periodicals.—James Russell, Rev. Willard M. Rice, James Otterson, Jr., James Ross Snowden, Rev. W. E. Schenck, D. D., ex officio.

Committee on Accounts.—John Sibley, James Imbrie, James T. Young, Silas E. Weir.

Trustees of the Board.—Matthew Newkirk, President. Archibald McIntyre, Vice-President. Joseph B. Mitchell, Secretary. James Dunlap, Treasurer. William A. Porter, William A. Ingham, George Sharswood, Winthrop Sargent, James Russell.

COLPORTAGE ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

Cairo, Illinois.

Dear Sir—In my other and previous letter, I have endeavored to inform you of the progress of the work of distribution among soldiers in camps and hospitals, and on board government transports conveying fresh soldiers to the field and bringing away the sick and wounded. I have endeavored to visit every boat passing this point, and distribute our books and tracts among those on board. That they have been gladly received, I know—that they have done good, cannot be doubted. It only remains for me, at the close of another month, to furnish you with a brief resumé of what has been accomplished under my supervision since the first of April.

Seven thousand eight hundred and fifteen volumes have been distributed, of which six thousand and seven hundred were "Soldiers' Pocket Books," and eleven hundred and fifteen were miscellaneous volumes, small, but adapted to the cases of those among whom they were distributed.

Two hundred thousand pages of tracts, five thousand two hundred and fifty copies of the Visitor, and one thousand dozen of sheet hymns have been placed in the hands of soldiers. These publications have been read by at least thirty thousand men, a large proportion of whom have been conversed or prayed with.

Since I first entered upon this delightful and truly glorious work, I have distributed more than twelve thousand volumes of books, of which more than ten thousand and nine hundred were Soldiers' Pocket Books—more than seven thousand copies of the Visitor, fourteen hundred dozen of sheet hymns, three hundred and sixty thousand pages of tracts, and these have been read by at least forty-five thousand men.

And now, if I could, I would ask those who have hitherto given nothing to this work, if they are content with doing nothing to help it forward? Oh, if they could see how white this field is to the harvest, how much remains to be done, and how promising are the aspects of the work, surely they would come up unitedly "to the help of the Lord, to the help of the Lord against the mighty." Will they not? I hope ere long to rejoin that vast army now up the Tennessee, and labour with it as God shall give me strength and opportunity. There is work there for half a dozen men.

He who faithfully performs this work of distribution, labours harder than any private soldier in the ranks. I have tried to be faithful to my Master, and to the Board, and now I find that I need a few days respite and rest; after which, if the means are forthcoming, I shall, I hope, be ready to re-enter this great field of labour.

Yours truly, W.

DONATIONS RECEIVED FOR GENERAL COLPORTAGE, AND FOR THE SOLDIERS AND SAILORS, BY THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION, DURING THE MONTH OF MAY, 1862.

Pby of Londonderry—Newburyport Second ch, Michael Titcomb	30 00
Pby of Troy—Cambridge ch 20; Malta ch 3; Park ch 19 06; Lansingburg ch 50	92 06
Pby of Albany—Albany 2d ch 84 34; Mariaville ch 6	90 34
Pby of Genesee River—Sparta 2d ch 5; Sparta ch 6	11 00
Pby of Hudson—Hamptonburg ch, add'l, 50 cts; Middletown ch, add'l 1; Middletown ch, per Rev P E Stevenson 17	18 50
Pby of North River—Little Britain ch	10 60
Pby of Bedford—Poundridge ch 10; Mt. Kisco ch 2 64	12 64
Pby of New York—New York 1st ch, R W Henry 5; German ch 5; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch 5	15 00
Pby of New York 2d—Sing Sing ch	20 00
Pby of Elizabethtown—Perth Amboy ch 5; Liberty Corner ch 12; Westfield ch 18 39	35 39
Pby of Passaic—Mount Olive ch, D A Nicholas	5 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Trenton 2d ch 12 50; Dutch Neck ch 30; Princeton 2d ch 41 94; Trenton 2d ch, a friend 2 50; Cranberry 2d ch 30; New Brunswick 2d ch 1 36	118 30
Pby of West Jersey—Williamstown ch 5 42; Greenwich ch, by the ladies, to constitute Rev J S Stewart hon mem 38 50; May's Landing ch 6	49 92
Pby of Newton—Newton ch	78 53
Pby of Raritan—Ringoes ch 7; Amwell 2d ch 12 25	19 25
Pby of Susquehanna—Towanda ch	5 44
Pby of Luzerne—Eckley ch	3 00
Pby of Philadelphia—West Spruce street ch 145 08; Sixth ch 25; Chester ch John Cochran 27 43; Moyamensing ch, Pascal Missionary school 10	207 51
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Central ch, Female Sab sch 31, Male Sab sch 5	36 00
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Slatington ch 5; Frankford ch 36	41 00
Pby of New Castle—Lower Brandywine ch 28 29; White Clay Creek and Head of Christiana ch 16	44 29
Pby of Donegal—Slateville ch, S D Wiley	9 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Bellefonte ch 33; Little Valley ch 15; Licking Valley ch 21 40	69 40
Pby of Northumberland—Williamsport ch 15; Mahoning ch 18 61; Sunbury and Northumberland chs 9 76; Washington ch, W Boyd 10 35; Hartleton ch 1	54 72
Pby of Baltimore—Annapolis ch	7 00
Pby of Lewes—Dover ch	16 34
Pby of Carlisle—Harrisburg ch 55 17; Fagg's Manor ch 15; Upper Path Valley ch 21 50; Gettysburg ch Sab sch 7 50	99 17
Pby of Redstone—Morgantown ch 23 76; Mount Pleasant ch 50 75	74 51
Pby of Blairsville—Livermore ch 9 50, Sab sch 86 cents	10 36
Pby of Saltsburgh—Crooked Creek ch	2 00
Pby of Ohio—Mt Washington ch 9; Temperanceville ch 12 53	21 53
Pby of Clarion—Brookville ch 11 41; Academia ch 3	14 41
Pby of Allegheny—Union ch 10; Brady's Bend ch 8	18 00
Pby of Erie—Park ch (Erie) 33; Mill Creek ch 5; Sugar Creek ch 5; Oil City ch 3 75; Georgetown ch 3	49 75
Pby of Allegheny City—Sharpsburg ch	16 85
Pby of Washington—Lower Ten Mile ch 5; Forks of Wheeling ch 23	28 00
Pby of Steubenville—Bloomfield ch	2 40
Pby of New Lisbon—East Liverpool ch	5 00
Pby of St. Clairsville—Martinsville ch 7; Crab Apple ch 2	9 00
Pby of Columbus—Mt Pleasant ch 10, Sab sch 5; Lancaster ch 11 69; Columbus 1st ch 30, Sab sch 20	76 69
Pby of Richland—Lexington ch 1 75; Shelby ch 7; Utica ch 3 38; Ashland ch 18 96	31 09
Pby of Wooster—Jackson ch	7 80
Pby of Chillicothe—Eckmansville ch	3 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Pleasant Ridge ch 6 90; Glendale ch 16	22 90
Pby of Sidney—Buck Creek ch 16 86; Bellefontaine ch 7	23 36
Pby of Findlay—Findlay 1st ch	12 61
Pby of Vincennes—Upper Indiana ch 6 70; Bruceville ch 4	10 70
Pby of Madison—Vernon ch 7 25; Lexington ch 5	12 25
Pby of Indianapolis—Franklin ch 20; Knightstown ch 17 15	37 15
Pby of Logansport—Indiana ch	3 00
Pby of Fort Wayne—Columbia City ch 2; Eel River ch 2; New Lancaster ch 4; Pleasant Ridge ch 2 50; Wabash ch 10	20 50
Pby of Crawfordsville—Greencastle ch	5 00
Pby of Muncie—Union ch 3; Hartford ch 1; Prospect ch 2 31; Indianapolis ch 109 70; Tipton ch 3	119 01
Pby of Palestine—Oakland ch	6 00
Pby of Sangamon—Springfield 3d ch	35 00
Pby of Peoria—Delavan ch 5; Prospect ch 7 70	12 70
Pby of Hillsboro—Waveland ch 1 45; Zion German ch 3 55; Hillsboro ch 8 00	13 00
Pby of Bloomington—Towanda ch 12; Atlanta ch 1 13; Waynesville ch 6 55	19 67
Pby of Saline—Olney ch 5; Shawneetown ch 7 50	12 50
Pby of Rock River—Yellow Creek ch	2 50
Pby of Schuyler—North Henderson ch 7 25; Camp Creek ch 5 63; Mrs Elizabeth Plett 5; Keithsburg ch 2; Monmouth ch 28	47 88
Pby of Milwaukie—Waukesha ch	5 00
Pby of Chippewa—La Crescent ch 11; Winona ch 7 65; Eau Claire ch 10	28 65
Pby of Winnebago—Newport ch 4 50; New Lisbon ch 3 12, Rev Stuart Mitchell 7 38	15 00
Pby of Cedar—Marion ch	6 74
Pby of Dubuque—Epworth ch 2; Peosta ch 1; Waukou ch 2 00; Pleasant Grove ch 2 25; Scotch Grove 8	15 25
Pby of St Paul—Westminster ch, Minneapolis, 5 50; Forest ch 50c; Andrew ch 8 50	14 50
Pby of Sioux City—Linn Grove ch 3 15; Mt Vernon church 2 35; Springfield ch 50c	6 00
Pby of Iowa—New London ch 2; Round Prairie ch 10; Middletown ch 3 36; Evangelical St Peter ch 6 50; Mt Pleasant ch 7 60	29 46
Pby of Omaha—Nebraska City 1st ch	4 10
Pby of Fairfield—Washington ch 4; Libertyville ch 1 15	5 15
Pby of Highland—Highland ch 5; Westminster ch 6	11 00
Pby of St Louis—Bethlehem ch	2 50

MISCELLANEOUS.

J R A, Mercersburg 1; Myron Phelps, Esq, Lewistown, Ill., 200; A Friend to the Army 10; Mrs Sarah Leech, Dunlapsville, 3; A Friend in Whitewater Pby 50c; A Friend in Dubuque Pby 10	224 50
	$2,353 37

N. B. The contribution of $10 from the South Salem church, Pby of Bedford, in last Record, should have been acknowledged as from "the Sabbath-school of said church, for procuring a Library for a Sabbath-school in Illinois."

Donations received for the DISTRIBUTION FUND OF THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION during the month of April, 1862.

Special Donations for Sailors and Soldiers.

Rebecca Wilson, Smithville, Ohio, 50 cts; a young man, Cedarville, Ohio, 5; "an invalid," Philadelphia, for sick soldiers at Pittsburg Landing, 4; "Chambersburg," for soldiers, 5; "Anna," Williamsburg, N.Y. 1; Rev Henry R Chapin, 3d Presb ch Sab sch, Trenton, N. J. 5; M M and A E Richmond, Sadsburyville, Pa. 5; Bellevue ch, per John P Caskey, 5; "Anonymous," books among the prisoners 5; 1st Presb ch Sab sch, Lockport, N. Y. per Wm N Leonard, treas, 10; Fem Benev Soc of 1st Presb ch, Amwell, N. J. per Rev M Van Wyck, 26 45, Miss M Brown 5; Mrs Woodbury's Sab sch class of young children, per Rev J F Coit, 1; "M E U," Hillsboro, Ohio, 1; Sally Thompson, Hagerstown, Md. 5; D H Mitchell, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, 4 50; "L H M" 2 50; two sisters, Baltimore, 10; James E Goddard, New York, 3; Presb Sab sch, Clearfield, Pa. 3 50; "M A W" 81 cts; Anonymous, Philadelphia, 10; J M Barnett, colporteur, 1; a lady, 1st ch, Baltimore, Md. per Rev S Guiteau, 5; Joshua B Frierson, Columbia, Tenn., 50, Union Bank of Tenn.; House of Refuge, Pittsburg, Pa. 10; W H Scott, Pontiac Presb ch Sab sch 3; R S Brown, Bethlehem, 5; Young Men's Christ'n Ass'n 27 50; "a lady" 1; J Lemon's Infant class 1 50; Anonymous, one each for prisoners and soldiers, 2; Anonymous, Rochester, N. Y. 2; "Jersey City, a friend" 10; Miss Sophia Ketchem, per Rev C W Cooper, Long Island ch, 2; a soldier's friend, Greensburg, Westmoreland Co., Pa. 2; James Fields, per Dr Clark, Central ch, 5; "cash," per Rev W P Breed, West Spruce St ch, 3; H K, Pittsburg, Pa., books for soldiers, 5; Rev John H Grier, D. D. 5; Alex'r Gray, M. D. 10; J Murdagh, Oxford, Pa. 5; a Presbyterian, N. York, 5; Daniel McLaren, Elizabethtown, N. J. 5; H R J, for soldiers and sailors of U. S. army and navy, 5; C M B, Antestown, Pa. 5; E B B, Pittsburg, Pa. 3; Miss Mary A Lee, Croton Falls, N. Y. 3; two sisters, Baltimore, 5; "Helen," Chester, 10; A G Ewing, Graysville, Spruce Creek Sab sch, 10 66; Lucretia Fruitt, for a few ladies, Lewisburg, 5; C P Rankin, Bavington, Pa. 2; R A R and H R, Bloomsburg, Pa. 5; three friends in New Jersey, 3; L L, Croton Falls, N. Y. 7 — 346 92

Total,	$2700 29
AMOUNT OF SALES during the month of MAY,	3824 75
Total,	$6525 04

JAMES DUNLAP, Treasurer.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. H. I. Coe.
Treasurer—Archibald Gamble, Esq.
No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Missouri.

ANNUAL STATEMENT.

As the subjoined statement may not reach some of the church sessions to whom it has been sent, we insert it in the Record, and invite the attention of our ministers and elders to it.

Dear Brethren—The last General Assembly, among other resolutions on the subject of Church Extension, unanimously adopted the following, viz. "Resolved, That all our ministers and sessions of vacant churches be earnestly requested to present this cause to their respective churches, for their contributions annually, and as far as practicable, on the first Sabbath of July, the day designated by the Assembly of 1861."

In accordance with this resolution, and in obedience to the requirement of the Assembly, directing us to send out a statement annually, at least two weeks before the first Sabbath of July, allow us to submit a few facts, respecting the Church Extension enterprise.

I. Nearly one-third of all the churches now in connection with the General Assembly have been aided by its organized agencies for Church Extension. In the last eighteen years, the present Board, and its predecessor, the Church Extension Committee of the Board of Missions, have aided Eight Hundred and Fifty churches to erect their houses of worship. This is nearly one-third of the churches that remain in our connection. It is more than two-fifths of all our churches that have sanctuaries.

II. About one-fifth of our churches are still without a house of worship. We have the names of some five hundred churches still adhering to the General Assembly, who are without a sanctuary. Nearly all of these must have help, or remain houseless. We are moreover as a denomination organizing from fifty to one hundred churches annually. Very few of these can build unaided. There are now also about four hundred of our churches crippled by debt or insufficient sanctuaries. Many of these will require assistance. We think it safe to say that one-fourth of our churches need help from the other three-fourths, in securing suitable houses of worship free from debt.

III. The sanctuaries aided by the Board are not expensive ones. The average cost of the edifices erected by the aid of the Board, during the seven years of its existence, is less than $2,000. The average cost of those built last year was less than $1,200.

IV. Since April 1, 1862, more churches have applied for aid than during the corresponding period of any previous year, save one. As there are no applications from the South, and but two from the border states, it is evident that from the rest of the church, there are more applications thus far this year than ever before. Though in the midst of an appalling civil war, the necessities of our houseless churches are such, that twenty-nine have sought aid in a little over two months. If to these be added the applications previously undisposed of, it leaves us to-day with seventy-three applications on file, calling for over thirty thousand dollars.

The applications received in the last twelve months are peculiarly urgent. An extraordinary number of them are from churches who are literally without a place in which to worship. Sad as the statement is, it is yet true, that these times of public distress seem to have encouraged the enemies of some of our feeble churches to conspire for their destruction, and to drive them from the insufficient shelters in which they had found a temporary refuge. Touching stories of this sort of persecution have come to our ears of late. With an unusual number, the peculiar urgency of their appeal arises from the fact, that they must build or die. While some of our houseless churches every year come to this point, the present year has brought a very unusual number face to face with the alternative, build or perish. No less pressing a necessity could induce them to attempt the formidable task of church erection, amid the uncertainties that cloud the horizon.

Most of the churches that now ask aid are making remarkable sacrifices to secure an humble sanctuary. Poor missionaries, with nothing to depend upon but the scanty pittance of the pioneer labourer, write us that their own gifts of from $100 to $200 are but fair samples of the sacrifices of their flocks. Fathers in a far northern clime, unable to give their children shoes last winter, and widows earning a scanty support by the needle, are giving from twelve to twenty-five dollars, for the much needed sanctuary. Shall these brethren under their crushing burdens appeal to you in vain for help?

Contributions can be sent to Archibald Gamble, Treasurer, St. Louis, Mo., or to any of the Receiving Agents, named in the Home and Foreign Record.

In behalf of the Board of Church Extension,
Yours truly, H. I. Coe,
Corresponding Secretary.

ACTION OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF 1862 ON THE SUBJECT OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

The Assembly appointed as its Standing Committee on the Report of the Board of Church Extension, the following persons, viz. Ministers—R. Conover, L. R. McAboy, H. L. Doolittle; ruling elders—W. Blair and H. Stoddard. This Committee, on Thursday, May 22d, presented the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted by the Assembly, viz.

Resolved, 1. That the Assembly approve of the careful manner in which the records of the Board have been kept by the Secretary.

Resolved, 2. That the Report be approved and published, together with the Rules of the Board, and instructions to churches needing aid.

Resolved, 3. That while the severe trials of the country have greatly retarded the work of church building, yet the church has great reason for thanks to God, that in the midst of these trials, fifty-five churches have been aided by the Board during the year, in completing their sanctuaries.

Resolved, 4. That the Assembly highly approve of the economy exhibited by the Board in the management of the funds entrusted to their care.

Resolved, 5. That the Assembly approve of the suspension of the work on the "Children's Church" for the present.

Resolved, 6. That the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly be directed to alter all blank reports for statistics in the Appendix to the Minutes of the Assembly, so as to transfer the item of "Contingent and Commissioners' Fund," from the column of "Church Extension to that of "Congregational."

Resolved, 7. That all our ministers and sessions of vacant churches be earnestly requested to present this cause to their respective churches, for their contributions annually, and as far as practicable, on the first Sabbath of July, the day designated by the Assembly of 1861.

Resolved, 8. That all churches needing aid for building houses of worship, and all churches and individuals contributing funds for this purpose, are hereby earnestly requested to make this Board the agency of their favours and benefactions.

While the above resolutions were before the Assembly, spirited and interesting remarks were made by the Rev. R. M. Conover, Rev. Drs. Chester, Halsey, and Junkin, and Rev. William Bishop. We may hereafter recur to their addresses, and to the remarks of the Secretary.

Donations received by the Board of Church Extension, during the month of May, 1862.

Pby of Rochester City—St. Peter's ch, Rochester	26 44
Pby of Genesee River—Sparta First ch 6; Bath First ch 7	13 00
Pby of Bedford—Pound Ridge ch	10 00
Pby of Elizabethtown—Perth Amboy ch	5 00
Pby of New Brunswick—New Brunswick 2d ch	2 87
Pby of West Jersey—Salem ch	17 00
Pby of Philadelphia Central—North ch	55 00
Pby of Donegal—Chanceford ch 15; Slateville ch 9	24 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Sinking Creek ch	9 00
Pby of Baltimore—Taneytown ch	5 00
Pby of Carlisle—Petersburg ch	4 25
Pby of Saltsburg—Washington ch 2 50; Centre ch 2 50	5 00
Pby of Blairsville—Greensburg ch	5 00
Pby of Ohio—Bethany ch	22 50
Pby of Allegheny—North Butler ch 2 50; Muddy Creek ch 2 80	5 30
Pby of Clarion—Greenville ch	3 00
Pby of Erie—Franklin ch 10; Mercer ch 8 56	18 56
Pby of Allegheny City—Freedom ch 1 45; Bridgewater German ch 33 cents	1 78
Pby of Washington—New Alexandria ch 12; West Union ch 6; Cross Roads ch 18; Lower Ten Mile ch 11	47 00
Pby of New Lisbon—Wellsville ch	8 00
Pby of Steubenville—Corinth ch 3; Monroeville ch 1	4 00
Pby of Zanesville—Norwich ch 2; Salem German ch 5	7 00
Pby of Findlay—Findlay 1st ch	12 70
Pby of Oxford—Hamilton ch	42 22
Pby of Logansport—Peru ch	4 00
Pby of Lake—Valparaiso ch	8 00
Pby of Sangamon—Portuguese First ch Jacksonville	8 50
Pby of Hillsboro'—Jerseyville 2d ch	6 35
Pby of Rock River—Galena German ch	3 00
Pby of Cedar—Linn Grove ch 7 60; Mount Vernon ch 2; Springville ch 40 cts	10 00
MISCELLANEOUS.
Myron Phelps, Lewistown, Ill. 200; A stray Quarter, 25 cts.; J R A 1; J A Linn 2	203 25
Total Receipts in May,	$596 72

ARCHIBALD GAMBLE, Treasurer.

Ecclesiastical Record.

PASTORAL RELATION DISSOLVED.

The Rev. Saurin E. Lane has resigned the pastoral charge of the church at Galway, N. Y.

CALLS.

The Rev. J. S. Hayes, formerly of Nashville, Tennessee, has received a call from the church at Frankfort, Ky.

The Rev. J. Winters, D. D., has received a call to the church of Iowa City.

Mr. J. W. Edie has accepted a call to Penningtonville church, Lancaster county, Pa.

The Rev. J. F. Magill has received a call to the church at Lewistown, Ill.

The Rev. S. G. Dunlap has accepted a call to the church at Monongahela City, Pa.

The Rev. Dr. Gurley, of Washington, D. C., has declined the calls he received from churches in Cincinnati and Chicago.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

The Rev. T. H. Urmston has been installed pastor of the Presbyterian church at Millersburg, Ky.

The Rev. J. H. Frazer was installed pastor of the Presbyterian church at Tom's River, by the Presbytery of Monmouth, on the 7th of May.

Mr. John B. Dickey was ordained and installed pastor of the church at Livermore, by the Presbytery of Blairsville, on the 20th of May.

The Rev. Thomas S. Crowe was installed pastor of the Presbyterian church at Jeffersonville, Indiana, on the 1st of June.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESSES CHANGED.

Rev. John Thomas from Frankfort, Ind. to Onarga, Ill.

Rev. B. T. Lacy from Frankfort, Ky., to Fredericksburg, Va.

Rev. Thomas Thomas from Orwell to Leraysville, Pa.

Rev. W. J. Gibson, D. D., from Walker to 784 South Twelfth street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Rev. William P. Cochran from Hannibal, Mo., to Millerstown, Pa.

Rev. J. H. Towne from Buffalo to Milwaukie, Wis.

Rev. John S. Howell from Carmi to Elm Point, Ill.

Rev. H. L. Doolittle from Mill Hall, Pa., to Steubenville, Ohio.

Rev. J. H. Flanagan from Kingwood to Fairmont, Va

Rev. D. M. Miller from North Benton to Alliance, O.

DEATHS.

The Rev. James Latta, at Philadelphia, on Friday, the 30th of May, in the 76th year of his age.

The Rev. Thomas Campbell, at Marion, Ohio, on the 8th of June. He was the son of Dr. Campbell, of the Saharunpur mission.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Rev. J. B. C. Beaubien has been received into the Presbytery of Chicago.

The Rev. R. L. Stanton, D. D., of Chillicothe, Ohio, has been elected to the chair of Church Government and Pastoral Theology in Danville Theological Seminary.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN REGARD TO COLLECTIONS.

Whereas, Many of our churches do not contribute to our benevolent enterprises, and whereas, it is desirable to test the power of simultaneous effort; and whereas, an emergency has arisen, requiring the coöperation of all our churches to save our Boards from serious embarrassment, therefore,

Resolved, 1. That this Assembly earnestly request all our churches that have no fixed times for the purpose, to take up annual collections as follows, viz.

For the Board of Domestic Missions on the first Sabbath of November.

For the Board of Foreign Missions on the first Sabbath of January.

For the Board of Education on the first Sabbath of March.

For the Colportage Fund of the Board of Publication on the first Sabbath of May.

For the Board of Church Extension on the first Sabbath of July.

For the Disabled Ministers' Fund on the first Sabbath of September.

Resolved, 2. That when the annual collections cannot be taken up on the days above designated, it be recommended to take them up as soon thereafter as possible.

FUND FOR DISABLED MINISTERS, AND THE NEEDY WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

The following amounts have been received since the last report, viz.

From	Chester church,	Kaskaskia Presbytery,	3 70
"	Liberty ch, do.	do.	1 60
"	Prospect ch, Muncy	do.	85
"	Hagerstown ch, do.	do.	2 25
"	Clermont ch, do.	do.	3 50
"	Muncy ch, do.	do.	7 52
"	New Castle ch, do.	do.	25
"	Hartford ch, do.	do.	1 00
"	5th Indianapolis ch, do.	do.	4 00
"	1st Presbyterian ch, Genesee River	do.	7 00
"	Goodwill ch, Hudson	do.	20 00
"	Monroeville ch, Steubenville	do.	1 00
"	Corinth ch, do.	do.	3 00
"	Hanna Fund of Unity ch, do.	do.	10 00
"	Salem ch, Zanesville	do.	5 00
"	Zanesville 1st ch, do.	do.	20 00
"	Scranton 1st ch, Luzerne	do.	150 00
"	Perth Amboy ch, Elizabethtown	do.	5 00
"	Baskinridge ch, do.	do.	14 00
"	New Alexandria ch, Blairsville	do.	11 00
"	Weyauweya ch, Winnebago	do.	2 50
"	Washington ch, Washington	do.	33 27
"	Ridley ch, Philadelphia	do.	13 51
"	Pine Grove ch, Huntingdon	do.	20 00
"	Pittsburgh 2d ch, Ohio	do.	76 98
"	Connellsville ch, Redstone	do.	10 00
"	Madison Avenue ch, New York	do.	35 00
"	Waynesburg ch, Donegal	do.	50
"	Buffalo ch, Allegheny	do.	4 80
"	Westminster ch, do.	do.	2 42
"	Glade Run ch, do.	do.	1 78
"	Valparaiso ch, Lake	do.	7 17
"	Lansingburgh 1st ch, Troy	do.	32 59
"	Hamilton Square ch, N. Brunswick	do.	10 00
"	Sing Sing ch, New York 2d	do.	15 00
"	A poor woman of Baltimore,		1 00
"	W. S. Gilman, Esq., of New York,		50 00
"	Myron Phelps, Esq., of Lewistown, Ill.		200 00
"	Hartleton ch, Northumberland Presbytery,		1 00
"	Cold Spring ch, West Jersey	do.	10 00
"	May's Landing ch, do.	do.	7 00
"	German ch, Rock River	do.	3 00
"	New Providence ch, Redstone	do.	10 00
"	Elba Centre ch, Peoria	do.	1 00
"	Middletown and Media ch, Phila.	do.	5 00
"	Madison ch, Zanesville	do.	21 00
"	J. A. Linn, Landisburg, Pa.		3 00
			$848 19

GEO. H. VAN GELDER,
Treasurer Trustees of General Assembly,
Office, No. 320 Walnut Street.

Philadelphia, June 16th, 1862.

FORM OF BEQUEST FOR DISABLED MINISTERS OR FAMILIES OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

I give and bequeath to my executors hereinafter named, ——— dollars, in trust, nevertheless, that they shall, within ——— months after my decease, pay the same to George H. Van Gelder, Treasurer of the Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, or to his successor for the time being in said office, for the use of such disabled ministers, and their families, as the said, The Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, shall or may designate.

NOTA.—This form will do for a pecuniary bequest. If stocks, or land, or other property is given, the phraseology should be modified to suit the case.

PRESBYTERIAN HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

This Society, which was organized in 1852, embraces all the branches of the Presbyterian Church, and is incorporated by the Legislature of Pennsylvania. It has a library of about 3000 volumes, and a large collection of manuscripts, portraits, and relics of the older divines, to which additional contributions are solicited.

Cor. Sec.—Samuel J. Baird, D. D., Woodbury, N. J.

Librarian and Treasurer—Samuel Agnew, Esq., Philadelphia, Pa.

WANTED

Nos. 3 and 9 of Pamphlet edition for 1850, and Nos. 1 and 10 for 1853, to complete the set for Andover Theological Seminary, Mass. A year's subscription for each No. will be allowed to any one who will send them to

P. WALKER,
821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST

TO ANY OF THE

BOARDS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The State Laws differ so much that no one form will answer in all the States, but in every case it is essential to give the RIGHT CORPORATE NAME.

The oldest Board was originally called the Board of Missions, but is now incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania under the title of "The Trustees of the Board of Domestic Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

Of the Board of Education the corporate name is, "The Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

The Board of Foreign Missions is incorporated under the laws of New York, under the style of "The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

The Board of Publication is incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania under the style of "The Trustees of the Presbyterian Board of Publication."

The Board of Church Extension of the General Assembly is not incorporated, but the following form of bequest, it is supposed, would be valid.

I bequeath to my executors the sum of ——— dollars, in trust, to pay over the same in——— after my decease, to the person who, when the same shall be payable, shall act as Treasurer of the Board of Church Extension of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, located in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, to be applied to the uses and purposes of said Board, and under its directions, and the receipt of the said Treasurer shall be a full and legal acquittance of my said executors for the same.

When real estate or other property is given, let it be particularly described.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Domestic Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, Publication, and the Board of Church Extension, and is issued monthly in newspaper form, at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Packages to Churches, for any number of copies, at 25 cents per copy. Payment in advance.

Address, "Mr. Peter Walker, 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

POSTAGE, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance at the office of delivery.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburgh.

AN OFFER.—Any missionary, colporteur, or other person, procuring new subscribers to the Record at 50 cents each, shall be entitled to 20 per cent. for each such subscription procured and prepaid.

CONTENTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.—Annual Meeting of the Board, p. 97. Abstract of the Sixtieth Annual Report, p. 97. Sorrowing, yet Rejoicing, p. 99. Receipts, p. 99.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—Abstract of the Annual Report, p. 100. Receipts, p. 102.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Recent Intelligence, p. 103. The General Assembly on Foreign Missions, p. 103. What the Church could do, p. 103. Mission in Siam, p. 104. Missions in India: Report of the Station at Lodiana, p. 105. Africa: Corisco Mission, An Ukuku Palaver, p. 106. Mission to the Chinese in California: Varied Labours and Incidents, p. 107. Miscellany: Money sent abroad from the United States, p. 108. Easier to suffer for Christ than to deny him, p. 108. Receipts, p. 108.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.—Action of the General Assembly of 1862, p. 109. Annual Meeting of the Board, p. 109. Colportage on the Mississippi, p. 109. Receipts, p. 110.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.—Annual Statement, p. 111. Action of the General Assembly of 1862 on the Board of Church Extension, p. 111. Receipts, p. 111.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Ecclesiastical Record, p. 112.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME XII. No. 7.—Extra. | PHILADELPHIA, JULY, 1862. | PRICE PER YEAR Fifty Cents.

Twenty-Fifth Annual Report.

The Board of Foreign Missions have received from the Executive Committee a Report of the Foreign Missionary work, as conducted by them during the last year. The Report has been considered and approved by the Board, and it is now submitted to the General Assembly.

They would also report the death of three respected members of their body, the Rev. Allan D. Campbell, D.D., and Messrs. Alexander W. Mitchell, M.D., and Horace Holden, Esq.

New York, May 5, 1862.

REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The Executive Committee lay before the Board of Foreign Missions the following report of the missionary work under their charge for the year ending April 30th, 1862.

FINANCES.

The Receipts from all sources have been $176,939 47; the Expenditures, $177,892 19; leaving a balance against the Treasury of the Board of $952 72. Full particulars of these accounts will be found in the report of the Treasurer. Considering the extraordinary and most painful state of our public affairs during the year, the Committee regard this exhibit of the financial state of the Board with great gratitude to God. Instead of ending the year with a heavy debt, as was seriously feared, the Board has been enabled by the liberal gifts of the friends of this cause to support the missions in nearly all cases in their usual vigour, to send out new labourers, to occupy new ground in some instances, and to close the year in a satisfactory condition. The Committee take great pleasure in recording these statements to the praise of the grace given to their Christian brethren in this year of trial. The gifts of the rich and of the poor have been cast into the Treasury with willing hands, and have been the means of saving this cause from great embarrassment.

It is considered expedient, in the view of the public distress still continuing, and its apprehended effect on the missionary cause, to advert here briefly to some particulars in the financial history of the year, especially with reference to questions of duty now pending and calling soon for positive action. It will be seen from the Treasurer's report that the sum of about $5,600 less was received from Legacies last year than in the year before. In other ways, also, the aggregate income of the Board last year was reduced: among these may be specified, 1st. the withdrawal of contributions from churches in the so-called Seceding States; and 2d. the smaller sum received from the Government on account of schools among the South-Western Indians. The amount of the former was nearly $21,000 less this year than last; of the latter, about $7,000 less. These last causes of diminished income are deeply to be deplored; but the Committee forbear to make any comments on them. They would, however, express their sincere thankfulness that it was by no act of theirs, or of the Church for which they act, that these things have taken place, and that such immeasurable evils as they indicate have been brought on the poor Indians of the South-West, and on the common missionary movements of our body.

Turning now to the case as it stands, the Committee recognize with great thankfulness the fact, as shown in the financial returns of the year, that the churches on whom this cause now rests have extended to it such a liberal support. The year has been one of severe ordeal in respect to this matter, but the church collections have been kept up remarkably well. Hence the hope may be indulged that a not less vigorous support of this work will be afforded in the coming year. The trying discipline of divine providence, and especially the influences of the Holy Spirit, may lead our churches to reach a still higher standard of giving. Earnestly do the Committee hope that there will be a more general and in many instances a more liberal support given to this cause. Unless such should be the case, and taking the collections of the year now ending as the standard, they cannot but look with much concern on the prospects of the missions. The current expenses of the existing missions are not met by the current income from ordinary sources, as these were proved in the year now closing. Without an addition of over one-fourth part to the aggregate amount of the collections of the churches, or about $26,000, they do not see how the missions can be maintained in their present extent; a somewhat larger increase is needed in order to send out the new missionaries now under appointment. On the other hand they do not see how the missions can be reduced without results every way disastrous, nor how new missionaries can be kept at home without great injury to the missions. In reality, the present condition of this matter is most serious and even critical. It involves the existence of some of the missions, no less than a negative answer to brethren who are asking to be sent out as missionaries.

The hand of God for great good to this cause is to be recognized in the signal liberality of a few Christian friends, $20,000 having been received from two, and $26,000 from three,—making about one-fourth of the whole income of the year. But for these, no new labourers could have been sent forth, and the Board would now be heavily in debt. This example will be considered by other Christian friends possessing large means. The Committee must not conclude that large gifts will not hereafter reach the mission treasury; but, nevertheless, it is wise to rely mainly on the regular contributions of the churches. Cannot these be largely increased? Must the Church believe that all her means are exhausted in the support now given to this cause? It is a question to be answered before our blessed Lord and before a perishing world.

Having thus very briefly, but they hope clearly presented the condition of the finances of the Board, the Committee would only express further their continued interest in the gifts of the Children of the Church, amounting to $6,595. On the intelligent, systematic, and whole hearted co-operation of their beloved young friends in this work, more and more from year to year, their hopes of its success very largely depend.

PUBLICATIONS.

The publications of the Board are the same as heretofore reported. Of these, the Foreign Missionary has a monthly circulation of 3,200 copies; and the little newspaper of the same title, which is made up from the larger work, and sent free to Sunday school children who contribute to the Board, circulates 29,000 copies monthly. Of the last Annual Report, 3,500 copies octavo, and 14,500 copies as an extra number of the Record, were published. The Record, still the organ of all the Boards, is published by the Board of Publication, by whom its circulation will be reported. After the suspension of the mails to the so-called Seceded States, the Foreign Missionary could not be forwarded. The number of copies of the newspaper edition, taken in the rest of the country, was somewhat larger than in the preceding year; of the pamphlet edition, about the same.

MISSIONARIES AND ASSISTANT MISSIONARIES SENT OUT.

To the Corisco Mission, Africa.

Rev. James L. Mackey, and his wife—returning to the mission.
Rev. Robert H. Nassau, M. D.
Mrs. George McQueen—returning to the mission.

To the Mission in New Grenada.

Rev. Thomas F. Wallace, and his wife.

To the Mission in Brazil.

Rev. Francis J. C. Schneider.

To the Ningpo Mission, China.

Rev. Samuel Dodd.
Rev. John S. Roberts, and his wife.
Rev. William A. P. Martin, D. D., and his wife—returning to the mission.

To the Mission in Siam.

Rev. Samuel C. George, and his wife.

To the Lodiana Mission, India.

Rev. Levi Janvier, D. D., and his wife—returning to the mission.
Miss Catharine L. Beatty.

UNDER APPOINTMENT.

It gives the Committee great pleasure to report a larger number than usual of approved Christian men as being now under appointment as missionaries, if the Lord will. The exact number will be given in the concluding part of this report. In this place, the Committee desire to call the attention of the Board and of the Church to the question of sending these brethren out. This is a question of urgency as to most of them; a speedy answer is desired. The following report will show that their services are greatly needed in different fields of labour. They have been inclined by divine grace, as they trust, to say to the Church, Here are we, send us. It may reasonably be expected that the same grace will incline the people of God to provide the means of sending them forth. But without a sufficient supply of funds, or a good prospect of obtaining them, the Committee hesitate to take the responsibility of sending them out, and they are anxious to follow the leadings of Providence in this important matter. They hope it may gain the earnest consideration of the General Assembly at its approaching sessions. And they would merely add here, that the correspondence with these brethren and other Christian friends, in reference to their appointment, has required considerable time, and has received the best consideration of the Committee. They regard the appointment of missionaries as one of the most important parts of the work entrusted to their charge.

Northern Indians.

CHIPPEWA AND OTTAWA MISSION.

Grand Traverse.—Rev. Peter Dougherty, superintendent, and Mrs. Dougherty; George Craker, farmer, and Mrs. Craker, (formerly Mrs. Mary McConnel,) superintendent of domestic affairs; Miss M. C. Gibson and Miss Henrietta Dougherty, teachers, Miss C. Gibson, assistant.

Little Traverse.—Mr. Andrew Porter, superintendent, Mrs. Porter; Miss Ann Porter, teacher; Mr. D. Rodd, interpreter.

Grand Traverse.—Some changes have taken place in the force of this mission during the year. After six years of faithful labors, part of the time as teacher, and part of the time as farmer, with the care of the boys when out of school, Mr. John Porter resigned his connection with the mission. He carried with him the best wishes of the Executive Committee. He is settled with his family near these Indians, and his example and good offices will still be of service to his former pupils and to their parents. Mr. George Croker, who for several years was in the employment of the mission, was appointed farmer.

No important changes have taken place in the missionary work during the past year. Whilst the regular religious services have been continued in the church as usual, no additions have been made to the members. Preaching services on the Sabbath, in the morning and the afternoon, have been regularly held; Sabbath-school and prayer-meeting on Friday; and also, a prayer-meeting on Wednesday, conducted by the chief, and other leading members. There has not been any special religious interest in the church or among the scholars in the school. But the meetings have been regularly attended, and the members of the church have conducted themselves well. The congregation is small; from eighty to one hundred, including the scholars, are usually present, and are regular in their attendance.

To limit the expense, the school was reduced to twenty-five scholars. For most of the year there have been fourteen boys and eleven girls in the school. There has been some sickness and one death among the scholars. A bright little girl of seven years died in the institution. Her death appears to have been much blessed to her parents, especially to her father, who was the slave of strong drink. Both parents now attend religious services. All the scholars, except two, read the bible; eleven study geography, and have quite a correct knowledge of it. Besides the usual studies of reading, writing and spelling, attended to by the elementary class, the higher studies of grammar, history, physiology, and book-keeping, have been studied by others. Although the number of the scholars is limited, the school is exerting a salutary influence on the scholars, and on the families to which they belong. Every care is taken of their religious instruction, and also of training them in habits of industry and labor suitable to their position in after life.

The prospect of these Indians is not very encouraging, and their increase is not equal to that of their white neighbors among whom they reside. Yet a portion of them are so far advanced in civilization, in education, and in the practical knowledge of the affairs of life, that they can stand beside their white neighbors. If the stated preaching of the gospel, and the efficient agency of the school be continued, this number will be increased and strengthened from year to year. Their faithful missionary, after years of labor among them, thus pleads on their behalf:

"Will you inform the churches that here are yet immortal minds needing instruction—famishing souls needing the bread and water of life. Shall the cup of salvation be withdrawn from the lips of those perishing people? Tell God's people that the work they sent us here to do in the wilderness is still in progress—where twenty years ago all was a barren waste of paganism and spiritual death, the desert blossoms—plants of holiness are seen—fair blossoms and pleasant fruits are found. Immortal ones gathered into a church, and living according to the precepts of the Saviour. Tell them on the first Sabbath of this new-year, some forty, most of them natives of the forest gathered around the memorials of the Saviour's suffering, and commemorated the death of the same Saviour they love. Ask if we shall leave them? Ask them to remember these perishing ones, lest the Master have occasion to say, 'Inasmuch as ye did it not to these the least, ye did it not to me.'"

Little Traverse.—This station, also known as Bear River, is fifty miles distant from Grand Traverse, lower down on Lake Michigan, and the missionary work was commenced eight years ago. The church, formed at first by a few native members from Grand Traverse, increased during the last five years to thirty-six. Four of these have removed to other localities, two have been removed by death, one has been suspended, and during the present year, eight have withdrawn, and joined the Methodist Church, leaving the number of church members twenty-one. These are active and consistent in their Christian walk and deportment, and although their number was reduced by the unexpected withdrawal of so large a number, the condition of the church is encouraging and full of promise. Mr. Porter conducts weekly and Sabbath services among them, which are well attended.

The children attending the school are boarded in part, receiving one meal a day at the institution; but lodging with their parents at night. The school during the year has been smaller than usual, there being thirty-seven scholars on the roll. The pupils are orderly and well-behaved, in their deportment, and pursue their studies with good success. These consist of reading, spelling, writing and arithmetic: some of the more advanced study grammar and geography. Religious instruction is also carefully attended to, as well on the week days as on the Sabbath.

Four of the tracts of the Board of Publication, have been translated by Mr. Porter and Mr. Rodd, and amounting to 8,000 pages, have been printed in New York. These will supply both stations for a time. These tracts in their own language, as well as the New Testament in Ojibway, furnished by the Bible Society, have been most thankfully received by such of the Indians as can read their own language.

Except in size, this station resembles Grand Traverse, in its wants, its prospects, and its encouragements, as well as its discouragements. Their faithful missionary pleads for them also, that the means of grace, and the advantages of the school may be continued with them.

North-Western Indians.

OMAHA MISSION.

Blackbird Hills.—Rev. Robert J. Burtt, and Mrs. Burtt; Mr. Isaac Black, teacher, and Mrs. Black; Mr. Joseph Betz, farmer, and Mrs. Betz; Miss Ellen Smith, assistant; Mr. John Springer, interpreter.

No change has occurred in the force of this mission during the year, excepting the appointment of Mr. John Springer as interpreter, and Miss Ellen Smith as assistant to Mrs. Burtt.

The church as yet consists of white members only, although there is a good degree of religious feeling manifested by some of the most intelligent of the Indians. Religious services are held on the Sabbath at the mission, and at one of the two villages alternately. A portion of the tribe are regular in their attendance, and the audience frequently numbers one hundred, who are always most orderly and attentive.

The school during the year has been more than usually prosperous. It now numbers thirty-one boys and twenty-five girls. They have been most carefully instructed by Mr. Black, in the different branches of a good English education. They have also made some progress in learning vocal music. Out of school the boys spend a portion of each day in manual labor, under the careful instruction of their teacher and farmer. Two of the larger boys spend their time in the government blacksmith shop, learning the trade. The girls also are taught by the female members of the mission the different branches of housewifery, and the care and management of the dairy. As at other mission schools, the religious instruction is carefully maintained.

Mr. Burtt bears his cordial testimony to the efficiency of the government agent in the discharge of the duties properly belonging to his office, as well as in his example as a consistent Christian, and in the interest he manifests to promote the good of these Indians.

Mr. Burtt's full report to the Indian Bureau is published in the Home and Foreign Record for March. It will repay a careful perusal, and be the means of opening the hearts of God's people to pray for these missionaries, and these benighted Indians, as well as every missionary effort to promote the Saviour's glory in the salvation of perishing men.

"Before closing this part of the report," writes Mr. Burtt, "I may say that there is a growing anxiety on the part of the Omahas to educate their children. Of this there is ample evidence in the former portion of this paper. Long since have I been satisfied, by a residence and labours among the Choctaws, as well as my experience among the Omahas, that if the Indians are ever to be brought into a state of civilization, it must be by means of such schools as this.

"In regard to my labours as a missionary, I have few words to say. Every Sabbath, services are held, not only at the mission, but at either of the two villages alternately. We are not without hope; the good seed has been sown; it will spring up, grow, and produce its fruit. As a missionary, I am encouraged; as a superintendent, I am encouraged; as a labourer for the civilization and Christianizing of this people, I am encouraged."

INDIAN ORPHAN INSTITUTE.

Highland.—Mr. James Williams, superintendent, and Mrs. Williams; Miss Margaret A. Patterson, teacher.

Mrs. Cora A. Sheilds, mentioned in the last annual report as one of the teachers, by mutual consent left the mission in the early part of the year. She carried with her the entire esteem and confidence of her associates in the mission.

The number of scholars mentioned in the last annual report was thirty-four. Of these one has died, and ten who were not orphans, and whose parents refused to assist them, were dismissed. Four new scholars have been added, so that the school now consists of twenty-seven. Of these, twelve are girls and fifteen are boys. These are from the following tribes—the Iowas, the Sioux, and the Blackfeet. Should the funds of the Board permit, it will be easy to double the number of these orphan Indian children, who will thus have given to them an English education, and habits of practical industry, and what is above all, a careful religious training and instruction in God's holy word. The return of the Indian youth, thus qualified, to their respective tribes, with the blessing of God, would be to them as life from the dead.

In relation to the school, Miss Patterson writes: "Since Mrs. Sheilds left, I have the charge of the whole school. One of the girls assists me. Some of the pupils improve rapidly, others get along very slowly. Most of them are good readers and spellers in English, and are learning to write. They commit verses of Scripture very readily. We are not permitted to see much fruit of our missionary labours, but we hope and trust that all has not been in vain. We meet with many discouragements and troubles by the way, and sometimes almost sink under them. But Christ is our strength. He bears us up and cheers us on our way."

There are regular religious services on the Sabbath at Highland, which is so convenient to the mission, that the families and scholars can attend. Services are also conducted in the mission chapel in the institution.

The disturbed state of the country, growing out of the present war, has given the brethren at this mission some uneasiness. But they have been preserved in peace, even when danger was near their doors.

The number of orphan children among the Indian tribes is large, and many of them sink under the suffering and hardships to which they are exposed. This institution is the only one of the kind, and holds out the only encouragement to these orphan children of the forest, or the prairie. The building is large and well suited for a boarding-school. The farm is large, well opened, and well stocked, and the soil is rich. Thus a large portion of the expense will be drawn from these sources.

The Committee again recommend this institution to the liberality and prayerful remembrance of God's people.

South-Western Indians.

The missions among the Chickasaws, Choctaws, Creeks and Seminoles were continued in their usual efficiency and interest until the months of June and July, when by the influence of the late government Indian Agents among these tribes, and the active interference of the highest civil and military authorities of Arkansas, as well as lawless bodies of men from Texas, all the councils of their tribes, yielding to this pressure, joined the Confederate States. These proceedings were disastrous to the schools established among these Indians, and also greatly interfered with the regular preaching of the Gospel. The schools were at once broken up, and more than four hundred youths and children were sent to their homes. Six male teachers and seventeen female teachers returned to their homes in the North. Of the ordained missionaries four returned, while ten remained, some of whom were detained by sickness in their families. Seven native ministers and licentiates also remained. All the male and female teachers, with the exception of one of each class, returned. In the month of July the communication with these missions was suspended, and funds from the Northern States could not be sent to these Southern tribes. The Committee presume, however, that the missionaries who remain have secured assistance from funds raised for that purpose in the Southern States.

When the Indian Councils disbanded the schools, they also took possession of all the property of the Board at the different stations. This consisted of stock, farming utensils, furniture, school books and apparatus. They also took possession of the supplies for the year commencing the 1st of July, of groceries, clothing, hardware, books, etc., which had just arrived. All this property, by a former decision of the Department, belonged to the Board, and a claim has been presented to the government for remuneration for the property thus unlawfully taken.

Other expenses also attended the changed condition of these missions. The travelling expenses of the missionaries and teachers returning home, had to be paid. And for these devoted labourers, thus thrown out of employment, the Committee could not do less than make an allowance of six months' salary, thus giving them time to engage in other employments.

It is with sorrow that such an interruption of the missionary work, and such a disastrous change are contemplated. Among these tribes the labours of the missionaries and teachers had been eminently successful. A few years more of such efficient labours, with the blessing of God, would have resulted in the education of so many of the youth of both sexes, thus qualifying them to be teachers, that the community might have been left to this supply chiefly for their wants; and also for a supply of ministerial labourers. With the present native ministry, and the number who in a few years more would have been added to them, only a few evangelists would have been wanted to supply the great and important agency of a preached gospel. But these additional means of missionary training have been cut off. Instead of the peaceful progress of the missionary work, blessing these Indians and their children, they are engaged in a cruel and savage war among themselves, and it is impossible to tell what the result of this state of things may be to them.

At present it is impossible to foresee what will be the duty of the Board in regard to them, even when the present troubles are over. It was only after years of laborious and patient effort, that the system of boarding-schools was established, and the qualified missionaries, and male and female teachers were obtained. A part of these missionaries, and all these teachers, have been obliged, at much expense to the Board, to leave their missionary work. It is not likely that any effort will be made to reconstruct these missions on the same plan. Indeed, the advance of civilization among these tribes, renders boarding-schools much less necessary than they were among them fifteen years ago. It may be, however, that a system of measures, simple in their form, and resting chiefly on a native agency, may be adopted, that in the future will meet and supply the wants of these poor Indians. In the meantime, let the church remember them daily at the throne of grace. God has much people among them, and may his grace and mercy overrule their present affliction and trial to their best and lasting interests.

The following list contains the names of the missionary labourers returned from the South-Western Indians:

Of the Choctaw Mission:—Spencer Academy.—S. O. Lee, Rob't Young, C. P. Ives, teachers; Nathaniel Wiggins, steward and farmer; Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Wiggins and Miss Sarah R. Wiggins, assistants. Mrs. Young, after a protracted illness, was taken to her rest, on the 6th of August; her illness prevented her removal, and she died before Mr. Young left the Indian country. She was supported by a good hope through grace.

Goodwater.—Rev. George Ainslie, Misses Elizabeth Diament, Julia H. Hitchcock and Sue McBeth, teachers.

Wheelock.—Rev. John Edwards and Mrs. Edwards, Misses Euphemia McLeod and Sarah Long, teachers.

Stockbridge.—Misses Lizzie Culbertson and C. B. Downing, teachers.

Lenox.—Rev. Simon L. Hobbs and Mrs. Hobbs.

Creek:—Mr. W. S. Robertson, principal teacher; Mrs. Robertson, Misses A. M. Turner, Joana Mills, Nannie Shepherd and Mary Vance, teachers.

Seminole:—Rev. J. Ross Ramsay and Mrs. Ramsay, prevented from returning to this mission.

The names of the missionaries and asssistant missionaries who were not compelled to leave the Indian country, and from whom no communication has been received since early in last summer, are the following:

Of the Creek Mission:—Rev. R. M. Loughridge and his wife; Mr. J. P. Davis, teacher; Rev. David Winslett and Mr. J. M. Perryman, licentiate preacher, both Creeks. Mr. and Mrs. McCollough had been previously released from the service of the Board.

Seminole:—Rev. John Lilley and his wife.

Chickasaw:—Rev. H. Balentine and his wife, Rev. Allen Wright, native, and his wife.

Choctaw:—Rev. Messrs. Alexander Reid, Cyrus Kingsbury, D. D., Cyrus Byington, Oliver P. Stark, Charles C. Copeland, and their wives; Mr. Theodore Jones, steward, and his wife; Miss Clara W. Eddy, teacher; Rev. Pliny Fisk, and Messrs. J. E. Dwight, W. Field, and T. H. Benton, licentiate preachers,—the last four being Choctaws; and two other native helpers. Mr. Joseph Dukes, native licentiate preacher, departed this life August 12th, sustained by the hope of immortality.

South American Missions.

MISSION IN NEW GRANADA.

Bogota.—Rev. Messrs. William E. McLaren and Thomas F. Wallace, and their wives; in this country, Rev. Horace B. Pratt and his wife.

In the list of labourers the name of Mr. Pratt is retained as a matter of propriety, as he has not been formally released from his connection with the Board. He has not been supported from its funds, however, since his return from Bogota, and he is now in the so-called Seceded States. Mrs. Sharpe entered into the marriage relation with a gentlemen in Bogota, and is no longer connected with the mission, though she is still a member of the mission church in that city. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace embarked for New Granada on the 11th of January, and arrived at Bogota on the 19th of March. Mr. and Mrs. McLaren were the only missionaries on the ground during most of the year.

The political condition of the country continues to be greatly disturbed. The civil war is not yet ended, and it stands much in the way of efforts for the evangelization of the people. Great progress has been made, however, by this war towards religious liberty, and with the success of the Liberals the prospects of missionary labour will be most encouraging. At the beginning of the year the Conservative or Jesuit party held the capital of the country. In July, General Mosquera, after a severe conflict, gained possession of Bogota and the reins of government. Soon afterwards the Jesuit priests were banished from New Granada, the archbishop was exiled, and the monastic orders were placed under restrictions, while a large amount of mortmain property was seized for the use of the government. This is not the place for narrating the progress of events, but this brief statement will show how greatly the best interests of the country will be advanced by the triumph of the Liberal party.

The continued study of the Spanish language occupied much of Mr. McLaren's time, and his proficiency in it was such, that he was prepared in December to preach to the people in their own tongue, and he had made arrangements for this purpose. These were interrupted by a serious illness, and on his recovery the disturbed state of public affairs rendered further delay expedient. He has prepared a Tract, entitled El Protestantismo, or, What is Protestantism, which came from the press towards the end of the year. It may be expected to render good service to the cause of religion, but for the present, Mr. McLaren deems it advisable to distribute it only in a quiet way. In the same manner copies of the Scriptures are put into circulation; the effort to keep a small depository for the sale of the Bible and religious publications, in the hands of a native agent, was moderately successful. In existing circumstances, the missionaries will embrace opportunities of conversation with individuals, and of placing the Scriptures in the hands of those who are likely to prize them; they may have to wait for more settled times before entering fully on the usual kinds of missionary work. In the meantime, Mr. McLaren has conducted public worship in English, which has been attended with encouraging results. An example of conversion at the eleventh hour was of remarkable interest. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered in November last, when a church was constituted consisting of six members; it was expected that some others would be received at the next communion.

The future course of this mission seems at present likely to be much influenced by the success or the defeat of the Liberal party in the state; not much encouragement could be expected, even if toleration were granted, under the government if controlled by Jesuit counsels. The danger now apparently most imminent is that the ignorant masses of the people, at the instigation of bigotted priests, may be excited to a fanatical opposition to the Liberal government. If this should not be the case, it would still seem doubtful whether a settled state of public affairs will soon be witnessed; but there are men of enlightened views in the country, who understand its evils, and who understand also, in some degree, their remedy. Commercial interests, moreover, will always advocate the restoration of order and peace. But whatever may be the issue of the existing troubles, the Church of Christ must be ready to enter such doors as are open, and to make the gospel known to many or to few, as opportunity may permit. The leaven of gospel truth may be implanted in very limited measure, indeed the kingdom of God does not often come with observation, and in most missionary fields the missionaries must be content to pursue their great work amongst small congregations, in the face of opposition; but they pursue it in the exercise of faith—knowing that in the end success is sure.

MISSION IN BRAZIL.

Rio de Janeiro.—Rev. Ashbel G. Simonton, Rev. Alexander L. Blackford and his wife.—San Paulo.—Rev. Francis J. C. Schneider.

This mission has been marked with tokens of the favour of God during the last year. The brethren have enjoyed good health, and have been engaged in their work without interruption. Their number has been increased by the arrival of Mr. Schneider on the 7th of December. His station at San Paulo, or at some place in that vicinity, was chosen with reference to the settlements of German immigrants in the southern part of the empire. He will be able at once to seek the salvation of these neglected people, many of whom are Protestants; but he will learn the Portuguese language with a view to missionary labours amongst the Brazilians as his main sphere of duty. His work among the Germans will be essentially missionary, as they are mostly very poor. It is considered a matter of much moment that they should be brought under the power of the gospel; their habits of industry, thrift, and energy will give them great influence eventually over the less enterprising natives of the country.

Mr. Blackford has not yet had time to learn the language of the country thoroughly, but he is already able to engage in missionary work. "With the double purpose," it is stated in the report of the mission, "of making more rapid progress in the Portuguese language, and of furthering the dissemination of the Bible and Tracts, he took a journey into the province of Minas, leaving Rio early in November last, and remaining absent a couple of months. He met personally with kindness on the part of the people, and was able to put into circulation a number of Tracts and a few copies of the Sacred Scriptures. Perhaps Minas is the most important province in the empire, partly on account of its extent and natural advantages of various kinds, but principally because of the industry and energy of its population. Mr. Blackford saw, however, many proofs of the slavish subjection of the people to their priests, and of the hostility of this class to the gospel of the grace of Christ." These men are described as feared, rather than respected or loved. An example is mentioned of their successful opposition a few years ago to an agent of the Bible Society, and of the burning of Bibles "which dared to say blasphemously that Jesus Christ was the Primogenito instead of the Unigenito of Mary."

In the early part of the year Mr. Simonton completed the tour in the southern part of the country, which was referred to in the last Annual Report, and of which an interesting account was published in the Record. He was able on this journey to distribute some copies of the Scriptures and to make arrangements for their further circulation, as well as to acquire valuable information for the use of the mission. After his return to the capital, Mr. Simonton resumed his work of religious instruction among the natives as opportunity permitted, and English preaching was kept up by the brethren. The number of persons in attendance at any of these services was never large. The day has not yet come when large congregations can be collected to hear the preaching of the gospel, but some doors are nevertheless open for declaring the truth as it is in Jesus, and some hearts have also been opened to receive the love of the truth that they might be saved. The brethren say in their report:

"On the 12th of January, the Sabbath occurring at the close of the Concert for Prayer, we organized a mission church, receiving to our communion two persons on profession of their faith. One of these is an American merchant, whose conversion is a pleasing token of God's favour upon our English service; and the other is a young man, a native of Portugal, but long a resident of Brazil, who gives good promise of usefulness in bringing others of his countrymen to the faith of the gospel. . . . One or two others would probably have made an open profession of their faith, had they not been hindered by opposing circumstances."

The missionaries have under their direction a colporteur, who is supported by the British and Foreign Bible Society, whose labours have been useful. They speak of "a wide and inviting field of usefulness open to them in the free Press of this country," through which access may be gained to the public mind; and "there is great need of printing and circulating suitable religious Tracts, and of creating a religious literature in the Portuguese language." With a better knowledge of the language, and a larger supply of funds, they will be able to do their part in this province of Christian duty.

This brief statement of the work in progress and in contemplation, will serve to show that there is in Brazil an important field of missionary labour. This is the opinion of the brethren on the ground. They say, "We feel authorized to speak encouragingly of our work. The experience of the past year may be said to have solved, in a satisfactory manner, all reasonable doubts respecting the possibility or the expediency of missionary labour in Brazil. It has been proved greatly to our joy, that the liberal Constitution of the empire will receive a liberal interpretation, and in addition, a practical enforcement to an extent that augurs well for the future. Not only in the capital, but also in one of the northern provinces, where a most estimable missionary [of another church] is labouring, the people are being familiarized to a system of religious toleration uncommonly simple and broad in its provisions. When the extent of the empire and the stability of its government are recollected, so satisfactory a solution of the question of religious freedom is of encouragement."

There are difficulties, and these may become greater than they are now, in the presence of numerous ecclesiastics of a fallen church, and their power over ignorant people, such as constitute the greater part of the population; and perhaps still more in the general prevalence of indifference to all matters of spiritual and eternal concern. The god of this world will not surrender his place and power without a contest. But mightier is He who has sent forth these few missionaries than all the powers of the Evil One, and his kingdom shall yet be established over all this vast empire.

Missions in Western Africa.

LIBERIA MISSION.

Monrovia.—Rev. Amos Herring; Mr. B. V. R. James, teacher of the English school; Rev. Edward Blyden, Principal of the Alexander High School; Rev. Edwin T. Williams, in this country.

Kentucky.—Rev. H. W. Erskine; Mr. James Evans.

Harrisburg.—Simon Harrison, licentiate preacher; F. A. Melville, teacher in native boarding-school.

Mount Coffee.—Rev. Armistead Miller.

Sinou.—Rev. James M. Priest; Mrs. Mary Parsons, teacher.

Settra Kru.—Washington McDonogh, teacher.

Niffau.—Rev. Thomas H. Amos, Rev. James R. Amos.

Monrovia.—Mr. Williams' health has not permitted his return to Liberia, though it has somewhat improved. Although his connection with the Board is still continued, he is at no expense to it. His former labors in Africa were greatly blessed, and his anxious desire is to return and resume them.

The church reports no addition for the last year—the number of members still continuing at fifty-four. The sabbath-school has forty scholars, a part of whom are the re-captured Africans.

The English school, taught by Mr. James, contains sixty pupils, and is reported as in good operation, and the scholars making respectable progress.

The Alexander High School has been conducted with the usual efficiency. As mentioned in the last annual report, Mr. Blyden was allowed a few months' vacation, during which he visited England, Scotland, and the United States. The school, in the meantime, was under the care of M. M. Witherspoon, a former pupil of the school—a good classical scholar, with a fair knowledge of the different branches of mathematics. The various studies have been pursued with the usual success—the number of scholars varying from twelve to fifteen. No young men in any institution of learning, perhaps, can be more diligent in their studies and in their desire to obtain a thorough education. The difficulty of obtaining scholarships induces those who are so privileged to make the best use of their advantages.

The Rev. Edward W. Blyden, after several years' service as principal of the Alexander High School, resigned his connection with the Board, and accepted the appointment of professor of languages in the Liberia College—an institution located in Monrovia, under the direction of an incorporated society in Boston. The establishment of this institution in Monrovia made it doubtful whether the High School should be continued in the same place. When first established, Monrovia was the most suitable place for it; but the advance of the population and the increase of the settlements on the rich lands of the St. Paul's River make a change of place desirable.

In view of procuring a more suitable location for the institution, and especially in view of the uncertainty as to the funds of the Board being sufficient to meet the current expenses of the different missions, early in last summer it was decided to suspend the operations of the school after the 31st of December. It is now believed that the funds of the Board will justify the continuance of this important agency; and early in April it was decided to open the school as heretofore. In the meantime, measures will be taken, as the way may open, for carrying out the contemplated changes. This will cause no loss of property to the Board. The large school-house in Monrovia for a number of years past has been occupied by the English school, for which it is well suited—a smaller building being found sufficient for the high school.

This institution, though struggling with many difficulties, has already been a great blessing to Liberia. Some of these difficulties will not again occur; for qualified teachers can now be obtained, as they have been for some years past, from its former pupils. This school has already furnished some of the best officers of the civil government. Two of its pupils are in the ministry, and others are preparing for the same important office. It has furnished qualified and Christian teachers for our own schools, and, to some extent, for the schools of other denominations.

Kentucky.—Mr. Erskine has three places of preaching: Clay Ashland, Caldwell, and Congo town. The native villages in reach of his labors are also frequently visited. No additions to the church are reported. At Clay Ashland there was seriousness, two applications for church privileges, and a general attendance. At the communion season, large numbers of the re-captured Africans were present at nearly all the meetings. A great many inquiries were made by them as to the meaning of the sacrament, which of course was explained to them. These re-captives are reported as fast acquiring the habits and customs of civilized life. They are seen in the churches and sabbath-schools, well-clothed, and intent on acquiring a knowledge of letters.

The school was taught the first half of the year by George M. Erskine, a pupil of the Alexander High School. He then received a free scholarship in the University of Edinburgh, Scotland. The school is now taught by James Eden, also a pupil of the High School. It is reported to be full, although the number of scholars is not stated. The good behavior and progress of the scholars are noticed with approbation, both by Mr. Erskine and Mr. James.

Harrisburg.—There is a small church here, to which Mr. Harrison preaches statedly, and with which is connected a large sabbath-school, taught by Mr. Harrison and F. A. Melville, a former pupil of the High School. The boarding-school, consisting of twenty boys from the native villages and twelve boys of the re-captured Africans, has been continued through the year: Mr. Melville has the entire instruction of these boys. Having a new language to learn, their progress in education cannot be very rapid, at first; but they form an interesting class of boys, and are well-behaved and obedient. The African races are noted for the facility with which they learn the English language. A few years of such training and instruction as they receive will give each of them a plain education and habits of industry, which will fit them for the privileges in store for them as citizens of a free and civilized community.

Sinou.—This is one of the principal settlements of Liberia. It is about one hundred miles south-east from Monrovia, contains from four to five hundred inhabitants, with a large native and friendly population.

The church is reported as neither increasing nor diminishing, though the attendance is regular, and the sabbath-school well kept up in numbers and attendance.

Mrs. Parsons' school is larger than usual, on account of some other schools being suspended. It numbers forty-nine, including two girls of the re-captured Africans.

Settra Kru.—The small native boarding-school at this station is still kept up, though often with much embarrassment, on account of the difficulty of reaching it with the usual and necessary supplies. It lies between Sinou and Cape Palmas, and is settled mostly by the Kroos: hence, few ships stop at this point on the coast, and the native trade is small. These natives have a high regard for Mr. McDonogh. They claim him as their judge to settle the disputes among themselves, and to aid them should they be oppressed by others. The school, at the last account, had fourteen children, four of whom were Congos. Feeble as the agency has been at this station, it has not been without fruit. The habits of the people are partially civilized, and there has been much knowledge of gospel truth made known to both the young and the old.

Mount Coffee.—This station is about fifty miles east of Monrovia. The situation is deemed the best for health of any in Liberia. Mr. Miller, with much labor, has finished the buildings, and his family is now residing at the station. The buildings are well adapted for the work of the mission; and although they cost more than was expected, the improvements will be needed in carrying forward the necessary work. Mr. Mackey and Mr. James, who visited the station, report the location as being most suitable. A number of villages of the Golah tribe are in the immediate vicinity. They are pleased with the prospect of having their children educated.

Four of the re-captured Africans are in Mr. Miller's family receiving instruction. Ten orphan children, whose parents were, either one or both, American born, are extremely anxious to come to the mission school. Also sixteen from native families are equally desirous to be received. The impression prevailed that a manual labor school was to be established, and all these expressed their willingness to work on the farm for their support. When the farm is opened there is no doubt but an efficient boarding-school could be sustained at a comparatively small expense.

Mr. Miller has regular service in English, on the Sabbath forenoon, at the mission station, at which a number of the natives attend, although their attendance is not very regular. In the afternoon he visits some of the adjacent villages, and preaches through an interpreter. The attendance is various, and generally the attention is very good.

Niffau.—The commencement of this station, situated halfway between Sinou and Cape Palmas, was mentioned in the last Annual Report. At first, the attendance of the natives at religious service on the Sabbath was good, between two and three hundred being usually present. In January, 1861, a boarding-school, with twenty-four scholars, was commenced. In March, the school was reported as containing twenty scholars, and the aspect of the field as still hopeful. In April, it was found to be very difficult to keep the boys in the school, the religious services were not well attended, the head men were unwilling to protect the property of the mission, and no redress could be obtained for articles stolen.

In July, these brethren made a tour into the interior. They found the country very populous, the inhabitants kind to them, but most profoundly ignorant of divine things. It was their opinion, that for a hundred miles inland, if these tribes could be reached, the field of missionary labor would be far more encouraging than among the tribes on the coast.

On their return, they found their prospects still more discouraging and embarrassing. They describe the natives as outlaws, thieves and robbers—fraudulent, perfidious and avaricious; and that even the traders cannot live among them, and seldom call at the settlement. Later accounts stated that not a single headman was friendly to them or to their work, and that the children were all taken away from the school; that the health of Mr. James Amos had for months been suffering with fever, and the health of Mr. Thomas Amos was suffering also; that, in this state of things, they had come to the conclusion that it was best to suspend all further effort at that station for the space of two years.

In these circumstances, the Committee authorized the return of Mr. James Amos, on account of his health. They advised that a further trial be made of the mission under the charge of Mr. Thomas Amos, assisted by a competent teacher from Monrovia, one of the former scholars of the Alexander high school.

CORISCO MISSION.

Evangasimba.—Rev. James L. Mackey and Mrs. Mackey; Charles L. Loomis, M. D., licentiate preacher, in this country; Rev. Robert H. Nassau, M. D., Miss Mary C. Latta, and Mrs. G. McQueen, widow of the Rev. George McQueen, Jr., formerly of this mission.

Ugovi.—Rev. Cornelius De Heer.

Alongo.—Rev. William Clemens; Mrs. Clemens, in this country; Rev. Walter H. Clarke; Mrs. Clarke, in this country.

Out-stations. — Cape Esterias — Andeke Inenji, licentiate preacher; Ilovi Island—Ibio Ikenge, licentiate preacher; Kombe—Belevi, Bible reader; Mavica, —Native teacher; Ulembana,—Native teacher.

Some changes have taken place in the force of this mission during the past year. On the 12th of May the Rev. Thomas S. Ogden was removed by death, and his wife and child some months afterwards returned to this country. On the 20th of August, Mrs. E. H. Loomis was also removed by death, and her husband, the Rev. Charles L. Loomis, M. D., on account of want of health, returned to this country in November. On the 1st of January, Miss Maria M. Jackson was united in marriage to the Rev. Walter H. Clarke, of the Gaboon mission of the American Board. Mr. Clarke has since been appointed a missionary of the Board at Corisco. Mrs. Clarke, on account of the want of health, returned to this country for a season in November. On the 2d of July the Rev. James L. Mackey, Mrs. Mackey, the Rev. Robert H. Nassau and Mrs. G. McQueen sailed for Corisco, where they arrived on the 1st of September.

Evangasimba.—As stated in the last report there is but one church organization on the island, and the communion is celebrated at this station. At the other stations religious services are maintained, but here the missionaries and native Christians, from all the stations meet together once in three months for commemorating the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and other religious exercises, and at these seasons the attendance is large, filling to overflowing the largest chapel.

Embracing all the stations, nineteen adults have been received into the church on profession of their faith and baptism. Two have been restored who were under suspension. Three infants have been baptised. Two persons have been excommunicated, and ten have been suspended from church privileges. Whole number of church members, adults, eighty-two, of whom seventy-five are natives; infants, nine. In Sabbath schools one hundred and sixty. Sums contributed to the Boards of the Church $150, and to miscellaneous objects $48. The general attendance of the inhabitants is not so large, nor is there the same evidence of an active work of grace as at some previous times. Still there is much that is deeply interesting at the different stations, and much to encourage the laborers in their missionary work.

At this station there has been preaching twice on the Sabbath, and generally once during the week, besides daily morning and evening services at the two dwellings of the missionaries, accompanied by familiar exposition of the scriptures; these services are well attended by the neighboring people. The native converts hold a weekly prayer-meeting by themselves. The candidates for the ministry, and sometimes others collect the people together on the Sabbath for exhortation and prayer. The Sabbath-school, with the exception of three Sabbaths, has been regularly sustained, the number of scholars varying from thirty to sixty-five, ages from six years to sixty. Two bible classes have been formed of those who can read. A class of inquirers meet at the close of the Sabbath-school. Two candidates for the ministry, and three native assistants for the main land, besides a few other promising youth, receive special instructions from one of the missionaries.

The female boarding-school contains twenty-four pupils. It is justly regarded as one of the most important agencies of the mission. There has always been much difficulty in obtaining female pupils, though the difficulty is less now than formerly. All the habits, prejudices and superstition of the people were against any instruction being given to females. The religious training of the pupils, as in all the mission schools, is of course carefully attended to. Besides the common school lessons, they are taught sewing and other domestic duties. Mr. Nassau has now the general superintendence of the school. Miss Latta has labored with much patience and ability in their instruction, and with much success. Mrs. McQueen has the general charge of the indoor work, and assists in the care of the girls when out of school.

The labors of Dr. Loomis as a physician, in the absence of Mr. Mackey, were found to be most important. Among the people there was an unusual amount of suffering. Maladies of a malignant type have prevailed. Their frequent wars have furnished many gunshot wounds, and severe wounds by knives. Besides there were thirty-two cases of intermittent fever, remittent five, malignant five—two of which proved fatal. These were the devoted and beloved members of the mission, Mr. Ogden and Mrs. Loomis.

Ugovi.—This station is on the south side of the Island, and is under the care of Mr. De Heer. It includes a chapel for regular preaching, a Sabbath-school, and a boarding-school for boys. Religious services have been held twice every Sabbath. The attendance has not equalled that of former years, the average number being sixty, including all belonging to the station. This is only about half the number reported last year as the usual attendance. Three meetings for prayer and instruction are held during the week, and a female prayer meeting. The Sabbath-school is attended by forty-seven scholars, old and young. After the Sabbath school a meeting is held for a class of inquirers, consisting of eight members. During the year four were admitted to the privileges of the church, making the number of members at this station eighteen. Mr. De Heer bears full testimony to the good standing and careful conduct of the native converts, although they were exposed to many temptations. They give evidence of their growing in grace, and in the knowledge of the Saviour, and are regular and punctual in their attendance on all the religious meetings.

The boarding school numbers twenty-seven, and there are besides a few day scholars. Their studies are the same as stated in the last Annual Report. Their progress in learning, and their good behaviour are specially noticed. Two of the oldest scholars are members of the church. One of these has been employed as an interpreter, and the other in teaching, and both are exerting a good influence on the other scholars.

Alongo.—This station is on the north side of the Island, under the care of Mr. Clemens and Mr. Clarke. Their missionary labors are substantially similar to those at the other stations—preaching the gospel to the people around them, and conducting a boarding-school for boys belonging to the tribes on the main land, with the view of raising up a native ministry for the benighted regions from which the scholars of the school are received.

Regular preaching of the gospel has been maintained through the year. The congregations have very much diminished, compared with the attendance of last year. There are between thirty and forty living at the station, including the scholars of the school. These are regular in their attendance. Of those living outside of the station, sometimes as many as forty attend, but often a less number. The Sabbath-school is composed almost exclusively of those at the station.

Without the agency of a native ministry, no means seemed to be practicable to reach the tribes on the main land. Hence the plan was adopted of having a school on Corisco composed of children and youth from those tribes. From infancy the school has grown to be a centre of interest to those around the mission. Whilst the tribes on the main land have shown no signs of distrusting the missionaries, to whom they have committed their children for instructions, the people on the Island have never withdrawn their protection. This is the more remarkable, as they have several times been at war with tribes whose children were in the school.

The school proper contains twenty-five scholars. Of these sixteen have been two years in the school, and nine have been four years. There have also been six irregulars, making in all thirty-one under instruction, from six different tribes, including the Benga. The first class of sixteen have advanced in the elementary branches to the English Readers, and the English New Testament, and in Benga to the gospel by Matthew and the Shorter Catechism. A part of this class memorise a verse daily in the English Testament, and several are taking their first lessons in penmanship. Two of this class are members of the church.

Of the second class, who have been five years in school, three have been employed as assistant teachers, one is a candidate for the ministry under the care of the presbytery, and three are assisting in translations. The secular studies of the class have been philosophy, astronomy and composition. Seven are members of the church, three of whom were received during the year.

The six irregulars are young men who designed to devote themselves to the work of the Lord as Bible readers. Two have discontinued their studies, and one is temporarily absent. Two of the others are from the Kombe tribe, and one from the Benga. These are educated in the vernacular merely. The two from the Kombe tribe have already spent six months on the Muni river: one among the Mbikos, forty-five miles, and the other near the mountains, eighty-five miles distant from Corisco. Africa is the land of the colored race, and they must bear the lamp of life to their kindred. The two here mentioned are preparing to return to their respective fields, to give themselves permanently to their work.

Out-stations.—The Island of Ilovi is near the main land, in the bay of Corisco. The labors of Ibio have been continued during the year, and he has retained the full confidence of the people of this island. Cape Isterias is on the main land south of Corisco. The inhabitants there have given a cordial invitation to Andeke to labor among them, and the church of Corisco have engaged to furnish his support as their missionary. The work on the main land at these out-stations is exceedingly interesting and full of promise to these dark and benighted regions. In October last, Mr. Clemens wrote: "Our work has greatly enlarged among the natives living on the main land. This is a part of the work which greatly rejoices our hearts—not so much for what has been already done, as in the preparation for occupying the field in future. One licentiate of our presbytery now resides permanently on the Island of Ilobi, and breaks the bread of life to his countrymen. He has spent some time in building a house, on ground purchased by the mission, at a cost of $14.45. One precious soul has already been gathered from his field. A Bible-reader has been living in the Kombe tribe, north of Corisco. His aim is to read and explain the sacred page according to his humble ability. The Lord has graciously been present with him, though none have yet been received into the church—he being too far separated to attend with his candidates at the church on Corisco. He has likewise completed a bamboo house, at the small expense of $15.52, sufficiently large to hold his congregation. . . . . There are others also ready to be sent out to gather souls to the kingdom of God. These young laborers take up their cross for Christ's sake, for there are perils among the heathen; yet, with the love of Christ sustaining them, they are willing to give themselves to the work. . . . As a mission, we are endeavoring to place these laborers at suitable intervals among the tribes. As far as our explorations have extended, little opposition is anticipated from the heathen. The country, with its unhealthy climate, still spreads out before the heralds of the Cross. But the glorious gospel of the Son of God shall triumph; for the oath of the everlasting God stands pledged for its fulfilment: "And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." As late as December last, Mr. Mackey wrote: "Our work on the main land assumes more and more interest. Our little church has undertaken to support Andeke, one of our licentiates on the main land. He has been a week or two at Cape Esterias, and was warmly welcomed by the people. They expressed great desire to have him stay among them, and he will most likely be sent there by the presbytery. At Kombe, forty-five miles north of Corisco, we have Belevi, not yet licensed, but a Bible reader. He has great ability as a speaker, and his labours, in holding prayer meetings and exhorting the people, have been greatly blessed. He has a class of inquirers numbering twelve. Mr. Clemens has been twice to see him, within a few months past; and he and I expect to go together, in a few days, to examine several of the inquirers with reference to their baptism."

The proposed visit to Kombe of these two brethren, accompanied by two of the elders and some members of the church of Corisco, the former as a committee of the session, took place in January. A full account of this visit is given in the interesting journal of Mr. Mackey, published in the Home and Foreign Record, of May. They were most cordially received by the community, and spent several days in preaching and other religious services among the people. The inquirers were most carefully examined, and six of them were received into the communion of the church. The audience on the Sabbath was large, and all appeared to be deeply interested. After sermon, these six young men were baptized, and sat down with the brethren from Corisco at the table of the Lord.

In view of such tokens of the Divine presence, let the people of God, in their churches at home, praise the Lord for his wonderful grace to those hitherto sitting in the region and shadow of death; and let them not cease to pray that these native converts may be preserved blameless in the midst of the surrounding heathenism, and that even there they may be as lights shining in a dark place, in this benighted land.

Missions in India.

LODIANA MISSION.

Peshawar: west of the Indus; mission station commenced, 1857; missionary labourer, Rev. Isador Loewenthal.

Rawal Pindi: 160 miles north-west of Lahor; mission station commenced 1855; missionary labourers, Rev. James H. Orbison and his wife; native Christian assistants—one Scripture reader, and one colporteur.

Lahor: the political capital of the Punjab, 1,225 miles north-west of Calcutta; mission station commenced, 1850; missionary labourers, Rev. John Newton, Rev. Charles W. Forman and his wife; native Christian assistants—four teachers and one Scripture reader.

Kapurthala: 108 miles east of Lahor, 12 miles west of Jalandar; mission station commenced, 1859; missionary labourers, Rev. John S. Woodside and his wife; John Newton, Jr., M. D., and his wife; native Christian assistants—one teacher, one Scripture reader, and one medical helper.

Jalandar: 120 miles east of Lahor, 30 miles west of Lodiana; mission station commenced, 1847; missionary labourers, Rev. Golok Nath;* other native Christian assistants—one teacher, one catechist, and one Scripture reader.

Lodiana: near the river Sutlej, 1,100 miles north-west of Calcutta; mission station commenced, 1834; missionary labourers, Rev. Messrs. Levi Janvier, D. D., and Adolph Rudolph and their wives; Mr. Reese Thackwell, licentiate preacher and teacher, and his wife; Miss Catharine L. Beatty, teacher; native Christian assistants—two Scripture readers.

Ambala: 55 miles south-east of Lodiana; mission station commenced, 1848; missionary labourers, Rev. Marcus M. Carleton and his wife; native Christian assistants—one catechist, three teachers, and one Scripture reader.

Sabathu: in the lower Himalaya mountains, 110 miles east of Lodiana; mission station commenced, 1836; missionary labourer, one native Christian catechist.

Saharunpur: 130 miles south-east of Lodiana; mission station commenced, 1836; missionary labourers, Rev. James R. Campbell, D. D., and his wife; Miss Mary Anna Campbell, teacher; Rev. Theodore Wylie; other native Christian assistants—one catechist, and one Scripture reader.

Dehra: 47 miles east of Saharunpur; mission station commenced, 1854; missionary labourers, Rev. David Herron and his wife; and Rev. William Calderwood; native Christian assistants—one catechist, and one Scripture reader.

Roorkhee: 20 miles south-east of Saharunpur; mission station commenced

* Names of missionary labourers printed in italic denote natives of the country.

1856; missionary labourers, Rev. Joseph Caldwell and his wife; native Christian assistants—one catechist, and one Scripture reader.

In this Country.—Rev. George O. Barnes and his wife, Rev. John H. Morrison.

FURRUKHABAD MISSION.

Agra: on the river Jumna, 798 miles north-west of Calcutta; mission station commenced, 1846; missionary labourers, Rev. Joseph Owen and his wife; native Christian assistant—one catechist.

Mynpurie: 80 miles east of Agra; mission station commenced, 1843; missionary labourers, Rev. Augustus Brodhead and his wife; native Christian assistants—one catechist, one teacher, one Scripture reader.

Futtehgurh: on the Ganges, 713 miles north-west of Calcutta; mission station commenced, 1838; missionary labourers, Rev. Messrs. James L. Scott, Julius F. Ullmann and Robert S. Fullerton and their wives; native Christian assistants—five catechists, ten teachers, of whom four are females, two Scripture readers, and two probationers.

Futtehpore: 587 miles north-west of Calcutta; mission station commenced, 1853; missionary labourers, Rev. William F. Johnson and his wife; native Christian assistants—two catechists, two teachers, and two Scripture readers.

Allahabad: at the junction of the Ganges and Jumna, 500 miles north-west of Calcutta; mission station commenced, 1836; missionary labourers, Rev. Messrs. John J. Walsh, and Benjamin D. Wikoff, and their wives: native Christian assistants—two catechists, one teacher, and one Scripture reader.

The list of missionary labourers is nearly the same as was reported last year. One name is no longer found on the roll, that of the Rev. Gopeenath Nundy, who was removed by death, after a short illness, on the 14th of March, 1861. He had been connected with the mission for more than twenty years; first as a teacher, and since 1846 as an ordained minister. The Committee need not give a history of his labours, which have been described in their former reports, but they would pay their cordial tribute to his memory, as an able and faithful minister of the gospel, and one whose labours for the salvation of his countrymen were marked with the blessing of God. He has entered into his rest, and his works do follow him. The Rev. R. M. Munnis has removed from Ambala, and engaged in missionary and educational work supported by the rajah of Kapurthala, having his sphere of labour in districts belonging to the rajah in the province of Oude. Messrs. Morrison and Barnes, and Mrs. Barnes, arrived in this country, the latter in August, the former in October last, and they have received benefit from the voyage and change of climate. They both hope to return to India. Dr. and Mrs. Janvier embarked on their return to their missionary work, in October, and arrived at Calcutta in January. They were accompanied by Miss Catharine L. Beatty, an esteemed member of the Third Presbyterian Church, Trenton, N. J., who goes to India as a teacher, having her home in the family of the friends with whom she went out. Another lady joined the missionary company last year, Miss Wigfall, an esteemed member of the church of Abington, Penn., as the wife of Dr. John Newton, Jr. On the death of Mr. Nundy, Mr. Johnson was requested by the brethren to take charge of the station of Futtehpore. Several cases of sickness occurred, making it necessary for some of the missionaries to visit the hills during the hot months; and Mr. Walsh was compelled to go down to the Sand Heads, the pilot station of Calcutta, in the hope of becoming free from repeated attacks of fever. In all these instances, benefit was gained.

The Committee watch with deep interest the native missionary labourers in this country. It is greatly to be desired that the number of these labourers should be largely increased, but the Church should be grateful for those who have been obtained, and for their promise of usefulness. In their qualifications for the work of evangelization, there is no doubt need of a higher degree of progress. Both of these points should be remembered in the prayers of the churches; they are both matters of deep interest to the spread of the gospel in India.

In these missions the work of our brethren has been steadily prosecuted, as in former years. Preaching the gospel, in stated services on the Sabbath and during the week, by the missionaries and by their native assistants, stands foremost amongst their labours; and at times and places reducible to no stated order, this main work is also performed—often on journeys made for this purpose. At most of the stations there are schools, in which instruction is given to the scholars in the ordinary branches of education, but mostly in its lower or primary studies; and this instruction is carefully leavened with gospel truth. The translation of the Scriptures and the preparation of Christian tracts, occupies the time in greater or less degree of some of the missionaries; the circulation of these issues of the Press, by colportage and in other ways, is not neglected. Ministering to the wants of the poor, through the liberal charity of European friends, has received attention; owing to the prevalence of a terrible famine in large districts of Upper India, this service required much time and labour, and accomplished great good in many ways.

The Committee refer for satisfactory and interesting particulars of these varied labours to the reports of the stations, so far as received, as published in the periodicals of the Board. They will only enumerate here some statistical returns of the churches and schools, and follow these with brie notices of the stations.

Churches.

The number of communicants was reduced by death in a few cases; by several removals, particularly from Futtehpore; and by the exercise of discipline in some instances; and the number of persons added to the church on a profession of their faith was not large, indeed at several stations no converts were baptised. At a few stations, however, hopeful converts were received—at Lodiana, two; Ambala, five; Roorkhee, two; Futtehgurh, ten; and Allahabad, four. The returns now stand:

Rawal Pindi,	7,
Lahor,	22,
Jalandar,	20,*
Lodiana,	12,*
Ambala,	20,
Saharunpur,	12,
Dehra,	—
Roorkhee,	5,
Mynpurie,	9,
Futtehgurh,—at Rakha,	70,
" " Burhpur	25,*
Futtehpore,	19,
Allahabad,	45.

Schools for Boys.

Schools for boys are in successful use at nearly all the stations. In the following list the number of scholars in attendance is shown:

Rawal Pindi,	120,
Lahor,	502,
Kapurthala,	181,
Jalandar,	250,*
Lodiana,	314,*
Ambala,	240,*
Saharunpur,	130,
Dehra,	171,
Roorkhee,	100,
Agra,	35,*
Mynpurie,	235,
Futtehgurh,	885,
Futtehpore,	105,
Allahabad,	430,

* Returns of last year.

Orphan and Girls' Schools.

The orphan schools are not included in the above returns. In these the scholars are supported entirely by missionary funds, of which a considerable portion, in some cases the much greater part, is given by European friends in India. At Lodiana, 25 girls were reported last year in the orphan school,—owing to the famine the number is now 52; at Saharunpur, the number of orphan boys, for the same cause, increased from 16 to 70, but some died from the effects of previous starvation, and a few ran away, leaving 54 at the end of the year; at Dehra 25 girls are reported in the school for the daughters of native Christians, not orphans, but all excepting four boarded on the mission premises, at the expense of their parents; at Mynpurie, 9 orphan children; at Futtehgurh, 27 boys and 11 girls, all orphans; at Allahabad, 9 orphan boys and girls,—making in all 187. The parental oversight of these orphans devolves on the missionaries who have the charge of these schools, and it is a heavy burden. A large pecuniary expenditure is required for the support of these poor children, which has been provided to a considerable extent by benevolent persons in India. It is remarkable that Providence has placed so many of the Hindu children under Christian training—the number in the various orphan schools in Upper India being several hundred, and the Church should pray that many of these scholars may become qualified for missionary labour among their own people. The school at Dehra, for the daughters of native Christians, is one of peculiar interest; in some respects it is on a different basis from the other schools, and under the efficient charge of Mr. and Mrs. Herron, it has been attended with great success. It is based on the principle, that the native Christians should give their daughters the advantage of an education not inferior, their differing circumstans being considered, to that enjoyed by boys in the mission schools; and they are taught the duty of defraying the expense of this education as far as practicable. In each of the girls' schools at Dehra and Lodiana, the missionaries have obtained the services of an accomplished European teacher, to whose labours much of the efficiency of these schools is attributed. In the schools at Futtehgurh, under Mrs. Scott's charge, 115 of the scholars, and at Futtehpore 25 more, are girls. In a country where the education of women is so generally neglected and even opposed, all schools for girls must be regarded with deep interest. It is a decisive mark of progress in the part of India where these missions are established, that such schools can now to some extent be maintained. Nothing of this kind could have been planted there twenty years ago.

Notices of Stations.

The Committee add to these returns brief notices of the stations, beginning at Peshawar and proceeding to the other stations as they are met with in geographical order.

Peshawar.—This city is occupied for the present as affording some measure of access to the Afghan people. Mr. Loewenthal is still the only missionary of the Board engaged in the Afghan department of the Lodiana Mission. The report of his work during the last year has not been received. He is still engaged chiefly in translating the Scriptures into Pushto. He had nearly completed the translation of the New Testament several months ago, and he was advised to proceed with that of the Old Testament, Mr. Loewenthal's gifts fitting him for this important service. The Committee consider it a matter of moment that another missionary should be added to this department of the mission. The Afghan people cannot yet be generally reached by missionaries, but opportunities exist for making known the way of life to many of them, and the door may soon be opened for visiting them with safety in their own country.

Rawal Pindi.—The number of communicants at this station was diminished by removals, while there were no members added to the church. The number of scholars was considerably increased. Mr. Orbison spent between two and three months at Murree, in the hills, on account of his health and that of his family. A church at that place for European soldiers and others was dedicated and services conducted in it by him, as well as among the natives by him and his assistant. In the absence of Mr. Morrison, another missionary is greatly needed at Rawal Pindi.

Lahor.—The report of this station shows that besides their daily services in preaching and other labours, the brethren are carrying forward with vigor the Christian education of native youth. After giving information concerning the studies of each class in the principal school, which has a daily attendance of about 400, the report adds, "This school affords us the very best opportunities for communicating religious instruction. Besides the instruction given in the classes, the whole school is assembled every day for worship, when a portion of the Bible is read and explained, and prayer in the vernacular is offered. It would seem hardly possible for any pious man to see the school assembled to hear God's word, without exclaiming, as a Christian friend did a few days ago, 'What a charge! What a responsibility!'" The Committee quote this striking extract with pleasure, as fairly showing the religious influence exerted in and by the missionary schools generally. They are glad to observe, also, that the missionaries enjoy the warm co-operation of European friends at this city in their various labours. A special example of this will be referred to in a subsequent part of this report.

JALANDAR.—No report has been received from this station.

KAPURTHALA.—The missionary operations at this city are supported mainly by the rajah of Kapurthala, whose two sons, their cousin, and two sons of the chief minister, are under Mr. Woodside's instruction. This enlightened prince "continues to manifest the same kind interest in the missionaries and their work as at the beginning." He has placed $5000 at their disposal for the erection of a church, and the building will be constructed under the highly valued and gratuitous superintendence of a gentleman in the rajah's service, as "Superintendent of Public Works." A Hospital and Dispensary will also be erected by the aid of a bequest of $1600. While the external circumstances of the brethren at this station are thus marked with favour, they desire still more to be favoured with the influences of the Holy Spirit, without which they labour but in vain.

LODIANA.—From this station no report has been received. In their letters the missionaries mention the increase of girls in the orphan school from twenty-five to fifty-two, and speak warmly of the valuable services of a teacher obtained from Germany. Several persons are referred to in these letters as inquirers.

The Committee regret particularly that no report of the printing press at Lodiana has been received. That it has been kept in active work they have reason to believe; the report of the station at Lahor mentions that Mr. Newton gave "much of his time to proof-reading, and both of the missionaries were engaged in revising books and tracts for the press." An additional supply of type, and many cuts or engravings for illustrating school books, etc., were sent out during the year, the expense being defrayed from the remaining funds received for losses at this city during the mutiny.

AMBALA.—No report has been received from this station. The letters of the missionaries mentioned the peaceful death of a member of the church, and the baptism of five converts. Warm commendation is expressed of the native catechist, who has long maintained an exemplary Christian character, and who is described as an efficient religious teacher.

SABATHU.—This station is virtually suspended since the removal of Mr. Newton to Lahor. It is one of the best places from which to reach "the hill people." The comparatively sparse population of the hills, or lower Himalayas, and the difficulty of visiting the people in their mountain hamlets and gathering them together, account perhaps sufficiently for the fact that this place has seldom been occupied long by a missionary. It is twenty-five years since it was first occupied, and it has witnessed frequent changes of labourers, besides being left at times without any. Under such cultivation, much fruit could hardly be expected. It is not surprising that missionaries should feel called to labour chiefly in the plains, amongst the vastly greater population; nevertheless, it is much to be regretted that permanent and systematic efforts could not be made for the conversion of the people dwelling in the hill states. The number of inhabitants in these states, between the Sutlej and Nepal, has been estimated at 250,000.

SAHARUNPUR.—The health of Dr. Campbell was seriously affected for several months, but a residence at Landour in the hills during the hot season was of great benefit to him. The charge of this station, in his absence, rested on the native minister, Mr. Wylie, and was very satisfactorily fulfilled. The marked feature of the year was the large increase in the number of orphan boys, as already reported. This orphan school has been the means of bringing forward several valuable native missionary labourers; with the greater number of its scholars there is reason to hope that there will be an increase of its usefulness in this respect.

DEHRA.—The letters of Mr. Herron concerning the school for the daughters of native Christians have contained most satisfactory accounts of this school. Its success has depended largely on Mrs. Herron's faithful labours, assisted by an esteemed and competent teacher from Scotland. Suitable buildings for its use have been erected. An interesting sketch of this school was published in the Foreign Missionary of September. The school for boys has an increased attendance. The peaceful death of two native members of the church is reported. It was expected that three inquirers would soon be baptized.

ROORKHEE.—Two converts admitted to the church by Mr. Caldwell were Brahmans, both of them aged men. The health of Mr. Caldwell was so much impaired as to make it necessary for him to spend some months at Landour—the duties of the station being left in the charge of the native catechist.

AGRA—No report has been received from this station.

MYNPURIE.—More than one-third of the scholars belong to the Brahmanical order, a fact which indicates great opposition to the Christian religion in the native community, but which also shows one of the agencies for removing this opposition. Eight orphan children were received during the famine, whose support is provided from funds obtained in India.

FUTTEHGURH.—At this station a new dwelling house has been erected by the aid of funds received from the government for the destruction of property in the late mutiny. The various labours of the brethren have been attended with encouragement, but the report of Mr. Scott is the only one that has been received. He mentions the admission of ten new communicants to the branch of the church under his care. A few cases of discipline had occurred. The number of scholars in the girls' school is a pleasing feature of this station; Mrs. Scott has taken a warm interest in these schools, which owe much of their success to her efficient supervision. Mrs. Fullerton was compelled to spend the warm months with her children at Landour, Mr. Fullerton remaining at Futtehgurh. At none of the stations occupied by the missionaries from this country was there so large a work of charity performed, during the late famine, as at this place, under the admirable supervision of Mr. Ullmann. An account of this labour of love was published in the Foreign Missionary of November.

FUTTEHPORE.—The lamented death of Mr. Nundy, and the transfer of Mr. Johnson to this station, have been already stated. The number of church members reported is not so large as last year. Some of the members had gone to other stations, but several had not walked according to their profession, and had brought reproach on the Christian name. The communicants now at this place enjoy the confidence of their missionary friends.

ALLAHABAD.—Repeated attacks of sickness prevented Mr. Walsh from fully accomplishing the work of his hand, but the general condition of this station appears to be satisfactory. The school is well attended and well conducted. Four adult members were added to the church by baptism. A venerable, aged member was called to his rest. The brethren speak warmly of the cordial interest of the Scotch chaplain, Mr. Williamson, in the success of their labours. Through his influence, in a good degree, liberal donations had been made by European friends at this city in aid of the school.

Passing from these brief notices of the stations, the Committee desire to record here their warm acknowledgment of the co-operation of European friends in India with our missionary brethren. An example of this has just been given at Allahabad; and, as in former years, the same kind and Christian feeling has been manifested at many of the stations. At Lahor, the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir Robert Montgomery, prepared a Minute calling upon his countrymen to make up whatever deficiency might occur in the support of the missions from this country, in this time of our national distress. Happily our brethren were not compelled to accept this truly kind and Christian offer of assistance, but they and the church at home, represented by them, are not the less gratified at this liberal purpose. It is of the greater interest, because it shows the appreciation of the missionary work of our church in that part of the world by Christian men of the highest standing, who are themselves witnesses of this work. It is indeed their privilege to be fellow labourers with the missionaries and with our blessed Lord in the promotion of his cause and kingdom in India.

The field of missionary labour in the part of India extending north-westward from Allahabad, has been brought prominently before the Christian Church by very marked providential events, since the missions of the Board were established there in 1834. The war of the British with the Afghans, and of the Sikhs with the British, the Sepoy mutiny, the subjection of the Punjab and of Oude to British rule, were all events of great moment, and such as have resulted in widely opening the door of entrance to the gospel. The number of ordained missionaries in this north-western part of India, in 1834, was but four or five; now, there are not less than eighty. Nearly one-third of these are connected with the Board. This increase of labourers is a cause of thankfulness, and the agencies under their direction for calling forth native missionary labourers is another cause of thankfulness. Nothing in the work of evangelization in India is more vital to its success than the obtaining of native pastors and evangelists; Christianity will have no sure foothold in the country until a native ministry is called into existence by the Head of the Church. Looking to the number of missionaries employed in the missions of the Board, as compared with the number employed in China,—a country of much greater population, and also of far greater missionary destitution,—or as compared with the number employed in some smaller fields, but of greater relative need of missionaries, and considering the special claims of the Hindus upon the Christian people of Great Britain, claims which are fully recognized, it may be considered inexpedient to aim at a large increase of our missionary force in this country. This view may be accepted the more readily, if the present number should be considered in some good degree adequate to the work of calling forth and preparing native missionary labourers. But these considerations do not fully determine the question of duty. The door peculiarly opened and still open, the past history of these missions and the events which have marked their course even from the beginning, the good work in progress calling for more men by its advance, the feeble and uncertain health of some of the brethren, the great multitudes still unevangelized, still perishing for lack of vision, all justify the sending out of more labourers to this field. At the very least, the present staff of missionaries should be maintained; and in order to this, new missionaries should be sent forth at an early day.

Mission in Siam.

Bangkok.—On the river Meinam, about twenty five miles from its mouth; occupied as a mission station in 1840 to 1844, and from 1847 to the present time; missionary labourers—the Rev. Messrs. Stephen Mattoon, Samuel R. House, M. D., Noah A. McDonald, Samuel C. George, and their wives, and the Rev. Jonathan Wilson: one native Christian teacher.

Petchaburi.—On the western side of the Gulf of Siam, about one hundred miles south-west from Bangkok; occupied as a mission station in 1861; missionary labourers—Rev. Messrs. Daniel McGilvary and Samuel G. McFarland and their wives.

The brethren of this mission in making their annual report on the 1st of last October, were permitted to speak of abundant reasons of thanksgiving. Their lives and health had been preserved, a new station had been commenced under most favourable circumstances, and their work in all its departments had been steadily prosecuted and had received tokens of the blessing of God. To these may be added the arrival of another missionary and his wife—Mr. and Mrs. George, who embarked in November, and arrived at Bangkok on the 6th of February.

The forming of a station at Petchaburi is a marked event in the course of missionary labour in Siam, it being the first station at a distance from the capital which has been occupied since missions were commenced in that country. The centralizing influences of commerce, of religion, and especially of the government, have made Bangkok more to Siam than Paris is to France; that city is obviously the most important station for evangelizing labours. Nevertheless it is expedient to occupy stations in the interior of the country; and for health, convenience of access, cordial reception by the chief local authorities, and particularly for a door of entrance to the native population, it would be difficult to find a better place than Petchaburi. It is a small city of 15,000 souls, and the chief place in a province or district of about half a million of inhabitants. Arrangements having been made for their residence, for which they were much indebted to the kindness of the Lieut.-Governor, Messrs. McGilvary and McFarland removed to this new station early in June. It had been settled by the missionaries that Dr. and Mrs. House should commence this station, giving to it the prestige of medical skill; but the doctor was hindered from executing this plan by a fall from his horse, causing a lameness that prevented his travelling for some months.

Full accounts have been published in the periodicals of the Board concerning the missionary work at this new station. Regular services are conducted by Mr. McGilvary, which are attended with apparent interest, and visits have been made by the brethren to neighboring places for the distribution of the Scriptures and Tracts; a class of boys, the sons of respectable persons, enjoy the benefits of Mrs. McFarland's instructions, and afford a most interesting and promising sphere of influence for Christ; Mrs. McGilvary, possessing admirable knowledge of Siamese, has translated the three Epistles of John, assisted by her husband and Mr. McFarland. The spiritual fruit already apparent will be referred to in a later part of this report.

At Bangkok, "preaching, teaching, printing, and the distribution of the Scriptures and Christian tracts," the missionaries report, "are the principal instrumentalities used to make known the gospel among the people,"—the well matured plans of former years being still vigorously carried into effect. Daily worship at the station, attended by the scholars and others connected with the mission, and regular services on the Sabbath, have been conducted; the brethren report from sixty to one hundred persons attending the Sabbath services, who gave "a respectful and in a few cases apparently an interested attention" to the gospel message. The report of the mission says of a very interesting service,—"During the last part of the year Mrs. Mattoon has given an hour every Sabbath morning to the instruction of a number of females, several of whom are mothers with young children, who cannot well attend preaching services. Fourteen of these are adults not able to read, who have no other means than these oral lessons of becoming acquainted with the gospel. A few are young girls, who are also learning to read. She finds these women wholly ignorant of the simplest truths of revelation, but is encouraged by the hope, that by perseverance and the blessing of God, she may be useful to some of them."

The Scriptures and Christian tracts have been distributed accompanied with oral instruction. So many of the Siamese people are readers, that this means of doing good is regarded as peculiarly important, and it has been signally blessed. Christian books are given at the houses of the missionaries and on their journeys; the native teacher in Bangkok took part in this good work, and the converted native at Petchaburi—himself a remarkable witness to its usefulness. Several missionary tours were made by Mr. Wilson, during which he preached in many places in the interior, and distributed many Christian books. The journeys to and from the new station were made occasions of similar service.

The boarding-school, under Mr. Wilson's superintendence, assisted by Dr. and Mrs. House and Mr. McDonald, has received and rewarded the earnest labour of the brethren. Forty names are on its roll, but some did not remain long, and the average daily attendance for the year was twenty-seven; at the end of the year, twenty-three boys were in the school, besides three little girls under Mrs. House's care. These scholars have made good progress in their studies, and their religious instruction has received particular attention. A better schoolroom has been provided for the use of this school. A class of five or six girls has been taught by a native young woman, a member of the church, under Mrs. Mattoon's direction—whose improvement does credit to their young teacher. The report of the mission does not speak of the hopeful conversion of any of the scholars, but the good seed of the word which has been so carefully implanted in their minds may be expected to bear fruit, though it may be after many days; it may also be without long delay.

The printing press is now at work on the premises of the mission, and gives promise of being an invaluable auxiliary to our brethren in their labours for the enlightenment of the Siamese. The works printed during the year ending October 1st, were as follows:

Old Testament History to Joseph,	12mo,	3,000	copies,	192,000 pages.
Gospel of Mark,	12mo,	3,000	"	180,000 "
Child's Book on the Soul,	12mo,	1,000	"	121,000 "
On Killing Animals,	12mo,	2,000	"	56,000 "
Bible History, Child's series,	16mo,	4,000	"	128,000 "
Faith and Practice,	16mo,	1,000	"	32,000 "
An Exhortation,	16mo,	2,000	"	24,000 "
Child's Catechism,	32mo,	2,000	"	64,000 "
		18,000	"	797,000 "

The want of materials and also of funds prevented a larger issue of the publications of the press, which is a matter of deep regret. As yet there are but few Christian books, and indeed but few books of any kind, in the Siamese language; while there is among the people "a very general ability to read," and a willingness to accept such books as may be offered to them.

These varied labours of the missionaries in Siam have, doubtless, been of very great use in leavening the corrupt minds of the people with gospel truth. The brethren have not yet been permitted to see many persons turning from the religion of Budh to the worship of the true God, and yet they have not been without precious encouragement in the reception of two persons into the church in Bangkok, and especially in their becoming acquainted with a true follower of our Lord at Petchaburi. His conversion was the work of the Holy Spirit accompanying the reading of portions of the Scriptures and a few Christian tracts; he had never received any instruction from missionaries or other disciples of Christ. Full accounts of this remarkable case have been published in the periodicals of the Board; the missionaries speak of him the more highly as they become better acquainted with him. He is already an efficient helper of their work.

The Church should feel encouraged to support and extend her labours for the conversion of the Siamese. In no other country is the door more fully open, in no other are the fields more white unto harvest.

Missions in China.

CANTON MISSION.

Canton: on the Canton river, about seventy miles from its mouth; occupied as a mission station in 1845; missionary labours suspended by the war in November, 1856, and partly transferred to Macao, a Chinese Island under Portuguese authority, near the mouth of the Canton river; resumed at Canton, 1858; missionary labourers,—the Rev. Messrs. Andrew P. Happer, M. D., Charles F. Preston, and Ira M. Condit, and their wives; John G. Kerr, M. D., and his wife; one native Christian assistant.

NINGPO MISSION.

Ningpo: on the Ningpo river, about twelve miles from the sea; occupied as a mission station, in 1844; missionary labourers,—Rev. Messrs. H. V. Rankin, William A. P. Martin, D. D., David D. Green, William T. Morrison, John S. Roberts, and their wives; Rev. Samuel Dodd; native Christian assistants,—five catechists, seven teachers, and two colporteurs.

Three Out-stations, in the Sanpoh district: occupied by native labourers, enumerated above.

In Japan: D. B. McCartee, M. D., and his wife.

SHANGHAI MISSION.

Shanghai: on the Woosung river, fourteen miles from the sea; occupied as a mission station in 1850; missionary labourers,—Rev. Messrs. M. Simpson Culbertson, Charles R. Mills and John M. W. Farnham, and their wives; William Gamble, printer.

IN SHANTUNG.

Tungchow: occupied provisionally in 1861; missionary labourers,—Rev. Messrs. John L. Nevius and Samuel R. Gayley, and their wives, and Rev. Joshua A. Danforth.

Dr. and Mrs. McCartee and Mrs. H. V. Rankin have been compelled to seek health by a change of climate. Dr. and Mrs. McCartee had embarked for this country, but their ship having touched at Kanagawa, Japan, and Dr. McCartee's health having suffered severely from the voyage, they were induced to remain at that place, hoping to regain health there, and to be able to return to China. Eighteen years of faithful and successful labour by Dr. McCartee, as the first missionary at Ningpo, deserve grateful record, and give ample reason for desiring that he may be permitted to resume his work among the Chinese. Mr. and Mrs. Rankin feel deeply their separation, while yet consenting to it as a temporary measure from love to their missionary work. Mrs. Rankin arrived in August, with her children; her health gained benefit from the voyage, and she expects to be able to return before long to Ningpo; if not, Mr. Rankin will rejoin his family here, but still cherishing the hope of their being permitted eventually to return to China. It is with much regret the Committee have to record here the removal by death of Mrs. Danforth, wife of the Rev. J. A. Danforth. She departed this life at Tungchow, September 13, 1861, deeply lamented by all who knew her. In her death the heathen lost a devoted missionary, but for herself it was gain to die. An obituary sketch of this excellent lady was published in the Record of February. The missionaries at Ningpo report the death also of a native catechist, Kong Kwung-neau, "leaving behind him good evidence of his faith in Christ." Mr. and Mrs. Nevius returned to China from Japan, a measure referred to in the last annual report as likely to be adopted, and they resumed their labours at Ningpo; but, on Mrs. Nevius' health again giving way, they removed to the northern province of Shantung. Mr. and Mrs. Gayley, and Mr. and Mrs. Danforth, had previously gone to the same province, the health of Mr. Gayley and of Mrs. Danforth making this change of climate expedient. Excepting the case of Mrs. Danforth, this removal has been attended with much advantage to these invalid friends. Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson were called to part with two of their children by death. The health of Mrs. Culbertson and of another daughter having become much impaired, and recovery not having resulted from a short visit to Japan, Mr. Culbertson accepted the generous offer of a friend to defray the expense of their visit to Shantung. He and his family embarked on a Siamese vessel, bound to Chefoo, in Shantung, late in August, but soon encountered a severe gale, and made a most narrow escape from death. The account of this remarkable deliverance was printed in the Foreign Missionary of February. The ship landed her passengers afterwards at Amoy, and after spending some weeks there, enjoying the warm hospitality of missionary brethren of the Reformed Dutch Church, they returned to Shanghai in November, with health much improved.

Mr. Dodd arrived at Ningpo in October, and Mr. and Mrs. Roberts, at Shanghai, on their way, on the 1st of February. Mr. and Mrs. Inslee, whose connection with the Ningpo mission was mentioned in the last annual report as having been dissolved, have since returned to this country.

The Committee expected, early last summer, to have sent out two new labourers to Canton, and three to Ningpo, but several of the men under appointment were not able to go. Two new brethren, however, have been sent out to the Ningpo mission—as just stated, and the Rev. W. A. P. Martin, D. D., and his wife, are expecting to sail on their return to Ningpo before the end of April. The health of Mrs. Martin has been benefited by her visit to this country, though it is yet delicate. They leave their two oldest children at school, taking the two youngest with them, and they will receive the sincere sympathy of Christian friends in the severe trial caused by this separation of parents and children.

Upon the removal of the printing-press from Ningpo to Shanghai, Mr. Gamble, its superintendent, was transferred to the latter place.

Canton.—The report of the Canton mission was published in the Record of March, and may be referred to for particular statements. Preaching was regularly maintained in the three chapels of the mission, daily service having been held in one of them during most of the year. Street preaching was not neglected, though not conducted to the same extent as formerly. Encouraging accounts are given of the attendance on these services, and in some cases of the apparent interest awakened by them among the hearers; yet the brethren greatly desire to see more fruit of their labour. For this they cease not to pray. After the report of the mission was closed, Mr. Happer had the privilege of baptizing a Chinese woman on the profession of her faith, and 4 persons were baptized afterwards. A church was organized with 7 native members, on the 9th of January last.

The schools at Canton are two day-schools for boys, under Mr. Happer's charge, and one for girls, under Mrs. Happer's care; two boarding pupils, also, enjoy the advantage of Mr. and Mrs. Happer's instruction, and seem to be near the kingdom of God. The number of girls in the day-school is 21; of boys, not reported, but probably the same as last year, 70. These scholars learn the simpler lessons of Chinese education, and enjoy the great benefit of careful Christian instruction. The importance and the encouragement of the missionary labour expended on them will be seen in the report of the superintendent, as published in one of the missionary journals.

In medical missionary work, more time has been spent than usual, owing to the hospital of the London mission having been placed under the charge of the Rev. A. P. Happer, M. D., in the absence of the physician of the London Missionary Society. Mr. Happer's medical duties were highly appreciated by the supporters of this hospital; they no doubt tended to increase his influence and usefulness among the Chinese, and thus repaid him well for much additional labour. Hospital work under the care of Dr. Kerr has been conducted as formerly. The number of patients under treatment in the hospital at Canton during the year was 12,456, of whom 2,631 were females. The number of in-door patients was 203. An important part of Dr. Kerr's duties was performed at Fat-shan, where the number of patients treated was 6,720. Visits were made to this city once a week during most of the year. "These hospitals," the report of the mission says with obvious propriety, "cannot but be a wide door opened for gaining the confidence of this people." The benevolent purposes of the missionaries are not only shown by these medical services, but precious opportunities are thus gained for preaching the gospel to large numbers. At Fat-shan, the brethren hope the way is now prepared for the residence of two mission families, and this has been effected in a good degree by these medical labours in that city. The importance of having two missionaries stationed at Fat-shan ought not to be overlooked. The Committee hope another year will not elapse without this being done.

Mr. Condit, not being prepared yet to enter fully on missionary labour in the native language, has assisted regularly in supplying the seamen's chapel at Whampoa, twelve miles below Canton; and he has also aided in conducting religious worship amongst about one hundred Scotch soldiers of the British army now stationed at Canton.

In reviewing their work for the year, the brethren say, "Our hearts are strengthened to go forward in the blessed work before us. The way has never been so thoroughly opened into the regions back and beyond this city." And after adverting to the general opening of the empire to foreign influence, they make an urgent call for more labourers: "China's future prospect is, in itself, a powerful, though silent, appeal to every church, and every Christian heart at home."

NINGPO.—The report of the Ningpo mission was published in the Record of April, and it may be consulted for a general statement of the growing work of this mission. The changes in its list of labourers from this country have been already mentioned. The native missionaries are still in the earlier stages of training for their work, but they are highly commended. In their report the brethren speak of these native helpers as "earnest and devoted to their work. . . There are in all fourteen, of whom five are catechists, seven are schoolteachers—of these, three being females, and two colporteurs."

Preaching services have been maintained regularly in Ningpo; and at several sub-stations native catechists have given religious instruction, directed and seconded by the brethren from Ningpo, who have made visits to these places almost every month. The apparent interest in these services has varied in different places, and has not always been encouraging. At one of the out-stations, Dziang-'o, the native assistants preached daily for three weeks, and the preaching place was thronged with hearers. By these services and the distribution of religious tracts, the gospel has been widely disseminated. Ningpo being a centre of considerable trade, persons from places far distant have here received some knowledge of the way of salvation.

The missionaries mourn over the little fruit yet visible from their labours, but they were permitted to receive sixteen new members into the church in the year ending on the 1st of October, ten of whom were from different out-stations. Among these hopeful converts were two women, one seventy, the other eighty, years of age. In a prison at one of the stations in the interior, the humble agency of a carpenter, a member of the church, who was employed to make some repairs, became the means of the hopeful conversion of a man who exerts much influence on his fellow-prisoners, and several of them were regarded as inquirers after the way of life. The authorities granted our brethren free access to the prison for the purpose of administering the sacraments of baptism and the Lord's Supper. In consequence of the increasing number of communicants in the San-poh district, where two or three of the out-stations are situated, the Presbytery, upon the application of the church members, organized a new church there. It included thirty-two communicants, leaving in the mother church in Ningpo, eighty-four, of whom all but eight are natives. For the present these churches are under the charge of Mr. Rankin, as Stated Supply, but the Committee observe with great satisfaction, that the brethren hope at an early period to see these churches under the charge of native pastors. They say in their report, "The growing importance of native pastors is recognized by the brethren, and strenuous efforts are made to supply the want. At present, six candidates for the ministry are under the charge of Presbytery." And they proceed to give information as to the studies of these candidates, specifying also the need of suitable text books for their instruction. Some progress had been made in preparing these books, and the first volume of a work on theology, by Mr. Nevius, had been issued from the press. A large service of this kind urgently requires attention, affording here, as in the other missions, a sphere of influence of great importance to the brethren who have been longest on the ground, and who have best mastered the language. To complete this account of the native church, it must be added, that five of its members were removed by death, concerning all of whom there was good reason to think that they died in the faith and hope of the gospel.

The boarding-schools contain thirty-six boys and twenty-six girls; three day-schools for boys in the out-stations, and two day-schools for girls in Ningpo have been conducted, but the number of scholars is not reported, excepting in one of the girls' schools under Mr. Rankin's charge, in which there were about twenty scholars. The progress of the boarding pupils in their studies was satisfactory, and their conduct was good. The religious condition of the girls' school gave much encouragement to its superintendent; in the boys' school less earnestness in religious life was manifest than in some former years, but four members of the senior class are looking forward to the work of the Christian ministry, and two scholars in each school were received into church communion. It is mentioned as a pleasing evidence of religious interest, that the girls had formed "a missionary society among themselves, under Mrs. Lu's direction, and have cleared some tens of dollars during the year, the fruit of embroidery made by their own hands." In the day schools the pupils do not remain long, but they enjoy the opportunity of learning much Scripture truth, which may be of priceless advantage to them.

Looking with deep interest on the extension of their work "in the regions beyond," the missionaries have been anxious to place some of their number at stations in the interior, and arrangements were in progress for thus settling Messrs. Morrison and Dodd in the San-poh district. A house was eventually secured on lease, but before it was occupied rumours of the approach of the insurgents led to the postponement of their removal from Ningpo. The out-station department of this mission is one of its most interesting and encouraging features, especially in connection with the labours of the native assistants. The Committee fully concur with the brethren in desiring to see this part of their work greatly enlarged. In the province of Che-kiang, of which Ningpo is but one of several large cities, the population is estimated at 26,000,000, though the entire province is not as large as the State of New York. There are many cities and towns in this province where missionaries should be stationed as soon as the way is prepared, and where native labourers could even now do a good work under the supervision of the missionaries.

The most serious event of the year occurred in December, just at the end of the period thus far under review. The city of Ningpo was taken by the insurgents on the 9th of that month. The loss of life was much less than usual on the capture of cities by the rebels, but many of the inhabitants had fled from their homes. The city was given up to be plundered, and great distress was endured by the people. The missionaries and other foreigners were not considered to be in danger, but much solicitude was felt for the native Christians. Two of them were at first seized as captives, but were soon released, and all were kept in safety. Special interpositions of Providence in their behalf were acknowledged with devout gratitude by their missionary friends and themselves. They will be subject to much suffering, however, in common with their own people, from the interruption of business and the anarchy of the times. We are not yet sufficiently informed as to the progress of events, to judge of their full bearing on our missionary work at Ningpo. In some respects, this work may be much embarrassed by the new state of things. On the other hand, this state of affairs may not last long; or, it may be the means of enlarging the usefulness of the mission. Time will show.

Shanghai.—The removal of Mr. and Mrs. Gayley to Shantung has been mentioned already; before leaving Shanghai they were called to part with one of their children by death. With the transfer of the printing press from Ningpo to this station, Mr. Gamble, its superintendent, also removed to Shanghai. The labourers now at this city are Messrs. Culbertson, Mills, Farnham and Gamble.

Mr. Culbertson's principal work has continued to be the translating of the Scriptures. In this important work he has been associated with the Rev. Dr. Bridgeman, long a respected missionary in China of the American Board, who was called to his rest last autumn, greatly lamented by the missionary body. Their joint work was well advanced towards completion, the New Testament having been printed, and the Old Testament translated to the end of Ezekiel. Mr. Culbertson will continue the translating of the remaining books, and with the favour of God, this translation of the sacred volume will be completed at an early day, and will prove an unspeakable blessing to the people of China.

In preaching the gospel, the brethren say, "We make use of every means within our reach to bring these poor deluded people to a knowledge of the Saviour. Preaching, exhortation, private conversation, translation, printing and distribution of books have each received a share of our time." At each chapel regular services have been maintained. The chapel in the city has been attended by a varying audience, giving little encouragement by attention to the word spoken—many coming evidently out of mere curiosity. At the other chapel, the scholars and others connected with the mission attend with apparent interest. Four of the workmen connected with the printing press were members of the church in Ningpo; they are now members of the church at this station. Besides these, the church received another member on the profession of his faith, and five children were baptized—three of them of native parents, and two the children of missionaries. Several persons professed to be inquirers, one of whom, a teacher, is regarded with much interest on account of his intelligence and sincerity; his great hinderance is the opposition of his mother, but he seems to be under the instruction and discipline of God. He is spoken of with warm feeling in the report of the mission, which is published in the Record of May, and earnest prayers on his behalf are requested by the missionaries.

The brethren have continued their labours of love for the refugees at Shanghai, to whom reference was made a year ago. Money has been obtained for them to some extent, and employment for them sought; the book-binding of the printing press is done by them. They attend regularly at the chapel services on Sabbath, and give good heed to the word spoken. It is hoped that many of them may be converted, and may carry a knowledge of the gospel with them, if they should be able to return to their homes in the interior of the country.

Three schools, embracing forty boys and twenty girls, are under the care of this mission; and five boys have been taken into the families of the missionaries, who attend the day-schools, thus enjoying great advantages at a small outlay. One of these boys, who formerly lived by begging, is now an efficient assistant in the printing office. "Two of the others are motherless, and two are orphans, good scholars and promising boys." Others still could be taken, if means were provided. Careful religious instruction is given to these boys, and also in the schools.

The printing press is now an important part of the means of doing good, which is supported by the Board at Shanghai. It was removed to this city in December, 1860. The rooms occupied by it at first were too small, but measures are in progress for the erection of a suitable building on land that has been purchased for the use of the mission. A power printing press has been sent out, which will greatly increase the efficiency of this means of doing good. Mr. Gamble continues to superintend this establishment with energy and success. He is also making good progress in preparing matrices for a new font of type, which will add largely to the convenience of the press. His report of works printed exhibits an aggregate of 11,743,096 pages. Of these 6,164,000 were pages of the sacred Scriptures, 4,384,740 were pages of Christian tracts, mostly reprints, though a Compendium of Theology, by Mr. Nevius, is a new work of much importance to the native Christians, and especially to those of them who are in training for the ministry.

The number of pages issued from the depository was 3,284,950, besides the copies put in circulation by the Shanghai and Ningpo missions not enumerated. It is expected that the publications of this press will be widely sent forth in future years. Already they have been distributed, Mr. Gamble says, "in many places never hitherto penetrated. Grants were made to various missionaries, who distributed them at Nanking, Hankow, and other places high up the Yang-tze river; at Pekin also, and Tien-tsin many were distributed; our own missionaries at Tungchow distributed a great many in the Shantung province; some also were sent to California and Japan; and it is worthy of remark, that the Japanese have reprinted our Geography, which is now sold in the bookstores of Yedo. Thus by means of book distribution multitudes may have obtained some knowledge of Christianity, which they never could have possessed in any other way."

The building of a chapel, with rooms in a second story for a family residence, is spoken of as in good progress. This stands on land adjoining the lot occupied by the printing office. The site of these buildings, for the purposes of the mission, is every-way eligible. A considerable portion of the funds required for obtaining this property was acknowledged in the last Annual Report of the Committee as having been given by foreign residents at Shanghai, on the application of the late Rev. Reuben Lowrie; and two gentlemen of New York have recently made most liberal donations towards completing the buildings for the printing press. One of the best sites at Shanghai and buildings well suited to their purpose, are thus in the possession of the Board, free from all encumbrance.

The report of the mission mentions the organization of the Presbytery of Shanghai.

Tungchow.—The missionaries from Ningpo and Shanghai who visited this place in March, 1861, for health, as referred to above, desire to remain permanently in the province of Shantung, of which Tungchow is a city, making this province their field of labour. They speak of the climate as healthful in a high degree, and of the inhabitants as marked by unusual absence of prejudice against foreigners. In respect to both the climate and the people, they represent this part of China as preferable to the southern provinces as a sphere of missionary labour. They are not yet prepared to recommend the place that should be first occupied as a station; the large population of Shantung, about 29,000,000, and the numerous cities and large towns, make it no easy matter to determine this question. Tungchow itself is supposed to have a population of 150,000 souls. The brethren are particularly desirous that a medical missionary should be associated with them.

Their intercourse with the people has been friendly, indeed they have been treated with marked respect. This has aided them not a little in their missionary plans and labours. They were able to secure houses at a moderate rent, and a building which they fitted up for a chapel, accommodating from eighty to a hundred hearers. "There is already," says Mr. Nevius, "much to encourage us in our work. Many seem to be more or less interested in the truth, and there is one inquirer, an old man over eighty, whom we expect to baptize soon."

The invasion of a part of this province by a large band of banditti, in October, was attended with great loss of life and destruction of property among the native inhabitants, and for a time our missionary friends were in great peril. Two respected missionaries of other sections of the church, Messrs. Parker and Holmes, of the Episcopal and Baptist missions, met with a violent death at the hands of these robbers, in an attempt to visit them. It is supposed that these bands have some connection with the Taiping insurgents. They threatened to return after a few months, but there was a later report that they had been defeated by the government troops.

In concluding a paper written on behalf of the three brethren in Shantung, Mr. Nevius says, "Other fields on every side of us, perhaps not less important and promising than this, are ripe for the harvest. The opening of China to missionary labour, so far as the reigning dynasty is concerned, is now a fact. The unsettled state of the country on account of the rebels is the great obstacle to the indefinite extension of our work, and we trust that this will before long be removed, or overruled for good. We need a large force to enter in and possess the land. What is the Church willing and able to do in responding to this call?"

Mission in Japan.

KANAGAWA.—On the bay, a few miles below Yedo; occupied as a mission-station in 1859; missionary labourers, James C. Hepburn, M. D., and his wife.

The return of Mr. and Mrs. Nevius to China is mentioned in a previous part of this report. The Committee desired last summer to send out a new missionary to this country, and were in correspondence for this object with two of the brethren who were under appointment as missionaries, but they were both led to decline the offer of being sent to this field of labour.

The Committee then appointed Mr. R. J. Moore, a student in the Theological Seminary at Alleghany, to proceed to this mission early in the ensuing summer, and his choice gifts and earnest piety led them to expect the happiest results from his labours; but he was called to depart from this life in March, deeply lamented by his friends and Christian brethren. Of the brethren under appointment, another will be chosen for this field, who it is expected will go out at an early day.

Mrs. Hepburn is at present on a visit to this country, in reference to the education of their son—the expense incurred for her journey and visit being defrayed from their own funds; she expects to go back to Japan in a few months.

The few missionaries in Japan have been kept in safety, though foreigners were supposed to be in danger from the hostility of a portion of the governing classes, and an assault, attended with loss of life, was made on one of the foreign embassies. The government, it is believed, intends to fulfil the treaties which have been made with foreign powers; but whether it can withstand the opposition of some of the daimios, or nobles, who wish to maintain the old exclusive policy of the country, is a question which may yet be answered in blood. The missionaries are hopeful as to the future course of events, and for the year under review, Dr. Hepburn begins his report with grateful acknowledgment of uninterrupted peace, and the quiet pursuit of his great object. His main work has still been the learning of the language, in which he has made considerable progress, "both in speaking and in reading," he says, "as well as in ability to understand the conversation of the people." This knowledge he employs in conversation with the people, as opportunity serves, and in the attempt to translate the sacred Scriptures into Japanese, though this he is not prepared to undertake except in a limited way. A few copies of the Scriptures, and some Tracts in Chinese, have been given at their request to persons belonging to the educated classes, who can usually read that language.

An interesting sphere of usefulness was occupied for three or four months in Hospital and Dispensary practice. A temple was rented for this purpose, and it was thronged with patients, about 3,500 prescriptions having been made, and a few surgical cases treated. The poor people were very grateful for the relief thus obtained, and would have loaded the Doctor with presents according to their means, if he had deemed it expedient to accept them. This good work was arrested by the government, who did not formally prohibit it, but required permits to be obtained by all who would resort to the Dispensary. The obtaining of this permission was made so difficult, that the attendance of patients came at once to an end. The temple was given up, and latterly not more than two or three patients each day were prescribed for. This measure shows the complete power of the government over the people, and perhaps also its jealousy of foreign influence. It is supposed, however, that it was adopted partly in order to induce the foreigners living at Kanagawa to remove across the small bay to Yokohama, the nobles wishing to have the former place free from the presence of strangers.

The missionary now on the ground is anxious to have another labourer associated with him. He thus states the case—"Although there is no opening for direct missionary labour amongst the people publicly, something may be done in private, and there is a very great work to be done in the study. The country is famishing for the want of good books, on every subject. Here is a wide field. The people can almost all read books written in their own character, and they are fond of reading. They are anxious for knowledge, particularly about other countries, and geographical, historical and scientific subjects. But above all, the Scriptures and Christian Tracts have to be translated and written before there can be much if any progress in the way of teaching Christianity to this people. This is a difficult language to learn, and having no helps we have found it slow and up-hill work. Those that come after us may not find it so difficult. There should be another, at least, working with me."

In the opinion of the esteemed missionary, it is doubtful whether "Christianity can make any progress in Japan, until permission is given to its propagation by the government," but he is convinced that this permission will be eventually obtained. "The prejudices of the government against foreigners, and their spirit of exclusiveness, are fast dissolving away. They are freely adopting every thing foreign that they find useful or can adapt to their own customs, particularly in naval and military matters, mining, medicine, tools, etc." The purchase of ships, one of them a steamer, in order to engage in foreign trade on their own account, is cited as another example, and the missionary adds, "I feel sure that as soon as the government knows what the spirit of true Christianity is, they will give it free toleration." At present, the Japanese are too likely to gain a very erroneous idea of the Christian religion from the conduct of too many nominally Christian sailors, merchants, and others; but they will gradually learn the difference between them and the pure religion they so much misrepresent. The old law of the country against Christianity remains unrepealed, but it will give way before the progress of correct and liberal views. In the end it will probably appear that no country affords a better field of missionary labour, and, perhaps, amongst no other people will the gospel achieve more rapid triumphs.

Mission to the Chinese in California.

San Francisco.—Rev. Augustus W. Loomis and his wife.

The Committee are happy to report that this mission still enjoys their confidence as one well planned and well conducted. It is almost the only Christian agency for the instruction of the tens of thousands of Chinese strangers in California. Its work, and the discouragements attending it, as well as its signs of promise, and the widely-spread influence which it is exerting in China itself no less than among the Chinese in this country, will be seen from Mr. Loomis' report, which is here given as it was made in February of this year:

"During the past year services have been conducted without interruption, in the chapel, on the Sabbath afternoon and Thursday evening. We were absent three Sabbaths during the summer, but the services were continued as usual by the teacher and a few Christian Chinamen.

"Our Sabbath mornings have been occupied variously, according as circumstances seemed to direct. If many strangers were in town we sought them at their lodging-places, discoursing to few or many as we found opportunity. For a time we procured the use of a room in a Chinese restaurant, where we discoursed and read to such as were pleased to assemble. At other times we have gone to a settlement a mile or more distant, in search of people to whom to talk: again we have found audiences in the caravansaries and boarding-houses nearer home. Frequently during the week, daytime or evening, have we gone out through the city on the same errand; and always supplied with tracts, prepared to give if advisable, or to send into the country when an occasion offered. Recently we have held a prayer-meeting on Sabbath evening in a private room. It has been pleasant, and we trust, profitable; though attended by few.

"The average congregations in the chapel have been larger than during previous years, and uniformly the audiences have been respectful and attentive. Many heads have bowed with ours while prayer has been offered to him who seeth in secret; but, like those whom Paul found at Athens, the worship of many of these has been to an unknown God. This God we have endeavoured to declare unto them; and have prayed God to reveal himself to them. It has oftentimes been encouraging to notice the earnestness with which some have listened to the message; and yet we know, and experience has shown, that unless the Lord open the heart, our preaching profits nothing.

"At different times during the year, Mrs. Loomis has had a few pupils, either children, or young men, wishing to learn English.

"Since our last report, one man has made a public profession of faith in Christ; another gives evidence of being a Christian, and is endeavouring to lead others to forsake evil and choose good; still another has applied for baptism; his motives seem to be correct, and his appearance recommends him in every respect, but his knowledge is rather limited.

"Within the year we have parted with four men who were professing Christians, who were wont to take part in our meetings for social worship, and who were capable of lending us much assistance. They have gone back to China: we pray that God may enable them to witness a good confession. Others who gave evidence of having profited by what they had heard, have already left this, or are soon to leave; some for the interior of the State.

"We are not able to report itinerant missionary labours amongst the mining districts; and for reasons which will appear presently. In the spring and early summer, immigrants were coming in from China, and we were fully occupied in visiting them. Instead of needing to travel from village to village, it was as though the villages, one after another, had come to us. A shipload arrived, tarried a few days, then dispersed to different places throughout the State; some with books in their baskets; and others, we hope, with a few words of truth stored in the memory. After a few days, another ship would arrive, then another, and another; and thus we were fully occupied till the season was too far advanced, and the weather in the mining districts had become too hot to admit of comfortable travelling in the way it must have been done in order to reach many of the miners, who are to be found in the gulches and in by-places off from the wagon roads, and often in places inaccessible except on foot. Being disappointed thus in our projected summer campaign, we had purposed to carry out the plan during the winter; but the unprecedented heavy rains and floods prevented, and now once more the year has run its round, and again the spring immigration has commenced.

"Not only have we attended to those arriving from China (who were the representatives of twenty-five or more Heen districts, in each of which are many villages, and all in the neighbourhood of Canton), and the greater part of these people being such as had never before heard of the Saviour of lost men, but the people about returning to China have engaged our attention, together with many from British Columbia, who have passed through this port on their way back to their native land. We endeavour to meet these people with the offer of salvation as they come ashore from their heathen country, and we press that offer upon them again as they are about embarking once more for the land of their birth. The seasons for arriving are the spring and summer; the seasons for returning are the fall and winter. Thus it may be seen, that though we should not travel at all amongst the mines, yet we never need be at a loss for work to do. The shipping returns give the number of Chinese that arrived during the year at 8,434, the number that returned at 3,594; the city census gives the number of Chinese residents in San Francisco at 3,000 and more. But if throughout the country, from north to south, there are 50,000 or 60,000 of these people, there is sufficient reason why efforts should be made to reach them, so that every person in this Christian land may at least once in his life hear of Jesus. They sicken and die like other people: like other people their souls are precious. Many (some say hundreds) perished by the floods and mountain torrents which, during the past winter, came suddenly and swept away their camps in the narrow ravines.

"There can be no doubt that every returning Chinaman carries back to his native land a large amount of knowledge of various kinds, which, but for this sojourn in some such land as this, he never would have had. How many have learned that which will prove to them a savour of life, we shall not know till that day when the Lord of hosts makes up his jewels. By this coming and going, and commingling of the peoples of the earth, influences are produced, or set in motion, which eventually may work a moral revolution throughout the entire empire of China.

"In the labours of which I have been speaking, we still rely very much upon the assistance of the Chinese teacher, who has been with us from the first. We have also, from time to time, availed ourselves of the temporary assistance of other Christian Chinamen when they have been in the city; taking them with us in our missionary tours through the city, asking them to tell their countrymen what they knew, and how they felt in regard to this religion of Jesus.

"We are sorry to be still obliged to report, that Chinamen are treated by many in this country very unkindly, and often cruelly; and laws continue to be enacted, the avowed design of which is to make their lot so hard that they will leave the country. All this stands in the way of bringing them to love us as a nation, or to think favourably of the religion which we proffer them.

"Thus we have endeavoured briefly to spread out before you the operations of this little mission station on the Pacific coast during the year now drawing to a close: but could we read the record made by the recording angel, we would doubtless find a history quite unlike this which I have given. He could tell of words which might have been spoken, but were not; of works which might have been performed, but were not. He could also report the effects produced, by words spoken and by books given, upon persons whom we may never see again on earth. But only He, who knows all things, understands fully what the past year's labours will amount to in the end; and whether any particles of seed committed to the soil, will be like the handful of corn on the mountain, the fruit of which shall shake like Lebanon. We labour in hope; for the people to whom we preach are no worse in any respect than were those to whom the Apostles first carried the gospel, and whom they afterwards addressed as dearly beloved and longed for, their joy and crown, fellow-labourers, and fellow-heirs. We preach the same gospel they preached, are ambassadors for the same Lord, and have the promise of the same Holy Spirit. We frequently meet with people who but recently were entirely ignorant of God and of the way to heaven, but who now possess a knowledge of the important outlines of Christian doctrine. Leaven has been hid in the meal, and it will work; and the whole will be leavened.

"In looking back over the year, we call to mind much for which to be thankful. More have attended our services than we expected, and our message has been listened to with respect; neither war, flood, fire, nor famine have interrupted our work; we have had no severe and protracted illness; we were only promised that bread should be given us, and that water should be sure, but we have had a much greater variety; and, moreover, God gives us many friends whose prayers we have, and whose society and sympathy we enjoy. Therefore, here do we once more set up our Ebenezer, saying, Hitherto hath the Lord helped us."

Missions to Papal Europe.

Stations.—In Italy, France, Belgium, etc.

No part of the missionary work under the care of the Committee can be surveyed with greater satisfaction, in some respects, than that which is now to be considered—the missions in some of the Roman Catholic countries of Europe. This missionary field is at once important and difficult. It is difficult to occupy it successfully, because everywhere the Romanist clergy of various orders oppose the preaching of the gospel, and their opposition is fortified by the ignorance and superstition of ages—the result as well as the strength of Papal influence. On the other hand, the continent of Europe as a field of Christian mission yields to few others in its importance, whether the large number of its people be considered, or their widely extended influence over other nations;—in this latter respect they at present constitute the main pillars of the semi-idolatrous religion of Rome. As compared with heathen or Mohammedan missionary fields, the European possesses an advantage of the highest moment in its Evangelical churches, with their organized agencies for the spread of the true religion. These churches are indeed feeble in number and pecuniary resources, but their influence is above all estimation: they are lights shining in dark places. Their evangelizing agencies are conducted by Christian brethren, who deserve and enjoy the confidence and sympathy of our Christian people. It is, indeed, the happiness of our churches to be associated in missionary labour with these European brethren; and it is not unworthy of remark, that this coöperation is at once simple, inexpensive and effective. Since it was commenced in 1845, over $100,000 have been expended in these countries by the Board, at the cost of an insignificant sum for postage.

There is ample reason to believe that great good has thus been accomplished. The fruits of this expenditure are already visible in churches planted, missionaries and colporteurs aided, schools established, the word of God disseminated,—in short, as the end of all, in souls saved and Christ thereby glorified. The chief regret which the Committee feel in regard to this part of their work is, that they have not been enabled to remit much larger sums to strengthen their brethren in their various missionary labours.

These general views of the European missions being satisfactory, it is the less to be regretted that minute details concerning their progress are not here given. To some extent these have been furnished in papers published in the periodicals of the Board. A few things, chiefly statistical, may be added in this report.

Italy.—In connection with the Vaudois synod, there are missionary labourers, mostly ministers of the gospel, in some of the chief cities and at places less conspicuous. There are also a few other evangelists, not in connection with this venerable church, but the whole number of gospel labourers in this country would not exceed a few scores. It is in aid of the Waldensian missions and Theological Seminary, which form at present the main instrumentality for the conversion of the Italians, that the Committee have been permitted to send remittances of funds. These missions have met with discouragements, but have nevertheless made good progress. The Theological Seminary, since its removal to Florence, has found its home in a palace which once belonged to a cardinal, but which has been purchased for its present use, and its prospects of usefulness continue to encourage the hopes of its friends. Twelve students were in attendance this year, some of whom were formerly Romanist priests. An excellent report is made of these students, both as to their Christian deportment and their improvement in qualifications for the work before them.

The political questions of Italy are not yet settled, though their issue still looks in the direction of liberty. The Roman court, as a civil power, is still losing influence, and this tends to the lessening of its authority as a religious body; but the end of its sway is not yet come, and, as a religion, Popery is deeply intrenched in the land. It may survive the loss of political power, and continue to exert a disastrous influence on the souls of men in Italy, as in other countries where it has no connection with the state. There are signs of promise in many things: in the measure of toleration and liberty now accorded to ministers of the gospel and colporteurs throughout a large part of the Italian peninsula, under a government of marked enlightenment and liberality; the introduction of many thousand copies of the Sacred Scriptures and of religious Tracts —the immense circulation of some of these being truly remarkable; the gospel leaven placed in the minds of men at many places; the Theological Seminary at Florence, and its well-proportioned instructions and example; the churches which have been organized in some of the towns and cities, and the priceless souls gathered into the fold of Christ. But, after all, the chief ground of hope for the future conversion of the Italian people is found in the Word of God.

France.—In this country, the three Evangelical Societies continue their efforts to advance the kingdom of Christ.

The Evangelical Society of Geneva supports missionary labours in Switzerland, and its noble Theological Seminary educates ministers and missionaries for several countries; but its colporteur and other missionary agents are chiefly employed in France. In its last report twenty colporteurs are enumerated —nine during the winter, three for three months, and eight all the year—who distributed, mostly by sale, 1,074 bibles, 4,255 new testaments, and 37,200 tracts. Twelve ministers, six evangelists, fourteen teachers, and six female teachers, are reported at thirty-two stations, with over a hundred sub-stations. In connection with these are 19 schools, 807 scholars, 27 churches, 1,137 communicants, and about 5,000 attendants on public worship. The School of Theology at Geneva was referred to by the Directors of the Society, at the end of 1861, in these terms: "The students come from different countries: you are aware this characterizes the school. Nine Swiss students, including three Genevese, seventeen French, two Italian or Vaudois of Piedmont, five Belgian, one Irish, one Prussian, four Canadian, are now in the school—in all, thirty-nine. Other young Christians have sought admission, but in vain; because we could give them no aid, and they were not able to support themselves. We note among these a student of the Reformed Church of Bohemia, the son of a pastor near Prague, the city of Jerome and of John Huss, and who has already awakened our deep interest for himself." The pecuniary outlay of this Society last year was 151,348 fr., or about $30,000 — over one-third of which was received from Christian friends in Great Britain and this country, but mainly from Great Britain. The Annual Report of the Society contains abundant evidence that this money has been well employed in the service of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

The Central Protestant Society of Evangelization has its seat of operations in Paris, but extends its aid to evangelistic labours in twenty-six of the Departments, in Algiers and in Guadeloupe. About seventy labourers are supported in whole or in part, and the number of churches and schools aided last year was twenty-eight. A "school preparatory of theology," established by the Society, in which youths of piety and of a prescribed stage in their education receive instruction, to fit them for entering the Theological Institute at Montauban or elsewhere, sent forth eight graduates last year; sixteen young men in this school have the ministry in view, and have received pecuniary aid. An itinerant preacher was employed to visit at large different parts of the country, holding religious services in the churches. The expenditure of the Society on these different objects was 140,040 fr.; of its income, about a fourth part was received from Great Britain and the United States, but chiefly from the former.

The Evangelical Society of France, whose seat of operations is also in Paris, is now in the twenty-ninth year of its useful course. The Annual Report of this Society has not been received; but the Committee learn from a Bulletin lately issued, that its good work is prosecuted steadily and with encouragement. The expenditure of this Society for the year just ended was estimated in February at 122,633 fr. For a considerable portion of the means to meet this expenditure, its Directors would have to be indebted to their friends in Great Britain and America.

The general aspect of the work of evangelization in France is certainly encouraging. The opposition of the priests is still vigorous and unscrupulous; but their influence on the government of the country is diminishing. Restrictions on Protestant schools and places of worship have been in some instances removed, and permission readily granted in other cases for holding religious services; in some places, however, fresh hinderances have been interposed. In the Protestant Church itself, as supported by the State, there is, unhappily, a rationalistic and Unitarian element, which has not yet been eliminated, but which, it is believed, is losing ground. And the word of life held forth by faithful men receives the seal of heaven, in the conversion of souls unto God.

Belgium and Holland.—In each of these countries an evangelical agency is engaged in supporting missionaries, teachers and colporteurs. About fifty of these labourers are employed in the former and less than a dozen in the latter country—nearly one-half of these being ministers of the gospel. This small but efficient staff of labourers has to contend with the difficulties and discouragements usually found in a Romanist population: the ignorance of the masses as to spiritual things, and the bitter opposition of the priesthood. Nevertheless, progress is made in the right direction. The truth is disseminated in various ways; inquirers appear; converts are brought into the gospel church. It is stated that 250,000 copies of the Scriptures have been put in the hands of Belgian readers; and out of the twenty-six congregations in connection with the Belgian Missionary Church, many are composed largely of converted Roman Catholics; one congregation of five hundred persons is made up almost exclusively of such converts. The operations of the Belgian brethren are, to a great extent, among the poor, while the resources of their Church are very limited; so that their more favoured friends in other countries should take the deeper interest in strengthening their hands.

Mission to the Jews.

New York.—Rev. John Neander.

No new phase appears in the aspect of this mission. The only labourer is still pastor of a German church in Williamsburgh, and pursues the same labours for the conversion of his kinsmen according to the flesh who live in this city and its vicinity. He thus reviews the year:

"In the midst of excitement and deep lamentations about our national troubles and calamity, I was favoured by God's blessing to proclaim the message of peace and safety to hundreds of Jews and Gentiles—to the rich and the poor, the old and young, to the healthy and to the sick and the dying, to the free and to the prisoners. During a few weeks I was laid up with sickness, and the Lord gave me grace to be still and to wait for his help.

"My mission among the Jews was carried on during this year as formerly, quietly. I was allowed, with only a few exceptions, to enter stores, shops and private residences of Jews, to give testimony to the truths of Christianity. In some families I spent hours at repeated times, when I could display the excellence of our holy religion, and show them how happy the true believer in Christ really is.

'Over five thousand pages of religious pamphlets, periodicals and tracts I distributed amongst the Jews, and also several copies of the New Testament.

"During the last summer, I visited several regiments of soldiers in their encampments in New York and on Staten Island; amongst them I found quite a number of Jews. I conversed with them and preached to them Christ, the captain of our salvation. I preached once on a Sunday afternoon to a regiment, and some Jews expressed their friendly feeling towards me. The future will tell the result of this missionary work. I think there are some among the Jews with whom I was brought in contact, who are inclined to search the Scriptures "to see if these things were so." One Jew, now a soldier at the Potomac, called on me for a New Testament. He was very glad when he was furnished with that precious book.

"I know that there are Jews in New York who read and closely examine the Bible. The glorious period is approaching when large numbers of Jews shall rally around the Saviour, and give glory to King Jesus. The present is the seed time; and may the Lord give us grace to proclaim his name to them, who are still beloved for their fathers' sake!

"In the City Prison I continued my weekly visits, and was gladly received by the German prisoners, amongst whom I distributed tracts, and directed them to Jesus, who alone can liberate the captives and slaves of sin. Some of the sick and dying Germans in the Broadway Hospital listened with tears to the words of consolation.

"The German field in Williamsburgh [a part of Brooklyn, across the river from New York] becomes more interesting every year. A larger number of our young and older men—members of the church and regular hearers of the preached word—have left for different fields of battle,—nearly forty, in all. Some of them are officers; one, a converted Jew, is a lieutenant-colonel—a pious man, who will no doubt exert a good influence upon many of the soldiers. Others have left us by removal to the city of New York. Yet the church was crowded on many Sundays, especially in the morning. There is a hunger for God's word. Some persons have been hopefully converted; and they all, old and young, become more attached to me as their spiritual father. They are all hard-working people—some of them very poor; and all feeling deeply the pressure of the great calamity of war, they can do little for the support of the church. The Master's words, 'To the poor the gospel is preached,' give me great comfort.

"The Sunday School is in a flourishing condition. The Parochial School is struggling hard for want of support.

"I am, when health enables me, every day out of the house, from early till late at night; but I find it a great pleasure to be occupied in our Master's cause. Oh, may he sustain me, and bless his work!"

The labour thus described with simplicity will not be in vain in the Lord; and the Church may well be grateful for the faithful service of this esteemed missionary for so many years. The Committee cannot but regret, however, that more labourers are not employed in seeking the salvation of the ancient people of God. They are now sadly fallen into irreligion, error and scepticism, by reason of their great sin of rejecting the Messiah; but to them still pertain the promises, and these are many and precious. The Committee are not able to add anything to the views and suggestions contained in former reports concerning the work of missions among the Jews; but they would again commend this people to the earnest prayers of the Church of Christ.

The foregoing Report gives abundant reasons for thanksgiving to God. The year under its review commenced in the midst of deep discouragement, which was set forth in the Special Report of the Committee, directed by the Board to be laid before the last General Assembly. At the risk of repeating some remarks in the introductory pages of this report, the Committee now desire to place on record their acknowledgment of the great goodness of God to this cause. Many of their fears have been disappointed, many of their hopes have been exceeded. Their grateful conviction now is, that this work of their hands has never been, all things considered, more highly favoured of God than during this most trying year. The Missions, with the lamented exception of those among the southwestern Indian tribes, are all in the field. Nearly all of the missionary labourers have been spared in health and life; and the two respected ministers and the three excellent wives of missionaries, whose departure from this life is lamented, were faithful unto death, and were supported in their last hours by a good hope through grace. Several new missionaries have been sent out. The good work of the Lord has been steadily carried forward, by the usual means. Souls have been hopefully converted in Africa, South America, India, Siam, and China. Some of the former converts, including an excellent Hindu minister of the gospel, whose praise was in the churches, have finished their earthly course, and in their death were cheered by the hope of eternal life.

To these causes of gratitude abroad—omitting others—must be added the liberal pecuniary support given to the missions by our Christian people, in a year of unprecedented calamities. The Committee would mention, as a marked reason of thankfulness, that they were enabled to send out all the missionaries under appointment last year, who were ready to go; not one was detained at home for want of funds to send him forth. They refer to this with great pleasure; the liberal offerings of a few Christian friends for this purpose were honoured in this happy result. They are at liberty to refer only in general terms to the large donations of these and other friends of missions to the general objects of the Board; and they record with not less grateful emotion the gifts of many who "beyond their ability" came forward in aid of this cause. They have already expressed their high sense of the generous sympathy of English friends in India in behalf of the missions in that country.

The Committee would mention, further, that a large company of brethren have been moved by the Holy Spirit, as they themselves believe, to offer themselves as labourers in the missionary field, and have received appointments as such—subject to the condition of pecuniary means being furnished by the churches for sending them out; no less than thirteen are thus appointed, not including brethren who desire to return to their stations, and three others have applied for similar appointment. Besides these, one was appointed who has already been called to a higher service, in the presence of our Lord. All but three of the sixteen can be ready at an early day, if the Lord will, to go out as missionaries. This is the largest number of missionary candidates ever reported by the Committee as waiting to be sent forth. And in this they see the good hand of God upon this cause. It is of his great grace that so many approved and choice men have been led to desire this good work, notwithstanding its great cross,—separation from friends and country, and its many other severe trials of life and faith. Indeed, the Committee wish to call the attention of the Church to this statement as a special cause of thanksgiving, and as furnishing an answer to many prayers; while in this, and in the other particulars specified, and hardly less in many things which can not here be enumerated, but which a careful reading of this Report will bring to view, they rejoice to see the fulfilment of our Lord's promise to his disciples: "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

If this Report give reasons for thanksgiving, it must also be regarded as containing an earnest call to onward movement in the missionary work. This work remains. Multitudes of men in these missionary lands are yet sitting in the shadow of death. Many more labourers could at once find employment in this harvest. Here is need of prayer; here is room for Christian liberality. Both are called for by the Word, the Providence, and the Spirit of God. The Committee cannot doubt that in both the members of our Christian body, generally, might make large advances on their past efforts. To refer particularly to the pecuniary means required for increased labours, the Committee do not doubt that the churches which now support these missions could really double their gifts, in a great number of instances; and the churches, which have made no offering in aid of this cause, might surely do something for its support. Let this Report, with its many and varied statements of what God is doing by his servants, be regarded as an earnest call to the consideration of Christian duty. This will also lead to greater hopefulness in the missionary work of our beloved Church.

The Committee are closing this Report in the midst of times that are filling the minds of men with apprehension. Kingdoms are shaking. Our own country was never in such awful calamity. But the Church need not fear, her members being found in their lot, at the post of duty. The kingdom that shall never be moved is rising. He that has all power in heaven and in earth is now on its throne. His Almighty Spirit is now in the world, as the great agent of converting the souls of men. His power may be witnessed by the Church, in answer to her prayers, on Corisco, at Canton, at Bangkok, at all the missionary stations, as at Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost. This hope may well cheer the hearts of all who are praying, Thy kingdom come! It is for Christ and his kingdom this work of missions is performed. At his feet the Committee would lay down this narrative of another year's services of their Christian brethren and themselves in this cause, feeling assured that their labour is not in vain in the Lord.

Financial Statement.

Payments by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church from May 1st, 1861, to May 1st, 1862.

MISSIONS.

MISSIONS IN INDIA.

Expenditures on account of the Lodiana Mission,	$44,578 74
Outfit of Miss C. L. Beatty,	250 00
Passage of Miss Beatty and Rev. L. Janvier and family to Calcutta,	900 00
Furrukhabad Mission,	25,306 87
		71,035 71

MISSIONS IN SIAM.

Expenditures on account of	8,696 44
Outfit of Rev. S. C. George and wife,	400 00
Passage of do. to Singapore,	500 00
		9,596 44

MISSIONS IN CHINA.

Expenditures on account of
Canton Mission,	5,897 01
Ningpo Mission,	7,246 02
Outfit of Rev. Samuel Dodd,	250 00
Passage of Rev. S. Dodd to Shanghai,	300 00
Outfit of Rev. L. Roberts and wife,	400 00
Passage of do. do. Shanghai,	500 00
Passage of Rev. W. A. P. Martin and family to Shanghai,	900 00
Shanghai Mission,	18,268 59
		33,761 62

MISSION TO THE CHINESE IN CALIFORNIA.

Expenditures on account of	1,363 25

MISSION IN JAPAN.

Expenditures on account of	1,146 26

MISSIONS IN AFRICA.

Expenditures on account of
Liberia Mission,	6,819 12
Corisco Mission,	7,612 74
Outfit of Rev. R. H. Nassau, M. D.,	250 00
Passage of Rev. R. H. Nassau and Rev. J. L. Mackey and wife, and Mrs. McQueen,	600 00
		15,281 86

MISSIONS TO THE AMERICAN INDIANS.

Expenditures on account of
Chippewa and Ottawa Mission,	3,059 83
Omaha Mission,	2,966 22
Iowa and Sac Mission,	1,637 63
Creek Mission,	1,717 03
Seminole Mission,	755 65
Choctaw Missions,	6,995 56
		17,131 92

MISSIONS IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Expenditures on account of
Bogota Mission,	3,140 27
Outfit of Rev. T. F. Wallace and wife,	400 00
Passage of do. do. to Aspinwall,	120 00
Brazil Mission,	3,162 97
Outfit of Rev. F. J. C. Schneider,	250 00
Passage of do. to Rio de Janeiro,	100 00
		7,173 24

MISSIONS IN PAPAL EUROPE.

Remittances to France,		500 00
" " Geneva,		1,000 00
" " Belgium,		500 00
" " Holland,		500 00
Waldenses,	906 00
Interest on Endowment,	994 00
		1,900
			4,400

MISSION TO THE JEWS.

Expenditures on account of		700 00
(Total expenditures for Missions, $161,590 20.)

AGENCIES.

Travelling Expenses of Officers and Voluntary Agents,	$151 00

SECRETARIES' AND TREASURER'S DEPARTMENT.

Walter Lowrie, Secretary,	2,000 00
Rev. John C. Lowrie, "	2,000 00
" J. L. Wilson, "	450 00
Wm. Rankin, Jr., Treasurer,	2,000 00
Clerk hire and copying,	1,537 09
		7,987 09

PRINTING.

The Foreign Missionary: Expenses of publishing 32,200 copies monthly, including those sent Free to Ministers and Donors,	4,973 60
The Home and Foreign Record: proportion of deficiency,	757 00
The Twenty-Fourth Annual Report: Expenses of publishing 18,000 copies, including Postage,	1,195 11
Printing Circulars, Certificates, and Blanks,	67 55
		6,993 26

MISCELLANEOUS.

Postage,	469 53
Fuel and Lights,	117 86
Library, Binding and Periodicals,	188 30
Fixtures and Care of Mission House,	77 08
Taxes and Insurance,	317 87
		1,170 64
		$177,893 19

TREASURER'S REPORT.

Dr. The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in account with Wm. Rankin, Jr., Treasurer. Cr.

1862.			1861.
April 30.	To payments as per accompanying statements	$177,892 19	May 1.	By balance from last Report		$28 38
			1862.
			April 30.	By Donations from Churches	$89,701 13
				Individuals and miscellaneous sources	41,338 89
				Legacies	7,637 11
				Synod of Reformed Presbyterian Ch.	1,947 00
				Donations received in India	6,114 00
				" for Chapels in China and Siam,	2,459 80
						149,197 93
				By Interest on endowment of Waldensian Seminary		994 00
				Proceeds of sales of property at Chickasaw School		4,069 16
				Amount received from U. S. Government, for Choctaws at Spencer Academy	4,000 00
				" for Creek Indians	2,000 00
				" " Seminole Indians	250 00
				" " Omaha Indians	1,875 00
				" " Chippewa Indians	950 00
						9,075 00
				By American Bible Society for Printing Bibles in India, China, and Siam		12,375 00
				American Tract Society for Printing Tracts, &c., in India and China		1,200 00
						$176,939 47
				Balance		952 72
						$177,892 19
May 1st.	To Balance	$952 72

WM. RANKIN, Jr., Treasurer.

The undersigned has examined the foregoing statement and finds it correct, showing an excess of expenditures over receipts of $952 72.

New York, May 3, 1862. Ebenezer Platt, Auditor.

Action of the General Assembly.

On Friday, the 16th of May, the Report of the Board was presented to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, and was referred to the Standing Committee of that body on Foreign Missions, consisting of the Rev. Messrs. William M. Paxton, D.D., Job F. Halsey, D.D., John M. Stevenson, D.D., David Irving, and James Anderson, and Messrs. J. F. Janvier, Jonathan Woodruff, David R. Breeze, and James E. Bell.

On Wednesday, May 21st, this Committee reported a series of resolutions, which were considered and adopted, as follows, viz:

1. Resolved, That this Assembly, having learned from the Board's report the undiminished contributions of the churches notwithstanding the pecuniary embarrassment of the times, and the blessing of God upon the labours of our missionaries in the foreign field, in the conversion of souls and in the enlargement and strengthening of our mission stations, so that the work of the Board in all its departments is as encouraging as in any former period of its history, we do hereby record our devout gratitude to the great King and Head of the Church for the merciful favour by which, in this time of general rebuke, he has evinced his approbation of our efforts to "preach the Gospel to every creature."

2. Resolved, That we regard the proffer and acceptance of the thirteen young men, whom God has raised up in his Providence and influenced by his grace to undertake the work of missions at this trying crisis, as a significant fact, calling upon us in the exercise of a more liberal benevolence and a higher faith to send forth these new labourers; in the confidence that his past mercies are but the earnest of larger favours as the reward of increased exertions for the glory of his name.

3. Resolved, That in view of the greatly increased pecuniary liabilities of the Board involved in this new accession of labourers, we call upon all the members of our churches to carry this responsibility upon their hearts; upon all our pastors to present this call of Divine Providence distinctly and pungently to the people; upon all our sessions to carry out such an efficient system of contribution as shall leave no tythe ungathered; and upon all our congregations to make united and continuous supplication to the great Lord of the harvest, that he will so bless the work and the workers, that we shall have reason to say as each year of increased effort terminates, "We have trusted in the Lord, and are not made ashamed."

4. Resolved, That in view of the present state of the world and the encouragements by which a Divine Providence is beckoning us onward in the prosecution of this great work, we express to the churches our increased sense of the importance of the claims of this Board upon their Christian liberality; as its field is the world, and its operations involve such multiform pecuniary expenditures, requiring in addition to the outfit and salaries of the missionaries large outlays for the support of schools, the building of houses, and the publication of the Bible and other books and tracts in a variety of foreign languages.

5. Resolved, That we heartily approve the effort of the Board to circulate the "Foreign Missionary" among the Sabbath-schools and families of our Church; and that, under the strong conviction of the importance of training all our children and youth to feel a deep interest in the missionary work, we earnestly commend this subject to the attention of pastors and parents, and Sabbath-school teachers, in the hope that they will make the inculcation of a true missionary spirit one of the principal features of their plans for Christian instruction and nurture.

6. Resolved, That this Assembly takes great pleasure in commending the wisdom and fidelity with which the affairs of the Board have been conducted, and our appreciation of the cheerfulness with which its executive officers have performed the increased labours of the present year.

7. Resolved, That the Report of the Board be approved, and referred to the Executive Committee for publication.

A public meeting in behalf of the Missions of the Board was held on the next evening, in the First Presbyterian Church, Columbus, O., which was attended by many members of the General Assembly and others.

A sermon for the Board was preached in the Church on Fifth avenue and Nineteenth-street, New York, on Sabbath evening, May 4th, preceding the meeting of the Board, from 1 Thess. ii. 16, Luke xi. 52, Matt. xxvi. 8, 9, by the Rev. John M. Krebs, D.D.

A SUMMARY VIEW

OF THE FOREIGN MISSIONS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, MAY 1, 1862.

MISSIONS.	NAMES OF STATIONS.	First Commencement of Operations.	Missionaries & Ass't Missionaries.					Communicants.	SCHOLARS.
			Ministers.		Lay Teachers and others.				Boarding.		Day.
			American.	Native.	American.		Native.		Boys.	Girls.	Boys.	Girls.	TOTAL.
					Male.	Fem.
INDIAN TRIBES:
CHOCTAWS,*	Spencer Academy,	1846	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	Good Water,	1855	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	Seven Stations, late of the Am. Bd.	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
CHICKASAWS,*	Wapanucka,	1849	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	Boggy Depot,	1852	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
SEMINOLES,*	Oak Ridge,	1848	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	Prairie Station,	1859	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
CREEKS,*	Kowetah and Choska,	1842	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	Tallahassee,	1849	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
IOWAS AND SACS,	Indian Orphan Institute,	1885	—	—	1	2	—	—	15	12	—	—	27
OMAHAS,	Blackbird Hills,	1846	1	—	2	4	1	—	31	25	—	—	56
CHIPPEWAS AND OTTAWAS,	Grand Traverse, or Grove Hill,	1838	1	—	1	5	—	44	14	11	—	—	25
	Little Traverse	1852	—	—	1	2	1	21	—	—	23	14	37
	Total of Indian Missions,		2		5	11	2	65	60	48	23	14	145
SOUTH AMERICA:
	Bogota	1856	2	—	—	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	Rio de Janeiro,	1859	2	—	—	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	San Paulo,	1862	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	Total of South American Missions,		5			3
AFRICA:
LIBERIA,	Monrovia,	1842	2	—	1	—	—	54	—	—	75	—	75
	Kentucky,	1850	1	—	1	—	—	†	—	—	†	—	—
	Harrisburg,	1854	—	—	2	—	—	†	32	—	—	—	32
	Greenville, or Sinou,	1847	1	—	—	1	—	65	—	—	29	20	49
	Mount Coffee,	1860	1	—	—	—	—	—	4	—	26	—	30
	Niffau,	1860	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	At home,	—	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	Settra Kroo,	1841	—	—	1	—	—	—	14	—	—	—	14
NEAR THE EQUATOR,	Corisco—3 stations 5 out-stations,	1850	5	—	—	3	5	83	58	24	—	—	82
	At home,	—	—	—	1	2	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	Total African Missions,		13		6	6	5	201	108	24	130	20	282
INDIA:
LODIANA,	Peshawar,	1857	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	Rawal Pindi,	1856	1	—	—	1	2	7	—	—	120	—	120
	Lahor,	1849	2	—	—	1	5	22	—	—	502	—	502
	Kapurthala,	1859	1	—	1	2	2	—	—	—	181	—	181
	Julandar,	1847	—	1	—	—	2	20	—	—	250	—	250
	Lodiana,	1834	2	—	1	4	2	12	—	52	314	—	366
	Ambala,	1848	1	—	—	1	5	21	—	—	240	—	240
	Sabathu,	1836	—	—	—	—	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
	Saharunpur,	1836	1	1	—	2	2	12	54	—	130	—	184
	Dehra,	1853	2	—	—	1	2	†	—	25	171	4	200
	Roorkhee,	1856	1	—	—	1	2	5	—	—	100	—	100
	At home,	—	2	—	—	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
FURRUKHABAD,	Agra,	1846	1	—	—	1	1	†	—	—	85	—	85
	Mynpurie,	1843	1	—	—	1	3	9	9	—	235	—	244
	Futtehguch,	1838	3	—	—	3	19	95	27	11	885	115	1038
	Futtehpore,	1852	1	—	—	1	6	19	—	—	105	25	130
	Allahabad,	1836	2	—	—	2	4	45	5	4	430		439
	Total of India Missions,		22	2	2	22	58	267	95	92	3698	144	4029
SIAM:
	Bangkok,	1840	5	—	—	4	1	11	23	—	—	9	32
	Petchaburi,	1861	2	—	—	2	—	5	—	—	—	—	—
	Total of Siam Missions,		7			6	1	11	23			9	32
CHINA:
CANTON,	Canton,	1846	3	—	1	4	1	11	—	2	70	21	93
NINGPO,	Ningpo and three sub-Stations,	1844	6	—	1	6	14	116	36	26	60	20	143
SHANGHAI,	Shanghai,	1850	3	—	1	3	—	10	5	—	40	20	65
SHANTUNG,	Tungchow,	1861	3	—	—	2	1	—	—	—	—	—	—
CHINESE IN CALIFORNIA,	San Francisco,	1853	1	—	—	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	Total of China Missions,		16	—	3	16	16	137	41	28	170	61	300
JAPAN:	Kanagawa,	1859	—	—	1	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
JEWS:	New York,	1846	1	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
PAPAL EUROPE:	Stations in France,	1844	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	Belgium, &c.,	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	GENERAL TOTAL,		66	2	18	65	82	681	327	192	4025	248	4792

* Missions suspended—see pages 116, 117, supra.

† Not reported.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME XIII. No. 8. | PHILADELPHIA, AUGUST, 1862. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

MISSION ROOMS,

No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. T. L. Janeway, D. D.
Treasurer—Samuel D. Powel.

Letters relating to Missionary Appointments and other operations of the Board, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 910 Arch street, Philadelphia.

Contributions should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to

William Rankin, Jr., Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

It has become a habit to expect light receipts in the summer months. Churches have usually taken their collections in the autumn and winter. This led to the policy of the Board to accumulate a balance, to be carried over into the new year. It was an unfailing spring-head from which the streams came in the season of light receipts. It was commercial prudence and thrift—it was the merchant sustaining his credit, when the returns of his bills receivable were light and unavailable. A mistaken notion ruled in the church. Men could not see why, this large balance remaining, the operations of the Board were not extended. The committee yielded to the pressure, and the balance disappeared. The results of the experiment are upon us. Last summer we were three and four months behind in our payments. And now, in spite of reduced expenses and the moving away of a large bank indebtedness, we are feeling the same pressure. And though we run our weekly balance down to a small figure, we find our reports accumulating, and frequent requests from missionaries to remit the slender amounts promised.

The only relief we can hope for is, that those churches which contribute in the summer, and benevolent friends, who take pleasure in remembering Zion, will aid us in relieving this pressure. After the compelled reduction of last year, and the inability of the Board to return to former rates, without too much risk, it will still be harder to hold back these diminished amounts. When produce prices rule so low, as is the case in the western states, and farmers are loth to sell when the remuneration is so light, the trials of the missionaries increase; subscriptions in missionary churches are not paid so readily, and the calculations of the missionary pastors are mocked. The moneys we send, are their main dependance in obtaining those needful articles which only money can command. May we not hope this brief and simple statement may find an answer. Kind friends there are, whom God has blessed, and whose regular incomes permit the indulgence of their liberality, as easy in one season as at another. May the toiling missionary be remembered by such, as amid summer's heat and winter's cold they urge on amid trials and discouragements absolutely appalling to every principle but that of faith, their great work. Cases of sorrow reach us, often when we are unable to relieve; and we are sure, could these affecting statements reach the public ear, the heart of Christian sympathy would beat responsive, and the Board be permitted to carry this relief to its deserving and devoted missionaries. And to the missionaries, in this connection it may be said, that not one hour of delay on the part of the office shall occur. If they are disappointed in receiving the amounts promised, let them know it is simply for want of funds; and that as soon as our church will put it into the power of the Board to relieve, it will be a pleasure for them so to do. Nor will partiality be permitted to rule. Every man in his own order. It is better too, for missionaries to report regularly at the end of each quarter, and not to hold back because the treasury is exhausted. Regularity in reporting ensures regular action in the office, and renders the keeping of our accounts more satisfactory. May the day come, when our replenished treasury, and the increased and increasing contributions of the church, shall enable us to dispense regularly each one's appropriation, and to advance to occupy posts in those new regions, where men are working for gold.

Philadelphia, July 1, 1862.

WORK IN AN IMPORTANT FIELD.

Dear Brother—I received, in due time, the commission you sent me, under date May 12th, 1862, for one year, to begin on the 1st of March, which, with the help of God, I intend to fulfil to the extent of my ability, for the promotion of the cause of the gospel among the people that Divine Providence has entrusted to my care.

Since my last report, I have preached alternately to R—— and G—— every Sabbath, until the 15th of May, from which time I have confined my labours to R—— and vicinity. Seeing that there was no prospect that the Board of Publication can resume the work of colportage in this field for the present, and that the half of my time was not sufficient to keep up the good work which is going on at R——, I felt it was my duty to confine my labours there, and to give up G—— B——, at least for the present, the encouragement being much less in the latter place than it is in the former.

The good work at R—— is still full of good prospects, through the blessing of God, who, in his great mercy, is graciously smiling upon us. Our Protestant community is making good progress in godliness, and spread a good influence among their Romanist neighbours, who are much given to depravity, and especially to intemperance. To a very few exceptions, all those who are under the influence of the gospel, and who attend regularly to my preaching, have given up the use of intoxicating drinks, although the Romanists mock at them when they decline to share with them the intoxicating cup. They call Protestants all those who are not drunkards, and who do not break the Sabbath. I improve every occasion to speak to these poor slaves of error and sin, not alone about the evil of forsaking God's word to follow the commandments of men, but also about the evil of using intoxicating liquors; and, in many instances, with good success, although the evil is deep-seated, and very difficult to eradicate. Many, after being convinced that they are running down the way of perdition, and being much dissatisfied with themselves, have not strength enough to forsake it; but there is hope that God's grace will conquer them at the right season.

For instance, a man who keeps a vendage of liquors, and who attends pretty regularly to my preaching, became convinced that he was wrong, and became much anxious in regard to his spiritual state. But in order to quiet his conscience without forsaking entirely the evil of selling liquors—for this kind of trade always brings a large profit—he resolved not to sell any liquor, except to, as he says, sober persons, and not to allow any disorder in his house. This he did faithfully, and no noise was heard any more in his premises, and every intoxicated person was turned out, and liquor refused to him. I went to him, and had much conversation with him; then I found out what was the conflict he experienced within himself. He told me that he thought to be right in pursuing the course he had begun, and that God would be pleased with it, &c. I spared nothing to unfold the deceitfulness of his heart, and to convince him that nothing short of a complete separation from iniquity would avail him anything; that he must give his whole heart to Jesus, and give up all evil for his sake; that he must forsake all for him, otherwise he could not have any share in him. He acknowledged that he was miserable; that he had not before seen the requirements of the gospel under that light. He bitterly regretted to have taken his license; he has paid some money for it, and money is a hard thing to give up. I told him that he should estimate the love of Jesus above all things, otherwise he could not be his disciple. I do not know what he will do, but after that conversation took place, it happened that he met with some difficulty with one of his neighbours, for which they were to go to law, and having heard me say in my sermon, on the Sabbath before the last, that the true mark of a child of God is, that he is a child of peace; that true Christians are children of peace, as they are the followers of the King of peace; that they try, as far as it depends on them, to live in peace with all men, &c. This struck his conscience, and the next day he went to his neighbour and settled the difficulty. I hope the Lord, in his infinite grace, will conquer his heart, and set him as an example of his grace to others. At least this seems to be a very good sign that it will be so.

I long to be able to live among this interesting people, in order to devote more time to them, and lead many more in the right way. Many are very wicked, and hard to deal with, but it is clearly seen that the Lord has a people among them.

Remember us before the throne of grace, and receive the assurance of my Christian love, with which I am truly yours.

A PARSONAGE BUILT—INCREASE OF POPULATION.

Minnesota.

I date this report back to the time when it was properly due, but when it was impossible to render it.

During the two or three weeks that have elapsed since I received the commission of the Board, reappointing me, from January 5 till July 5, I have been much occupied with work outside of regular ministerial duties.

The building of a parsonage has been one matter on hand. We now have one almost finished; quite a neat house, with eight rooms, and with a garden attached. We have a small band of disciples here, but they are earnest and spirited. I have had to contribute fifty dollars, and to furnish a loan of two hundred dollars; yet this is better than to pay seventy to one hundred dollars a year rent, without benefit to the church.

It is a matter of much importance to get good parsonages in these weak frontier churches. It binds them more strongly together, aids in the support of a minister, and awakens many kindly thoughts and acts towards him and his family. It is also for the interest of the pastor's family, since their outlays are not so great, and funds are thus left free for other necessary uses. This is the third time I have been instrumental in putting a roof over our head, that would be an abiding benefit to the church when God called us elsewhere. I wish every pastor could be induced to see the importance of pursuing this course, and should urge it as for the best interest of pastor and people.

We are increasing in strength, though we have lost one of our elders for a time, by his going to Washington territory. The word is heard with attention, and has borne some fruit in the awakening of souls. A young man and his wife have just united with us, who were brought by the hand of God into the "path of life," with very little agency of the church, through the loss of a beloved child. The Sabbath-school is especially prosperous. Once a month I preach a sermon to the young and those interested in their welfare; and oftener visit and address the school.

It would give us much pleasure to receive a visit from you during this summer, particularly at the time of the meeting of the Synod of St. Paul, which will take place here, commencing Thursday, September 25. The brethren here (though I expect to be absent at the East during August,) would be rejoiced to see you; and you would be charmed by the beauty, healthfulness, and fine soil of Minnesota—a state which increased 2000 per cent. in population between 1850 and 1860, and will be the great state of the Northwest.

Asking for a remembrance in your prayers, I remain, dear sir,

Sincerely yours, W. S.

IN LABOURS ABUNDANT—WORD OF CAUTION TO EASTERN PASTORS.

Wisconsin.

Dear Brother—With this day another quarter of my missionary work comes to a close—the first quarter of a new year. I have been preaching less than a year, but long enough to find that there is work to do in the ministry. It seems to multiply. Sometimes, when greatly pressed, I think I will hurry through with what is before me, and then enjoy a little leisure, but when I have reached the point in view, it is only to find myself with more work in hand than ever.

The last three months I have passed very pleasantly, and not unprofitably, at least to myself. If I have been disappointed as to expected results, I have been led to see more and more how blind and weak I am. My congregation has been increasing steadily in numbers. I thought too, some time ago, that there was an increased interest in the preaching and other services, and I hoped that before this time I should be able to record the evidence that God had blessed the preaching of his word to the conversion of souls. I thought, while preparing my sermons, "surely they will hear this;" or, "surely this solemn truth will be the means of producing conviction in the minds of some." But I have to say now, that another three months has passed away, and no sinner of my congregation has been brought to the Saviour. What shall I do? I see nothing but to go on, relying not at all now on what is to be accomplished by the word of God as I preach it, but altogether on the word, as the Spirit may use it.

Nearly one half my people live in the country; two, three, six, eight, ten miles away from here. They are an interesting part of the congregation. There are some who would attend church regularly, but cannot come at all on account of having no means of conveyance. Preaching at two points, each distant about six miles from here, I have had attentive congregations. I have seen many men and women moved to tears at the presentation of the truth, even of those who seldom go to the house of God.

I find here and there one who has been a professor of religion years ago in the east, or in some foreign land, but who has left all religion behind, or lost it soon after coming to the far west. It is sad to meet with such cases. I wish I could call the attention of pastors and elders everywhere to the fact, that their negligence in looking after the spiritual welfare of those members and families that go out from them to seek new homes, is doubtless the means of destroying many souls, and of casting a dark shadow over many a death-bed. Oh, that the shepherds would look after their wandering sheep! How much good they might do; how much evil they might prevent by corresponding with such persons, and urging them to hold fast to the truth; and that not for a few months only, but for years, until they know that they are comfortably settled in the house and church of God. I wish it could be generally known how much evil results from "dropping" members from the roll of the church, or of granting certificates, and then never inquiring whether they have been presented anywhere else. I lately conversed with a lady who came to the west many years ago with her husband. She had been a professor of religion, but he was not. She told me weeping, that if she "had known how it was going to be, she would not have come to the west for a whole county of land." They had gained in temporal things, but had lost in spiritual things.

I would like to go from house to house among these people in the country, but having no horse, I am compelled to borrow from my members, and that hinders me, for their convenience is not always my convenience, and it is a poor way of doing anyhow.

I cannot close without thanking you for the aid we have lately received in clothing and books, through you, from the ladies of the 10th church, Philadelphia. It was timely. May God bless them and you.

I expect to be ordained on the second Thursday of July.

In the love of the Redeemer,

Yours, R. B.

SELF SUSTAINING—KIND FAREWELL.

Illinois.

Dear Brother—My commission from the Board expired April 1st, 1862. You are hereby authorized to credit the Providence church $75, the balance due me on salary by commission, and as the same has been received by me, or will be, my claim on the Board is cancelled.

The Lord has blessed us with health in our family, and success, to a good degree, in promoting the prosperity of the church. We hope Providence church will be able to sustain the means of grace in future.

In taking leave of the Board, we tender our thanks for aid received in time of need. Our aim will be to return it, through the Board, to other feeble churches. And may the blessing of the Lord rest upon the Board in this its time of trial.

Yours truly, J. D.

A NOBLE EXAMPLE.

The ladies of the church of New Castle, Delaware, Rev. J. B. Spottswood, D. D., pastor, have supplied a whole Presbytery in the West with clothing within less than two years! All the ministers formerly constituting this Presbytery, are indebted to the ladies of the church of New Castle for boxes; and these boxes, too, contained the choicest articles of clothing, and were in such rich abundance as to make glad the hearts of those who received them. When the great Redeemer shall acknowledge, in that great day, to these kind ladies, I was "naked and ye clothed me," how many of his ministers and their families can stand forth in attestation of this acknowledgment!

W. M. S, Unus Vestitionum.

PICTURE OF MISSIONARY LIFE IN THE WEST.

I have laboured at this point between eight and nine years. The cost of living has been, on an average, more than double of that in most of our missionary fields. To avoid expense, I have never kept a horse. I have never had a cow till the past six weeks, when I borrowed the money to purchase one; never employed a team when it was possible to avoid it; done all my own labour of every kind, and never hired a day's help, except mechanical, to help in building and repairing my dwelling—until within the month past. My wife has never kept a hired help. A little girl, whom she took the charge of to bring up, has relieved us of that expense. We have not travelled to visit friends for eight years; except that once, when I attended the General Assembly, and took my family with me. Let this statement serve to show that my diversion from ministerial duties to labour has not been causeless.

Then the minister has less time for his labour than others; consequently he feels that he must work harder and longer each day. He is less accustomed to it; he must often work at disadvantage for want of ordinary facilities, and hence toil wears upon him. His heart sinks when he marks how rapidly and prematurely he is growing old under it. The sickness I was suffering when I wrote you my last report, all believe was induced by excessive toil and exposure of this kind; and, had it terminated fatally, as was feared, the unanimous verdict would have been, "Killed by want of adequate support," and the judgment would have been true. Now, the solemn question comes, apart from all personal relations, "Is it wise for the church to suffer her ministers, her educated talent, her established workers, and, may I not add, her willing and devoted ones, to grow prematurely old, and die?

At length, it seemed indispensable to our family to have a cow. I was able no longer to hire a horse to reach the mines. I must have one, or abandon the miners and contract my field, which is equivalent to leaving it. I was unable to purchase a horse, but proposed to a brother that I would build a stable, and take the care of one for its use. I have built and nearly completed the stable. To purchase feed at our rates here would be too heavy, and I must clear the ground to raise it. This has occupied me almost wholly for the last six weeks, and yet it is not done. To assist me in this, I have employed my first help, and at a cost which involves me so deeply in debt, that I can only hope for the good favour of our God upon us to get out once more.

Now, sir, these necessities and labours are disagreeable and embarrassing; but I have not told you yet how the pain falls. It is felt at seeing that, by the inevitable neglect of our appropriate work, we are sacrificing the end for which we are making so strenuous exertions. We spend our days in manual toil till exhausted, chafed, and vexed at heart, because we could not give its hours to other duties which pressed, and then learn at night that others are winning away from our reach the fruits we hoped to gain by our hard-wrought sacrifice. Believe me, this is what agonizes and crushes a missionary's spirit to the dust, beyond all things else. Nothing can relieve it but his tearful, prayerful looking unto God. To him he cries, "How long, O Lord!" Sir, I cannot write a missionary's feelings over such a condition. I forbear. Cannot our church do more to aid him?

Your fellow-labourer.

"What contributed the most powerfully to the propagation of the Christian church, was not so much the miracles the first Christians performed, as the holy lives they led. They were angels upon earth. If we lived as they did, we should not be asked, as we continually are, for miracles in proof of our doctrine; we should bring the whole world to acknowledge the faith of Jesus Christ, by the force of our example alone."—Chrysostom.

COMPLAINING CURED.—"I never complained of my condition," says the Persian poet Sadi, "but once, when my feet were bare, and I had no money to buy shoes; but I met a man without feet, and became contented with my lot."

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF RECEIPTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Receipts at the Treasury in Philadelphia during the month of June, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Londonderry—Ladies of 2d ch Newburyport 12; Londonderry ch mo con 26 18 — 38 18
Pby of Albany—Hamilton Union ch 15; Charlton ch, Ladies' Home Missionary Society 12 15 — 27 15

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Ogdensburg—Hammond ch — 3 60
Pby of Genesee River—Caledonia ch — 12 50

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of North River—Smithfield ch, from Mrs John H Concklin — 3 00
Pby of Bedford—Croton Falls ch — 6 34
Pby of Long Island—Huntingdon South ch 10; Jamaica ch 67 75 — 77 75
Pby of New York—West 23d street ch 43 59; German ch New York 10; Fifth Avenue and 19th street ch mission chapel 2 75 — 56 34
Pby of Connecticut—Bridgeport 1st ch — 76 85
Pby of Nassau—Williamsburg ch, from J F W 10; Brooklyn 1st ch 25; Greene Avenue ch Brooklyn 5; Newtown ch 57 20 — 97 20

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Passaic—Springfield ch add'l — 4 47
Pby of New Brunswick—Ewing ch — 15 00
Pby of Susquehanna—Wyalusing ch — 5 00
Pby of Luzerne—Nanticoke ch ch 3; Port Clinton ch 2 — 5 00

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia—Legacy, in part, of Mrs Mary Graham, of 7th ch, Philadelphia — 250 00
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Great Valley ch — 18 00
Pby of Newcastle—Coatesville ch 20; Newcastle ch, from Mrs Canon 1, Mrs Gray 5, Misses Darragh 4, Mrs Whitely 2, S M Couper 10, Mrs Ferris 1, Mrs Jefferson 1; Miss Scofield 5, Miss Booth 2 50, Miss Nivin 2, Mrs Nivin 1, Mrs Gemmill 5, Miss Caldwell 1, Misses Smith 2, Mrs Smith 5, Dr and Mrs Couper 25, Rev Dr Spotswood 10, W C Couper 20, Mrs H Couper 5, Mrs John Janvier 1, Mrs Barr 1, W F Lane 2, Mrs Dr Black 2=113 50 — 133 50
Pby of Donegal—Pequea ch — 37 39
Pby of Huntingdon—Hollidaysburg ch 56 86; Clearfield ch 20 — 76 86
Pby of Northumberland—Hartleton ch — 13 00

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore—Baltimore 1st ch in part — 87 50
Pby of Carlisle—Sab sch of Gettysburg ch 8 82; Bedford ch 45 (of which 3 from the Sab sch) — 53 82
Pby of Lewes—Cool Spring ch 7; Indian River ch 3; Blackwater ch 2; Snow Hill ch 6 — 18 00

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Clarion—Middle Creek ch 2 73; Oak Grove ch 1 67 — 4 40
Pby of Saltsburg—Clarksburg ch — 5 00

SYNOD OF ALLEGHENY.

Pby of Allegheny—Ebenezer ch 5 30; Centre ch 14; Rich Hill ch 4 — 23 30
Pby of Beaver—Pulaski ch — 10 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington—Washington ch 16 16, less exch 16 cents=16; Unity ch 4 25 — 20 25
Pby of Steubenville—Annapolis ch 12; Amsterdam ch 10; Ridge ch 8 — 30 00
Pby of New Lisbon—Salem ch 13 81; Yellow Creek ch 24; Alliance ch 3 — 40 81
Pby of St. Clairsville—Beech Spring ch 36 50; New Castle ch 3; Woodsfield ch 5; Buchanon ch 2 — 46 50

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Zanesville—Madison ch — 20 00
Pby of Wooster—Apple Creek ch 9; Hopewell ch 12 81 — 21 81

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Miami—Miami City ch 6 35; Carrollton ch 2 90; Mount Pleasant ch from Wm Youatt 2 — 11 25
Pby of Cincinnati—Walnut Hills 1st ch 13 43; Hopewell ch 11 21 — 24 63
Pby of Oxford—Hamilton ch — 65 98
Pby of Sidney—West Liberty ch — 8 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Sangamon—North Sangamon ch 33 30; Union ch 3 30; Dr Gaddis, Jacksonville 3 — 39 60
Pby of Peoria—Princeville ch — 11 35
Pby of Bloomington—Clinton ch — 10 00
Pby of Saline—Rev B C Swan — 5 00

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.

Pby of Schuyler—Sab sch of Doddsville ch — 3 00
Pby of Rock River—Mrs Catharine Triller, Zion and Scales Mound ch 3; Princeton ch 16 — 19 00
Pby of Chicago—Willow Creek ch 13, less exchange 10 cents=12 90; Lynn and Hebron ch 20 — 32 90

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.

Pby of Iowa—Oakland ch — 2 00

SYNOD OF PACIFIC.

Pby of California—Jacksonville ch, Oregon — 20 00

From churches, $1,591 23

LEGACIES.

Legacy, in part, of J W Marquis, Logan county, Ohio, 55; Legacy of Miss Ann Whitehill, late of Lancaster county, Pa., for a special object, 195 17; Estate of George E Arnout, Pa. 15; Estate of A M Fleming, in part, 85; Patterson estate, Pittsburg, Pa. 14 79 — 364 96

MISCELLANEOUS.

Myron Phelps, Esq., Lewistown, Illinois, 200; Interest 205 55; "L Z," Mercer, Pa. 1; "L R" Lewistown, Pa. 5; Tithes 10; Mrs B F Spillman, Shawneetown, Ill. 1; a thank-offering, from New York, 100; Jacob Leyenberger, Nashville, Ohio, 4 50; "Two Friends," Plainfield, N. J. 5; "E," New York, 20; Tithes 10; A friend 2; A friend for Illinois 5; A friend, New York, 5 — 574 05

Total Receipts in June, $2,530 24

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

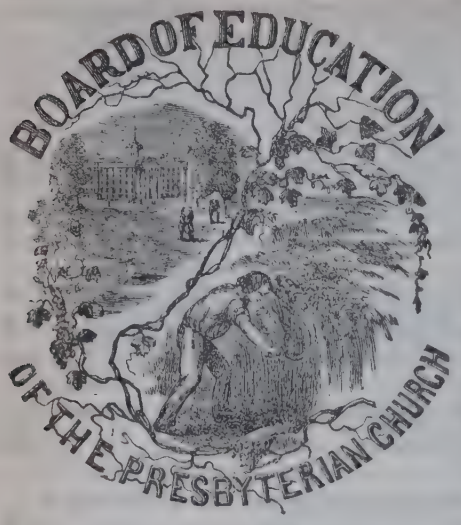
CLOTHING.

2 Boxes from the ladies of New Castle ch, Del., valued at — 242 50
3 Boxes from the Ladies of Central ch, Philadelphia, Pa., valued at — 610 19
2 Boxes from Galena South ch. Ill., valued at — 96 30
1 Box from 1st ch, Jersey City.

$948 99



No. 321 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Officers of the Board.

Charles Hodge, D. D., President.
John McDowell, D. D.,
Cyrus Dickson, D. D.,
George Sharswood, LL.D., } Vice-Presidents.
William Chester, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
R. Watts, Assistant, and Recording Secretary.
William Main, Treasurer.
Wilfred Hall,
Samuel H. Fulton, } Auditors.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies, and Colleges, may be addressed to either of the Secretaries, Rev. Dr. CHESTER, or Rev. R. WATTS, No. 321 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of Money may be made to WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer, 321 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

ACTION OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY ON THE REPORT OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION FOR 1862.

May 20, 1862.—The order of the day, viz., the business of the Board of Education, was taken up. The Committee to which was referred the Report of the Board of Education, having examined said Report, together with the minutes and accounts of the Board, submits the following statement and resolutions:

1. That the Board has been enabled to pay all the appropriations due to its beneficiaries during the year, though not without delay in some instances, nor without incurring debt.

2. That both the delay and the indebtedness incurred, arose from the failure of the churches generally to carry out efficiently the plan of Systematic Beneficence recommended by previous General Assemblies. Many of the churches contributed less than usual, and very many nothing, to the Board of Education, during the year just closed. Hence the Board was under the necessity of ending the fiscal year with a debt of something over $4000. A supplementary statement, however, shows that this debt has recently been reduced to something less that $1000.

3. That a surprising fact is brought to light in the Board's report, viz., that instead of too great an increase, as apprehended by some, there has been an actual decrease of the ministry, as compared with the membership of our church, of at least five per centum, within the last ten years.

4. That the Board of Education, in accordance with the direction of the last General Assembly, have furnished a sufficient number of copies for the use of this Assembly, of "A Proposed Draft of a Constitution for the General Assembly's Board of Education."

In view of these and other facts brought to light in the Report of this Board, the following resolutions are submitted, and were adopted, viz.

Resolved, 1. That the Assembly approve of the management of the important interests intrusted to the Board of Education, as evincing a highly commendable degree of efficiency, wisdom, and economy, under the trying exigencies of the year just closed; and that their Report be printed and circulated under their direction.

Resolved, 2. That the Assembly has reason for thanksgiving to God, for the measure of blessing bestowed upon the work of the Board in all that portion of the church to which it has had access during the past year.

Resolved, 3. That the Assembly deeply deplore the failure of so many of our churches to contribute anything to this Board during the year, and do earnestly repeat the injunction of the last General Assembly, upon all their churches, to contribute to this, and also to the other Boards of the church, at least once a year.

Resolved, 4. That the Presbyteries be renewedly and most solemnly enjoined to exercise increased care and caution in recommending candidates for the ministry to the care of the Board; and also to seek out such, within their respective bounds, as may be really worthy, and may stand in need of aid, while preparing for the ministerial work.

Resolved, 5. That in the judgment of this Assembly, though the retrenchment of all unnecessary expenses is urgently required, it is inexpedient to reduce the amounts of the annual appropriations to individual beneficiaries. The Assembly is of the opinion, however, that much wholesome retrenchment might be effected by a more rigid application, on the part of Presbyteries, instructors in academies, colleges, and theological seminaries, of the excellent rules of the Board respecting the qualifications of candidates. In some respects, such as farther advancement in scholarship, a longer probation as to personal piety, and a higher grade of intellectual endowment, still more might properly and advantageously be required for admission by the Board. It is believed, however, that in the practical application of the rules of the Board, (though the Board itself, so far as known to your Committee, is careful, faithful, and resolute in the discharge of duty,) there is, on the part of the Presbyteries, much laxness; much want of that scrupulous attention and faithful firmness which the nature of this important interest so imperatively demands; and all Presbyteries are hereby solemnly enjoined to give diligent attention to the discharge of their whole duty in this matter. Such a discharge of duty, it is also believed, would lead to the withdrawing of quite a number of candidates heretofore recommended by the Presbyteries to the care of the Board, and now receiving aid from the funds of the church, in some cases to the scandal of religion, and in many cases to the great prejudice of the education cause.

Resolved, 6. That the Assembly rejoices in the measure of success afforded to the schools, academies, and colleges, connected with our sessions, Presbyteries, and Synods; and do again urge the solemn duty of securing the religious education of the children of the church, by establishing and adequately supporting suitable church institutions, within their respective bounds, as far as practicable.

Resolved, 7. That the last Thursday of February next be observed throughout our bounds as a day of fervent prayer for children and youth, especially the baptized children and youth of the church, and those collected in schools and colleges, with particular reference to an increased supply of labourers in the vineyard of the Lord; and that a collection be taken up on that day for the College Fund.

Resolved, 8. That the proposed Draft of a Constitution, presented by the Board of Education to this General Assembly, be committed to a Committee of three, to examine and report the same, with such modifications or suggestions as to them may seem proper, to the next General Assembly.

Resolved, 9. That the Board of Education is hereby directed to meet for the transaction of such business as may claim their attention, on Friday, the 23d inst., at half-past five, P. M., in this hall.

In accordance with the eighth resolution, the Rev. Drs. Charles Hodge, M. W. Jacobus, and Cyrus Dickson, were appointed.

CARROLL COLLEGE, WISCONSIN.

Among the many valued seminaries under the care of the Board, Carroll College occupies a high place. The friends of this college will be glad to learn, that notwithstanding the pressure of the late commercial derangements, the President is enabled to submit the following hopeful report.

Since my last report to the Board of Education in reference to our educational enterprise in Wisconsin, amid the agitations to which our communities, east and west, have been subject, very little has transpired affecting its prospects either way. At the time of the suspension of instruction, there were a few pressing liabilities that we hoped to meet before the close of the year, and in a few months resume the course of instruction on a safer basis. Immediately following the suspension, came the crushing derangement of the currency of the country; and on the heels of this, the war panic, that still presses severely upon all classes of our people, and renders it extremely difficult to gather round an enterprise like ours, for the time being, any special interest among the masses. Notwithstanding these adverse circumstances, through the generosity of a portion of the Trustees, and citizens of our own and adjoining towns, we have been enabled to liquidate the claims that were more immediately pressing, and the residue are so adjusted as to give us no immediate solicitude, as the institution has resources that will, in all likelihood, be available to meet them ere their urgency can interfere with our contemplated progress.

Measures are in progress, with good hope of successful issues, in the course of the ensuing six months, for re-opening the institution, and resuming the instruction on a paying basis, and we entertain still strong hopes that, notwithstanding her temporary reverses, Carroll College will yet realize the expectations of those generous friends of Christian education whose sympathies have been so warmly enlisted in laying its foundations.

Very respectfully and truly yours, &c.,

JOHN A. SAVAGE,

President and Fiscal Agent of Carroll College.

THE ASHMUN INSTITUTE.

The importance of the Ashmun Institute, in connection with the coloured population of our country, and with the future of Africa, can scarcely be overrated. We hope that the day is at hand when our churches, over the length and breadth of the land, shall be awakened to a practical recognition of the value of this Seminary. The leading minds in Liberia, who appreciate the necessity for education in their young and flourishing Republic, look with intense anxiety to this rising nursery for the ministers, lawyers, merchants, and legislators, who are, under God, to mould the destinies of a rising nation. The following report on the state of the college will be read with interest.

During the past year this college has pursued the even tenor of its way, educating, in theology and general literature, a portion of the Ethiopian race.

As some of the students had little preparatory training, the Principal has paid special attention to the elementary department. Every student is carefully instructed in English grammar, including composition; in sacred, ecclesiastical, and general history; in the Holy Scriptures and the Shorter Catechism. Such as seem qualified, pursue their studies in science, languages, sermonizing, &c. Most of the students have been attentive, and these have made respectable progress. There has been manifest improvement in general conduct, especially in punctuality, regularity, temper, and good order. In these respects, as also in health and cheerfulness, we believe that there has been as fair a proportion of enjoyment as in any other college in the country.

The financial pressure has obliged some to leave, and the few that remain—only nine—to endure privations. But they have borne such trials with a fortitude cheering to their benefactors.

Of the students that left during the year, two have become teachers, one in a neighbouring state, another in Africa; two went to the army; one to be stated supply in a Baptist city congregation; and another to pursue his studies at a New-school Presbyterian seminary. For the places thus left many of our sable brethren have eagerly sought, but our poverty has obliged us to exclude all additional candidates, except two.

Communications from the alumni of our Institute, especially from the three clerical missionaries in Africa, have caused us to thank God, and take courage. The good health which God has granted them, while so many white missionaries have suffered sorely, confirms the principle that God has adapted the Ethiopian constitution to the African climate. Of course, Christians should labour to qualify many of them for evangelizing and elevating their race. This has long been taught in our church, as appears from the minutes of our supreme and subordinate courts, since the before the era of National Independence. Our college is an exponent of the sentiments expressed by our fathers in 1787 and 1774. The whole utterance of 1787, as recorded in Baird's Digest, pp. 806, 807, deserves marked attention at this time, especially the Overture, "That the Synod of New York and Philadelphia recommend in the warmest terms, to every member of their body, and to all the churches and families under their care, to do everything in their power consistent with the rights of civil society, to promote the abolition of slavery, and the instruction of negroes, whether bond or free." In active, judicious, and enlightened efforts to elevate the sons of Ham, our church has long been in advance of some other bodies, which more prominently parade their zeal. Yet, in having only one college for the millions of Hamites, here and elsewhere, whose call to come over and help them we distinctly acknowledge, and in leaving that college so poorly supported, are we not "verily guilty concerning our" brethren. We have seen the anguish of their souls; we have mourned for the distress brought upon us and our country, for the wrongs inflicted upon them, and upon us, by their ignorance and degradation. Piety, philanthropy, and patriotsm, cry concerning them, "EDUCATE, EDUCATE, EDUCATE!" Unenlightened, they are neither fit for being citizens at home, nor colonists abroad. From being a perplexity and a curse, they may be elevated into another golden empire, blessed, and diffusing bliss over the world, by the grace of the Lord Jesus attending a high Christian education. To aid in this effort, the Ashmun Institute invites the friends of America, of Africa, and of MAN.

J. W. MARTIN,

Principal.

LIST OF PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGES.

It is desirable that the church should be able to perceive at one glance, the districts in which those colleges are situate, which are under the supervision of our Synods. We therefore submit the following list of these institutions, premising that the last four are controlled by ministers and members of the Presbyterian church.

1. Lafayette College, Easton, Pennsylvania.
2. Davidson College, Mecklenburg co., N. C.
3. Oglethorpe University, Milledgeville, Ga.
4. Austin College, Huntsville, Texas.
5. Aranama College, Goliad, Texas.
6. Oakland College, Claiborne county, Miss.
7. Stewart College, Clarksville, Tennessee.
8. Lagrange College, Lagrange, Tennessee.
9. Washington College, Washington co., Tenn.
10. Westminster College, Fulton, Missouri.
11. Richmond College, Richmond, Missouri.
12. Centre College, Danville, Kentucky.
13. Hanover College, Hanover, Indiana.
14. McDonough College, Macomb, Illinois.
15. Alexander College, Dubuque, Iowa.
16. Carroll College, Waukesha, Wisconsin.
17. Washington College, Washington, Pa.
18. Peoria University, Peoria, Illinois.
19. City College, San Francisco, California.
20. Lindenwood Fem. College, St. Charles, Mo.
21. Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Pa.
22. College of New Jersey, Princeton, N. J.
23. Washington College, Lexington, Virginia.
24. Hampden Sidney College, Prince Edward, Virginia.

VERMILLION INSTITUTE.

The members of our churches in Ohio will rejoice, we doubt not, at learning the facts which the following report from the Vermillion Institute communicates. The brethren of the Richland and Wooster Presbyteries have done our church and our country good service by the energy and prudence which they have displayed in founding and fostering this Seminary, which we hope may long continue to be a blessing to our land.

Vermillion Institute, under the care of the Presbyteries of Richland and Wooster, is located at Haysville, Ohio. There are two departments, male and female. There have been, during the last two sessions, 110 young ladies, and 220 young men, in attendance, making a total of 330. The aggregate for the next two sessions, or the academical year, will, from present prospects, it is believed, be greater than it has been at any time heretofore. A new building has been erected within the year for the female department, with accommodations for sixty pupils. In this building the Principal resides, and the young ladies board in his family. The young men have a separate boarding-house. About one-fourth of the students are professedly pious, and of these about twenty-five are preparing for the work of preaching the gospel. All the students are required to attend church twice on the Lord's day, and prayers in the chapel every morning. They are also required to attend, unless specially excused, a Bible exercise, which is conducted by the Principal, each Wednesday evening. On these occasions an opportunity is afforded to any student to raise difficulties, to start objections, or to ask questions on the subject under consideration, and a deep and general interest is not uncommonly awakened in the great truths of the word of God. On Thursday evenings is a general prayer-meeting, and on Saturday evenings another prayer meeting, conducted wholly by the students themselves. At this from fifty to seventy-five ordinarily attend. The Greek Testament is read once a week by all the Greek classes, and the French and German Bible are read every day as class-books by such as study those languages. The blessing of God has been earnestly sought from time to time by those engaged in the management of this institution, and by that blessing it has gradually been elevated to its present prosperous state.

For the Board of Trustees,

SANDERS DIEFENDORF, Principal.

Haysville, Ohio, April 16, 1862.

HIGHLAND UNIVERSITY.

It is refreshing to the spirit to follow the tide of our civilization as it flows westward, and to watch our population laying deep in their new land the foundations on which a healthful condition of affairs may be established. In Kansas, as in other regions of the great West, the pioneers who have gone forth from their eastern homes, have carried with them the knowledge of the fact that our Republican institutions must be a total failure, unless education and religion prevail among our people. Even when affairs were in a formative state in Kansas, the subject of education received a large share of attention from the early settlers. As an illustration of the prosperity enjoyed by the young institutions of that interesting State, we present the following REPORT from the Highland University.

This is the chartered name of a young institution of learning in the northeast corner of Kansas. It is under the direction of nine Trustees, who are elected by the Presbytery; and by the terms of its charter, it is secured for ever to the Presbyterian Church.

The property consists of a square of about seven acres of ground, in the village of Highland, with about one hundred lots scattered promiscuously over the village. The building is of brick, forty by sixty feet, two stories high, and containing seven large rooms, and a commodious entrance-hall, furnishing ample accommodations for one hundred and twenty scholars. It has also a philosophical apparatus, worth between six and seven hundred dollars; and the institution is out of debt.

Through the favour of a kind Providence, we have been able to keep up our school; and it is very gratifying to record, that even under the general paralysis that, in consequence of the rebellion, has spread over our social and literary interests in this region, our institution has rather grown than diminished. When the rebellion broke out, our number in school did not exceed forty. The last term, which closed two weeks ago, we had over sixty; and from inquiries and arrangements already made for the future, we believe, the coming term, we will have more.

We are so much upon the line which now divides the contending parties of our country, that nearly all the schools are broken up. The best institutions in Missouri have suffered severely, some of them to annihilation; and neighbourhoods are so divided, they cannot unite in common schools. An attempt, as is generally known, was made in this state to divert the entire educational fund to war purposes. Schools were broken up, and education neglected. This has worked rather to our advantage than otherwise. A number of our students the past term have been from Missouri, and arrangements are made for more the coming term.

Our school year is divided into three terms, of thirteen weeks each, leaving a long vacation in the warm months of July and August, and part of September. The last term of the present year commences on next Tuesday, the 22d inst. For this term we have employed three teachers, one male and two female. For the present, we have to keep a mixed school; and we have found it necessary to inaugurate a strictly primary department. Some of the scholars are small; and some of the larger are not much advanced. In this department, there will be a number of children belonging to very poor persons. Not a few very poor families, refugees from Missouri and southern Kansas, living on the track and vicinity of Price's army, have found their way to our quiet neighbourhood. They have nothing but what they could bring in a hasty flight, after being stripped of their crops, and most of their cattle and horses. For such we are extremely anxious to provide the means for schooling, and we must still look to our kind Board, and ask for some aid in this humane and important work.

At such a time as this, no one may venture to predict what the future may develope. But the storm is evidently moving southward from us, and the troubled waters here are growing more quiet; and, although many desolations have been wrought, and many hopes and plans utterly crushed, our little institution still survives. We think that, under God, our school has been planted at the right time. The storm will but give strength and direction to its roots; and, if our friends will stand by us in our infancy and times of trial, we have, with the favour of a kind Providence, nothing to fear, and fear nothing.

God has heretofore enabled and disposed the Board of Education and some benevolent individuals to give us help; and we shall still venture to look to the same in the future. This growing country must be provided with the means of education, and it ought to be possessed largely by our church; and a few such agencies as we propose to set up, would be powerful in the accomplishment of these objects.

That God may bless and direct these great interests, our Board will ever and earnestly pray.

Respectfully submitted in behalf of the Trustees, S. M. IRVIN, Secretary.

Highland, Kansas, April 18, 1862.

THE MILLER ACADEMY.

Ohio is greatly favoured in the possession of a great number of valuable Academies. The Miller Academy, under the care of J. E. Alexander as Principal, presents the following REPORT:

Washington, Ohio.

This Institution is located at Washington, Ohio, midway between Wheeling and Zanesville. It is of easy access by the National Road, and by the Central Ohio Railroad. The town contains a population of one thousand inhabitants, and is surrounded by a hilly and healthful country. This Academy is furnished with a handsome building, libraries, literary societies, and competent teachers. Thorough instruction is combined with paternal government and wholesome religious influence. The studies include a complete classical course so far as to the Junior class in the best colleges, and all the English branches needed to fit young men for business and for teaching.

The Scriptures are read and explained each morning at prayers; and a portion of the Westminster Catechism is recited every Monday. The conduct of the students has been excellent; but no special visit of the presence and power of the Holy Spirit has been enjoyed during the year The prospect for the summer session is beginning to brighten. We expect an increase over the winter term, but cannot hope for a large attendance until the close of the war.

J. E. ALEXANDER, Principal.

ANOTHER DEATH IN THE MINISTRY.

It has pleased the Head of the Church, in his inscrutable wisdom, to deprive the Board of the valued services of an esteemed and loved brother, by the removal from among us of the Rev. Francis D. Ladd. For several years he had been an active member of the Executive Committee of the Board, and displayed a deep interest in the cause of Education. He has fallen a martyr to his devoted love of country. Those who knew him best, were aware that the sufferings of our noble soldiers in the peninsula were sure to elicit the activities of his sympathetic nature, and his zeal for the welfare of others caused him to forget himself, in order that their sufferings might be relieved. We subjoin the following sketch, which has appeared in the columns of the Presbyterian. It is a deserved tribute to the memory of a laborious minister and an amiable good man.

"The Rev. Francis D. Ladd, pastor of the Penn Presbyterian church, in Philadelphia, died of typhoid fever in that city on Monday, July 7th, in the forty-second year of his age. Mr. Ladd paid a visit a few weeks ago to the army before Richmond, to minister to the sick and wounded, and returned with the seeds of the disease within him which has since carried him to the grave. Two pages of manuscript, hastily written with a pencil after his return, now lie before us, attesting how fully he sympathized with the sufferers, and how earnestly he sought to enlist the sympathies and efforts of others in their behalf. He did not know then, as we know now, that these were the last efforts which he should ever make to relieve human suffering, or console the sick and the dying. Mr. Ladd was born at Hallowell, Maine, in the year 1820, and united with the church there, when about fifteen years of age. His attention was early called to the gospel ministry, and he finally abandoned a mercantile life, to enter upon a course of preparation for its duties. He graduated at Bowdoin College, in the class of 1841, and studied theology in the Seminary at Bangor, Maine. He then took charge of three churches in Susquehanna county, Pennsylvania, removing from that place to Philadelphia. He married the daughter of the late Dr. Rose, of Silver Lake, Pennsylvania, who, with his only child, preceded him some years into the eternal world.

"Mr. Ladd had been pastor of the Penn church for a number of years. He laboured in this field with great fidelity and patience, encountering many difficulties, and gladly showing self-denial for the sake of the interests of the church, and desiring nothing more than to be successful in winning souls for Christ. He was a good man—of cultivated intellect—humble, devout, and conscientious in the discharge of all his duties. He was a member of several of the Boards of the church, and was always prompt in his attendance at their meetings, and zealous in his support of all their plans to do good. In his last illness his heart and mind were kept in perfect peace, and he died in the triumphs of faith. He has fallen while yet in the fulness of his strength, but he has done well the work assigned to him, and we trust has entered into rest. The list of the dead among the ministers of our church this week is large. Important places have been left vacant: may He who cares for his church with unceasing care, raise up those who shall take the place of the fallen, and carry on, with increased energy, the work of the Lord."

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA IN JUNE 1862.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Pby of Troy—1st ch Lansingburg	32 59
Pby of Rochester City—Port Byron ch	8 00
Pby of North River—Smithfield ch, Mrs J H Conklin	3 00
Pby of Long Island—Sweet Hollow ch	8 54
Pby of Nassau—Ainslie street ch Williamsburg	12 25
Pby of Elizabethtown—Baskinridge ch 16; Lamington ch 55	71 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Ewing ch	5 00
Pby of West Jersey—May's Landing ch	10 00
Pby of Luzerne—Nanticoke ch	3 00
Pby of Burlington—Plumsted ch	5 00
Pby of Philadelphia—15th ch Philadelphia	4 27
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Frankford ch, Miss M Wetherill, special, 50; Roxborough ch 5 61; Falls of Schuylkill ch 7 94	63 55
Pby of Carlisle—Gettysburg ch, Sab sch of, 1 15; Mechanicsville ch 18	19 15
Pby of Marion—Mount Salem ch	3 00
Pby of Zanesville—Salt Creek ch 7 23; Duncan's Falls ch 6 77; Madison ch 15	29 00
Pby of Miami—Mount Pleasant ch, Mr Wm Youatt	2 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Walnut Hills ch	7 71
Pby of Sidney—West Liberty ch	6 00
Pby of Fort Wayne—Kendallville ch 3; Albion ch 2	5 00
Pby of Peoria—Elba Centre ch	1 00
Pby of Bloomington—Atlanta ch	1 00
Pby of Rock River—Lower Rock Island ch	4 00
Pby of Winnebago—Newport ch, from the ladies of Kilbourn	4 00
Pby of Fairfield—Birmingham ch	5 00
Pby of Highland—Lecompton ch	2 00
Pby of St. Louis—Bethlehem ch	2 50
	$317 56

MISCELLANEOUS.

Myron Phelps, Esq., Lewistown, Ill. 200; M B M, Philadelphia, 2; W, Connecticut, 3; Ladies' Education Society of Sag Harbour, N. Y. 66 25; Mrs B F Spillman, Shawneetown, Ill. 1; Alexander Guy, M. D., Oxford, Ohio, (special) 30	302 25
Total	$619 81

WM. MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURG, PA., IN JUNE, 1862.

Pby of Redstone—McKeesport ch, Ladies' special aid, 1 56; Connellsville ch 29	30 56
Pby of Ohio—Pittsburg 2d ch, Miss L Geddes 1; Raccon ch 17 75	18 75
Pby of Blairsville—Congruity ch 29 73; Beulah ch 27 66	57 39
Pby of Saltsburg—Eldertown ch 5; Saltsburg ch 28 39	33 39
Pby of Allegheny—Rich Hill ch	2 00
Pby of Beaver—Pulaski ch	4 00
Pby of Steubenville—Big Creek ch 3 50; Richmond ch 4; East Springfield ch 8	15 50
Pby of New Lisbon—Bethesda ch	6 24
Pby of Richland—Orange ch	7 11
Pby of Wooster—Apple Creek ch 18 75; Congress ch 6; Mt Hope ch 4	28 75
	$203 69

MISCELLANEOUS.

Patterson estate, per Rev Dr Marshall	81 45
	$285 14
Total amount acknowledged,	$904 95

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.
July 12th, 1862.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

CHINESE IN CALIFORNIA.

A letter of Mr. Loomis, dated May 30th, contains the good news of the baptism of two Chinese in San Francisco, both of them interesting young men. The missionary had been much occupied in visiting the newly-arrived Chinamen, about 4500 of whom had arrived at San Francisco within a few months. He thought they were more willing to hear him than formerly.

JAPAN.

Our letters from this country are dated to the 12th of March. They contain accounts of some excitement, which was caused by the arrest of the Japanese who had visited a Roman Catholic chapel in Yokohama. This chapel was built by foreigners for their own use in worship, but the priest, by means of pictures on its walls, gave instruction to some of the Japanese. Their being arrested by the government shows that the old anti-Romanist, and perhaps anti-Christian, policy still prevails; but the occurrence will probably lead that quick-witted people the sooner to learn the difference between Romanists and Protestants.

CHINA.

Letters have been received from Canton, April 24th; Shanghai, April 15th; Ningpo, April 30th; and Tungchow, to March 10th. Considerable apprehension was felt at Ningpo of a conflict between the rebels and the English and French forces. The mission families and their schools, in that event, it was believed, would be safe. They are across the river from the city, and under the protection of the gunboats. There would probably be loss of mission property in the city, however, and the work of the brethren among the villages would most likely be interrupted for a time. Though the insurgents have not molested the missionaries, yet their conduct has been such as to lead them, as well as other foreigners, to regard the overthrow of the Taiping rebellion as a thing greatly to be desired. Mr. Nevius had baptized three of the Chinese at Tungchow, who were referred to in our summary of news last month, and others were inquirers. Dr. and Mrs. McCartee had returned from Japan with health much improved. Mr. Farnham had been attacked by the small-pox, but was nearly well again.

On the 17th of June, Mrs. H. V. Rankin and her two youngest children, embarked on the ship Hotspur for China, leaving her oldest son here at school. Her health has received much benefit from her visit to this country. A missionary and his wife, of the Methodist church, also embarked in the same ship for China. We trust they will have a remembrance in the prayers of our readers.

SIAM.

Letters have been received from this country dated to the 8th of April. A young man from New York was admitted to the communion of the church at Bangkok on the preceding Sabbath. The usual work of the mission was in steady progress.

INDIA.

We have received letters from Lahor, May 3d; Kapurthala, May 1st; Lodiana, April 30th; Ambala, May 2d; Saharunpur, May 2d. Mr. Forman speaks with thankfulness of the service rendered to the missionary work by the native Christian assistants at Lahor—five teachers, two Scripture readers, and one colporteur. Mr. Woodside, at Kapurthala, says:—"Our work progresses as usual, without any marked variety of circumstances, either of an encouraging or a discouraging nature." Mr. Thackwell gives a good account of the girl's school at Lodiana, and speaks highly of efforts made by one of the missionary ladies amongst the native women in that city. Dr. Campbell says of Saharunpur:—"Our work here goes on as usual;" and he refers to his daughter's work among the orphans, as of great use both to him and to them.

AFRICA.

Our letters from Corisco are dated to the 22d of April; and from Monrovia, to the 26th of that month. Mr. Mackey reports the members of the mission as all enjoying usual health. Two young men were baptized, and four other applicants for baptism were deferred. Much sickness had occurred among the natives, and some shocking "exhibitions of heathenism in connection with the sick and the dead. Two persons have been put to death within the last month for witchcraft, within hearing of our church bell at Evangasimba." Mr. James, of Monrovia, says:—"Our missionary work is about as usual. At Mr. Miller's station, he reports a good work of grace in progress. One or two of the new Congoes are subjects of it."

SOUTH AMERICA.

A letter has come to hand from Mr. Blackford, Rio de Janeiro, May 22d; from Mr. Schneider, in the southern part of Brazil, to May 8th; and from Messrs. McLaren and Wallace, at Bogota, New Granada, to the 17th of May. Mr. Blackford expected to admit to the church at the next communion, two or three persons. He mentions the arrival of two missionaries to the Germans from the Basle Missionary Society. Mr. Schneider gives further accounts of the German settlers, of the same tenor as those formerly described. In New Granada no special change is reported in the work of the mission.

MISSIONS IN AFRICA.

There are two "missions" of our Church in Africa. The Extra number of the Record, which was sent out last month, contains much information concerning them both. We are sure that they both deserve a large place in the thoughts and prayers of our Christian people. Consider

1. The field occupied by them. This is, in general, Western Africa—the part of that continent that lies nearest to our country, the fatherland of a large portion of the inhabitants of these States, a region most fertile, and producing many of the great staples of commerce, at present a land in darkness and in bondage to the prince of darkness, but nevertheless a land that opposes fewer obstacles to the introduction of the gospel than almost any other in the world. One of the chief obstacles encountered thus far by missionaries is the unfriendly climate. And this is truly a serious barrier in their way. But it will be in a great measure overcome, when entrance shall have been gained to the table land of the interior. In the meantime, this hinderance is in some degree lessened by the employment of coloured missionaries in Liberia, by the settlement on the island of Corisco of white missionaries, and by the measures on foot for training up native labourers.

Our brief space will not permit us to give a particular account of the fields occupied by the two missions. The first is Liberia, in which missionary efforts were commenced early in 1833, by the Rev. John B. Pinney, D. D., now Secretary of the New York Colonization Society. The second is Corisco, an island about fifty miles north of the equator, and a few miles from the mainland, where the Rev. James L. Mackey and the Rev. George W. Simpson, and their wives, took up their abode in 1850. In the former sphere, the Americo-African settlers are the first parties reached by the mission, and through them the large native population; while the influence of our church is thus exerted to promote the success of the rising republic—an influence indispensable to the welfare of any government based on republican principles. The questions now at issue in our own country, some of which affect directly the future condition of one in every seven of our inhabitants, and indirectly the future welfare of all the rest, must be regarded as greatly strengthening the claims of the mission in Liberia on the support of our church. In the Corisco mission, we find all the conditions which should call forth interest for any mission among a purely heathen population. Its distinctive feature is one which the dangerous climate has shown to be highly important—we refer to its training or educational labours, which, by God's blessing, will result in calling forth many well-qualified native labourers for the great harvest. Indeed, this result has been already achieved in a remarkable degree, as the Annual Report of the Board has shown, see Extra Record, pp. 119—21.

2. Consider the proofs of the favour of God towards these missions, as signified by spiritual or gracious manifestations. We can refer to these but very briefly; we cannot, indeed, enumerate many of these proofs, nor dwell here on any of them with that particularity which is needed in order to their full force being appreciated. We may refer, generally, to the annual reports of the Board, and to the letters and journals of the missionaries, for these proofs in abundance. And we shall now speak in few words of only two classes of these proofs. The first of these respects the labourers; the second, the fruits of their labour. In both, the grace of God is manifested. As to the former, how many choice men and women have gone out to Africa within the thirty years since our church entered on this work! They knew full well the risk of health and life to be encountered, and they knew the manifold self-denials of missionary life in Africa, if life should be continued. It was surely and it was only the grace of God that enabled them to engage in this work, and that made them faithful and happy in it, yes, happy both in life, and as to many of them, in death also. We remember Cloud, the Lairds, Canfield, Alward, Sawyer, the Simpsons, McQueen, Ogden, Mrs. Mackey, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. De Heer, Mrs. Loomis, as among the excellent of the earth—devoted, efficient, cheerful, and in their last hours peaceful, and having a good hope through grace—a goodly company of missionaries who have gone from Africa to be with Christ! And we adore the grace that was given to them, and to the church that sent them forth. Others of like mind are now in the field—long may their lives be spared! And then as to the fruits of their labour, see the gospel preached by them, the schools, the candidates for the ministry of the gospel, the licentiate preachers, the word of God in part translated, the churches gathered and worshipping here, the souls in glory—in these things, see proofs of the gracious power of God resting upon these African missions.

Passing by other considerations and views of the work of missions in Africa, do not these thoughts tend to encourage us in the support of these missions? Is not God with his church in supporting them? Is not good seed sown?—the gospel leaven at work? Shall not these missions, therefore, have a frequent remembrance in our prayers, and a warm place in our Christian sympathies? And let us keep it in view, that in Africa there are still "regions beyond," A good work has been well begun. A greater work is still before the church.

MISSION IN BRAZIL.

Religious condition of the German Colonies.

In the Record of June we inserted a letter from the Rev. F. J. C. Schneider, giving an interesting account of his journey to one or two German colonies, which he had visited from Rio de Janeiro. In the following letter he speaks of colonies in the southern part of the empire, and gives such particulars as will enable his readers to understand the importance and the difficulties of missionary work amongst them, and such, also, as will secure sympathy and prayer in aid of the missionary himself. His letter is dated at Sao de Joao de Rio Claro, April 22, 1862.

Dear Sir—On the 8th of March I mailed a letter to you, but so slow are the mails in this country, that I do not yet know whether it has reached even Rio de Janeiro. I was then at Limeira, and had just begun to make the tour of the German colonies in this part of the province of Sao Paulo. This I have since completed, and have selected this place as the most eligible for my residence. As boarding and lodging in a private family is a thing unknown and impracticable in this country, I have rented a small house, having the bare ground for a floor, and no glass in the windows, and furnished it with the most necessary articles. Board I have secured in a German family.

Sao Joao de Rio Claro is a small town of about one thousand inhabitants. It is situated in a sandy plain, surrounded by high hills, and is about one hundred and twenty miles west of the city of Sao Paulo. The distance hence to Rio de Janeiro is about three hundred and fifty miles.

There are only about twenty German families here, but the colonies are situated at such distances, that I can reach any one of them in less than a day.

Numerous German Settlements.

The distance hence to Angelica, containing about one hundred and twenty Germans, counting children, also, is nine miles. In a different direction from here is Ybecaba, containing some four hundred, all told, distant twelve miles. Fourteen miles beyond Ybecaba, and therefore twenty-six miles hence, is Sao Jeronymo, containing also about four hundred. In another direction, still, from here, are the two small colonies, Biny and Cubitingo, near together, and containing about fifty Germans. Eleven miles beyond this town, four miles beyond these last, are two colonies, lying little more than a mile apart, and called Sao Sourenco and Paraiso, containing together six hundred Germans. About twenty-four miles from here is quite an important town called Piracicaba, or Constitucao, and containing about one hundred Germans. Besides these colonies, and residents in the town of Limeira, which lies between Ybecaba and Sao Jeronymo, and Piracicaba, there are also a pretty large number of Germans scattered throughout the country.

Ignorance of Religion.

You will see from this statement that the field in which I can labour among those speaking my own tongue is large, too large, indeed, for one person to attend to their many wants. The destitution of all religious instruction among these persons, and their ignorance, are extreme. One person, by no means the least intelligent of those I met, was much astonished when he found that all hymn-books were not alike, and asked me whether Bibles, also, were so unlike. I could scarcely make some believe that I did not know persons with whom they had been acquainted in Germany, and who had gone to the United States. Only in one of the colonies is a school. The teacher in this one has not even a Bible, and is more ignorant than some of the colonists. Although all who were fourteen years of age when they came to this country can read, but very few who were not able to read then have since learned. Many of them are here more than ten years. The children nearly all learn positively nothing, except what belongs to mere animal life. But very few families brought any books with them, and even these are seldom more than a Bible and hymn-book, and never read.

German views of the Sacraments.

Still, these do not appear to me to be the most discouraging features of their religious condition, or those that seem to be the greatest obstacles to their reception of a living gospel. Nearly all German ministers believe, and act upon the belief, that the sacraments of the New Testament are to be administered, not only to Christians, as means of confirming their faith, but to all who may apply, as means of converting sinners. In the United States, I never knew a German minister, even among those that were sincerely evangelical, who did not look upon the sacraments in this light; and I perfectly astonished the pastor of the German church in Rio de Janeiro, when, in conversation upon this subject, I said that I should not administer the Lord's Supper to one of whom I knew that his life was positive evidence of his being an ungodly man. I have never yet known a German minister in the United States, except among the Methodists, who was not glad to see many come to the communion table, of whom their lives testified that they were indeed far from the kingdom of God. Neither have I ever known one who did not seek to convey the idea, that baptism was necessary to the salvation of an infant.

Especially of Baptism.

In Germany, no child has, by law, any status in society until it has been baptized; nor, if over fourteen years of age, until it has been confirmed, and has partaken of the Lord's Supper. Hence, every child, however abandoned the parents may be, is baptized. When grown, they rest upon this, and think that, because they have been baptized, they are good Christians. I have known the most decided infidels, and hardened scoffers, have their children baptized, both in the United States and in this country. Nor is this the worst feature connected with baptism among nearly all Germans. Parents seldom present their children themselves, but nearly always have this done by sponsors. These always, "in the name of the child," make a profession of faith, and nearly always, also "in the name of the child," as they are expressly asked, "abjure the devil and all deeds." The course of action to be pursued by by me in regard to baptism, was a subject that presented itself for my decision as soon as I came to this country. Many Protestants, believing baptism by some one to be absolutely essential, had their children baptized by Romish priests. I had before conferred with brother Simonton upon this subject, and he thought that my best course would be to tell persons applying to me to baptize their children, what my views of the ordinance were, and what was required of parents wishing to have their children baptized. Accordingly, when persons applied to me to administer this ordinance, I would tell them what the Scriptures taught in regard to it; that in itself it conferred no grace in some mysterious way, that if parents were not sincere Christians, they could not expect God's blessing on the ordinance; that parents must themselves present their children, and that I required of them, and not only of sponsors, a solemn profession of faith in the triune God, a promise that they would instruct the child, to the best of their ability, in the truths of religion, and that they would set it a good example by their lives. Sponors, or official witnesses, I said, were not necessary, but that I would not reject them if they wished to have such. When they assented to these conditions, I baptized the children. Frequently, however, I had good cause to fear that they assented merely for the sake of having the children baptized. In several cases, too, I was much grieved, when I afterwards discovered what was the character of the sponsors. Once a very intelligent German physician and his wife were sponsors to a child. In the morning, these, with the parents, made the solemn profession and promises spoken of above, and in the evening of the same day they came to my room, began to abuse what I had said in my sermon of man's sinfulness and of the Redeemer, and asserted that no intelligent or scientifically educated person could believe the myths and fables contained in the Bible. The lady was by far the more violent of the two, and then they offered me some money for my "trouble in baptizing in the morning."

These same persons, whom I mention only as the type of all intelligent Protestant Germans here, have a little daughter, and although they believe in nothing beyond a supreme Being, and ridicule the Bible and religion, they sent to the German Protestant minister in Sao Paulo, requesting him to come a distance of 100 miles, and to baptize their child, which they believed to be near death. That minister did not come, and so they had it baptized by a priest. In another case I discovered that a young man who was sponsor to a child that I baptized, and had upon that occasion voluntarily made similar professions and vows, was leading a licentious life. He had before told me that he was to be a sponsor to a child of one of his sisters, which I was to baptize. After I discovered how lewd his life was, I wrote to him, telling him that I should baptize no child to which he was to be a sponsor, giving my reasons, and urging the claims of the gospel upon him.

Confirmation as an obstacle.

Confirmation is another great hindrance to the entrance of gospel light into the minds of these people. From time immemorial, all children, unless found guilty of some crime, have been confirmed in Germany, and admitted to the Lord's supper. It is regarded as a matter of course, that when a boy is 14, and a girl 12 or 13 years of age, they shall be confirmed and partake of the Lord's supper. Of a thousand German immigrants arriving at New York, there will scarcely, I may say probably, not be one who is not a member of the church. I know a gentleman in the United States who does not even believe in a supreme Being, and who once told me, that as he knew some ministers of whom he could not deny that they were very intelligent, and even intellectual men, he could not account for their teaching what they do, except upon the supposition that they know better, but love their easy way of making a living, and therefore still continue to deceive the people. Yet this same person obliged his children to be confirmed, and then partake of the Lord's supper. In regard to confirming children, I have also been frequently spoken to by parents: the point specially mentioned always being—that the children were now old enough, and that they ought to partake of the Lord's supper. One night, after having preached at one of the colonies, a deputation waited on me to ask what I should require the children to know, before I should confirm them. They stated that there were a number of children in the colony old enough to be confirmed, and that, although some of them had never had any religious instruction of any kind, they would try and make them learn the Lord's prayer, the creed, and the ten commandments, and asked whether I would not confirm them if they should learn this. I told them that I did not consider age to be a qualification in any respect, but that the qualifications which I considered to be indispensable were—sufficient knowledge of the plan of salvation, true faith in Christ, and love to him, and these manifested by consistent Christian conduct. They were perfectly astounded by this reply, and urged what they considered an insuperable objection to such a course; that in that case a person might live to be even twenty years of age, and not have partaken of the Lord's supper. I reasoned seriously with them upon the impropriety, and even wickedness and danger of admitting persons merely because they were of a certain age, but could not convince them, because they "don't" do so in Germany, but sometimes confirm children who don't know even the Lord's prayer or the ten commandments.

Defective views of the Lord's Supper; a striking example.

Their ideas too, of the Lord's supper and of Christian duty are so radically defective, that it makes my heart bleed to see how anxious they are about the external ordinances, and how careless about true godliness. I shall give only an outline of one case, which may serve for many that I could relate.

In Limeira is a German more intelligent than those generally met with here. He has tolerably correct views of the Gospel; did me many favours; often expressed an earnest desire that a German church should be organized in his neighbourhood; expressed his grief that his children were deprived of all religious instruction from a minister, and was very anxious that I should settle near where he lived. He often expressed his sorrow to me, that during the ten years that he had been in this country, he had never heard a sermon until he heard me preach. He had a strong desire to partake of the Lord's supper, and asked me whether I would not appoint a time for administering it, in order that he might prepare himself for it. He keeps a venda, or small store, in which, with a variety of other articles, the principal stock is ardent spirits. He has a Bible, but never reads it. He has eight children, but only one of them can read; the rest do not know their letters, and he makes no effort to teach them. They have no religious instruction whatever. He objected to my having family worship in his house. I saw that he kept his store open upon the Sabbath, and that on that day more liquor was drank, and more disorder made, than on any other. I spoke seriously to him in private upon this subject,—urged him to close his store upon the Sabbath, and show that he trusted in, and loved God by keeping his commandments,—that he would set a good example to Brazilians, who know him to be a Protestant, and who would thus be led to respect our religion,—showed that he would thus have some time, at least, to instruct his children,—that he could scarcely expect God to bless him, if he continually violated one of God's positive commands,—that he could scarcely expect his children to obey the fifth commandment, while they continually saw their father break the fourth, even if a minister or teacher would instruct them in their duty,—and that I would never administer the Lord's supper to one of whom I knew that he habitually violated one of God's positive commands. His main arguments in reply were, that although he was as willing as any other man to do his duties as a Christian, he could not close his store on the Sabbath, as this would cause him to lose all custom,—that he earned more upon that day than any other,—that he could have holy thoughts and communion with God even when he sold liquor on the Sabbath,—and finally, that in Germany this would not exclude any one from participation in the Lord's supper. His views are those of all, so far as I know. I am pressed upon every side to administer this ordinance, but see no evidence of the power of the truth.

What can be done?

I have now given you a condensed account of the spiritual condition of the Germans among whom I have travelled and preached. If God spares me, and I am not otherwise prevented, I shall continue to try to scatter good seed, and look to God to bless. But, dear sir, to expect that they will support me, or even do so to any great extent, is vain, unless, indeed, I sacrifice all my convictions of truth, honour, and duty, to the prejudices of these ignorant, deluded people. What brother Simonton said in regard to their anxiety to secure a German Protestant pastor, and of their willingness to aid in supporting him, was true. But as, through ignorance of their language, he could not mingle freely with the people, he could therefore not know what kind of a pastor they wanted. It was true also, what brother Blackford wrote about the directory of the colony of Juiz de Fora having offered $600.00 to any German Protestant pastor who should settle there; but there they want the same kind of a man as here. I have been there, and mingled with the people.

I know not what proportion of the colonists here are Protestant. I believe more than half are nominally such; but the only practical difference between them and Roman Catholics is, that they believe themselves to be better Christians merely because they are not Roman Catholics; and that, in repeating the Lord's prayer, they will never say, as the Roman Catholics do, "Vater unser," but always "Unser Vater." The difference between them is the same as that between "Noster Pater" and "Pater noster." Indeed, I have more hopes of being useful to the Roman Catholics than to these Protestants. But I trust that you will not judge too harshly of me, even if it should not soon be my privilege to be able to write to you that I have organized a self-sustaining congregation. The material is here, but it is sad to see in what condition it is.

In my previous letter I enclosed a list of books which I requested you to send me, if it was possible. There are no German school-books or catechisms here at all, and it would add immensely to my influence if I could be able to supply nice books. I could easily sell all I sent for in a very few weeks, if I had them now. Please do not delay sending them to Rio, to Mr. Blackford, longer than is essentially necessary.

Yours, respectfully,

F. J. C. Schneider.

LODIANA MISSION, INDIA.

Missionary Labour for the Afghans.

The Rev. Isidor Lœwenthal is still the only missionary of the Board whose work is that of labouring for the salvation of the Afghans. His station for the present, is Peshawar, a city west of the river Indus. His report of last year's labours has lately reached us, and it is here inserted entire.

The translation of the New Testament into Pushto was completed early in the year, and the printing is progressing steadily. Separate copies of the Gospel of Matthew have been received from England, and have been distributed to some extent. The distribution, in the first place, was not indiscriminate, but confined to people whose intelligence, or frequency of intercourse with whom, admitted of a good degree of certainty in the hope that the book would be read; in many instances, there was subsequently entire certainty that it had been read with a surprising amount of understanding. Difficult as it probably will be to induce the people generally to accept of, much more to read, missionary publications, the importance of an effort in this direction can hardly be overrated. The removal of prejudices now existing in the minds of the Afghans, will be the labour the missionary among them will have to perform primarily for many years to come. If he could persuade them to believe that the doctrines of the religion of the Christians are really contained in the New Testament, and in that only, he would have gained a point, advance from which must appear easy. In the bazar, in the village rendezvous, as well as in the discussions held in the missionary's house, he continually hears the same thing, viz., that the Christians have abandoned their religion, and that what they now practise is not the religion of Jesus. The most laudable feelings of the Musalman are wounded when he hears a slur cast upon the character of Mohammed, or a doubt raised as to his being a true prophet. From earliest youth he has been taught to regard Mohammed as a great benefactor, especially in having reduced the number of daily prayers required of them to five. The religion of Jesus, they are told, which Mohammed's superseded, required fifty a day. Hence, as they do not see the Christians pray fifty times a day, and indeed not at all in that public way in streets and market-places, which they deem the only mode of worship, they charge them with having abandoned the practice of prayer, and the religion of Jesus. One man quoted to the missionary some lines from Kháqání, a Persian poet of the twelfth century, who speaks of becoming a Christian by putting on a cowl, tying a rope around his loins, ringing the bell, burning candles, etc.; and the man only gave expression to a perplexity felt by many who read in their own writers of the practices of Christians, when he said that the missionaries were keeping back certain elements of their religion; that they, the Mohammedans, were not told all; that there are certain secret practices, which are not spoken of in the bazars, and that the spiritual religion which is urged upon them is only a part of Christianity. Other objections of a similar nature, all engendered by the habitual and extreme suspiciousness which characterizes the Afghan mind, the missionary hardly ever hears of, or only by accident, and such ideas, remaining uncontradicted in the people's minds, only increase the obstacles and difficulties the preaching of the gospel has to contend with. Hence the vast importance of the New Testament in the language of the people, to which the missionary may be able to point as containing all he has to urge upon his hearers, and to the examination of which he can most frankly invite them. Whether his invitation will be accepted to any great extent, for the present, appears as yet more than doubtful.

For in his preaching in the city or in the villages, the missionary has not much evidence, as yet, of the abatement of many of those prejudices which, for the most part, prevent Mohammedans from listening quietly to a statement of what their "opponent" has to say. The fierce proselytism of the Mohammedan creed, ingrafted on the naturally ferocious character of the Afghans, results in a dogged intolerance, which appears all the more intense the less there is of the power of acting up to the injunctions of the faith and of disposition. In the village of Tahkal, a man in the crowd shouts out a phrase Mohammedans frequently use, (Laulàka laulàka lamà khalaqtu'l aflàk,) which implies that the world was created only for the sake of Mohammed. He is asked for a proof of the implied assertion; "Oh!" is the reply, "if we had as many guns as you have, the proof would be very easy." It is by no means a rare thing for the missionary to be accused of unfairness, because, say they, you use any argument that makes for your side; and the only argument which establishes our side of the question we are not allowed to use, viz., the sword. With the logic peculiar to them, they charge the government of the country with gross partiality, because the missionaries can say what they please, and they, poor, oppressed creatures, are not allowed to do as they please. And generally, as far as bazar discussion and open-air preaching are concerned, though the people often appear less boisterous than formerly, there appears otherwise no progress.

Visits to the house of the missionary have again been more frequent than in the preceding year; but even the discussions thus held more quietly are not much more satisfactory than bazar preaching. Even men of a certain degree of intelligence are wonderfully ignorant and proportionally suspicious. A man will quote some sentence in Arabic; he is told there is no such passage in the Koran; but there is, he insists. A Koran is handed to him that he may point out the passage; "Oh! but that is your Koran; you have doubtless removed the passage." The drought that prevailed so long, grave greybeards would tell one, was occasioned by a policeman in government employ having been buried in holy ground; or, as some people from the nearest villages told the missionary, it was caused by the sáhibs themselves; for they had seen two officers riding across their fields, scattering certain pieces of paper, and what could that be for, but to produce a drought, in order to reduce the people to becoming Christians. (The officers had been preparing a paper-hunt.) A priest of superior attainments, on a visit to the missionary during the hottest weather, pants out the question, whether the pádrí has a thermometer. Oh, yes. Well, then, the pádrí would be kind enough to tell him how much longer the heat would last.

Inquirers were also more numerous than previously, but still unsatisfactory. When a man professes to be a seeker after the truth, the missionary has no choice; he must instruct him in the way of life to the best of his ability, although he may from the beginning have his doubts as to the man's sincerity. It is a gain to get a person to allow himself to be formally instructed, without placing himself in the attitude of an opponent; and it is possible that a man may derive much benefit from such instruction, be the motive of his presenting himself as an inquirer what it may. During some months, the number of such inquirers was abnormally great; but most of these were honest enough to say, from the first, that they only came because the grain was dear; and some declared themselves willing to become Christians on the spot, if the missionary would only give or procure them service at even three or four rupees a month. At other times, villagers of a better class would make their appearance, remain in the mission compound for days together, receive instruction during this time, even read what was given them to read, and then go away as they came, sometimes even unwilling to put the missionary to any expense as to their entertainment. One interesting individual was a Noghai Tatar, from European Russia, who, though brought up a Musalman, seemed to bear his faith no love. He had seen a good deal of the Greek form of Christianity, and he knew that the Polish artillerymen in Orenburg believed in the Pope of Rome; but he was much puzzled by the aspect of simplicity in the Protestant forms; he read the Scriptures, however, faithfully and intelligently, and acquired a great amount of religious knowledge during the three months of his sojourn with the missionary. He was, however, much prostrated by the heat and the Peshawur fever, and began already to be annoyed by the Mohammedans with whom he came in contact; and, moreover, he did not sufficiently appreciate the necessity of doing something for his living; hence he left the missionary, with the intention of returning to a colder climate.

A part of the cold weather which could be spared from other duties, was spent in two short preaching-tours. The first only extended as far as Kohát. A previous visit to Kohát had been too short, and at too unfavorable a period, to prevent this from being called the first regular attempt to preach the gospel there in Pushto. And the result might be called gratifying, if indifference is the worst enemy which missionary preaching has to contend with. The people at Kohát, sepoys, bazar people, and villagers, were certainly not indifferent. They were decidedly opposed to the innovation, as they deemed and indeed called it. And with the demonstrativeness of their race they exhibited their opinion in an unmistakeable manner. A vociferous, gesticulating crowd in the Pesháwur bazar might be called a polite auditory in comparison to this Kohát rabble. Crowding, shouting, hustling, jostling, hooting, throwing dirt, were but the precursors of even more violent and more riotous proceedings. The missionary generally managed to address the people briefly before the beginning, and then again at the end, of their part of the dialogue; but whilst the noise was going on, even the more respectable and better disposed among the audience could not make themselves heard, as they sometimes tried to pacify the fanatical throng. Such men, then, and others, even mullahs or priests, would come and discuss more quietly at the house where the missionary was staying. But on the whole, even these were much more illiterate than a similar class of people at Pesháwur are. They would sometimes confine themselves to listening to the statements made by the missionary, and promise to get their arguments ready by the morrow; but in no single instance did such promisers ever come a second time. A number of Persian New Testaments were left behind, and some of these were subsequently distributed to people who asked for them.

The second excursion was made in company with the Rev. T. Tuting, C. M. S., and consisted of an itineration comprising very nearly all the villages situated between Pesháwur and Hotí Mardán, within easy reach of the two roads connecting these stations, together with those between them, and a few beyond Hotí Mardán. The reception met with in these villages varied considerably. Sometimes it was difficult to get an audience at all; sometimes the people would be absolutely inhospitable, express their astonishment at the intrusion, and drive away any that might be inclined to listen; at one large village, again, which was visited frequently, over two hundred would gather together in a conspicuous mosque, and then the preaching, and the discussions, subsequently, would be carried on in a somewhat regular manner, for two hours at a time; but even here the people would get tired, if the visits were repeated too often, and suppress any little interest that might have been manifest; the missionaries' turning to the Hindus in the bazar, however, on one occasion, made the Mohammedans soon again eagerly and curiously crowd around them. In some villages, there would be much hooting, on the missionaries leaving, though previously the audience may have been quiet and apparently respectful; in others again, the mullah would be expecting the missionaries—the villages being very near one another in the immediate vicinity of Pesháwur,—make his appearance in his best dress, scarlet and gold perhaps, talk very loud, very fast, and very Arabic, and thus attempt not only to overawe these pádrís, but succeed in raising his parishioners' estimation of his own powers and ability. On the whole, with a few notable exceptions, the reception of the message and the messengers, in the villages within ten miles of Pesháwur, was rather rude and repelling than otherwise. But this state of things was quite altered, as soon as the missionaries had crossed the Kábul river, and entered Yúsufzai. There, with hardly an exception, the people were absolutely civil, and even kind. They would readily gather together, they would lead the missionaries from hujra to hujra, (as the village rendezvous are called;) they would give them guides, if night overtook them at a distance from their camp; they would offer them refreshments; they would always listen with attention, and then urge their objections without rancour or clamor. Whether this surprising treatment in one of the most fanatical Trans-Indus districts was due to the novelty of the thing, or to some other cause temporarily acting, it is not necessary to decide. It would be rash, at all events, to infer from such quietness any favourable inclination towards the gospel. It is very doubtful whether the people would have remained in the same mood, if the missionaries had preached two or three times in succession in the same place. In the village of Toru, where a discussion had been held with some of the most respectable men of the place, the Mullahs held a council, after the missionaries were gone, to determine whether it was proper, or rather lawful, for them to engage in discussions with the missionaries. Some held that it was not only right, but obligatory on them to defend their faith by arguments, this being the only weapon the missionaries were using; others said that discussions were good, as they always showed to the by-standers that the missionaries were not so full of wisdom and knowledge as the common people were ready to give them credit for, and at the same time, that they, the Mullahs, had read many books. Others again held that it was not proper to discuss with the missionaries; they had tried, and these pádrís would not be silenced; they did not seem to know when they were beaten in an argument, and they certainly never acknowledged it, when they were. Besides, it was grating to their feelings, they said, to hear unbelievers quote Arabic to disprove the mission of the Prophet. This brought out one man with a quotation from the Gulistán, in which Sádi's advice is that no reply is the best reply to one who does not believe in the Koran. One of them, who it was understood afterwards was looking out for a place as a teacher in one of the Government schools, maintained that the missionaries belonged to the ruling race, and if they should get exasperated, who could tell what might come of it? that it was therefore quite contrary to good manners to argue with them or reply to them, no matter what they said. Indeed, the want of unanimity was ultimately so great, that there was much chance that from the nice questions about breaking the laws of good breeding, they would proceed to actual breaking of heads. They separated without having come to any decision.

This council was only one out of a number that happened to be held at the very time during which the itineration took place; and it is not improbable that the peculiar and unexpected gentleness of the people towards the missionaries was in some degree owing to the interest in certain religious questions which was then existing in Yúsufzai. A great "Saint" in the village of Kota, whose fame extended far beyond Yúsufzai, had just been declared a heretic by a number of venerable Mullahs, and indeed pronounced a Káfir or Infidel by the celebrated Akhund 'Abdul Ghafúr of Swat. The adherents of the "Saint" maintained that it was nothing but jealousy on the part of the Swat Akhund, which had gotten up all this storm, inasmuch as the Kota luminary was diminishing the influence of the former among certain clans, and especially among the Sayids. The fact was, at an ecclesiastical council similar to the meeting held in Toru, but much larger, a paper had been drawn up, a few passages from which may indicate the nature of the religious questions which were then agitating the minds of the religious Afghans; and they are all frightfully religious. The paper stated, with much ecclesiastical magniloquence, as follows: "The learned of every tribe being assembled together have decided that whosoever refuses to affirm the sole lawfulness of the four legitimate sects, is a prevaricator and seducer. Whosoever affirms the corporality of God, either in the waking or the dreaming state, or believes in it, is an infidel. Whosoever maintains or asserts that any one can have a vision of God in a dream, implying that God can be or appear in any place, is an infidel. Whosoever affirms of any individual, excepting those to whom it has been divinely demonstrated, that he will certainly go to paradise, is an infidel. Whosoever speaks anything against the Khalifs Abubekr and Othman, or against Imám Hanifá, or against Akhund Darweza Sáhib, is a prevaricator and seducer; and if he despises those who have fought or laboured for the faith, he is an infidel. Whoever asserts that a prophet can possibly arise after Mohammed, is an infidel. Whosoever pronounces the benediction on any but the prophets or the angels, is a transgressor. Whosoever says that the dead derive no benefit from the alms and prayers offered for them, is a schismatic. Whosoever pronounces any person now living, fit to be a prophet, is a heretic; etc. etc. etc."

The points condemned in this paper are such as the man in Kota and his adherents were said to preach and hold. He himself gave out that he had seen God in a vision; it was he that his adherents pronounced fit for the prophetic office; it was on him that they pronounced the benediction, and so on. Hence this paper with the signatures of many of the Yúsufzai Mullahs was presented to the Kota ecclesiastic for his signature, in order that he might clear himself from the imputations cast on him, if they were not in accordance with fact; but all the stories about him were confirmed by his contemptuously tearing the paper up. It was on this that the revered man in Swat pronounced the interdict, and the religious parties in the plains became more divided than ever. But as the Kota party is by far the less numerous, and has therefore but little chance to establish successfully its orthodoxy by a few active demonstrations, aside from the fact that the authorities would hardly favour such religious discussions, the excitement seems again to be dying out.

The interest in the questions discussed may have procured quieter audiences for the missionaries, but beyond this no favourable result has as yet appeared.

The Work of 1861 at Saharunpur.

The Rev. J. R. Campbell, D. D., his wife, and their daughter, and three native assistants, are the missionaries at this station; one of these native assistants is an ordained minister of the gospel, the Rev. T. W. J. Wylie. In the following report we have an account of the missionary work of last year. Since this report was written, the native church has received the pleasing accession of eight hopeful converts as communicants.

After an absence of three years, for the education of daughters in America, Mrs. Campbell and family returned to the station on the 9th of December. For their preservation during their long journey by sea and land, their continued health, and the many mercies and favours so abundantly bestowed, most hearty thanks are due to our Heavenly Father, and to the dear Christian friends whom they had the pleasure to meet, and who showed them no little kindness. Miss Campbell, who had been appointed by the Board to assist in the instruction of natives at the station, found at once a wide field of usefulness among the poor orphan children at that time thrown upon our hands, in consequence of the famine, and she entered upon her labours at once, instructing, also, the children of native Christians. The routine of labours at the station has been much the same as in former years; nor was it seriously interrupted by the absence of the senior missionary during the summer, on account of sickness. The change to the hills has done much towards a restoration to former health and strength.

Preaching the Gospel.

This being the great work of the missionary, much of our time and strength have been given to it. Services for the benefit of the native church, and others residing on the mission premises, daily preaching in several places in the bazar, long itinerancies among the towns and villages in the district, and attendance at religious melas, for making known the gospel, and the distribution of the sacred Scriptures and tracts, have been conducted as formerly. But, alas! we may emphatically exclaim this year, "Who has believed our report? and to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed?" Many have heard the good news of salvation by Jesus Christ, but, we think, with less interest than in past years, and all seem to have despised and neglected the Saviour, and the interests of their undying souls. Some of the precious truth disseminated may yet produce its appropriate effects; but, so far as we yet know, results are unfavourable; and this ought to humble us, and lead us to depend more on Him who has the hearts of these hardened people in his hands, and the power to convince and convert them, through the instrumentality of his own appointment. While we state these facts, we are not discouraged in the work to which the Saviour has called us. The commission is plain, and duty is ours. Results are his, and they are all directed by his infinite wisdom. We have pleasure in stating that the gospel of salvation has been proclaimed daily in the city, and in one hundred and eighty towns and villages during the past year, and it is hoped that all the good seed so widely scattered will not be lost. The number of communicating members in the church is twelve, and all, we are happy to say, are living in Christian love and harmony, and progressing in Christian character and holiness. Though numerically few, they present a consistent and impressive example to the heathen around them. At the monthly concert for prayer they contribute for the spread of the gospel. The week of prayer in January was duly observed.

Schools.

These have been pretty well attended during the year. The English school has had an average attendance of about sixty pupils, and the vernacular school in the city about seventy. In the former, the different classes study spelling, reading with translations, history, geography with maps, writing, arithmetic, composition, grammar, prize essay on Hinduism, and the Christian Scriptures. In the vernacular school the studies are in Hindí, Urdú, and Persian. In these languages the Scriptures, and religious tracts and books, are read daily, and Christianity taught in classes by the catechist and Scripture-reader. The Shorter Catechism is committed to memory by most of the pupils, and all may learn the way of life and salvation. We believe that many who have been instructed in this department have a knowledge of the truth, and but little regard for the superstitions and practices of heathenism. All the pupils of the English school attend two hours every Sabbath morning for religious instruction, and afterwards proceed to church. A religious service, also, is held with the pupils of the vernacular school, at the city church, on the afternoon of the Sabbath, when many travellers and people of the city turn in to hear the gospel. A female prayer-meeting is also kept up every week, to seek a blessing on our labours.

The Orphan Institution.

The number of orphans under our care at the commencement of the year was sixteen. Shortly after, a number of starving children, who had been left orphans, or forsaken by their parents during the famine, were placed under our care by the public authorities; and, as many more were expected, it was necessary to enlarge the buildings of the institution for their accommodation. Seventeen comfortable rooms, each to hold four boys, were erected, and a walled well sunk in the centre of the yard for drinking and bathing purposes, at an expense of 370 rupees. The whole number received during the year was fifty-four, which, together with the sixteen in the institution a year ago, make seventy. Of those taken in in consequence of the famine, ten have died from the effects of starvation, and six ran away as soon as they obtained strength and comfortable clothing, so that fifty-four now remain. Some of them are still in a weak condition, but it is hoped that, with proper care, all may live, and become useful. Some have already made very good progress in the rudiments of education, and all seem pleased with their comfortable and improved condition. It will be our constant effort and earnest prayer to train them up to become eminent and useful Christians, and instruments of spreading the news of salvation among their heathen and benighted countrymen. Not being prepared to meet the heavy expense of supporting so many, while food has been at famine prices, we wish here to record our warmest thanks to those friends who have, by their contributions, assisted in sustaining this institution, and especially to the Relief Societies for their liberal donations, without which we could not have met such heavy expenses.

We conclude in ascribing the praise of any good that may have been accomplished by our imperfect efforts, to Him who can perfect strength by human weakness, and to whom alone it justly belongs.

CHINA—NINGPO MISSION.

A Visit to the San-poh Stations.

The Rev. D. D. Green writes under date of March 4th, at Ningpo, as follows:

On Friday, the 14th of February, I left Ningpo in company with one of the native assistants and his wife, on a visit to the Saen-poh stations. One of the young men just graduated from the school also accompanied us, with a view of taking charge of the school at Yih-ko. The weather was fine, but too cold for comfort, except by a fire, closely wrapped in one's great coat and shawl, or wound within an almost oppressive weight of comfortables and blankets. We chose the latter, and leaving the matter of propelling to the boatman, were soon sound asleep. Nothing occurred to interrupt the night's repose. The morning light revealed that we had not made astounding progress—only about twenty miles from the place of starting. We continued our course without interruption and arrived at Siáo-gyiáo-deo late on Saturday night. On the Sabbath we held two services, at the first of which there were thirty or forty present, who maintained a good degree of attention. There does not seem to be anything of special interest at this station. The school has been discontinued for want of scholars. The teacher, Mr. Dzing, is about to undertake another school at a village called 'Ong-we, about ten miles from Siáo-gyiáo-deo, near the hill. On Monday I accompanied him to that place. He proposes to commence his school on Wednesday. The place itself is rather inviting, being almost surrounded by hills, with a clear stream of water running through it. Preached in this village in the afternoon, and passed back towards Yih-ko during the night, at which place we arrived on Tuesday morning. Spent the forenoon at Yih-ko, talking over plans proposed chiefly by Mr. Yih, with a view to the good of the Saen-poh people. Before dinner we had a call from two very ignorant women, who came to inquire about the religion of Jesus. They seemed desirous of knowing the way, but were as those groping in the dark.

In the afternoon we walked across the country, stopping and talking at one or two places by the way, and arrived at the house of the Yiu-yiao, carpenter, towards evening. He now lives in a village called Mô-in-deo, about three miles from Yih-ko. He is a most devoted Christian, and an industrious well-to-do man. As we passed along in the afternoon Mr. Yih spoke of several cases of more than usual interest, of persons from his own and neighbouring villages,—of persons observing the Sabbath and coming regularly to hear. None of these cases, perhaps, give decided evidence of a change of heart, but are manifest tokens of good. At the carpenter's place there are about ten, including those of his own household, who come regularly to the reading of the Scriptures and prayers in the evening. We (Mr. Yih and I) preached in the afternoon and evening, and my own soul was greatly blessed in communion with these warm-hearted servants of Christ. I think Mr. Yih is a model church-officer and assistant, while the carpenter is a model private Christian. His heart seems always warm with love to Christ, and even while about his ordinary business, finds abundant opportunities for speaking a word for Jesus. God has signally blessed his conversations to the conversion of others, and continues to give evidence that the seal of the Spirit is attending his labours.

I spent last Saturday and Sabbath at Bao-kô-tah and was much pleased with the attendance and the attention of the people there. Our place of worship was crowded morning and afternoon to its utmost capacity, and as far back from the doorway to the outside as they could easily hear. Cut off from the city the country people hear us gladly. It is blessed to feel that we are not left without the witness of the Spirit in our work.

Here at Ningpo too we have encouragement. In the girl's boarding-school there is a good degree of religious interest. It is probable that two more of the girls will be baptized next Sabbath. There are one or two of the boys in the boarding-school who are evidently thinking with reference to their souls.

We ask the special prayers of yourself, and through you of the Church on our behalf. Brother Roberts and wife arrived in pretty good health and spirits on the 23d of February. We are much pleased with them. There is a feeling both here and at Shanghai, that as soon as the funds of the Board will admit, we ought to commence a station somewhere on the Yiang-tse river.

Yours very truly and affectionately,

D. D. GREEN.

WESLEYANS IN THE FIJI ISLANDS.

The following statistics, presented at the "Fiji District Meeting" in June last, exhibit wonderful results of Wesleyan missionary effort there; the second column of figures showing the increase during the last year. At this meeting, two native ministers "were ordained to the full work of the ministry," and eight, after examination, were unanimously recommended as assistant missionaries.

		Increase.
Number of chapels, . . .	344	36
Other preaching-places, . .	247	85
Catechists and assistants, .	231	3
Local preachers, ...	400	24
Full church members, . .	11,251	927
Scholars, ...	31,566	4,857
Attendants on public worship,	67,489	7,322

—Missionary Herald.

DONATIONS

TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

IN JUNE, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Troy—Lansingburgh ch 100. Pby of Albany—Kingsboro' ch 16; Charlton ch 23; Saratoga Springs ch 52 29 191 29

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.—Pby of Genesee River—Caledonia 1st ch 41 79, Duncan McPherson 12 50; Warsaw ch 10 15 64 44

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of North River—Matteawan ch 60; Smithfield ch, Mrs John H Conkling, 3. Pby of Bedford—White Plains ch mo con 97 11; Croton Falls ch 50. Pby of New York—Chelsea ch mo con 16 38, Sab sch 14 62; Forty-second street ch mo con 10 28; Fifth Avenue and Nineteenth street ch mo con 16, Mission chapel 2 75; Madison Avenue ch mo con 10; First ch mo con 95 95; Brick ch mo con 56 48; Fifteenth street ch mo con 17; West Twenty-third street ch, N. York, mo con 25. Pby of New York 2d—Scotch ch, Robert Carter & Bro'rs, 200; Canal street ch mo con 10; Washington Heights ch mo con 10; Peekskill 1st ch mo con 16 50. Pby of Connecticut—Bridgeport 1st ch, to cons EGBERT MARSH and DAVID F HOLLISTER L. MS, 65 53. Pby of Nassau—Hempstead ch 52 82; Williamsburg ch mo con 31 59, Sab sch, for Ningpo Mission, 25; German ch 3; Brooklyn First ch mo con 25; Greene Avenue ch 3 76; Astoria ch mo con 15 96; Jamaica ch, L. I. mo con 42 65 976 38

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—New Providence ch 6; Elizabethport ch 15. Pby of Passaic—Newark 3d ch mo con 24 89, Sab sch 7 50. Pby of New Brunswick—New Brunswick 1st ch mo con 25 95; New Brunswick 2d ch, Rev Dr Cogswell 20; Bound Brook ch mo con 13; Ewing ch 15. Pby of West Jersey—May's Landing ch 20. Pby of Newton—Stewartsville ch Sab sch 6. Pby of Luzerne—Mauch Chunk ch 41; Nanticoke ch 5. Pby of Burlington—Camden 2d ch 30 20, of which 3 20 from Sab sch 229 54

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—Tenth ch, Philadelphia, mo con 70 16; North ch 82 03. Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Newtown ch 23. Pby of Newcastle—New London ch Benevolent Fund 85. Pby of Donegal—Union ch, bal 75 cts. Pby of Huntingdon—Lewistown ch Sab sch, to educate a child in India, 25: Huntingdon ch Sab sch, for a scholarship in India, 25. Pby of Northumberland—Jersey Shore ch 43 43; Great Island ch Sab sch at Young Womanstown 4; Harleton ch 1; Williamsport ch 50, of which 15 from Mrs E J Hepburn, to cons (in part) Lizzie J. Hepburn L. M. 409 37

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.—Pby of Baltimore—First ch, Baltimore, Sab sch, for "Backus School" in India, 100, to educate a child 25; 2d ch, Baltimore, Sab sch 60; 12th ch, Baltimore, 5; Frederick ch, Md, Sab sch 11 60. Pby of Carlisle—St. Thomas and Rocky Spring chs 15; Gettysburg ch Sab sch 4 37. Pby of Potomac. New York Avenue ch, Washington, D. C. mo con 24 50 245 47

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Redstone—Mount Pleasant ch 44 10; Tent ch 15, Ladies' Sewing Soc'y 12 50; Dunlap's Creek ch 3 50. Pby of Ohio—Lawrenceville ch 21 52; Mungo ch 18; Pittsburgh 2d ch, Miss Laura Geddes 1. Pby of Blairsville—Fairfield ch 7 87; Poke Run ch 64, of which 25 to educate David Kirkpatrick, a boy in India. Pby of Clarion—Richardsville ch 4; Concord ch Ladies' Miss'y Soc'y 4 20; Callensburgh ch 4 05; Leatherwood ch 12 20; New Bethlehem ch 3 63. Pby of Saltsburgh—Glade Run ch 25; Concord ch 15; West Lebanon ch 6 25; Eldersridge ch 8 60, Academy Soc'y of Inquiry 7 15; Boiling Spring ch 9 45; Cherry Tree ch 10 297 02

SYNOD OF ALLEGHANY.—Pby of Alleghany—Tarentum ch 10; New Salem ch 5; Scrub Grass ch 11. Pby of Beaver—Pulaski ch Ladies' Miss'y Soc'y 9. Pby of Erie—Sturgeonville ch 5; Westminster ch Sab school 1 72; Lake Road Mission Sab school 68 cts; Fairfield ch 13; Georgetown ch 18 50; Franklin ch Sab school, to ed a boy in India 6. Pby of Alleghany City—Rochester ch Sab school, to sup of Rev B D Wikoff 10; Highland's ch 8 33; Buffalo ch 2; Westminster ch 2; Glade Run ch 2; Cross Roads ch 20 124 28

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—Washington ch 86 14; Wheeling 2d ch 90, Sab school 60; Florence ch Sab school 13 15; Upper Ten Mile ch 10; Mount Prospect ch 11 10. Pby of Steubenville—Bloomfield ch 5; Richmond ch 6; Steubenville 1st ch 44 27. Pby of New Lisbon—Poland ch Fem Miss'y Soc'y 22 10; Liberty ch 5; Middle Sandy ch 8 50 361 26

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Marion—Radnor ch 4; Marion ch 13 30. Pby of Zanesville—Madison ch 23. Pby of Richland—Savannah ch 13. Pby of Wooster—Canal Fulton ch 10; Chippewa ch 7; Marshallsville ch 4; Mount Hope ch 14 40 88 70

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.—Pby of Western Reserve—Springfield 1st ch, Ohio, Sab school 32 17. Pby of Findlay—Lima ch 29, of which 1 from Miss Cunningham's Sab school Class; Kalida ch 4 77; Pleasantville ch 3 68 94

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Chillicothe—Hillsborough ch 67; Red Oak ch 9 55. Pby of Miami—Greenville 1st ch, Ohio, 4; Mount Pleasant ch, from Wm Youatt 2. Pby of Cincinnati—Springfield ch 10 15; Somerset ch 6. Pby of Oxford—Seven Mile ch 10; Miss Mary Guy 10. Pby of Sidney—West Liberty ch, Ohio, 12; Piqua 1st ch, Ohio, 21 151 70

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of Madison—Hanover ch 6; Bethel ch 6. Pby of Indianapolis—Indianapolis 5th ch Sab school 4 08; Knightstown ch Sab sch 3 19 08

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Fort Wayne—Lagrange ch 6; Fawn River ch 3 9 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Sangamon—Springfield 1st ch, Ills. 50; Centre ch 5 50. Pby of Peoria—Peoria 2d ch Sab sch 25. Pby of Bloomington—Lexington ch mo con 31 85; Sab sch 10 122 35

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.—Pby of Rock River—Zion and Scales Mound ch, from Mrs Catherine Triller 3 00

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Cedar—German Presb ch, Buffalo, a member 3. Pby of Toledo—West Irving ch 2. Pby of Sioux City—Mount Vernon ch, Iowa, 4 75; Springville ch 2 25 12 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.—Pby of St. Louis—Central ch, St. Louis 55 50

Total received from churches, $3,429 27

LEGACIES.—Legacy of Miss Ann Whitehill, dec'd, Lancaster co, Pa. 146 38; Estate of George E Armont, Pa. 10; Patterson Estate 14 78; Bequest of A M Fleming, Mercer, Pa. (in part) 85 256 16

MISCELLANEOUS.—Myron Phelps and wife, Lewistown, Pa. 200; "A B C" 200; "W C." Oakhill 1; "J L" 3000; a Lady 3 56; Mrs Sarah Ray, Genesco, N. Y. 15; "Tithes," Paris, Ky. 5; a Friend, Newport, R. I. 2; Mrs Sarah B Stockings, Batavia, N. Y. to cons ELIAS A LEWIS, Esq. L. M. 50; Francis Parker, Troy, Mo. 10; "C R" two cents a week savings 1 10; a Child's mission box 48 cts; A Chapman, Alquina, Ind. 5; a Friend, N. Y. 2; a Friend, 5; Mrs Clarissa Hill, Coila, N. Y. to ed a child in Siam, 41 79; Miss Catharine Paul 5, of which 3 for Jews; E J Pierce 50 cts; Mrs B F Spilman, Shawneetown, Ill. 1 3548 43

Total Receipts in June, 1862, $7,233 86

One box of Clothing from Neshannock ch, Beaver co, valued at $95 12.

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

NOTICES.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., or Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, JR., Esq., Treasurer—same address.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY—Two editions of this publication are printed. The Pamphlet Edition contains 32 pages, and is published monthly, at 50 cents a year for each copy. It is sent free, when desired, to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to the ministers of our churches.

The Newspaper Edition contains a selected portion of the contents of the pamphlet edition. A copy is sent free of charge, except for postage, to the children of each family in every Sabbath School making regular contributions to the Treasury of the Board.

Address for either edition, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at—

Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D. D.;
Philadelphia, Pa., Samuel D. Powel, 910 Arch street;
Pittsburg, Pa., Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky., Andrew Davidson;
Memphis, Tenn., J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Mo., David Keith;
Natchez, Miss., Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Va., Henry C. Watkins;
Columbia, S. C., H. C. Bronson;
Augusta, Geo., James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the Agents of the Board, and should be preceded, or accompanied by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

OVERLAND MAIL.—Letters for the Overland Mail are forwarded from the Mission House by the steamers nearest the first and fifteenth of each month. Postage: from New York, to SIAM, CHINA, JAPAN, and BRAZIL, forty-five cents for each half ounce weight; but if sent by the French mail, thirty cents for each quarter ounce weight: to LIBERIA and CORISCO, thirty-three cents for each half ounce weight: to INDIA, via Southampton, thirty-six cents for each half ounce weight; via Marseilles, forty-two cents for a quarter ounce weight; forty-nine cents for a half ounce weight, sixty-seven for three quarter ounce weight, seventy-four for an ounce weight, a dollar and five cents for an ounce and a half weight. Letters to be forwarded by the "French mail," or to India "via Marseilles," must be so marked. Postage on newspapers, six cents each. The postage on letters and newspapers must be prepaid. The letters forwarded from the Mission House to each Mission are put in an outside envelope, and therefore stamps should not be affixed to them. The postage is assessed according to the weight of each letter, and may be paid by sending postage stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the Payment of Thirty dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,
No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of Colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record and Sabbath-school Visitor, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., Corresponding Secretary, No. 821 Chestnut street.

All communications, reports, remittances of money, and orders for books, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage, and Business Correspondent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to Rev. W. M. Engles, D. D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to James Dunlap, Esq., Treasurer.

OUR DISTRIBUTION FUND.

HELP NEEDED.

The demand for little books and tracts for the soldiers and sailors continues to be as great as ever. Indeed, it rather increases with the increasing numbers of the sick and wounded in our hospitals, and of the prisoners under guard in our forts and camps. We presume it is much within the limits of truth to say, that there are now forty thousand of these classes perfectly accessible to our Board of Publication, a large proportion of them destitute of suitable religious reading, and who would eagerly receive it, if furnished to them. Every consideration of humanity, patriotism, and Christianity, demands that they should be supplied.

Many and earnest appeals come to the Board almost daily for such supplies, from chaplains, officers, colporteurs, and others. Grants are made quite as fast as the means are furnished to the Board, yet they fail to meet the demands. Earnest solicitations for the "Soldier's Pocket-Book," "Hospital Cards," the "Soldier's Series" of tracts, &c., for distribution in St. Louis, Alton, Chicago; in Kentucky, Indiana, and nearer this city, are now in the hands of the Board, but it is without the means of complying. Its Distribution Fund is entirely exhausted. Who will help the Board to do this noble work?

AN APPEAL FOR THE SOLDIERS.

Norfolk, Va., June 15, 1862.

Rev. Dr. Schenck:

My Dear Sir—The liberal supply of books and tracts furnished me, some months ago, for the soldiers, by the Presbyterian Board of Publication, is exhausted, and I ask for more to meet new demands.

I believe that most, if not all of them, have been read, and some of them, probably, many times. Whilst, on the one hand, I have sowed "beside all waters," I was cautious, on the other, not to "cast my pearls before swine."

When in camp, I kept our regiment (the First Delaware) well supplied with reading matter, and gave many to the sick and wounded in the hospitals at and near Old Point Comfort.

Coming to this city, I brought what were left with me. Here a new field has been spread out before me in which to sow the good seed.

A week ago we had orders to prepare to march, on an hour's notice, with no baggage except what could be carried in the hand, or on the back, and I transferred all my books and tracts to the general hospital at Portsmouth, where there were five hundred and fifty sick and wounded just brought in, and no supply of reading matter. But what were they among so many who were anxious for something to read, and many of whom need just such reading matter as is furnished by your Board?

If those in their quiet and comfortable homes could see how gladly the soldiers in the hospitals receive the tracts and books which are offered them by the chaplain, they would, no doubt, readily supply them. May I not expect from you an early supply? I have promised them that they shall have them. Do give me the means to redeem the pledge. Yours truly,

T. G. M.

AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Cumberland, Md., June 24, 1862.

Rev. Dr. Schenck:

Dear Brother—The package of little books and tracts sent by you for distribution among our soldiers, has just come to hand. Please accept our most hearty thanks for the same; and be assured that this very acceptable donation will not be in vain. These little messengers of grace and mercy are performing a good service. The men receive them thankfully and with avidity, and peruse them with apparent earnestness and satisfaction. I know that in many instances they have been productive of much good. In most cases, after having been read through, they are carefully preserved, and re-read again and again. The "Soldier's Pocket-Book" is a special favourite.

While visiting in one of our hospitals the other day, I found a German, to whom I had given one of these little volumes some weeks previously; and upon my approaching where he lay, he eagerly pulled it out from his side-pocket, joyfully expressing, in broken English, the great pleasure and satisfaction he had experienced in reading the little book. On another occasion, while distributing some tracts among some soldiers, a young man held up the same little volume, saying, "You gave me this little book, and I would not part with it for five dollars." I am much pleased with the assortment of tracts that you have sent me, and can assure you, they will prove generally acceptable. We were specially in need of tracts in German, as we have some hundreds in our hospitals here who speak and read that language.

Very respectfully, your brother in Christ,

J. H. S.

BREAD CAST UPON THE WATERS.

In one of our New England villages, on the seacoast, a few months ago, a German sailor, being desirous of acquiring the English language, entered his name as a scholar in the district school, and secured board in the same family with his teacher. He was a bronzed, weather-beaten man, of twenty-six years, of fine, benevolent countenance, and, though of rough exterior, gave indications of a cultivated mind. But he had no hope, and was, like too many sailors, "without God in the world."

His outward deportment was generally correct, and his attendance on the house of God regular; hence he very soon attracted the attention of the villagers. Among those who became interested in the stranger, was little Mary B—, the pastor's daughter, and she soon learned enough to know that he was accessible by one channel, at least, and that was his mother tongue. After some effort, she found a couple of tracts in the German language, one of which—"Bob, the Cabin Boy," she handed to him on the Sabbath, as he was leaving the church.

The kind tones of the little missionary's voice, as she asked him to accept and read it, fell pleasantly on the sailor's ear. He took it home, and laid it on his table, with the view of reading it. His room-mate, the school-teacher, attracted by the type, picked up the tract, but finding it religious, threw it down again, saying, as he did so, "Pshaw! You are not going to read that, are you?" The sailor said, "Oh, yes, I will read it; Mary, the minister's daughter, gave it to me;" and suiting the action to the word he began to read. As he read, his interest increased, and he laid it down with regret when finished. It had touched his heart, and he read it again and again.

At night, when he retired, he took it up again—the only thing in that place that spoke to him in his mother-tongue, and called up the remembrance of his mother's prayers. His life passed in review; he saw himself a sinner. In the absence of the Bible, he turned again to his tract, and, in an agony of grief, imitated "Bob, the Cabin Boy," and poured out his soul before God, with strong crying and tears, till He who giveth liberally to all men, and "upbraideth not," assured him that his sins were laid on Jesus, the Lamb of God; and his soul rejoiced in God his Saviour.

It was now his turn to act the missionary; and he became the teacher, while the teacher, his room-mate, sat at his feet and listened to the wondrous story, as it flowed in loving accents from the loosened tongue of his changed pupil. The result showed the power of truth, and the efficacy of prayer. The teacher became a child of God, gave up his school at the end of the term, and entered Bowdoin College to fit himself for future usefulness, if God shall accept him, in the ministry.

This man of the sea speaks and reads many languages. The writer requested him to enumerate them. They are as follows: German, Polish, Lithuanian, Russian, Holland, Flemish, Portuguese, and English. In most of the above, including the English, he now reads and writes intelligibly. In answer to the inquiry, "Now, what can you do in all these languages?" he replied, while the tear of joy gathered in his eyes, "I can tell in all these languages what Christ has done for my soul, and, by the grace of God, I will do so as long as I live."

He has gone forth again upon the waters, not any longer as a careless blasphemer, but as a missionary of the cross of Christ, a "living epistle," to be literally "known and read of all men."

Are you doing anything for the sons of the sea? Imitate little Mary. Drop a tract in the hard hand, and a soft word of kindness and sympathy in the ear, and, by God's grace, you shall save a soul from death, and hide a multitude of sins.

C. J. J.

OUR BOOKS AMONG THE SAILORS.

A supply of books and tracts having been sent to the United States frigate Niagara, of which Rev. Charles P. Stewart is chaplain, the following pleasant note of acknowledgment has been received:

Flag-ship Niagara at sea, June 12, 1862.

To the Rev. W. E. Schenck, D. D.

Dear Sir:—The kind and liberal supply of publications by your Board furnished me, was duly received. The letter which was to have accompanied the package did not, however, come to hand till shortly before the Niagara left Key West.

The parcel was valuable and welcome, and gratefully received by those among whom I distributed it. That portion of it peculiarly adapted to the army, I placed in the hands of Lieutenant Herwerth, of the Ninety-first Regiment of New York Volunteers, which is without a chaplain, but in which Lieutenant Herwerth is an active and faithful labourer in the cause of our common Lord and Master.

The "Sailor's Companions" I reserved chiefly for vessels in the squadron without chaplains, to aid lay-readers in the public worship of the Sabbath, and in social meetings. The work is popular among seamen, and particularly calculated, I think, to accomplish good among them.

I regret the necessity of being thus brief; but we are just entering port, still attended by the good providence and grace of the Lord.

Very truly yours,

Charles P. Stewart, U. S. N.

CONTRIBUTIONS.

We receive many very interesting contributions, although usually small, for our Distribution Fund. The following are specimens of the notes accompanying them:

"Enclosed is 'ten dollars' for the purchase of 'Soldiers' Pocket Books' and 'Tracts.' We would be obliged if part of the books could be sent to the Army of the Potomac, under General McClellan; and please send the others to the soldiers and sailors, as you think best. You can say,—'Presented by two sisters, who are devoted to their country, and are very anxious for the spiritual welfare of the brave defenders of our glorious Flag, the Stars and Stripes, with their humble petition to the Lord Jehovah, that he will protect and preserve them in the day of battle,—that He will restore peace,—and we be again, a happy and united people,—not one Star missing.'

"This is a 'thank-offering' to the Lord, for mercies vouchsafed to us under trial by 'fire.' We have tested the faithfulness of a 'covenant-keeping God.' E. & L."

Here is another:

"Enclosed please find $1.00, a contribution intended to aid in buying religious tracts for the soldiers of our army. Please expend it for this purpose, in such a way as you think best. It has been given by a poor widow in my congregation, who has a son in the army somewhere, who is a stranger to Christ. It is her earnest desire and prayer, that God would carry one of the tracts bought with her money, or some other good tract, to the hands of her boy, and that God would bless it to his conversion. Please acknowledge it in the Record as 'A Widow's Mite.'

"Truly yours, W. A. H."

THANKS FOR A SABBATH-SCHOOL LIBRARY.

As far as the state of our Distribution Fund would enable us, the Board has always been glad to give Sabbath-school libraries to needy or mission Sabbath-schools. The following is an acknowledgment for one of these.

Rev. Dr. Schenck:

Dear Sir—Yours of the 22d inst. came to hand in due time, and the same evening I received the package of books donated by the Board to our little Sabbath-school. The means, you state, were given by another Sabbath-school for this purpose. You may assure those donors that we will labour that their gift may prove not to have fallen into unworthy hands.

The next day after I received your letter, announcing to us the action of the Board in our behalf, I related its contents to the school, and told them the prospect there was of getting new books. You can hardly conceive of the life it at once infused into both scholars and teachers. On the next Sabbath, quite an increase in the number of scholars gladdened the hearts of the teachers. Our church building is situated where there are no churches but Roman Catholic; so that there are a great many children that go to no school on the Sabbath. We hope to act as missionaries among this class of people, who are most needy.

I must say, that I think, by the blessing of a kind Providence, we may have a fair prospect of an increasingly interesting school. Our church is vacant, and having a good Sabbath-school is a great help towards keeping the church together.

Please accept our thanks for your kindness. May the Lord bless those children who have been instrumental in securing to us such a nice library.

Your brother in the Lord, C. H.

We are sorry to say that our Distribution Fund is now exhausted, and that we have lately been obliged to refuse grants of books to many Sabbath-schools to which we would otherwise very gladly have given them. We commend this to our Sabbath-schools that are able to make contributions, as a highly appropriate channel for their benefactions. By sending ten or fifteen dollars to this Fund, they may secure the gift of an invaluable library to some needy or mission Sabbath-school, and thus bless hundreds of children who are destitute of their own privileges and advantages.

Donations received for General Colportage, and for the Soldiers and Sailors, by the Presbyterian Board of Publication, during the month of June, 1862.

Pby of Troy—Stillwater ch 10 50; Waterford ch 54	$64 50
Pby of Albany—Jewett ch	5 00
Pby of Mohawk—Oswego 1st ch Sab sch	37 50
Pby of North River—Newburg ch add'l 4; Kingston ch 17	21 00
Pby of New York—Clifton ch	27 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Ewing ch 5; Remington ch 21; Titusville ch 19	45 00
Pby of Newton—Belvidere ch, "A Friend of the Soldiers"	9 00
Pby of Luzerne—Scranton ch	121 00
Pby of Philadelphia Central—Spring Garden ch Sab sch	16 63
Pby of Donegal—Leacock ch	14 50
Pby of Huntingdon—Logan Valley ch	10 00
Pby of Northumberland—Chilisquaque ch 20 25; Mooresburg ch 6 25	26 50
Pby of Baltimore—Taneytown ch	20 00
Pby of Lewes—Manokin ch	30 64
Pby of Saltsburgh—Eldersridge ch	15 00
Pby of Clarion—Licking ch 10; Pisgah ch 5	15 00
Pby of Erie—Concord ch	4 00
Pby of Washington—Three Springs ch	5 00
Pby of Steubenville—Bacon Ridge ch 5 72; Steubenville 1st ch 8 14	13 86
Pby of New Lisbon—Niles ch	9 00
Pby of Marion—York ch	4 00
Pby of Wooster—Wooster ch 37 76; Dalton ch	3471 76
Pby of Western Reserve—Northfield ch	11 00
Pby of Chillicothe—Red Oak ch	5 50
Pby of Miami—Mt Pleasant ch	2 00
Pby of Logansport—Indian Creek ch 3; Mill Creek ch 2 50	5 50
Pby of Fort Wayne—Hopewell ch	2 00
Pby of Crawfordsville—Bethany ch	3 00
Pby of Muncie—Hagerstown ch	1 09
Pby of Peoria—Salem ch	4 50
Pby of Bloomington—West Urbana ch 6; Mackenaw ch 7	13 00
Pby of Saline—Shawneetown ch, "Mr John Masters"	5 00
Pby of Rock River—Arlington ch 2; Rock Island ch 3 12; Freeport ch 3	8 12
Pby of Schuyler—Prairie ch 2; Millersburg ch 7; Macomb ch 11 25	20 25
Pby of Milwaukie—Milwaukie ch	23 50
Pby of Chippewa—Galesville ch	6 21
Pby of Cedar—Summit ch 9; Long Grove ch 2 30	11 38
Pby of St. Paul—Vermillion ch	1 30
Pby of Iowa—Ononwa ch, Sam'l Harvey, 50 cts; Mrs Livermore 50 cts	1 00
Pby of Des Moines—Albia ch, per Dr Waters	3 56
Pby of Fairfield—Birmingham ch	6 60
Pby of St. Louis—Bethel Ger ch 5; Nazareth ch, Ger, "Mr Henry Ahrens" 5	10 00
Pby of Palmyra—Hannibal 2d ch	5 00
Pby of Wyaconda—Kehoky ch	2 00
Pby of Louisville—Louisville 1st ch 20 15; Middletown ch, in part 12 15; do. by J M Armstrong 10; Goshen ch in part 7; Plum Creek and Cane Run chs 5 50; Louisville 1st ch, "3 Friends" 15; Chestnut st, "L. L. Warren" 80	149 80
Pby of West Lexington—Bethel ch 23 25; Woodford ch 18	41 25
Pby of Ebenezer—Sharon ch, per M G Knight	7 00
MISCELLANEOUS.
Army Meeting, N. Y. 240; Hermann Alrich, Harrisburg, Pa. 10; J M Reston, per M G Knight, 30; Col Geo T Wood 1; Mrs Marianie Bradshaw 5; A G Adams, Esq, Nashville, Tenn. 6; T P Curtis, Louisville, 5; W Kendrick, Louisville, 5; Cash 5; John Homin 5; W R Henry 3; W Barrett 2; Louisville Hotel 5; J B Taggart 3; S F Miller 5; G W Morris 5; Dr Chas W Short 10; Cash, Louisville, 13 50; Rev M Vanlear, West Lexington, 5; L A Tooks, Forest City, Mo. 3; Jonathan Harrison, Lyons Farms, N. Y. 50c; James McKeighan, Farmington, Ill. 2 50; "T B" 5; Mrs B F Spilman, Shawneetown, 1; Andrew Bryant, Mt Carmel, Ind. 20; W S Gilmer, New York, 4; "A Lady of Delaware" 5	404 50
	$1,339 87
Special Donations for Sailors and Soldiers.
"A Friend of the Soldiers," Buffalo, 5; Mr Hepburn, Jersey Shore, 5; Mrs E C Wilson, Morgantown, 2 50; Miss Lydia Scott, Towanda, Pa. 1; Jas A Beaver, Lieut Col 45th Reg P. V., Hilton Head, S. C. 50; Rev J T Coit, Rochester, N. Y., St Peter's ch Sab sch 20; Sab sch class for the chaplain of the 5th New Jersey, 1; Miss J Lemon, Colerain, Pa. 2; A member of the 3d ch, Newark, N. J. 10; A Friend 5; Eddie Quinby, Wooster, Ohio, 30c; Belvidere ch Sab sch, N. J. per J M Sherrerd, 17; "M L," Philadelphia, 10; Anonymous, Philadelphia, 4 80; John Curwin, M D, Harrisburg, Pa. 20; Jos R Silver, for his Sab sch class, Carthage, Ind. 1; Mrs M Newkirk, for the Male, Female, and Infant Sab schs of the Central Presbyterian ch, 33 63; A V Lippe, Bay P O, Mo. 1; Geo D Hall, St Louis, 5; James Field, Central ch, 5; Sab sch class, Trenton, N. J. 1; Anonymous "Duo," Chillicothe, Ohio, 5; A Presbyterian Family, New Castle, Delaware, 8	215 44
Total,	$1555 31
Amount of Sales during the month of June,	3583 10
Total,	$5139 41

JAMES DUNLAP, Treasurer.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. H. I. Coe.
Treasurer—Archibald Gamble, Esq.
No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Missouri.

"I'M IN DEBT."

"I'm in debt; I must be just before I am generous," is a very common reply to the calls of Christian benevolence. It is a specious reply. It satisfies many a conscience in withholding from the treasury of the Lord More perhaps than all other excuses combined, it ties the purse-strings of American Christians against the claims of a dying world, for we are peculiarly a debt-incurring people. Oftener too, perhaps, than any other excuse, it passes unchallenged. Let us then look at it fairly. Does the fact that a Christian man is in debt, justify him in giving a negative response to the calls of Christian benevolence? Those who argue that it does, say that a man in debt is not really the owner of what he calls his property. Even if in ordinary times the value of his assets far exceeds his liabilities, in the vicissitudes to which he is exposed, especially now, he may require his all to meet his engagements. For him to part with any of his means, and thus diminish his ability to satisfy the demands of his creditors, is not honest, and cannot but bring discredit on religion. All this sounds very well, and would be conclusive, were it not for the great fact that men, and especially Christian men, are not their own. What they hold, they hold as stewards and not as proprietors. They are tenants at will, of estates belonging to God. They are servants entrusted with certain talents, which they are to return on demand. Hence, they have no right to incur debt, and to encumber the property with which they are entrusted, any more than a steward has to mortgage the property of his principal, or a servant that of his master. Hence the reasonableness and tremendous force of the apostolic injunction, "owe no man anything." No subsequent mortgage can cancel this original lien, or invalidate God's claim to at least that portion of our possessions which he requires from us as our due acknowledgment of his proprietorship. At the very utmost, therefore, earthly creditors are entitled only to that which God, the original creditor, leaves them. What portion then of our possessions does God, our preferred creditor, require us to disburse in his service? The exact amount may be difficult to give, but surely no intelligent reader of the Bible can admit that it falls to zero, until both our accumulations and our ability to earn money have vanished entirely. No other view will agree with the command, Eph. iv. 28, "Let him labour, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth." Under the old dispensation, the Jew was required to devote one-tenth of his income to the support of God's house. Besides this, there were other requirements, which in the judgment of our best commentators, called for another tenth. If then the Jew, in his separation from the rest of mankind, and in the absence of any requirement to evangelize the world, expended one-fifth of his income for God, can the Christian, with the Redeemer's last command ringing in his ears, discharge his full duty with a less expenditure? Let us however err, if at all, on the side of leniency, and suppose that God only requires of Christians one-tenth of their income. This at least must be regarded as God's portion, sacred to his service, and not to be withheld without sin.

If, as is too often the case in our speculating age, our possessions are unproductive property, the law which requires one-tenth of our income, clearly requires us to regard one-tenth of our principal as dedicated to pious uses, and to it at least, in such cases applies the Saviour's command, Luke xii. 33, "Sell that ye have, and give alms." Let then no professed child of God regard himself as freed from the obligation to give, by his debts. Let him honestly regard God as his preferred creditor, lest he lose that blessing of the Lord, without which all his endeavours to satisfy his earthly creditors will be in vain.

ROMISH CHURCHES.

We have seen in several newspapers the statement "that the Roman Catholics built last year in this country ninety-five churches, many of them large and costly ones." Whether this is the number built in the whole country, the South included, is not stated. This amount of church-building is spoken of as a remarkable evidence of growth and enterprise on the part of Romanists. Supposing the statement to have no reference to the South, and viewing it, therefore, in the most creditable light, we cannot see any great evidence of growth or enterprise in the erection of such a number of sanctuaries. Our own church, in proportion to its numbers, did much more last year. Romish authorities claim at least two millions of adherents for their church in the loyal states The Old-school Presbyterian church numbers in those states not far from two hundred thousand members, and one million of adherents. The Board of Church Extension of the Presbyterian church aided last year in the erection of fifty-one churches in loyal regions. To this number should be added at least one-fourth, for churches built by congregations that did not receive aid from others. Consequently our denomination erected more than sixty churches last year. In proportion, therefore, to the number of our adherents, we built last year fully one-fourth more sanctuaries than was built by the Romish church. As the result of large opportunities of observation, we judge that the cost of our sanctuaries will equal those built by Rome. While the Romish church in this country has grown rapidly in the last fifty years, it has not, we believe, kept pace with the leading Protestant denominations, nor retained that which emigration brought it.

THE SOUNDING PROPERTIES OF ROOMS.

A correspondent of the London Builder presents the following useful ideas on the proportions of rooms for propagating sound. He says:—"A building of a certain height, length, breadth, and form, is required to enable an assemblage of persons to hear clearly and distinctly in every part of the room. I only know one room which is as near perfection as possible, viz., a concert-room at Harrowgate. The following are its dimensions: length of room inside, 86 feet 6 inches; width, 33 feet; height to ceiling line, 22 feet 7 inches; height to centre of ceiling, 24 feet 2 inches. The ceiling is the segment of a circle, rising one foot in seven inches. There are nine sunken panels in the length of the ceiling, and seven in width, each nine inches deep. There are nine large windows along the north wall, three at the east and three at the west end. On the south side there are two doors and one window, a small orchestra ten feet high, and two Doric columns on each side of the orchestra."

We have inserted the above article, chiefly for the light it throws on the proportions of audience-rooms. It seems to be a common notion among our congregations, that audience-rooms should be nearly square. Hence many of our churches are nearly as broad as they are long. To say nothing of the ungainly appearance of such edifices, they are not favourable for hearing. The audience-room above described is more than two-and-a-half times as long as it is broad. One of the easiest churches to speak in we have ever seen, is forty feet in breadth, and ninety feet in length. These facts in reference to audience-rooms may be of importance to congregations desirous of enlarging their edifices. Churches are often prevented from enlarging their sanctuaries by the mistaken notion to which we have already alluded. Let those who are about to build, with a view to future enlargement, also notice these facts, and the proportions which the height of the ceiling should bear to the length of the audience-room.

Donations received by the Board of Church Extension, during the month of June 1862.

Pby of Albany—Saratoga Springs ch	28 75
Pby of Hudson—Hopewell ch 10; Cochecton ch 3 25	13 25
Pby of Bedford—Bedford ch	19 57
Pby of Elizabethtown—New Providence ch	8 00
Pby of New Brunswick—Ewing ch	5 00
Pby of Philadelphia—Middletown and Media ch	5 00
Pby of Northumberland—Great Island ch	27 10
Pby of Baltimore—Taneytown ch	2 00
Pby of Carlisle—Sab sch of Gettysburg ch	2 73
Pby of Clarion—Licking ch, Male and Female Societies	10 00
Pby of Washington—West Alexander ch 18; Cross Creek ch (special) 20; Upper Ten Mile ch (special) 10	48 00
Pby of Susquehanna—Herrick ch 5; Towanda ch 7	12 00
Pby of Wooster—Unity ch 29 15; Jackson ch 8 84; Wooster ch 23 62	61 61
Pby of Zanesville—Madison ch	17 00
Pby of Western Reserve—Northfield ch	10 00
Pby of Miami—Mount Pleasant ch, from Wm Youatt	2 00
Pby of Sidney—West Liberty ch	8 00
Pby of Logansport—Frankfort ch	11 00
Pby of Rock River—Rock Run ch	4 00
Pby of Peoria—Elba Centre ch	1 00
Pby of Lake Superior—Ontonagon ch	5 39
Pby of Dubuque—Peosta ch	2 00
Pby of Toledo—Salem ch 2; Shiloh ch 2; West Irving ch 2; Sand Prairie ch 2; Big Grove ch 1 70	9 70
Pby of Iowa—Mount Pleasant ch	10 51
MISCELLANEOUS.
Mrs B F Spilman, Shawneetown, Ill. 1; Rev L Dodd, Toledo, Iowa 30 cts; Henry Jennings, Fredericsburg, Ohio, 5; Miss Mary Guy, Oxford, Ohio, 10	16 30

Total Receipts in June, $340 00
ARCHIBALD GAMBLE, Treasurer.

Ecclesiastical Record.

PASTORAL RELATION DISSOLVED.

The Rev. R. L. Stanton, D. D., has resigned the pastoral charge of the church at Chillicothe, Ohio, that he may accept the Professorship in Danville Theological Seminary.

The Rev. J. P. Conkey has resigned the pastoral charge of the Presbyterian church, Bellevue, Iowa.

The pastoral relation between the Rev. J. J. Hamilton and the Middle Tuscarora church is dissolved.

CALLS.

The Rev. S. G. Dunlap has accepted a call to the church of Monongahela City, Pa.

Mr. Kneeland P. Ketcham, a licentiate of the Presbytery of Long Island, has accepted a call to the churches of Tuckerton and Bass River, Presbytery of Burlington, N. J.

Mr. E. R. Donehoo, late of the Allegheny Seminary, has received a call to the Connellsville church, Pa.

Professor David Swing, of Miami University, has received a call to the North Presbyterian church, Chicago.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

Mr. Albert J. Winterick, late of Princeton Seminary, was ordained as an evangelist by the Presbytery of Luzerne, on the 18th of June, at Tunkhannock. His post-office address is White Haven, Pa.

Rev. J E. Annan was installed pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Cincinnati, Ohio, on the 29th of May.

Mr. John B. Dickey was ordained and installed pastor of the church at Livermore, by the Presbytery of Blairsville, on the 20th of May.

The Rev. John O. Proctor was installed pastor of the Presbyterian church of Dillsbury, Pa., by the Presbytery of Carlisle, on the 6th of June.

The Rev. Alexander S. Townbly was installed pastor of the State street church, by the Presbytery of Albany, on the 22d of June.

The Rev. J. S. Marquis was installed pastor of the United congregation of Bacon Ridge, East Springfield, and Richmond, at a late meeting of the Presbytery of Steubenville.

The Rev. Orr Lawson was installed pastor of the Sinking Valley and Logan's Valley churches, by the Presbytery of Huntingdon, on the 10th of June.

The Rev. William Prideaux was installed pastor of the church in Schellsburg, on the 29th of May.

Mr. Samuel Ramsay was ordained and installed pastor of the church at Tarentum, by the Presbytery of Allegheny, on the 17th of June.

Mr. Theodore Monod was ordained and installed pastor of the Second church of St. Anne, by the Presbytery of Chicago, on the 2d of July.

Mr. S. H. Weller was ordained and installed pastor of the church of Lane, by the Presbytery of Chicago, on the 9th of June.

Mr. W. Alexander was ordained and installed pastor of the churches of Lycoming, Lycoming Centre, and Linden, by the Presbytery of Northumberland, on Friday, the 10th of June.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESSES CHANGED.

Rev. F. H. Laird from Carlyle to Monroe, Illinois.

Rev. R. Brown from Wellsville to Hagerstown, Ohio.

Rev. Winthrop Bailey from Brewster's to Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Rev. W. A. Fleming from Johnstown, Pa., to Frostburg, Md.

Rev. J. W. McKean, Houghton, Mich.

Rev. James H. Gill from Oxford to Worthington, O.

Rev. E. N. Crane from New Vernon to Elizabeth, N. J.

Rev. Wm. M. Robinson from Newark, O., to Wellsburg, Va.

Rev. E. Bronson from Westfield to Laporte, Pa.

Rev. J. S. Gilmer from Sullivan, Ind., to Kennet Square, Pa.

Rev. Horace G. Hinsdale from Germantown to 214 West Logan Square, Philadelphia.

Rev. J. W. Larrimore has removed to Mount Pleasant, Iowa.

Rev. W. Alexander from Rock Spring, Va., to Newberry, Lycoming co., Pa.

LICENSURES.

Mr. J. Campbell Boyd, by the Presbytery of Albany.

Messrs. John D. McClintock and Henry B. Townsend, by the Central Presbytery of Philadelphia.

Mr. Hunter Cubet, by the Presbytery of Clarion.

John Milligan, by the Presbytery of Huntingdon.

DEATHS.

The Rev. Francis D. Ladd, pastor of the Penn Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, of typhoid fever, on the 7th of July, in the 42d year of his age.

The Rev. James S. Woods, D. D., pastor of the church at Lewistown, Pa., of apoplexy, on the 29th of June, in the 70th year of his age.

The Rev. Alonzo Church, D. D., of Athens, Georgia.

The Rev. Samuel Hibben, lately pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Peoria, Illinois, of typhoid fever, contracted during the discharge of his duties as chaplain in the army.

The Rev. James M. Brown, D. D., of Kanawha, Va., at Lewisburg, Va., on Sabbath, 8th of June.

The Rev. David McCay, of Callensburgh, of typhoid fever, contracted in the discharge of his duty as a chaplain in the army, on the 4th of June.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Rev. W. A. Fleming has engaged to supply the churches of Frostburg, Lonaconing and Barton, till the next meeting of their Presbytery, (Carlisle.)

The Rev. E. D. MacMaster, D. D., of Monticello, Indiana, proposes to issue a new monthly, to be called the Messianic Witness.

GENERAL VIEW OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH DURING THE YEAR ENDING MAY, 1862.

Synods in connection with the General Assembly,	35
Presbyteries,	175
Licentiates,	363
Candidates for the Ministry,	544
Ministers,	2859
Churches,	3686
Licensures,	94
Ordinations,	88
Installations,	117
Pastoral relations dissolved,	99
Churches organized,	36
Ministers received from other denominations,	12
Ministers dismissed to other denominations,	8
Churches received from other denominations,	9
Churches dismissed to other denominations,	3
Ministers deceased,	22
Churches dissolved,	14
Members added on examination,	8,804
Members added on certificate,	6,816
Total number of communicants reported,	303,289
Adults baptized,	2,282
Infants baptized,	10,372
Amount contributed for Congregational purposes,	$1,242,163
Amount contributed for the Boards,	$319,026
Amount contributed for Disabled Ministers' Fund,	$10,735
Amount contributed for Miscellaneous purposes,	$138,712
Whole amount contributed,	$1,710,636

FUND FOR DISABLED MINISTERS, AND THE NEEDY WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

The following amounts have been received since the last report, viz.

From Pittsburgh 1st church, Ohio Presbytery,		$154 06
" New York 1st ch, New York	do.	425 49
" Rutgers street ch,	do.	72 92
" Coatesville ch, New Castle	do.	8 00
" Franklin ch, Erie	do.	5 00
" Maryville ch, Marion	do.	8 50
" Milford Centre ch, do.	do.	8 50
" Frankford ch, Philadelphia 2d	do.	10 61
" Poke Run ch, Blairsville	do.	9 00
" Pulaski ch, Beaver	do.	3 00
" Rye ch, Connecticut	do.	13 65
" Wallabout ch, Nassau	do.	14 06
" Williamsburg ch, do.	do.	22 82
" West Liberty ch, O. Sidney	do.	6 00
" Marlborough ch, North River	do.	10 00
" Middle Hope ch,	do.	3 50
" Mifflintown and Lost Creek chs, Huntingdon	do.	45 00
" Ladies Missionary Society of Westminster ch, Baltimore,		9 00
" Miss Louisa Herwick of	do.	1 00
" A Clergyman's Widow, 3d ch, Newark,		5 00
" Anonymous, Pittsburgh, Pa.		5 00
" A Widow's mite, West Nottingham, Md.		2 00
" A Female member of Hillsboro' ch, Chillicothe Presbytery,		25 00
" Miss Mary Guy, Oxford, Ohio,		10 00
" A Lady of Delaware,		5 00
" North ch, Philada., Central Presbytery,		80 00
" Ashland ch, Northumberland	do.	2 00
" Bedford ch, Carlisle	do.	15 50
" " Sabbath-school		2 50
" West Spruce street ch, Philada.	do.	65 00
" " " Sabbath-school,		21 87
		$1008 48

GEO. H. VAN GELDER,
Treasurer Trustees of General Assembly,
Office, No. 320 Walnut Street.

Philadelphia, July 15th, 1862.

FORM OF BEQUEST FOR DISABLED MINISTERS OR FAMILIES OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

I give and bequeath to my executors hereinafter named, ——— dollars, in trust, nevertheless, that they shall, within ——— months after my decease, pay the same to George H. Van Gelder, Treasurer of the Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, or to his successor for the time being in said office, for the use of such disabled ministers, and their families, as the said, The Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, shall or may designate.

NOTA.—This form will do for a pecuniary bequest. If stocks, or land, or other property is given, the phraseology should be modified to suit the case.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN REGARD TO COLLECTIONS.

Whereas, Many of our churches do not contribute to our benevolent enterprises, and whereas, it is desirable to test the power of simultaneous effort; and whereas, an emergency has arisen, requiring the cooperation of all our churches to save our Boards from serious embarrassment, therefore,

Resolved, 1. That this Assembly earnestly request all our churches that have no fixed times for the purpose, to take up annual collections as follows, viz.

For the Board of Domestic Missions on the first Sabbath of November.

For the Board of Foreign Missions on the first Sabbath of January.

For the Board of Education on the first Sabbath of March.

For the Colportage Fund of the Board of Publication on the first Sabbath of May.

For the Board of Church Extension on the first Sabbath of July.

For the Disabled Ministers' Fund on the first Sabbath of September.

Resolved, 2. That when the annual collections cannot be taken up on the days above designated, it be recommended to take them up as soon thereafter as possible.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Domestic Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, Publication, and the Board of Church Extension, and is issued monthly in newspaper form, at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Packages to Churches, for any number of copies, at 25 cents per copy. Payment in advance.

Address, "Mr. Peter Walker, 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

POSTAGE, in Pennsylvania, 3 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance at the office of delivery.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered free of charge in New York, Baltimore, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling, and Pittsburgh.

AN OFFER.—Any missionary, colporteur, or other person, procuring new subscribers to the Record at 50 cents each, shall be entitled to 20 per cent. for each such subscription procured and prepaid.

CONTENTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.—Receipts in Summer, p. 137. Work in an important Field, p. 137. A Parsonage built—Increase of Population, p. 138. In Labours abundant: Word of Caution to Eastern Pastors, p. 138. Self-sustaining—Kind Farewell, p. 138. A Noble Example, p. 139. Picture of Missionary Life in the West, p. 139. Receipts, p. 139.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—Action of the General Assembly on the Report of the Board of Education, p. 140. Carroll College, Wisconsin, p. 140. The Ashmun Institute, p. 141. List of Presbyterian Colleges, p. 141. Highland University, p. 141. The Miller Academy, p. 142. Another Death in the Ministry, p. 142. Receipts, p. 142.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.—Recent Intelligence, p. 143. Missions in Africa, p. 143. Mission in Brazil: Religious Condition of the German colony, p. 144. Lodiana Mission: Missionary Labour for the Afghans, p. 145. The Work at Saharunpur, p. 147. China: Ningpo Mission: A Visit to the Sanpoh Station, p. 147. Wesleyans in the Fiji Islands, p. 148. Receipts, p. 148.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.—Our Distribution Fund, p. 149. An Appeal for the Soldiers, p. 149. An Acknowledgment, p. 149. Bread cast upon the Waters, p. 149. Our Books among the Sailors, p. 150. Contributions, p. 150. Thanks for a Sabbath-school Library, p. 150. Receipts, p. 150.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.—"I'm in Debt," p. 151. Romish Churches, p. 151. The Sounding Properties of Rooms, p. 151. Receipts, p. 151.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Ecclesiastical Record, p. 152.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME XIII. No. 9. | PHILADELPHIA, SEPTEMBER, 1862. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

MISSION ROOMS,

No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. T. L. JANEWAY, D. D.
Treasurer—SAMUEL D. POWEL.

LETTERS relating to Missionary Appointments and other operations of the Board, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 910 Arch street, Philadelphia.

CONTRIBUTIONS should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to

WILLIAM RANKIN, JR., Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

TROUBLES ON THE BORDER.

Missouri.

Dear Brother—I hereby send you another quarterly report. During the last quarter I have been permitted, in the good providence of God, to labour for the upbuilding of our Zion as heretofore. Considering the critical and troublesome times, our little church keeps up remarkably well. We generally have good and attentive congregations. But I hardly know what is yet to become of us in Missouri. We are surrounded on all sides by guerillas. There is a mighty shaking of the waters. All the militia have been ordered to enlist. This makes a great stir through the state.

A good many are going South, and perhaps a good many into guerilla bands. Truly the terrible judgments of the Almighty are hanging over us for our sins; but still I hope that God will protect our government, and it will yet take a higher stand amongst the nations of the earth than it has ever done. If we could only see the entire church and the nation duly humbled, we would soon see the end of our troubles.

I feel sometimes that I would like to be either located North, away from so much confusion, or have a chaplaincy in the army. You in the East can read about the troubles of the West, but still you cannot altogether realize the state of things out here. I am troubled for our Zion. The most popular minister of our church in St. Louis is now in prison for his disloyalty. Well, this is right. I think ministers are subject to severe ecclesiastical discipline when they renounce their allegiance to their government. I look upon it as a great sin, and it has a telling effect for evil on the world.

Perhaps you may think this is a strange report for a missionary to send to you. The exigencies of the times is my only apology. I would be very thankful if you would send me a draft at as early a day as you possibly can.

Yours as ever.

HOPING AGAINST HOPE.

Iowa.

Rev and Dear Sir—The commission I received from your Board was for eight months, dating from the 1st of March of the current year. Half of the time having expired, I send you, therefore, a report of services rendered by me during that time. I have preached every Sabbath, and, with few exceptions, twice every Sabbath, riding eight and ten miles to fulfil my appointments, having three different preaching points, West Liberty, Attalipa, and Independence schoolhouse. I feel sometimes encouraged, and again discouraged. Sometimes my congregations are good, and again a little unfavourable weather thins them off to a discouraging number. The church is small, having a membership of only thirty-four, and these scattered over a considerable territory. We have three elders in our session; two of these are in the army, and now prisoners in the far South. My whole field may be considered missionary ground, where various isms are blinding and deceiving the people. Last year the New-school had three preachers in this field; now they are all gone for want of support. They built two small chapels, one at West Liberty and the other at Attalipa. They first planted themselves here when the railroad was extended through this region, and built up three small towns, (Attalipa, West Liberty, and Dounay,) in each of which they stationed a minister, and seemed for a while as though they would take the ground. Whether they will abandon this field altogether or not, I cannot tell. Should they do so, there might be an addition of some eight or ten members to our little church. Time will tell. There is quite a large family, or rather several families, from the same, who have heretofore cast their influence with them, but who have determined to go with us. Several are professors of religion. The mother of all was formerly an Old-school Presbyterian, and says she wishes to get home again.

The war and politics exert rather an unfavourable influence on the cause of religion here. There are roots of bitterness springing up in the community. Neighbours are jealous of one another, and express themselves harshly of each other, accusing one another of secessionism or abolitionism, and threatening personal violence. I have thought wickedness was on the increase. Sabbath-breaking is alas too common. Intemperance cannot be suppressed, but will show itself in spite of all that can be done to put it down. Profaneness and infidelity abound, whilst the church is suffering lamentably from a worldly spirit. Verily we have fallen upon evil times. Preaching seems to accomplish but little, and the church does not exert that influence for good which she might. O for times of refreshing from the presence of the Lord!

I attended Presbytery a few weeks since, and rode sixty miles there and back to assist a brother at a sacramental meeting.

The remuneration for my services from the people is very small, owing to the distressing times. They will not be able to pay even this till fall, or after harvest, and crops are got to market. The consequence is, I have received almost nothing since last November. But for the Board, I and my family would suffer. As it is, we find it pinching work to get along. I have had to get some of the absolute necessaries of life on credit, promising to pay this month, having good hope of help from the Board.

WORKING ON AMID DISCOURAGEMENTS.

Iowa.

Dear Brother—Another quarter's report is already due, but I have not before seen a leisure hour sufficient to enable me to pen it. I would love to record for our mutual encouragement a special work of divine grace in our midst since I last wrote; but alas! it is far otherwise with us. While some are well wishers to Zion, and would even be glad to witness her prosperity, and are found regularly attending upon her ordinances, still they are not wrestling Jacobs and prevailing Israels. And the multitude, like Gallio, seem to care for none of these things. They are carried away with worldly pleasure, fond of parties and balls, of revelry and mirth, or are so much taken up with the entire war movement, with all its prostration of other business, making them "careful and troubled about many things" for a livelihood, as greatly to interfere with their attention to religious things. But men forget that for all their recklessness and mirth God will bring them to judgment. While the true principle is, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Last week, the week of the "World's prayer-meeting," I tried to help encourage the spirit of united prayer, and to strengthen religious principle among us by a series of meetings at Glenwood. It was only partially attended, and partially successful. Evening dances and military drills drew larger crowds than the house of prayer.

On Tuesday evening, the subject of our meditations being "Home objects for prayer; the conversion of the ungodly; the cessation of intemperance and immorality, and the spread of vital religion in our families," &c., I took occasion, after stating the importance, duty, and privilege of seeking the conversion of the ungodly in our households and all around us, to speak plainly and pointedly of the great hinderances to their conversion in the intemperance that some encouraged in our midst, and in the immoralities of our dancing parties, vulgarity, profanity, and Sabbath desecration that prevailed among us, and that if we would have vital religion revived and prevail among us, we must set our faces like flints againsts all these abounding evils. Judge, then, alike of my success and my reward, when in the next issue of our county paper, on the Saturday following, the editor, after highly complimenting a "quadrille party," closes his paragraph, "We hear that the religious world, as usual, takes exception to these innocent pastimes; but the good sense of the age is now too strong for the false dogmas of bigotry, and for the irrational speculations of superstition."

The dying out of the old year and the ushering in of the new is a season well fitted, one would think, to lead men to pious reflections and grateful recollections, and to the forming of higher and nobler resolutions for the future; but instead of this, many seem to think it a season peculiarly fitted for dissipation and frivolity. "But wisdom is justified of her children." A life of faith upon the Son of God will, in both time and eternity, be satisfactorily and fully rewarded.

There has been nothing of special interest that occurred in my field during the last quarter touching my labours. My own health kept remarkably good the whole year, enabling me to go through a great deal of wear and tear until the month of December, when, upon the first fall of snow, I took a severe cold, and was almost entirely laid aside for several weeks from active duties. Still I met my appointments on the Sabbath, although amidst pain and weakness, except one at Sydney, which was in the midst of a snow storm. I am now, except a cold, nearly in my usual health, but I feel it will be necessary for me not to expose myself too much this winter. Spared, however, to begin the new year, I feel like dedicating myself anew to God, and with higher aims to set out anew in his service. The health of my family is at present generally good, and although we find money and groceries very scarce, we have enough to eat and drink and wear, and fuel to keep us warm. So that we are called upon continually to praise the Lord for his goodness. December was a very pleasant winter month, but the last week has been bitterly cold—thermometer 20 degrees below zero, and plenty of snow on the ground in all its fleecy whiteness, and more still coming.

During the past year, by making various turns, I have succeeded in collecting for the Board of Domestic Missions twenty-three dollars, all in the new Presbytery called by the last Synod of Southern Iowa "The Missouri River Presbytery." For the Board of Foreign Missions I have received ten dollars, and this from the church of Sydney. At my other appointments where I made effort, money was so scarce that there seemed no willingness to do anything for this object.

Very truly yours.

PROSPECTS BRIGHTENING.

Iowa.

Dear Brother—By a glance at the Almanac I see it is "high time" to send you another report. Ah me! how rapidly time flies. Soon with each of us it will have rolled its fleeting moments into the unfathomable gulf of eternity. I feel every month and year that I am hurrying forward with unerring certainty to this great goal of human existence. While I see there is a wide field of labour and a vast work to accomplish, at the same time I feel that my stock of physical life is being gradually and constantly exhausted; and in the Master's own wise and good time "the silver cord will be loosed and the golden bowl be broken—the pitcher will be broken at the fountain, and the wheel broken at the cistern." But without any anxiety about the future, I desire daily and hourly to fill up well my appointed time, following just where my Divine Leader directs. "'Tis mine to obey, 'tis his to provide."

My general health is about as good as usual, although I begin to feel the effect of incessant wear and tear. The health of my family, too, at present, is favourable. Within the last three weeks, we have all had colds, coughs, and sore throats—our son Willie suffering most from his peculiar and frequent attacks of asthma. But, under a very kind Providence, we are all geting along encouragingly. Although everything does not go on "swimmingly," and we have always "to rejoice with trembling," yet since the year commenced, up to the present time, we have found in temporal, if not in spiritual things, another side to the picture—a brighter side. All providential events seem to turn out more favourably and encouragingly than in some times gone by. The Board has sent us timely relief. Friends have kindly remembered us, and sent us unexpected and choice favours. God has remembered us graciously. In several instances he has opened hearts and turned them upon us, and thus we have been led to rejoice and praise him for his goodness. Only to-day we have had another season of rejoicing. Our dear friends in my former Spruce Creek charge knowing that, under the peculiar circumstances of western life of late, we have got along as economically as possible, and have used but comparatively few groceries, of their own free will and good pleasure filled a nice box with many such useful articles and some "luxuries," both for us and for our children, which was, without exception, the finest treat in that line of anything we ever had, and all too without any charge to us, even for freight. It is but a sequel to their former unostentatious kindnesses. In view of such favours, unworthy of them as we feel ourselves to be, we cannot help but "thank the Lord and take courage." And now, if the Board can only help me meet an obligation for money due the middle of the present month, I shall feel additionally unburdened and rejoiced.

As to spirituals, we have not yet had any of our spring communions, and do not expect to hold them until after the meeting of our Presbytery, which meets in its united capacity, (formerly composed of the Omaha and Council Bluffs Presbyteries) under the name of "The Presbytery of the Missouri River," on the 11th inst., at Council Bluffs. May our meeting be fraught with blessing to all this part of our beloved Zion.

At Glenwood the people have not attended upon religious ordinances so well during the past winter as formerly, partly from the inclemency of the weather, and partly from their being more taken up with the excitements of the day than with religion. At Pacific City the attendance is very good for the size of our little town, the house being well filled every evening I preach here. At Sydney and Plattsmouth I have also been encouraged, and at the latter place especially. They are now making special effort to try to build a Presbyterian church there this year. I preached to them again on the subject last January, and argued the case with them. I stated my belief that they could build, and that the Lord would help them if they would only apply the will and the muscle, and "go forward." They immediately set to work, and our subscription has run up to some $700 or $800 in materials, work, &c., and it may reach at last about $1000. The ladies set to work in earnest, formed a society of thirty or more members, meet every week and are much encouraged in preparing to help put the last tack in the carpet; while the Church Extension Board have very kindly promised us $250 to aid in the good work; so that this year, I trust, we shall witness a good church built; and a church is badly needed there. For the last four years I have had to preach anywhere and everywhere, and yet our little church has more than doubled its numbers; and I may say this is the case with each of my little churches.

THE LAW OF BENEFICENCE.

"Nor did he intend to impose a burden, but to confer a privilege. And he has so shaped the requirement, because unwilling to exclude the poor from a needful means of grace. He who was anointed to preach the gospel to the poor, would not so frame his system as to cut off the poor from the channels through which he conveys the riches of his grace; and most impressive is the assurance which he has given us of this, in the value which he stamped on the widow's farthing. While sitting in the temple, and watching the people casting their gifts into the treasury, and after some had made princely donations, he saw a poor widow come and drop in two mites, which make a farthing. That went to his heart; and with solemn emphasis in the use of that 'Verily,' or Amen, which only he ever used in such a way, he asserted that the value of the widow's gift exceeded the sum total of all the rest; and why? Because there was more of sacrifice made, more of benevolent heart expended, and so a deeper and richer participation of sanctifying experience had, which is the ultimate end of all gifts."

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF RECEIPTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Receipts into the Treasury during the month of July, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Albany—Esperance ch 5; Bethlehem ch 7 17; Little Falls ch 9 42 — 21 59

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of Bedford—Jewett ch — 45 87

Pby of New York—Mission chapel of Fifth Avenue and 19th st ch, N. Y. — 2 10

Pby of Nassau—Astoria ch — 75 00

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Susquehanna—Sab sch of Towanda ch — 20 00

Pby of Luzerne—Mauch Chunk ch 25; Pittston ch 58, of which 8 from the Sab school — 83 00

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia—Ninth ch, Phila 39, of which 2 from J F Gayley, M. D.; Sab sch of West Spruce Street ch, Phila 40 71; Ridley ch 6 63 — 86 34

Pby of Philadelphia Central—North ch, mo con colls in part 22; Central ch, from a friend 3 — 25 00

Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Norristown 1st ch — 30 00

Pby of Huntingdon—Bellefonte ch — 61 00

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore—Govane chapel 15; Warren ch (Taylor's Grove) 10 — 25 00

Pby of Carlisle—Schellsburg ch 5; McConnellsburg ch 33 50; Wells' Valley ch 16 60 — 55 10

Pby of Lewes—Monokin ch — 21 04

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Redstone—Mount Washington ch — 3 00

Pby of Ohio—Lawrenceville ch 31 34; Temperanceville ch 8 65 — 39 99

SYNOD OF ALLEGHENY.

Pby of Beaver—Westfield ch 20; Clarksville ch 10; Sharon ch 5 — 35 00

Pby of Allegheny City—Manchester ch — 34 50

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Steubenville—Island Creek ch — 17 00

Pby of New Lisbon—Newton ch 12, of which 5 16 from J Russell; Deerfield ch 15 — 27 00

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Marion—Rev W B Faris — 6 25

Pby of Zanesville—Clarke ch 9; Cambridge ch 14 — 23 00

Pby of Wooster—Holmesville ch — 9 37

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.

Pby of Michigan—Plymouth 1st ch — 15 00

Pby of Maumee—Rev E B Raffensperger — 10 00

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Chillicothe—French ch — 4 00

Pby of Miami—Dayton 3d ch 31; Springfield 2d ch 58 75 — 89 75

Pby of Oxford—Bethel ch — 10 00

SYNOD OF INDIANA.

Pby of New Albany—German ch Jackson county — 2 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Lake—Little Elkhart ch 3 90; Millersburg ch 1 10; Constantine ch 10 56 — 15 56

Pby of Muncie—Hopewell ch — 3 00

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Palestine—Charleston ch — 30 00

Pby of Sangamon—First ch Springfield — 50 00

Pby of Bloomington—Deer Creek ch — 5 00

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.

Pby of Rock River—Franklin Grove ch 2; Sterling ch 15 62 — 17 62

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.

Pby of Dane—Platteville German ch 2 10; Blue Mounds ch 4 — 6 10

SYNOD OF IOWA.

Pby of Dubuque—German ch Dubuque — 25 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of Potosi—Ironton ch — 6 00

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.

Pby of Transylvania—Draft on Treasurer of Pby — 150 00

SYNOD OF PACIFIC.

Pby of California—Calvary ch, San Francisco — 306 82

From churches, $1,492 00

LEGACIES.

Mrs H W Condit, deceased, late of Oswego, New York, 200; John Ledya, dec'd, Pa. 180, less tax and exchange 11 28=168 72; Miss Sallie Jewett, dec'd, late of Wilkesbarre, Pa., legacy and interest 120; James Smith, dec'd, Bucyrus, Ohio 80; Bequest of Miss Ellen McCullough, Mercer, Pa. 5; Patterson Estate, Pittsburg, Pa. 11 59 — 585 31

MISCELLANEOUS.

"From a Friend 50;" Miss Mary Guy, Oxford, Ohio 10; Mrs A H——h, Chicago 10; Rev G D Stewart, West Point, Iowa 5; Interest 30; A H H 3; W W Anan 5; Miss H E Sneed, Mo. 50 cents — 113 50

Total Receipts in July, $2,190 81

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

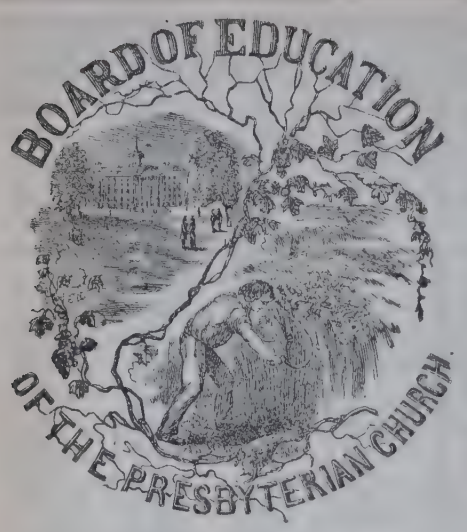
TABLE—Showing the amount of Money contributed to the Board of Domestic Missions, from March 1, 1861, to March 1, 1862, by Presbyteries and Synods in connection with the office in Philadelphia, and the amount due or paid in return to them, by the Board, during the same period, for the support of their Missionaries.

SYNODS.	PRESBYTERIES.	Number of Ministers.	Number of Churches.	No. of Ch'ch Members.	Contributed to the Board.	Received from the Board.
ALBANY.	Loudonderry,	23	11	1483	$349 89	$431 15
	Troy,	17	14	2146	993 93	181 45
	Albany,	45	34	4928	1,222 72	638 81
	Mohawk,	8	7	1036	361 14	304 44
		98	66	9543	2,927 68	1,635 85
BUFFALO.	Ogdensburgh,	8	7	854	84 25	254 16
	Genesee River,	16	13	1290	323 31	176 89
	Buffalo City, *	8	10	819	51 50	149 03
	Rochester City,	18	14	2011	270 50	435 42
		50	44	4974	731 56	1,015 41
NEW YORK.	Hudson	22	23	2342	429 44	189 17
	North River,	18	12	1793	705 11
	Bedford,	12	13	1185	587 88	162 25
	Long Island,	23	20	2638	495 46	143 75
	New York,	52	27	7256	15,239 78	2,893 17
	New York 2d,	17	12	2164	1,192 78	1,004 17
	Connecticut,	13	8	803	203 69	238 60
	Nassau,	27	17	3388	1,511 46	1,098 60
		187	132	21,589	20,360 60	5,729 71
NEW JERSEY.	Elizabethtown,	28	16	3027	1,008 42	161 16
	Passaic,	20	13	2746	1,780 41	258 33
	Newton,	26	26	3557	842 02	878 82
	New Brunswick,	43	20	4788	1,119 10	104 44
	West Jersey,	19	23	2097	861 30	941 24
	Raritan,	15	18	2258	411 18	160 11
	Susquehanna,	11	25	936	113 10	331 24
	Luzerne,	23	28	2207	935 14	1,464 79
	Burlington,	10	12	825	205 65	617 25
	Monmouth,	15	14	1589	262 18	370 14
		210	195	24,130	7,598 50	4,787 52
PHILADELPHIA.	Philadelphia,	34	19	4855	1,643 78	556 25
	Philadelphia Central,	29	18	3303	1,656 88	1,085 42
	Philadelphia 2d,	27	32	3115	945 09	856 67
	New Castle,	25	25	3427	828 66	233 33
	Donegal,	24	26	3048	477 07	337 09
	Huntingdon,	39	46	6572	1,661 64	317 35
	Northumberland.	26	41	3857	836 44	651 18
		204	207	28,177	7,846 05	4,037 29
BALTIMORE.*	Baltimore,	41	31	3210	2,574 13	1,229 77
	Carlisle,	38	51	5082	1,687 15	320 00
	Lewes,	12	18	784	76 38	822 92
	Potomac,	15	13	1248	348 00	661 62
		106	113	10,324	4,685 64	3,034 31
PITTSBURG.	Redstone,	18	30	3020	615 93	348 88
	Ohio,	34	32	5110	1,416 87	460 48
	Blairsville,	21	23	3348	385 13	188 92
	Clarion,	14	29	2932	190 52	267 67
	Saltsburg,	24	38	4642	293 97	147 08
		111	152	19,052	2,902 42	1,513 03
ALLEGHENY.	Allegheny,	15	32	3041	261 09
	Beaver,	15	16	2459	159 28	83 33
	Erie,	17	32	2884	269 78	159 71
	Allegheny City,	21	16	2388	430 80	232 50
		68	96	11,173	1,114 86	475 54
WHEELING.	Washington,	37	40	5386	1,033 24	428 82
	Steubenville,	21	32	3330	322 55	40 00
	New Lisbon,	17	28	2889	167 98	33 93
	St. Clairsville,	18	30	2724	169 45	107 70
		93	130	14,329	1,693 22	610 45
OHIO.	Columbus,	18	20	1509	90 83	79 16
	Marion,	16	35	1877	133 18	179 88
	Zanesville,	30	37	3549	322 54	179 69
	Richland,	19	29	2442	191 63
	Wooster,	16	20	1807	266 46	139 23
	Hocking,	4	14	552	112 78	78 89
		103	155	11,736	1,157 42	654 35
SANDUSKY.	Michigan,	9	14	573	70 04	574 75
	Western Reserve,	5	9	514	76 96	2 17
	Maumee,	6	13	518	55 05	606 34
	Findlay,	8	22	1288	118 05	159 44
		28	58	2893	320 10	1,369 70
CINCINNATI.	Chillicothe,	17	31	2556	165 48	105 75
	Miami,	20	22	2404	427 36	25 00
	Cincinnati,	30	27	2498	280 90	196 52
	Oxford,	14	17	1231	150 15
	Sidney,	16	20	2017	163 28	428 34
		97	117	10,676	1,187 17	828 61
INDIANA.	New Albany,	11	20	1294	82 25	183 33
	Vincennes,	13	21	1147	109 25	118 75
	Madison,	10	16	1167	193 90	158 67
	Indianapolis,	15	13	1419	205 80
	White Water,	11	20	1654	178 72	77 22
	Synodical,				29 00
		60	90	6681	795 92	538 00
NORTHERN INDIANA.	Logansport,	13	21	1365	104 49	153 33
	Lake,	12	14	922	110 83	349 33
	Fort Wayne,	11	28	1193	178 00	708 69
	Crawfordsville,	14	22	1405	87 05	391 67
	Muncie,	15	14	937	55 51	187 50
	Synodical,				39 50
		65	101	5822	575 38	1,780 52
ILLINOIS.	Kaskaskia,	4	13	421	32 60	210 41
	Palestine,	13	19	1080	25 00	124 16
	Sangamon,	16	21	1579	252 07	468 00
	Peoria,	20	24	1381	688 54	319 44
	Hillsboro',	11	17	778	85 50	204 16
	Bloomington,	20	32	1297	144 00	727 50
	Saline,	8	21	840	40 00	460 42
	Synodical,				5 59
		92	147	7386	1,223 30	2,514 09
CHICAGO.	Schuyler,	26	41	2358	281 09	1,422 32
	Rock River,	19	34	1695	177 01	1,139 00
	Chicago,	32	26	2373	311 17	2,379 75
	Synodical,				11 60
		77	101	6526	780 87	4,941 07
WISCONSIN.	Dane,	11	18	724	68 70	856 00
	Milwaukie,	9	9	444	130 51	479 15
	Winnebago,	17	22	807	163 06	2,383 94
		37	49	1995	362 27	3,719 09
ST. PAUL.	St. Paul,	8	9	297	114 35	1,478 20
	Chippewa,	10	14	295	40 10	2,081 37
	Lake Superior,	3	3	78	7 00	623 83
	Owatonna,	5	5	127	55 35	798 54
		26	31	797	216 80	4,983 94
IOWA.	Cedar,	14	26	1265	245 00	1,103 75
	Toledo,	6	14	502	38 57	564 86
	Dubuque,	17	37	1212	189 18	1,[illegible] 78
	Sioux City.	3	8	120	24 50	581 25
		40	85	3099	497 25	4,144 64
SOUTHERN IOWA.	Iowa,	11	18	1288	107 42	404 00
	Des Moines.	9	16	591	18 03	732 41
	Missouri River,	13	17	434	57 38	1,751 53
	Fairfield,	12	19	977	52 38	512 07
		45	70	3240	235 21	3,400 01
PACIFIC.	California,	9	4	670	136 25	729 17
	Oregon,	7	8	154	65 15	1,031 25
	Stockton,	3	3	83	18 80	577 50
	Benicia,	6	6	156	77 00	1,001 67
	Puget Sound,				17 00	804 17
		25	21	1043	314 20	4,233 76

* Winchester Presb'y omitted.



No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Officers of the Board.

Charles Hodge, D. D., President.
John McDowell, D. D.,
Cyrus Dickson, D. D.,
George Sharswood, LL.D., } Vice-Presidents.
William Chester, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.
R. Watts, Assistant, and Recording Secretary.
William Main, Treasurer.
Wilfred Hall,
Samuel H. Fulton, } Auditors.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies, and Colleges, may be addressed to either of the Secretaries, Rev. Dr. CHESTER, or Rev. R. WATTS, No. 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of Money may be made to WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer, No. 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

THE DANGER OF FORGETTING THE BOARDS.

In days of great public excitement, such as the present, when the members of our churches are called upon to discharge unwonted duties, there is considerable danger lest one claim should be allowed to interfere with another—lest one duty should absorb all attention, and others which are of momentous importance should be omitted or forgotten. This is especially the case just now, when the claims of humanity, appealing in trumpet tones from our military hospitals, and the scenes of suffering on the battle-field, reach the hearts of our loyal citizens, and awaken their noblest sympathies. Loyalty is a virtue, a Christian virtue, and it is incumbent on us to display it. So, also, do we recognise, to the fullest extent, our obligations to minister to the necessities of those noble men, who, at the call of their country, have perilled their lives in the high places of the field. All honour to them! Let every one who can even moisten their parched lips with a cup of cold water, as well as those whose means enable them to provide more luxurious comforts, minister to their wants, and do all in their power to ease their couch of pain. This is as it should be. Too much has not been done by the members of our churches for their sick and suffering brethren who have been stricken down by disease in the public service, or who have suffered from the perils of the battle-field. The scenes of agony which are yet to be witnessed in the duration of the contest, will demand a continuation of the Christian sympathy and benevolence of our people. By all means let this work go on. Let wisdom and liberality go hand and hand together in this good work, and every Christian patriot will encourage these manifestations, which are a blessing to those who give, as well as to the recipients of the favours which are bestowed.

Still, as has been said, there is danger lest the urgency and the novelty of these pressing claims should be permitted to occupy the minds of our people to the exclusion or comparative neglect of other duties which are of paramount importance. The discharge of one duty is no apology for the neglect of another. Contributing to the service of the temple, did not discharge the donor from the obligations of the fifth commandment; and our gifts for relieving the distresses of our suffering brethren, will not free us from our responsibilities in connection with the church of God.

There is a temptation to which our people are exposed, and it becomes us to be aware of its character, and to guard against it. Duties do not lose their claims upon us because we may have recognised them for a considerable period. It is as much our duty to sustain the church of God during the present year, and to uphold the great agencies by which the gospel may be spread abroad, as ever it has been. True, our land is convulsed by the terrible struggle of a civil war, and this war presents unwonted duties to our people. These duties are, of course, to be performed; but the duties connected with the sanctuary, the ministry, and the spread of the gospel, are not to be ignored or set aside, as if they had lost their former character. Novelty has attractions for many minds, and some who have been contributing to our Boards for several years may be tempted to neglect these agencies, and to direct their liberality into another and newer channel. Should this be the case to any extent, the result would be deplorable. Should the seat-rents of our churches be left unpaid; should our missionaries in the great West be left destitute of their wonted support; should the education of the ministry be undervalued, the prospect is sufficient to alarm even unreflecting minds. Think of ministers being obliged to retire from their charges; of churches left destitute; of neighbourhoods deprived of the preaching of the word; of schools and academies closed, and earnest-minded candidates for the ministry arrested in their course, because of a want of due consideration on the part of the professing people of God.

Of all the calamities which could befall our land, this would be one of the most distressing; and the fact that the famine of the word had been occasioned by the thoughtlessness and dereliction of duty on the part of the professed people of God, would aggravate the affliction. In the case of the Board of Education, a failure to sustain the candidates that have already been received, would prove most disastrous. If our churches fail to replenish the treasury of the Board, the neglect would be felt immediately in our Colleges and Seminaries. The Board cannot sustain the beneficiaries under its care unless the required funds are supplied; and Colleges and Seminaries cannot, without the promised aid, continue the education of the noble band who have given themselves to the service of the church, if the church should forget her duty to them. Accordingly, it becomes the people of God to recognise the truth, that in these days of darkness and difficulty the church is put upon her trial. The prospect of our citizens rising up to the measure of their duty as dangers increase in our country, invigorates the bosom of the patriot, and encourages him to deeds of nobler daring. So let it be in the house of God. Instead of withholding contributions altogether, or reducing their amount, under the plea of being obliged to attend to extra calls of a civil character, let our people show their conviction of the fact that the blessing of all others which the land requires, is an adequate supply of thoroughly educated and faithful ministers of the word.

THE NECESSITY FOR AN EDUCATED MINISTRY.

The duties which devolve on Christian ministers, as expounders of the Bible, and the obstacles which they are called to encounter in the defence of the truth, render it necessary that they should be men of high literary culture. The Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are written in dead languages, and although they are translated into the vernacular tongues of modern civilized nations, still there are peculiar turns of thought and modes of expression in the phraseology of the original Hebrew and Greek, which cannot be exhibited in any translation. Allusions are frequent to the religious systems of pagan antiquity, to history, geography, chronology, and to the philosophical principles which prevailed in the East and among the Greeks and Romans, all of which must be unintelligible to the uneducated reader. It follows, as a necessary consequence, that the man who is unacquainted with the original languages on which Divine Revelation has been given, must feel himself to be dependent on those who either are, or who profess to be, able to understand these tongues. Accordingly, he can have no comfortable assurance that when he adopts a given rendering of any word or phrase he may not be in error. It is true he may have recourse to the learned labours of those men who are recognised as scholars in the church, but even here he is unable to weigh with due intelligence the reasons which have induced the authorities that he follows to adopt the rendering which they approve. A settled conviction on these points operated among the leading men of the Free Church of Scotland in resisting a vigorous effort that was made, in the days of its early history, to lower the standard of ministerial education. In the Highlands, and in many districts of the Western Coast, there were fervent appeals made to Presbyteries, praying that young men who had not finished their curriculum should be licensed and ordained in order to enter at once on the work of the ministry. It was argued that many stations would be lost to the Free Church if they were not occupied at once, that thus the church would lose ground, and the extent of her territory would become contracted; that it was the duty of the church to seize upon every position where a handful of adherents presented themselves, and if men could not be had who were fully educated, the standard should be lowered for a time, in order that the necessities of the church should be supplied. The question to be decided was, whether it was better to have a large number of weak nominal churches, not self-sustaining, yet recognized as Free Churches, with pastors of imperfect education, of whom it must be expected that numbers would remain stationary and be of comparatively little use in the ministry, or, on the other hand, keep up the standard of ministerial training at a proper level, and by means of Scripture readers, the agency of ruling elders and other pious men, foster as many of these missionary charges as possible, until a regular provision was made for building them up into vigorous churches by thoroughly educated men. The Free Church did not hesitate as to which course to adopt. The college curriculum was not shortened, for it was seen that the church once placed on the descending scale would have great difficulty in resisting the influences which would be applied to carry it down to a still lower level. Instead of lowering the standard, provision was made for additional studies which had not been imperative before the disruption of the National Assembly; and accordingly the course of education was revised and extended so as to comprehend those studies that are rendered imperative in consequence of the progress of science in modern times. The present condition of the pastorate, and the prosperous condition of the congregations in the Free Church, attest the wisdom of the men who controlled the councils of the Assembly.

While an extensive course of intellectual training is required to qualify the preacher of the gospel for expounding the word of God, it should not be forgotten that the enemies of divine truth are unwearied in their efforts to assail the Scriptures by arguments drawn from the varied sources of ancient and modern learning. If ministers of the gospel and believers in the Bible were content to remain uneducated, the skeptical opposers of Christianity will not follow their example. They have recourse to every branch of science. They master the languages of antiquity; they become familiar with history and chronology; and from every department of human knowledge do they endeavour to draw weapons wherewith to assault the word of God. At one time the constitution of the universe and the theory of the motions of the heavenly bodies was relied on as disproving the divine origin of the Bible. The battle of the evidences has been fought on the field of metaphysics and morals, of astronomy, chronology, and history. Wild speculators in geology have congratulated themselves that the stones of the field could be used as missiles against Divine Revelation. At present the most cunning, and at the same time the most determined opponents of revealed truth, make scarcely any allusion whatever to the Bible. They spend their strength in proving that the human family, as well as other species of the animal creation, could not be descended from one head or one centre. They are aware that if they could establish this point, the scheme of salvation as revealed in the Bible must be set aside. The covenant of works, original sin, and the kindred doctrines which are connected with the headship and fall of Adam, on the one hand; the covenant of grace, the headship of the Redeemer, and the justification of his people on the ground of his righteousness, on the other hand, would all necessarily fall to the ground, as having no actual foundation in fact.

Accordingly it is imperative on the ministers of the word that they should be linguists, historians, metaphysicians, and students of natural science. If the enemies of divine truth will study theology in order to oppose its doctrines, it is incumbent on the church to see to it that the ministry shall always stand in the front rank among the cultivated minds of the age. The man of science must be met on his own ground, when he would pervert the facts of nature and constrain the works of God to speak in opposition to his word. It is obvious, however, that an ignorant or a semi-educated ministry is unequal to such a task, and therefore it is incumbent on the church to have her sentinels posted on the watchtower to sound the note of warning, and her soldiers ready to do battle for the cause of truth whenever it may be assailed.

MINISTERIAL SUPPORT.

There is an intimate connection between the support which a church may provide for her ministry, and the readiness of parents to expend their means for the education of their sons for the sacred office. This subject is attracting much attention in Great Britain and Ireland at the present time. As an illustration of the views of our brethren on the other side of the Atlantic, we subjoin a portion of the closing address of the Moderator of the late Assembly of the Free Church of Scotland.

"On two points I intended to address this Assembly. As to the missionary cause, in which I feel the deepest interest, I must leave that, if God spare me, to the sermon with which I shall open the next General Assembly. To the other, therefore, the minister cause, my fathers and brethren, in taking leave of you, give me liberty now fully and frankly to speak. I will speak frankly, and I'll honestly tell you the reason why. I have had it long in my head, and I have had it long in my heart. I am thankful that I am in circumstances now, by the kindness of my congregation and other things, to speak out my mind, and no low-minded man or woman can suspect me of any personal or mercenary motives in this matter. Therefore I intend to speak out fully and frankly in this matter. Now, I take leave to say that the livings of our ministers are inadequate. I take leave to say more—I take leave to say that the livings of ministers are quite inadequate to their position, and to their inevitable and unavoidable outlay. I take leave very distinctly and very expressly to say that; and what is the result of that? What shall be, and will be, the result of it? the greatest calamity that can befall the church, far worse than persecution, and far worse than oppression. All hail to the storm, that, with God's blessing and good management, drives the ship on, instead of driving her back. The calamity which I dread, next to the withdrawal of the Divine blessing, the greatest of all, is that the rising talent, and genius, and energy of our country, may leave the church for other professions. (Hear, hear.) This is what moves me to speak, and what I have now to express on this subject. 'A scandalous maintenance,' as Matthew Henry says, 'makes a scandalous ministry.' I'll give you another sentence, which, though it is my own, is pregnant with truth—is as pregnant with truth, in my opinion, as Matthew Henry's, 'that the poverty of the manse will develope itself in the poverty of the pulpit.' I have no doubt about it; and that is the evil I am anxious to avoid. Genteel poverty—may you never know it—genteel poverty, to which some doom themselves, but to which ministers are doomed, is the greatest evil under the sun. Give me liberty to wear a frieze coat, and I will thank no one for black. Give me liberty to rear my sons to be labourers, and my daughters to be domestic servants, and the manse, in contentment and piety, will enjoy the sun that shines on many a pious and lowly house; but to place a man in circumstances where he is expected to be generous and hospitable; to have a hand as open as his heart is to the poor; to give to his family a liberal education; to breed them up according to what they call genteel life—to place a man in these circumstances, and expect that from him, and deny him the means of doing it all, is, but for the hope of heaven, to embitter existence itself. (Cheers.) I know some people do not like to hear of them, and those who like least to hear of them, need most to hear of them. There are many people like an honest man belonging to Aberdeenshire, who once was asked what he thought of the Free Church. 'Oh!' says he, 'I admire her principles, but I detest her schemes.' (Loud laughter and applause.) Now allow me to state two or three ways in which the claims of the ministers are evaded. I will give you cases, because these are best remembered. Many a long year and day ago, there was an excellent minister by the name of Mr. Gray, and he got his son, whom I knew, a highly-esteemed Old Light—a better never lived—he got his son to be appointed his assistant and successor. The people gave the father £100 a year, and they gave his son £80; which, in those days, was perhaps better than the Free Church ministers are paid at the present time. It was most creditable to the congregation, and to the good old Seceders. At length the father died, and the congregation met to consider what stipend they should give the son, now that he was sole pastor of the congregation; and the question was not whether they would give him £180, which they ought to have done, seeing that the giving of £180 before, proved that they were able to do it; the question was whether they would give the son the £100 the father had, or keep him at the £80. (Loud laughter and applause.) Well, the question was put, whereupon an honest weaver stood up, and was clear for keeping the incumbent at £80.

(Laughter.) He said that he did not see any reason for ministers having more for weaving sermons than he had for weaving webs. (Renewed laughter.) He was for holding them down to the lowest figure, in proof of which, he said, the fact was, that the church never had such ministers as in those days when they went about in sheepskins and goatskins, and lived in caves and holes of the earth. (Loud laughter and applause.) If any people sympathize with the weaver, I answer that I have a radical objection to caves—they create damp—(laughter)—and, secondly, as to the habiliments, it will be time enough to take up that question when our people are prepared to walk along Prince's Street with us—with me, not in this antique dress, but in the more primitive and antiquated fashion of goatskins with the horns on. (Loud laughter and applause.) It is easy to dispose of this evasion. I shall pass on to the second evasion, and it was from a case too. It was not in my own congregation—let me say that it was not in any congregation of the Free Church. It is contained in a remark I shall repeat. There was the same evasion in it, but it looks very pious, and it is all the worse for that. It was contained in a remark made by a lady to the wife of a poor minister of a wealthy congregation, who, by keeping boarders, had to eke out a living that some of the merchant princes in his congregation could have paid out of their own pocket, and never missed it. The lady, rustling in silks, and in a blaze of jewels, went to visit the minister's wife, more a lady than herself, with the exception of the dress. (Applause.) The lady condoled with the minister's wife on the straitened circumstances and means of the ministers, and she condoled thus:—'Ah!' says she, 'my dear,' looking into the pale, careworn face of the excellent woman, 'My dear,' she said, 'your reward is above.' From the bloodless lips of some poor sinner in an unfurnished garret, where the man of God has gone to smooth the dying pillow, and to minister consolation in that last dark hour, I have been thankful to hear those words—'Your reward is above;' but from silks and satins—disgusting! It is cant—the vilest cant—and enough to make religion stink in the nostrils of the world. (Loud applause.) Would that saying pay the minister's stipend?—pay the minister's accounts? Fancy the worthy man going to his baker or his butcher, and instead of paying down money, turning up the white of his eyes, saying, 'Your reward is above.' (Loud laughter and applause.) I fancy they would say, 'O no, my good sir, that will not pay the bill;' and I say what does not pay the bill, does not pay the ministers' stipends as they ought to be paid. (Loud applause.) There is another answer, another way of getting rid of this question, that I want the Christian public to look at. I have heard it myself; it is a very common answer, and it is this—that ministers should not be rich. Now I am not wanting ministers to be rich; I do not want to be rich myself; although it is a sweet thing to be able to pour a blessing into an empty cup. (Applause.) I want to know why I should be deprived of that pleasure any more than other people? I want to know if I have not a heart as well as other men? Have not I pity as well as other men? Have not I delight in seeing and hearing the widow's blessing as well as other men? (Loud applause.) I want to know more than that; I demand to know the reason why riches are more dangerous to ministers than they are to other people? I want to know why men can stand up before the public and say that ministers would make a worse use of their money than other people? Are those who have received a liberal education, cultivated minds, holding a sacred office, occupying a public position, whose piety should be fired at the altars where they minister, and whose sympathies are daily moved by the misery and poverty they see—are they less likely to make a good use of money than other men? Does any man in this house say that Agur's prayer was made for ministers—'Give me neither poverty nor riches'? Tell me no more about ministers not being rich. (Loud applause.) But I don't want ministers to be rich; that is not my object. My object, my only object, for which I stand here to plead, is, that ministers should have such maintenance as shall relieve them of the evils that I shall call poverty. (Applause.) Don't be ashamed of poverty. Poverty in a good cause is a noble thing. (Applause.) Don't stagger at the word. There was a man came once to the person who did the writing on Pitt's monument, which was something to this effect—that millions had passed through his hands, and that he died poor. It was the noblest thing ever said about a statesman; but the man, with a very delicate sensibility, said—'Oh I don't like that word poor. I think it ought to have been, that millions passed through his hands, and that he died in embarrassed circumstances.' (Great applause.) What I want is this—and I tell this house, and tell the public—that I stand here this night to plead that my brethren should have livings adequate to their position, and adequate to the expense in which they are necessarily involved. (Applause.) That is my object. I need not tell the intelligent public, or the fathers and brethren of this House—I do not need to tell you that the ministers' livings have not risen in any church—Free Church, United Presbyterian, Congregational, Established—that the ministers' livings of no church, endowed or unendowed, have risen with the increase of labourers' wages, (hear, hear,) with the revenues of land, with the incomes of proprietors, with the profits of commerce, with the salaries of schoolmasters, with the incomes of clerks; and that, in point of fact—and let it go abroad as with a trumpet-voice—the position of ministers is, in many respects, worse this day than it was half-a-century ago. (Loud applause.) That is the true position of ministers, and the sooner the public know that, the better."

THE MOTHER.

It has been truly said, "The first being that rushes to the recollection of a soldier or a sailor, in his heart's difficulty, is his mother. She clings to his memory and affection in the midst of all the forgetfulness and hardihood induced by a roving life. The last message he leaves is for her, his last whisper breathes her name. The mother, as she instils the lesson of piety and filial obligation into the heart of her infant son, should always feel that her labour is not in vain. She may drop into the grave, but she has left behind her influences that will work for her. The bow is broken, but the arrow has sped, and will do its office."

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Receipts at Philadelphia in July 1862.

I.—Fund for Candidates.

Pby of Londonderry—Londonderry ch	8 73
Pby of Albany—Saratoga Springs ch 15; West Milton ch 7 02	22 02
Pby of New Brunswick—1st ch Trenton	45 00
Pby of Newton—Newton ch	62 55
Pby of Monmouth—Shrewsbury ch 25; Jamesburg ch 9	34 00
Pby of Philadelphia—Ninth ch Philadelphia, Samuel Dunlap 2 50; West Spruce st ch Sab sch 25	27 50
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Germantown 1st ch in part (special)	25 00
Pby of New Castle—Lower West Nottingham ch	14 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Logan's Valley ch 10; Huntingdon ch 103 67	113 67
Pby of Northumberland—Chilisquaque ch 2 59; Mooresburg ch 2 86	5 45
Pby of Baltimore—Frederick ch 11 25; Baltimore First ch, a thank-offering from Mrs George Brown 500	511 25
Pby of Allegheny City—Central ch (from the ladies)	2 28
Pby of Washington—Fairview ch	5 00
Pby of Steubenville—Kilgore ch 3; New Hagerstown ch 16; New Philadelphia ch (ladies' cent a week coll) 3	22 00
Pby of St. Clairsville—Woodsfield ch 2; New Castle ch 1; Weegee ch 7 50; Barnsville ch 2 50	13 00
Pby of Columbus—Lower Liberty ch	4 10
Pby of Marion—Little Mill Creek ch 1 70; Corinth ch 45 cts	2 15
Pby of Zanesville—Buffalo ch	7 00
Pby of Cincinnati—Pleasant Run ch 3 03; 7th ch Cincinnati 65 35	68 38
Pby of Crawfordsville—Bethany ch	5 00
Pby of Sangamon—Dawson ch	1 00
Pby of Schuyler—Hopewell ch	3 00
Pby of Dane—Richland Centre ch 2 50; Richland City ch 1 50; Fancy Creek ch 1; Platteville German ch 3	8 00
Pby of Chippewa—Richland Prairie ch	60
Pby of Cedar—Walcott and Blue Grass chs	4 00
Pby of Dubuque—Foresters and Lime Spring chs	2 11
Pby of Ebenezer—Concord ch	3 00
	$1019 79

LEGACY.

Estate of James Smith, Bucyrus, Ohio	50 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

C H P, Chilisquaque, Pa. 3; "Coupons" 70	73 00
Total	$1142 79

WM. MAIN, Treasurer.

Receipts at Pittsburg, Pa., in July, 1862.

Pby of Ohio—Bethany ch 26; Racoon ch (add'l) 1	27 00
Pby of Redstone—Unity ch	28 00
Pby of Blairsville—Greensburg ch 6 25; Elairsville ch 27	33 25
Pby of Clarion—Academia ch	3 00
Pby of Allegheny—Tarentum ch	8 00
Pby of Erie—Greenfield ch 3 50; Fairfield ch 8	11 50
Pby of Washington—New Cumberland ch	6 00
Pby of Richland—Shelby ch 3; Ontario ch 5; Ashland ch 20 31	28 31
Pby of Wooster—Wooster ch (ladies' special aid)	1 05
	$146 11

MISCELLANEOUS.

Bequest of Miss Ellen McCullough, Mercer, Pa., per Mrs E McCullough, 5; Patterson estate, per Rev Geo Marshall, D D, 11 58	16 58
	$162 69
Total amount acknowledged,	$1305 48

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.
August 13th, 1862.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

INDIAN TRIBES.

Mr. Dougherty, at Grand Traverse, Chippewa mission, July 26th, mentions, with much regret, the return to her friends of Miss Gibson, on account of the failure of her health. The number of scholars was full—twenty-five. Letters from the Omaha mission, dated to July 24th, report the school as in vacation, "during the time the Omahas are away on their annual buffalo-hunt."

SOUTH AMERICA.

By letters from Bogota, of dates to the 14th of June, we regret to learn the death of Mr. McLaren's little daughter. Mr. McLaren was unable to preach for several weeks, by reason of whooping-cough. The gradual sale of mortmain property in New Granada had been ordered by the government, a measure which, if carried fully into operation, will probably have an important and favourable influence on the welfare of the country. From Brazil we have received letters dated at Rio de Janeiro, June 24th, and at Sao Joao de Rio Clara, June 5th. Mr. Schneider had hired a house at the latter place, which is a village in the southern part of the empire, and affords him access to several settlements of Germans. At five of these he holds services in rotation. Mr. Blackford reports the admission of two persons to the church in Rio, on the 22d of June, at a communion season of much interest. Four others would probably be admitted at the next communion.

AFRICA.

The Rev. J. R. Amos and his wife, of the mission at Niffau, Liberia, arrived at New York on the 7th inst., having returned on account of Mrs. Amos's health, which has received benefit from the voyage. By letters from Liberia, dated to the 16th of June, we learn that Mr. Miller had received seven persons as members of the church at Careysburgh, three of them scholars in the mission school at Mount Coffee. Mr. Priest reports twelve Congoes and Arkoes—recaptives—as under his care and instruction, and gives a good report of the church at Sinou. Mr. Erskine reports thirty-eight scholars in his school at Clay-Ashland. The Sabbath-school at that station is also reported as doing well; two-thirds of the scholars are recaptured Africans.

INDIA.

Our letters from this country are dated at Murree, near Rawal Pindi, June 13th; Dharmsala, near Lahor, June 3d; Kapurthala, June 3d; Lodiana, June 18th; Ambala, May 17th; Mynpurie, to June 18th; Futtehgurh, to June 18th; Futtehpore, May 15th; Allahabad, June 5th. These letters speak of the usual progress of the missionary work. We note particularly that Mr. Orbison reports a candidate for baptism under his instruction; Dr. Janvier mentions the opening of a school for girls of low caste in a village near Ambala, under Mrs. Janvier's charge; Messrs. Scott and Brodhead had made a missionary journey of much interest in the country near Futtehgurh, on which they spent a month, and visited not less than three hundred villages; they were accompanied by several native assistants, and were much encouraged by the attention usually given to their message; Mr. Johnson reports the baptism of three children committed to the missionaries at Futtehpore, two of whom, a brother and sister, "were picked up on the road, their father and mother having died on a pilgrimage, and left them desolate;" Mr. Walsh, as we regret to learn, was again suffering from ill-health, though continuing at his work; he speaks of two young men who are interesting inquirers.

SIAM.

We have received letters from Bangkok, dated to June 7th, which speak of the missionaries as enjoying their usual health, and their work as going on with few changes. They were glad to report the opening of a chapel on the last Sabbath in May. Both English and Siamese services were held in it on that occasion. The expense of this chapel was defrayed by special contributions received in Bangkok.

CHINA.

The latest letters from this country are dated at Canton, June 9th; Shanghai, June 3d; Ningpo, May 31st; Tungchow, May 19th. We regret to learn the serious illness of Mr. Danforth; he was better, but still in a critical condition, at the latest date. The chief event at Ningpo was the expulsion of the rebels from that city by the combined English and French forces, on the 10th of May, after several hours' fighting. The mission families were kept in safety, and their work in the city has been in a good measure resumed. Dr. and Mrs. McCartee had returned to Ningpo, though their health was not fully restored. At Shanghai, Dr. Culbertson reports the completion of the new translation of the Bible in Chinese—see his letter in another column.

JAPAN.

Our advices from Dr. Hepburn come down to the 27th of May. He had at length succeeded in purchasing a well-situated piece of land in Yokohama, for the use of the mission, on which he expected to erect a dwelling-house; another house, and a small chapel, could be erected on the same ground when required.

MISSIONS IN CHINA.

New Translation of the Scriptures Completed.

The Rev. M. Simpson Culbertson, D. D., writing at Shanghai, May 3d, 1862, thus speaks of the work to which so many years of labour have been devoted. He may well rejoice at being permitted to see the completion of such a work.

. . . I have been permitted to bring to its close the great work on which I have been engaged for so many years—the translation of the Bible. On the 17th of March, 1851, our Committee, consisting of five members, began their work. On the 27th March, 1862, I brought it to a close, having been left single-handed, by the lamented death of my only remaining colleague, Dr. Bridgman, in November last. The other members of the Committee, as you are aware, were obliged, by ill health, to withdraw before we had finished the Pentateuch. The translation of the New Testament, and of the Old as far as Isaiah, is the joint work of Dr. Bridgman and myself. From Isaiah to Malachi I translated alone, though most of it was done prior to Dr. Bridgman's death. I feel deeply grateful to our Heavenly Father that I have been permitted at last to see the end of this task. I have found it a delightful work, and esteem it a great privilege to have been thus brought into close communion with the word of God, day by day, for so many years. I have been highly favoured, too, in having for a co-labourer such a man as Dr. Bridgman; so spiritual, so meek, so faithful, and withal so uniformly courteous and amiable. But the burden of so great a task unfinished, the importance of having it finished, and the uncertainty of being able to accomplish it, has long been a sore trial to the spirit. I have seen other members of the Committee withdrawn from it by ill health—all of them indeed—and then have been myself compelled to abandon the work for years together. How often have I despaired of ever finishing this work, or even of seeing others finish it! Yet, in spite of all these trials, difficulties, and interruptions, I am now permitted, by the goodness of God, to see the whole Bible ready for the hands of the printer. My hope now is, that I may be spared to see the whole of it printed in a uniform edition. Such an edition, of fifteen hundred copies, has been already commenced, with the Berlin font. I enclose a specimen sheet of the first chapters of Genesis. This we hope will be a kind of family Bible, highly valued by our Chinese Christians. We hope our new fonts of type, of small size, will soon be completed, so that we may bring the whole Bible into as small a compass as our medium-sized English Bible.

In reference to the character of this translation, I can only say that our aim has ever been to give a translation of the inspired words as exact and literal as possible, consistently with the idiom of the Chinese language. Sometimes we may have gone too far in sacrificing elegance of diction to exactness of translation; but we have endeavoured always to secure a diction strictly idiomatic, even where it may be thought inelegant. We have had the assistance of excellent Chinese scholars, and we have reason to hope that the style will, in general, be acceptable to the Chinese. May the Holy Spirit accompany his holy word as it is sent forth among these multitudes of heathen, that they may, by means of this translation, be made wise unto salvation! I trust the church will not now withhold the funds needed for printing and circulating it. Our arrangements for printing on a large scale are now nearly completed. Before the end of this month our new building for the press will be occupied. Our new cylinder press, so long detained by several remarkable providences, has just arrived, and will be transferred from the hold of the ship to our new building. What we want now is money to print, and men to distribute the books when printed. May the great Lord of the harvest provide us with both!

Encouragement in Shantung.

Dwelling-houses and Chapel at Tungchow.

From a letter of the Rev. S. R. Gayley to a friend in this country, we take the following extracts. They were written at Tungchow, December 30th, 1861. After referring in warm terms to the excellence of the climate, and its happy influence on his own health and that of other invalids, Mr. Gayley goes on to say:

We have, almost imperceptibly, been gaining an amount of influence here which we are very loth to throw away. Almost without intending it, we have been taking root here as a mission, until the work of transplantation would be attended with a good deal of risk. The disposition on the part of the people to listen to the truth and inquire whether these things are so, together with the remarkable manner in which an excellent place for a chapel, at a mere nominal rent, was brought to our notice, led us to take a step which we would not otherwise have dared to take. The path of duty seemed so clear that we could not but walk in it. The consequence is, that we have already in Tungchow two dwelling-houses and a chapel, all rented in the name of the Presbyterian church. Rents in Tungchow are a different thing from rents in Shanghai or New York. The rent of my house is one hundred strings of cash, (a string is one thousand cash,) equal to about, as you know, one hundred home dollars; that of Mr. Nevius's house sixty, and that of the chapel ten; making in all for the three houses about one hundred and seventy dollars. There is only one great business street in the city; our chapel is situated on it. The native assistant Dyan (one of our Ningpo native brethren,) lives there, and is proving faithful to his post. The chapel is open all the time. Our evening exercises are the most interesting.

An aged Man hopefully converted.

Let me now tell you what reasons we have to believe that the Lord is about to own and bless these efforts. Early in the summer, an old man, aged eighty-one years, hearing the truth, became interested, and came daily to Dyan for instruction. Though advanced so far in years, his mind was clear and active. He advanced remarkably fast in knowledge, and we had hoped soon to admit him to the church. About three weeks ago he was taken sick, and after two weeks' illness died. During his sickness he constantly professed his faith in Christ, but the evidences that his professions were sincere were not as clear as we wished to see. He suffered much pain, and most of the time was more or less delirious Towards the latter part of his sickness he fancied that he was tormented by the frequent visits of the spirit of a fox. His daughter and grandson, who attended him, being heathen, of course encouraged him in this idea, and Dyan found, on visiting him one morning, that he had been sacrificing to the evil spirit, in order to appease it. While feeling very sad on hearing this, still we did not cease to hope that the old man was at heart really a Christian. This was done during his delirious hours, and principally, doubtless, by his family. Afterwards he often expressed himself as not afraid of the spirit, seeing he had committed himself entirely to Jesus. We made strenuous efforts to secure for him a Christian burial, but did not succeed. He was desirous of it himself, and his daughter was willing; but his grandson and the elder of the family would not hear of it. Of course it would not have been prudent for us to attempt to use any compulsory measures. His remains were buried according to heathen rites, but we know that this will not affect his spiritual state if he fell asleep in Jesus. I often think of the great mercy of God in lengthening out his life to such an old age, that he might hear the gospel. He just had time to hear of the only true Saviour before his long earthly career was finished. If the old man is saved, as we hope he is, will not that be worth a million times over, all the expense, and trials, and privations attendant upon our coming to this place when we did?

A servant Woman apparently a true Convert.

During the last three months our old Shanghai Lung Lung (you remember her) has shown an unusual interest in spiritual things. We have now many reasons for believing that she is born again. She was always, as you know, a faithful and trustworthy servant, so that we cannot expect to see any improvement in her conduct on these points; but the change in her manner when attending family worship, and her eagerness at all times to receive instruction in the truth, together with the number and nature of the questions she asks, when taken together, and compared with her former life, do certainly show a marked change of disposition. She is also learning, with the greatest eagerness, to read the Shanghai Romanized colloquial. This in itself is a favourable sign, for we often tried to interest her in learning some method or other of reading her mother tongue before, but never could succeed. She has asked for baptism. We think it best to detain her a little for further instruction. She intends returning to her family at Shanghai in the spring. We expect to admit her to the church before she leaves.

A Teacher's case; pleasing evidence of conversion.

Next is my teacher, named Ling, a native of Chi Hyia, a neighbouring district. He is a man of not a very prepossessing exterior, but has the reputation of being the finest scholar in that region of country. He is a graduate of the second degree, and until lately has been aspiring to a mandarinship. He first heard the truth a year ago from Mr. Edkins of the London mission at Chefoo; after Mr. Edkins left, he received some occasional instruction from Mr. Holmes, of the American Baptist mission; and when I came here, he was recommended to me as a teacher by Tsen, Mr. Hartwell's native assistant, who also said that he was a serious inquirer. Soon after he came, it was found that he had little or no knowledge of the fundamental doctrines of Christianity, and especially those that are of a spiritual nature; and moreover, he seemed determined to go on with his studies, and thus foster his desire for office. He evidently intended to make this latter his principal aim, and if, in the process of attaining this, he could become united with the Christian church, well and good. He was still in this state of mind when, after the visit of the rebels last October, he went home to look after his family.

He returned some ten days ago, in a different state of mind. When at home, he experienced a good deal of trouble, which seems to have been blessed to him; and since his return, his mind has been deeply exercised on religious matters. A few days ago, he asked me if he could be admitted to the church. He says he has determined to be a Christian at all odds and hazards, and is willing to give up therefor all his former aspirations and hopes. He believes that he is a changed man. We have good reason for believing that he is sincere, and are not without some grounds for hoping that he is a true believer. There are also two other persons, natives of Tungchow, who are also inquirers. Mr. Nevius says he has a good deal of hope for one of them. For the benefit of these persons Mr. Nevius has recently started a Bible-class.

[Accounts of later date have since been received, which mention the baptism of these hopeful converts. Mr. Gayley adds:]

You will also be glad to hear that Mr. Hartwell [of the Baptist mission] is not without encouragement. He recently baptized his teacher, and now has some inquirers. Tungchow is certainly a very encouraging missionary field. You can well imagine what a relief it is to be in a place which is beyond the reach of the evil influences of foreign commerce.

MISSION IN SIAM.

Progress at Petchaburi.

The Rev. S. G. McFarland writes as follows, under date of April 7th, 1862, at Bangkok.

Dear Sir—I have been a little negligent in my writing for some time, owing to a multitude of duties, and things I could not neglect.

Building and Study.

Our house in Petchaburi is now partly finished, so much so that we can occupy it. Brother McGilvary, after a long stay in Bangkok, has returned to his field of labour and his home; and Mrs. McFarland and myself have thrown aside our care, and are now in Bangkok on a visit. We have both been very well as to general health, but feel greatly the need of a little rest and relaxation from care. It is now almost one year since we went to Petchaburi, and we have both been rather closely confined to duty. I find that building is a very confining work, and requires a constant attention and effort. Mrs. McFarland has been engaged in her little school of boys. They are very promising. We have every reason to be thankful that we have had so good health, and that we have been blessed and prospered in everything. God has been very good to us.

With the care of building, I have been giving as much time to the study of the language as possible, and I find that I have learned as much from one source as the other. During Mr. McGilvary's absence, we had Dr. and Mrs. House, and Mr. Wilson, and Mr. Mattoon, with us by turns. But there was still part of the time when we were left entirely alone, and I was obliged to take hold of the work, and attend to morning worship and Sabbath exercises with the natives.

Prospects still encouraging—Station Duties—Kao, a Nobleman's Son.

Prospects are still encouraging in our new field. Congregations on Sabbath are respectable, and generally very attentive. There are one or two interesting cases besides those in our families. Since the absence of brother McGilvary, there has not been so much labour performed through the week, in the way of book distribution and oral instruction; but the Sabbath exercises have been the same. Kao is still with us, and is very much interested in the study of English. His interest on the subject of religion is increasing, and I hope and pray that he may become a true Christian. He is sometimes inclined to be a little discontented, and thinks he is not learning fast enough, and I fear that he will want to leave us soon; but he still says he will stay a long time. Kao is the son of a nobleman, who came to us shortly after we came, and desired to learn English and the Christian religion. I sometimes feel discouraged with him, but we make him a daily subject of prayer, and trust that he may soon have a changed heart.

Nai Kon's good walk.

Nai Kon is still as encouraging as ever. He takes a lively interest in the work, and tries to do all he can. Yet, although we do not doubt but that he is a Christian, he has his weaknesses. But what else could we expect from one who was brought up as a heathen? He has not yet been baptized. He has strange notions about it, seeming to think if he is baptized with the Spirit it is not so much matter about the sign. Very unlike many others, who sometimes attach too much importance to the ordinance, he seems to think it is of very little importance if he has the thing signified. He, however, does not refuse to be baptized; he only begs to wait a while. His home is so far from us that he can come but seldom. He always comes on Sabbath when he is well. They are thinking of moving into town. This will give us a great advantage of instructing him and visiting him often.

Yesterday was communion Sabbath here, and we once more gathered around the memorials of our Saviour's dying love. It was a precious season, and we were permitted to welcome one to the communion-table—not a heathen, but a young man from our native land, who has left his wicked companions and joined himself to the people of God. He was, I think, formerly of New York. "They shall come from the East and from the West." . . .

I remain yours in Christian fellowship,

S. G. McFarland.

MISSIONS IN INDIA.

Missionary Work in 1861 at Lahor.

Messrs. Newton and Forman, and Mrs. Forman, are the missionaries at Lahor, assisted by several native labourers. Mr. and Mrs. Barnes are still in this country, for the benefit of his health. This station was first occupied in 1849. It will be recollected that Lahor is the political capital of the Punjáb. It is a city containing over 100,000 inhabitants.

Station Preaching.

The two missionaries have preached almost every evening, either in the bázárs, or at some of the principal gates of the city. The latter have been selected as preaching places, because, being removed from the noise and bustle of the bázárs, they afford comparative quiet, while yet many, and especially strangers, are constantly passing to and fro. The native Scripture reader, John Clement, has laboured in the same way, both morning and evening, during the year. For several months he was assisted in this work by Daúd Muhkam, and afterwards by Prabhu Dás. Our audiences have hardly been so large as in former years; or rather, more time has been spent in collecting them. Very many of our hearers now appear to be well acquainted with the doctrines of Christianity; but their knowledge is scarcely more manifest than their hatred of its holy and saving truths. We must, however, say that not unfrequently the truth has been heard with decided approbation.

An attempt made to get the heathen to attend afternoon services, once or twice a week, in the chapel near the Delhí gate, has not been very successful; yet it cannot be considered a failure. Generally a good many have stood within, near the doors, though few have come forward and taken seats. When the service has been held on the open platform on the chapel lot, the audiences have been larger. The Sunday forenoon service on the mission premises has been attended by few except Christians. The Sunday morning service in the school-house has been attended by the pupils and heathen teachers; it affords a good opportunity to impress the truth upon their minds.

Our English services in the civil station have been attended about as usual; and we have reason to believe that they have been made the means of converting some souls. During the spring and early part of the summer, one of the missionaries went once a week to the military station near Lahor, to preach to a small congregation of English soldiers, and also to the heathen in the large bázár attached to the station. Large and attentive audiences of heathen were readily obtained. We are happy to add that, after our labours here had to be discontinued, on account of Mr. Newton's departure for the Hills, a native Christian cook, attached to one of the companies of Her Majesty's 94th regiment, who had been baptized by an English missionary in Peshawur, went frequently to the bázár to read and explain the gospel to his countrymen.

The preaching of Mr. Newton at Dharmsálá, also, may be worthy of mention, as a fact in the history of the year. Besides occasional addresses to good audiences in the bázárs and other places, he preached Sabbath after Sabbath, regularly, near the station church, during the time the English service was in progress, to a class of hillmen, who are employed to carry ladies' jhapáns. The number of persons on these occasions usually varied from thirty to fifty.

Itinerations.

Mr. Newton, in moving last winter from Sabáthú to Lahor, made his journey of three weeks an occasion of preaching the gospel at some twenty different places. And in returning from Dharmsálá in October last, he again made regular marches, accompanied by the Rev. Mr. Bruce of the Amritsar mission, who united with him in preaching at every halting place. On this journey he attended the Jawálá Mukhí fair also; and, with other missionaries, preached for several days to the pilgrims. Mr. Forman made a missionary tour last winter through Ferozepore to Kapúrthalá. He was accompanied, as far as the former place, by the Scripture reader, John Clement; who from there returned by a different route, teaching and exhorting in a number of villages south-east of Lahor.

Colportage.

We are indebted to the North India Bible and Tract Societies for the support of a colporteur, who has been engaged during the year in selling religious publications to the people of Lahor. The success of this experiment has exceeded our expectations; probably a thousand books have been sold at prices greater than the value of the books as waste paper. This is considered a decided improvement on the old plan of gratuitous distribution, as it prevents the books from being torn up; and many will, no doubt, read a book for which they have paid a nominal price, who would not read one which had cost them nothing.

Schools.

1. The "Mission School." . . . . . We now have four Christian teachers, for all of whom we are indebted to our Free Church brethren in Bengal. The head master, Baboo Gooroo Dás Moitra, has given satisfaction by his intelligence, zeal, devotion, and tact in managing the school. Baboo Jogendro C. Bose is also an intelligent and efficient teacher. The religious studies are now taught almost exclusively by Christian teachers.

The principal changes made in the arrangements of the Mission School are the following:

(i.) All the pupils who study English, are required to learn to read the Hindustání also. . . .

(ii.) The Readers of the Irish School Book Society have been introduced, in the place of those published by the Calcutta Christian School Book Society. The reason for making this change is that the former, which are kept on hand at the Government Depository at Lahor, are more easily obtained than the latter. A good series of Readers, adapted to the wants of the country, is still a desideratum. . . . . .

(iii.) Hitherto we have been unable to educate our pupils so thoroughly as we wished, owing to their haste in seeking employment as soon as they were able to earn a livelihood by copying English. We are glad to say that in this respect there has been a decided improvement of late. For some time after the establishment of the Government School, a disposition to leave the Mission School and enter it was manifested; the pupils thinking they would be regarded more favourably by English officers, if educated in the Government School; and that they could there compete successfully for prizes, which we could not offer them. The Lieutenant-Governor, however, visited the Mission School last winter, and assured the scholars that he felt a deep interest in it, and that all coming with certificates of proficiency from the superintendent might expect to get government employment. He at the same time added twenty-five rupees to the monthly grant-in-aid to provide scholarships for the best pupils, which amount is doubled from local funds. These are among the means which have resulted in keeping the scholars longer in the institution than formerly.

In the English Department. . . . . The number of pupils in English is 368.

In the Persian Department. . . . . The number of pupils here is 80. The daily attendance in both departments is about 400.

This school affords us the very best opportunities for communicating religious instruction. Besides the instruction given in the classes, the whole school is assembled every day for worship, when a portion of the Bible is read and explained, and prayer in the vernacular is offered. It would seem hardly possible for any pious man to see the school assembled to hear God's word, without exclaiming, as a Christian friend did a few days ago, "What a charge! What a responsibility!"

2. The Poor-House School.—This school, which had been broken up because the pupils were but few, has been re-opened; and now 22 boys and girls are every day instructed in reading and writing, by Prabhu Dás, a converted Brahmin.

3. The Adult School.—We have also opened a night-school for adults. A number of our old pupils, who are employed in government offices as clerks, are now carrying on their studies at night. Between seventy and eighty attend regularly. The Scriptures and other religious books are used as class-books in this school also.

Poor-House.

Alms have been distributed as heretofore among the poor. There are now about 130, including children, who are supported in this way. They receive each five annas every Monday morning; at which time the Bible is read and explained to them by Prabhu Dás. One of the missionaries occasionally takes this duty. There have been more deaths than usual among the paupers this year, and the living have been frequently urged, by the shortness of life, especially among them, to prepare to meet God.

Work in connection with the Press.

Much of Mr. Newton's time during the year has been spent in proof-reading, and both the missionaries have been engaged in the work of revision. A great number and variety of religious publications are in circulation, which have evidently been written in haste, and in the midst of other duties, considered more pressing, if not more important. These now require sifting and thorough revision; and those who can spare time for this work could scarcely be better employed.

Later Accounts from Lahor.

Mr. Forman, under date of June 3d, mentions the following matters of interest.

I must write to you a few lines to go in the package I am about to send to the Mission House, to let you know what we are doing.

1. We are just completing a pretty little church, on the mission compound, for our native Christian community. It has cost us about 1300 rupees, or $650, and has been paid for, of course, from local contributions. Our friends here are exceedingly kind to us, and seem quite to lose sight of the facts that we are Americans and Presbyterians—and why should they not? We have little to do with politics or forms of church government here. If we can only bring men to repentance, and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, we may leave minor matters, for the present, in abeyance.

2. A few weeks ago, the priest of the principal mosque in this city died. I had long felt a deep interest in him, arising from his inclination to the Christian religion, together with the important position he held. He has often spoken to me in terms of decided approbation of the peculiar doctrines of our religion, and assured me that he drew instruction for his own people out of one of our best books. When on his death-bed, he sent for me to visit him. I had then a long conversation with him, which was closed with prayer; and it was touching to hear his solemn "Amen" to almost every petition. The next time I saw him he seemed much better, but within a few days he died suddenly. I was told that he wished to see me when death was very near, that he commended his family to my care, and requested to be buried in a Christian manner. His friends wished me to conduct the funeral ceremonies, but I did not think it advisable to do so, though I joined the procession. I am not without hope that he is among those saved through the blood of Christ. I had often urged him to receive baptism, but he put it off. I urged him again on his death-bed, but he said, "Not now—wait till I get well."

3. No doubt you have heard that the railway connecting Lahor and Amritsar has been completed. Twice a day the train now runs backwards and forwards. The telegraph from Lahor to Peshawur, Bombay, and Calcutta, has long been working. The natives take great interest in these things, and in their minds science and religion are more intimately connected than in ours. A native gentleman said to a friend of mine the other day, after seeing the train, "You may tell me what you please now—I will believe anything." Some of them, however, are very incredulous. A native friend of mine told me the other day that a physician had said that he believed the wires by the road-side were only put up to make the people believe the English were very wise. My friend told him that I had shown, by means of the telescope, that the satellites of Jupiter revolved around the planet. "And do you believe it?" the physician asked. "Yes I do." "Then you believe the world turns round also." "Yes." "Then you are an infidel." Of course this was an inference a Musulman would naturally draw, for the Koran teaches that the earth floats upon the waters, and that to prevent its moving God drove huge nails into it, and that the mountains are the heads of these nails. . . . .

AFRICA—CORISCO MISSION.

Extracts from a Letter of the Rev. C. De Heer, Corisco, March 5, 1862.

Sixth Anniversary on Corisco—Visit to Gaboon.

On the 21st of last month was the anniversary of my arrival on Corisco, and of these six years I lived about five years alone in this heathen land. I, too, I think, have had my trials; besides parting with all my own family, I was witness of the departure of my fellow-labourers who fell victims, and were cut off in the midst of their years, besides those, including my children, who have returned to the United States. Yet, supported by Divine Goodness, whose gentle hand alone heals bleeding hearts, I am thankful to say, that I never regretted that I came to Africa.

On the arrival of the Ocean Eagle it was thought advisable for me to go on a sea voyage. Accordingly I started in the Ocean Eagle for the river Congo, distant from Corisco about 440 miles. On our way from the island, the vessel anchored at the Gaboon, where I had the pleasure of seeing the brethren of the Gaboon mission, which I never visited before, and where I met with a hearty reception. I was much pleased with what I heard and saw there, and think that the brethren have much reason to be encouraged in their work.

Visit to the Congo river—The Slave trade going on—Return to Corisco.

From the Gaboon to the mouth of the Congo river we were in all about fourteen days; rather a tedious passage, and yet, for the benefit of my health, not so to be regarded. About nine miles from the mouth of the river the water is fresh, with a red colour; here, too, the floating islands made their appearance, one after another, in different sizes, hurled forth by the mighty stream into the endless ocean. As it was late in the afternoon, we attempted to sail up the river, but the current being too strong against the ship, we were driven back, and obliged to drop anchor. Not far from our anchorage, we witnessed the wreck of an English vessel, which ran ashore five weeks ago, and was plundered by the natives. The next day, with the sea-breeze, we sailed up the river, and came to anchor about sundown. In the morning our captain hired a native pilot to conduct the vessel farther up the river. On the evening of the same day we arrived at the place of our destination. Here were no less than fourteen factories within a mile; two of them were engaged in the oil business, yet I am inclined to think too many of them were more or less engaged in the slave trade. An American vessel was at anchor here, waiting for a cargo of slaves. The next day I went ashore for a few hours, and visited some of the towns; but as it was rather a damp day, and my health not being firm, I accomplished but little; however, I stayed long enough to witness the bad influence corrupt white men exert over a heathen people; doubtless they would do better without them. The next day was the Sabbath-day, and as no outward labour was performed, there was a good deal of drunkenness and gambling going on all the day. We were, in all, at this place about four days, and from the time we started from Corisco until my arrival on the island four weeks. Thankful to God that my life and health had been spared, I resumed my labours with quite renewed strength.

Trouble from African Heathenism—Notices of the Church and School.

. . . In reference to my labours, I have but little of importance to communicate. A few weeks ago we were again much disturbed by that evil, which seems to prevail more than ever before, called Ukuku. It is generally believed that when he makes his appearance it is to destroy the mission station and kill the Christians; accordingly, mothers come running to take their children from the school, who, if refused, are taken by force, or else they run away. The last time, when he came near the station, he ordered that all the females, including the female converts, should prostrate themselves in the open air before him, a heathen rite never before seen or heard of; it was, however, executed. In the evening of the same day, two of our female converts came to testify before me that they had done wrong, desiring me to pray for them.

Our congregation on the Sabbath has been small for a number of weeks, the men being all absent for the sake of trade, on which occasion the females think themselves at liberty to stay at home more than usual. Our school is doing well, and the boys are making satisfactory progress in their studies. The teacher, I am sorry to say, has left us, on account of the sickness of his father; but afterwards he wished to be excused from his duties in the school. Another young man, a pupil of the above, is now my assistant.

MISSIONS IN FRANCE.

Extracts from the Annual Report of the Central Protestant Society of Evangelization.

We have before us a copy of the Report of this Society for the year ending May 2, 1861. Its work is conducted at about fifty stations, connected with which are about eighty "annexes," or sub-stations, besides a few itinerant labourers; the number of labourers reported is fifty-one, of whom thirty are pastors or evangelists, the others being teachers or readers. Besides this, the Society supports a preparatory school of theology, to prepare young men for professional study at Montauban, Strasburgh, or Geneva, which has "fifty students in a course of preparation." The usefulness of this school since it was established—ten years ago—is dwelt upon in warm terms in the Report. The receipts of the last year were 142,695 francs, or $28,540; the expenditures, 131,257 francs. There was a debt at the end of the pecuniary year, as there was at the end of the preceding year, but it is now reduced to 15,190 francs. Our readers are aware that this is one of the Societies to which funds have been remitted by the Board for several years, in aid of its important labours. The funds thus sent forward have been very warmly acknowledged. To these general statements we now append some extracts from this Report, translated for our columns by one of our young friends.

Want of Work overruled for good.

We hear from almost all our stations at the North, of the misery which has resulted from the want of work there, and which has produced a deep feeling of discouragement among the masses. However, this great trial is not without its benefits. If poverty in seizing its victims often takes from them all moral liberty, a serious man, who sees his brothers suffering, cannot but thank God for having been preserved from the scourge; then he tries to bring some comfort to them, and by the work of charity his own soul is ennobled; thus it is that several of our working families have this winter aided the pastor of Fresnoy in the distribution of the needed help. The necessity of providing for pressing wants, does not always stifle piety; more than one who during the calm leaves the Master to his repose, awakes him in the midst of the tempest with the cry, "Lord, save us, we perish." Indifferent and scoffing in abundance, he becomes serious and docile in distress. A member of one of our new churches said, not long since, to an evangelist, as he looked toward his shop, silent for several weeks for want of work, "The good God, who provides for the little birds, will not forget us. Even if he were to afflict us more heavily, I should have no right to complain, for I have deserved a hundred times all God's chastisements." Are not those in whom trial produces such peace the children of God? Does not trial turn for them into a blessing?—P. 19.

"By their fruits ye shall know them."

As to the fruits of the work, [at Crèvecœur,] if any one, a few years ago, had seen the head of a family working until noon on the Sabbath, and then going to spend the afternoon and part of the night at a tavern, and if he had seen him now, going reverently to church morning and evening, and returning quietly home to his own house, would he not attribute this change to the effects of the gospel? Such are its blessed results upon some of our friends at Crèvecœur.—P. 22.

Report of the Section of Normandie.

The town of Elbeuf presents us a little Protestant flock, composed mainly of labouring men. During the troubles of this winter, several persons have met every Monday in the vestry to work with their needles; these were the wives of the working-men, almost paupers, sewing for other poor people. The meetings on the Sabbath and on Thursday for instruction are well attended. The boys' school numbers fifty-two scholars, the girls' sixteen.

This is the twelfth year of the perseverance and patience of our brethren of Sainte-Opportune-la-Campagne; they have still to wait a tardy justice for their school. This school is as yet interdicted; we have not been without hope during the last year, but we have been disappointed. So also at Fumechon, where the church is closed. We have nothing to add to our claims on behalf of this church and school. We encourage the consistory to persevere in its firm representations to the proper authority.

If we have not the school, we have the teacher, who, from house to house, all day long, instructs young people, who have been kept long in ignorance, but who, we hope, will soon attain the ordinary level of the surrounding country. One result of the evangelical ministry at Sainte-Opportune, is, undoubtedly, the progress of morality. Manners are more respectful, drunkenness is almost unknown, peace is extending her reign over more and more of the households, and jealousy and hatred, so bitter and strong among the peasants, are yielding more and more to concord and Christian sentiments.

At Pont-Audemer M. and Mme. Prévost, like Aquilla and Priscilla formerly, continue to receive the church in their house. A Sunday-school has been commenced there.

One of our agents in Normandie—it will be easily understood why we do not specify the place—writes us these lines:

"One of our young girls had been apprenticed; when her time had almost expired, she was brought back to us, sick, as we soon found, with consumption. Poor nourishment, and scarcity of the remedies which poverty cannot obtain, allowed the disease to make frightful progress. If the poet's lines on 'The Fall of the Leaves' excite pity, think what must be excited by the sight of a young girl dying of languor, under her rags, on a straw bed, sucking celery-leaves, her only refreshment after bitter medicine. At this sight, which touches our hearts, our tears flow; we prepare to go and knock at the rich man's door, we rise—but no, it is too late, or rather it has never been necessary, according to what the young girl herself says. She does not complain of her condition, she is joyful in it—joyful because sickness has taken her from service, and enabled her to resume her former place of catechumen. She no longer lives by bread, but by the word of God; she recites portions of it with her dying voice; she will be satisfied if God will spare her life until Easter, that she may take the communion before she dies. She has died since Easter in the peace of her Saviour."

What shall we add to this history? That it is not the only one that the work of evangelization among the Catholics has produced this year.

The department of Normandie employs two pastors, three male and one female teacher; the latter provides for the instruction of four places. —Pp. 23—25.

Glowing Hopes.

The report which we have just read is summed up by a thanksgiving to our great Lord, whose inexhaustible mercy has been bestowed in blessings on our work. He has blessed our Society, because he presides there, because his reign in our country and in our churches is our aim and our occupation every day. It is he who has procured us the aid of our brethren; it is he who has made fruitful the work of our agents, who has converted and saved souls; and he has done it for his own glory.

The evangelization of France is advancing; it will advance still more, according to our Saviour's promise.

The apostle St. John, in Patmos, had a glorious vision, which has been visible, in a manner, to the eyes of Christians in all the great periods of the church's history. (Rev. xiv. 6.) He saw an angel carrying the eternal gospel, who was flying through the sky. In a powerful voice he announced it to all nations, to all tribes, to all peoples, to all tongues! And in his rapid flight he came from Asia into Greece, from Greece into Italy, from Italy into Gaul. Our fathers, in their turn, saw him pass, with the same gospel, from Germany into Switzerland, into France, into England, into America.

He is again here. He traverses our country; he presents the eternal gospel to the people, whom a contemptible materialism, a fanatical ultramontanism, and a bitter and withering unbelief, have attempted to seduce. He visits our churches; we shall see him fly with the words of the Almighty from town to village, from hamlet to city; we shall see him spread the good news for which the nations are waiting. He will visit other regions; he will go to Italy, which is hoping for him; to Spain, which seems to fear him; Austria and Russia will receive him—what am I saying?—the whole world will know the eternal gospel! To all nations! To all tribes!—Pp. 35, 36.

MISCELLANY.

THE CREED OF ST. PATRICK.

The oldest piece of writing in the sweet Irish tongue is called "St. Patrick's armour, or breastplate." It is a prayer or hymn, written when St. Patrick was going to Tara, to preach before the king and nobles of Ireland; and at that time all the great people in Ireland were Pagans, and he greatly feared he should be killed at Tara. Now, it is remarkable that St. Patrick should have written such a prayer at a time of such great trouble, and not once mention the name of the Virgin Mary in it! Yet we find there is not one word in the whole prayer addressed to any but to God alone. He does not once ask the help of the Virgin Mary. Hear the prayer of St. Patrick:—

"At Tara to-day, the strength of God pilot me—the power of God preserve me—may the wisdom of God instruct me—the eye of God watch over me—the ear of God hear me—the word of God give me sweet talk—the hand of God defend me—the way of God guide me. Christ be with me—Christ before me—Christ after me—Christ in me—Christ under me—Christ over me—Christ on my right hand—Christ on my left hand—Christ on this side—Christ on that side—Christ at my back—Christ in the heart of every person to whom I speak—Christ in the mouth of every person who speaks to me—Christ in the eye of every person who looks upon me—Christ in the ear of every person who hears me at Tara to-day."

Now this is the doctrine and faith of St. Patrick, and not one word is there in it about the Virgin Mary. This is the faith of Protestants, therefore St. Patrick and Protestants agree.

THE TRICKS OF PRIESTS IN INDIA.

You have heard much about the idols of India, but you have not heard, perhaps, how the people support their temples and their religion. The way is this. When the priests want the money, they use every deceitful art to get it from the people. Sometimes they put fetters of iron on their idol gods, and bind them hand and foot. In this condition they carry them round the villages, while the priests declare that their gods are in debt, and money must be given to redeem them. As soon as the people see the state of their idols, they bring their gold to the priests, and then the chains are struck off.

Another trick they practise is to tell the people that a terrible disease has fallen on the idols. They bring them to the temple-door, and rub their brows and cheeks with different kinds of herbs; besides which, they set various medicines before them. But as they pretend all their trouble is in vain, they send out messengers to tell the people of the illness of their gods; and that except they send money, they will die. The simple natives are again deceived and give their money, and then the idols are once more cured and set up on their thrones.

No wonder these priests do not like the missionaries to come among them, for they expose all these falsehoods to the ignorant multitude. They would much rather the poor heathen should perish in their blindness, if they can only make money by it, than that they should be taught the truth, and raised to be men and Christians.—The Carrier Dove.

COMING CLEAR OUT.

Ko-San-lone, one of the native converts whom brother Wade brought with him to this country, had, on one occasion, been taking notice of the style in which many professing Christians in this country live, and of the apparently little difference that exists, in too many instances, between Christians and the people of the world. Making a large sweep with his arm, he said, "When the disciples in my country come out from the world, they come clear out." What a call upon American Christians to remember the words of the apostle—"Be not conformed to this world."—Religious Herald.

A HEALTHFUL CONDITION.

Practical Christianity brooks not restraint. The word of God must not be bound. It pines away in inaction. It wants the mountain track and mountain breeze to give it health and vigour. No better antidote to its corruption of doctrine, no better preservative of its brotherly love could have been discovered, than in the hearty and resolute discharge of the responsibility committed to it—of any, of all, the most sublime—the moral conquest of the world, the present and everlasting salvation of mankind.—Hamilton's Essay on Missions.

GIVING FROM THE HEART.

It is related of Andrew Fuller, that on a begging tour for the cause of missions, he called on a certain wealthy nobleman to whom he was unknown, but who had heard much of Fuller's talents and piety. After he had stated to him the object of his visit, his lordship observed that he thought he should make him no donation. Mr. Fuller was preparing to return, when the nobleman remarked that there was one man, to whom, if he could see him, he thought he would give something for the mission, and that man was Andrew Fuller. Mr. Fuller immediately replied, "My name, sir, is Andrew Fuller." On this the nobleman, with some hesitation, gave him a guinea. Observing the indifference of the donor, Mr. Fuller, looking him in the face with much gravity, said, "Does this donation, sir, come from your heart? If it does not, I wish not to receive it." The nobleman was melted and overcome with this honest frankness, and taking from his purse ten guineas more, said, "There, sir, these come from my heart."

Men should give to the cause of missions cheerfully. They should do good with a good motive. "The Lord loveth the cheerful giver."

VALUE OF MISSIONS.

A correspondent of the Presbyterian Herald relates that a dying man once addressed his clergyman, and told him that at one time he thought the missionary cause a delusion, and its supporters visionary and enthusiastic, but he was led to think otherwise by the following occurrence.

One night, during an illness, as he awoke from a sleep, and recalled where he was, he opened the curtains to see if any were watching with him; his two dear sons were sitting, one on each side of his bed, and they immediately bent forward to know what he wished. The recollection of what had been said at the missionary meeting a few nights before instantly flashed across his mind; he had heard of the drowning or forsaking of parents on account of illness, and he asked himself to what he owed the difference? Why was he not taken to the banks of some river and allowed to perish? How was it that he had his dear children and friends leaning over him, and watching every desire and want, and esteeming it a privilege to assist and take care of him? "Ah!" he exclaimed, "it is to the power of the gospel of Jesus Christ I owe this; I used to think it worse than useless to send men and money abroad, when there was so much need of them at home, and that we ought to wait to see much more of the fruits of the gospel among ourselves, before we sent it to others; but," said he, "I was wrong. If the first Christians had waited until the Jews had all been converted, I should not have had my two sons bending over me, no affectionate family to cheer me, and I should have perished without a hope of heaven."

PSALM CXVII—IN HINDUSTANI.

Yahowáh ki tárif.

1. Jahán men jitne rahte hain—
Jo samá tale baste hain,
Hamd i Yahowáh sab karen;
Mubárak use sab kahen.

2. Khudá ká rahm barú hai;
Sachcháí bhí uskí sadá hai;
Nám uskí phaile hadd talak;
Hamesha uskí ho jhalak.

[From the Psalm and Hymn Book in use in the Lodiana Mission.]

"I AM NOT AFRAID TO DIE."—THE DECLARATION OF A HINDOO BOY IN PROSPECT OF DEATH.

"A few weeks ago," writes a missionary, "I sent a sick boy to the hospital. He was about eleven years old. He was always a well-behaved boy, but he never evinced any signs of grace before his illness. It seems, however, as if the seed sown during health was to take root in the season of affliction. While he lay, day after day, in the sick ward, surrounded only by Hindoos and Mussulmans, he quietly lifted up his heart to God in prayer, and read his Bengali New Testament. He grew weaker and weaker, but his faith seemed to grow stronger, and his hope clearer He was delighted when any one went to speak to him of Jesus, and would join in prayer with much earnestness. One day he seemed very happy, and he told me what made him so. 'Sahib,' said he, 'I am putting my whole trust in the Lord Jesus Christ. He died for me, and I trust only in him. I believe he has forgiven my sins and will receive me.'" This was the simple faith which all of us should possess.—Juv. Miss. Mag.

FEAR OF DEATH.

Among the Chinese, the fear of death is distressing. Their imagination has invented no fewer than ten hells. One is stuck full of knives; another an iron boiler full of scalding water; another of cold ice; in another, the punishment consists in pulling out the tongue; another is full of poisonous serpents; in another, the victim is drawn in pieces; another is a hell of blackness and darkness. You may hear them praying—"May I not fall into the hell of swords—of serpents—of boiling water," &c. I bring this forward to show that, to some extent, they are crying out, "What shall I do to be saved?" Is there one here who will refuse to say, "Exert yourselves to the utmost to carry the gospel to every creature"?—Rev. Dr. Morrison.

DONATIONS
TO THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS
IN JULY, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.—Pby of Albany—Amsterdam Village ch 61; Little Falls ch mo con 22 58 83 58

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.—Pby of Hudson——Hopewell ch 10; Monroe ch 18. Pby of North River—Kingston 1st ch 6 mo cons 30; Bethlehem ch 35. Pby of Long Island—Huntington South ch 20 36. Pby of New York—42d street ch mo con 11 41; Brick ch mo con 35 75; 5th Avenue and 19th street ch Mission chapel 2 10; Chelsea ch mo con 13; 15th street ch mo con 20; Rutgers' street ch Youths' Miss'y Ass'n 181 51; First ch mo con 22 38. Pby of New York 2d—Canal street ch N. Y. 10; Scotch ch John Taylor Johnston 150; James B. Johnston 100; Wm Post 38; Mrs Ferguson 25; Peekskill ch 15 55. Pby of Connecticut—Rye ch 142 52. Pby of Nassau—Williamsburgh ch mo con 26 76; Sab school for Futtehgurh mission 25; Astoria ch 23 48; Newtown ch 70 56 1026 38

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.—Pby of Elizabethtown—Plainfield ch 20. Pby of Passaic—Elizabeth 2d ch 225; Newark 3d ch Sab school 12 25. Pby of Newton—Belvidere ch 100. Pby of Susquehanna—Towanda ch Sab school 15. Pby of Luzerne—Pittston ch 50, Sab school 5 76; Mauch Chunk ch 25. Pby of Monmouth—Jamesburg ch to cons W. H. Courter L M 30 483 01

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.—Pby of Philadelphia—West Arch street ch, an Elder 100; West Spruce street ch Sab school 50. Pby of Philadelphia Central North ch mo con, in part 22. Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Slatington ch Sab school 5; Brainerd ch 42, of which 6 50 from Sab school; Providence ch 15. Pby of Huntingdon—Williamsburgh ch 34 54; Shaver's Creek ch 7; Shirleysburgh ch 12. Pby of Northumberland—Rohrsburg ch Fem Miss'y Soc'y 6; Chilisquaque ch Fem Miss'y Soc'y 17 75; Mooresburg ch 7 51 318 80

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.—Pby of Baltimore—First ch, Balt. Geo S Brown, Esq. 250; Central ch Balt. Sab school 18. Pby of Carlisle—Bedford ch, Mrs. E W Bard 5; Shippensburg ch Sab school 17 34. Pby of Potomac. New York Avenue ch, Washington, D. C. 53 83 344 17

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.—Pby of Ohio—Canonsburgh ch 20. Pby of Blairsville—New Salem ch Sab sch 5; Union ch 21 35; Ebensburg ch 25. Pby of Clarion—Mt Tabor ch 5 75; Mill Creek ch 1 25. Pby of Saltsburgh—Bethel and Jacksonville chs 25; Currie's Run ch 5 108 35

SYNOD OF WHEELING.—Pby of Washington—East Buffalo ch 1. Pby of Steubenville—Annapolis ch Sab school 3; Amsterdam ch Sab school 2. Pby of New Lisbon—Glasgow ch 8; Poland ch. Young People's Miss'y Soc'y add'l 3 57; Thos L Lexton, 7th Reg't O. V. 1; 1st ch New Lisbon 22 90. Pby of St. Clairsville—Woodsfield ch 2; Buchanan ch 2; Newcastle ch 1; Bealsville ch 4; Beech Spring ch 1 51 47

SYNOD OF OHIO.—Pby of Columbus—First ch Columbus, mo con 20 89, special, for Africa, 5, Sab sch, to con Mrs KATE ROBINSON L M, 30; Lower Liberty ch 2 92. Pby of Marion—Mount Gilead ch Sab sch 1; Corinth ch 2 08; Little Middle Creek ch 1; Wyandot ch mo con 2 30, Sab sch 2 90. Pby of Richland—Jefferson ch 8. Pby of Hocking—Gallipolis 1st ch 3 79 09

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.—Pby of Michigan—Bennington ch 8 00

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.—Pby of Chillicothe—Union ch Sab sch 1 04. Pby of Miami—Springfield 1st ch 5; Dayton 1st ch Sab sch 37 25. Pby of Cincinnati—Cincinnati 7th ch Sab sch 14 25. Pby of Oxford—Oxford ch Sab sch 5. Pby of Sidney—Piqua 1st ch Sab sch 5 67 54

SYNOD OF INDIANA.—Pby of Madison—Pleasant ch 3 66. Pby of Indianapolis—Hopewell ch 25 65 29 31

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.—Pby of Lake—Constantine ch 4 77

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.—Pby of Palestine—Grand View ch 11 85. Pby of Sangamon—Springfield First ch Sab schs, for Ningpo schs, 62 95. Pby of Peoria—Henry City 1st ch 25; Princeville ch 11 90. Pby of Hillsboro'—Greenville ch 10. Pby of Bloomington—Farm Ridge ch 8 50; Reading ch 2 50; Deer Creek ch 5 137 70

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.—Pby of Schuyler—Doddsville ch Sab school 3 05; Camp Creek ch, Rev Joseph Platt 30. Pby of Rock River—Sterling ch 20 25; Franklin Grove ch 2 55 30

SYNOD OF WISCONSIN.—Pby of Dane—Platteville German ch 1 10

SYNOD OF ST. PAUL.—Pby of Chippewa—Rochester ch, Minn. 1 00

SYNOD OF IOWA.—Pby of Dubuque—Dubuque 1st ch mo con 10 00

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.—Pby of Iowa—Westminster ch 14. Pby of Fairfield—Bentonsport ch 10 24 00

SYNOD OF UPPER MISSOURI.—Pby of Highland—Carlyle ch 5 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.—Pby of St. Louis—Zion ch 2; Bethel ch 18 45; Emanuel ch 3; Kirkwood ch, Mrs D A Wilson 2 50 25 95

SYNOD OF KENTUCKY.—Pby of Louisville—Hebron ch, Rev Robert Morrison 3; Louisville 1st ch mo cons 29; Louisville 2d ch mo cons 31; Shiloh and Olivet chs 5; Portland Avenue ch, two Ladies 2. Pby of Transylvania—Richmond ch Sab sch 13 40; New Providence ch 12 70; Harrodsburg ch 24 95. Pby of West Lexington—Pisgah ch, bal, 1. Pby of Ebenezer—Catlettsburgh ch 6 75 129 80

SYNOD OF VIRGINIA.—Pby of Greenbrier—Western ch 5 87

Total received from churches, $3,000 19

LEGACIES.—Legacy of James Smith, dec'd, Bucyrus, Ohio, 100; Bequest of Rev R J Moore, late Student in Western Theological Seminary, 100; Legacy of John Leyda, dec'd, Penn. 210 410 00

SEMINARIES.—Knightstown Fem College, Ind. 9 37

MISCELLANEOUS.—E 100; Mrs J C Hall, for Corisco, 5; a Friend, to sup of Rev Ira Condit, Canton, 5; Reformed ch, Hackensack, N. J. 33 77; Little Bell Williams, a little girl, 50 cts; A Thank-offering 2; Miss H E Sneed, Mo. 50 cts; Mrs C Johnson, Baltimore, to ed Reverdy Johnson and Caroline Patterson at Corisco, 40; Col Loomis 10; Avails of Breastpin, sold from Ohio, 20; a Lady of Delaware 5; a Friend of Missions in India 14; Alexander Maun, Grandview, Ill., to con self L M, 50; W W Annan, Allegheny City 5; Rev Wm H Cain, Ione Valley, Cal. 12; Rev David Stevenson, Cal. 20 50; Ref. Dutch ch, San Francisco, per Rev P S Williamson, 17 20 340 47

Total Receipts in July, 1862, $3,760 03

A Box of Clothing from Bethel ch, Blairsville, Penn. valued at $20 29.

WM. RANKIN, JR., Treasurer.

NOTICES.
BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

LETTERS relating to the Missions, or other operations of the Board, may be addressed to WALTER LOWRIE, Esq., or Rev. JOHN C. LOWRIE, Secretaries, Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

LETTERS relating to the pecuniary affairs of the Board, or containing remittances of money, may be sent to WILLIAM RANKIN, Jr., Esq., Treasurer—same address.

THE FOREIGN MISSIONARY.—Two editions of this publication are printed. The Pamphlet edition contains 32 pages, and is published monthly, at 50 cents a year for each copy. It is sent free, when desired, to donors of ten dollars and upwards, and to the ministers of our churches.

The Newspaper edition contains a selected portion of the contents of the pamphlet edition. A copy is sent free of charge, except for postage, to the children of each family in every Sabbath-school making regular contributions to the Treasury of the Board.

Address for either edition, "The Foreign Missionary," Mission House, 23 Centre Street, New York.

PAYMENTS OF MONEYS for the Board may also be made at

Albany, New York, to the Rev. J. N. Campbell, D. D.;
Philadelphia, Pa, Samuel D. Powel, 910 Arch Street;
Pittsburg, Pa., Harvey Childs;
Cincinnati, Ohio, John D. Thorpe;
Louisville, Ky, Andrew Davidson;
Memphis, Tenn., J. B. Kirtland;
St. Louis, Mo., David Keith;
Natchez, Miss., Thomas Henderson;
Richmond, Va, Henry C. Watkins;
Columbia, S. C., H. C. Bronson;
Augusta, Geo, James W. Davies.

BOXES OF CLOTHING, intended for the Missions of the Board, may be sent to the Mission House, or to any of the agents of the Board, and should be preceded or accompanied by a written statement of the source whence they came, and of the value of their contents in detail.

OVERLAND MAIL.—Letters for the Overland Mail are forwarded from the Mission House by the steamers nearest the first and fifteenth of each month. Postage: from New York, to SIAM, CHINA, JAPAN, and BRAZIL, forty five cents for each half ounce weight; but if sent by the French mail, thirty cents for each quarter ounce weight: to LIBERIA and CORISCO, thirty three cents for each half ounce weight: to INDIA, via Southampton, thirty-six cents for each half-ounce weight; via Marseilles, forty two cents for a quarter-ounce weight, forty nine cents for a half ounce weight, sixty seven for three-quarter-ounce weight, seventy four for an ounce weight, a dollar and five cents for an ounce and a half weight. Letters to be forwarded by the "French mail," or to India, "via Marseilles," must be so marked. Postage on newspapers, six cents each. The postage on letters and newspapers must be prepaid. The letters forwarded from the Mission House to each Mission are put in an outside envelope, and therefore stamps should not be affixed to them. The postage is assessed according to the weight of each letter, and may be paid by sending postage stamps to the Mission House.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—The Board is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. The corporate name to be used is—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Certificates, of Honorary Membership, on the payment of Thirty Dollars; of Honorary Directors, One Hundred Dollars.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

PUBLICATION ROOMS,
No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Letters relating to agencies, donations of books and tracts, the appointment of Colporteurs, the editorial department of the Record and Sabbath-school Visitor, and the general interests of the Board, to be addressed to the Rev. William E. Schenck, D. D., Corresponding Secretary, No. 821 Chestnut street.

All communications, reports, remittances of money, and orders for books, to be addressed to Mr. Winthrop Sargent, Superintendent of Colportage, and Business Correspondent.

Letters relating to manuscripts and books offered for publication, to be addressed to Rev. W. M. Engles, D D., Editor of the Board.

Donations to be remitted to James Dunlap, Esq., Treasurer.

THE SICK, THE WOUNDED, AND THE PRISONERS.

We may weary our readers by so constantly calling their attention to our need of funds. If so, we cannot help it. The pressure which is upon us is so great, that few of our readers can fully understand it. Thousands upon thousands of sick, wounded, and captive soldiers in our hospitals in every part of the North and West, are, through Christian friends, calling to us every day to send them religious reading. The colporteurs, chaplains, pious officers, and others, stretch out their hands to us for supplies of books and tracts, and the most of them are ready to perform the labour of distribution without pecuniary charge. Many of these poor soldiers are soon to die; it is our last opportunity to give them religious instruction.

But we are without means to give. As we write these lines, not one dollar remains in our Distribution Fund. The very last cent it contained has been given away. Meanwhile, there are applications lying before us for grants from many hospitals and camps in many states. We ask especial attention to the communication given below from W. Another, from a colporteur of the Board now labouring in Kentucky and Tennessee, pleads for larger supplies of books and tracts to be sent to him for distribution. "Unless you can do so," he says, "the most earnest, wide-spread, and affecting wants—wants of sick and dying men—must go unheeded by us. Even now I am frequently denying applicants for reading matter for suffering and dying men. I have tried to use the wisest discretion in all my distributions."

Will our readers wonder that, in such circumstances, we tell them over and over that our Distribution Fund is empty, or that we so often entreat individual Christians, churches, and Sabbath-schools, to do all they can to send us means to furnish these brave soldiers, many of them sick and dying, with religious reading. Each dollar sent to the Board will furnish fifteen hundred pages of tracts, or fifty hospital cards, or twenty Soldier's Pocket-Books. Who will send?

THE MILITARY HOSPITALS AT ST. LOUIS.

Military Prison, Alton, Ill.

Rev. Dr. Schenck, Cor. Sec., &c.

My Dear Sir—Permit me, before giving you an account of my very interesting, and, I believe, useful labours here, in distributing among the Southern prisoners the tracts and books furnished by your Board, to revert, for a few moments, to my equally interesting and useful work among the hospitals in and near St. Louis. There are now in those hospitals not less than forty-five hundred sick and wounded Union soldiers. Nearly one-half of these I have furnished with religious reading, and upon a large proportion of those thus furnished I have faithfully endeavoured to impress the necessity of turning at once to the Saviour, and securing the salvation of their immortal souls. I happen to know that upon many minds there has been left an impression which will not, I hope, be as the morning cloud, and as the early dew. That more than two thousand of these sick and wounded ones were left unsupplied, was—must I write it—because the stock was exhausted. That they have not been supplied since, is, you say, because the Distribution Fund of the Board has no money—because God's people have not given enough to complete a work so promising! When at the judgment we meet these neglected ones, for whose souls so few seem to care, will there be no reproaches for such neglect?

To one sincerely desirous of doing good, and willing to labour faithfully for Christ, these military hospitals afford most inviting fields. While a few seem given over to hardness of heart, and judicial blindness, there is with a vast majority that tenderness upon religious subjects which is always the cheering evidence of the presence of the Spirit. He may not often be found in the camp, but, unless I greatly err, He does abide in the hospital. Oh that Christians would remember this, and at once do what they can for the spiritual welfare of the sick and dying soldier, ere he passes into the eternal world! I can state but a few of the many interesting cases that are met with every hour.

"What are your prospects for eternity?" I inquire of a young man, about seventeen years of age, as I bend over his bed. "Bright, to-day—my Saviour and his promises are doubly precious to my soul," is the prompt response. "Do you feel able to talk a little of these things?" I ask. "Yes, indeed—it is seldom I have a chance," is the answer. And so I sit at his bed-side, and we talk of the heavenly home, and its "sweet fields arrayed in living green"—of the New Jerusalem, and its fadeless glories—of our Elder Brother, and the inheritance incorruptible and undefiled—till the face of the young and patient sufferer is radiant with the expression of an unfaltering faith and a sustaining hope. As I arise to go, he stretches his attenuated arm and trembling hand to mine, and says, "Do come again to see me; this little talk has done me so much good." Here and there we find such, but, alas! all are not thus ready to depart and be with Christ.

"And does this sick soldier love the Lord Jesus Christ, and can he sing of victory over death and the grave?" I ask of one apparently near the eternal world. "Oh no!—if I only could!" is the answer that falls from his quivering lips. He says he knows that he ought to love One who has first loved him, and died for him, and he seems earnestly inquiring what he must do to be saved. I try to direct him to the Saviour who was lifted up on the cross, "that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life." He seems to feel that he is a lost sinner, and I try to tell him how, humbly and penitently confessing his sins, and discarding all other trusts and refuges, he must go to Christ, crying, "Lord, save, I perish." I tell him that he will find the Saviour precious when he thus truly cries, and he promises faithfully to seek the Beloved till he finds him. And then, commending him to the Saviour, I leave him with a promise that, in compliance with his earnest wish, I will see him on the morrow. He promises to read, in the meantime, the little book called "A Letter on Conversion to God," and the tract, "Barry, the Soldier; or Try Christ," which I leave with him. On the morrow, he hopes that in the night watches he threw himself, just as he was, into his Saviour's arms, received the forgiveness of his sins, and can now shout "Victory!" over death and hell. For this let us thank God, take fresh courage, and labour on in faith, and patience, and prayer.

In another ward I find one who at first has all the complacent self-righteousness of the young man who once went to Christ. When I ask him if he truly loves and serves God, he replies, that he has always obeyed his commands, and never intentionally sinned against him. I tell him I am glad to hear that, if it is true, and then add, "Can you, now, my friend, appeal to the great Searcher of Hearts, and declare that you have faithfully and fully kept the commandment, 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might'?" He seemed troubled; he did not—he could not say "Yes." Silently praying that fit and efficient words might be given me, I told him that God had pronounced us all sinners, and that there was but one way of salvation. I pointed him to that fountain in which alone all our defilement and guilt can be washed away, and urged him to throw aside the filthy rags of his self-righteousness, and receive the wedding-garment offered him—the white robe of the Redeemer's righteousness. Ere I had finished, his attention was arrested, and his eyes were filled with tears. Putting into his hands some books and tracts suited to his case, I left him, with a promise on his part that he would, with earnest prayer for divine light and guidance, seek the salvation of his soul.

These, my dear sir, are but the repeated incidents of the hour, and some of us, as we witness them, believe them more than an adequate return for our wearisome and self-denying labour, and the few dollars expended in the work. Yet, after all, how little can we know of the full results of all this seed-sowing! These eternity alone can disclose; and, if doing good is our object, shall we not consider the result fully adequate—shall we not be abundantly repaid—if we but save one soul from eternal death? Is it possible that God will not fulfil his promise, and bless his word, and prosper it in the thing whereunto he sends it? He will, he will—and we will trust him, and leave results with him, while we labour on in our appointed lots.

And now, what is to be done? Shall this great and good work go forward, or shall it stop? Shall these wonderful opportunities for usefulness be improved? or, because they do not return us dollar for dollar in money, shall they pass unimproved, and rise up to condemn us, with trumpet-tongues, in the judgment? Will not every church, and every Christian, every Sabbath-school, and every Sabbath-school scholar in the land, do something to put religious reading—the invaluable and popular publications of our own Board—into the hands of our soldiers? While we have done much, we have but half-commenced the work God has given us to do. Our army is not half-supplied. Urgent appeals from colporteurs and chaplains are denied, because the Distribution Fund of the Board is overdrawn. In Quincy, Illinois, are at least five hundred sick soldiers, to whom we have not been able to give a single page; and in Keokuk, Iowa, are two thousand more, to whom we have not been able to send a single tract! In a short time the hundreds just supplied will be dead or convalescent, and their hospital beds will be filled with others. Next month, if not before, we should go over the ground we have sown to-day. From hundreds of crowded hospitals, where men are dying and going down to eternal death, from thousands of camps where immortal souls are perishing, rolls up the Macedonian cry for help. Shall it be heeded or disregarded? Will the church do her duty, and stretch out her hands to save these immortal souls? Shall the great work in which our Board is now engaged go forward, or shall it cease? These are momentous questions. May God help our church, and each individual member, to answer them well and wisely!

Yours truly, W.

WORK DONE AMONG SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

The following is part of a report for one month, made by a colporteur of the Board, labouring in the ships, camps, and hospitals, in and near Philadelphia.

"There have been distributed in the course of the month—129,709 pages of tracts, 2781 copies of the 'Soldier's Pocket-Book,' 148 copies of the 'Sailor's Companion,' and 21 miscellaneous volumes. Total, of pages, 129,709; volumes, 2950.

"There have been fragments of six regiments, amounting to 4300 men, visited in camps and barracks: 270 men on their passage through the city from New York to Washington, have been intercepted at the Refreshment Saloons, and supplied with Pocket Books. The Hospital of the latter places, also the Military Hospital in Christian street, numbering in all, about 70 men, have been visited and furnished with pocket books, tracts, and cards, (The Sinner's Resolve.) The following named ships at the Navy Yard, have also been visited and supplied, to wit., the Joseph L. Davis, Hartford, Adolph Heigel, George Mangan, St. Louis, Rhode Island, Miami. Total of ships 6; of sailors 977. Total of soldiers and sailors, and invalid soldiers, visited during the month, 5617.

"In the prosecution of my work the Navy Yard has been visited twenty-one times, the Refreshment Saloons eleven times, the Military Hospital twice, and the camps and barracks in the neighbourhood of the city frequently.

"The publications of the Board thus distributed, have been received during the past month with as great, if not greater, eagerness and thankfulness, than those previously distributed. Army chaplains and officers still apply for them, and bear the same testimony to their value and usefulness. Some of the commanders of vessels visited, received the gifts of 'Sailor's Companions' and tracts with peculiar gratitude, and expressed hearty thanks to the Board. On revisiting one of the larger ships, I found several of the men quietly seated on the lower deck, industriously engaged in reading some of the tracts I had left a day or two before. I felt thankful to God that he had permitted me to be the instrument of placing the precious pages in their hands. 'The day' only, will declare the good they may have been the means of effecting. In one of my visits to the Hospitals of the Refreshment Saloons, I addressed an elderly looking invalid, offering him a copy of the Soldier's Pocket-Book; he put his hand into an inner breast-pocket and produced a duplicate of the book I had offered him. He said he belonged to an eastern regiment, and that the book had been given him by his chaplain several months ago, and that he had read it so often that he had it almost committed to memory. I attended several prayer-meetings in Colonel S's regiment, conducted by some pious officers, and participated in the exercises of one of them. The 'Soldier's Pocket-Book' was used as a hymn-book, and after the meeting was over, the men congregated in little knots and continued singing the hymns out of it.

"There were many encouraging incidents during the month, and my heart was often made glad in the prosecution of my work. May the Lord be pleased to add his blessing in a large and abundant increase, for Christ's sake.

R."

THE "SOLDIER'S POCKET-BOOK."

This little book continues to go more and more widely abroad upon its errand of love. Orders are continually coming for it from all parts of the country for the supply of our soldiers. Many of these orders come from persons of other denominations, who pronounce it the very best manual for a soldier that can be found. Several thousands have been sent to New England for the supply of the regiments newly formed there.

The gathering of a new army of six hundred thousand men affords a noble opportunity for those who have the ability and the disposition to do good. Are there not individuals in our churches who will send us the means to help give the "Pocket-Book" to the new regiments? We would gladly furnish tens of thousands, but our Fund is empty.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

I. The Converted Sailor. Tract No. 226. By the Rev. Charles J. Jones, Pastor of the Mariner's Church, New York. Pp. 4.

A very interesting narrative of conversion brought about through the instrumentality of a tract given to a sailor by a little girl. It affords much encouragement to tract-distributors.

II. Where are the Nine? Luke xvii. 17. Tract No. 239. An address to persons recovered from sickness. Pp. 8.

An earnest and solemn expostulation against ingratitude to God.

III. Am I a Soldier? Tract No. 240. Pp. 4.

A pointed appeal and remonstrance, addressed to a soldier, and well adapted to do him good.

IV. A Recruiting Song. By a Lady. Printed on stiff card, 2 pages. Price 6 cents per dozen.

A capital song for the camp, the Sabbath-school, or anywhere else.

Donations received for General Colportage, and for the Soldiers and Sailors, by the Presbyterian Board of Publication, during the month of July, 1862.

Pby of Troy—Park ch Sab sch, per Rev G H Robertson	25 00
Pby of Ogdensburg—Oswegatchie ch	10 45
Pby of Genesee River—Central ch Genesco	10 00
Pby of Rochester City—Phelps ch	9 00
Pby of Hudson—Deer Park 1st ch	13 60
Pby of New York—Forty-second street ch 18 51; Madison Avenue ch 35	53 51
Pby of Elizabethtown—New Providence ch, per P E Stevenson	25 00
Pby of West Jersey—Pittsgrove ch 10; Deerfield ch 11	21 00
Pby of Monmouth—Jamesburg ch, bal to con Mrs Wells hon mem 10; Freehold ch 15	25 00
Pby of Donegal—Wrightsville ch Sab sch	8 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Milroy ch	11 00
Pby of Baltimore—Frederick ch	11 25
Pby of Carlisle—Gettysburg ch 5; Shippensburgh ch 54; Silver Spring ch 28; Burnt Cabins ch 4; Lower Path Valley ch 8	99 00
Pby of Ohio—Central ch Pittsburgh	11 00
Pby of Washington—Northumberland ch 9; Wheeling Fourth ch 20; Wheeling Third ch 3 51	32 51
Pby of St Clairsville—Short Creek ch	4 15
Pby of Columbus—Lower Liberty ch	1 35
Pby of Marion—Corinth ch	65
Pby of Zanesville—Zanesville 1st ch 10 60; Salem German ch 5	15 60
Pby of Wooster—Marshallville ch 2; Chippewa ch 4; Canal Fulton ch 6	12 00
Pby of Logansport—Lafayette 1st ch 11 13; Rensselaer ch 5	16 13
Pby of Lake—Valparaiso ch	13 61
Pby of Kaskaskia—Trenton ch	5 00
Pby of Schuyler—Sparta ch 3; Vermont ch 3 50	6 50
Pby of Dane—Richland Centre ch 2; Richland City ch 2 35; Fancy Creek ch 1	5 35
Pby of Winnebago—Depere ch	8 46
Pby of Dubuque—Dubuque 1st ch Sab school 10; Sherrold's Mound ch 6	16 00
Pby of Iowa—Westminster ch	5 05
Pby of Fairfield—Crawfordsville ch 3 75; Bentonsport ch 10	13 75
Pby of St. Louis—St. Louis 2d ch 77 75; Nazareth ch 3	80 75
MISCELLANEOUS.
P E Stevenson, Army Meeting, New York, add'l, 23; Rev D R Todd 1; A Chapman, M D, Alquina, Ind. 5	29 00
	$598 67
Deduct the contribution from the "South Salem" Sab sch, Ill. May 1, the amount being intended for the purchase of books,	10 00
	$588 67

Special Donations for Sailors and Soldiers.

C M Wilson, Belville, Pa. 1; Mrs Mary Robertson 1; Mrs D J McCann, Philipsburg, Pa. 1; A J Butler, New Brunswick, N. J. 10; H E McCord, Freedom Plains 3; "Elma," Herriotsville, Pa. 1; A S Fonda, for the Sab sch of the Presbyterian ch at Saratoga Springs, N. Y. 39 44; Mrs M Newkirk, add'l from the Male, Female, and Infant Sab sch of the Central ch, 2 37; "Anonymous, from Mrs R," 2; S D Ball, of Lock Haven Presbyterian ch Sab sch, 5; "Duty" religious reading 5; "Two Friends," Belleview, Iowa, 5; Gertrude B Decker, Oxford, Wis. 1; A member of the Seventh Presbyterian ch, for the soldiers, 5; Rev E B Edgar, for a lady, Westfield 1; J R Eckard, Easton, Pa. 20; N. B. The amount acknowledged in the last number of the Record as received from the Sab sch of the ch at Belvidere, N. J., per J M Sherrerd, Esq., should have been 27 instead of 17—difference 10 | 112 81 |
	$701 48
Amount of Sales during the month of July,	3054 17
Total,	$3755 65

JAMES DUNLAP, Treasurer.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. H. I. Coe.
Treasurer—Archibald Gamble, Esq.
No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Missouri.

Communications on the subject of Church Extension should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 88 Market Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Donations should be sent to Archibald Gamble, Esq., St. Louis, Mo.; or, if more convenient, to J. D. Thorpe, Esq., Cincinnati, Ohio; A. Davidson, Esq., Louisville, Ky.; S. D. Powel, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Domestic Missions, No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia; T. H. Nevin, Esq., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. J. B. Kirtland, Memphis, Tennessee; or to William Rankin, Esq., Treasurer of the Board of Foreign Missions, 23 Centre street, New York.

APPROPRIATIONS FROM THE GENERAL FUND.

No appropriation is made without the recommendation of the Presbytery, or the Church Extension Committee of the Presbytery within whose bounds the church applying for aid is located.

No appropriation is paid until the Board receives a certificate from the Trustees of the church aided, stating that their church lot is properly secured, and that the amount appropriated will complete their house of worship, and leave the whole property free from debt.

Appropriations not called for within two years of the date thereof, are regarded as withdrawn.

STRENGTH AND BEAUTY.

"Strength and beauty are in his sanctuary," says the Psalmist in the ninety-sixth Psalm. They are there as their dwelling-place. God's sanctuary is the treasury where strength and beauty for his people are garnered. Strength is in the sanctuary. Strength to resist temptations —to overcome sin—to grow in holiness—to ascend the hill of Zion. Strength is the constant need of the pilgrim Christian, as he toils up the rough steep way to glory. Strength is the ever-present want of the soldier of the cross, as he wrestles with principalities and powers and spiritual wickedness in high places. "Now, therefore, O God, strengthen my hands," was the prayer of Nehemiah, as he built the walls of Jerusalem in troublous times. "Be strong and of good courage," was the voice of God to Joshua, as he arose to go over Jordan. "Send thee help from the sanctuary and strengthen thee out of Zion," was the petition of David, as he set up his banners in the name of the Lord. That they might be strengthened with all might according to his glorious power, was the unceasing desire of Paul for the Colossian Christians. Beauty, too, abides in the sanctuary. Those graces of the Christian character which adorn the believer, the robes of his espousal—the things which are lovely and of good report—the ornaments of a great price, these all cluster about the shrine where the great congregations worship. If the child of God would robe himself in the attire of his high adoption, if he would shine in the glorious beauty of his heirship, he must repair to the sanctuary where his treasures of beauty are garnered.

While we remember these things, let us not forget the thousands of our brethren who have no sanctuary, and sympathize with their longings for the courts of the Lord's house.

MINISTERIAL SACRIFICES.

We have often called attention to the labours and sacrifices of ministers in building houses of worship. Vacant churches seldom build, and ministers in this, as in other matters, usually have the chief burden to bear. We present the subjoined letter from a minister in Indiana, as giving another of the constantly recurring instances of ministerial sacrifice in securing a sanctuary. The writer, who resides elsewhere, and is a member of the Committee of Presbytery, seconds the request of the church for an appropriation of $200, to aid in the erection of a house 36 by 50 feet, costing about $1800. He says, "You are very well acquainted with the state of the church at Laporte. You know that the field is an important one for our Presbytery. You know, too, that the church has long been in a languishing and feeble condition. You doubtless know, too, that one of the causes of this has been the miserable house of worship which they occupied. But the old house is gone. The people clung to it until it refused to shelter them. Yea, longer than that, until it actually threatened them, and its threatenings became so severe that there could be no longer any doubt that it must and would come down speedily, and with a crash, if let alone. But the old church is gone. After having been worn out by the Methodists, and then used by Old-school Presbyterians, (who, like saints of old, were wandering about, and if not in sheep-skins and goat-skins, were worshippers in by and forbidding places, as dens and caves of the earth,) the bricks of the old house have been taken down one by one, and cleaned off by the hand of the mason, and are now rising again, being supplemented by others in a new and pleasant and commodious house of worship. The few faithful ones that toil for this house, it seems to me, will weep, not as did the Jews when the second temple was consecrated, because its glory was so insignificant when compared with the glory of the first temple, but they will weep for joy that they have at last a pleasant, cheerful, delightful house of worship, in which they can worship God with gladness, and to which their friends and neighbours and the strangers within their gates will go up with joy, and not avoid as a pillory or a place for the infliction of penance. The church at Laporte has needed for many years a new edifice, but they refused to build. But now the Master has shaken them out of their old nest, and they have got to build or perish as a church organization. They have many difficulties to contend with, and some of them have to labour very hard. Mr. Goodman (their minister) is a brother-in-law, and therefore I know more than I otherwise would of the difficulties that he has had to contend with, and how much he has taken hold with his own hands, labouring with the trowel, the shovel, and the wheelbarrow, as well as soliciting subscriptions and hunting up material."

CHEERING INFLUENCE.

The pastor of the churches of Malden and Arlington, Illinois, speaking of appropriations to these churches, writes: "It is a most timely favour, and will be wonderfully encouraging to the little flock. The thought of getting out of debt these times, has a most happy effect. In the case of both the churches which I serve, the good effect of the aid received from the Church Extension Board is very manifest."

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY THE BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION, DURING THE MONTH OF JULY 1862.

Pby of Troy—Second Street ch Troy	38 93
Pby of Albany—Mariaville ch	5 00
Pby of Mohawk—Oswego 1st ch	74 24
Pby of Genesee River—Sparta 2d ch	6 00
Pby of Hudson—White Lake ch	9 00
Pby of New York—German ch New York	4 50
Pby of Bedford—Bedford ch add'l	50
Pby of New Brunswick—Pennington ch 20; Trenton 2d ch 11 07; Princeton 2d ch 20 51	51 58
Pby of West Jersey—Woodstown ch 3; Swedesboro' ch 2	5 00
Pby of Philadelphia—West Spruce Street ch 66; Chester ch 7	73 00
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Slatington ch	10 00
Pby of New Castle—White Clay Creek and Head of Christiana ch	16 00
Pby of Donegal—Little Britain ch	8 00
Pby of Northumberland—Ashland ch 3; Washington ch 10; Northumberland and Sunbury chs 11	24 00
Pby of Huntingdon—Sinking Valley ch 18 37; Logan's Valley ch 7	25 37
Pby of Baltimore—Annapolis ch 9; Frederic ch 75 cts	9 75
Pby of Carlisle—Gettysburg ch	4 00
Pby of Lewes—Dover ch 13 25, less 2 20 for Record	11 05
Pby of Saltsburgh—Indiana ch	30 00
Pby of Ohio—Pittsburg 1st ch	314 63
Pby of Allegheny—Union ch 7; Brady's Bend ch 8	15 00
Pby of Erie—Greenfield ch 4; Park ch Erie 20	24 00
Pby of Washington—Wheeling 3d ch 3 50; Forks of Wheeling ch 28; East Buffalo ch 5	36 50
Pby of New Lisbon—East Liverpool ch	5 75
Pby of Zanesville—Muskingum ch	7 00
Pby of Columbus—Lithopolis ch 12; Lower Liberty ch 2 58	14 58
Pby of Marion—Mount Gilead ch 13 60; Sandusky ch 2; Little Mill Creek ch 1 42; Corinth ch 82 cts; Iberia ch 5	22 84
Pby of Western Reserve—Westminster ch Cleveland	15 08
Pby of Michigan—Hudson ch	3 00
Pby of Chillicothe—Eckmansville ch	5 00
Pby of Miami—Greenville ch 3; Dayton 3d ch 24	27 00
Pby of Madison—Vernon ch 5; Lexington ch 5	10 00
Pby of Logansport—Delphi ch 5; Rossville ch 1	6 00
Pby of Fort Wayne—Kendallville ch 5 52; Bluffton ch 2 61; New Lancaster ch 2 87	11 00
Pby of Muncie—Union ch 5; Hartford ch 1	6 00
Pby of Palestine—Oakland ch	4 20
Pby of Hillsboro'—Zion German ch 3 65; St. John's ch 2 35	6 00
Pby of Sangamon—Springfield 3d ch	17 00
Pby of Bloomington—Towanda ch 12; Waynesville ch 6 21; Deer Creek ch 5	23 21
Pby of Schuyler—North Henderson ch 6; Westminster ch Quincy 6 18; Monmouth ch 29 85	42 03
Pby of Rock River—Sterling ch 13 38; Arlington ch 2 13	15 51
Pby of Chicago—Marengo ch 6; Aurora ch 5	11 00
Pby of Milwaukie—Westminster ch Beloit	11 94
Pby of Winnebago—Weyauwega ch 3 25; Newport ch 3 17; New Lisbon ch 2 45	8 87
Pby of St. Paul—Andrew ch St. Anthony	10 00
Pby of Chippewa—La Crescent ch	5 00
Pby of Dubuque—Dubuque 1st ch 10; Epworth ch 1; Wayne ch 1 75	12 75
Pby of Iowa—Middletown ch 3; Ononwa ch 1 60	4 60
Pby of Des Moines—Winterset ch	2 00
Pby of Fairfield—Ottumwa ch 3; Birmingham ch 5 15; Locust Grove ch 2 50; Crawfordsville ch 2 70; Washington ch 2 30	15 65
Pby of Missouri River—Clarinda ch 5; Hawleyville ch 2; Nebraska City ch 2 60	9 60
Pby of Highland—Westminster ch Leavenworth 10; Highland ch 10	20 00
Pby of St. Louis—Kirkwood ch 15; Bethel German ch 5; Nazareth German ch 3	23 00
Pby of Potosi—Bellevue ch 3; Brazeau ch 5	8 00
From churches,	$1179 66

MISCELLANEOUS.

Gertrude B Decker, Oxford, Wis. 1; A Friend, Quincy, Ill. 1; Rev S Mitchell, Kilbourn City, Wis. 4 38; A Z R Budge, Hampton, L. I. 2	8 38

Total Receipts in July, $1188 04
ARCHIBALD GAMBLE, Treasurer.

Ecclesiastical Record.

PASTORAL RELATION DISSOLVED.

The pastoral relation between the Rev. John Jones and the church at Wyoming has been dissolved by the Presbytery of Genesee River.

The pastoral relation between the Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby and the First Presbyterian church, New Brunswick, N. J., has been dissolved.

CALLS.

The Rev. Alfred Taylor has received a call to the church at Bristol, Pa.

The Rev. Luther H. Van Doren has received a call from the church at New Vernon, N. J.

The Rev. J. Y. Mitchell has received a call from the Coates street church, (N. S.) Philadelphia.

The Rev. Henry M. McCracken has accepted a call to supply the First church, Columbus, Ohio.

The Rev. S. B. Dod has received a call to the Presbyterian church, Monticello, N. Y.

The Rev. Robert Taylor has accepted a call from the Second Presbyterian church, Germantown, Pa.

The Rev. Alfred H. Kellogg has received a call from the Brainerd Presbyterian church, Easton.

ORDINATIONS AND INSTALLATIONS.

Mr. Edward H. Sayre was ordained as a missionary to the heathen, by the Presbytery of Long Island, on the 15th of July.

Mr. D. M. Miller was ordained and installed pastor of the church of Bethesda, by the Presbytery of New Lisbon, on the 18th of June.

The Rev. C. L. Thompson was installed pastor of the church of Janesville, Wis., by the Presbytery of Milwaukie, on the 9th of July.

Mr. Robert Beer was ordained and installed pastor of the church of Beloit, Wis., by the Presbytery of Milwaukie, on the 11th of July.

The Rev. George Ainslie was installed pastor of the church of Rochester, Minnesota, on the 13th of July.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESSES CHANGED.

Rev. John D. Pering from Vinton to Foreston, Iowa.

Rev. W. W. Campbell from Uniontown, Pa., to Parkersburg, Va.

Rev. James M. McNulty from Clarkson to Montgomery, N. Y.

Rev. James B. Hyndshaw from Plainfield, N. J., to Winchester, Va.

Rev. Thomas S. Dewing from Wyalusing to Southport, N. Y.

Rev. William M. Reed from Gilead to Sylvia, Ohio.

Rev. E. F. Chester from Sterling to Lexington, Ill.

Rev. O. O. McClean from Frankfort Springs to Lewistown, Pa.

Rev. R. L. McCune from Mercersburg, Pa, to Carmi, Ill.

Rev. Adam Craig from Foreston to Lime Springs, Iowa.

Rev. Charles P. Cummins from Brookville to Beaver, Pa.

Rev. D. V. Smock from Sigourney to Talleyrand, Iowa.

Rev. R. J. Hall, from Lebanon to Xenia, Ohio.

Rev. George L. Wolfe from Lewes, Del., to West River, Md.

DEATHS.

The Rev. John McLain, at Tiffin City, Ohio, on the 24th of June, aged 38.

The Rev. N. C. Locke, D. D., at Brooklyn, on the 21st of July.

The Rev. J. C. Brown, D. D., of Valparaiso, Indiana. He was chaplain of the 48th regiment of Indiana volunteers, and contracted his last sickness on the field. He died at Paducah, Ky., on the 14th of July.

The Rev. J. H. Thornwell, D. D., at Charlotte, N. C., on the 1st of August, of typhoid pneumonia.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Andrew Hardie was suspended from the gospel ministry, and the communion of the church, by the Presbytery of Winnebago, on the 18th of July.

Re-union.—By the New-school Presbytery of Winona, it was

"Resolved, That a committee be appointed to confer with the Presbyteries of Owatonna and Chippewa, in regard to some basis upon which they may unite in building up the kingdom of God; also, how we may best put forth our concerted action in favour of the re-union of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

To which the Presbytery of Chippewa has responded by the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That the Presbytery of Chippewa reciprocate the sentiments of the Presbytery of Winona, and that we are ready to unite in any feasible plan of bringing the Presbyteries of the different branches of the Presbyterian Church covering this region, into closer connection, and more perfect harmony.

"Resolved, That a committee of two be appointed, to confer with the committee of the Presbytery of Winona on this subject."

FUND FOR DISABLED MINISTERS, AND THE NEEDY WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

The following amounts have been received since the last report, viz.

From Middle Creek ch, Rock River Presbytery,			5 00
" Rahway 2d ch, Elizabethtown		do.	31 78
" Columbus 1st ch, Columbus		do.	33 30
" Frederick ch, Baltimore		do.	1 00
" Harrisonville ch, Allegheny		do.	5 50
" Amity ch,	do.	do.	4 50
" Centre ch, Ohio		do.	22 75
" 6th Presbyterian ch, Philadelphia		do.	16 05
" Smithtown Branch ch, Long Island		do.	12 00
" Williamsburgh ch, Nassau		do.	2 00
" Zanesville 2d ch, Zanesville		do.	20 00
" Wheeling 4th ch, Washington		do.	20 00
" Sparta 2d ch, Genesee River		do.	5 00
" Cambridge ch, Troy		do.	13 12
" A Lady of Philadelphia			10 00
" Dr. John Curwin, of Harrisburg, Pa.,			10 00
" A Lady Friend of Port Carbon, Pa.,			5 00
" James Smith, of Bucyrus, Ohio, Legacy,			10 00
" A member of 3d Presb'n ch, Newark, N. J,			10 00
" Male and Female Societies of Licking ch, Clarion Presbytery,			10 00
" Academia ch, do. do.			1 00
			$248 00

Geo. H. Van Gelder,
Treasurer Trustees of General Assembly,
Office, No. 320 Walnut Street.

Philadelphia, August 15th, 1862.

FORM OF BEQUEST FOR DISABLED MINISTERS, OR FAMILIES OF DECEASED MINISTERS.

I give and bequeath to my executors hereinafter named, ——— dollars, in trust, nevertheless that they shall, within ——— months after my decease, pay the same to George H. Van Gelder, Treasurer of the Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, or to his successor for the time being in said office, for the use of such disabled ministers and their families, as the said, The Trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, shall or may designate.

Nota.—This form will do for a pecuniary bequest. If stocks, or land, or other property be given, the phraseology should be modified to suit the case.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN REGARD TO COLLECTIONS.

Whereas, Many of our churches do not contribute to our benevolent enterprises, and whereas, it is desirable to test the power of simultaneous effort; and whereas, an emergency has arisen, requiring the cooperation of all our churches to save our Boards from serious embarrassment, therefore,

Resolved, 1. That this Assembly earnestly request all our churches that have no fixed times for the purpose, to take up annual collections as follows, viz.

For the Board of Domestic Missions on the first Sabbath of November.

For the Board of Foreign Missions on the first Sabbath of January.

For the Board of Education on the first Sabbath of March.

For the Colportage Fund of the Board of Publication on the first Sabbath of May.

For the Board of Church Extension on the first Sabbath of July.

For the Disabled Ministers' Fund on the first Sabbath of September.

Resolved, 2. That when the annual collections cannot be taken up on the days above designated, it be recommended to take them up as soon thereafter as possible.

NOTICE TO MINISTERS.

We supply any of the Ministers of the Canadian Presbyterian Church with our Home and Foreign Record, who show they desire it by remitting the United States postage annually. In exchange, we can supply any of our ministers with the Canadian Home and Foreign Record, upon their remitting to us six cents for Canadian postage.

PETER WALKER,
821 Chestnut street.

FORM OF A DEVISE OR BEQUEST TO ANY OF THE BOARDS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The State Laws differ so much that no one form will answer in all the States, but in every case it is essential to give the RIGHT CORPORATE NAME.

The oldest Board was originally called the Board of Missions, but is now incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania under the title of "The Trustees of the Board of Domestic Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

Of the Board of Education the corporate name is, "The Trustees of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

The Board of Foreign Missions is incorporated under the laws of New York, under the style of "The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America."

The Board of Publication is incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania under the style of "The Trustees of the Presbyterian Board of Publication."

The Board of Church Extension of the General Assembly is not incorporated, but the following form of bequest, it is supposed, would be valid.

I bequeath to my executors the sum of ——— dollars, in trust, to pay over the same in ——— after my decease, to the person who, when the same shall be payable, shall act as Treasurer of the Board of Church Extension of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, located in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, to be applied to the uses and purposes of said Board, and under its directions, and the receipt of the said Treasurer shall be a full and legal acquittance of my said executors for the same.

When real estate or other property is given, let it be particularly described.

THE HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Is the organ of the Boards of Domestic Missions, Education, Foreign Missions, Publication, and the Board of Church Extension, and is issued monthly in newspaper form, at Fifty Cents a year for a single copy, and in pamphlet form at One Dollar. Packages to churches, for any number of copies, at 25 cents per copy. Payment in advance.

Address, "Mr. Peter Walker, 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia."

Postage, in Pennsylvania, 8 cents per annum, and all other States 6 cents, paid in advance at the office of delivery.

Packages of the Home and Foreign Record are delivered, free of charge, in New York, Baltimore, Louisville, Cincinnati, Wheeling and Pittsburgh.

An Offer.—Any missionary, colporteur, or other person, procuring new subscribers to the Record at 50 cents each, shall be entitled to 20 per cent. for each such subscription procured and prepaid.

CONTENTS.

Board of Domestic Missions.—Troubles on the Border, p. 153. Hoping against Hope, p. 153. Working on amid Discouragements, p. 153. Prospects Brightening, p. 154. The Law of Benevolence, p. 154. Receipts, p. 155. Table—showing the amount of Money contributed to the Board of Domestic Missions, from March 1, 1861, to March 1, 1862, by Presbyteries and Synods in connection with the office in Philadelphia, and the amount due or paid in return to them, by the Board, during the same period, for the support of their Missionaries, p. 155.

Board of Education.—The Danger of forgetting the Boards, p. 156. The Necessity for an Educated Ministry, p. 156. Ministerial Support, p. 157. The Mother, p. 158. Receipts, p. 158.

Board of Foreign Missions.—Recent Intelligence, p. 159. Missions in China:—New Translations of the Scriptures Completed, p. 159. Encouragement in Shantung, p. 159. Mission in Siam:—Progress at Petchaburi, p. 160. Missions in India:—Missionary Work in 1861 at Lahor, p. 161. Later Accounts from Lahor, p. 161. Africa, Corisco Mission:—Extracts from a Letter of the Rev. C. De Heer, Corisco, March 5, 1862, p. 162. Missions in France:—Extracts from the Annual Report of the Central Protestant Society of Evangelization, p. 162. Miscellany, p. 163. Receipts, p. 164.

Board of Publication.—The Sick, the Wounded, and the Prisoners, p. 165. The Military Hospitals at St. Louis, p. 165. Work done among Soldiers and Sailors, p. 166. The Soldier's Pocket-Book, p. 166. New Publications, p. 166. Receipts, p. 166.

Board of Church Extension.—Strength and Beauty, p. 167. Ministerial Sacrifices, p. 167. Cheering Influence, p. 167. Receipts, p. 167.

Miscellaneous.—Ecclesiastical Record, p. 168.

THE

HOME AND FOREIGN RECORD

OF THE

Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

VOLUME XIII. No. 10. | PHILADELPHIA, OCTOBER, 1862. | PRICE PER YEAR, Fifty Cents.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

MISSION ROOMS,

No. 910 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. T. L. JANEWAY, D. D.
Treasurer—SAMUEL D. POWEL.

LETTERS relating to Missionary Appointments and other operations of the Board, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, No. 910 Arch street, Philadelphia.

CONTRIBUTIONS should be sent to the Treasurer; or, if more convenient, to

WILLIAM RANKIN, JR., Mission House, 23 Centre street, New York.

TO THE CHURCHES.

MISSION ROOMS, October 1, 1862.

While expecting light receipts, from all previous experience, during the summer, we have been sorely disappointed in the great falling off this season. While a merciful Providence enabled us to report to the General Assembly freedom from our oppressive debt of last year, we well knew that, with no balance of reserve, unless the churches came up to our help, we could not meet our obligations; and so entering the new fiscal year with as much caution as possible, resisting, with pain, the requests for new appointments, we yet find ourselves, at this writing, $7000 in debt to the missionaries. Our hope of ability to discharge this debt is in the increasing and continued liberality of our communion. We cannot make the full tale of bricks without the straw. We cannot meet our present limited obligations—limited in comparison of other years—unless the usual measure of contribution rule. And yet, so far, we are pained to mark a falling off in the amounts heretofore acknowledged. This disturbs us. We ask if it is to be the rule? and if so, what defence has the Board against accumulated debt? Compelled to reduce the appropriations 25 per cent. to overtake a debt which threatened to crush us, we have not dared to leave that figure. But must we, to save the credit of the Board, reduce still more? When the effects of this fearful war press upon our missionary churches, removing, often to die on battle-fields, their pillars and strong supports, shall we reduce still more the small amount we give the toiling labourer? We know the disturbance created by war. We fear the saddest results to the moral and religious character of our country. We know increased taxes will press heavily on all. But yet the gold and silver are the Lord's, and still loaned us. He may be provoked to take them from us, if we honour him not with our substance. There is wealth enough in our church to sustain all these burdens. The demands of ravenous war have not yet exhausted us. The Board must be sustained; our work must not be intermitted. We cannot afford to throw away all we have gained by years of toil and labour. It is painful to write thus—to give utterance to what seems to be a piteous wail for relief. Would God it were not needful! But we cannot remain unmoved by the appeals of our brethren in the field. May we not hope the statement of the facts will induce our pastors to urge, as never before, the claims of our missions on their people, and strive to keep the measure of contribution at least equal to that of the past year? We can then hold our own. We can weather the storm whose pitiful fury howls around our country. May God give us speedy deliverance! May he hasten the days, for the elect's sake, whom he has chosen, and may he pour upon his people the grace to give in proportion to their ability, that his servants in their distant fields may not suffer, but with relieved hearts may go on their way rejoicing!

LIGHTS AND SHADOWS.

Minnesota.

Dear Brother—The quarter ending the 12th ult. was one of trial and privation to me. With the small means for my support, I often know not where or how to obtain the necessary essentials for subsistence. Then the severe cold weather in January, through which I had to travel to meet my appointments, was so destructive to my naturally weak health, that it required the greatest effort to come up to my engagements; yea I even began to make myself familiar with the thought of going home to my Lord. But it will appear to me now that the Lord will yet further use me. His will be done!

The success of my missionary labours has been various; with some I found open hearts and doors, with others dead and sheer insensibility to all that which is good and divine. But in Rollingstone, where we now have a little organized church, not only was the attendance upon the services well kept up, (Roman Catholics also attend frequently,) but what is more, the inquiry begins to be raised by some, what they must do to be saved. Should our hopes of increase from without be realized, a nice church may be built up here. In Winona a great drawback to our work is the want of a suitable room in which we may assemble, and the people are too poor to pay high rent, or build a church for their own use; we must therefore content ourselves with meeting in a private house, and there we try to do as well as we can, until God shall show us another way.

In particular, I would like to mention that my advanced years and feeble health make it appear desirable to leave this field in charge of a younger brother, who shall be better able to hold out on journeys in the cold season of the year.

I conclude with the wish that the Lord may guide and direct in all things, so that his name may be glorified.

With kind and fraternal regard, I remain
Yours in Christ.

MISSION AMONG THE BELGIANS.

Wisconsin.

Dear Brother—The mission among the Belgian population of Green Bay and Robinsonville, through the blessing of God, is still in a prosperous state, notwithstanding the difficulties we have to contend with. At Robinsonville and vicinity, all the members who were admitted into the church, with very few exceptions, have made good progress in godliness, and prove by their lives that they have truly apprehended Christ as he is set forth in the gospel; and some twenty more persons have been hopefully converted, but not yet admitted into the church, because we have not yet any suitable place for religious worship. We have to meet in particular dwellings, sometimes very uncomfortable, and subject to many inconveniences; however, the meetings are well attended and solemn. In this cold season a large number are not able to attend for want of sufficient clothing; but if all those who would could attend, the room where we meet would be much too small.

There is a work of grace going on noiselessly, which is very astonishing. A good number of those that have received the word make their light to so shine before their fellow-men, that they glorify our Father which is in heaven. Many seek after the Bread of Life, and labour under such an inward conviction of sin, for which they can find no relief in the Romish church. But what I can do for them is far from being adequate to their wants. My health is feeble and languishing; I have no means of conveyance, and I live far from them. I can get a horse only once in two weeks to visit them, and can spend but a few days at a time to preach to them the good tidings of the gospel; and each time I am received as an angel of God, so glad they feel to hear that precious word which dispels darkness from the mind, and heals the wounded heart. It is really sad to witness so good a disposition in a people to receive the saving truth, when no more adequate means can be made use of to help them.

It is now over three months since our colporteur was withdrawn from this field, where he was doing so much good, and his labours were so much blessed; and it is indeed painful to me to hear, every time I go there, a number inquiring whether he will not come again.

Is it not cruel thus to leave perishing souls, that hunger and thirst after righteousness, and that sue for help, deprived of the precious Bread of Life? The work of colportage, through which so large an amount of good has been done within a few months, appears to be completely put out of view since it has been stopped; nothing has been done since towards securing the means to resume it. Could you not use your influence with the Board of Publication, in order to induce them to contrive some plan to enable them to send our colporteur again in this field? If they would only try, the Lord would bless the effort, and secure the means; but as long as they remain silent no blessing can be expected.

I have established a preaching station in the city of Green Bay, where I preach once in two weeks. The meetings are not very numerous, but well attended, and the word is listened to with deep attention. But the people in the city are so much under the influence of worldliness, Sabbath-breaking habits, intoxicating drinks, of Romanism and infidelity, that the work of evangelization becomes much more difficult. However, there are some souls who have become serious, and who labour under an inward conviction, and there is hope that the grace of God is doing its work, although not so prominently as at Robinsonville, and in that neighbourhood. I visit the people at home as much as I can, and I have sometimes very interesting conversations; but often I meet with very hard cases, where the principles of rational infidelity, mixed with Romish views, are manifestly set in opposition to the saving truth.

ROCKY MOUNTAINS.

Buckskin Joe, August 11, 1862.

Dear Brother—Buckskin Joe, one hundred miles southwest of Denver, and hard by the South Park, is beautifully situated between two lofty spurs of the Snowy Range, upon whose towering heights drifts of snow still cling to their winter beds. It is the central city of this vast mining region, which Dr. Evans, our new Governor, says in his Message, "is the most extensive, and probably the richest mining country in the territory." Within a circle of fifteen or twenty miles it is surrounded with several thrifty mining towns, making in all a very encouraging field for two Presbyterian ministers. The people are very anxious to have religious service. I received many invitations to "come and preach for us." I have in three months preached in six different places; but still they cry, come over "the Range" and help us! The people, though rather liberal, are not able to support the gospel without assistance from abroad.

I am sorry to learn of a want, or rather decline, of interest in the Record. It may be because "missionaries are not always spicy writers," as an eastern editor says; and yet it may be for want of interest in the missionary work; for it cannot be, that the troubles, trials, and deprivations of missionaries, though they are mixed with joy, can fail to interest every Christian.

Many of us pioneers, who have been for years in the great missionary work, and have endured much hardship, yet knowing that the way to heaven is "through much tribulation," and praying for strength from Him "who comforteth us in all our tribulation," though sometimes perplexed and "troubled on every side," we have never been down "in despair."

I have been here over three months, and though our population has decreased very much, our congregations have increased more. A few weeks ago I looked up a few of our best singers, and now we have one of the best choirs I have ever heard, graced by a good melodeon, well played by a New England lady. Their singing is very impressive. To hear such fine strains of praise in the flowery vales of these craggy mountains, where, a little while ago, roved nothing but wild beasts and "the poor Indian," is truly encouraging, and evinces the progress of Christianity. "Thy kingdom come!"

Satan foiled.

The devil, though very wise, crafty, and powerful, is often outflanked and defeated. He has made many bold, daring attacks, and achieved many signal victories. Yet, thank God, if we resist him he will always flee from us. Once, when he tempted Martin Luther, he gathered up courage and cried, "Get away, thou infernal spirit!" threw his inkstand at him, and away he fled. Satan made three heavy assaults upon the Saviour, but he always met him with "the sword of the Spirit," and immediately put him to flight. And although he walks about through these Rocky Mountains, like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour, yet even here he often fails in his wicked devices.

A few Sabbaths ago, we preached in one of his recruiting offices, (a gambling and drinking saloon,) and broke up another of his "strongholds"—a Sabbath evening auction. At the hour appointed we sounded the trumpet for church, and the auctioneer rung his bell, but nobody went to buy, and he went to church himself, and listened very attentively to a sermon to young men. The attendance was the largest I have ever seen in the place. The saloons were all nearly forsaken, and the large hall nearly full. We had to carry in several more seats. I was glad when I heard next morning that we had broken up the Sabbath auction. The auctioneer has since left town. Thus you see how we got ahead of the devil once, even in the Rocky Mountains, where he seems to lead captive so many of his faithful servants.

A. S. B.

RICHES OF LIBERALITY.

Enclosed is two dollars for the Board of Domestic Missions. For the last eight weeks I have laid aside twenty-five cents each week for this object. In the hope that it may furnish one cup of water from the well of salvation to some thirsty, fainting soul, it is most cheerfully given in the name of the Lord.

Yours truly.

PLEASANT WORK OF GRACE.

Illinois.

In my former communications from this point, I had but the most discouraging facts to recite. In my last, however, I intimated, indeed expressed, my opinion that the Lord had great things in store for us. At this time I am enabled to verify the truth of my expressed conviction in my last, and am permitted joyfully to exclaim, "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad."

On the last of March I commenced a meeting in connection with a communion season, and continued it some days without the aid of any ministerial brethren. After some five or six days, I succeeded in securing ministerial aid. Our meeting continued some three weeks, or nineteen days. From the very first the presence of the Divine Spirit was most signally manifested. The third night five inquiring persons came forward. Our inquiry meeting was attended by from five to fifteen to the very end, and the meeting closed with the last named number.

The fruits of the labours of the occasion were an accession of twenty-eight to the church. By the Divine blessing we were more than trebled in the number of our little flock, our number previous to the meeting being thirteen.

The most favourable feature of the work of grace characterizing this season, and which is destined to give rise to the most satisfactory reflections connected with it for all time to come, was the depth of it. It was commonly remarked, that it was the deepest work of grace at any time witnessed by the parties thus speaking.

Could the meeting have continued, as many more, from every indication, might, by the Divine blessing, have been gathered into the kingdom. I was myself wholly worn out, having laboured in another meeting of several weeks continuance, just previous to the commencement of our own. I was unable, moreover, to get or retain my ministerial help longer.

I have had great comfort in the little flock of devoted disciples thus gathered since. The character of the work, as to its genuineness, seems still most satisfactorily to manifest itself. There are one or two exceptional cases.

I should have said, as a gratifying feature of the meeting, that, by the Divine blessing, an old feud, of some years' standing, and which resulted in the secession of nearly one-third of the church, was healed, and these seceders were brought back.

Our prayer-meeting (weekly) is the most largely attended of the kind I have been acquainted with. Our Sabbath-school, even, has increased, until our number last Sabbath ran up to eighty-five pupils and ten teachers. We organized a Bible-class, but discontinued it again for a time. I formed a little prayer-meeting of the new male members, to exercise their gifts in the way of public prayer and speaking.

We have, I am sorry to say, since our meeting, at once become the objects of jealousy on the part of some of our brethren, and hard efforts seem to be making to do us hurt. In a former communication I may have noted the fact, that the place was originally a sort of Methodist colony—none but Methodists allowed to become members. These good brethren have persecuted our church, I regret much to say, with great assiduity. The pastor and myself are on the best of terms, and exchange pulpits. The decided opposition is limited, and carefully guarded.

Yours &c.

OUR MISSION IN DAKOTA.

Dear Brother—Last Sabbath I preached in our hewed-log Presbyterian house of worship in this village. The house was so crowded, both morning and evening, that many failed to get seats. Permit me to say that the state of things in this territory is very peculiar. The Secretary of War has ordered the Governor of the territory to muster into service two hundred men, (who are residents,) in order to protect the settlers from the incursions of the Indians. Three hundred soldiers from Iowa are now at Fort Randall, which is one hundred miles above us, on the Missouri river. Five hundred soldiers are to be stationed in this territory during the war. The captain of company A, with a few of his soldiers, came to hear me preach last night. The seats were all filled. I shall preach a series of six sermons during this meeting, and I expect then to preach at Elk Point.

Your predecessor, Rev. Dr. Musgrave, sent me a commission for six months. It was dated the 1st day of last June. I wrote to him that I would ask the Board for only $200 a year, seeing that I received from one to two hundred a year from my office of District Clerk. Two years ago last December, I was commissioned to labour in this territory. The Board then gave me $400 a year. Your Board has never had any other missionary in Dakota Territory. My labours have been attended with some measure of success. We have the only church-building in this town. The Methodists and Episcopalians occupy it. At the present time Vermillion is the largest town in the territory. The Episcopalians have a log church building at Yanktown, which is a rival town about twenty-five miles above us. Most of the members of my congregation have enlisted, and are now performing military duty in the territory; consequently I must, while the war lasts, preach chiefly to the wives and children of soldiers. Now, I am willing to labour in this territory if I can be supported. My income is very scant, but I do not complain. Ministers, during the war, must expect nothing but a bare subsistence.

Vermillion is situate on the Missouri river, and on the opposite side is Dixon county, Nebraska. My friends at Ponca, the county-seat of said county, requested me to preach a week in their town. Accordingly, I delivered six sermons there during last month. I was favoured with larger audiences than are ordinarily seen at that point. I had pressing invitations to come and preach there one Sabbath in each month.

A paralysis appears to rest upon church enterprises in this entire region. During the past week, one lady has united with our little church at Vermillion. It seems to me that a score should have united with our beloved church.

Our blessed God seems to withhold the converting influences of his Holy Spirit. My friends say that I have larger audiences than any other minister who preaches in this territory. I suppose they state the truth, but I am much discouraged because of the unhealthy excitement of the public mind. War, war, war, seems to form the warp and woof of all their thoughts. I love to preach Christ, and him crucified, but to see so very few conversions is a cause of much grief and mortification. Oh! when will our covenant-keeping God return to Zion!

The Episcopal Missionary Board gives Mr. H., who resides in Sioux City, Iowa, $400 a year to preach in Dakota Territory one-half of his time. He reads his sermons, and therefore has only about one-half the hearers who choose to listen to our preaching. If the Board of the Episcopal church can give $400 a year to their missionary, cannot you give me one-half as much? What action you will take in the premises I know not. If you conclude to give me a commission for six months, please to date it December 1, 1861.

My wife and three children have all been afflicted with sickness. The ague has been very hard to cure. A part of the time I was forced to stay at home to nurse the sick.

I arrived here on yesterday. To-day I had the pleasure of baptizing two very interesting children. During the ceremony of baptism the mother was bathed in tears. She has promised to teach the eldest the Shorter Catechism, and will begin next week. The family were from Otsego county, New York. I hope to have a full house here to-night. This is the southwestern county of the territory.

I have great hopes that God will grant us the privilege of seeing a large church here in due time. Ten more families are expected here this spring. Immigrants seem to be attracted to this point, on account of the large body of timber in sight of the village. The boiler of a steam saw-mill arrived here last week.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF RECEIPTS.

BOARD OF DOMESTIC MISSIONS

Receipts into the Treasury during the month of August, 1862.

SYNOD OF ALBANY.

Pby of Londonderry—Antrim ch	26 00
Pby of Troy—1st ch Stillwater	42 96
Pby of Albany—Mariaville ch 6; Charlton ch 11 75	17 75

SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

Pby of Genesee River—Portageville ch	7 00

SYNOD OF NEW YORK.

Pby of New York—Fifth Avenue and 19th st ch Mission chapel 1 75; Clifton 1st ch 33 00	34 75
Pby of New York 2d—Sing Sing ch	140 00

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

Pby of Elizabethtown—Metuchin 1st ch	8 75
Pby of Luzerne—Port Carbon ch 25, of which 5 from Mrs R T Turner; Summit Hill ch 15, of which from Sab school 2 19, and from P 2 61; Hazleton ch 29 75	69 75

SYNOD OF PHILADELPHIA.

Pby of Philadelphia—Tenth ch, a widow's mite	5 00
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—Holmesburg ch 14 16; Bridesburg ch 24	38 16
Pby of Huntingdon—Shirleysburg ch	12 00

SYNOD OF BALTIMORE.

Pby of Baltimore—Franklin street ch Baltimore 27 35; Westminster ch, in part, 100, Sab sch 50	177 35
Pby of Carlisle—Great Conewago ch 28; Lower Marsh Creek ch 4 50	32 50

SYNOD OF PITTSBURGH.

Pby of Ohio—Lawrenceville ch 2 29; Mingo ch 16 50	18 79
Pby of Blairsville—Johnstown ch	31 00
Pby of Clarion—Licking ch	11 00

SYNOD OF ALLEGHENY.

Pby of Allegheny—New Salem ch	4 00
Pby of Erie—Sturgeonville ch 4; Deerfield ch 3	7 00

SYNOD OF WHEELING.

Pby of Washington—Wheeling 1st ch 82 16; Wheeling 4th ch 20; West Alexander ch 77; Bethel ch 2; East Buffalo ch 1	182 16
Pby of New Lisbon—Rehoboth ch 6 57; Madison ch 4 63	11 20

SYNOD OF OHIO.

Pby of Columbus—Sab sch Columbus 1st ch	30 00
Pby of Zanesville—Washington ch	40 00
Pby of Wooster—Millersburgh ch	10 80

SYNOD OF SANDUSKY.

Pby of Michigan—Bennington ch	2 60

SYNOD OF CINCINNATI.

Pby of Sidney—Piqua ch	8 00

SYNOD OF NORTHERN INDIANA.

Pby of Fort Wayne—Bear Creek Congregation	5 06

SYNOD OF ILLINOIS.

Pby of Sangamon—Mite Society Springfield 1st ch	15 00
Pby of Bloomington—Bloomington ch	9 00

SYNOD OF CHICAGO.

Pby of Schuyler—Sab sch of Monmouth 1st ch 5; Presbyterial collection 6 06; La Prairie ch 1; Chili ch 2 15; Knoxville ch 7	21 21

SYNOD OF ST. PAUL.

Pby of St. Paul—Central ch St. Paul	30 00

SYNOD OF SOUTHERN IOWA.

Pby of Iowa—New London ch	6 00

SYNOD OF MISSOURI.

Pby of St. Louis—Providence ch 11 50; Pine st ch St. Louis 15; Nazareth ch 5; Mrs D A Wilson, Kirkwood, Mo. 2 50	34 00

SYNOD OF PACIFIC.

Pby of Oregon—Brownsville ch 8, Mrs N M Geary 5; Astoria congregation 38	51 00
Pby of Puget Sound—Olympia ch	8 00
From churches,	$1,147 79

MISCELLANEOUS.

A Uehren, Galena, Ill. 3; H W K B 5; A B, Philada. 3; M. Kean, Esq., Bridgeton, N. J. 50; C C B, for Belgian Mission, 100, for French Mission 100; A Chapman, M. D., Alquina, Ind. 5; L W 10; W S G 100; M E Drake, Clarkson, N. Y. 5; Rev C R Fisk, Mendota, Ill. 2; Dr Lewis Tice, per Rev A P Botsford 5; Rev T C Perry 60	448 00
Total Receipts in August,	$1,595 79

S. D. POWEL, Treasurer.

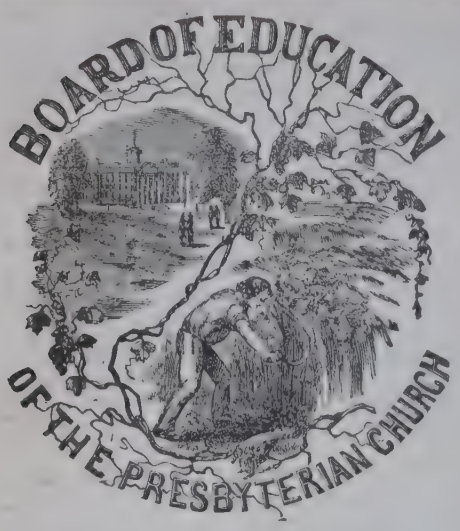
CLOTHING.

1 Box from the American Presbyterian ch, Montreal Canada	80 00
1 Box from the Ladies of the First ch, Trenton, N. J.	135 00
1 Box from the Missionary Sewing Society of Mercer ch, Pa.	138 87
	$353 87



No. 821 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Officers of the Board.

Charles Hodge, D. D., President.

John McDowell, D. D.,
Cyrus Dickson, D. D.,
George Sharswood, LL.D., } Vice-Presidents.

William Chester, D. D., Corresponding Secretary.

R. Watts, Assistant, and Recording Secretary.

William Main, Treasurer.

Wilfred Hall,
Samuel H. Fulton, } Auditors.

Letters and Communications for the BOARD OF EDUCATION on the subject of Ministerial Education, or of Schools, Academies, and Colleges, may be addressed to the Secretary, Rev. Dr. CHESTER, or Rev. R. WATTS, No. 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Remittances of Money may be made to WILLIAM MAIN, Esq., Treasurer, No. 821 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

PRESBYTERIAL CONTROL—THE ACTION OF THE ASSEMBLY.

It is of the utmost importance to the successful working of the Board that Presbyteries should attend to the fourth and fifth resolutions adopted by the late General Assembly. The fourth resolution enjoins Presbyteries, "to exercise increased care and caution in recommending candidates for the ministry to the care of the Board; and also, to seek out such within their respective bounds as may be really worthy, and may stand in need of aid while preparing for the ministerial work." This injunction points to the danger to which Presbyteries are obviously exposed when young men are brought before them of whose capacities they have no knowledge, and who are merely recommended by a well-meaning pastor and session, who may be largely influenced by a respect for the young man himself, and for his family. It frequently happens, that when young men become serious, and give heed to spiritual things, they adopt the idea that they could be of greater service to the Master by abandoning the secular avocation in which they have been engaged, and entering on a new sphere of duty, such as the ministry of the gospel, or by becoming a missionary in a heathen country. There is a dreamy kind of feeling which exists for a time in the experience of young converts. They imagine that there is a greater safety, as well as a greater prospect of usefulness and fame before them in the ministerial office, than they could ever attain to by remaining in their present estate. Accordingly, without a due consideration of the intellectual qualifications which are requisite for the effective discharge of ministerial duties, the young man offers himself to his pastor as a candidate. The pastor dislikes the idea of discouraging the aspirant for future usefulness. He may desire to see a youth from his church dedicated to the public service of God, and thus, out of regard to a family of his flock, he consents to recommend the candidate, whose character may be truly unblemished; but his theological views may be confused, his piety may be immature, and he may never have given undoubted evidence of being endowed with that mental grasp and vigour which would enable him to master those classical, mathematical, and philosophical studies which are indispensable preparatives to the cultivation of theological science. The Presbytery believes that the young man is thoroughly known to his pastor, and as a matter of course he is recommended to the Board. In process of time, it turns out that his capacities are of a common-place order, and that, although he may acquire a measure of theological knowledge, he has made a grand mistake by deciding to become a minister. His faculties would have enabled him to serve his heavenly Master with credit in a secular situation. He could have greatly promoted the cause of religion in the Sabbath-school, and he might have been useful in the eldership of his church and congregation; whereas he is obliged through life to feel that his position as a minister requires of him greater mental vigour than he is able to display. Piety is the first qualification, and without this essential preparation intellectual gifts will not suffice; but where piety is the accompaniment of mere ordinary common-place parts, the possessor should be made to understand that he ought to hesitate before he attempts to find his way into the office of the ministry.

It is incumbent on our church courts, in the present state of finance in our Boards, to guard most assiduously against all uncalled-for and unwise expenditures, and the recommendation of the Assembly on this subject, if duly heeded, will be of the greatest service to the Board, and to the church at large.

THE SYNOD OF BUFFALO.

The action of this Synod in reference to our Boards is worthy of all praise. From year to year the minutes of Assembly showed that, notwithstanding the injunctions of the Assembly to our pastors and sessions to have the claims of the Boards presented annually to our people, there were many Presbyteries that, to a great extent, ignored their duty; while in others, the sums contributed were so small as to show that there was no intelligent recognition, on the part of our people, of the great work which has been entrusted to our Boards.

The statements made by the Corresponding Secretaries, and other friends of the Boards, in Presbyteries and Synods, have often been treated as if it was a matter of course that their appeals should be heard only to be neglected. The tendency of apathetic hearers was to roll the burden over from themselves to others, who, it was hoped, would increase their exertions; and thus, while churches that did little or nothing continued in their indolent or poverty-stricken estate, the vague expectation was entertained, that the giving churches would increase their gifts, and thus the wants of the Boards would be supplied, while they did nothing.

It is to be hoped that the Synod of Buffalo has inaugurated a system which will be productive of great good to all the churches in their bounds. It is a dangerous thing for churches negligently and causelessly to despise the godly admonitions which are given forth, after solemn consultation and prayer to the Master, in our solemn assemblies. Familiarity with neglect in this connection, prepares for omission of duty in other relations; and accordingly, the resolution adopted in the Synod will, it is confidently expected, be found not only to produce the most desirable results so far as the Treasuries of the Boards are concerned, but also to act as a stimulant to sessions and congregations, inciting them to greater faithfulness in the discharge of other duties.

The following is the resolution adopted by the Synod, as given in the columns of the Presbyterian.

Resolved, That at the annual meeting of this body, each representative of our churches shall be called to report what has been done by his church for the different Boards and objects of beneficence, and if nothing has been done, to give the specific reason therefor, and if no sufficient reason can be given, the disapprobation of Synod shall be stated and recorded. In case any church in our body is unrepresented, it shall be the duty of the Stated Clerk to write to said church, and ascertain the cause of their delinquency.

PARENTAL EXAMPLE.

A mother related the following seemingly trifling incident, which forcibly illustrates the importance and power of parental example:

"As I was about to enter my nursery, to look after my little ones, I observed the youngest, a boy of three years of age, looking over a book, which he had taken from a shelf, resembling a family Bible used before morning and evening prayer.

"Struck with the unusual solemnity of his manner, I watched, unobserved, his movements. With great precision, and apparent devotion, he went through the exercises of reading, singing, and then kneeling for prayer, in imitation of his father's daily example. And never was manner, voice, or gesture, more perfectly copied. Trifling as was this circumstance, so deep and solemn was the impression made on my mind, that to this time I find myself mentally exclaiming, "What manner of persons ought parents to be, in all holy conversation and godliness!" Never till this moment had my mind dwelt upon the momentous fact, though so oft repeated, that the future characters and the eternal destinies of children are usually, at a very early period, stamped by parental example; and I now felt what an amazing influence must be exerted upon young children by the manner of performing family prayer."

PRESBYTERIAL EXAMINATIONS.

If Presbyteries were faithfully to discharge an obvious duty to the beneficiaries of the Board, many of the evils which have prevailed in the training of our young men would cease to exist. The Board would be saved from a heavy and needless expenditure, and the qualifications of the entrants into the ministry would, in many cases, be of a vastly superior order. These desirable results can be secured by diligent examination of the young men under the care of each Presbytery. Such an oversight of our candidates is contemplated by the action of the Assembly, and in enjoining a periodical review of the studies of the young men, the church is merely following the example which has been set by other ecclesiastical bodies.

In consequence of the limited size of the country, the stationary character of churches, and of the support which pastors receive for their maintenance, the Irish Presbyterian Church has no Education Board; and there is therefore no obligation resting on her Presbyteries, to guard against an unwise or wasteful expenditure of a benevolent fund which has been raised for sacred purposes; and yet, for more than thirty years past, the students of that church are regularly examined by Presbyteries from year to year on all the subjects of their collegiate course. No student is allowed to enter on the second year of his under-graduate course until he has passed a satisfactory examination on all the branches which he has been studying during the previous session, and so on from session to session. The certificates of the Professors are only received as evidence of attendance at college. Each Presbytery is obliged to ascertain, by a thorough examination, the progress which the young men enrolled as students on their books are actually making, and thus either negligence or incompetency can at once be detected; instead of delaying such a review until the course is finished, when pity and compassion might be allowed to prevail in the case of candidates who are defective, and who might be permitted to pass because they had actually reached the end of their educational career. In this way every Presbytery in the Irish Church is obliged to watch the progress made by the students under their care during their collegiate course; and when they have graduated, and entered upon their theological studies, the same diligence is used in reference to Biblical Criticism, Church History, and Dogmatic Theology; no student being licensed who has not been examined by his Presbytery on these branches and on every book contained in the Old and New Testaments.

The course pursued by the Presbyterian Church in Canada is equally wise and effective. Each Presbytery, at the July meeting, appoints a Committee whose duty it is to conduct a searching examination of all the candidates on their respective rolls. The nature of this examination will be seen by an inspection of the subjoined card, which specifies the subjects for examination during the present year.

SUBJECTS FOR EXAMINATION OF STUDENTS.

I. For Entrants in Literary Course.

Latin, Cæsar de Bell. Gal. 1st Book.
Greek, John's Gospel.

II. For Students Entering Second Year.

Latin, Æneid; Book VI.
Greek, Epistle to Ephesians; 1st and 2d Timothy; Iliad, Book I., 200 lines.
Euclid, Books I. II. III. IV.
Algebra, to Quadratic Equations, (inclusive).

III. For Students Entering Third Year.

Latin, Horace, 1st Book of Odes.
Greek, Acts of the Apostles, and the three Epistles of John.
Whately's Logic.
Reid's Essays on the Intellectual Powers, to the end of the Doctrine of Perception.

IV. For Students Entering Theological Course.

Latin, Horace—Ars Poetica.
Greek, Epistle to Romans.
Hebrew, Grammar.
Genesis, Chap I. to X.
Psalms, I. to X.
Wayland's Moral Philosophy.

V. For Second Year Theological Students.

Latin, Cicero de Amicitia.
Greek, Galatians; Hebrews.
Hebrew, Psalms, I. to XXX.
Exegetical Theology, Eadie on the Philippians.
Evidences, Butler's Analogy; Paley's Evidences.
Natural Theology, Paley.

VI. For Third Year Theological Students.

Latin, Calvini Institut. Lib. III. Chap. 5, (Collect, Lat.)
Greek, New Testament, ad aperturam.
Hebrew, Psalms XXX. to L.
Isaiah XL. to L.
Exegetical Theology, same as preceding year.
Ecclesiastical History, First 3 Centuries with the 16th.
Systematic Theology, Calvin; Hill.

It must be obvious that there is great wisdom displayed in the adoption of such a course, and the experience of two or three years would show our Presbyteries, that the advantages which a similar policy would not fail to secure, would prove more than an adequate reward for any additional labour which the brethren would have to undertake. As things are in our courts, there are many of our candidates of whom little or nothing is known from the time they are commended to the Board until they have reached the end of their course, and then there is little opportunity enjoyed of testing their gifts, or of ascertaining the amount of their attainments.

From the Independent.

THE FIRST LIE.

"Repentance—'tis to leave
The sins we loved before,
And show that we in earnest grieve,
By doing so no more."

In a dimly-lighted room, one winter evening, sat a poor widow with her eldest daughter, busily plying the needle in finishing off some work, which was to be carried to their employer early in the morning.

As they were thus engaged, a little girl of some six summers, the pet of the household, who had been playing by herself, as long as she could see by the light of the fire, stole up cautiously to her mother, and in diffident and trembling tones, fearing her request might not be granted, asked permission to have one of the lamps upon the table to light up her play-corner. The mother longed to make her dear little girl happy, by yielding to her simple request, but, as the sight of unfinished work reminded her of the necessity of its completion that night, she was forced to deny what otherwise would have been a pleasure to grant. The refusal, though uttered in the gentlest tones, had not the effect upon this little girl's mind it ought to have had, and instead of her being pleasant, and feeling her dear mamma knew what was best after all, her looks portrayed feelings within of anger and impatience.

Not many moments afterward, as they were still pursuing their evening's occupation, one of the lamps was upset, and the mother caught up the work just in time to prevent its complete saturation with oil. Her astonishment and grief were great, as she suspected it must have been her little Katy's doings. Not wishing, however, to charge her with it, without evidence that she was the guilty one, she turned round and mildly said to the eldest child,—"Mary, my dear, do you know how this was done?"—to which question she received a reply in the negative. Then turning to Katy, asked, and received the same answer. Oh, how grieved she felt, knowing that a lie rested between these dear ones before her! A sad moment for a mother's heart! It was far more important, she thought, to ascertain the exact truth in reference to this affair, even if she thereby lost the whole evening, and should be unable to finish the work she had been toiling so hard to complete.

After a few moments' silent thought, she laid her work aside, requesting Mary to do the same. She then rose and went to the farthest corner of the room, and took from the top of the bureau the old family Bible, that blessed book, best suited to give instruction in such an emergency. Having seated herself beside her children, she said to them, in a most tender and loving manner, that they had both denied any knowledge of the upsetting of the lamp, and that she could ascertain the truth only in one way, unless they would make confession. As they both remained silent, she opened to the fifth chapter of Acts, requesting each to read the account of those who were struck dead for lying; adding, that she would be able to tell, before they finished its perusal, who the guilty one was. Mary took the Bible from her mother, and read slowly, but calmly, through the verses containing the sad history of two persons visited by God's severest judgment, for one of the greatest of sins—lying.

Poor Katy, the guilty one, now took the Bible from her sister's hands, with feelings that need not, if they could, be described, and, in an apparently composed tone, commenced to read the same verses. Her agitation increased with every word she gave utterance to, and unable any longer to restrain her feelings, burst into tears, saying, "Oh, mother, mother, I cannot read the rest of that chapter; it was I who told the lie; I upset the lamp, and I am afraid God will treat me as he did Annanias and Sapphira." The fond mother's heart was touched; she had seen the struggling within to appear outwardly calm and innocent; and her eye, as a mother's can most always, detected the suppressed heav-ings of that little one, as she endeavoured to read on without faltering.

Then, in that moment, when an impression could so easily be made on her young heart, the mother pointed her to that loving though offended God, telling her how ready he was to forgive her, if, with penitence for the past, she would determine hereafter to be truthful. She could not withdraw her requirement to read through the remaining verses in that chapter, but if she desired, before reading further, to step into her bed-room and ask God's pardon for her sin, she might do so, as she would feel happier in reading the concluding verses, knowing she not only had asked, but obtained the blessing of forgiveness. She quickly complied with her mother's suggestion, as her heart was overflowing with sorrow. She felt she had done wrong—not only had sinned against her earthly parent, but against her heavenly one, and thus bitterly grieving, she longed for forgiveness. Not a moment did she hesitate, but quickly withdrew, to relieve her sad and burdened heart. Imagine that mother's feelings while hearing the sobs of her dear child, who now on her bended knees was pleading for mercy from Him whose ear is ever open to hear the penitential cry, and whose arms are ever extended to receive the wanderer back to his fold. Who have not had, in their own experience, similar feelings in regard to their own wrong doings in the sight of an offended God? Happy are they who have imitated the example of little Katy—who, when they have erred from paths of rectitude, have with penitence like her retraced their steps.

In a few moments this dear little child returned, and, taking the Bible, finished the chapter. Joy and happiness were now restored—the mother, if possible, the happiest of the two. Oh what a lesson was taught little Katy! One which, in after years, she often alluded to, as making a deeper impression on her young mind than anything else could possibly have done. Her mother has repeatedly said that this was the first lie, and she believed the last she ever gave utterance to. Oh that every parent, when their little ones stray into paths of sin, would imitate the example of this mother—take the word of God, and follow its inspired teachings, instead of hastily reproving and correcting them! How much better is it thus to direct the erring and sinful to apply for forgiveness to Him who loves little children, and who is even more ready than earthly parents are, to hear and answer their child-like petitions!

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION IN THE EAST.

The subjoined extract is taken from the Banner of Ulster, and it illustrates the importance of a church having in the number of its ministry men of learning and standing, who may be able to take a high position among the rulers of the earth. Owing to the condition of society in Eastern countries, it is especially important that men of eminent attainments should be sent as missionaries by our churches. The relation of the chiefs and rulers to their subjects is such, that the conversion of a sovereign or prince opens a door of access to his people. The Church of Rome has ever recognised the value of this fact, and since the time when Augustine sought to gain the Anglo-Saxons of Kent by securing the conversion of their monarch, to the present day, her policy has been unchanged. Hence, the Propaganda has ever aimed at having a large supply of men, who, in consequence of their mastery of languages, their manners and address, as well as their diplomatic ability, are eminently qualified to operate in courts, and among the leaders of mankind. The Rev. Dr. Robson, of the Irish mission at Damascus, referred to in this extract, is a man of extensive learning, great prudence and judgment, and the effect of his influence on the Druse chiefs of Lebanon, will, it is to be hoped, materially aid the progress of the gospel in the East.

"One incident connected with the Assembly's mission to Syria requires notice, as it manifests the high esteem in which the Assembly's missionaries are held in the countries where they labour, and also reflects honour on the church that has sent them forth. The late Said Bey, Prince of Lebanon, died shortly after the insurrection in Syria, in which the Rev. William Graham was martyred; he, on his death-bed, committed his sons to the guardianship of the British government, through Lord Dufferin, the Commissioner of the government in Syria. The government, having undertaken the care of the children of the great Druse Chief, proposed to the Rev. Smyley Robson, the Assembly's missionary in Damascus, that he should become the governor of that noble family, and superintend their education. This Mr. Robson refused to do, without permission of the Board of Missions; whereupon a communication was laid before the Board, through the Rev. Mr. Rogers, from the government, requesting its permission for Mr. Robson to undertake the duties which government had entrusted to him; and it is gratifying to observe that the Board at once acceded to the request of these distinguished men; and Mr. Robson is now in such a position of honour and usefulness, and has obtained such an open door for the introduction of Christianity into that land, such as hitherto has seldom or ever fallen to the lot of a missionary of any church.

EARLY FORMATION OF GOOD HABITS.

If a child is neglected till six years of age, no subsequent education can recover it. If to this age it is brought up in dissipation and ignorance, in all the baseness of brutal habits, and in that vacuity of mind which such habits create, it is in vain to attempt to reclaim it by teaching reading and writing. You may teach what you choose afterwards, but if you have not prevented the formation of bad habits, you will teach in vain. An infant is in a state of perpetual enjoyment, from the intensity of curiosity. There is no one thing which it does not learn sooner or better than at any other period of life, and without any burthen to itself or the teacher. But learning is not all, nor the principal consideration; moral habits are acquired in these schools, and by their means children are kept out of the nurseries of obscenity, vulgarity, vice, and blasphemy. In the establishment at Westminster, none but children between three and five years of age are admitted, and there they are taken out of the streets, and taken care of by a parental, indulgent dame, while their mothers are set at liberty to go out and work. Whether the children learn less or more is of little consequence. The moral discipline is the great consideration.—Lord Brougham on Education.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

RECEIPTS AT PHILADELPHIA IN AUGUST 1862.

I.—FUND FOR CANDIDATES.

Pby of Albany—Charlton ch	8 56
Pby of Ogdensburg—Heuvelton ch	3 68
Pby of Hudson—Hopewell ch	8 00
Pby of Long Island—Huntingdon ch collection 26 80; West Neck Sab sch 4 30; Oldfields Sab sch 6 90	38 00
Pby of New York—Clifton 1st ch, Staten Island	22 37
Pby of West Jersey—Pittsgrove ch add'l 26; Blackwoodtown ch 7; Millville ch, (from the Ladies' cent a week Soc) in part 20 20	53 20
Pby of Monmouth—Tennent ch (from the Ladies)	32 22
Pby of Burlington—Allentown ch	20 00
Pby of Philadelphia 2d—1st ch Germantown, add'l, 137, of which for this Fund	92 00
Pby of Baltimore—Westminster ch, in part, 32, Sab sch of, 18	50 00
Pby of Carlisle—Great Conewaga ch	16 00
Pby of Lewes—Manokin ch	15 10
Pby of Washington—Wheeling First ch 67 50; Wheeling 4th ch 20	87 50
Pby of Marion—Brown ch 5; Sandusky ch 2	7 00
Pby of Maumee—West Bethesda ch	10 00
Pby of Findlay—First ch Findlay 20 85, less exch	20 70
Pby of Miami—Clifton ch, Young Ladies' Benevolent Society of	5 00
Pby of Sidney—1st ch Piqua	10 00
Pby of Sangamon—1st ch Springfield	50 00
Pby of Schuyler—La Prairie ch 1; Knoxville ch 2	3 00
Pby of St. Louis—St. Charles ch	15 40
Pby of Puget Sound—Clypia ch	6 00
	$573 73

REFUNDED.

O. B.	20 00

MISCELLANEOUS.

Gertrude B Decker, Oxford, Wis. 1; Rev A Chapman, Alquina, Ind. 5; Dr Lewis Tice 5; Rev T C Perry 30	41 00
	$634 73

II.—FUND FOR SCHOOLS, COLLEGES, &c.

Pby of Philadelphia—First ch Germantown	45 00
Total	$679 73

WM. MAIN, Treasurer.

RECEIPTS AT PITTSBURG, PA., IN AUGUST, 1862.

Pby of Ohio—Lawrenceville ch (penny coll)	50
Pby of Allegheny—Plain Grove ch	30 00
Pby of Erie—Franklin ch	17 50
Pby of Allegheny City—Bridgewater ch	25 10
Pby of New Lisbon—Poland ch 4; Bethel ch 6 37; Middle Sandy ch 10	20 37
	$93 47
Total amount acknowledged,	$773 20

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

MISSION HOUSE,
No. 23 Centre Street, New York.
September 13th, 1862.

RECENT INTELLIGENCE.

MISSION TO THE CHINESE IN CALIFORNIA.

Our letters from Mr. Loomis are dated to the 4th of August. He had been interrupted in his labours by an attack of sickness. Recovering, to some extent, from this, he and Mrs. Loomis made a journey into the hill country, which was of great service to their health. The kindness of Christian friends, particularly of Dr. and Mrs. Anderson, in San Francisco, is warmly acknowledged. These friends provided the pecuniary means needed for this journey, and otherwise showed them much sympathy and kindness. Mr. Loomis had resumed his work among the Chinese, and speaks of two persons as having applied for baptism.

CHINA.

From this country our letters are dated at Tungchow, to the 13th of June; Shanghai, to the 1st of July; Ningpo, to June ; and Canton, June 25th. The illness of Mr. Danforth was reported last month. Though his first sickness was removed, serious consequences were found to remain, which have rendered his return to this country a matter of necessity, with the hope thereby of complete recovery eventually. He embarked for Hong Kong, on his way home, on the 1st of July. At Canton, Mr. Condit's dwelling-house was nearly destroyed by a fire, on the 18th of June. The fire commenced in an adjoining house, near midnight. Mr. Condit, after giving particulars, adds: "We do not feel like uttering a word of complaint. We are thankful our lives are spared. God is good even in the midst of trial." The pecuniary loss was considerable, and friends among the merchants had generously contributed two hundred dollars towards replacing it. Mr. Happer reports the death of a native member of the church at Canton, one of the most promising as to usefulness. He was the teacher of the largest day-school. There was "good ground to hope, that for him to die was gain."

SIAM.

From this country we have received advices dated June 28th, which speak of the members of the mission as in usual health, and their work "going on as before."

INDIA.

We have received letters from this country dated at Allahabad, to July 4th; Sabathu, July 1st; Lodiana, July 18th; and Lahor, July 2d. Mr. Walsh speaks of a young married native woman, a member of the church at Allahabad, as being very ill, but ready to depart and be with Christ. Dr. Janvier and family were occupying the station at Sabathu, and Mr. Calderwood was at Ambala. Through the favour of the government officers at Lahor, additional facilities were obtained for the school in that city. Mr. Forman speaks of a discussion to which he had been challenged by a Musulman of some learning in Lahor, which was attended by audiences of four hundred persons, but after six meetings the Musulman considered it expedient to withdraw from the contest. Mr. Thackwell says: "During the first week, which includes the 4th of July, the mission engaged in prayer, at the respective stations, on behalf of the United States government, people, &c."

AFRICA.

Letters have been received from Corisco, dated to the 19th of June; and from Liberia, to the 1st of July. Mr. Clark, writing under date of May 19th, at Corisco, speaks of a Vocabulary of the Benga which he is collecting, which now embraces 2500 words; the fullest Vocabulary before collected contains about 1000 words. Mr. Nassau adds a postscript to his letter giving the latest date, as acknowledged above, and saying: "We are well and prospering." The sad news of Mr. Clemens's death is mentioned elsewhere in our columns.

SOUTH AMERICA.

The only letter received from this part of the missionary field since our last issue, is one from Mr. Blackford, at Rio de Janeiro, of July 22d. The work of the mission was steadily prosecuted.

INDIAN TRIBES.

Our letters from the Omaha mission are dated to the 30th of August; from the Iowa Institute, to the 5th of September; and from the Chippewa mission, August 26th. Miss E. Diament had arrived at the Iowa station, to resume her work among the Indians as a teacher, having formerly been connected with the Choctaw mission. The number of scholars in the Institute had increased to thirty.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE OF MISSIONARIES.

The Rev. C. De Heer, of the Corisco mission, arrived at this port on the 22d of August, after a long voyage. Mr. De Heer returns on a visit for his health, which, we are glad to learn, is somewhat improved.

The Rev. Edward H. Sayre and his wife embarked at Boston for Calcutta, in the ship Guiding Star, on the 2d of September, in company with a number of missionaries of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Sayre is a member of the Presbytery of Long Island, and is appointed to the Furrukhabad mission. We commend this company of missionaries to the protection of God, and ask for them an interest in the prayers of his people.

DEATH OF MR. CLEMENS.

We refer our readers to Mr. De Heer's letter, in another column, for particular information concerning the death of the Rev. William Clemens, of the Corisco mission, Africa. A suitable biographical notice of him, we trust, will be furnished by one of his missionary colleagues, or some other friend. His removal is a great loss to the mission. He was a man of eminent qualifications for his work, and of the greatest devotedness to it. In preaching the gospel, both at his station and on journeys made for that purpose, he was in labours abundant. He gave a part of his time to translating the Scriptures into Benga, and had with him a part of this translation for further revision and for printing in this country, under his superintendance. He was the chief agent in establishing and conducting a school at Alongo, his station on Corisco, for boys from different tribes on the mainland, which has already proved to be the means of doing great good. He was in the prime of life—in his thirty-seventh year, and the ninth of his missionary course. We mourn deeply over the loss of such a man; but we would bow in submission to the will of God, and rejoice in the grace given to his servant. It was this which made him so devoted, so happy, so useful in his work as a missionary; and it is this which assures us that for him to die was gain.

His wife and only child are in this country, Mrs. Clemens having returned some time ago on a visit, expecting to go back with her husband to Corisco. We need not ask for her the sympathy and prayers of our readers.

MISSIONS TO INDIA.

Missionary Work at Rawal Pindi in 1861.

The missionary labourers at this station are the Rev. J. H. Orbison and his wife, and two native Christian assistants. The Rev. J. H. Morrison, of this station, is at present in this country for his health.

Preaching in the vernacular has been maintained almost every day in the week, by the missionary and native assistants. On the Sabbath, two services in Hindustani have been regularly conducted for the benefit of the school and the native Christians. Other natives not unfrequently drop in to hear and observe what is going on. On Wednesday there has been either a Prayer-meeting and Lecture, or Bible-class.

The Gospel Distributed.

Tracts and books have been given gratis to readers, at the preaching-place in the bazar. An attempt was also made to sell some copies of the Scriptures, sent for the purpose by the North India Bible Society. An inquirer, a young Hindu, named Chhuj Mull, who seemed to have cast in his lot with the Christians, was placed in charge of the books. He succeeded in selling but one or two. However, the experiment cannot be considered fair and satisfactory, because the bookseller after a short time absconded, carrying a few books with him. Information was afterwards received that he had been caught and punished by the authorities at Jhelum.

Towards the end of the year, in order to diffuse the knowledge of Christianity more widely and rapidly, and awaken attention and interest among the natives, copies of the Scriptures, in superior binding, neatly folded up, and properly addressed, in Persian, Hindi, or Gurmukhi, were sent to the more learned and respectable residents, of all religions, in the Regimental Bazars, the Sudder, and the city. Some of the older boys in the school voluntarily and gladly proffered their assistance in addressing and distributing the books; not forgetting to supply their own parents and friends especially. The books were received with thanks and kind words. One Pundit returned his, with the request for a work on astronomy! Some who had been overlooked sent to the Mission House asking to be supplied also; inasmuch as they too were "honourable men." Thus it would seem there is far less missionphobia among the natives themselves than among some Europeans. The demand for books has greatly increased; and many of the scholars and teachers in the Government Normal School, and many others from the city and villages have come to ask for books. Recently native assistants with coolies carrying boxes of books, went through the lanes and streets of the city, and bazars of the cantonment, distributing to all who seemed worthy. Thus the gospel-seed has been scattered broadcast, and sown beside all waters.

The School.

. . . New scholars were added, until the number enrolled is now 120. A few of the older boys have left this station, and some have obtained good situations.

The school, in its general features, remains much the same as formerly; but the staff of teachers has been lately much enlarged and improved. A Christian head master, who passed the Calcutta University examination with credit, has been engaged, on a salary of 100 rupees per mensem. In the absence of the missionary he will preside over the whole institution, and take particular charge of the English department. He is assisted in the English instruction by a second master, on 40 rupees per mensem, and by monitors of a lower grade. In the Persian department there are now three teachers. The chief maulavi devotes himself almost exclusively to teaching the European sciences in the vernacular; the second, to teaching the Persian language; and the third, who is a Christian, to Bible history and religious instruction. Now, for the first time in the history of the school, has there been some approximation to what the school should be. This is owing, under Providence, in great part, to the increased grant-in-aid liberally given by government, viz. 130 rupees per mensem; for which grateful acknowledgments are here made.

Native Christian Community.

At the beginning of the year there were ten adult native Christians and two children. Of these, the two children and five adults have gone to different parts of the country where inclination or search for employment led them. The latter part of the year a native assistant and two orphan boys, belonging to another mission, have been sojourning at the station under the care of this mission. Including these, there are, at the close of the year, only six adults and the two orphan boys. There have been several inquirers, but no baptisms.

Making Friends.

Something in the way of visiting the natives at their own houses and dharmsalas has been attempted; and the missionary has generally been received not merely respectfully, but cordially. In consequence, there has been some kindly interchange of civilities. This has been more especially the case in regard to the Sikhs. On one occasion, during a visit in the city, an old, well-worn, but carefully preserved copy of the "Four Gospels and Acts," in Panjabi, printed long ago at the Lodiana press, was produced by a native gentleman, who made remarks from which it was evident he read and highly esteemed the book. The Lord in his good providence seems to be removing prejudices and obstacles, and preparing the way for his own coming in due time.

Murree.

Whilst spending a short time—two months and a half—at Murree, [a station in the hills resorted to by Europeans for health,] for the sake of his health and that of his family, the missionary dedicated to the service of God, the new Presbyterian church, for the use of English soldiers and others, and conducted divine service twice every Sabbath. A Union prayer-meeting was kept up once a week.

The missionary and native assistant also preached frequently to the natives on the highways and by-ways. And on Wednesday evening there was a prayer-meeting in the missionary's house for the native Christians, several of whom, from different stations, and in various employments, happened to be at Murree. Many tracts and books were distributed, and especially to Sepoys, who received them gladly and read them, and who frequently came to converse with the missionary. They seemed to be thoroughly convinced of the impostures practised on them by Brahmans and Gurus, and of the superstitions of their religion, and the sin of idolatry; all which they candidly acknowledged. The golden harvest is anticipated, although at present there seems a drought, or, at most, but here and there a blade or stalk.

JOURNAL OF THE REV. J. H. ORBISON.

Some recollections of a preaching-tour in Huzara and Chuch, in the months of February and March, 1862, may not be uninteresting.

The Journey commenced—Several small Villages visited.

February 7, 1862.—On Friday afternoon, after packing and loading, with much running to and fro, and hurry-scurry, and ding-donging, which must be left undescribed, we left Rawal Pindi with faces and hearts set for a preaching-tour in new territory, and prepared for a wandering life in tents. . . . . The night soon came on, and although there was moonlight, we passed the place appointed for pitching the tent, and went a few miles beyond before discovering the mistake. Returning, we found the tent nearly ready, but bedding, and provisions, and tea-things, did not arrive till near ten o'clock, owing to the camels squatting and throwing their loads. Having been huddled together on the bare cot trying to keep warm, we were glad to get to bed as soon as the bedding arrived, without waiting for tea. Thus ended the first day.

Next morning, on looking out, we saw several small villages, and determined to remain till Monday. In these villages we found but few who could read. We gave a few books, and preached, without much interruption, to good congregations. On Monday, leaving Chelo-Ihungi, we continued our journey on the great road toward Peshawur, in a northwesterly direction from Rawal Pindi, and pitched at Jani-ka-sung, near the old tomb of Jani-shah. Some companies of Ghoorka sepoys were encamped near, who were enjoying themselves with music and singing. We remained here till Thursday, and daily visited the bazar with the Pundit, to preach and discuss with Hindus and Mohammedans, who presented the usual objections and arguments.

The usual Native Views.

The Hindus admitted that the Christian religion was all true enough, and good enough for English folks, but that God had given the Hindus their own religion, which was much better for them. The Mohammedans vehemently and zealously denied the divinity and sonship of Christ, allowing him to have been a very good prophet; but Mohammed was a much greater, being sent last as the seal and chief of all the prophets, to whom Abraham, and Moses, and David, and Jesus had borne testimony, and of whom God himself declared, that were it not for Mohammed, the dear friend of God, the earth and heavens would not have been. The old Moolah, who blowed out his arguments with considerable show of learning, could not account very satisfactorily for the fact, that when a Jewess, to try the prophet, gave him poisoned meat, he, without discovering it, ate and fell sick; nor was the fact of Mohammed's dying, and turning to dust of the earth, without reaching heaven, or gaining even the dominion of the earth, easily accounted for; and the Moolah thought best to take his leave with the Mohammedan part of the audience, as it was evident the Hindus might learn too much about Mohammed, as they were already beginning to laugh at the Moolah's vain pretensions, and evidently enjoyed the exposure of the prophet. Although the Hindus mostly join with the Mohammedans in arguing against Christianity, and have picked up many of the Mohammedan arguments against the sonship and divinity of Christ, yet it is evident they bear the Mohammedans an old grudge, and they delight to see the falsehood and imposture of Islam exposed. Some of the people seemed well inclined, and we had a good opportunity to preach the gospel. A number of good readers applied for books.

"Chamber over a Gateway."

. . On Wednesday the rain which had been threatening came down in the afternoon. Our intended march was prevented. We took refuge in a little room over the gateway of the government Thana and police station, a large square, with great stone walls, and one entrance, somewhat in the style of a caravansera. The dirty streaks on the roof and walls of our little room showed that it was not altogether water-tight, and the many cracks in the floor showed that it was not air-tight. The wind came up with a rush. However, a bit of coarse carpeting soon made it more comfortable, and we enjoyed singing some good old familiar hymns, while the rain pattered above, and the police sepoys were chatting, and the tea-kettle was boiling in the gateway below us. We were forcibly reminded of the instances in the Bible where the chamber or room over the gateway is mentioned. For example, in 2 Samuel xviii. 33, we read that David "went up to the chamber over the gate and wept." In America there is nothing of the kind; but in this country it is very common to have a room built over the gateways of walled towns, &c.

On Thursday it cleared away beautifully, and in the afternoon the tent, having dried, was taken down, the camels were loaded, and we left our little "chamber over the gate," thankful to have had such a good shelter in the storm.

"A Nest of Moolahs."

February 13.—After leaving Jani-ki-sung, we soon struck off from the main road leading to Peshawur on to the road running through the Huzara country, and after a short march arrived at Shah ka Dera about dusk. Here we entered upon new ground, where the missionary had not itinerated before. Shah ka Dera is a nest of Moolahs—a stronghold of the devil. All the inhabitants are Mohammedans. There are numerous tombs of fakeers and saints, with whom many of the people claim relationship. Hence they pride themselves on being particularly Mohammedan, and holy, and bloodthirsty. In the morning of the 14th the old pundit and I went into the bazar to preach. Soon a crowd gathered, and we attempted to speak, but we were opposed and interrupted by impertinent Moolahs, and by a noisy, abusive "Mochee," (shoemaker,) urged on underhand by an animal-looking Moonshie, a fat under official in government employ. Amid much excitement and confusion, we tried to keep quiet and get a word in. We retired with hearts down.

In the afternoon we went to another part of the city, and visited the government school, which was next door to the mosque, and which consisted of some eighteen scholars, and a young ignorant teacher like themselves, kept in a place only fit for mules.

A number of people, many of them greybeards, assembled, and we had a discussion which passed off well. Their Moulvie asserted that Mohammed was the "Farkleet" (Paraclete) which Jesus promised would come, and that Mohammed had abrogated the Old and New Testaments, which were all good and true enough in their time, &c., &c. The noisy Mochee again tried to get up an uproar and tumult among the people, but was silenced by the chief Moulvie, who wished to show off his learning, and who, being dependent on the government for a "holy grant" which had descended with the family from former governments, began to fear that they were in danger of being called to account for the tumult of the day. On the whole, we had a good time this visit, and succeeded in proclaiming the truth. (I afterwards heard they burned the books we gave them.)

A beautiful Country.

The country around this is picturesque and pleasing, consisting of a vast amphitheatre surrounded with hills and mountains, of which those to the North are very high, and their tops covered with snow. The land is fertile, well covered with the springing crops, and everywhere watered with tiny canals, which were flowing with water from the Hurro river, which was thus left almost dry. Many villages were scattered around, and at night, as it was the time of the annual "Shabbarat," (night of happiness,) being lit up as with a hundred bonfires each, they presented a singular and interesting spectacle for miles around. The Shabbarat is the only period when the Mohammedans make offerings in the names (if not to the manes) of their deceased relatives. It is a great time among young and old for showing off rockets and fireworks of every kind.

After visiting some villages we went on to Osman and encamped for the Sabbath. We did not meet with much bad opposition in preaching here. Villages in the neighbourhood and on the road were visited, and the gospel message declared; and after several days we arrived at the chief city of Huzara on the 20th.

[To be continued.]

EXTRACTS FROM A JOURNAL OF THE REV. R. THACKWELL, LICENTIATE PREACHER.

Spread of Christian Knowledge among the People —A Native Chief friendly.

Camp Nabha, Nov. 21, 1861.—This place is about forty miles to the south of Lodiana, and we have had a very pleasant time in the towns and villages by the way. There are now but few places in the Lodiana district where the gospel has not been, if not preached by the living voice of the preacher, at least carried in a printed form. We found large audiences, and, in some instances, willing listeners, in the towns. Pael, Dhamauth, Mallowdh, and Kotilah, all places of some importance, have lately had the gospel preached in them. Here and there an opponent appeared, but the people generally received us well, manifesting a spirit of cordiality and goodwill which was very encouraging. The conviction that we are right, and they wrong, appears to be gaining ground among the people. There are now few Hindus with whom the missionaries come in contact who advocate, or even defend idolatry; and we would fain hope, that the time is not far distant when many shall cast their idols to the moles and to the bats, for fear of the Lord, and for the glory of his majesty.

The Nawab of Kotilah gave me a very warm reception, and appeared pleased with a copy of the London edition of the New Testament, and some other books, of a controversial nature, which I gave him. He appears to take an interest in the affairs of America, and made many inquiries about the war.

Interview with another Native Chief.

Nov. 23.—To-day I had an interview with the Rajah of Nabha, a young prince, apparently twenty years of age. His air is that of a man conscious of his own dignity and exalted rank. He has a prepossessing countenance, and that gentlemanlike ease characteristic of his high position. He received me very kindly, and I had an opportunity of saying a word for Jesus, and gave him a copy of the New Testament, and some other books, which he promised to keep for his own perusal. I likewise spoke to him about establishing an English school in his city, and he told me that it was his intention to do so. Such schools are valuable auxiliaries to mission work. The Rajah is a Hindu, and, for a man in his position, appears to have had his education greatly neglected. In this respect, he does not compare favourably with the Rajah of Kapurthala. He is, however, now learning to read and write English.

A prospering City, and a good Outpost of the Mission.

The city of Nabha is one of the neatest and cleanest that I have seen in India, and its inhabitants appear to be in a flourishing condition. They eagerly take our books; not only so, but they literally besiege our tents for them, so that in order to get rid of their importunity, we are compelled to give more away than we think we ought, with due regard to other places, to do. Qádir Bakhsh and myself have preached several times in the city, and have always had large audiences. This would be a most promising field for an out-station, but we have not the means of occupying it.

Our itineration thus far is marked by the absence of that opposition which we usually meet with from the more bigoted Hindus and Mohammedans. This, I think, is mainly due to direct missionary effort; but it must likewise be conceded, that the advance made by the people in general knowledge, consequent on the systematic establishment of schools throughout the country, may have had something to do with it.

A wealthy and bigoted Native Chief—Brahmani bulls in his Capital.

Camp Patiala, Nov. 28.—We reached this city yesterday, and intend to leave to-morrow morning. The people are not so accessible here as in the British dominions. Patiala is the seat of a Hindu Rajah, a man of enormous wealth, but extremely bigoted. His capital is the nursery of Hinduism in this quarter. Brahmani bulls throng the streets, and obstruct the thoroughfares. They roam where they list through the bazars, and their fat sleek sides show that they are fed on the choicest morsels the bazar can afford. They go thrusting their noses into the different viands exposed for sale, and help themselves to the best. Their huge bodies being held sacred, they usually escape with impunity; but now and again an irate shopkeeper, vexed at the loss entailed on him by this wholesale levier of contributions, forgets his orthodoxy, and deals him a vigorous blow, to be expiated, mayhap, by a voluntary contribution to the author of his misfortune the next time he makes his appearance.

No Welcome here to a Missionary.

I have reason to believe that the Maharajah, although very hospitable and courteous to the English in general, dislikes to see a missionary enter his territory; and this dislike shows itself in the reception the missionary meets with at the capital. He is usually quite neglected, and allowed to do the best he can in obtaining provisions for himself and servants. Every one asks him double the value of every thing he wants, and he is compelled to purchase or go without. I find it more difficult to procure supplies here than in the villages remote from any bazar.

The Chief's Capital City and its "Lions."

Patiala is a large walled city, with several entrances through gates of ornamental masonry. It possesses some very fine buildings, and the Qila (fort), in which the Maharajah himself resides, is a magnificent structure, four stories high, with a front of immense area, splendidly ornamented in stucco.

There is a garden called the Moti Bagh, (the garden of pearls,) so called, according to popular report, from the fact, that in former years strings of pearls were attached to the branches of the trees, and hung pendent like bunches of grapes. This garden amply repays the visitor for the toil and fatigue of labouring through streets and along roads more than ancle-deep in dust and sand to see it. In the centre of the garden there is a building called the Sheesh Mahall, (glazed palace,) highly embellished, and fitted up in Mosaic work, studded with small mirrors set in gold; and near it is a very light and elegant structure, all of marble, in the centre of a marble tank. This is a favourite resort during summer. It is so constructed that a stream of water can be jetted up to the roof, which, after circulating through every part, passes down by the sides into the tank beneath, which is kept full of water. It is said that this place is delightfully cool, even during the hottest months. At the extreme end of the garden there is a reservoir, of enormous extent for a work of that character, lined throughout with brick masonry, and it must have cost several hundreds of thousands of rupees. The Maharajah's barge is moored to a ring at the side, and apparently the reservoir is used only as a pleasure lake. Surely the end is altogether disproportionate to the means! In the construction of this artificial lake there is proof of design, and of some artistic taste, but a lamentable want of wisdom. Notwithstanding the vast sum sunk in the reservoir, there is not a road to the capital that admits of transit in a buggy without endangering the springs. But this is consonant to Asiatic ideas. It is common to see thousands of rupees squandered in show, while works of first utility are neglected. The present Maharajah, however, appears to be alive to the advantages derivable from such works, as he is now excavating a canal from the river Sutlej to his territories, and has set apart from his surplus revenues $250,000 a year to cover the expenses of the work.

During our stay here we have had large audiences, and have given a few books away; but this field is not at present very encouraging. We trust that when Sir H. Edwardes will assume charge of the commissionership of the Cis-Sutlej states, he will be enabled to initiate a more Christian policy for the Maharajah, for Christ may have many souls even in this place, which in many respects resembles Corinth.

MISSIONS IN CHINA.

THE MISSIONARY FIELD IN SHANTUNG.

The following letter of Mr. Nevius will receive, we hope, the careful consideration of our readers. It gives some account of the field of labour among twenty seven millions of heathens, amongst whom there are in all less than half a score of ministers of the gospel.

Yintai, May 12, 1862.

During the past two months we have made two missionary tours in the eastern part of this province for the purpose of preaching, tract distribution, and explorations. It was our intention to have made another more extensive tour towards the west, but the unexpected illness of brother Danforth just as we were about to set out, and our special desire to become better acquainted with the places near us, have led to the postponement of the western trip till fall. In the two journeys referred to, the whole of the Shantung promontory has been traversed. Its length is about two hundred miles, and its mean breadth about eighty, being less than one-third the area of the whole province. I made the first trip in company with Mr. Smith, of the American Episcopal Mission, and the second with Mr. Gayley, both together completing a journey of about six hundred miles.

General Appearance of the Country.

The extreme eastern part of the promontory is mountainous, and the population is less dense, and the cities and towns less flourishing than in the western part. There are, however, two important and busy trading towns, Sheh-tao and Lih tao, on the southern side of the point, which are visited by many junks from the southern coast of China. The scenery in many places is exceedingly beautiful. The walled cities, Wehai-wei and Uong-cheng, near the point, are, in respect to wealth and commercial importance, inferior to many of the larger villages. The former place has a good harbour for vessels of light draft. In the general character of the country there is also a marked difference between the northern and southern sides of the promontory. On the northern side, the hills, commencing near the sea, extend to the middle of the promontory, while the southern side is for the most part a large plain, about fifty miles in width, skirted by a few hills along the coast. For some cause, the country on the south side does not seem so rich, nor the towns so flourishing, as on the north. The port of Kiao-cheo, on the southern side, which in peaceful times has carried on a large trade with Ningpo, is impracticable for foreign ships, and is inferior in almost every respect to Tungchow as a mission station. It suffered greatly last year from the rebels, and the principal part of its suburbs is destroyed There is another harbour, Kien-keo, a little east of Kiao-cheo, where a considerable trade is carried on with the south by native junks. No harbour, however, on the promontory will bear comparison with that of Yin-tai, (or Chefoo, as it is called by foreigners.) There can be little doubt that the foreign trade of the province will centre at this place.

Roads and Travelling.

In the eastern part of the promontory, the roads are rough and hilly, and travelling can only be performed on horseback, or in litters carried by mules. In the western part, a few miles from Tungchow, the cart roads commence, which extend to the capital of the province, and indeed to Pekin. Travelling here is very slow, tiresome, and expensive, compared with the south of China. There we have comfortable boats which go day and night, and serve not only for locomotion, but also for temporary dwellings. Here we with difficulty get over more than forty miles a day, and are obliged to put up at night at a native inn. A few of these inns are quite comfortable, but they are usually the very opposite.

The Inhabitants.

